THE

THEOLOGICAL WORKS

Of the moſt Pious and Learned

HENRY MORE, D. D.

Sometime FELLOW of

CHRIST's COLLEGE

IN CAMBRIDGE.

CONTAINING

An Explanation of the Grand Myſtery of Godlineſs.

An Enquiry into the Myſtery of Iniquity. In Two Parts.

A Prophetical Expoſition of the Epiſtles to the Seven Churches in Aſia.

A Diſcourſe of the Grounds of Faith in Points of Religion.

An Antidote againſt Idolatry.

An Appendix to the Antidtoe againſt Idolatry. To which are adjoin'd, Some Divine Hymns.

According to the AUTHOR'S Improvements in his Latin Edition.

LONDON,

Printed and Sold by Joſeph Downing in Bartholomew-Cloſe near Weſt-Smithfield. MDCCVIII.

GAINSBRIDGE.

DEDICATIO.

JESU NAZARENO

CRUCIFIXO DEI FILIO,

Qui nos in Eccleſiam Sanctam & inculpatam,
Et quæ nullam haberet maculam aut rugam
Pretioſo SUO Sanguine
Redemit;
COMMUNI HUIC Humani Generis SERVATORI
Ac præſtitutæ LUCI GENTIUM, ÆTERNÆ utiq; PATRIS SAPIENTIÆ
in B. Virginis Utero INCARNATÆ, Servorum ILLIUS omnium indigniſſimus
HENRICUS MORUS
Hæc ſua Scripta THEOLOGICA,
Seq; ipſum pariter ſuaq; adeo omnia,
CORPUS, ANIMAM, VITAM,
L. M. Q. D. D.
Fidoq; EJUS commendat PATROCINIO,
Suppliciter EUM Orans,
Ut faxit hæc OPERA ſua
In ILLIUS cedant Gloriam
Et ECCLESIÆ SUÆ Emolumentum;
Utq; PROMISSORUM SUORUM memor
Præpotenti SPIRITUS adventu
TENEBRARUM REGNUM debellet
Viréſq; frangat PECCATI ac DIABOLI,
ECCLESIAMQUE SUAM repurget
Ab omni IMMUNDITIE
SUPERSTITIONIS, IDOLOLATRIÆ & PROFANITATIS
SATANICÆQUE SÆVITIÆ,
ÆTERNAMQUE in Terris ſtabiliat
JUSTITIAM ac PACEM,
Et FELICISSIMA illa SECULA acceleret
Jam olim per os prædicta
Sanctorum SUORUM PROPHETARUM.
Ut VERA ſic JEHOVÆ NOTITIA
Totum ORBEM TERRARUM repleat
Sicut AQUÆ operientes MARE.
Amen.

Servus indigniſſimus, or omnino indignus,
or any other positive
Self-abasement before
God, I can understand;
but how an express avowal of unworthiness comparatively superlative can consist with the Job-like integrity and sincerity of Profession, especially required in a solemn address to Him, to whom all hearts are open — this I do not understand — in the case of such men as Henry More, Jer.
Taylor, R. Baxter,
&c were, and by comparison at least, with the multitude of evil doers, must have believed themselves to be.

S 7 C.

READER,

YOU are here preſented with the Divinity Volume of that incomparable Perſon Dr. Henry More, late Fellow of Chriſt's College in Cambridge: One tho' unknown unto many, yet, well known unto others, as great Perſons as the Age and Nation have produc'd; Famous, firſt for Philoſophy, and that of the beſt and nobleſt Kind: And not leſs afterwards for his Divinity: One of the moſt Perfect and Accompliſh'd Perſons, on this ſide extraordinary Inſpiration, that the Church of God hath in any Age been enrich'd with. You are entreated then, before I go farther, not to judge of him from any bare Notion either of Popularity on the one ſide, or Prejudice on the other; but from his ſubſtantial Works, as from a ſincere and attentive Peruſal they ſhall be found before you; his deep Senſe, and moſt excellent Judgment and Comprehenſion of things; his ſolid Stile, Weight and Elegance of Expreſſion, uſeful Learning and profound Piety; his ſincere Zeal, admirable Skill in Prophecies, and moſt happy Interpretation or Repreſentation of them; his moſt ſingular Attainments in the Divine Life; and rare Abilities for the Underſtanding and Unfolding (eſpecially where his Works are more at large read) the chiefeſt Myſteries of the Kingdom of God. And this may ſuffice for a ſhort Character of him, till the World receive ere long, and be gratified, as is hop'd, with a larger deſcription of his Virtues and Writings.

As for that part of them which is now in your Hand, it is deſigned for the Uſe of all ſorts of Readers whatſoever, that may have the Ability or Opportunity of peruſing it; but in a more eſpecial manner, of all ſuch Reverend Clergy-men as ſhall be fix'd in the Places where Charitable Libraries are Erected. For it ought to be obſerv'd, that in purſuance of the many Excellent and Noble Charities, which, to the great Honour of our Church and Nation, are at this preſent carrying on in it; a certain private Perſon, (and who in ſuch a Capacity, and according to the Opportunities he hath had, hath been the Inſtrument, it may be, of as many worthy Works of Charity and Beneficence, as moſt other Perſons of the beſt ſort throughout the whole Kingdom) I ſay, a private Reverend, and very worthy Perſon, out of a juſt Senſe of Honour to the Doctor, and, what is much more, the ſingular Uſefulneſs of his Writings in this improv'd and improving Age, hath with great Pains and Zeal, and from the Generous Help and Bounty of ſome much honoured and excellently diſpoſed Friends of his, finiſhed at length this new Impreſſion of ſo large a Volume, merely for a publick Benefaction; and hath humbly Dedicated it to the Uſe of the Church of God; and ſuch Charitable Libraries as were before mentioned. And it is hop'd, that as all this is done with ſo highly Chriſtian and Unintereſted a Deſign, and not without, it may be thought, the Good Hand of Providence, it will tend to the greater Eſteem, and more ſincere Uſe of theſe ſo valuable Writings.

One thing there is that I ought particularly to Advertiſe the Reader of; and that is, that whereas the Author in his Latin Works hath prefix'd to his Theological Volume, what he calls Viſionum Apocalypticarum Ratio Synchroniſtica, &c. A Synchroniſtical Account of the Apocalyptick Viſions, containing about Eight Sheets, illuſtrated with Tables that contain the whole, and accompanied at the End, with what he doth not very unjuſtly call, A Demonſtration of the neceſſary and unavoidable Intelligibleneſs of theſe Divine Viſions; a Tract, as of vaſt Uſe and Moment in it Self, ſo particularly Advantageous for the Underſtanding of what he terms his Synopſis Prophetica, or Second Part of the Myſtery of Iniquity; and, the Truth is, all his other Prophetical Writings whatever: This Piece notwithſtanding is left out in this Engliſh Impreſſion of the Volume, though earneſtly and often endeavoured to be added to it. So that with much reluctancy I am forced to remit the Learned Reader to the Enjoyment of this, in his own Latin Edition of it.

I am ſo confin'd that I have nothing to do now, but to leave the Pious and Judicious Reader, to the Candid and Serious Peruſal of this Work; aſſuring him that he ſhall find, upon a good Obſervation, no common Author or Treatiſe in his Hands; but one in whom is to be ſeen the Ripeſt Notions and Judgment of Things; and that the more he is underſtood, or well conſidered, the more will he immediately be reliſh'd and eſteem'd; and appear upon the whole, as he was, an Original. It is not indeed neceſſary, or to be expected, that all Perſons ſhould preſently fall in with all his Notions; but even ſuch, I believe, as do not, will be ſoon ſenſible of his extraordinary Genius and Performance: And certain it is, that many Perſons of great Parts and Virtue, have often profeſs'd themſelves in a very peculiar manner mov'd and excited by his Writings; nay, what ſhall I ſay more? moſt highly Inſtructed and Tranſported by them.

May God give a Bleſſing to this and all other Means, for the unfeigned Benefit and Enlargement of his Church; and either graciouſly continue, or reſtore unto it, Peace and Truth for ever. Amen.

THE

THE PREFACE TO THE READER.

What the Author thought fit to advertise concerning this Theological Volume in general.

THE Treatiſes contained in this our Theological Volume, having many, and thoſe very large Prefaces, I thought I ſhould beſt alleviate the Pains of my Reader if I took them all away, and prefix'd to this whole Book one general Preface in the Room of all of them. Which yet I judg'd was to be done in ſuch a manner, that I might no where omit to ſay what was neceſſary concerning each of them: and this to be taken from the Prefaces aforeſaid; intermixing alſo ſome new Things with them, as Occaſion might require; and after the beſt Manner that I could, compiling the whole into a General Preface.

As to the Occaſion of Tranſlating my Works into Latin, with the Nature of the Style, and ſuch like, ſince they relate equally to both Volumes, as well the Philoſophical as Theological, I thought fit to defer them to the moſt General Preface of all to be prefix'd to the Philoſophical Volume.

But for my ſetting forth to the Publick this Theological Work in Latin before the Philoſophical, this wants not, I hope, its juſt Apology. I confeſs, indeed, that my Philoſophical Treatiſes precede thoſe contain'd in this Volume, in order, as well of Time as, Nature; being firſt writ, and treating of more general Arguments than the preſent. For in thoſe Writings my chief Pains were ſpent in demonſtrating the Exiſtence of God, and the Soul's Immortality, with the clearing up the Myſtery of the Moſaick Creation. But I thought here, that the Meaſures of Prudence were to be preferr'd to thoſe of Art; and the apparent Profit of the Church to any Neatneſs and Concinnity of Order. And I think it much more for the Benefit of the Church, that ſuch Writings ſhould ſee the Light, as demonſtrate, and confirm the Chriſtian Religion, than thoſe which only treat of ſuch Matters as all Religions do agree in: ſuch as the Exiſtence of God, and of things Incorporeal, with the Immortality of the humane Soul, and the like. To ſay nothing alſo how that a greater Certainty, even of theſe things, is to be drawn from the Scriptures rightly and compleatly underſtood, than from the cleareſt Fountains of Philoſophy. Which, for my own part, I have ſo much found to be true, that I do plainly diſcern that this Experience of mine, if I had had it ſooner, would in greateſt part have extinguiſh'd that ſo ardent Deſire of Philoſophizing, which ſeiz'd me when I was very young. For how can it poſſibly be, that he which hath a full Faith in the Truth of the Goſpel propounded and demonſtrated to him in a clear and evident Method, and ſo marvellouſly confirmed and eſtabliſhed to him by ſolid and undeniable Interpretations of Prophecies, ſhould ever afterward doubt either of God and his Providence, or of the Miniſtry and Exiſtence of Angels, and of the Soul's Immortality? I could not therefore any otherwiſe order it, but that thoſe Writings by which I found my ſelf moſt confirm'd in the Chriſtian Faith, ſhould be firſt tranſlated into Latin, and alſo firſt publiſh'd.

And this I did with the greater Diligence, that I might take Occaſion from thence to correct ſome few Places in theſe Writings, or to perfect and illuſtrate the ſame. For there were ſome things, but thoſe a very few, flowing rather from the Hypotheſis of the Famous Mr. Mede, than my own, that eſcap'd me; and which, as I was writing, through Inadvertency, inſinuated themſelves. And there are others which no way concern the Prophecy, which, as the manner of ſome Men is, were interpreted to an ill Senſe, and which therefore I have either changed or obliterated. For I am of that Temper, that while I ſtudy to my Power to profit all Men, I would not willingly give Offence to any.

But if in thoſe things which are ſo evidently true and clearly demonſtrated, a more than ordinary Heat has ſometimes accompanied ſo great a Light, and may ſeem to have armed my Style in ſome Places with over-much Sharpneſs and Vehemence; I would deſire ſo ſoft and prudent a Soul to conſider with himſelf, whether there be not Men in the World as bad as I deſcribe, and whether he ought in Charity to conceit I mean any other than thoſe; and being ſuch as they are, whether they can deſerve leſs; and if he be none of them himſelf, why he ſhould partake of their Sins by diſallowing of their deſerved Chaſtiſement and Rebuke. Againſt which there can be no colourable Reaſon, unleſs that theſe which deſerve this Puniſhment may have grown paſt feeling. Which Inſenſibleneſs is more to be deplored and pitied than their being expoſed to the Search of a faithful Chirurgeon, the Method of whoſe Art forces him, tho' with Reluctancy, to launce them what he can to the quick. But thoſe that have digeſted Wickedneſs into Principles, and framed Religion it ſelf into a Compliance and Furtherance to the fouleſt Converſation and Deſigns merely ſecular; it is no Wonder, while they can upon ſuch fantaſtick Grounds conceit themſelves the Temple of the Lord, the Children of the moſt High, and the very Darlings of Heaven, that they look for proportionable Honour and Reſpect from Men; and would march on, though in theſe ill Ways, as ſolemnly and ſecurely as the Children of Iſrael out of Ægypt; of whom it is ſaid, that not a Dog ſhould move his Tongue againſt any of them. And ſo much for my Theological Volume in general.

Of the Myſtery of Godlineſs.

I ſhall now briefly premiſe ſomewhat concerning each of the Parts; and firſt of the Myſtery of Godlineſs, the very Title of which, and full Inſcription, if thou ſhalt rightly underſtand, it will let thee eaſily in to the Scope and Nature of the whole Diſcourſe. Thou mayſt therefore juſtly expect, from my terming of it, An Explanation of the Myſtery of Godlineſs, not a mere verbal Expoſition or Declaration of what is ſignified thereby, or taught therein, but ſuch an orderly Exhibition of the Truths thereof, that the Scope of the Whole being underſtood, the Reaſonableneſs of the Particulars thereunto tending may clearly appear. And the End, which all Parts of the Chriſtian Myſtery point at, is the Advancement and Triumph of the Divine Life. In the Exaltation whereof God is the moſt highly and moſt truly magnified and glorified, and not in the dark and unintelligible Exerciſe of an irreſiſtible Power. By which no other Acts of Devotion can be ſtirred up in us than a certain Fear and Stupour, ſuch as ſeizes upon poor aſtoniſhed Cattle in Storms and Lightnings, or mighty Land-floods, that carry them they know not whither.

I have ſtyled it alſo, A true and faithful Repreſentation of the Everlaſting Goſpel, &c. True, as intermingling no humane Inventions nor Deductions therewith, but contenting my ſelf with theſe things only that are expreſsly declared in the Scripture. The Truth of which things, I think, I have demonſtrated beyond all Exception in the Third Part of this Treatiſe. I add alſo, Faithful, I having wrote impartially, ſetting down nothing out of any Paſſion, Intereſt, or Side-taking, nor out of the Spirit of Oppoſition or Vain-glory, but ſpeaking the Truth freely without any Reſpect to Perſons or Factions; not minding either to ſooth the one, or diſpleaſe the other, but delivering my Meſſage ſo as one that is ſenſible he muſt give an Account thereof within a ſmall Space of time before them in the other World. And as I profeſs my ſelf that I have done all things herein with a faithful Heart, ſo I doubt not but the Effect will witneſs for me, that what I profeſs is true.

For whereas ſome in an Hypocritical Flattery of the External Perſon of Chriſt, ſhuffle out all Obligation to the Divine Life, (which is that Myſtical Chriſt within us) and pervert the Grace of God in the Goſpel to Looſeneſs and Libertiniſm; and others on the contrary (whether out of the Power of Melancholy that calls the Thoughts inward, or the Scandal they take from Abuſe of the perſonal Offices of our Bleſſed Saviour, (they ſeeing the generality of Chriſtians make the external Frame of Religion but a Palliation for Sin) or whether from the Obſcurity of ſome Articles of the Chriſtian Faith) have become plainly Infidels and Misbelievers of the whole Hiſtory of Chriſt, and will have nothing to do with his Perſon, but look upon the Myſtery of Chriſtianity as a thing wholly within us, and that has no other Object than what is either acting or acted in our ſelves: I have with all Earneſtneſs of Endeavour, and with undeniable Clearneſs of Teſtimony from Reaſon and Scripture demonſtrated the Truth and Neceſſity of both Chriſt within and Chriſt without, and have plainly ſet out the wonderful Wiſdom and Goodneſs of God in contriving ſo powerful a Means as the very exteriour Oeconomy of Chriſtianity is for the renewing of our Natures into the glorious Image of his Son, who is the Life of God, and the Soul's ſure Pledge of an happy Immortality. Beſides that there there is no Article of the Chriſtian Faith, nor any particular Miracle hapning to, or done by our Saviour, or to be done by him, mentioned in the Goſpels, or any where elſe in the New Teſtament, but I have given ſo ſolid and rational an Account thereof, that I am confident that no Man that has the Uſe of his Underſtanding ſhall be able ever to pretend any Reaſon againſt the Chriſtian Religion, ſuch as it is exhibited in the holy Writings themſelves. And what is, if this be not, to ſet out a faithful Repreſentation of the Goſpel?

Which I have not raſhly termed, The Everlaſting Goſpel of our Lord and Saviour, &c. being warranted thereto by that of Daniel, who ſtyles Chriſtian Religion צדק עלמים The Everlaſting Righteouſneſs, or the Everlaſting Religion, as Grotius has well interpreted it. Which Religion has its Note and Character from the Suffering of the Meſſias, and began from thence, and is to remain till he return again viſibly in the Clouds of Heaven, and put a Period to this Stage of things. I was alſo thereunto provoked in way of expreſs Oppoſition to that bold Enthuſiaſt, of whom I have ſpoken ſo much in earneſt in the enſuing Treatiſe, who ſeems to have endeavoured to ſuperannuate Chriſtianity as it is founded upon the Perſon of our ever-bleſſed Saviour the crucified Jeſus, and to introduce another Evangelie, as he calls it, which he pretends to be the Everlaſting Goſpel, and fancies himſelf that flying Angel in the midſt of Heaven, that is, the Preacher of it to every Nation, and Kindred, and Tongue, and People.

But beſides this general Title and Account, I think it not amiſs to advertiſe alſo the Reader concerning ſome particular places; as of my large Deſcription of the Animal Life, my ſo copious Diſplay of Paganiſm, my Paralleliſm between our Saviour and Apollonius, concerning Mahometiſm alſo and Familiſm, with its more deformed Offspring Quakeriſm.

And truly for what concerns the Animal Life, I thought I could not be too punctual in the deſcribing of it, it being ſo ſerviceable for our better underſtanding of the Divine, whoſe Nature and Properties by how much more clearly and diſtinctly any one conceives, and withal has a ſavoury and experimental Reliſh thereof, with the greater Satisfaction ſhall he peruſe what I have Writ, and underſtand the Reaſonableneſs, and be aſſured of the Truth and Solidity of the Chriſtian Religion. For the Divine Life is in a manner the deepeſt Bottom of this whole Myſtery of Godlineſs we treat of.

Moreover, the more perfect underſtanding of the Nature of the Animal Life makes us the abler to judge of the ſundry Superſtitions of Paganiſm, wherein though by their ſubtil Apologies they could clear themſelves from Atheiſm and the worſer ſort of Idolatry, and could make it good, that it was One Eternal Deity, be he never ſo Philoſophically defined, that was the chief and ultimate Object of their Worſhip; yet it is hereby apparent that the beſt of them paſſed not beyond the Bounds of the Animal Life, foraſmuch as they worſhipped God in theſe rude Religions only out of the Senſe of the Gratifications of the Animal Life: And if I have more copiouſly ſet down how foully and ſordidly they have done it, my Pains therein, I hope, may be interpreted to very good purpoſe, it being manifeſt thereby how juſt a Victory Chriſtianity had over Paganiſm.

And for the continued Parallel I have made betwixt the Life of Chriſt and Apollonius, beſides the Pleaſure the Peruſer may take in receiving an Account of the Character and Actions of ſo noble a Perſon as that Pagan was, (whom his Fellow-heathens did either equalize to, or elſe prefer before our ever-bleſſed Saviour, and who was not a mere Enthuſiaſtick Whiffler, ſtrutting with a raiſed Style and a canting Eloquence, but was exemplarily juſt, chaſte and generous, and did ſuch Miracles, as nothing but Magick, and the Aſſiſtance of ſome of the inviſible Powers he was in League with, could bring to paſs) I ſay, beſide the Pleaſure, there will accrue to him alſo the Advantage of a more clear and diſtinct Knowledge of the right Idea of a Perſon truly Divine, by diſcovering of a Counterfeit that in outward Appearance came ſo nigh the true. For thoſe things, though they dazled the Eyes of the better ſort of the Heathen, as Hierocles and others, in ſuch ſort that they took him to be at leaſt as ſacred a Perſon as our Saviour himſelf; yet I doubt not but that by this Paralleliſm of mine I have proved the Compariſon to be very vain and preſumptuous, and have made it appear to as many as are competent Judges of what is truly Divine, that our Saviour Chriſt does exceed the Character of Apollonius (though it is very probable Philoſtratus has taken the liberty to add more Miracles and Perfections than he ever was guilty of) as far as Apollonius did the brute Beaſts. And therefore I hold the making of this Paralleliſm of very great Uſe and Conſequence for the enabling us to diſtinguiſh the Divine Life from the Animal, even then when it is dreſſed up in its moſt commendable Ornaments. Of which this in Apollonius is a very illuſtrious Example.

this

And though there be no great Exerciſe intended of Curioſity of Judgment in my bringing up Mahomet and that grand Enthuſiaſt of Amſterdam upon the Stage, as being bold Corrivals with Chriſt himſelf; yet it is no ſupervacaneous Action to draw them into ſight, though it be but that their own Looks might condemn them. For that alſo tends to the Confirmation of our Religion, that ſhe has no actual Competitors or Corrivals, but ſuch as bear upon them their Self-condemnation at the very firſt View. Which is eaſilier obtained of Mahometiſm, their Succeſs and Victories having made them bold, and leſs cautious of expoſing their Filthineſs to the World. But Familiſm is a more various, a more obſcure and ſculking Monſter, though ſhe mutter in her dark Hole, that ſhe has Right to the Dominion of the whole Earth, and that Chriſtianity and Mahometiſm are at length to give place to her. And therefore truly it might have been judged a Defect, if I had not thus haled this Monſter out of her Den into open Day, that the World once having ſeen her, may ſay they have enough of her, unleſs God out of his Wrath has given them up to a reprobate Senſe, for their Abuſe of the ſolid Truths of the Goſpel.

I confeſs my ſo large Excurſions, and frequent Expoſtulations with the Familiſts and Quakers, are not very ornamental to my Diſcourſe, and may go off but heavily with ſuch Perſons as peruſe Mens Writings more for Pleaſure than Service, and rather for private Satisfaction than for publick Uſefulneſs, which they neither intend themſelves, nor do eaſily ſpy out or reliſh in the Intentions of others. But the publick Intereſt of the Church of Chriſt being the Scope and Meaſure of my writing this Treatiſe, it was ſufficient that I kept faithful to my own Deſign, not heeding the Gratification of more trim and elegant Fancies, who are ſo nice and finical that they would not come near a Sore, though they could heal it by touching it, nor approach a ſick Perſon, though the Caſt of their Shadow were a Cure. But for my ſelf I don't in the leaſt repent me of theſe my Pains, ſince ſo fundamental a Diſcovery of the Unſoundneſs and Madneſs of theſe Sects cannot, I think, but be very effectual for the preventing their ſpreading hereafter; that it will not be any longer in the Power of their falſe Teachers to befool well-meaning Men with fine Words, and make them unawares countenance a Faction, the deepeſt Arcanum whereof is abſolute Rebellion againſt the Perſon of Chriſt, and an utter Abrogation of Chriſtian Religion.

And theſe things may ſuffice to excuſe my ſo largely treating upon theſe Matters: Which Apology of mine, I truſt, will eaſily be admitted, the Method I have us'd being ſo very natural, that others who have had the ſame Task in Hand, have thought fit altogether to purſue the ſame, witneſs Adam Borelius in his Treatiſe, entituled, Univerſi humani Generis Legiſlator, i.e. The Lawgiver of all Mankind. Which Deſign of his, which he ſeems to have ſet about with a vaſt and laudable Zeal, and no leſs Pains and Endeavour, I hope, I have accompliſh'd in this Treatiſe, with ſhorter, tho' no leſs powerful Arguments. But there is this Difference chiefly, though the Scope of both of us be the ſame, between his Meaſures and mine in proving Chriſt to be the Legiſlator, or Prince of all the Race of Mankind, that he will have the Belief of this to be firſt extorted from Men by the ſole Strength or Force of thoſe Miracles and Prophecies that are recorded in the Five firſt Books of the New Teſtament: For he thinks, that Perſons but of a mean or indifferent Judgment and Underſtanding can be moved by no other Arguments; for the ſole Benefit or Inſtruction of whom he ſeems therefore to have deſign'd his Legiſlator. But I intended theſe preſent Labours of mine, as well for the Learned as Unlearned, and therefore thought fit to bring into publick View not ſo much ſuch things as might ſeem more adapted to the Capacity of the Vulgar, as thoſe that might appear to be altogether true, and firm, and ſolid, to any Perſon of a more awakened or exercis'd Underſtanding. From whence it is, that I explain firſt the Reaſonableneſs of the Chriſtian Religion in all its Parts, as by way of Idea; and thereto I immediately ſubjoin the conſtant Belief for ſo many Ages given to it by all Chriſtians, as well Learned as Unlearned. But the real Exiſtence, as alſo Excellency of the Perſon of Jeſus of Nazareth, I ſo demonſtrate afterwards from profane Authors, and from the Prophecies of the Old Teſtament, containing the Characters of the Meſſiah compared with their undoubted Events, that I make it at the ſame time certain, that the Life of Chriſt was both timely written, and in that very Age in which the Eye-witneſſes of the things that are recorded, were living. Which is the chief, and almoſt only Foundation upon which the whole Work of Borelius reſteth, and for the demonſtrating of which he doth chiefly labour.

Which

Which I ſeem indeed to my ſelf to have ſufficiently demonſtrated from theſe extrinſick Arguments, and ſuch as are not fetch'd from thoſe Five Books of the New Teſtament. Nor, to ſpeak ingenuouſly the Truth, was I aware then of theſe intrinſick Arguments, to be fetch'd from the Books themſelves: which yet are no way contemptible; and which for that cauſe I have taken care to have transferr'd and inſerted from Borelius his Legiſlator (an Opportunity of ſeeing which, that Noble and Excellent Perſon, the Lord Francis Mercury Helmont when I was at Ragleiſh afforded me) into the Seventh Book of this preſent Treatiſe.

It made alſo much for the purpoſe of Borelius, after the largeſt manner to diſcourſe of the Doctrine and Precepts of Chriſt; but for my ſelf, I treat of them but ſparingly, unleſs ſo far as they refer to thoſe three Branches of the Divine Life, Humility, Purity and Charity: Nor, although I am ſufficiently copious in the giving an Account of the Actions and Miracles of Chriſt, do I yet beſtow any Pains (though I grant that it had not been at all improper) in the making out the Reaſonableneſs of his Precepts. For I could not imagine, that the Precepts of Chriſt could ſeem unreaſonable to any that did not pervert the Meaning of them. They may ſeem indeed ſevere and difficult at firſt ſight; but the Severity is no greater than what is required in curing Diſeaſes of the Body.

Ut valeant homines, ferrum patiuntur & ignes.

And to deny thy ſelf, and to mortifie thy ſelf, is neither denying, nor Mortification or killing of any thing in thee but thy Vices; upon which there accrews unto thee unſpeakable Joy and Eaſe. Nor are thy Difficulties in theſe Undergoings ſo great, but that thy Helps are far greater, provided thou be an unfeigned Believer. For what Luſt canſt thou ſtick to part withal for his ſake, who did not think much to part with his Life for thee? And what preſent Enjoyment canſt thou not eaſily quit, if thou believe that future Happineſs that attends thee in the other World? Or how canſt thou fail to fly Fornication, whilſt thou conſidereſt, that by practiſing this unclean Vice thou makeſt a vile Strumpet Corrival with the Holy Ghoſt, whoſe Temple thy Body is if thou beeſt a Chriſtian, and whoſe Temple it cannot be, if thou indulge to thy ſelf ſo dangerous a Liberty; there being nothing that does more extinguiſh the Operations of the Spirit, than the letting thy ſelf looſe to ſuch lawleſs Luſts? But the Reaſons of Chriſt's Precepts are ſo obvious in Theory, and ſo faithful in Experience, that I think it needleſs further to inſiſt upon this Theme, aſſuring every one, that he ſhall beſt underſtand their Truth and Solidity by the Practice of a Life regulated thereby.

And theſe mainly are the things that I thought it worth the while to mind the Reader of, as to the Myſtery of Godlineſs. The Myſtery of Iniquity is divided into two Parts: The Idea of Antichriſtianiſm, and Synopſis Prophetica: Both which at the very firſt Sight, I foreſee, will prove harſh and diſtaſteful unto many, and from the very Titles highly diſpleaſing: The Idea of Antichriſtianiſm: Indeed both theſe Words are ſo heavy laden with preconceived Offence and Prejudice, that even the Book it ſelf may alſo readily be prejudged and precondemned before peruſed, for the very Title's ſake, unleſs I prepare the Way, by due and timely Information, for better Acceptance.

The Reader, then, may pleaſe to take notice, that this Idea which I preſent him with, is not a vain, airy, Platonical, or Chimerical Figment, as ſome phanſie every Idea to be; nor my treating of Antichriſtianiſm, a rude, uncivil, uncharitable, Phraſeological Form of railing againſt ſuch Things or Perſons as are not only Innocent, but Sacred: But contrariwiſe, the Nature of Antichriſtianiſm is ſo juſtly circumſcribed by this Idea, and ſo fitly limited thereby, that it is in truth, a Bridle to the Tongues and Lips of ſuch, as, not knowing what is truly Antichriſtian, and what not, in every pettiſh Mood call any thing ſo in Religion that does not ſuit with their own Humour and Phancy. Beſides, this Treatiſe being written in the way of an Idea, that is to ſay, being an Abſtract Deſcription or Delineation of the Nature of Antichriſtianiſm, without any Application thereof to any determinate Perſon or Perſons whatſoever; what Rudeneſs, Incivility or Uncharitableneſs can this Deſign carry along with it, unleſs it can be thought rude or uncivil to define Vices in abſtracto, and deſcribe them in their Parts and Objects, and in whatever Circumſtances make to the clear and perfect Knowledge of them, provided it be done faithfully and skilfully? And truly, that I have not falſified any thing in this my Deſcription of Antichriſtianiſm, I dare with Confidence appeal to the Judgment of any able and unprejudiced Peruſer thereof. But what I have ſet down for Antichriſtianiſm, is ſuch of its own Nature, whether it be called ſo or no. Which Accuracy of deſcri- bing, if all would imitate, nothing would tend more to the Peace of Chriſtendom, and the ſteady and firm Promotion of true Chriſtianity in every Nation.

Well, be it ſo, will ſome reply, that there is nothing falſly nor unfaithfully managed in this Province you have undertook, yet is not the Undertaking it ſelf, though juſt and uſeful, yet ſomething ignoble, inglorious and ungentile, thus ſo often to tincture your Style, and ſoil your Pen with the Names of Antichriſt and Antichriſtianiſm, of which the Breath of the rude and ignorant Vulgar uſually ſmells as ſtrong as of Onions and Garlick, and which they have ſo fouled by their unmannerly mouthing them without all aim, that they have made them now unfit to paſs the Lips of any civil Perſon? In anſwer to which, I muſt ingenuouſly confeſs, that the Title of my Diſcourſe for this very Reaſon may juſtly ſeem leſs plauſible. But it is the true and proper Name of the Matter which I handle, to which only if theſe ruder People had been taught to appropriate the Term, it could never have contracted any ſuch nauſeous Prejudice, as it ſeems to have done. And I hope I am at leaſt excuſable, if not thank-worthy, in that I have taken pains to teach them the due and proper Uſe thereof.

But if there be any further Meaning in the Objection, as if it were ignoble or ungentile, and below a Man of a generous Spirit, to concern himſelf in the detecting or oppoſing Antichriſtianiſm it ſelf; I muſt take leave to profeſs, that I think the Objector underſtands not what Antichriſtianiſm is, or at leaſt not what I underſtand by it, or have deſcribed it by in this Idea. For that Antichriſtianiſm which I oppoſe, and expoſe here to the View of the World, is nothing elſe but real Impiety, groſs Fraud and Couzenage, and moſt barbarous and unparallel'd Cruelty againſt the harmleſs Members of Chriſt; and all this (which infinitely aggravates the Crimes) under the Shadow and Pretence of Piety and Religion, nay, of the moſt Sacred of all Religions, Chriſtianity it ſelf. If theſe things therefore be not only uncivil and ungentile, but ferine, brutiſh, or rather Diabolical, can it be ungentile, or uncivil heartily and profeſſedly to oppoſe them?

Or to plead more diſtinctly and more particularly to two Capacities of Men; to them firſt that have a Conſcience and Belief of Chriſtian Religion as it is delivered in the Holy Scripture; I demand of them how ignoble or inglorious a thing they deem it to oppoſe that which is plainly and palpably oppoſite to the Word of God, and to the Commandments of Chriſt Jeſus; or ſeriouſly to endeavour to demoliſh that which does ſupplant and fruſtrate the very End of the Goſpel of Chriſt, and is ſo diametrically repugnant to the Intereſt of his Kingdom. Certainly whoſoever can judge ſuch a Deſign as this diſhonourable, muſt be of the ſame Spirit with that Company whom our Saviour of old moſt righteouſly reproved in theſe Words, How can ye believe, that receive Honour one of another, and ſeek not that Honour that cometh of God only? As it is ſaid alſo in another place, For they loved the Praiſe of Men more than the Praiſe of God?

John 5. 45.

John 12. 43.

And now for them that think it ſo noble and glorious a thing to be indifferent to all Religions, or indeed to believe none, who are not ſo much as touched with the Senſe of the common Chriſtianity, ſuch, namely, as all who call themſelves Chriſtians, agree in; yet if they have not alſo put off the Sentiments of common Humanity, (than which nothing can be more barbarous and ungentile) I demand of them, what Offence can it be againſt the Laws of the higheſt Generoſity, to profeſs a Man's Diſguſt and Enmity againſt ſuch a Conſtitution of things as runs point-blank, not only againſt the Law of Chriſt, and the plain Dictates of the Scripture, but againſt the moſt indiſpenſable and indeleble Rules of Nature, and of Reaſon, and againſt the common and univerſally-acknowledged Rights of Mankind? Be it that thou thy ſelf ſcarce believeſt that there is a God, much leſs any thing to come after this Life; and therefore haſt a Conſcience free to any Religion, be it never ſo wicked or fooliſh, and canſt laugh at the imperious Impoſtures of the Prieſt, when thou haſt done. But canſt thou be aſſured that thy Children will be ſuch, or that the Wife of thy Boſome will continue ſuch, if ſhe be ſo for the preſent? Canſt thou promiſe for thy moſt intimate Friend, which is as dear to thee as thy ſelf? Nay, canſt thou promiſe for thy ſelf, that God may not ſo powerfully ſtrike thy Conſcience ſome time or other, as to convert thee to the true Knowledge of himſelf, and of his Son Jeſus? Now I tell thee compendiouſly, and at once, That the Contexture of this Antichriſtianiſm which I oppoſe, is a mere Train or Net laid or ſpread for the Life of thy ſelf, thy Friend, thy Wife and Children. None can be in Knowledge and Judgment the profeſſedly-faithful Servants of God, and of his Chriſt, but they are ipſo facto made obnoxious to the bloody Savageneſs of this Antichriſtian Monſter,

But

But ſuppoſe thine own Conſcience not yet awakened, canſt thou be ſo devoid of natural Affection, or (whilſt thou talkeſt ſo loud of Generoſity) degenerate ſo much below the very brute Creatures, as not to be affected, nay, deeply and unſupportably afflicted, at the haling of thy Wife out of thy Boſome, and the pulling of thy Friends, and of thy Children out of thy Arms, and committing them to noiſome Priſons, and after a ſad and tedious durance in theſe foul Cells, to have them brought out in the ſight of the People to the moſt opprobrious and torturous Death that ever is inflicted on any Malefactors; that is to ſay, not only to have thy moſt intimate Friend, thy dear Parents, or thy Children, but thy Wife her ſelf, as if ſhe were a Witch, or a Poiſoner of her Husband, to be burnt at the Stake; yea, though with child, the Birth breaking forth by the mercileſs Midwifery of the parching Flames? And all this Cruelty exerciſed upon them becauſe they will not ſin againſt God and their own Conſcience. Which holy Senſibility of Spirit, and awful Reverence of the Deity, though thou, according to the Groſneſs of thy Philoſophy, mayeſt conceive a Weakneſs in them, yet (it being ſuch a Blemiſh as even in thine own Judgment, bears no Badge of Diſhonour upon it; nay, is exceeding honourable in the Proſperous, and as tenderly and feelingly pitied in the afflicted and Calamitous) it cannot one jot abate the Endearedneſs of thy Affection to thy ſuffering Friends in this Caſe; the Beauty and Lovelineſs of their Perſonages, the wiſe and diſcreet Obligingneſs of their Carriages, and their conſtant Faithfulneſs and Serviceableneſs in all Duties and Affairs having impreſſed ſo deep a Character of Love and Eſteem in thee as cannot eaſily be obliterated.

Can therefore the Oppoſing of ſo barbarous a Conſtitution of things as this, and ſo grievous and inſufferable to thine own Senſe, and in thine own Judgment, be upon any Pretence accounted ignoble or inglorious, and not rather highly Generous and Heroical? Nay, on the contrary, we may ſafely pronounce, That he that has not an hearty Loathing and Abhorrency from ſo ugly and odious a Frame of things, as I have deſcribed in this Idea, is not only in a State of Unregenerateneſs, and utterly devoid of the Life of God, and conſequently uncapable of Eternal Salvation, but even ſunk below the Nature of a Man, and become not only uncivil, but either ſtupid and ſottiſh, or elſe of a temper plainly ſavage and inhumane.

But now as to what concerns the Synopſis Prophetica, I am not at all ignorant under what manifold Prejudices this Performance may alſo lie; it being a Treatiſe wholly ſpent in the Interpretation of Prophecies, and chiefly of Daniel, and the Apocalypſe: But amongſt the reſt there are two more eſpecially of Remark: The one is of thoſe that look upon all ſuch Attempts as very vain and frivolous, having concluded with themſelves aforehand, That all Prophecies are inextricable Ænigms, and Riddles utterly uncapable of any certain Solution. The other is of thoſe that have a Conceit, that the ſearching into Prophecies, eſpecially thoſe of the Apocalypſe and Daniel, tends to nothing elſe but to Faction and Confuſion, to the Trouble and Diſſettlement of the Affairs of Chriſtendom, and to the Hazard and Subverſion of States and Kingdoms, and the Ruin and Deſtruction of the Church of Chriſt. With theſe two grand Prejudices I perceive I am to encounter, yet doubt not, but through the divine Aſſiſtance I ſhall compleatly free my ſelf of 'em both. Of the Synopſis Prophetica.

As to the firſt, then, I think there is no Man that has the Fear of God before his Eyes, but he would be aſhamed to ſtand to any ſuch Aſſertion, it verging ſo near upon Prophaneneſs and Impiety; nay, upon open Blaſphemy againſt the Spirit of God, as if he dictated ſuch Things to the holy Prophets as are not Senſe, nor ever to be underſtood by any Reader of them. Can there be any thing more Scoptical againſt Divine Inſpiration than this, or more cunningly and deceitfully undermining the very Foundations of Chriſtian Religion? But we need not labour very ſolicitouſly in confuting an Error ſo univerſally condemned by all Parties that are any thing ſerious in their Religion. For the obſcureſt Books of Prophecy, I mean thoſe of the Apocalypſe and Daniel, are commented upon by Papiſts, Proteſtants and Neuters, whereby they have all ſet to their Hands, that the Viſions are intelligible. But whatſoever Obſcurity there may be in them, I think my preſent Pains ought to be the more acceptable, in that I have contributed ſo much to a clear and certain Way of interpreting them, laying down ſuch aſſured Grounds and Rudiments, as if a Man carefully obſerve, and find Hiſtory applicable within the compaſs of thoſe Laws, he can no more fail of the right Meaning of a Prophecy, than he will of the rendring the true Senſe of a Latin or Greek Author, keeping to the Rules of Grammar, and the known Interpretations of Dictionaries.

Which

Which Laws I having kept to my ſelf ſo ſtrictly and carefully, I dare appeal to all the World, if I have not demonſtratively made out the Senſe of ſuch Viſions as I have undertaken to expound. And for my own part, I muſt freely profeſs, that I found it no ſuch hard thnig to underſtand thoſe Prophecies I have interpreted; and am certianly perſwaded, that neither any ſuch Greatneſs of Parts, nor Exuberancy of Learning, as Integrity of Heart, and Unprejudicedneſs of Mind, is requiſite to the underſtanding of theſe things. For if that Spirit of Life be once revived in a Man, he will, by Virtue of his Regeneration or new Birth, not only ſee with his Eyes, but feel
Dan. 12. 10. with his Hands the Truth of theſe Myſteries. None of the Wicked ſhall underſtand, but the Wiſe ſhall underſtand; namely, as many as apply themſelves to the Search of ſuch things, who will alſo in the mean time be ſo prudent as not to prejudge what they never had yet Opportunity carefully to examine.

Now touching the ſecond Surmiſe, That the Search into theſe Prophecies of Daniel and the Apocalypſe, tends to nothing but Tumult and Sedition in Chriſtendom; it is very raſhly and unskilfully ſpoken. I do not deny but that, as it is ſaid of Philoſophy, that a more ſuperficial Smattering therein may hazard a Man's Plunge into Atheiſm before he be aware; ſo a ſlighter Inſpection into theſe Prophecies, may incline ſome to a Fanatical Unſettledneſs, and a vain Dream of a Fifth Monarchy, ſutable to the carnal Conceitedneſs of their own temerarious Phancy. But as a more full Draught of Philoſophical Knowledge will again waſh away that Atheiſtical Foulneſs out of the Soul; ſo I doubt not but a more through Search into the Meaning of theſe Divine Predictions will make a Man of a more ſober Mind, and root out of his Spirit all thoſe vain Pretences to Innovation and Schiſm. And therefore the Pains that I have ſpent in a more full and through Scrutiny into the Meaning of theſe Prophetick Viſions, may, I hope, at leaſt deſerve Mens Pardon, if not challenge their Approbation as their due Reward; ſith what tends ſo much to Peace and Soberneſs, cannot unrightfully ſeem to challenge the Reward of a due Approbation from Men.

I ſay then, if by a more careleſs Search there has been framed ſuch Meanings of thoſe Prophecies as bear any Danger or Inconvenience with them, there was the greater Neceſſity that ſome or other, upon a more diligent Peruſal, ſhould dive into the true and genuin Senſe of them; that that Divine Truth, which was revealed for the good of the Church, might not by any Miſtake, tend to her Detriment and Ruin. As certainly ſuch a Conceit of the manner of introducing a Fifth Monarchy, as ſome have imagined and entertain'd, might cauſe much Trouble and Miſchief in the Affais of Chriſtendom.
Book 2. Ch. 5. Sect. 5. The Foundation of which Error, with the evil Sequels thereof, the Seventh Conſectary of my Joint-Expoſition does quite take away; to ſay nothing of other Paſſages. We know likewiſe by woful Experience, what wild Applications Enthuſiaſts make of the Ten-horned Beaſt, and the Whore of Babylon, phanſying in their mad miſtaken Zeal, every legitimate Magiſtrate that Beaſt, and every well-ordered Church that Whore; as that famous Romantick Knight, in his inflamed Courage and diſtempered, Phancy, encountred the next Wind-mill he met, for a Giant, and innocent Flocks of Sheep for ſo many Armies of Men.

But he that will but take notice of what I have ſo plainly proved, That the middle Synchronals muſt needs ceaſe together; as alſo that our Reformation in England was an eminent Speciminal Completion of the Reſurrection of the Witneſſes, he cannot fail of being rid of this Phrenſie for ever, and of finding himſelf ſufficiently fortified againſt all thoſe extravagant Sects that bear themſelves ſo ſtiff in theſe times, and more particularly againſt the high-flown Conceitedneſs of Quakers and Familiſts, who can ſo eaſily part with all our Religion that refers to the Perſonal Offices of Chriſt, under the Pretence of knowing no Man after the Fleſh. For if the Proteſtant Reformation, as in other Parts, ſo here in England eſpecially, be the Reſurrection of the Witneſſes, as moſt certainly it is; it is as certain and aſſured, that Familiſm and Quakeriſm are mere Enthuſiaſtick Freaks, in that they reject or deſpiſe all thoſe things that are ſo fully, declaredly and univerſally atteſted by this Cloud of Witneſſes, or rather by theſe Witneſſes aſcending up into Heaven in a Cloud. The Completion of which Prophecy, I conceive, fell out moſt fully and orderly in our Engliſh Reformation, where the Eccleſiaſtick VVitneſs mounted the higheſt among the Reformed Churches into this Prophetick Heaven. Which may ſerve for a juſt Reproof alſo to thoſe of the Presbyterian Party, that either have, or do envy him that Reſidence.

And

And again for the Quakers and Familiſts, that are ſuch Gigantick ſelf-ſufficient Religioniſts, and ſcorn and contemn that part of the Teſtimony of theſe Witneſſes, which is Remiſſion of Sins in the Blood of Chriſt, and the being juſtified and acquitted by the Merits of his Paſſion; how ſilly and ignorantly proud they are in this Point, appears in that the Witneſſes Deliverance from the Bondage of that Roman Pharaoh, is plainly attributed to their Paſſage through this Red Sea. And we know that the firſt Proteſtant Reformers began with the Point of Juſtification in this very Senſe; wherein the myſtical Ægyptians were overthrown Horſe and Man, and overwhelmed. Which, I doubt not but that Epinikion, Revel. 15. alludes to, as † I have proved more particularly in its proper place.

† See Book 1. ch. 4. Sect. 5. Book 2. ch. 11. § 2.

Wherefore it is apparent of what great force this ought to be to reconcile the Minds of all Sectaries to their National Churches reſpectively, the Confeſſion of their Faith, as alſo their Inſtitutes, being the ſame with thoſe of theſe Witneſſes, who were by ſpecial Providence called up to Heaven, and, by the fulfilling of that Divine Prediction, approved for the Witneſſes of God, and of the Truth: And likewiſe of what great Uſefulneſs it is for the Peace and Settlement of all Proteſtant States and Kingdoms, they being ſo well aſſured from hence, to what Religion they ſhould adhere, and that there is Danger, leſt it be as to ſtrive againſt the Stream (unleſs the Sins of the Reformed Churches, to be chaſtiſed for a time, ſhould make way for ſo great an Evil) nay, to fight againſt God, if any ſhould endeavour to ſuperinduce upon a People ſuch Antichriſtian Opinions or Practices as have been witneſſed againſt by theſe approved Witneſſes of God. For there is neither Wiſdom, nor Underſtanding, nor Counſel againſt the Lord. Prov. 21. 30.

For in ſuch Caſes as this, God, who can ſeize the Hearts of Men at his own Pleaſure, and illuminate their Eyes, may ſo enlighten the People as to make them ſee more than their profeſſed Prophets, whoſe Sight may be blinded becauſe the Reward of Unrighteouſneſs is found in their Hand; that is to ſay, becauſe carnal Intereſt has laid waſte their Conſcience and Judgment. For then the Caſe would be much like that of Balaam's riding the Aſs, whom he cudgels on this ſide, and on that ſide, to keep him in the Path that leads moſt directly to his own ſelf-ended Deſign, namely, the Satisfaction of his covetous Deſire. But the Beaſt being more afraid of the drawn Sword of the Angel, than of the furious Blows of the Prophet, runs him out of the way, and cruſhes his Leg againſt the Wall. For no human Force can drive any mortal Creature againſt the Power and Terrour of God.

Wherefore it is of great Conſequence for them in Authority not to be ignorant of the meaning of Prophecies, that they may be ſure not to fall into this διομαχία, nor ever ſo to order their Affairs, as to ſeem to endeavour any thing againſt the Current of Divine Providence, but rather direct their Government after that Cynoſura. Which Ignorance our Saviour ſeems to exprobrate to the Jews, Ye Hypocrites, ye can diſcern the Face of the Sky, and of the Earth, but how is it that ye do not diſcern this time? Luke 12.

So far is the finding of the true Senſe of the Prophecies from cauſing Tumults and Diſquietneſſes in States or Kingdoms; whenas, on the contrary, the right underſtanding of them tends ſo much every way to their firm Settlement and Peace; which can never be eſtabliſhed firmly in ſuch a Religion as is moſt plainly repugnant to the Truth, and that guarded alſo by a Divine Fate or Counſel, and in Matters of the greateſt Moment imaginable.

Nor is the Benefit of underſtanding theſe Prophecies confin'd within the Bounds of the Reformed Churches, but it redounds to the whole Chriſtian World; as may be ſeen in my ſo accurate Interpretation of the Perdition of the Beaſt, and of the Burning of the Whore. For, according to our Interpretation, the Prophecy of the Deſtruction of this fourth Beaſt ought to ſeem rather a merciful Promiſe, than a Commination: Which is this, That as it ceaſed to be for a time, ſo after a certain Period of time it ſhould ceaſe to be for ever. Now the temporary ceaſing of the Beaſt to be, was only the Empire's entertaining and maintaining the pure and Apoſtolick Chriſtianity as yet uncontaminate with any Pagan-like Idolatries. Wherefore the ceaſing of it to be for ever, is nothing elſe but the being cleanſed for ever from all Idolatry and Antichriſtianiſm. Which can be no ill News to the Emperor, and Secular Kings and Princes of the Empire; they being quit of Idolatry (which makes the Empire a Beaſt) and of the impoſturous Tyranny and Uſurpations of the Pope of Rome over them at once.

But for that Hierarchical Power of the Pope and his Clergy, (and truly it will analogically touch ſuch a Presbytery as hath not learn'd the Leſſon of due Subjection to the Secular Sovereignty in things indifferent) that Papal Hierarchy, I ſay, which (as †Præfat. Monitor. ad Cæſar. &c.

† King James, of ever-bleſſed Memory, has ſmartly and juſtly taxed them) ſub larvatâ ſimulatione curæ ſpiritualis animarum, regna exhaurit, orbemque Chriſtianum cæde & ſanguine miſcet: To this Power, I muſt confeſs, the Viſions of the Apocalyps are ſomewhat more ſevere, as it is moſt fit they ſhould be. For this Power (except ſo much therein as agrees with the Primitive Ages of the Church) compriſing in it nothing but a Maſs of Frauds and Impoſtures, of Superſtitions and Idolatries, and bloody and Antichriſtian Cruelties; the Viſions of the Apocalyps were not the Viſions of God, if they predicted not Ill to ſo ungodly and Satanical (as 'tis called in the Epiſtle to the Church of Thyatira) a Polity. And yet, if I might profeſs freely my Opinion, were but that Heap of wicked Stuff caſt out and aboliſhed, and all her falſe Merchandizes every where interdicted, as they are here in England, ſuch a Purification as this would undoubtedly fulfil the Prediction of the burning of the Whore of Babylon with Fire, according to the primary Senſe or Scope of theſe Viſions, and the Church, and whatſoever is comely and uſeful, be ſaved from any farther or ſeverer Caſtigations; provided they did not Antichriſtianize in what is left, and place all their Religion merely in an outward, though unexceptionable Form, neglecting the indiſpenſable Laws of the Life of God, and of honeſt and laudable Morality. So little Reaſon have any to be afraid of the right Senſe of the Apocalyps in thoſe Viſions, unleſs they have a Favour for the Kingdom of Sin and Dominion of the Devil in the World.

But whereas ſome are like vehemently to accuſe me, as if I had taken to my ſelf a very uncharitable kind of Liberty, to apply thoſe Prophecies to ſo great a Share of Chriſtendom as the Roman Church, that have been by ancient Interpreters, and are by the Romaniſts themſelves, underſtood of Antichriſt. To which I freely and ingenuouſly anſwer, and as in the preſence of him before whom all Mens Hearts lie open, That I take no more pleaſure in the finding of thoſe Antichriſtian Tokens upon the Church of Rome, than I ſhould in diſcovering ſo many Plague-ſpots upon my deareſt Friends or Relations; ſo that I am not conſcious to my ſelf of the leaſt Touch of Uncharitableneſs in this matter.

But if the Laws of Charity be ſo ſtrictly to be obſerved, (as certainly they are) let us take that Method which is approved by the Voice of all Men, and has paſſed into a Proverb, of Charity's beginning at home, and be as tender of the Proteſtant Churches in ſuch things as they maintain with Truth, as the Papiſts are of their own Party, even in their obtruded Falſities and Deceits. It may therefore more rightfully be imputed to my Fidelity to the true Church of Chriſt, than Uncharitableneſs to the Church of Rome, that I again bring into play, with all due Advantages, this common Aſſertion of the Proteſtants touching the Great Antichriſt. Which appearing to me ſo ſolid and unexceptionable a Truth, I ſhould be conſcious to my ſelf of the higheſt degree of Uncharitableneſs to the precious Memory of the firſt Reformers, thoſe Witneſſes, whom Divine Providence ſo miraculouſly raiſed from the Dead, if I did not what in me lies for the maintaining of their Credit in ſo grand a Point; wherein they cannot ſeem to fail, but with infinite Diſhonour to themſelves, and an irreparable Prejudice to the Proteſtant Cauſe.

For as there is no Doctrine wherein the Romaniſts and we differ more true, ſo there is none any thing near ſo potent for the bearing off all their Aſſaults againſt us, as this of their Church being that City of Babylon which the People of God are expreſly commanded to come out of, leſt they partake of her Sins, and of her Plagues. Which that wiſe Prince, King James of ever-glorious Memory, knew full well, and accordingly kept entire thoſe primitive Sentiments of the Proteſtant Reformation, or rather adorned them, and improved them by his Royal Pen; as alſo did thoſe ſingularly Devout and Learned Prelates, Biſhop Andrews and Biſhop Jewell, and ſeveral other Pious and Learned Biſhops of our Church. Nor will I omit how explicit our Church her ſelf is touching this Point in her Homily of the Peril of Idolatry, as alſo in that againſt Rebellion. Which illuſtrious Witneſſes to ſo concerning a Truth, it were both uncivil and unjuſt to either ſuſpect or accuſe of Uncharitableneſs.

Apoc. 18. 4.

And for my own part I cannot but further add, (having ſuch an Apprehenſion of things as I have, and ſo great Encouragement from thoſe Heroical Examples, in whoſe Footſteps I inſiſt for the main in my Prophetick Interpretations) that I ſhould think my ſelf not only Unfaithful to the true Church of Chriſt, and to the Intereſt of his Kingdom, which Charity will never betray, but Uncharitable alſo even to the Church of Rome her ſelf, if I ſhould not uſe this Liberty of prophecying againſt her, which I have, or rather of interpreting Prophecies for her juſt Reproof and Amendment.

Stultorum

Stultorum incurata pudor malus ulcera celat.

That Saying is true, as well of him that conceals the Sore of his Friend, when the diſcloſing thereof tends to the healing of it, as of him that conceals his own Sore.

But if it be Uncharitableneſs to ſpeak ſome few hard Words againſt her, though never ſo true, what Barbarity would it be to expoſe her to the greateſt Hardſhips of Fortune that human Affairs are obnoxious to? As, ſuppoſe, to betray her to the ſucceſsful Rage and Ravin of the overflowing Turk? Would that be ſuch a piece of indearing Kindneſs and Charity? And yet ſurely thoſe do ſo to her that ſow Pillows under her Elbow, that ſooth her up, and call her my Siſter, and my Mother, and ſay, there are no conſiderable Miſcarriages in her; whenas ſhe ſtands guilty of all thoſe Sins that are reckoned up, Revel. 9 20, 21. Μετανόησαν ἀπὸ τῶν ἔργων τῶν χειρῶν αὐτῶν, ἵνα μὴ προσκυνήσωσι τὰ δαιμόνια καὶ τὰ εἴδωλα τὰ χρυσᾶ καὶ τὰ ἀργυρᾶ καὶ τὰ χαλκᾶ καὶ τὰ λίθινα καὶ τὰ ξύλινα, ἃ οὔτε βλέπειν δύναται οὔτε ἀκούειν οὔτε περιπατεῖν· καὶ οὐ μετενόησαν ἐκ τῶν φόνων αὐτῶν οὔτε ἐκ τῶν φαρμακειῶν αὐτῶν οὔτε ἐκ τῆς πορνείας αὐτῶν οὔτε ἐκ τῶν κλεμμάτων αὐτῶν, multifarious Idolatries, cruel bloody Perſecutions, magical Conjuring or Enchanting, defiled Cœlibate, and pious Frauds or wicked Policies, with Impenitency added to them all. For theſe Sins have the Locuſts and Euphratean Horſemen, the Turks and Saracens, laid waſte the Eaſtern Church; and yet it is Uncharitable to admoniſh the Latin Church thereof, which is much more guilty of theſe high Miſcarriges.

Not that I think it is determin'd, that the Turks ſhall ever overflow the Weſtern Church, or by Arms ſubdue it; but that I doubt not in the leaſt, but ſuch a Cleanſing of the Church from its groſs Idolatries, and ſavage Perſecutions of innocent Men, is the ſafeſt and moſt aſſured Method for the driving far from us ſo great a Danger. But for the Prophecies of the Apocalyps, I confeſs that they have a doubtful Aſpect as to this matter. But that it is eſtabliſh'd in the Divine Decree, that Rome Papal and Idolatrous ſhall not for ever ſit as Queen, is exceeding manifeſt. Nay, that the Univerſal Weſtern Church, in a manner, and ſo Rome it ſelf, may without Fire, and without Sword, by the ſole Aid of the Holy Spirit of God ſtirring up the Princes and ſincere Prelates of the Chriſtian World thereto, be at length reformed, the Divine Oracles do no way gainſay. Which thing, as it is not to be deſpair'd of, ſo is it of all good Men with much Earneſtneſs to be deſir'd.

But if this be ſo very deſirable, is it not equally deſireable that the Church of Rome ſhould be made ſenſible that ſhe wants ſuch a Reformation? And is there any thing that can convince her more of that Want, than that her enormous Miſcarriages are ſo plainly depainted (as moſt certainly they are) in thoſe Viſions we have explained in this Treatiſe; nay, are very ſtingingly and ſatyrically ſet out by the Spirit of God on purpoſe to awake the Chriſtian World out of this deep Sopour or Lethargy? For it muſt be ſome ſuch ſharp and rouſing Rebuke that can wean or reclaim that Church from ſo inveterate Errors rooted in Cuſtom, and founded in a ſweet bewitching Intereſt, not to be parted withal upon any eaſie Terms. Which Power of the Light of the true Meaning of theſe Prophecies that obnoxious Church does plainly acknowledge her ſelf ſenſible of, in her hiding her ſelf as well as ſhe can, from the convictive Perſtringency of them, and in getting Men to palliate her Deformities with all poſſible Art, and to ſhelter off the ſearching Gleams, and piercing Luſtre of theſe veracious Viſions, by their falſe and adulterate Gloſſes: Which is the greateſt Uncharitableneſs and Diſſervice that can poſſibly be done unto her, thus to lull her aſleep, to be ſurpriſed by the irreſiſtible Wrath of God, and to expoſe her to the Fury of his Jealouſie.

Wherefore had ſhe not better ceaſe to take Sanctuary in ſuch forced and incredible Miſinterpretations of Scripture, and letting go thoſe falſe Shifts, reform her ſelf according to that Platform which has ſo manifeſt Approbation from the Divine Oracles, in a Senſe not only credible, but evidently true? For it is demonſtratively true by the ſecond Conſectary of my Joint-Expoſition, That the Church was not grown Antichriſtian till about 400 years after Chriſt: As alſo from the Proportion of the Outward Court to the Inward, that it was Symmetral, till about that time: Which approvable Ages of the Church were the Pattern of our Engliſh Reformation. Beſides that, as I have already intimated, the ſaid Reformation is an eminent Speciminal Completion of the Prophecy of the Reſurrection of the Witneſſes: So that the Rectitude thereof is ratified as well from thoſe Viſions that prefigure the Recovery of the Church, as from thoſe that ſignifie her Primæval Purity.

In the mean time it is manifeſt, that the right underſtanding of the Apocalyptical Viſions, is ſo far from being in the leaſt prejudicial to the Affairs of the Chriſtian World

World reformed or unreformed, that nothing can be imagin'd to tend or conduce more to the common Safety and Intereſt of them all.

Which would come to paſs, although that was the Genius of the Prophecies of the Apocalypſe, that it plainly threatned cruel and bloody Slaughters and Calamities to Chriſtendom: if ſo be it evidently appear'd for what Sins eſpecially, ſo great Evils were threatned; as certainly the Apocalyptical Viſions are as clear, if not clearer, with reſpect to the Nature of the Fault, than of the Puniſhment, I mean as to Idolatries, and moſt cruel Perſecutions of innocent Men. Can it be therefore uſeleſs or unſeaſonable to give warning to the Chriſtian World of the principal Source and Original of ſo great Evils, that by a timely Reformation they may be averted and prevented. For the Divine Menaces are hypothetical, whether they be pronounced in a Simple and Common, or in a Prophetical or Symbolical Language; that is to ſay, the Senſe is the ſame in both.

The reſt of the little pieces of this Volume.

And let this ſuffice to be ſpoken of the Myſtery of Godlineſs, and the Myſtery of Iniquity. For the little Pieces that follow, there is no need of ſtaying long upon them; eſpecially ſince the things already ſpoken will in part alſo fit and belong to theſe. The Uſefulneſs of my Expoſition of the Seven Epiſtles to the Seven Churches, the Epilogue added to it, doth ſufficiently declare. And for that of the ſmall Diſcourſe concerning the true Grounds of Faith, it is ſufficiently evident from it ſelf; and is alſo farther to be met with in the Diſcourſe following, viz. The Antidote againſt Idolatry. The Solidity of which Treatiſe, I can with the more Alacrity commend unto the Reader, ſince, though it was impugn'd lately by a very ſharp Adverſary, both learned and ſubtil, yet it is found plainly to be inexpugnable; which yet is rendred ſtill ſtronger, and more fortified by the Appendix that is annexed.

Nothing remains now, but the Heptachord, or Seven Poems of the Divine Hymns, which I ſet forth as a Specimen more of Devotion than Poetry. The Verſes, at the deſire of a certain Friend, were writ by me firſt in Engliſh; and with the ſame Simplicity both of Style and Senſe, that he ſo earneſtly requeſted of me; nor hath the Latin added much of Elegancy to them. But I took care to have them publiſh'd, as what, I hop'd, might be good Examples of joyning with the Hiſtory the Myſtick, or more ſpiritual Senſe of our Holy Religion. To theſe I have added ſome few Poems that occur here and there in Engliſh in my Philoſophical Writings, and are now by me rendred into Latin. Which I did with that Intent, that if any Accident ſhould happen, and this Province come to be undertaken by any other, he may have theſe Tranſlations in a readineſs, unleſs haply, which may eaſily be, he himſelf ſhall compoſe more elegant ones of his own.

The Author's Writings compared together.

And thus have I run, ſhall I ſay, or rather flown over theſe reſt of my Theological Treatiſes; concerning which, to be compared now one with another, I thought fit to mind the Reader of a few things, which perhaps he himſelf will obſerve. The firſt is, That that moſt clear and diſtinct underſtanding of theſe Prophetical Viſions, did not happen to me, as it were, at once, but that I attain'd to the Knowledge of theſe things rather occaſionally, than by Deſign. Nor am I conſcious to my ſelf, that I affected this ſort of Skill, but almoſt, whether I would or no, it inſtill'd it ſelf into me, with ſo great Eaſineſs and Perſpicuity, that I could not, in a manner, but certainly and fully underſtand thoſe things which others will have to appear ſo very obſcure and uncertain to themſelves. And truly I dare here appeal to the Conſcience and Judgment of any one, provided he will without Prejudice, and in the Fear of God, read, and weigh well the Eight laſt Chapters of Synopſis Prophetica, whether my Expoſition of the Thirteenth and Seventeenth Chapters of the Apocalypſe hath not a Certainty plainly Mathematical; and of which no Man in his Wits, after he ſhall underſtand it, can make any doubt. To which, if he ſhall add the Confutations of Grotius, Ribera, and of another New Interpretation, which occur in the Second Book, and are contain'd in the Five firſt Chapters, he will very clearly apprehend, that the Divine Oracles are not ſuch a Noſe of Wax, as ſome do willingly imagine to themſelves; but that they are very rigidly and inflexibly determin'd to one certain Senſe. And farther, That this Senſe we our ſelves have certainly attain'd to in thoſe two foreſaid Chapters of the Apocalypſe.

Which is an inexpugnable Fortreſs againſt all the præſtigious Arts and Attempts of the Romaniſts. For after it ſhall ſo plainly appear what is the Senſe of theſe two Chapters, it will be in vain to contend about the reſt. Tho' 'tis not to be paſs'd in ſilence, that the Expoſition of the Seven Epiſtles to the Seven Churches, is built almoſt upon upon equal Certainty, as is evident from the laſt Chapter of it; and that, for any to doubt of the Prophetical Scope of thoſe ſeven Epiſtles, namely, if it is ſuch a Prophecy as we hold it to be, (ſeeing whatever is conſiderable therein, not excepting the very Names, does evidently tend thereto) were no leſs unreaſonable, than to call in queſtion, whether the Structure of an Animal Body was the Product of Chance or of Providence, when all its Parts are ſo manifeſtly deſigned for one End, which is the Perfection of the vital Operations of the Animal. And indeed our Expoſitions of the other Prophecies, tho' not of equal Certainty in themſelves, yet if we add that of the foreſaid Prophecies, ſeem to me ſufficiently proper and ſound: And here with an humble Heart, I give Thanks to the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Maker of Heaven and Earth, that he has ſo clearly diſcovered to me theſe Myſteries of his Kingdom, nor do I envy in any their boaſted and careleſs Ignorance of theſe Things.

Being therefore firmly perſwaded of theſe Things, and of what vaſt Importance it would be to Men, to have the Knowledge of ſo clear Truths, I ſhould have thought my ſelf the moſt unworthy of Mankind, if I had kept ſecret, Myſteries ſo great and ſo advantageous to the Chriſtian World. Therefore alſo it was that, Occaſion offering, I did ſo chearfully undertake the laborious Task of turning into Latin theſe my Theological Writings, having therein, as I hope, obſerved the Direction of the Divine Providence. For I thought it better to expoſe my ſelf to all the Dangers and Inconveniencies of the outward Life, than to the Stings and Laſhes of that inward Fury of a wounded and troubled Conſcience.

But, altho', as I was going to ſay, I have now attain'd to a moſt clear and diſtinct Knowledge of theſe Myſteries, yet this came not to paſs all at once, but I was for ſome time detain'd by the Plauſibleneſs of the old Hypotheſis, and believ'd that the Reſurrection of the Witneſſes had not yet happen'd. Of which Matter I am now ſufficiently aſſured, and, in the proper Place, I have uſed Arguments ſtrong enough, whereby others in like manner may become certain of the ſame. Yet dare I not warrant, that no Traces of the former Hypotheſis do any where remain in my Writings, tho' I well know I have defaced ſome of 'em. Yea, I remember, that in Book v. ch. 7. of the Myſtery of Godlineſs, ſome manifeſt enough are to be found, which there I deſignedly left untouch'd, becauſe of their moral Uſefulneſs. And this is the firſt Thing of which I would advertiſe the Reader.

Another is, That apparent Inconſiſtency betwixt the Apologies for the Pagan Idolatry in the Myſtery of Godlineſs, and the Pleas againſt the Popiſh Idolatry both in the Idea of Antichriſtianiſm, and in the Antidote againſt Idolatry it ſelf. Where the Reader may opportunely obſerve with how free a Courſe of Thoughts I have always reaſoned, and likewiſe that I did not receive the full Knowledge of Idolatry all at once, but it was occaſionally and by degrees, as it were, inſtilled into my Mind. In the Myſtery of Godlineſs, my only Care was to defend the Divine Providence, and the Truth of the Chriſtian Religion in general. And being abundantly contented with this Work, I had never, that I know of, proceeded further in Theological Speculations, (as ever thinking that theſe Things were to be proſecuted, rather for the Uſe of Life than the empty Delight of Contemplation) had I not obſerv'd the wonderful Induſtry and Diligence of the Romaniſts in corrupting Men with their Superſtition, and their ſingular Boaſting and Confidence of Succeſs, as if their Religion were in a ſhort time to be reſtored as it were from Baniſhment. This was the Cauſe that almoſt conſtrained me to bend all my Thoughts upon this one thing, that I might throughly underſtand the Nature and Condition of the Popiſh Religion. Which Study gave Birth to the Treatiſe concerning the Myſtery of Iniquity, and the Antidote againſt Idolatry. And here again I muſt put the Reader in Mind, how unlikely it is that one who hath made ſo fit and pretty Apologies for the Pagan Idolatries, can be moved by any vulgar and ſuperſtitious Fear (and not rather by the powerful Conviction of pure and refined Reaſon) ſo much to abhor the Popiſh Idolatries. For I acknowledge that I at length obtain'd a much more accurate Underſtanding of the fix'd and determin'd Nature of Idolatry, after I had made a more thorow Search thereinto, than when I writ theſe Apologies; and that I am now altogether of Opinion, that things of ſo great Moment, where the Honour of God and the Salvation of Men are concern'd, are not to be left to the deluſory Wantonneſs and Unconſtancy of a youthful Wit, but to be examined by the moſt rigid Rule of Reaſon, and to be directed and determin'd by the Will and Authority of the Divine Oracles. But whatever Inconvenience might proceed from theſe ſeemingly plauſible Apologies in the Myſtery of Godlineſs, will eaſily, I hope, be prevented in the following Treatiſes, by the Solidity and Severity of the ſtrongeſt Reaſons, and of Scriptures clearly explained.

The Writings of others compared with them.

But perhaps it won't be amiss likewise to compare the Writings of others with those of ours. In the third place, therefore, the Reader may observe, how I have acquitted my self, in Expounding the Prophecies, not with any Partiality, but with the greatest Fidelity and Simplicity; for I have not been induc'd to turn out of the way by any Hatred or Want of Love of the contrary Party, or too much Affection towards our own; but I have ingenuously and freely declared, alike to both, what might be pleasing or displeasing. For as I declare from the Divine Prophecies, that the Roman Religion will at length be abolish'd, so I plainly and openly determine out of the same Oracles, that there is no Necessity the City of Rome be destroyed with Sword and Fire, (which is the vulgar Interpretation of the Burning of the Whore) or that the Beast is otherways to perish than as to its Brutal Cruelty, and filthy Idolatry. And as I earnestly contend that the Reformation, made not very long ago, is the Resurrection of the Witnesses, and that the Sardian Interval of the Church, denotes the Duration thereof; so again I determine from the Exposition of the Epistle to the Church of Sardis, that this is a less perfect State of Things, and I intimate that they have more of Carnal Zeal than of the true Christian Life; and I don't conceal from them, that some great Calamity, foretold in that Epistle, is at hand, unless they repent. Yea, and in the Exposition it self of that Epistle, and in the Epilogue of the Book, I plainly and freely warn them of these Things: And here I again and again intreat them, that they would weigh and consider with themselves, seriously and in the Fear of God, what I have said.

Finally, in the Fourth Place, seeing so violent an Itch of predicting Things future, hath carried many to such a Pitch of Confidence, as to limit the Events prefigured in the Prophetical Visions, to a certain Year, as if foretold to such a Nicety in the Prophecies; and so being shamefully frustrated they have, with many, destroyed both their own Credit, and that of the Study of interpreting the Prophecies; I therefore not only affix nothing my self to a certain Year, but plainly also declare, that there now remains nothing in the Apocalyptical Visions which are yet unfulfilled, nor indeed ever was there any thing, that could by others be determin'd to a precise Time: So that there is now left no Place for turbulent and headstrong Men, as it were by a Sign from Heaven, to excite others to Innovations; for I affirm that the Vision of the Resurrection of the Witnesses is already fulfilled, and that the 1260 Days, as to any prophetical Use, are altogether compleated. In which Matter I am more and more daily confirm'd, since first I set my Mind to the more earnest and close Consideration thereof. Insomuch, that the Approach of the Fall of Antichrist, as they call it, and of such Events as are to hasten it, can be discern'd by no other Signs than by the Progress of true and sincere Piety, and of unstained Integrity of Manners in the Reformed Churches, as I have more largely explain'd in the Conclusion of The Exposition of the Epistles to the seven Churches.

Nevertheless, tho' I determine nothing of the Day or Year of the glorious Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Brightness thereof, whereby that Man of Sin is to be destroyed, yet I cannot but boldly and constantly affirm, that he will be destroyed in his own Time, and that a most happy Scene of Affairs will immediately succeed.

There shall be, there shall be most certainly a Time, and that Day shall at length appear, when the Sun of Righteousness being arisen, Egyptian Mists and Darkness shall be dispers'd. When all the Filth and Dross of the Church shall be consum'd and purg'd away by the Ardor of Divine Love. When all Barbarity of Manners, and filthy Superstitions and Idolatries shall be sent into the Lake of Fire and Brimstone. When, finally, Calvinism, Lutheranism, Popery, and whatever else savours of Sects and Discords of Minds and Opinions, shall be melted down into one, (which shall be instead of all) both as to Life and Doctrine, truly Catholick and Apostolical Philadelphianism. Which Times that God would hasten, and thereto incline the Hearts of Christian Princes and People, ought to be the fervent Desire and Expectation of all good Men.

AN

AN EXPLANATION OF THE Grand Myſtery OF GODLINESS.

CHAP. I.

1. The Four main Properties of a Myſtery. 2. The firſt Property, Obſcurity. 3. The ſecond, Intelligibleneſs. 4. The third, Truth. 5. The fourth, Uſefulneſs. 6. A more full Deſcription of the Nature of a Myſtery. 7. The Diſtribution of the whole Treatiſe.

1. EVery legitimate Myſtery comprehends in it at leaſt theſe Four Properties. It is a piece of knowledge, Firſt competently Obſcure, Recondite and Abſtruſe: That is, it is not ſo utterly hid and intricate, but that, in the Second place, It is in a due meaſure Intelligible. Thirdly, It is not only Intelligible, what is meant by it; but it is evidently and certainly True. Fourthly and laſtly, It is no impertinent or idle Speculation, but a Truth very Uſeful and Profitable: We may well add alſo, for ſome Religious End.

2. This Obſcurity and Abſtruſeneſs makes not only the Myſtery more ſolemn and venerable to thoſe to whom it is communicated, but hides it alſo from their eyes that are not worthy to partake thereof. From whence ſome Criticks have derived Myſterium from the Hebrew word מסתר which is from סהר to hide: Which is well aimed at as to the ſence. But others with more judgment in Grammar, acknowledge μυϛήριον to be a proper Greek word, and fetch the Derivation of it from μύϛν, ἀπὸ τὸ μύϛν τὸ σόμα, becauſe they to whom it is communicated are to keep ſilence, and not to impart it to unmeet perſons. And in this ſenſe Chryſoſtome expounds Myſterium, Τὸ ἀπόῤῥητον καὶ θαυμαϛὸν καὶ ἀγνοούμενον, A matter wonderful, unknown, and not to be eaſily or raſhly communicated to others.

3. Nor indeed could it be at all, if it were utterly Unintelligible. Wherefore Intelligibleneſs adds this further requiſite alſo to a Myſtery, that it thereby becomes Communicable to ſuch as are fitly prepared to be inſtructed therein. For which reaſon the Etymologiſts give alſo this Notation of Μυϛήριον, that it is from μυέϛν, which is to teach and inſtruct a man in Divine matters ſo far forth as the party is fit to receive. Hence is alſo Μύϛης, Myſta, a Scholar or Commencer in Divine Myſteries, one that is more ſlightly imbued in the knowledge of ſuch Holy things.

4. But there is afterward a clearer manifeſtation and a fuller ſatisfaction, and the μύϛης then becomes ἐπόπτης or ἔφορος, being now more firmly aſcertained of the Truth which he did but obſcurely apprehend before. From which Clearneſs and Certainty of the thing repreſented, there neceſſarily ariſes a full and free aſſent of his Underſtanding without any further doubt or heſitancy; the Proverb being made good in this caſe, That Seeing is Believing.

5. But that there may not be a mere dry Belief without any love or liking of the Object thereof, we added alſo that this Myſtery is not only certainly True, but very concerningly Uſeful and Profitable; which though the word Μυστήριον it ſelf does not imply, yet another in the ſame language and of the like ſenſe does, which is Τελεταὶ, i. e. Initiations into ſacred Myſteries. The Uſefulneſs whereof a Platoniſt admirably well deſcribes, not without a verbal alluſion, in this manner, Σκοπὸς μὲν τελετῶν ἐστιν εἰς τέλος ἀναγαγεῖν τὰς ψυχὰς ἐκεῖνο, ἀφ' ἧς τὴν πρώτην ἐπέπαυντο πάροδον, ὡς ἀπ' ἀρχῆς· Which, if we would render it in our more familiar language, ſounds thus; the ſcope or aim of all Religious Myſteries is the bringing back fall'n Man into his priſtine condition of Happineſs, and to lead him again to that high ſtation which he then firſt forſook when he preferr'd his own Will and the pleaſure of the Animal life before the Will of God and that Life and Senſe which is truly Divine.

6. Wherefore not to dwell too long on the threſhold, we conclude briefly and in general, that a Myſtery is a piece of Divine knowledge meaſurably abſtruſe, whereby it becomes more Venerable, but yet Intelligible, that it may be Communicable, and True and Certain that it may win firm Aſſent, and laſtly very Uſeful and Effectual for the perfecting of the Souls of men, and reſtoring them to that Happineſs which they anciently had fall'n from; that ſo near a Concernment may as well gain upon their Affections as the Evidence of Truth engage their Underſtandings; and ſo the whole man may be carried on to a devout embracement of what is exhibited unto him by the knowledge of his Religion.

7. What we have thus generally propoſed we ſhall now apply more particularly, and more fully proſecute thoſe Four Primary Properties in that Grand Myſtery of Godlineſs which we call Chriſtianity: Diſtributing our Diſcourſe into theſe Four main Parts; The firſt whereof ſhall inſiſt ſomewhat upon the Abſtruſeneſs and Obſcurity of our Religion, the Second upon the Intelligibleneſs of it, the Third upon the Certainty of it, and the Fourth on the great concerning Uſefulneſs thereof. To which we ſhall add what Conſiderations we think fitteſt concerning the Secondary Properties which emerge out of theſe Primary ones.

CHAP. II.

1. That it is fit that the Myſtery of Chriſtianity ſhould be in ſome meaſure Obſcure, to exclude the Senſual and Worldly. 2. As alſo to defeat diſobedient Learning and Induſtry: 3. And for the pleaſure and improvement of the godly and obedient. 4. The high Gratifications of the Speculative Soul from the Obſcurity of the Scriptures.

1. THAT there is a conſiderable Obſcurity and Abſtruſeneſs in Chriſtian Religion is eaſily made evident as well from the Cauſe as the Effects of this Obſcurity. For beſides that from the common nature of a Myſtery Chriſtianity ought to be competently Obſcure and Abſtruſe, that it may thereby become more Venerable and more ſafely removed out of all danger of contempt; we cannot but ſee what a ſpecial Congruity there is in the matter it ſelf, to have ſo holy and ſo highly-concerning a Myſtery as our Religion is, Abſtruſe and Obſcure. For that Divine wiſdom that orders all things juſtly ought not to communicate thoſe precious Truths in ſo plain a manner that the Unworthy may as eaſily apprehend them as the Worthy; but does moſt righteouſly neglect the ſenſual and Careleſs, permitting every man to carry home wares proportionable to the price he would pay in the open market for them: And when they can beſtow ſo great induſtry upon things of little moment, will not ſpare to puniſh their undervaluing this ineſtimable Pearl by the perpetual loſs of it. For what a palpable piece of Hypocriſy is it for a man to excuſe himſelf from the ſtudy of Piety, by complaining againſt the Intricacies and Difficulties of the Myſtery thereof; whenas he never yet laid out upon it the tenth part of that pains and affection that he does upon the ordinary trivial things of this world?

2. Thus

2. Thus are the careleſs voluptuous Epicure and over-careful Worldling juſtly met with. But not they alone. For the Obſcurity of this Myſtery we ſpeak of is ſuch, that all the knowledge of Nature and Geometry can never reach the Depth of it, or reliſh the Excellency of it; nor all the skill of Tongues rightly interpret it, unleſs that true Interpreter and great Myſtagogus, the Spirit of God himſelf, vouchſafe the opening of it unto us, and ſet it on ſo home in our Underſtandings, that it begets Faith in our Hearts, ſo that our Hearts miſgive us not in the profeſſion of what we would acknowledge as True. For as for the outward Letter it ſelf of the Holy Scriptures, God has not ſo plainly delivered himſelf therein, that he has given the ſtaff out of his own hands, but does ſtill direct the humble and ſingle-hearted, while he ſuffers the proud ſearcher to loſe himſelf in this Obſcure field of Truth. Wherefore diſobedient both Learning and Induſtry are turned off from obtaining any certain and ſatisfactory Knowledge of this Divine Myſtery, as well as Worldlineſs and Voluptuouſneſs. According as our Bleſſed Saviour has pronounced in that devout Doxology, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, becauſe thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them unto babes: Even ſo, Father, for ſo it ſeemed good in thy ſight.

3. Nor are the Wicked only diſappointed, but the Godly very much gratified by the Intricacy of this ſacred Myſtery. For the Spirit of Man being ſo naturally given to ſearch after Knowledge, and his Underſtanding being one of the cheifeſt and choiceſt Faculties in him, it cannot be but a very high delight to him to employ his nobleſt endowments upon the divineſt Objects, and very congruous and decorous they ſhould be ſo employ'd. Beſides, the preſent Doubtfulneſs of Truth makes the holy Soul more devout and dependant on God, the only true and ſafe guide thereunto. From whence we ſhould be ſo far from murmuring againſt Divine Providence for the Obſcurity and Ambiguity of the Holy Scriptures, that we ſhould rather magnifie his Wiſdom therein; We having diſcovered ſo many and ſo weighty Reaſons why thoſe Divine Oracles ſhould be Obſcure: The wicked thereby being excluded; the due Reverence of the Myſtery maintained; and the worthy partakers thereof much advantaged and highly gratified.

4. For what can indeed more highly gratifie a man, whoſe very nature is Reaſon, and ſpecial Prerogative Speech; then by his skill in Arts and Languages, by the Sagacity of his Underſtanding, and induſtrious comparing of one place of thoſe Sacred pages with another, to work out, or at leaſt to clear up, ſome Divine Truth out of the Scripture to the unexpected ſatisfaction of himſelf and general ſervice of the Church; the deareſt Faculty of his Soul and greateſt glory of his Nature acting then with the fulleſt commiſſion, and to ſo good an end, that it need know no bounds, but Joy and Triumph may be unlimited, the Heart exulting in that in which we cannot exceed, viz. the Honor of God and the Good of his People? All which gratulations of the Soul in her ſucceſsful purſuits of Divine Truth would be utterly loſt or prevented, if the Holy Scriptures ſet down all things ſo fully, plainly and methodically, that our reading and underſtanding would every where keep equal pace together. Wherefore that the mind of man may be worthily employ'd and taken up with a kind of Spiritual husbandry, God has not made the Scriptures like an artificial Garden, wherein the Walks are plain and regular, the Plants ſorted and ſet in order, the Fruits ripe, and the Flowers blown, and all things fully expoſed to our view; but rather like an uncultivated field, where indeed we have the ground and hidden ſeeds of all precious things, but nothing can be brought to any great beauty, order, fulneſs or maturity, without our own induſtry; nor indeed with it, unleſs the dew of His grace deſcend upon it, without whoſe bleſſing this Spiritual Culture will thrive as little as the labour of the husbandman without ſhowers of rain.

CHAP. III.

1. The Obſcurity of the Chriſtian Myſtery argued from the Effect, as from the Jews rejecting their Meſſias. 2. From the many Sects amongſt Chriſtians. 3. Their difference in opinion concerning the Trinity. 4. The Creation. 5. The Soul of Man. 6. The Perſon of Chriſt. 7. And the Nature of Angels.

1. HItherto we have argued the Obſcurity of the Chriſtian Myſtery from the Reaſons and Cauſes thereof, whereby we have evinced, That it ought to be Obſcure, and that therefore in all likelyhood it is ſo. But the Effects are ſo manifeſt, that if we do but briefly point at them, it will be put beyond all doubt, That it is ſo indeed.

Let us now inſtance in ſome few. Why are the Jews yet unconverted, or rather, why did they at firſt caſt off their Meſſias; but becauſe the Prophecies in Scripture were ſo Obſcure, that they had taken up a falſe Notion of him and of the Condition he was to appear in? For they expected him as a mighty Prince that ſhould reſtore the kingdom to Iſrael, and that Victory, Peace, Proſperity and Dominion ſhould be accumulated upon the Jewiſh nation by his means. Which opinion I conceive the Lowneſs of the Moſaical diſpenſation under which they lived, that perpetually propounded to them worldly advantage as a reward of their obedience, and the Obſcurity of the Predictions of the Meſſias engaged them in. For they being either Figurative and Allegorical, or mingling ſometimes the ſtate of his Second coming with his Firſt; their eager eye being ſo fully fixt upon what ſounded like worldly happineſs, they could mind no other ſenſe but that in theſe Enigmatical writings: Which yet proved clear enough to as many as God had prepared, and belonged to the election of Grace. But he might, if it had pleaſed his Wiſdom ſo to do, have made all things ſo plain, that we ſhould not need at this day to expect the calling of the Jews, but they might have been one Body with us long ſince. But their Rejection is a greater aſſurance to us of the Truth of our Religion, we being able to make it good even out of thoſe Records that are kept by our profeſſed Enemies. Beſides, a Man can no more rationally require, that all Iſrael ſhould have flowed in at the firſt appearance of Chriſt, then that his Second coming ſhould be joyned with his Firſt, or his Firſt drawn back to the next Age after Adams fall; nor that more rationally then that Autumn ſhould be caſt upon Summer, and both upon Spring. The Counſels of God are at once, but the fulfillings of them ripen in due order and time.

2. But though we let go the Jews, and contain our ſelves within the compaſs of thoſe that either are or would be accounted Chriſtians, their Opinions and Sects both have been and are ſo numerous, that the very mention of ſo confeſſed a Truth may ſufficiently evince the Obſcurity of thoſe Divine Oracles to which they all appeal. I will inſtance only in things of greater moment, which will be a ſure pledge of the certainty of their innumerable diſſentions in ſmaller matters.

3. Wherefore to ſay nothing of that more intricate Myſtery of the Triunity in the Godhead, where the curious Speculators of that difficult Theory are firſt divided into Trinitarians and Anti-Trinitarians, and then the Trinitarians into Heteruſians, Homouſians and Homœuſians: we ſhall ſee them diſagreeing not only in the Diſtinction of the Perſons, but concerning the Eſſence it ſelf: Some affirming God to be Infinite, others Finite; ſome a Spirit, others a Body; other ſome not only a Body, but a Body of the very ſame ſhape with mans. Of which opinion the Ægiptian Anthropomorphites were ſo zealouſly confident, that they forced the Biſhop of Alexandria, out of fear of his life, to ſubſcribe to their groſs conceit.

4. Again concerning the Creation of the world, ſome affirm that God made it of Matter coeternal with, and independent of, himſelf: Others that he created it of Nothing: Others that he made it not at all; but that it was made, as ſome would have it, by good Angels, others, by the Devil.

5. Concerning the Soul of man, ſome ſay it ſubſiſts and acts before it comes into the Body; Others only in the Body, and after the ſolution of the Body: Others in the Body alone: Others not there neither, as holding indeed no ſuch thing as a Soul at all, but that the Body it ſelf does all: Which ſome hold ſhall riſe again, others not; but that the whole Myſtery of Chriſtianity is finiſhed in this life.

6. Con-

6. Concerning Chriſt, ſome were of Opinion that he was only God appearing in humane ſhape; others only Man; others both; others neither.

7. Concerning Angels, ſome affirm them to be fiery or airy Bodies; ſome pure Spirits; ſome Spirits in airy or fiery Bodies; others none of theſe, but that they are momentaneous Emanations from God; others that they are only Divine Imaginations in Men; which can be by no means allowed, unleſs we ſhould admit the Holy Patriarch Abraham to have arrived at ſuch a meaſure of dotage, as to provide Cakes and a fatted Calf to entertain three Divine Imaginations which viſited him in his Tent. But certainly ſuch ſlight and exorbitant Gloſſes as theſe can argue nothing elſe but a misbelief of the Text, and indeed of all Religion, and that the Interpreter is no Chriſtian, but either Atheiſt or Infidel. Wherefore to leave ſuch Spirits as theſe to the confident Dictates of their own foul Complexion, we ſhall rather take into conſideration ſome few, but main points wherein certain Men, otherwiſe rational enough in their Sphere, and hearty Aſſerters of the Authority of Scripture, diſagree from the generality of other Chriſtians.

The firſt of them is concerning the Trinity of Perſons in the Unity of the Godhead.

The ſecond concerning the Divinity of Chriſt.

The third and laſt concerning the State of the Soul after Death. Which Points, tho' I muſt confeſs they are of ſubtle Speculation, yet they ſeem ſo neceſſary and eſſential, the two former eſpecially, to Chriſtian Religion, that I think it fit not to paſs them over with a bare mention of them, nor yet to ſpeak much in ſo profound and myſterious a matter.

CHAP. IV.

1. That the Trinity was not brought out of Plato's School into the Church by the Fathers. 2. A Deſcription of the Platonick Trinity, and of the difference of the Hypoſtaſes. 3. A Deſcription of their Union. 4. And why they hold All a due Object of Adoration. 5. The irrefutable Reaſonableneſs of the Platonick Trinity, and yet declined by the Fathers, a Demonſtration that the Trinity was not brought out of Plato's School into the Church. 6. Which is further evidenced from the compliableneſs of the Notion of the Platonick Trinity with the Phraſe and Expreſſions of Scripture. 7. That if the Chriſtian Trinity were from Plato, it follows not that the Myſtery is Pagan. 8, 9, 10. The Trinity proved from Teſtimony of Holy Writ.

1. NOw concerning the Firſt, The Trinity, ſay they, objecting againſt it in general, is nothing elſe but a Pagan or Heatheniſh Figment brought out of the Philoſophy of Pythagoras and Plato, and inſerted into the doctrine of the Church by the ancient Fathers, who moſt of them were Platoniſts. But to this I anſwer, That it is very highly improbable that the Fathers borrowed the Myſtery of the Trinity from the School of Plato; which you ſhall eaſily underſtand when we have ſo far as ſerves to our purpoſe explained the doctrine of the Platonical Triad, which is briefly thus:

2. There are Three Hypoſtaſes, ſay they, in the Deity, namely, Τἀγαθὸν, Νοῦς, Ψυχή· that is, The Good, or Firſt-ſelf originated Goodneſs; Intellect, or the Eternal Mind; and laſtly, Soul or Spirit. Their Τἀγαθὸν is alſo their Τὸ ἓν, and they diſtinguiſh all Three after this manner:

Τἀγαθὸν.	}	{ Τὸ πρῶτον ἕν.
Νοῦς.		{ Ἕν πάντα.
Ψυχή.		{ Ἕν καὶ πάντα.

The Good.	}	{ The Firſt One.
Intellect.		{ One All.
Soul.		{ One and All.

If we would eaſe our Apprehenſion here by the help of our Phanſy, we might compare the Firſt to Simple and pure Light; the Second to Light variegated into Colours, as in the Rainbow; the Third to thoſe Rayes of Light (for all is Light) that receive and carry down theſe Colours to the Ground, and impreſs them and reflect them from ſome ſtanding Pool or Plaſh of Water. Again the Firſt Hypoſtaſis is κατ' ἐξοχὴν τἀγαθὸν, τἀγαθὸν, κατ' αἰτίαν νοῦς, Eſſentially the Good, Cauſally the Intellect. The Second is, κατ' ἐσίαν νοῦς, κατ' αἰτίαν ψυχὴ, κατὰ μέθεξιν τἀγαθὸν, Eſſentially Intellect, Cauſally Soul, Participatively the Good. The Third is κατ' ἐσίαν ψυχὴ, that is ἕξως καὶ δημιυργία, κατ' αἰτίαν ὕλη καὶ κόσμος, καὶ μέθεξιν νοῦς καὶ τἀγαθὸν, Eſſentially Soul, that is, Love and Operation, Cauſally Matter and the World, Participatively the Good and Intellect.

3. Now for the Union of the Three Hypoſtaſes, we ſhall underſtand the accuracy thereof by degrees. As Firſt, That the proper Life and Energie, as I may ſo ſay, of each Hypoſtaſis is not contain'd within it ſelf, but, like a vocal and audible Sound in a ſtill ſilent Night, perpetually re-ecchoes through the whole Deity: Or as when a Song of Three Parts is ſung, each Muſician enjoys the Harmony of the whole.

But this I muſt confeſs looks more properly like Communion then perfect Union: We ſtep therefore a degree further, and affirm, That as Body and Soul is conceived to make up one man, and this Individual Body and this Individual Soul to make up this Individual man: So theſe Three Hypoſtaſes to make up one Individual Deity, their Union and Actuation one of another being Infinitely and unſpeakably more Perfect than in any other Being imaginable. And as the Motions of the Body are perceptible to the Soul of man, and the Impreſſions of the Soul upon the Body would be perceptible to it, if it had of it ſelf a Faculty of Perception: So likewiſe by this ineffable cloſe Union and mutual Actuation of the Three Hypoſtaſes, all their proper Energies become fully perceptible to one another. And the Life of the firſt ſo infinitely and unexpreſſibly gratifying the Second, and Both the Third by an immutable neceſſity and congruity of nature, it is evident they can have but One Will, which is as it were the Heart, the Centre or Root of the Deity, the Eternal ſelf originated Good.

But thirdly and laſtly, Theſe three Hypoſtaſes are not one only by this actuating Union which may ſeem to admit of a real ſeparability; but there is alſo a real Unity or Identity in them: The diſtinction among them being, as Tatianus ſpeaks, κατὰ μερισμὸν, ὃ καλ' ἀποκοπὴν, like the Rayes of the Sun, in reſpect of the Sun; or if you will, as the Centre, Rayes and Surface of a Globe, which implies a Contradiction to be conceived without them; or, as the Faculties of the Soul are to the Soul, which are as inſeparable from her as ſhe is from herſelf.

The Union therefore of them all, and the Emanation of the Second and Third from the Firſt being ſo Neceſſary, Natural, and Inevitable, (For the Firſt can be no more without the Second, or the Second without the Third, then the Sun can be without his Rayes, or the Soul without her Faculties;) there is no ſcruple, ſay they, but we may call all this the Godhead or Deity, the Second and Third coming ſo unavoidably out of the Firſt Root, and being ſo inſeparable from it. And therefore there is nothing here properly Creature; Creation being a free act: and if not Creature, what can it be but God?

4. And ſince from theſe Three are all things that are made, and in their hands is the guidance of all things; Nothing leſs then Divine Adoration can of right belong unto them. For though there may be ſome allay of Excellency in their deſcent from the firſt, yet they being all our Creators and Governors, none ought to fall ſhort of Divine worſhip.

5. This is a brief Summ of the Platoniſts Doctrine concerning the Triunity of the Godhead: Which, as it ſeems in it ſelf Rational enough, ſo it is not obnoxious to ſeveral bold cavils that over-daring Wits make againſt the ſacred Myſtery of the Trinity; alledging againſt Diſtinction of Perſons without difference of Eſſence, That there are only three Logical Notions attributed to one ſingle and Individual nature: And againſt three Eſſences of the ſame Nature, That it looks like an unneceſſary and groundleſs repetition, and That that great Chaſma betwixt God and Matter will be as wide as before; That it is unconceivable, but the laſt being of the ſame nature with the Firſt, that it ſhould be alſo Prolifical, and ſo in infinitum: That theſe three muſt of neceſſity be Three Gods, if any of them be God; becauſe they are all exquiſitely of the ſame Kind; whenas in the Platonick Triad the Firſt is only the Αὐτόθεος, as ſome have alſo ventured to affirm in the Chriſtian Trinity. Now I ſay all being ſo eaſie and unexceptionable in the Platonical ſpeculation of this Myſtery, it ſeems almoſt impoſſible but that if the Fathers had borrowed this Notion of the Trinity from the Platoniſts, they would have explain'd it in this more facile and Plauſible way.

5. But

6. But you'll object, That though it may ſeem more Rational in it ſelf, yet it might not be ſo happily applied to Places of Scripture ; and that's the reaſon why the Fathers, though they took the Myſtery from Plato in the groſs, yet did not particularly explain it after the way of the Platoniſts. But without doubt there is not only no place of Scripture that plainly claſhes with the above deſcribed Myſtery, but ſundry Places that may be very ſpeciouſly alledged for it. It is plain, that as the Second Hypoſtaſis in Platoniſm is called Νοῦς, σοφία and λόγος, ſo it is in Chriſtianity called λόγος and σοφία, as if Wiſdom and Intellect were acknowledged his proper Character in both. They might alſo plauſibly enough draw to their ſenſe what Chriſt ſpeaks, Joh. 14. 28. My Father is greater then I; and what he utters concerning the Spirit, Chap. 16. 14. He ſhall glorifie me; for he ſhall receive of mine, and ſhew it unto you. Wherefore, I ſay, the Fathers being every way ſo fairly invited to bring the Platonick Notion of the Trinity into the Church, aſſuredly if themſelves had been Platoniſts, and had fetched the Myſtery from that School, they would not have failed to have done it.

7. Secondly, Admit that the ancient Fathers were Platoniſts, and brought the Myſtery of the Trinity into the Church of the Chriſtians, it does not ſtraight follow, That it is therefore a Pagan or Heatheniſh Myſtery: Pythagoras and Plato having not received it from Pagans or Heathens, but from the learned of the Jews, as ſundry Authors aſſert: the Jews themſelves in long ſucceſſion having received it as a Divine Tradition; and ſuch is Platoniſm acknowledged to be by Jamblicus, who ſays it is φιλοσοφία ἀποπαράδοτος. And aſſuredly if there had not been ſome very great reaſon for it, men ſo wiſe and profoundly knowing as Pythagoras, Plato, Plotinus, and others, would never have made ſo much ado about it.

8. Thirdly and laſtly, I ſay it is not only impious, but vain and fooliſh, to aſperſe that Myſtery with the reproach of Paganiſm, that is ſo plainly, to them that be not prejudiced, ſet down and held forth in the Holy Scripture. For the very Form of Baptiſm preſcribed by our Saviour evidently enough denotes Three Divine Hypoſtaſes. Of the Father there is no queſtion. Concerning the Divinity of the Son we ſhall ſpeak more fully in the Second point we propoſed. That the Holy Ghoſt is not a mere Power, Property or Attribute of God, but an Hypoſtaſis, one free enough from being ſway'd by Tradition or Authority of any Church, and (as himſelf conceits) a very cloſe and ſafe adherer to Scripture, does groſly enough acknowledge, while he makes it ſome created Angel that bears the ſacred Title of the Holy Ghoſt, and undergoes thoſe Divine functions that are attributed to him.

But we need not maintain Truth by any man's Error, being ſufficiently able to ſupport it ſelf; and therefore we will make uſe of no advantage, but what Scripture it ſelf offers us. And this Form of Baptiſm affords us ſomething to the evincing that the Holy Ghoſt is not an Attribute, but an Hypoſtaſis. For ſith that βαπτίζεσθαι εἰς τὸ ὄνομα, is to give up a mans ſelf to the Diſcipline, Government and Authority of this or that Perſon; it is the moſt natural ſenſe to conceive that all three mentioned in the Form are Perſons, we being ſo well aſſured that two of them are.

But there are other paſſages of Scripture that will make the point more clear. Rom. 15. 13. The God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghoſt. Now if the Holy Ghoſt were but a Power, not a Perſon, what a ridiculous Tautology would it be? For the ſenſe would be, through the power of the holy power. Again, John 16. 13. Ὅταν δὲ ἔλθῃ ἐκεῖνος, τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς ἀληθείας, &c. Ἐκεῖνος and τὸ πνεῦμα are very ill Syntax, were it not that there is a Perſonality in the Holy Spirit, which by what follows is moſt undeniably evident; for he ſhall not ſpeak of himſelf: But whatſoever he ſhall hear, that ſhall he ſpeak. To receive of one and communicate to others by way of hearing and ſpeaking, what can that belong to but a Perſon or Hypoſtaſis? To this you may add alſo Mark 13. 11. Whatſoever ſhall be given you in that hour, that ſpeak ye: For it is not you that ſpeak, but the Holy Ghoſt.

Now that this Hypoſtaſis is not a created Angel, amongſt other Reaſons the Conception of Chriſt may well argue, it being more congruous That that Spirit that moved upon the waters, and created the world, ſhould form that holy Fœtus in the womb of the Virgin, then that any created Angel ſhould apply himſelf to that work; for he had not then been the Son of God, but of an Angel, as in reference to his birth in time.

9. Beſides

9. Beſides, this one Individual Spirit in Scripture is repreſented as every where ready to ſanctify, to regenerate, to diſtribute various gifts and graces to the Church, to have ſpoke by the mouth of the Prophets, to be a καρδιογνώστης or a diſcerner of the thoughts of the heart. Baptiſm alſo and Benedictions are imparted in his name; he is alſo called to witneſs, which is a piece of Divine worſhip: All which ſeems more naturally to be underſtood of him whom we properly call the Spirit of God, then of any particular created Angel whatſoever.

10. We ſhall only add one place more, which will put all out of doubt to them that do not doubt of the Text it ſelf; 1 John 5. 7. There are three witneſſes in Heaven, The Father, the Word, and the Spirit: And theſe three are one. What can be writ more plain for the proof of the Triunity of the Godhead? But for thoſe that ſuſpect the Clauſe to be ſuppoſititious, I ſhall not trouble my ſelf to confute them; that task being performed ſo ſolidly and judiciouſly by a late Interpreter, that nothing but Prejudice and Wilfulneſs can make a Man depart unſatisfied with ſo clear a demonſtration. Wherefore ſecure of this Point concerning the Trinity, we go on to the next concerning The Divinity of Chriſt.

CHAP. V.

1. That the natural ſenſe of the Firſt of S. John does evidently witneſs the Divinity of Chriſt. 2. A more particular urging of the circumſtances of that Chapter. 3. That S. John uſed the word λόγος in the Jewiſh or Cabbaliſtical notion. 4. The Trinity and the Divinity of Chriſt argued from Divine worſhip due to him, and from his being a Sacrifice for Sin. 5. That to deny the Trinity and Divinity of Chriſt, or to make the Union of our ſelves with the Godhead of the ſame nature with that of Chriſt's, ſubverts Chriſtianity. 6. The uſeleſneſs and ſaucineſs of the pretended Deification of Enthuſiaſts, and how deſtructive it is of Chriſtian Religion. 7. The Providence of God in preparing of the Nations by Platoniſm for the eaſier reception of Chriſtianity.

1. THAT Chriſt is not ψιλὸς ἄνθρωπος or a mere Creature, but a divine Hypoſtaſis, or truly, really and Phyſically (not Allegorically and Morally) joyn'd with that Divine Hypoſtaſis which is called λόγος, if men would not bring their own ſturdy preconceptions, but liſten to the eaſie and natural air of the Text, the Beginning of S. John's Goſpel would put out of all controverſy. For I'll appeal to any, ſuppoſing the Union of Chriſt's Humanity with the λόγος to be true, in what fitter, more ſignificant, or better-becoming way could it be expreſſed then already it is in the Beginning of that Goſpel? Wherefore to interpret it in any other ſence, is to delude themſelves, and to abuſe the Scripture through the prepoſſeſſions of their own Prejudice. Of which violence they do thereto they cannot well be ſenſible, they thinking they have full commiſſion to diſtort it into any poſture, rather then to let it alone in that which ſo plainly points to a Myſtery which they hold impoſſible and ſelf-contradictious. For ſo has their bold and blind reaſoning concluded aforehand concerning the Trinity and Divinity of Chriſt. But to thoſe that are indifferent this Text bears ſuch evidence with it, that it cannot but ſettle their belief.

2. For why ſhould the Evangeliſt omit the manner of Chriſt's Birth as he was Man, but that he was intent upon his Eternal Generation as he was God? Or why ſhould he not call him by that name that was given him at his Circumciſion, or by the name of Chriſt or the Meſſias, who was a Perſon expected in time, but that his thoughts were carried back to that of him which was from all Eternity? Nor is it imaginable that he ſhould be here called Λόγος inſtead of Jeſus or Chriſt, unleſs there were ſome valuable Myſtery in it, which the learned eaſily unriddle from Jewiſh Interpreters, they ſpeaking often of the Word of the Lord as an Hypoſtaſis diſtinguiſhable from God, and yet that by which he created Adam and the reſt of the Creatures. And for my own part I make no queſtion but that the Greek Philoſophers, as Pythagoras and Plato, had not only their Λόγος, but the whole Myſtery of their Trinity from the Divine Traditions amongſt the Jews. Philo the Jew ſpeaks often of of this Principle in the Godhead, calling it [a] λόγον Θεοῦ, or [b] τὸν θεῖον λόγον, or sometimes [c] θεὸν, other sometimes [d] πρωτόγονον θεοῦ υἱόν· and attributes unto it the Creation of the World, as also the Healing of the Diseases of our Minds, and the Purging of our Souls from Sins; insomuch that this Author might be a good Commentator upon this first Chapter of St. John.

[a] The Word of God. [b] The Divine Word. [c] God. [d] The First-born Son of God.

3. Wherefore there being this Notion of λόγος amongst the Jews, to which the Creation and Government of the World is attributed, the same also being done here, what can be more likely then that St. John means the very same λόγος that is Creator and Governor of all? Which the very Phrase and Posture of things will yet further confirm. For assuredly this ἐν ἀρχῇ in the Gospel is the same with that ἀπ' ἀρχῆς in the first Epistle of St. John; and what ἀπ' ἀρχῆς signifies the same Epistle will explicate, Chap. 2. 14. I write unto you Fathers, ὅτι ἐγνώκατε τὸν ἀπ' ἀρχῆς, because you have known the Eternal: and Christ by the Prophet Esay is call'd אבי עד the Eternal Father. For that is the most proper meaning of עד, as appears Esay 57. 15. Thus saith the high and lofty one who inhabits Eternity, שכן עד, inhabiting Eternity. Nor is it incongruous for the same Being to be the Son of God and the Father and Governour of all the Creatures. And the Prophet Micah, chap. 5. propheſying of Christ, describes him thus, ἧς αἱ ἔξοδοι ἀπὸ ἀρχῆς, ἐξ ἡμερῶν αἰῶνος, His emanations are from the Beginning, from the Days of Eternity. Which agrees well with what Christ professes of himself, John 8. πρὶν Ἀβραὰμ γενέσθαι, ἐγώ εἰμι· for if he was before Abraham, there is little Question but he was before all things; and that of the Psalmist is but his due attribute, πρὸ τοῦ ὄρη γενηθῆναι, σὺ εἶ, Before the mountains were brought forth, or the Earth was formed, even from everlasting to everlasting Thou art God. John 8. 58.

And now for the Posture of things, after the Evangelist has twice asserted, That he was from the beginning; that you may not mistake and think he means the beginning of his Ministry, as the Messiah, he tells you, according to the Doctrine of the Jews, That all things were created by him: and at the tenth Verse, that you may have no subterfuge, he says, That even that World that was made by him knew him not: which excludes all Moral and Mystical Interpretations, and shews plainly that wicked Men, though not their wickedness, are his Creation, and consequently all the World besides. And the Author to the Hebrews is a farther Witness of this Truth, citing that of the Psalmist concerning the Son of God, Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the Earth, and the Heavens are the Work of thy Hands.

There is yet another Argument of the Divinity of Christ, which I need not prove, it being acknowledged even by our Adversaries, and it is Religious Worship due to him, which I conceive is due to none but God.

4. The Holy Trinity and Divinity of Christ we have hitherto proved out of the Scriptures, and might add many Places more; but the Reason and Nature of the thing it self shall be the last Confirmation. That Christ is to be Worshipped is acknowledged of all Hands. But to worship one that is not God, is to relapse into the ancient Rites of the Pagans, who were Men-worshippers, and eaters of the Sacrifices of the Dead. For Jupiter, Belus, Bacchus, Vulcan, Mercurius, Osiris and Isis, and the rest of the Gods of the Heathen, what were they but mere Men, whose Benefactions extorted Divine Honours from Superstitious Posterity after their Death? Wherefore Christ ought not to be a mere Man, but God; that is, he ought to be really and physically united to the Deity; it being present not by Assistance only but by Information; that as Body and Soul are one Man, so God and Man may be one Christ. But if there were no Trinity, but one Hypostasis in the Deity and the Humanity of Christ thus joyn'd with it: How could he be a Sacrifice for Sin, there being none besides himself to whom he should be offer'd? or, How could he be sent by another, when there is none other to send him? and the Son of God out of the Bosom of his Father could not be said to suffer, but he that is offended to be sacrificed to pacifie himself: which things are very absurd and incongruous.

But you'll say, the Absurdity still remains in the Second Hypostasis. For was not Sin as contrary to Him as to the First and Third, and consequently He as much offended? and therefore he dying in our nature, was sacrificed to pacify himself. In answer to this, I admit that all Three Hypostases were alike offended at Sin, and withal alike compassionate to Sinners. Which Compassion was in the Deity towards Mankind before the Incarnation and Death of Christ. But the formal Declaration and visible Consignation of this Reconcilement was by Christ according as he is revealed in the Gospel, whose Transactions in our behalf are nothing else but a sweet and kind Condescension of the Wisdom of God in this Mystery accommodating himself to our humane Capacities and Properties, ties, to win us off in a kindly way to Love and Obedience. And therefore all the Three Hypoſtaſes being alike offended at Sin, and alike prone to pardon the Sinner, and recover him to Obedience, contrived ſuch a way of declaring their Pardon, as might ſhew their higheſt diſlike of Sin, and win moſt upon the Sinner by moving his Affections to a ſerious Sorrow and Remorſe. Wherefore the Divine complotment was this; That the Eternal Son of God ſhould be made Fleſh, and to teſtifie the Hatred of God to Sin and his Love to mankind, ſhould be Sacrificed for an Atonement for the Sins of the World: Than which a greater Engine cannot be imagined to move us to an Abhorrence of Sin, and to the Love of his Law that thus redeemed us, and wrought our reconciliation with the Father. To whom being, as I may ſo ſay, the Head in the Divinity and of all things, and having in his Paternal Right the firſt Power of Puniſhing and Pardoning, this Pacification is naturally directed. For it is as if a Father of a Family, or the Prince of a Nation having a mind to Pardon ſome Malefactor, that he might not ſeem too prone to Mercy, and ſo encourage Men to Rebellion, ſhould plot with his Eldeſt Son to be an earneſt Interceſſor in the behalf of the Party, when yet the Son diſreliſheth the Crime of him he intercedes for as much as his Father did. There is the ſame Reaſon in the Interceſſion of Chriſt with the Eternal Father, ſaving that it was with more earneſtneſs and greater Agony, even unto Death, and of far higher Conſequence. But that ſuch an Interceſſion and Pacification as this ſhould be made up in the ſolitary Scene of one Perſon, is impoſſible.

5. Wherefore the denying of either the Divinity of Chriſt, or the Trinity, ſeems a Subverſion of the Chriſtian Religion. And not only ſo, but that Fanatical Piece of Magnificency of ſome Enthuſiaſts, who would make their Union with God the ſame with that of Chriſt's. For then were they truly God, and Divine Adoration would belong unto them; or if not, it is a ſign they are not God, and that therefore Chriſt is not: Either of which confounds or deſtroys our Religion. But if you demand what the Difference is betwixt the Union of Chriſt and Ours with the Divinity, I have intimated it before. In one the Divinity is Forma informans, in the other but Forma aſſiſtens: in the one it is as Lux in Corpore lucido, in the other as Lumen in Corpore diaphano. The Divinity in Chriſt is as the Light in the Sun; the Divinity in his Members as the Sunſhine in the Air.

6. And this diſtinction and due diſtance being kept, which ſome ſaucy and high-flown Enthuſiaſts do not obſerve, there is yet ſcope and encouragement enough for them to ſtrive to be full as good as they pretend; I am ſure far better than they are: there ordinarily being no difference betwixt them and the meaneſt Chriſtians, but that their Tongues are ſwelled with greater Tumor and Turgency of Speech, and their Minds filled with more vain Phantaſies and exorbitant Lunacies; when as the other ſpeak conformably to the Apoſtolick Faith, and with leſs noiſe live more honeſtly. But that no leſs Union with God than Real and Phyſical Deification muſt make them Good, is a ſign they are ſtark naught, and that Pride has laid waſt their Intellectuals. For is not that Spirit that created and framed all things able to reform us unto the moſt unblameable pitch of Humility, Self-denial, Dependency upon God, Love of our Neighbour, Obedience to Magiſtrates, Faith, Temperance and Holineſs, without being any more Hypoſtatically united with us then with the Earth, Sea, Sun, Moon and Stars, and the natural Parts of the Creation? Wherefore we conclude, That to aſſert, that the Union of any true Chriſtian with God is the ſame with that of Chriſt's, is a bold, uſeleſs and groundleſs Opinion, and inconſiſtent with and deſtructive of the Chriſtian Religion.

7. We have ſeen how Neceſſary and Eſſential to Chriſtianity the Doctrine of the Divinity of Chriſt is, and conſequently of the Trinity, without which the other cannot be rightly conceived: and therefore we do not only diſapprove of thoſe frivolous Slanders and Cavils that would brand that Sacred Myſtery with the infamous Note of Paganiſm; but highly magnifie and humbly adore the Providence of God, that that Truth ſhould be kept ſo long warm, and be ſo carefully poliſhed by thoſe Heathens that knew not the main Uſe thereof, or to what end the Tradition was delivered to the ancient Patriarchs, Prophets or holy Sages of old in either Ægypt or Judea, from whence Pythagoras and Plato had it, and prepared thoſe parts of the World where their Philoſophy had taken foot-hold, to an eaſy Reception of Chriſtianity: but this we have glanced at elſewhere.

See further of this Subject Book 9. c. 1. Sect. 6. and Chap. 2. throughout.

CHAP.

CHAP. VI

1. The Danger and Diſconſolateneſs of the Opinion of the Pſychopannychites. 2. What they alledge out of 1 Cor. 15. ſet down. 3. A Preparation to an Anſwer advertiſing, Firſt, of the nature of Prophetick Schemes of Speech. 4. Secondly, of the various Vibration of an inſpired Phanſie. 5. Thirdly, of the ambiguity of Words in Scripture, and particularly of ἀνάϛασις and ἔγερσις. 6. And laſtly, of the Corinthians being ſunk into an Unbelief of any Reward after this Life. 7. The Anſwer out of the laſt and foregoing Premiſſe. 8. A further Anſwer out of the firſt. 9. As alſo out of the ſecond and third, where their Objection from verſe 32. is fully ſatisfied. 10. Their Argument anſwered which they urge from our Saviour's Citation to the Sadducees, I am the God of Abraham, &c.

1. WE proceed now to the third and laſt Point propounded, which is, Concerning the ſtate of Souls departed, which we aſſert not to ſleep, that is, not to be void of all Operation and Senſe of Joy or Puniſhment, but that they have a Knowledge and Apprehenſion of their own Condition, be it Good or Bad. Which Article I hold as undoubtedly true, though not ſo indiſpenſable, as the two former, and though not ſo neceſſary, yet exceeding convenient to be entertain'd: It being a great Abater to our Zeal and Fervency in Religion to think, that in the end of our Life we ſhall be dodged and put off by a long, ſenſeleſs and comfortleſs Sleep of the Soul under the Sods of the Grave for many Hundreds, if not for ſome thouſands of Years.

Beſides, an indulgence to ſuch a dulneſs and heartleſneſs of Spirit, as to be content to intermit the Functions of Life for ſo long a time, may at laſt work the Soul into a ſottiſh miſtruſt of ever being awaked, and make her conclude the Myſtery of Chriſtianity within the narrow Verges of this mortal Life, as David George and other Enthuſiaſts did, who were more in Love with many Wives than with any Article of Faith that promiſed ſuch Pleaſures as might not be reaped in this Fleſh.

2. But we are here to deal (not with ſuch vain Fanaticks, but) with ſeverely devoted Sons of Reaſon, who pretend not to dictate but demonſtrate out of Scripture the Sleep of the Soul; confidently ſuggeſting to the better gaining Proſelytes to their own, that the contrary Opinion is not Chriſtian but Heatheniſh, derived from the Philoſophy of Plato (which the Greek Fathers had imbibed) and thence introduced into the Church of Chriſt. To the Firſt of which I anſwer, That our Adverſaries Demonſtrations for the Sleep of the Soul are but their own Imaginations and Dreams upon the miſtaken Text. It is beſide my ſcope to inſiſt long on this matter: I ſhall only give you a taſt of the weakneſs of the reſt of their Arguments by propoſing and refuting of thoſe that ſeem the ſtrongeſt. Their main Proof is from the whole Tenor of the 15 of the 1 Cor. and more particularly from the 32 verſe; If after the manner of men I have fought with beaſts at Epheſus, what advantageth it me, if the dead riſe not? Hence they think may certainly be concluded, That the Soul before the Reſurrection of the Body has not the Perception or Enjoyment of any thing; otherwiſe the very Remembrance of thoſe ſufferings for Chriſt might be a ſolace for Paul when he was out of the Body.

3. But to anſwer this Difficulty with the fuller ſatisfaction, let us premiſe ſome few things to prepare the way to it: As firſt, That the Schemes of Speech in Prophets and Men inſpired are uſually ſuch as moſt powerfully ſtrike the Phanſie and moſt ſtrongly beat upon the Imagination, they deſcribing things in the moſt ſenſible, palpable and particular Repreſentations that can be. According to which Figure the general Reſurrection is ſet off by Mens awaking out of the Duſt of the Earth, and coming out of the Graves, when as yet many thouſands have wanted Burial, their Bones rotting on the ſurface of the Earth, and as many thouſands have had their intombment in the Waters.

4. Secondly, That the Holy Writers do not pen down their Conceptions in ſo ſtrict a Scholaſtick Method, that they keep preciſely and punctually to one Tittle; but by a free vibration of Phanſie give a touch here and a touch there, according as they were moved and actuated by that Spirit that exhibits more to their Minds at once than their Tongue has leiſure orderly and diſtinctly to utter; and are more earneſtly taken up in making good the main and moſt uſeful ſcope of their Diſcourſe, then to ſatisfie Mens Curioſities in particular Niceties.

5. Thirdly, That many Words in Scripture have a lax and ambiguous Senſe, and that therefore they are to be underſtood according as Circumſtances and Likelihood of Truth determine: and that theſe Terms ἀνάϛασις and ἔγερσις are of that nature; they ſometimes ſignifying the raiſing up again of a Body out of the Grave, ſometimes merely vivificating of the Body, or recovering a Perſon to life, other ſometimes ἀνάϛασις is the very ſame with the Jews תחיה as Grotius obſerves, which ſignifies nothing elſe but Eternal Life, or a Bleſſed Immortality. Others enlarge the Signification further, and make ἀνάϛασις and ἔγερσις the ſame that διατήρησις, Conſervation in Being: And Death ſeeming to us ſo dangerous a Paſſage, as if we were in hazard of either falling aſleep, or ſliding into a Non-ſubſiſtance, Divine Conſervation, becauſe we begin then a new ſtate of life, is not unfitly termed ἀνάϛασις, as giving us as it were a new Subſiſtance, ſetting us upon our Feet again; and ἔγερσις, as keeping us awake when we ſeemed in danger of letting go all functions of life. Which meaning of the Words a late Interpreter handſomely makes good, comparing ἐξήγειρά σε, Rom. 9. 17. with העמדתיך, Exod. 9. 16. which the Seventy render διετηρήθης. The manner of which διατήρησις or Conſervation is excellently ſet out by this word ἔγερσις, which may imply a kind of jogging or ſtirring up which is uſed to recover or prevent ones falling into a Swoon; and God is the grand Author of Life and Motion, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks.

6. Fourthly and Laſtly, That the Corinthians being a People given notoriouſly to the Pleaſures of the Fleſh, there is no Queſtion to be made but the Temptations of the Place had alſo drawn away ſome Members of the Church there at Corinth, and made them alſo Κοιμωμένους. Now there being nothing that does ſo much extinguiſh all Hopes and Apprehenſions of a Life to come as Carnal and Senſual Pleaſures; it is very likely that thoſe corrupted Members fell away in their own Judgments from the belief of any Reward after this Life, and ſo with Himeneus and Philetus, or with the David Georgians and our modern Nicolaitans, allegorized away the real meaning of the Reſurrection, or the Bleſſed Immortality into a mere moral Senſe, under pretence whereof they might oſtentate themſelves more Spiritual and knowing Chriſtians than the reſt; and yet with leſs fear and remorſe of Conſcience indulge to themſelves all looſeneſs and liberty of enjoying every tempting Pleaſure of this mortal Life.

7. Wherefore to the preſent Argument I anſwer in general out of this laſt and the foregoing Premiſs, That the purpoſe of the Apoſtle in this 15 to the Corinthians is to ſhew, That there is a Life after the Death of this Body, and a bleſſed Immortality to be expected. A palpable pledge whereof was God's raiſing of Chriſt's Body out of the Grave, and exhibiting him alive to his Diſciples. Which was a Sign very ſignificant and expreſſive of the thing; this Bleſſed Immortality mainly conſiſting in being clothed with thoſe Heavenly, Ethereal and Paradiſiacal Bodies which Chriſt will beſtow upon thoſe that belong to him at the laſt Day.

8. Out of the Firſt I anſwer, That though S. Paul ſpeak in ſuch a Phraſe as fixes our Imagination on the Earth only, as is plain from that compariſon of Seed ſown and rotting in the ground (for Men ſow not Seed upon the Water) yet in whatſoever Element the Souls or Bodies of the Saints be found, Earth, Water, or Air, nay though we ſhould grant with ſome, that ſundry Souls of holy Men act in Aiery vehicles in this interval betwixt their Death and the Day of Judgment; yet it is no more prejudice to them, then to thoſe that are found alive in the fleſh; For none are excluded from the enjoyment of their glorified Bodies.

9. Out of the Second and Third I anſwer, That S. Paul might vey well have Three conceptions vibrating in his mind, while he wrote concerning this Myſtery: The one more Simple and General, of the Life and Subſiſtency of the Soul out of this Earthly Body; the other more Special of a Bleſſed Immortality; and the Third moſt Determinate of all, which repreſented the manner of this Bleſſedneſs, in being inveſted with glorified Bodies. And out of this General I ſhall direct a more Particular anſwer to that of the 32 of this Chapter, where εἰ νεκροὶ οὐκ ἐγείρονται may be either interpreted, if the Souls of juſt men deceaſed obtain not their glorified or heavenly Bodies: (For though it were granted that they did in the mean time live and act in Aiery vehicles, yet that State of Region, as the Earth, being common to good and bad, they had yet obtained no peculiar reward for their hardſhip and toil here) Or elſe, which is the more ſafe ſenſe by far, it may be interpreted at large of the life and ſubſiſtency of the Soul after its departure, according to the laſt ſignification of ἔγερσις, in the third Premiſs. And thus is the ſtrength of the main proof of the Pſychopannychites utterly enervated.

10. But

10. But there are other places of Scripture which they miſapply to the ſame purpoſe, as the Anſwer of our Saviour to the Sadducees queſtion concerning the Reſurrection, I am the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob; God is not the God of the dead, but of the living. Hence our Adverſaries would conclude, That the Souls of the departed do not live; becauſe if they did, our Saviour's Argument would be invalid for the Reſurrection. For if Abraham's Spirit were now alive, God might be his God, though his Body never riſe. But this is eaſily ſatisfied out of the ſecond Premiſs: By Reſurrection there being underſtood a Life hereafter, and the Opinion of the Sadducees being, That there is neither Angel, nor Spirit, nor Life to come, he does not exactly tye himſelf to that particular circumſtance of a Bleſſed Immortality that conſiſts in the enjoyment of glorified Bodies; but anſwers more at large concerning the ſubſiſtence of Souls of men departed, that they are and live, and that therefore there are Spirits; and ſo handſomly confutes the whole Doctrine of the Sadducees by that citation out of their own Pentateuch, and a skilful application thereof.

CHAP. VII.

1. A General Anſwer to the laſt ſort of places they alledge that imply no enjoyment before the Reſurrection. 2. A Particular anſwer to that of 2 Cor. 5. out of Hugo Grotius. 3. A preparation to an anſwer of the Author's own, by explaining what the Greek word ἐπενδύσασθαι may ſignifie. 4. His Paraphraſe of the ſix firſt Verſes of the forecited Chapter. 5. A further confirmation of his Paraphraſe. 6. The weakneſs of the Reaſons of the Pſychopannychites noted.

1. THE third and laſt way of proving the Sleep of the Soul, is from ſuch paſſages in Scripture as ſeem to join the Hour of our Death immediately with the Day of our Reſurrection, as in 2 Cor. 5. where the Apoſtle ſeems to intimate that there does nothing intercede betwixt the ſolution of our Earthly Tabernacle, and being clothed with the Heavenly; which not being till the Day of Judgment, it is a ſign that the Soul is in no condition unleſs that of Sleep till then. So likewiſe in 2 Tim. Chap. 1. and Chap. 4. In the former he ſpeaks of his Depoſitum, which he entruſts God with till that Day, and prays that Oneſiphorus may find mercy at that Day: And in the latter he ſpeaks of a Crown of Righteouſneſs that the Lord the righteous Judge will give him at that Day, as if all were deferr'd till then. But in my conceit it is a weak kind of Argument, becauſe the Souls of the Saints receive not their great reward till the Day of Judgment, that therefore they receive nothing at all: Nay, that they are in a worſe ſtate than in this life, as having loſt all Senſe of Exiſtence or Being. Their opinion to me ſeems more tolerable then this, who, though they do not preſently mount them up in their Æthereal Chariots to Heaven, yet permit them to move and to act in their Aiereal Vehicles at a leſs diſtance from the Earth. But that laſt Day being a day of that high Solemnity, dreadful Glory and Majeſty, it is no wonder that for the better moving of the Minds of Men, he ſo often mentions that time without taking any notice of the interceeding Space: For thereby it alſo ſeems more nigh, as a diſtant Object does to the ſight, no viſible thing coming between.

Chap. 1. v. 12. Chap. 4. v. 8.

2. Now for the ſecond to the Cor. 5. Chap. there be two ways of clearing that difficulty there: The one of Hugo Grotius, in which a late learned Interpreter of our own does alſo inſiſt, expounding (as they may well) the third verſe (Εἴγε καὶ ἐνδυσάμενοι, οὐ γυμνοὶ εὑρεθησόμεθα) thus; If ſo be we ſhall be found in the number of thoſe that are ſtill clothed with theſe Earthly bodies, not ſtript naked of them by death. This Interpretation the word ἐπενδύσασθαι going afore makes ſtill the more warrantable; as alſo that following phraſe, ἵνα καταποθῇ τὸ θνητὸν, which is uſed by the Apoſtle in a parallel caſe. This Expoſition utterly deſtroys all the force of the Pſychopannychites Argument taken from this place: For whereas the Apoſtle ſeems to ſpeak as if immediately upon the ſolution of this Earthly, they were to be inveſted with a Heavenly Tabernacle, (which is mainly to be gathered out of the ſecond and fourth verſes) it is only upon the the ſuppoſition that the day of the Lord might come while they were yet clothed with fleſh.

3. But becauſe this Interpretation may ſeem to be ſomething derogatory to the Apoſtle's Knowledge, as if he were pendulous and uncertain whether the day of Judgment might not be in his time; which ſome men will not bear: I ſhall propound another, that they may take their choice. The former ſeems to have a ſpecial advantage in the proper ſenſe of thoſe two words, ἐνδύσασθαι and ἐπενδύσασθαι· and if we can but come off well here, we ſhall carry on the reſt hand-ſmooth. We premiſe therefore thus much concerning the meaning of thoſe two Words, That as δύσασθαι ſignifies ſimply to put on a garment, ſo ἐνδύσασθαι may well ſignifie to put on an inward garment. For ἐν will ſignifie within, in compoſition, as the Latin word In does in Inducula, Inducium, and Interula; all which ſignifie an inward Garment, and the two former they ordinarily derive from ἐνδύειν or ἐνδύσασθαι in this proper ſignification of the word. And as ἐνδύσασθαι may ſignifie to put on an inward Garment, ſo ἐπενδύσασθαι may ſignifie an addition of an inward garment to an outward, for ſo ἐπὶ will ſignifie in compoſition; as if the ſenſe were, ἐπιθεῖναι πρὸς τὸ ἐνδύσασθαι τὸ ἐπενδύσασθαι, not to be content to wear an upper garment only, but to put on alſo an inward; as we do in winter add an half ſhirt or a waſtcoat. Or if this look like too curious a Criticiſm, let ἐνδύσασθαι be the ſame with δύσασθαι, and ἐπενδύσασθαι the ſame that ἐπιδύσασθαι would be: which would ſignifie then at large only the adding of further clothing, whether within or without, but is to be expounded as circumſtances require.

4. Being thus fitted for the purpoſe, we ſhall now briefly paraphraſe the ſix firſt verſes of the 15. chap. Which they alledge againſt us, thus;

1. For we know that if this Earthly and Mortal Body of ours were deſtroyed, that yet we have an Heavenly one, whoſe Author and Maker is God.

2. And for this cauſe is it that we groan ſo earneſtly to be clothed alſo with our Heavenly Body within this Earthly:

3. Becauſe we being thus clothed, when we put off our Earthly Body, we ſhall not be found naked, nor our Souls left to float in the crude Air.

4. For we that are in theſe Earthly Bodies groan earneſtly being burdened, not as if we had a deſire to be ſtript naked of all Corporeity, or that we ſhould be preſently rid of theſe Earthly Bodies before God ſee fit; but that we may have a more Heavenly and Spiritual clothing within, that mortality may be ſwallowed up of life.

5. Nor do we arrive to this pitch by our own power, but it is God who works upon us (as I ſaid) both Body and Soul, and frames us into this condition by the operation of his holy Spirit, which he has given as a pledge of our Eternal Happineſs.

6. And therefore we are always of a good courage, not diſcontented at any thing. For whether we be in this earthly Body, it is tollerable, as being our uſual and natural home; or whether we go out of it, which is moſt deſirable, we ſhall then go to the Lord, our inward man being ſo fitly clad for the Journey.

5. That this is the genuine ſenſe of theſe verſes, the 16 verſe of the Chapter immediately going before will further confirm, where the Apoſtle ſaith, That though his outward man periſh, yet his inward man is renewed day by day; which is, Though his Earthly Body be in a periſhing and decaying condition, yet his Spiritual and Heavenly gets ſtrength, and flouriſheth every day more and more. Now the Reſurrection and Attainment of the Heavenly Body being all one, it were worth the while to enquire into the meaning of the Apoſtle, Philipp. 3. v. 11. where he profeſſes his unwearied Endeavours to attain to the Reſurrection of the dead: where preſently it follows, Not as if I had already attained it, or as if I were already perfected. For if he meant not this Inward Spiritual Body inveloped in the Earthly, he need not tell the Philippians that he had not yet attain'd it. But the Point in hand is ſufficiently plain already.

6. We have ſeen what weak Demonſtrators the Pſychopannychites are againſt the Life and Operation of Souls out of the Body, in their appeals to Scripture: We ſhall now ſee how improbable their aſperſion is of the Opinion being a Pagan or Heatheniſh Invention, derived, as they ſay, merely from the School of Pythagoras and Plato, and from thence introduced into the Church.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

1. That the Opinion of the Soul's living and acting immediately after Death, was not fetched out of Plato by the Fathers, becauſe they left out Preexiſtence, an Opinion very rational in it ſelf. 2. And ſuch as ſeems plauſible from ſundry places of Scripture, as thoſe alledged by Menaſſeh Ben Iſrael out of Deuteronomy, Jeremy, and Job. 3. As alſo God's reſiſting on the ſeventh Day. 4. That their proclivity to think that the Angel that appeared to the Patriarchs ſo often was Chriſt, might have been a further inducement. 5. Other places of the New Teſtament which ſeem to imply the Preexiſtence of Chriſt's Soul. 6. More of the ſame kind out of S. John. 7. Force added to the laſt proofs from the Opinion of the Socinians. 8. That our Saviour did admit, or at leaſt not diſapprove the Opinion of Preexiſtence. 9. The main ſcope intended from the preceeding Allegations, namely, That the Soul's living and acting after Death is no Pagan Opinion out of Plato, but a Chriſtian Truth evidenced out of the Scriptures.

1. AND I think it is not hard for a Man to prove that this ſiniſter conceit of theirs is almoſt impoſſible to be true. For if the ancient Fathers, by virtue of their converſing ſo much with Plato's Writings, had brought this Opinion, of the Souls living and ſubſiſting after Death, into the Chriſtian Religion, they could by no means have omitted the Preexiſtence of it afore, which is ſo explicite and frequent a Doctrine of the Platoniſts; eſpecially that Tenet being a Key for ſome main Myſteries of Providence which no other can ſo handſomly unlock, and having ſo plauſible Reaſons for it, and nothing conſiderable to be alledged againſt it. For is it not plain that the Soul, being an Indiviſible and Immaterial Subſtance, cannot be generated? Now if it be created by God at every effectual Act of Venery, (beſides that in general, it is harſh that God ſhould precipitate immaculate Souls into defiled Bodies) it ſeems abominable that by ſo ſpecial an Act of his as Creation, he ſhould be thought to aſſiſt Adultery, Inceſt and Buggery. Of this ſee more at large in my Treatiſe Of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 2. chap. 12, and 13.

But they'll ſtill urge, That it was not the Unreaſonableneſs of the Opinion, but the Uncompliableneſs of it with Scripture, that made them forgoe the Preexiſtency of the Soul, though they retained her Subſiſtency, Life and Activity after Death.

2. But it had aſſuredly been no hard matter for them to have made their Cauſe plauſible even out of Scripture it ſelf. The Jews would have contributed ſomething out of the Old Teſtament. Menaſſeh Ben Iſrael cites ſeveral places to this purpoſe, as Deuteronomy 29. 14, 15. inſinuating there, that God making his Covenant with the Abſent and the Preſent, that the Souls of the Poſterity of the Jews were then in Being, tho' not there preſent at the Publication of the Law: for the diviſion of the Covenanters into Abſent and Preſent naturally implies that they both are, though ſome here, ſome in other places. This Text is ſeriouſly alledged by the generality of the Jews for the προϋπαρξις of Souls, as Grotius has noted upon the place: Alſo Jeremy 1. verſe 5. The forenamed Rabbi renders it, Antequam formaſſem te in ventre, indidi tibi ſapientiam, reading ידעתיך in Piel, not in Cal. Before I formed thee in the Belly, I had made thee of a wiſe Ingenie, fitted thee to all holy Knowledge, &c. We will add a third place, Job 38. He renders it, Noſti te jam tum natum fuiſſe? Knoweſt thou that thou waſt then born, and that the number of thy days are many? Then, viz. from the beginning of the Creation, or when the Light was made (a ſymbol of Intellectual or Immaterial Beings. The Seventy alſo plainly render it to that ſenſe, Οἶδα ἄρα ὅτι τότε γεγένησαι, ἀριθμὸς δὲ ἐτῶν σε πολύς, I know that thou waſt formed then, and that the number of thy Years are many. The Author of the Book of Wiſdome (who though he be not Canonical, yet is acknowledged a very venerable Writer) ſpeaks out plainly concerning the Soul of Solomon, chap. 8. v. 19, 20. For I was a witty child, and had a good Spirit: Yea, rather being good, I came into a body undefiled. Job 38.19,21.

3. Beſides, they might have alledged how inconſiſtent the daily Creation of Souls is with God's reſting on the Seventh Day, as having then finiſhed the whole work of his Creation.

4. Moreover, their Inclination to think that in ſundry of thoſe Apparitions of Angels to the ancient Patriarchs, it was Chriſt himſelf that appeared, would further have enticed them to retain this Doctrine of Preexiſtence of Souls, that that opinion of Christ's appearing then might be more entire and determinate; as it would be also in those that hold Melchisedec that blessed Abraham to have been Christ: which opinion Cunæus looks upon as true; nor can Calvin look upon it as strange, if he do but hold to his own Words in his readings upon Daniel, In eo nihil est absurdi, quòd Christus aliquam speciem humanæ naturæ exhiberet antequam manifestatus esset in carne. And that the Angel that led the Israelites into the land of Canaan was Christ, seems plainly asserted 1 Cor. chap. 10. v. 9. Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them tempted him, and perished by Serpents. But Christ is a complexion of the Humane Nature with the Divine. Consider also Heb. 11. 26. which seems to imply that the Soul of the Messias was a Patron and Protector of the Holy seed betimes, and had a special Relation to the Jews above any other Nation. And therefore when he came into the World, (i.e. was born, brought up, and conversed among the Jews,) he might the more properly be said to come to his own, though his own knew him not, John 1. 11.

Chriſt's

And verily that the Soul of the Messiah was in Being before he took upon him our Flesh, the most easie and natural meaning of 1 John 4. 2. seems also to import, Πᾶν πνεῦμα ὃ ὁμολογεῖ Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν ἐν σαρκὶ ἐληλυθότα, ἐκ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐστιν. Here St. John seems to cabbalize, as in several places of the Apocalypse, that is, to speak in the Language of the Learned of the Jews: For the genuine Sense is, He that confesses that Jesus is the Messiah come into the Flesh, or into a Terrestrial Body, is of God: Which implies that he was, before he came into it. Which is the Doctrine of the Jews, and expressed so exactly according to their Sense, that themselves could not have uttered it more naturally and significantly, and therefore, might they say, it is unnatural and violent to put any other meaning upon it.

5. Again, He being happily (before the Generation of Men and the peopling of the Earth) the Messiah Elect, (as I may so speak) united also with the Λόγος and resplendent with Celestial Glory and Beauty amongst the Angels in Heaven; this Hypothesis will give a very easie and natural Sense to sundry Places of the New Testament that otherwise seem very obscure. As that of Philipp. 2. 6, 7, 8. For it has racked many Mens minds to conceive how an Exinanition of himself can belong to the Eternal and Immutable God by becoming Man; which the Text seems to point at. But it may very properly belong to the Soul of the Messiah, who was yet truly God by a Physical Union with the Godhead. So likewise John 17. 4, 5. I have glorified thee upon earth, for which purpose I was sent down thither. And now, Father, bring me up back again to thy self, that I may again enjoy that Glory which I had with thee in the Heavens, before the World and Generations of Men were. This is the easie meaning of those two Verses: For that this is to be understood of the Humanity of Christ, Grotius is so confident, that he is fain to turn ἣν εἶχον πρὸ τοῦ κόσμου εἶναι, which I was to have, or which I was designed to have, before the World was. But this present Gloss needs no such Distortion or force done to Words, but is very natural and genuine.

6. Again, John 6. 38. I came down from Heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me: and chap. 3. 31. He that comes from Heaven is above all: and yet clearer, chap. 16. 28. I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world; again I leave the world, and go to the Father. But cleerest of all, chap. 3. 13. where speaking of his Ascension (and that was Local) he mentions also his Descension, which it is most natural to understand in the same Sense. No man hath ascended up to Heaven, but he that came down from Heaven, even the Son of Man who is in Heaven; i. e. whose mind and conversation is there, though his Personal and visible presence be here on Earth, as Grotius also interpreteth these last Words. To all which you may add, John 6. 26. What if you shall see the Son of Man ascend where he was before?

7. These Scriptures which we have cited bear so strong towards a Local descending from, as well as ascending up to Heaven, that some have thought that Christ was, besides his Ascension after his Resurrection, bodily taken up into Heaven, and that he there received Instructions from God, and was then sent down to publish the Gospel. But certainly so notable a Transaction of Christ then in the Flesh would never have been omitted by the other three Evangelists, nor so slightly and obscurely intimated by this.

8. But this Evangelist flying higher then to be kept within the compass of the time since his Incarnation, it had been very easie for the Fathers to have pleaded for the Preexistence and Descent of the Soul of the Messiah from Heaven into an Earthly Body from those Passages of Scripture which we have quoted. And to make all sure, they might have further alledged for this Opinion of the Soul's Preexistence, that it was at least unreproved, if not approved of by our Saviour himself: as appears out of of John 9. where he being asked by his Disciples, whether it was the blind Man's own fault, or his Parents, that he was born blind (which Question plainly implies a Pre-existence before this Life) he seems to admit, it is certain he does not reprehend, the Hypothesis: No more than he does, Mark 8. 27, 28. or Matthew 16. 14. where his Disciples telling him, that some took him for Elias, others for Jeremias, or for some one of the old Prophets or other; he there again admits, or not gainsaies the opinion of the Jews concerning the Pre-existence or Transmigration of Souls, (as Grotius himself acknowledges that of Jeremy to be referred ad παλιγγενεσίαν,) but passes to a questioning of them, whom they thought him to be.

9. I conclude therefore, there being such plausible Pretensions to prove the Pre-existence of Souls, not only out of Reason but Scripture it self, if the Fathers had been imbued with that Heathenish and Pagan Opinion (as our Adversaries term it) of the Soul's being able to act after the Death of the Body, from the Philosophy of Plato, it had been even impossible for them to forgoe the latter part concerning the Pre-existent Life of the Soul before she comes into these Bodies; which is the thing I have all this while driven at.

CHAP. IX.

1. Proofs out of Scripture, That the Soul does not sleep after Death: as 1 Peter 3. with the Explication thereof. 2. The Author's Paraphrase compared with Calvin's Interpretation. 3. That Calvin needed not to suppose the Apostle to have writ false Greek. 4. Two ways of interpreting the Apostle, so as both Grammatical Solœcism and Purgatory may be declined. 5. The second way of Interpretation. 6. A second Proof out of Scripture. 7. A third of like nature with the former. 8. A further Enforcement and Explication thereof. 9. A fourth Place. 10. A fifth from Heb. 12. where God is called the Father of Spirits, &c. 11. A sixth Testimony from our Saviour's Words, Matth. 20. 28.

1. BUT that this so Useful and Comfortable a Doctrine of the Soul's living and subsisting after the Shipwrack of this Body may be firmly established, I shall further add what plain Evidences there are in Scripture for the Proof thereof: (For as for those of Reason, I shall refer you again to my above-named Treatise, Book 2. ch. 16. 17, and 18.)

And I conceive that of 1 Pet. 3. v. 18, 19, 20. is none of the meanest, if Prejudice and Violence wrest it not out of its genuin Sense, which any Man may easily apprehend to be this; For Christ also has once suffered for Sins, the just for the unjust, (that he might bring us to God,) being put to Death as to his Body or Flesh, but yet safe and alive as to his Soul and Spirit. By which also he went and preached unto the separated Souls and Spirits in Prison, which sometimes were disobedient, viz. in the Days of Noe.

2. That solid Interpreter of Scripture John Calvin expounds it in the main according to this Paraphrase; only for being alive as to his Soul or Spirit, he reads it, vivificatus Spiritu, meaning by Spirit the Spirit of God. But it is plain that the Antithesis is more patt and punctual as we have rendred it, and ζωοποιεῖσθαι is as warrantably interpreted to be alive as to be made alive: as σεμνοποιεῖσθαι is to be grave, not to be made grave. Beside, ζωοποιέω as well as ζωογονέω in the Greek Septuagint signifies not only to revive one dead, but to save alive, according to which Sense we have translated ζωοποιηθείς.

There is also another slight difference betwixt us, in that he had rather have φυλακὴ translated a Watch-tower than a Prison: Which we should easily admit, who alledge this place against the Sleep of the Soul; but he acknowledging also that the other Sense is good, we have not varied from the common Translation. The greatest discrepancy is, that he conceives that ἀπειθήσαν is put for ἀπειθούντων, a Dative for a Genitive Absolute: but I leave him there to compound that Controversie with the Grammarians. The truth is, the learned and pious Interpreter thought it more tolerable to admit that the Apostle writ false Syntax than unsound Doctrine; the fond Opinion of the Papistical Purgatory being a worse Solœcism in Religion, than to Latinize in Greek, or put a false Case, is in Grammar.

3. But this being too loose a Principle, and wholly unsatisfactory to our Adversaries, to phansie the Holy Writers to solœcize in their Language, when we do not like the Sense; he had better have taken some other course more allowable to save us from the peril of Purgatory: and in my Judgment there are two, either of which will suffice to fence us from the Assaults of the Romanists.

4. The first is, By observing a latitude of Sense in the word ἀπειθῆσαι. For, as Aristotle notes in his Metaphys. lib. 4. cap. 12. the particle α in composition does not only signify perfect Privation, but also παραυλως ἔχειν, ἢ τὸ μικρὸν· from whence we may well translate ἀπειθήσασι ποτε, who in times past were not so obedient or so believing as they should be; and who were so bad, that they might be punished in their Bodies and perish in the Deluge, but yet so good, that at length they must attain to an higher Degree of eternal Life by Christ's preaching to the Dead, as is also intimated in the following Chapter of this Epistle, ver. 6. Wherefore acknowledging but two States, viz. of either Hell or Paradise, we say, that these, ἀπειθήσαντες were in the very lowest Degree of Paradise, in which they were kept as in an inferior Mansion, which was as a kind of Prison or close Custody unto them, (their Desires aspiring higher,) till there was made a great Accession unto their happiness upon Christ's appearing and preaching unto them. And this is the very Sense that Calvin aims at in his Commentary upon this place.

5. But there is yet another Interpretation, which we will propound in the second place, as free from the fear of any Purgatory as the former, and requires no immutation at all in our foregoing Paraphrase. We'll admit therefore that these Disobedient Souls were in Hell, not in the lowest Region, but in the more tolerable Parts thereof: It does not at all from hence follow, because Christ in his Spirit exhibited himself to these, preached to them, and prepared them by the glad tidings of the Gospel, and after carried them to Heaven with him in Triumph as a glorious Spoil taken out of the Jaws of the Devil, that there is any Redemption out of Hell now, much less any Purgatory. For there were two notable Occasions for this, such as will never happen again: For it respects the Souls of them that were suddenly swept away in the Deluge, and the Solemnity of our Saviour's Crucifixion and Ascension; He even in the midst of Death undermining the Prince of Death, and at his Ascension victoriously carrying away these First-fruits of his Suffering, and presenting them to his Father in the highest Heaven. But to expect from this, that there should be still continued a daily or yearly Releasement out of Hell or Purgatory, is as groundlessly concluded, as if, because at the solemn Coronation of some great Prince, all the Prison-doors in some City were flung open, Malefactors should infer, that they will ever stand open all his whole Reign.

Thus we see how safe also the easy and obvious Sense of this place is; which I thought fit to rescue from the torture of other more learned and curious Expositors, that it might be able to give its free suffrage for the Confirmation of a Point so useful as this we have in hand. For it is plain that if Christ preached to the Dead, they were not asleep at so concerning a Sermon.

6. Again, 2 Cor. 5. v. 8. We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the Body, and to be present with the Lord. Here ἐνδημῆσαι ἐκ τοῦ σώματος plainly intimates a going out of this mortal Body, not a change of it into an Immortal one: therefore we may safely conclude that this Courage and Willingness of the Apostle to die, implies an Enjoyment of the presence of Christ after Death before the general Resurrection: Else why should he rather desire to die than to live, but that he expects that Faith should be presently perfected by Sight, as he insinuates in the foregoing Verse? But assuredly better is that Enjoyment which is only by Faith, than to have no Enjoyment at all; as it must be if the Soul cannot operate out of this Body.

7. A like Proof to this and further Confirmation of the Truth is that of Philipp. 1. 21, 22, 23, 24. where the Apostle again professing his Courage and Forwardness to magnifie Christ in his Body, whether by Life or by Death, uses the like Argument as before; For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. But if I live in the Flesh, it will be worth my Labour; yet what I should chuse I wot not. For I am in a Strife betwixt two, having a desire to depart and to be with Christ; which is far better: Nevertheless, to abide in the Flesh is more needful for you.

8. The

8. The genuine Sense of which Place is questionless this; That while he lived, his life was like Christ's upon Earth, innocent, but encumbred with much hardship and affliction, bearing about in his Body the Marks of the Lord Jesus; but if he died, he should then once for all seal to the Truth of his Martyrdom, and not only escape all future Troubles (which yet the love of Christ, his Assistance, and hope of Reward, did ever sustain him in) but, which was his great Gain and Advantage, arrive to an higher Fruition of him after whom he had so longing a desire. But if to be with Christ, were to sleep in his Bosom, and not so much as to be sensible he is there; it were impossible the Apostle's affections should be carried so strongly to that state, or his judgment should determine it πολλῷ μᾶλλον κρεῖττον so exceedingly much better; especially his stay in the Flesh being so necessary to the Philippians and the rest of the Church, and what he suffered and might further suffer in his Life, no less a Testimony to the Truth, then Death it self.

9. Fourthly, Those phrases of St. Peter, 2 Pet. 1. 13. Yea I think it meet, so long as I am in this Tabernacle, to stir you up and put you in remembrance: Knowing that I must shortly put off this Tabernacle, &c. And so vers. 15. μετὰ τὴν ἐμὴν ἔξοδον, in all likelihood alludes to the same; as if his Soul went out of the Body as out of a Tabernacle. All these Phrases, I say, seem to me manifestly to indicate that there is no such necessary Union betwixt the Soul and the Body, but she may act as freely out of it as in it; as Men are nothing the more dull, sleepy or senseless by putting off their Cloaths, and going out of the House, but rather more awakened, active and sensible.

10. Fifthly, Heb. 12. There God is called the Father of Spirits, the Corrector and Chastiser of our Souls, in contradistinction to our Flesh or Bodies: and then vers. 22. lifting us up quite above the consideration of our corporal Condition, he brings us to the Mystical mount Sion, the City of the living God, the Heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable Company of Angels, to the universal Assembly, and Church of the First-born which are inrolled in Heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the Spirits of just Men made perfect. Now I demand what Perfection can be in the Spirits of these just Men to be overwhelmed in a senseless Sleep: or what a disproportionable and unsuitable Representation is it of this throng Theatre in Heaven, made up of Saints and Angels, that so great a part of them as the Souls of the holy Men deceased, should be found drooping or quite drown'd in an unactive Lethargy? Certainly as it is incongruous in it self, so it is altogether inconsistent with the magnificency of the Representation which this Author intends in this place. Heb. 12. 9.

11. Sixthly, Matth. 10. 28. The life of the Soul separate from the Body is there plainly asserted by our Saviour. Fear not them that kill the Body, but are not able to kill the Soul; but rather fear him who is able to destroy both Body and Soul in Hell; i. e. able, if he will, to destroy the Life both of Body and Soul in Hell-fire, according to the conceit of those whose Opinions I have recited in my Treatise Of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 3. chap. 18. or else miserably to punish or afflict both Body and Soul in Hell, the Torments whereof are worse than Death it self. For as ἀπολέσθαι and perire signify to be excessively miserable, so ἀπολέσαι and perdere may very well signifie to make excessively Miserable. But now for the former part of the verse [but are not able to kill the Soul] it is evident that they were able, if the Soul could not live separate from the Body. For killing of the Body, what is it but depriving it of Life? wherefore if the Soul by the Death of the Body be also deprived of Life, it is manifest that she can be killed; which is contrary to our Saviour's Assertion.

CHAP. X.

1. A pregnant Argument from the State of the Soul of Christ and of the Thief after Death. 2. Grotius his Explication of Christ's Promise to the Thief. 3. The meaning of καταβῆναι εἰς ᾅδου. 4. How Christ with the Thief could be ἐν ᾅδου and in Paradise at once. 5. That the Parables of Dives and Lazarus and of the unjust Steward imply, That the Soul hath Life and Sense immediately after Death.

1. WE have yet one more notable Testimony against our Adversaries. Our Saviour Christ's Soul and the Thief's upon the Cross did subsist and live immediately upon the Death of the Body, as appears from Luke 23. 42, 43. And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy Kingdom. And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, This Day shalt thou be with me in Paradise: As if he should thus answer, Thou indeed beggest of me that I would be mindful of thee when I come into my Kingdom, but I will not defer thee so long; only distrust not the unexpected Riches of my Goodness to thee: For verily I say unto thee, That this very Day shalt thou be with me in Paradise. And there is no evasion from this Interpretation, the Syriack, as Grotius noteth, interpointing betwixt [I say unto thee] and [To Day,] and all the Greek Copies, as Beza affirms, joyning σήμερον with ἔσῃ, one of them also having ὅτι betwixt λέγω σοι and σήμερον· so that all subterfuge is quite taken away.

2. Grotius his Commentary upon this place is very ingenious, wherein he supposes Christ to speak to the Thief, being a Jew, according to the Doctrine of the Hebrews, who called the state of the piously deceased גן עדן the Garden of Pleasure or Paradise: where though they enjoyed not that consummate Happiness which they were in expectation of at the Resurrection, yet they were at the present in a great deal of Joy and Pleasure; so much indeed that they held none to arrive to it after their Death but such as had their Souls well purified before they departed their Bodies: whom he parallels to * πνεύματα δικαίων τετελειωμένων above-mentioned out of the Author to the Hebrews, chap. 12. and therefore there was great cause, saith he, that our Saviour said, This Day, thereby signifying that he should not be any longer deferred, according to the Doctrine of their Rabbins, notwithstanding the vainness of his Life, but upon this his Repentance should immediately be with Christ in Paradise, even that very Day he spoke unto him.

* The Spirits of just Men made perfect.

3. Nor need we with St. Austin sweat much in labouring to make that Article of the Apostles Creed, * κατέβη εἰς ᾅδου, agree with his being in Paradise in the Interval betwixt his Death and Resurrection. For * ᾅδης in general, as this Expositor makes good, signifies nothing else but the invisible State of Souls separate from the Body: nor does * κατέβη restrain it to a descent into Hell. For as for this phrase, * καταβαίνειν εἰς ᾅδου, because it is spoken of the whole Person of Christ, as it is also of others that enter into the state of the Dead; by the Defixion of our Phansy upon what is most gross and sensible, viz. the going down of the Body into the Grave, we are easily drawn to make use of it to express the whole Business both of the Body's and the Soul's receeding from amongst the number of the living: as Jacob does, Genes. 37. 35. * ὅτι καταβήσομαι πρὸς τὸν υἱόν μου πενθῶν εἰς ᾅδου· when notwithstanding his Son was not buried, but torn in pieces with wild Beasts, as he thought. Wherefore the Sense is, my Body descending into the Grave, with my Soul shall I go unto my Son into the Region of the Dead.

* He descended into Hell.
* Hades, ordinarily translated Hell.
* He descended.
* To descend into Hell.
* For I will go down into the grave to my Son, mourning.

4. Again, Though καταβαίνειν usually signifies to descend or go downwards, yet it signifies sometimes merely to vanish or go out of sight; and very often, as in other words, so in this, יָרַד has no signification at all, but καταβαίνειν is all one with βαίνειν to go: of which it were easie to give plenty of Examples out of the Septuagint, but that I account it needless. Wherefore κατέβη εἰς ᾅδου may very well be rendred, not that he descended into Hell, but that he went into the Region of Souls separate, or of the Spirits of Men departed this Life. And that ᾅδης bears this General Sense, Grotius makes good not only from the forecited place of Genesis, but from the use of the word in sundry Greek Authors, as Diphilus, Sophocles, Diodorus Siculus, Josephus, Plato and others. That of Plutarch is very remarkable, where he expounds that Verse of Homer,

Ψυχὴ δ' ἐκ ῥεθέων πταμένη ἀϊδόσ δ βεβήκει.

*"Αιδός ὃ, that is, ſaith he, † εἰς τ' ἀειδὲ χὴ ἀόρατον, ἔ τε ἀέρα δεῖν τις ἔ τε ὑπόγειον, τόπον. And the ſame Author elſewhere, * Τὸ ἀειδὲς χὴ ἄχρωτον τὸ αἰέρος ᾅδης ὑπέκλησιν ἔχειν· intimating that the Air is that Inviſible Region of the Dead, into which the Spirits of dying Men depart. And it is confeſſed of all ſides, that whereas thoſe other Elements, Fire, Water, Earth are viſible, that the Air and Æther are utterly inviſible; and therefore † ᾅδης may very well contain in it both Hell and Paradiſe. Whence it is plain, that Chriſt might be at the ſame time both ἐν ᾅδῃ and in Paradiſe, as a Man may be both in England and in London at once. And his Promiſe to the Thief of the immediate Enjoyment of that Bliſs, was as it were a Proclamation from the Croſs to all the World, That the Souls of Men live and ſubſiſt out of their Bodies. Which he further demonſtrated by reaſſuming his own, and aſcending with it up to Heaven in the ſight of his Diſciples.

* To Hell, or Hades.

† Into an obſcure and inviſible, whether the air or ſome ſubterraneous place.

* The inviſibility and uncolouredneſs of the air is called Hades or Hell.

† Hades.

5. Which Truth he ſeems to me alſo plainly to ſuppoſe in the Parable of Dives and Lazarus, as alſo of the Unjuſt Steward. For Dives his deſiring Abraham to ſend Lazarus to his Brethren, to inform them of his ſad Condition, in what Trouble and Torment he was, does manifeſtly imply, That the Souls of the Wicked are in Torment and in Trouble before the Day of Judgment, yea, immediately upon their Death; and that the Souls of the Godly are forthwith in Joy after their departure out of this Life: as is intimated by the Tranſportation of Lazarus his Soul into Abraham's Boſom, and our Saviour's Application of the Parable of the Steward, exhorting us to be liberal of theſe worldly Goods, that when this Life and the Pleaſures thereof fail, we may be receiv'd into Joy everlaſting.

But we need not inſiſt upon what is more obnoxious to the Cavils and Evaſions of our ſlippery Adverſaries, we having produced already ſo many and unexceptionable Teſtimonies of Scripture for the Confirmation of the preſent Truth, viz. That it is no Paganiſm, but ſound and warrantable Chriſtianity, to aſſert, That the Souls of the deceaſed do not ſleep, but do live, underſtand and perceive what condition they are in after death, be it good or evil.

BOOK

BOOK II.

CHAP. I.

1. He passes to the more intelligible Parts of Christianity; for the understanding whereof certain preparative Propositions are to be laid down. 2. As, That there is a God. 3. A brief Account of the Assertion from his Idea. 4. A further Confirmation from its ordinary Concatenation with the rational Account of all other Beings, as first of the Existence of the disjoynt and independent Particles of Matter.

1. WE have at length passed through the most dark and doubtful part of our journey, and have given what Account we were able of the most Obscure and Abstruse points in Christianity: We begin now to enter into a more lightsome Region and easier Prospect of Truth, the Day breaking upon us, and the morning-light tinging the tops of the Mountains; from whence we are ascertain'd of a further and a more full discovery of that Grand Mystery we seek after; which the Spirit of God in the plain Records of Scripture will afterward so ratifie and confirm, that to those that have a Judgment to discern, it will be secured from all future Controversie. But in the mean time we are to contemplate the Reasonableness and Intelligibleness thereof from some chief Heads or eminent and known Aphorisms in Philosophy and free Reason, which will no less gratifie our Understanding in this present pursuit after Truth, then the pleasant Reflections of the Sun's Beams from the tops of the Hills do the Eye of the early Traveller. But we shall only rehearse, not insist much upon the Proof of these Conclusions, they being either so fully and irrefutably demonstrated in other Writings, (See my Treatise Of the Immortality of the Soul, and my Antidote against Atheism) or else of that Evidency in themselves, that they want nothing but simple perception for their Demonstration.

2. The First and Chiefest is, The Existence of God; that is, of a Being both infinitely Wise, Good and Powerful. Which, it is manifest, cannot be Matter or Body, grind it as thin as you will in your Imagination; and therefore he must be a Spirit, Omnipresent, pervading and penetrating all things. Which Conclusion is so agreeable to the Natural Faculties of our Mind, if we were once acquainted with them, (For some Men are become even Strangers to the better part of themselves) that any thing contrary or on this side of this Position will certainly lie very unevenly and untowardly in our Conception.

3. For whereas it is impossible but Something must be of it self; Is it not far more congruous to our Reason, that that be of itself whose very Nature and Idea importeth so much, then that not only this should not be at all, but also some other thing should be of itself, whose nature imports no such matter? Wherefore it is most easie and most suitable to the Dictates of our own Faculties to admit the Existence of God. From whence we are enabled to give a rational Account of the most considerable Objects that fall under our Contemplation. For if any Man will dare to assert, That Matter exists of it self, his Assertion is at random, nor can he render any Reason for it, there being no such thing contained in the Idea thereof. But if he asserts God to exist, and any should further demand How it comes to pass, the very Idea of God represents his Nature to be such, that he cannot fail to be. For the Idea of the most Absolute and perfect Essence cannot but represent it to our minds to be such as has the most Absolute and Perfect relation to Existence. From whence it follows, if we believe our own Faculties, That he does exist. Otherwise, when our Faculties tell us, that Necessary Existence belongs to him, we shall notwithstanding affirm, that it does not belong unto him, (as certainly it does not, if he exist not at all;) which is a palpable Contradiction.

4. But what a madness were it in a Man to deny the free Dictates of his own Reason in a Point not only so plain in itself, but so serviceable and delightful in the Contemplation of the Works of Nature and that Corporal Matter of which they are made? For as for the Existence of the very Substance of Matter, we cannot be at a loss in the search of the Cause thereof, though it contain no reason of its Existence in its Idea. For tho' every part thereof be independent of the rest and separable, and therefore there might have have been a Want of Matter in the World, or it may be an Overplus; yet neither of these have fallen out: but how Matter came to be produced such, and so much, as it is, we have already found out a true and sufficient Cause, an Omnipotent Deity, that can perform any thing that implies no Contradiction; and such is the Production or Emission of Matter into Being.

CHAP. II.

1. That the wise Contrivances in the Works of Nature prove the Being of a God. 2. And have extorted an Acknowledgment of a General Providence, even from irreligious Naturalists. 3. That there is a particular Providence or Inspection of God upon every individual Person: Which is his Second Assertion.

BUT we proceed to that which is most curious and admirable, namely, The Contrivance of this Matter into such various forms of living Creatures, wherein there is such excellent and accurate Wisdome and Skill discovered, that it is utterly impossible that the mere Motion of the Matter should ever reduce it, without an Intellectual Guide, into such perfect Form and Order. But to call the First Cause of all this, Nature rather than God, is to talk either very ignorantly or very humorsomely. For if they make Nature a blind and unknowing Principle, how can she keep so constant a tenor of such cunning Artifice in all kinds of living Creatures? But if they will admit in her Knowledge and Skill, it is then a frivolous and an humorsome Controversie, whether the First Principle of all things should be deemed a God or a Goddess, and be called Deus or Natura. But they that are not wilfully ignorant, may understand That there is That Order and Contrivance in the works of Nature, that the first Original cannot but be Intellectual or Rational; and That all things are ordered for the best purpose and greatest happiness of the Creation. So that what we find in the Idea of God, that is, Infinite Wisdom and Goodness, we find also reflected from the Objects of Nature, and can thence with a great deal of the highest Devotion and Pleasure, both further confirm that Innate Notion we have of God, and ease our Minds in resting in so full and sufficient a Cause of those exquisitely-framed Phænomena that daily appear unto us in the World.

2. And verily the Species of things are so excellently-well provided for, that it has extorted an Acknowledgment of a General Providence even from such Men, as if their Intellectuals would have permitted them, their Morals would scarcely have upheld them from sinking into the dullest Degree of Atheism. But seeing things so framed in Nature as they are, they could not but affirm, That they came from an Intellectual Principle, which is God; allowing him an ineffable Happiness in contemplating of Himself and His own Wisdom in forming of the World and the various Kinds of Creatures therein; but phansying him withal so fatally affixed to his own Seat, that he cannot bow himself to look so low as to take notice of any particular or personal Carriages of Men, nor stretch forth his Arm either to reward or punish them. An Opinion that seems either to arise out of a desperate Inability of giving a Reason of sundry Accidents that happen to particular Creatures in the World, or else out of a tender Regard to their own Interest; they being afraid of any other God than such as they have promised themselves will act nothing above or contrary to the ordinary and known Course of Nature, which, as they think, is a very certain Assurance of future Impunity.

3. But to me it seems impossible that so excellent a Being as the Deity is, should be ignorant of any thing that implies no Contradiction to be known. And therefore our Second Assertion shall be, That there is a very exquisite particular Providence reaching to every Individual Thing or Person in the World: It being as easie for God to see all things, as to see any one thing; his Perception being Infinite, and therefore Undistractable and Indefatigable. Now his Goodness and Power being no less immense, it will necessarily follow, That there is not any thing that befalls the meanest Creature in the whole Creation, but that it was suitable to the Goodness of God either to cause it or permit it. For though it may seem at the present harsh to that particular Being, yet at the length it may prove for its greater Advantage; at least it may be deemed good for the Universe;

verſe, as Marcus Aurelius ſolidly and judiciouſly ever and anon does ſuggeſt: and I think he is but a ſhallow Philoſopher that cannot maintain this Cauſe againſt all Atheiſtical Surmiſes and Cavils whatſoever.

CHAP. III.

1. His Third Aſſertion, That there are particular Spirits or Immaterial Subſtances, and of their Kinds. 2. The Proof of their Exiſtence, and eſpecially of theirs, which in a more large Senſe be called Souls. 3. The Difference betwixt the Souls or Spirits of Men and Angels, and how that Pagan Idolatry and the Ceremonies of Witches prove the Exiſtence of Devils. 4. And that the Exiſtence of Devils proves the Exiſtence of Good Angels.

1. MY Third Aſſertion is, That there are Particular Spirits or Immaterial Subſtances. Which will eaſily flow from what is ſo firmly proved already, That there is one Omnipotent, Omniſcient and infinitely-Benign Spirit, which we call GOD: who therefore acting according to his Nature, we cannot doubt but that he has created innumerable companies of Spirits to enjoy themſelves and their Creatour. Which are either purely Immaterial, having no communion at all with Matter, which the Greeks again divide into Νόες and Ἔνάδες, into pure Intellects or Minds, and ſimple Unities: or elſe ſuch as (although according to their very Subſtance or Eſſence they be Immaterial, yet) have a Propertie of being vitally united with, and alſo affected, by the Matter. To theſe Spirits, for want of a better term, I muſt take the boldneſs to abuſe a known word to a greater latitude of ſenſe, and give the Name of Souls to them all, becauſe they dō vitally actuate the Matter, be it Ethereal, Aereal, or Terreſtrial. Whether there be not alſo a middle ſort betwixt theſe Souls and pure Intellects, a Man may well doubt, which differ from Intellect in having an immediate power of moving the Matter, and from Souls in not being vitally joined therewith, but acting merely as Aſſiſtent Forms, ſuch as the Ariſtotelians fanſie their Intelligences to be.

2. For the Exiſtence of the Three firſt Orders, we have intimated already a conſiderable Argument which reaches all the Orders of Spirits indifferently. The laſt Order falls not only under the knowledge of more abſtracted Reaſon, but alſo under Experience it ſelf. For that there is a Spirit in the Body of Man is evident to us, becauſe we find ſuch * Operations in us as are incompetible to Matter, if we more cloſely and conſiderately examine them. This Spirit that thus acts in us is called a Soul. But that there is ſome ſuch analogical Principle in the Aereal or Æthereal Genii, the Actions and Conditions of ſome of them do confirm. For if their Nature were not ſuch as we have deſcribed, that is, if they did not inhabit and vitally actuate corporeal Vehicles, how could they ever Sin or Fall? For it is out of the Conjunction of theſe two Principles, Spirit and Vehicle, that there ever could be brought in any inward Temptation, Diſtraction or Confuſion in any of the Orders of the Genii or Angels. But Pure and Simple Abſtract Beings ſeem utterly Impaſſible, and therefore Impeccable. Wherefore it is very highly probable, That all fallen Angels, which we ordinarily call Devils, are of the Fourth Order of Spirits which we have deſcribed.

* See my Treatiſe Of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 2. chap. 2; 4,5,6.

3. Which Spirits of the Genii, fallen or not fallen, notoriouſly differ from theſe Spirits of Men, in that they are not capable of informing an Humane or Terreſtrial Body, and therefore bear themſelves above them as a Superior Being, and out of their Pride and Scorn have ever ſince their Fall, either by Fraud or Force, univerſally entangled poor contemptible Mankind in ſundry Performances of Idolatrous Worſhip unto them; which they could not have done, if Men were not lapſed as well as they. Wherefore the Pagans Superſtitions and the Hiſtory of Witches will make good that there are Devils, and that they are of that nature we ſpeak of.

4. And I think this being evinced, no Man will queſtion but that there are alſo Good Angels to conflict with and moderate the Bad. For God will not let the great Automaton of the Univerſe be ſo imperfect, as to be forced to ſtep out perpetually himſelf to do that which ſome Noble part of his Creation might perform; nor ſet thoſe things one againſt another that are quite of another kind. Beſides, thoſe Philoſophers that have wrote of thoſe things with moſt Judgment, do not eaſily conclude clude, That there are any other created Intellectual Beings but such as are capable of being vitally united with some Vehicle or other. Which, if it were true, is nothing prejudicial to us, the admission of the Three First Orders being little or nothing serviceable to our design. And lastly, it is improbable but that, the Fall of the Angels being from a Free principle, as some fell, so others stood, and that there has ever been since their fall both Good and Bad Angels in the World, in that sense as I have explained the Nature of the Angels or Genii, whether Good or Bad.

CHAP. IV.

1. His Fourth Assertion, That the Fall of the Angels was their giving up themselves to the Animal Life, and forsaking the Divine. 2. The Fifth, That this Fall of theirs changed their purest Vehicles into more gross and feculent. 3. The Sixth, That the change of their Vehicles was no extinction of Life. 4. The Seventh, That the Souls of Men are Immortal, and act and live after Death. The inducements to which belief are the Activity of fallen Angels. 5. The Homogeneity of the inmost Organ of Perception. 6. The scope and meaning of External Organs of Sense in this Earthly Body. 7. The Soul's power of Organizing her Vehicle. 8. And lastly, The accuracy of Divine Providence.

1. WE add Fourthly, That these Angels before their Fall had a twofold Principle of Life in them, Divine and Animal; and that their Fall consisted in this, In leaving their Obedience to the DIVINE LIFE, and wholly betaking themselves to the ANIMAL LIFE without rule or measure.

2. Fifthly, That this Rebellion had an effect upon their Vehicles, and changed their pure Æthereal Bodies into more Feculent and Terrestrial, (understanding Terrestrial in as large a sense as Cartesius does, which will take in the whole Atmosphere.) They have forfeited therefore these more resplendent Mansions for this obscure and caliginous Air they wander in, and have now in their polluted Vehicles less of Heaven than the meanest Regenerate Soul that dwells in these Tabernacles of Earth: and that of the Prophet is most true of them, that their Sun is gone down at mid-day.

3. Sixthly, That the Destruction of these Æthereal Vehicles was not an utter Extinction of Life to them, but only an Exclusion from the Life and Pleasures of that Supernal Paradise which they enjoyed in those Heavenly Vehicles. For that they now live and move and act, is manifest in that the whole World rings of their Exploits and Villanies.

4. Seventhly, That the Souls of Men, which are as much Immortal (they being Spirits) as those of the fall'n Angels are, are not devoid of life after the death of this Body. For as the Souls of the fallen Angels descended from thinner to thicker, without the loss of Sense and Life; so do our Souls ascend from thicker to thinner habitations, with the like (if not greater) security of acting and living after the Death of the Body.

5. Which we shall the easilier believe, if we consider how contemptible and homely a thing that Organ is, which is the ultimate and immediate conveyer of whatever we perceive in the outward World, (and which is most remarkable) in which alone the Soul has any Sense at all of any thing that arrives to her cognoscence. * Which (if it be not the Animal Spirits within the Brain, which makes most of all for us) I confess with Cartesius I think it most probable to be the Conarion, than which nor Water, nor Air, nor Æther, nor any other Element else seems more Simple and Homogeneal. So that the advantage seems not be in the nature of that Organ, but it is because the Soul by those Laws that brought her into the Body, has placed her Center of Perception there.

* See my Treatise Of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 2. chap. 7. sect. 16, 17, 18. and chap. 8. throughout.

6. Which little Pavilion of the Soul's Center of Perception, being of so gross consistence as it is, and becoming thereby less Passive and Alterable; it was very requisite that there should be that curious frame of the external Organs of the Eye, the Ear, the Nose and other Parts, to strengthen those motions and impressions that they transmit: so that they may be able forcibly enough to strike upon the Conarion, or at least strike through the Organs, and penetrate to the Animal Spirits in the Brain, supposing them the most inward and immediate Organ of Perception. And that the Conformation of the external Organs of Sense is such, that they are to admiration fitted to this end, is a thing ſo well known amongſt the Anatomiſts, that I need not inſiſt on the proof of it: as it is alſo among Phyſitians, That none of the external Organs have any Senſe at all in them, no more than an Acouſticon or a Dioptrick glaſs. From whence is diſcovered the Unreaſonableneſs of their Deſpair, that conceit that when the Soul is deveſted of her Organical Body, ſhe can have no Senſe nor Perception of any thing. For this curious Organization tends to nothing elſe but the proportionating the vigour of Motion to the difficulty of its paſſage through the Nerves, or to the groſsneſs of the conſiſtency of the Conarion. Which Organical contrivance therefore may not be at all needful in the Soul ſeparate from the Body, the Center of Perception being placed bare in a more tender and paſſive Element, ſuch as Air, Æther, and the like. So that it will be the greateſt wonder in the World, that the Soul ſhould ſleep after death, ſo ſmall a thing being able to waken her.

7. Beſides, it is not Unreaſonable but that She and other Spirits, though they have no ſet Organs, yet for more diſtinct and full perception of Objects may frame the Element they are in into temporary Organization, and that with as much eaſe and ſwiftneſs as we can dilate and contract the pupil of our Eye, and bring back or put forward the Cryſtalline humor.

8. And not only to reſpect the Natures of Humane Souls, but alſo the Will and Purpoſe of God, there was never yet any that pretended to knowledge in Philoſophy, that denied the Immortality of the Soul in this ſenſe which we contend for, but they denied firſt a Particular Divine Providence; which for my own part I think it is impoſſible for any one to deny that will diligently and indifferently ſearch into the matter. And therefore this Seventh Aſſertion may very well ſtand, That the Souls of Men are Immortal, and act and live after Death. Of this Subject I have wrote more lately and more fully in my Treatiſe Of the Immortality of the Soul, to which the Reader may have recourſe.

Book 2. chap. 17, 18.

CHAP. V.

1. The Eighth Aſſertion, That there is a Polity among the Angels and Souls ſeparate, both Good and Bad; and therefore Two diſtinct Kingdoms, one of Light and the other of Darkneſs: 2. And a perpetual fewd and conflict betwixt them. 3. The Ninth, There are infinite ſwarms of Atheiſtical Spirits, as well Aereal as Terreſtrial, in an utter ignorance or hatred of all true Religion.

THE Eighth Aſſertion is, That every Angel, Good or Bad, is as truly a Perſon as a Man, being endued alſo with Life, Senſe, and Underſtanding; whence they are likewiſe capable of Joy and Pain, and therefore coercible by Laws. And mutual Helps being able to procure what Solitude cannot, they muſt of neceſſity be Sociable and hold together in Bodies Politick, and obey, for either hope of advantage or fear of miſchief. Out of the whole maſs therefore of the Angelical Nature (taking in alſo according to Philo the Souls of Men, be they in what Vehicles they will) there ariſe ſince their Fall two diſtinct Kingdoms, the one of Darkneſs, (whoſe Laws reach no further than to the Intereſt of the Animal Life,) the other of Light, which is the true Kingdom of God, and here the Animal Life is in ſubjection, and the Divine Life bears rule; as the Divine Life is trodden down in the other Kingdom, and the Animal Life has the ſole Juriſdiction.

2. Now the inward Life and ſpring of Motion in each Kingdom being ſo different, it follows that theſe two Kingdoms muſt always be at odds, and that there muſt be a perpetual conflict till Victory. Which we ſhall ſtill more eaſily conceive, if we admit what is very reaſonable, That the Kingdom of Light reaches from Heaven to Earth, that is, That as there are found on the ſame ſurface of the Earth Animals both wild and gentle, harmleſs and poiſonous, and Men good and bad, pious and impious; ſo likewiſe even in the ſame Regions of the Air, that there are ſcattered Spirits of both Kinds, good and evil, Subjects of the Kingdom of Darkneſs and the Kingdom of Light. In the order of thoſe Aereal Angels the ancient Philoſophers ranked the Souls of Men deceaſed, whether Vertuous or Wicked, unleſs they had reached to an extraordinary and Heroical Degree of Purity and Perfection; for then they conceited that they were carried up to thoſe more high and Æthereal Regions.

3. Ninth-

3. Ninthly, That there are infinite swarms of Atheistical Spirits, as well Aereal as Terrestrial, belonging to the Kingdom of Darkness, that either absolutely deny God, or at least particular Providence; and look upon the Divine Life as a tedious and troublesome phansie and destitute of all future Reward: and if there be any present contentment in it, they reckon it amongst such as accrews to Men mad and distracted, whose Imagination makes them many a fool's Paradise to please themselves in; and so, say they, does this Religious Lunacy to them that are tainted with it; it having neither any real Object nor solid Fruits but what a beguiled Phansy mocks their superstitious Minds withal. And though these Rebels may be well enough seen in the knowledge of Nature and Mathematical Subtilties, as also in all manner of Craft and State-policy, yet their Desires being so fully lulled asleep to all Divine Things, they can neither excogitate ought themselves, nor allow of any Reasons from others, whereby they might be brought off from that state of Darkness and Rebellion they are in, to the true worship of the living God. Nay it is probable they are obdurated to that height of boldness, that they think themselves able to grapple with the Powers of the Kingdom of Light; and that Superiority was theirs of old, and is yet their due, and may come into their Hands again; and that their Chieftain is the elder Brother, though cast thus low by the Envy of the younger: which was the wild conceit of the Euchites, Ophites, or Satanians.

CHAP. VI.

1. His Tenth Assertion, That there will be a final Overthrow of the Dark Kingdom, and that in a supernatural manner, and upon their external Persons. 2. The Eleventh, That the Generations of Men had a beginning, and will also have an end. 3. To which also the Conflagration of the World gives witness.

1. NOW, in the tenth place, it is very uncouth and unusual that so resolved and unreconcileable Opposition as there is betwixt the Two Kingdoms we speak of, should not end at last in some signal Overthrow, with Victory on the one part or other. But besides, the undeniable Right and Justness of the Cause which the Powers of the Kingdom of Light contend for, will not only procure of Him that sits Judge an End to their Toil and Conflict, but they will certainly carry it on their side, and that not only in a still, Mystical, Allegorical Sense, (which these Atheisticsl Spirits will have no Sense at all of nor any Perception; for they will resolve all into Nature, Policy and good Fortune, it may be into some more than ordinary Influence of the Stars that begin to set a golden Age on foot again; so little would a Reign of righteous Men upon Earth convince the obdurately wicked) but by a powerful Miraculous Appearance, whereby they shall be confounded in their outward Senses; there being nothing else left for Divine Providence to work upon; the Divine Life and touch of Conscience being utterly lost in them, and their Reason being perfectly lulled asleep to whatsoever concerns the true Knowledge of God and Duties of Religion.

2. Eleventhly, The Generations of Men had a beginning, and will also have an end. That they had a beginning, is the general consent of all Philosophers, Poets and Historians. The Aristoteleans indeed dissent, but upon such weak Grounds, that it is not worth the while to confute them. But Cartesius his Philosophy is so favourable to this Opinion, that necessarily it inferrs it. Besides, the History of Nature seems to confess it, in that the Earth cannot bring forth such perfect Animals as she did at first, as Lucretius has noted, Lib. 2. de Rerum Natura.

Jamque adeo fracta est Ætas, effœtaque Tellus,
Vix animalia parva creat, quæ cuncta creavit
Secla, deditque ferarum ingentia corpora partu.

The Earth who of her self at first brought forth
Huge lusty Men of Stature big and bold,
And large-limb'd Beasts, she grown effete and old Hardly bears small ones now, and little worth.

Which as it muſt needs be an infallible Sign of her Age, ſo it is alſo of her once being young and having a beginning.

3. Now, beſides that Axiom in Philoſophy, That what has a beginning, will alſo have an end; That Generation ſhall at laſt ceaſe upon the face of the Earth, that ancient fame of the Conflagration of the World gives further Witneſs to. Of which direful Fate the Sibylls have ſung long ſince, and * Pythagoras and Heraclitus given Teſtimony, whom Ovid alſo has followed: And the Stoicks, Men ſlow enough to believe great things upon ſlight Grounds, have taken it into their Philoſophy; adding alſo that the Souls of Men ſubſiſt till then, but that at the laſt they are extinguiſhed in this Final Conflagration. Others phanſy a more benign uſe of this Fire, that it ſhall purge and fertilize the Earth, and prepare it for a more happy Habitation: as if the Divine Nemeſis had a kind Deſign for the whole, when ſhe ſeems ſo cruelly ſevere to ſome part of the Creatures; and that ſhe did in this not only an act of Juſtice, but of skilful Husbandry, burning up the barren Ground with all the Vermin therein, to make the Field the more fruitful; according to that of Virgil in his Georgicks.,

* See The Immortality of the Soul, Book 3. chap. 18.

Lib. 1.

Sæpe etiam ſteriles incendere profuit agros,
Atque levem ſtipulam crepitantibus urere flammis:
Sive inde occultas vires ac pabula terræ
Pinguia concipiunt; ſive illis omne per ignem
Excoquitur vitium, atque exudat inutilis humor.

The fruitleſs Field with its dry ſtanding Straw
'Tis fit ſometimes to burn with crackling Fire:
For whether hence the Earth hid Virtue draw
And oyly moiſture, or ſhe doth perſpire
And ſweat out all Corruption; by this Law
The bettered Soil anſwer's the Swain's Deſire.

But God forbid that any mortal Man ſhould be ſo bold and unwiſe as to profeſs he underſtands ſo profound a Myſtery of Providence. All that I aim at is this, That it is not only the Opinion of Chriſtians, but of ancient Heathens and Jews, that the Earth at length will be all ſet on Fire, and that there will be a period put to this preſent State of Things; which I ſhall make a ſolid uſe of in the behalf of our Religion againſt them both.

CHAP. VII.

1. His Twelfth Aſſertion, That there will be a Viſible and Supernatural deliverance of the Children of the Kingdom of Light, at the Conflagration of the World. 2. The Reaſon of the Aſſertion. 3. His Thirteenth Aſſertion, That the laſt vengeance and deliverance ſhall be ſo contrived, as may be beſt fit for the Triumph of the Divine life over the Animal life. 4. Whence it is moſt reaſonable the Chieftain of the Kingdom of Light ſhould be rather an Humane Soul than an Angel. 5. His laſt Aſſertion an Inference from the former, and a brief Deſcription of the general nature of Chriſtianity.

1. MY Twelfth Aſſertion is, That there ſhall not only be a ſenſible and palpable Overthrow of the Kingdom of Darkneſs, (ſuch as themſelves ſhall feel with a vengeance, a whirlwind of deſtruction rattling about their ears, as I may ſo ſpeak; the viſible wrath of God ſeizing upon their external Perſons,) but there ſhall be alſo a viſible deliverance of the other Kingdom from this ſtorm of fire and brimſtone, from this fierce anger of God, and the roarings and boilings of incenſed Nature againſt the Wicked. For who can imagine the horror, the ſtench, the confuſion, the crackling of Flames of Fire, thoſe loud murmurs and bellowings of the troubled Seas working and ſmoking like ſeething Water in a Caldron, the fearful howlings and direful groans of thoſe rebellious Ghoſts, who beſides the general defacement of whatſoever they heretofore took pleaſure in, are in an unexpreſſible torture of Body, with an unimaginable imaginable vexation of Mind; Self-love then (the center of the Animal life) proving the depth and bottom of Hell, as being inflamed and boiling up with the higheſt Indignation and Vengeance againſt it ſelf, that when it had ſo many opportunities, it provided no better for its own Happineſs; being now convinced that there is a Special Providence over the Good, and that Righteouſneſs has its Eternal Reward. For in that day ſhall all the Faithful renew their ſtrength, and ſhall mount up with Wings as Eagles, and be carried far above the reach of this diſmal Fate; that is, they ſhall aſcend up in thoſe Heavenly Chariots or Ethereal Vehicles (the antient Philoſophers ſpeak of) and ſo enter into Immortality and Eternal reſt.

2. But if there were not this Viſible deliverance of the Powers of the Kingdom of Light, the Powers of the contrary Kingdom, let them ſuffer what they would, they would imagine it a piece of blind and inevitable Fortune, as well as partial Earthquakes and Inundations and particular Conflagrations, which have deſtroyed Towns and Countries heretofore; and therefore deem their ill condition a ſad Calamity indeed, but no Puniſhment. Which will ſeem the more probable if we conſider, that Epicures and Atheiſts themſelves admit of a Final Deſtruction of the World, as you may ſee in Lucretius, who ſpeaking of the Earth, the Sea and the Heavens, preſages thus of them,

Tres Species tam diſſimiles, tria talia Texta,
Una dies dabit exitio; multoſque per annos
Suſtentata ruet moles & machina mandi. Lib. 5.

Three Species of things ſo different,
Three ſuch contextures, ſhall one fatal day
Ruin at once; and the world's Machina Upheld ſo long ruſh into Atomes rent.

3. My Thirteenth Aſſertion is, That this palpable and viſible Difference which Divine Providence is to make betwixt the Evil and the Good, will be, and is, ſo wiſely contrived, that it ſhall not only be a manifeſt Conviction and Confutation of the Atheiſts and Epicures, and an undoubted Revelation of God's Exiſtence and Sovereignty in the World, but in a ſpecial manner for the high Honour and Triumph of the Divine life over the Animal life. Which through ſo many Sorrows, Afflictions, Temptations, ſcornful Reproaches of the Wicked, their cruel and barbarous uſages, ſhall at laſt with all the Embracers of her be enthroned in Everlaſting Peace and Glory.

4. And that this may be done more exquiſitely, That Wiſdom that contrives all for the beſt, was to lay aſide all thoſe things that ſeem ſo goodly and precious to the Animal life, ſũch as are, The outward Power and Pomp of the World, Highneſs of Rank, Tranſcendency in natural Knowledge, Beauty, Birth, bodily Strength, or whatſoever the Animal life, divided from the Divine, takes pleaſure in, and can perform by it ſelf: all this, I ſay, was to be laid aſide in the choice of that Perſon by whom this great conqueſt over the Kingdom of Darkneſs was to be atchieved; as it is written, He has no pleaſure in the ſtrength of an Horſe, neither delighteth he in any Mans Legs: But the delight of the Lord is in them that fear him and put their truſt in his Mercy. Which I only cite for illuſtration ſake, it being undeniably true in it ſelf, That God prefers his own Glory, that is the Divine life, or the Image of himſelf ſhining in his Creatures, before any natural Accompliſhment whatſoever. Thus therefore it was to fare in the choice of the Chieftain of the Powers of the Kingdom of Light: As if ſome great Prince being highly diſpleaſed at the general Luxury, Rebellion and Perfidiouſneſs of his Nobles, to ſhew how little he eſteemed the Highneſs of their Ranks in reſpect of true Vertue, ſhould take ſome one of the Loweſt of the Commons, yet indued with eminent Prudence, Loyalty and Valour, and ſet him next to himſelf in Honour, Truſt and Power in the adminiſtrating the affairs of his Kingdom: So the Almighty paſſing by thoſe more Superior Orders of Angels, that his high eſteem of the Divine life might be more apparent and conſpicuous, was to make his choice in the rank of Humane Souls, and to lay the Government upon ſome one, who being deſigned to that Office from the beginning of the World, ſhould win notorious Victories againſt the Kingdom of Darkneſs, and reſcue at laſt all ſuch as the Devil has held captive, into the glorious Liberty of the Sons of God. Pſalm 147. 10, 11.

5. Laſtly

5. Laſtly therefore (to make an end at length of my Preparatory Aſſertions) the main Myſtery of Chriſtianity conſiſts in this, That it is a wiſe contrivance of Providence upon the lapſe of Men and Angels, to ſlur and defeat the Pride and Practices of the Devil and his Accomplices, and to reduce all Penitent and Regenerate Souls to that Glory and Happineſs they heretofore forfeited and fell from: Or, if you will briefly, but more ſignificantly, thus; Chriſtianity is that Period of the Wiſdom of God and his Providence, wherein the Animal life is remarkably inſulted or triumphed over by the Divine.

CHAP. VIII.

1. That not to be at leaſt a Speculative Chriſtian is a Sign of the want of Common Wit and Reaſon. 2. The nature of the Divine and Animal life, and the State of the World before and at our Saviour's coming, to be enquired into before we proceed. 3. Why God does not forthwith advance the Divine life and that Glory that ſeems due to her. 4. The Firſt Anſwer. 5. A Second Anſwer. 6. A Third Anſwer. 7. The Fourth and laſt Anſwer.

1. WE have now laid down ſuch Concluſions, either ſo Evident from themſelves, or Demonſtrable from Reaſon, or ſo Allowable by the Authority of the wiſeſt Men that have been in the World and yet unintereſted in Chriſtianity; that, the hardeſt difficulties thereof being reſolvable into theſe, it will appear that it is not only an Indiſpoſition to all Religion whatever, but the Want of Common Wit and the laudable parts of a Man, that keeps any one off, at leaſt from being a Speculative Chriſtian.

2. There are only two Things more for a further Preparation to be propoſed to our view, before we come to a particular Application of the ſeveral Branches of Chriſtianity to the foregoing Theorems. The one is Concerning the Animal life and the Divine; The other is Concerning the Condition of the World upon theſe times, and before the Prince of the Kingdom of Light began that great enterpriſe of redeeming of lapſed Mankind out of the bondage of Satan.

3. Concerning the Firſt it is likely ſome will be forward to enquire, What is this Animal life, and what the Divine, that this muſt ſo pompouſly triumph over the other? And why, if the one be ſo much more precious in the Eyes of God than the other is, does he not without ſo long ambages and tireſome Circumſtances enthrone her at once, giving her her due honour without delay, and miſtaken and lapſed Souls that happineſs they are capable of, without ſo tedious and irkſome trouble?

The rudeneſs and unmannerlineſs of this latter Queſtion, or rather bold and unskilful Expoſtulation, provokes me beyond the Laws of Method to diſpatch it before the former; eſpecially we wanting nothing further to anſwer it than what is ſuppoſed in the very Expoſtulation, viz. That the Divine life is more tranſcendently excellent and precious than the Animal life is.

4. But as Tranſcendent as it is, if we underſtand it aright, that of it which is kept from us, is not any thing of it ſelf, but an high and precious Modification of our own Minds, whereby we become unſpeakably Good and Happy, and are made thereby capable of enjoying God, the higheſt Good that is conceivable. But the Divine life in God is impaſſible, and cannot by any means be diſturbed, diminiſhed, or incommodated any way: and that Life in us, viz. that Divine Modification of our Souls, when it is not in us, is not at all, and therefore by not being bears no Calamity, nor indeed being in us does it feel any either Pain or Pleaſure, Gratification or Diſcontent. For it is the Soul it ſelf that has the ſenſe of all, and 'tis She that feels this Divine ſenſe or life; but there is no Senſe feels it ſelf, elſe there would be as many Perſons as Senſes. Wherefore the Divine life it ſelf is not injured, troubled, nor pained by any impatiency or expectance of that Honour and Triumph that is intended.

5. Secondly, That eſtate that the Souls of the Bleſſed at laſt arrive to, which is the crowning of the Divine life in them with Glory and Immortality, is ſo Excellent and Tranſcendent a Condition, that it is very juſt and congruous that no free Agent ſhould ever arrive to it, but through a competent meaſure of Tribulation and Diſtreſs, as a Tryal of that Loyal Affection he owes to ſo fair and lovely an Object.

And

And if the ways of Providence be ſomething tedious and tireſome in bringing the Souls of Men to this Haven of Reſt and Quietneſs; yet becauſe we are ſo certainly and highly rewarded at laſt, if Self-love do not blind our Eyes, we cannot but confeſs that the whole Progreſs was very becoming and decorous, and that things were carried on as they ought to be: as Ariſtotle notes of Poetical Hiſtory, where laborious and calamitous Vertue ever at laſt attains to Victory and Glory. And therefore in that regard the Philoſopher prefers the reading of Epick Poets before Hiſtorians, becauſe they write of Affairs as they ought to be, but Hiſtorians only as they are, which do often ſeem not to be ſo well as they ſhould be. But Fools and Children, as the Proverb is, are unfit Spectators of things in Motion and Tranſaction, they knowing not at all whither they tend. And it is no wonder if the ſtupid World be much amuzed at Providence, till that great Dramatiſt, God Almighty, draw on the Period towards the laſt Cataſtrophe of things. For then certainly Heaven and Earth will ring with this Plaudite or Acclamation, Verily there is a Reward for the Righteous; doubtleſs there is a God that judges the Earth.

But it is a wayward and impatient Temper in us, that we will neither expect nor approve that Method in the full courſe of Providence, which the moſt curious and judicious Fancies have ſet out to the great Gratification of our Faculties, though but in feigned Hiſtory: as if Humane Contrivance could be more juſt and exact than Divine Wiſdom it ſelf. Wherefore I ſay again, That aſſuredly at the laſt, Paſſive and Perſeverant Vertue ſhall aſcend her Triumphant Chariot, and be drawn through the wide Theatre of the World in all imaginable Pomp and Glory.

6. Thirdly, There is not only a due price ſet upon the Reward by this long Trial and Probation; but there are peculiar Vertues very noble and laudable that are exerciſed therein, which might for ever have lien aſleep without this occaſion: Such are Heroical Fortitude, unconquerable Patience, ſedulous and watchful Prudence, dexterous and ſubtile Invention, and clear and ſolid management of Reaſon againſt the perverſe ſuggeſtions or more impudent declarations of the Sophiſters of the dark Kingdom. Beſides, we are in a more ſenſible School of profound Humility and Submiſſion to the will of God in all things, and have the opportunity caſt upon us of ſo ſtrong Trials of our Loyalty in the times of Deſertion, that the remembrance of that Fidelity cannot but make us find our ſelves far more dear to God, and raiſe an ineffable Joy and Content to our Minds, that we have had ſuch occaſions to ſhew our Faithfulneſs and Conſtancy to him whom our Soul loveth. Wherefore from the going on thus by degrees there ſeems to ariſe a natural accrewment of greater Happineſs. But to require of God, that he ſhould at once command the Soul into that State, that it is thus kindly to ripen into in ſucceſſion of time, is to expect that the Seaſons of the Year ſhould be thrown headlong one upon another on an heap, and that there neither ſhould be Buds nor Bloſſoms (though they have their peculiar Uſe, Beauty and Fragrancy) but that it ſhould be Autumn all the year long; as I have anſwered already in the like caſe. But the Divine Wiſdom is the beſt Diſpenſer of his Goodneſs, who to ſet all the Powers of Nature aworking, brings in Monſters as well as Hercules into the World, that Valour may have a proportionate Object. And were not the Kingdom of Darkneſs it ſelf ſome way uſeful, and did not ſome Homage or other to the high Soveraignty of Divine Wiſdom and Goodneſs, I dare pronounce, it would not ſubſiſt one moment, but be quite exterminated out of Being.

7. Fourthly and laſtly, There being nothing detrimented but our ſelves (if we be detrimented) by this delay of our Happineſs, as I have already demonſtrated, and our ſelves being lapſed and revolted from God; it is very juſt that we do a very competent Penance in that regard; that that Divine excellency that we are to return to, may not be diſhonoured by ſo vile and cheap a proſtitution, and too eaſie and ſudden reconcilement. For though God be at once reconciled to us in his Son, yet it does not excuſe us from undergoing a due order of Penalties before we enjoy the full fruit of Reconciliation. And this is no new Doctrine, but what the Apoſtles themſelves have taught, That through much Tribulation and Affliction we are to enter into the Kingdom of Heaven; and, That whom the Lord loveth, he chaſteneth, and ſcourgeth every Son whom he receiveth. Therefore there is no returning to our loſt Happineſs, or being received again into the favour of God, but in a durable way of Nurture and Trial. So that we ſee ſufficient reaſon why Providence ſhould not bring on all that Happineſs of the Faithful at once, which at laſt will fall to their ſhares; but uſe ſome Delay and Circumſtances (as the Expoſtulator preſumptuouſly calls them) before all things be finiſhed and compleated.

CHAP.

CHAP. IX.

1. What the Animal life is in general, and that it is Good in it ſelf. 2. Self-love the Root of the Animal Paſſions, and in it ſelf both requiſite and harmleſs in Creatures. 3. As alſo the Branches. 4. The more refined Animal properties in Brutes, as the Senſe of Praiſe, natural Affection, Craft. 5. Political Government in Bees 6. And Cranes and Stags, 7. As alſo in Elephants. 8. The Inference, That Political Wiſdom, with all the Branches thereof, is part of the Animal life.

1. NOW to return to what we ſhould have ſpoke of firſt, The Animal life and the Divine, and to declare what they are, not in a ſcrupulous Philoſophical way, but ſo far forth as will ſerve for uſe and the guidance of our Lives; we ſay firſt in general, That the Animal life is that which is to be diſcerned in Brutes as well as in Men, which at large conſiſts in the Exerciſe of thoſe Senſes, and all thoſe Paſſions that Nature has implanted in them, either for the good of them in particular, or for the Conſervation of their Species. Which will be better underſtood, if we inſtance in ſome, wherein, as in the reſt, the Wiſdom of God in Nature is eaſily to be traced. Whence it will likewiſe appear, That there is ſimply no Evil but Good in the Animal life it ſelf; but that our undue uſe of, or immoderate complacency in, ſuch Motions is the only Sin: which is plain in the outward Senſes. But we ſhall chiefly, though very briefly conſider the Paſſions of the brute Creatures.

2. The general Root of theſe queſtionleſs is Self-love, which though it ſound odiouſly (as it ought to do taken in the worſt ſenſe) amongſt Men, yet it is a right, and requiſite Property of life in every brute Animal. For they not being indued with the larger and more free Faculties of Reaſon and Underſtanding, if that intenſe love which each bears to it ſelf ſhould have been equally carried forth to the reſt of the Creatures, what a puzzle and diſtraction would it have made in every ſingle Animal? Care and Solitude being ſo redoubled upon external conſiderations in the behalf of others, that it would force them every one to be regardleſs of its own ſafety and welfare; or at leaſt make them leſs able to provide for it, they having their Animadverſion fixed elſewhere, and upon ſuch as they cannot by reaſon of diſtance of place or like diſadvantage conveniently ſuccour. And thus their Affection would prove as well fruitleſs to others as unprofitable to themſelves, it not being directed thither nor concentred there where it may do moſt good, viz. to themſelves; whom yet they are always moſt able and moſt in readineſs to help and aſſiſt, they being nigheſt at hand and moſt preſent to themſelves. Wherefore it is upon very juſt grounds that every Animal ſhould bear the ſtrongeſt love towards it ſelf, becauſe it is better able to attend its own welfare than another's, or can be attended by another.

Nec tam præſentes alibi cognoſcere Divos.

There is therefore no Vitioſity in Self-love, as it is a mere Animal affection, but it is a warrantable Principle of life implanted by God in Nature for the good and welfare of the Creature.

3. And the Root having no poiſon in it, the Branches in themſelves are pure and innocuous. Which Branches are all the Animal Paſſions, ſuch as Anger, Fear, Sorrow, Joy, all the neceſſary Deſires of the Body, to keep it in Being, ſuch as are Hunger, and Thirſt, and Sleepineſs. Nor does the effect or influence of Self-love reſt here in providing for the Individual; but that Wiſdom that works in Nature has ſo contrived it, that theſe brute Creatures when they ſeek their greateſt content and pleaſure, they do then the moſt ſerviceable act that can be done to the Univerſe, which is the Conſervation of thoſe Species of Animals which are ſo perfect, that they cannot be continued in the World without this manner of propagation, which is by union of Male and Female.

It is not my purpoſe to make an exact enumeration of all the Animal Affections, much leſs to declare the Uſe of them; in which Divine Providence does as plainly appear, as in the Anatomy of the Parts of the Body, and therefore gives Teſtimony that they are all good in their kind, as being inſerted into the Animal Nature by ſo Wiſe and ſo Benign an Artificer.

4. I will only mention ſome few of the more refined Paſſions that are obſervable in ſome Brutes: ſuch as are, The Senſe of Praiſe and Glory, The Strength of natural Affection, The Exerciſe of Craft and Subtilty for Self-preſervation, Their real and effectual Policy for Common Safety, and an obſcure Imitation of ſome Acts of Religion. We ſhall not make any tedious Excurſions upon theſe Particulars; we will only name ſome Animals, as a pledge of the Truth we intimate. As for Example, That there is the Senſe of Praiſe, Glory, and Victory in Brutes, is evident in the Peacock, Elephant, Horſe, and in Cocks of the Game. That there is Natural Affection in them to their young Ones, almoſt all Creatures witneſs; but of Reciprocal Affection of their young to them that brought them forth the moſt eminent Example is in the Stork, whence ἀντιπελαργεῖν is to do the Duty of an affectionate Child to his aged Parent. Gratitude alſo of another kind is very conſpicuous in other Animals, in Dogs eſpecially, who have often interpoſed their Lives for the defence of their Maſters, and have had ſo deep a Senſe of Sorrow at their Death, that they have thereupon voluntarily pined away themſelves and died. So that theſe very Brutes ſeem to have arrived to that Phariſaical Perfection that reached no further than loving their Friends, or doing good to thoſe that did good to them. As for the Craft and Skill in Shifting for one, as they ſay, and ſaving a Man's own Carkaſs, though we might inſtance in many others, yet I ſhall content my ſelf in only naming that one Animal ſo well known for his Wiles and Subtilties, the Fox.

5. And for Political Order and Government, the exactneſs thereof in the Commonwealth of Bees is not only by great Naturaliſts, ſuch as Ariſtotle and Pliny, but vulgarly known to every Countryman that has Hives in his Garden; where he may obſerve, how ſome one Bee by his Humming, as by the ſound of a Trumpet, awakes the reſt to their Work; how fitly the whole Company diſtribute the ſeveral Tasks of Mellification amongſt themſelves; how ſevere Puniſhers they are of Drones, ejecting them out of their Hives; how Loyal they are to their King or Captain, moving as he moves, and ſuſtaining him with their own Bodies when he is weary with flying; how wiſe they are to keep themſelves from being diſperſed in a Storm of Wind, by taking little pieces of Stones in their Feet to ballaſt their light Bodies: Which is alſo reported of the Cranes, though they be not agreed to what End; ſome affirming that the Stones they carry in their Claws are to diſcover, when they fly, whether they fly over Water or dry Ground; for by letting them fall, by the diſtinction of the Sound they will diſcern which it is. But I believe they may as eaſily diſcover it by their Sight, and therefore I ſhould rather think that the uſe of theſe Stones is the ſame with thoſe of the Bees.

6. But that which ſeems more Political in the Cranes is this, that they have one Captain amongſt them, who, when they reſt upon the Earth, watches over the whole Company, holding a Stone in one foot, that if he ſhould by chance be overcome by Drowſineſs, the Falling thereof might waken him: The reſt in the meantime ſleep with their Heads under their Wings; but if any danger approach, the Captain gives notice by crying out, and ſo away they fly. This Office of Precedency they have by turns, and that as well in the Air as on the Earth; and he that is placed in the Van and cuts the Air firſt, in due time retires. As is alſo eminently obſervable in the Sicilian Staggs in their paſſing through the Streight betwixt Sicilia and Calabria, which they were wont to do in Summer-time to ſeek new Paſtures: He that follows lays his Head on the hinder part of him that goes before; he therefore that goes firſt comes back into the Rear when he is weary, and eaſeth his Head upon the hindmoſt: Which they do by turns, and ſo the Weight of their Horns proves no great impediment to their Swimming.

7. That alſo is very exquiſite Policy, which Apollonius in his Travels into India obſerved in the Elephants while they paſſed the River; the leaſt went firſt, and ſo proportionably the reſt followed, the greateſt paſſing over laſt of all. Which order Damis his Diſciple and fellow-Traveller diſallowing as rude and inept, his Maſter Apollonius informs him of the right reaſon thereof, ſhewing him how they were now in Chace and hunted after, and being in retreat, according to the Military Diſcipline the ſtrongeſt were to March laſt. Beſides, if the greateſt had marched foremoſt, the Weight of their Bodies would have made the Paſſage more deep, and more difficult and inconvenient to the leſſer that ſhould follow.

8. Wherefore it is evident that Political Wiſdom is a Branch of the Animal Life and ſuch Vertues as are comprehended under it, ſuch as Political Juſtice, Temperance, Fortitude or Courage, a Senſe of Friendſhip, Fame, or Glory; with ſeveral other Affairs that are contain'd in the Political Spirit, and which are diſcoverable in ſeveral other brute Animals, as well as in the Elephant: But I muſt not expatiate.

CHAP. X.

1. That there is according to Pliny a kind of Religion alſo in Brutes, as in the Cercopithecus. 2. In the Elephant. 3. A confutation of Pliny's conceit. 4. That there may be a certain Paſſion in Apes and Elephants upon their ſight of the Sun and Moon, ſomething a-kin to that of Veneration in Man, and how Idolatry may be the proper Fruit of the Animal Life. 5. A Diſcovery thereof from the Practice of the Indians. 6. Whoſe Idolatry to the Sun and Moon ſprung from that Animal Paſſion. 7. That there is no hurt in the Paſſion it ſelf, if it ſink us not into an Inſenſibleneſs of the firſt inviſible Cauſe.

1. THE laſt Affection we named was Religion, or rather the ſhadow of it. The Ægyptians figure out the Riſing of the Moon by a Cynocephalus, which ſympathizeth ſo with that that Planet, that while ſhe is in Conjunction that Creature loſeth its Sight, being blind till the Moon hath recovered her Light: The menſtruous Flux of the Female is alſo exactly in the Interlunium. Whence the Ægyptian Prieſts kept theſe Animals in their Temples for the more exact Obſervation of the courſe of the Moon, and made them Hieroglyphicks to repreſent the Riſing thereof; drawing a Cercopithecus in this Poſture, viz. ſtanding upon his hinder Feet, and lifting up his fore-feet toward Heaven, with his Face directed up to the Moon. And Pliny does plainly affirm that they do Novam Lunam exultatione adorare. Which yet I muſt confeſs I look upon to be no more an Act of Adoration, than the fawning and leaping of a Dog at the Return of his Maſter, or the manifold Incurvations or Proſtrations of his Body at his Feet. Whence the Criticks endeavour to give a reaſon of the Greek προσκύνησις, which ſignifies Adoration.

2. The ſame Author, amongſt other Properties of the Elephant, ſays there is this in him alſo, Religio ſiderum, Soliſque ac Lunæ veneratio, a religious Obſervance of the Stars, and Veneration of the Sun and Moon; and that in Mauritania, every New Moon when it begins to ſhine, the Elephants repair to the river Amilus, where, after a ſolemn Purification and waſhing of themſelves, having firſt done their Salutations to the Moon, they return into the Woods.

3. That the two great Luminaries of the World have a very ſtrong Influence upon all ſublunary Bodies is very plain, and upon ſome more peculiarly than others; and yet without any ſuſpicion of Religion in them. For what Religion can there be in the Heliotropium that winds about ſo with the Sun? Or what ſo early Devotion is that in the Cock, whom yet Proclus will needs phanſie to ſing his Morning-hymn to Apollo or the Sun at the firſt ſenſe of his Rays at break of Day? Or what Evening-Devotion is that in Crows or Rooks, that a Man may obſerve rooſting on the tops of Trees with their Bills turned toward the Sun ſetting? The general Life and Motion in the World has (as I ſaid) its particular Effect according to this or that Animal. And ſo the preſence of the Moon that is received with ſo much Exultation by the Cercopithecus, with ſo ſolemn a ſhew of Devotion by the Elephant, is notwithſtanding barked at by the Dog, as the Sun is curſed by a certain People of Libya for his troubleſome heat. But I think no Man that is not very raſh will admit, that that kind of Ape and the Elephant do any more by their Actions and Geſtures adore the Moon, than the Dog by his Barking does blaſpheme her.

4. I will not deny but in Apes and Elephants, and ſuch like brute Creatures that bid nearer towards humane Perfection, that the ſight of the Sun and the Moon may ſometime cauſe a ſtrange kind of Senſe or Impreſs in them, ſome uncouth confounded Phantaſm conſiſting of Love, Fear and Wonderment, near to that Paſſion which in us is called Veneration. So great power have the more notable Objects of Nature upon the weak Animal Senſes. And therefore though Religion be not, yet Idolatry may be the proper fruit of the Animal Life, as is handſomly diſcoverable in the Worſhip of the Sun and Moon.

5. For

5. For what the Apes and thoſe Elephants in Mauritania do, the ſame is done by the Idolaters of the Eaſt-Indies in the two Iſlands of Tidor and Ternate, where they ſing Hymns to the riſing Sun, and pray to the Moon by Night for the increaſe of Children, Cattel and the Fruits of the Earth: conceiving theſe Two to be the great Deities of the World, the Sun the Male and the Moon the Female, and that theſe Two begat the Stars, which they look upon alſo as petty Deities.

6. That they fought out a Firſt Cauſe on whom the Order, Oeconomy and Government of the World ſhould depend, proceeded from the Sagacity of the Superior Faculties of their Souls: but that they ſo vainly pitched upon the Sun and Moon, proceeded from the brutiſh Admiration and dull Aſtoniſhment of the Animal Senſes in them. Which Animal propenſity and enticing Power of theſe Objects are lively ſet down in Job. If I beheld the Sun when it ſhined, or the Moon walking in brightneſs; And my heart hath been ſecretly enticed, or my mouth has kiſſed my hands: This alſo were an Iniquity to be puniſhed by the Judge; for I ſhould have denied the God above. Wherefore, as I ſaid before, though Religion be not, yet Idolatry may rightly be deemed the Fruit of this Animal Paſſion, which is a natural Veneration of glorious aſtoniſhing Objects. Job 31. 26, 27, 28.

7. Not that it is any hurt to be ſenſibly ſtruck with the moſt illuſtrious Phænomena of Nature, but that we ſhould not ſink ſo far in or ſtick ſo faſt there, as not to proceed further to the Knowledge of him who is Inviſible and cannot be ſeen with the outward Eyes of the Body. Otherwiſe Tranſportation of Mind and Wonderment at the more noble Objects in the World, is ſo far from having any harm in it, that it is an uſual Property of the Philoſophical and Religious Complexion, and has its great Pleaſure and Uſe. As there is indeed ſome Uſe and Advantage in all the Animal Affections; and therefore if we relinquiſh any of them, unleſs it be for an higher Good, we are made thereby more maimed and imperfect.

CHAP. XI.

1. Of a Middle Life whoſe Root is Reaſon, and what Reaſon it ſelf is. 2. The main Branches of this Middle Life. 3. That the Middle Life acts according to the Life ſhe is immerſed into, whether Animal or Divine. 4. Her Activity, when immerſed in the Animal Life, in things againſt and on this ſide Religion. 5. How far ſhe may go in Religious Performances.

1. WE have now competently ſet out the Nature of the Animal Life: but before we paſs to the Divine, it will be needful to us to take notice of a Middle Life or Faculty of the Soul of Man betwixt the Divine and Animal; which if we might name by the general Principle or common Root thereof, we may call it Reaſon: Which is A Power or Faculty of the Soul, whereby either from her Innate Ideas or Common Notions, or elſe from the Aſſurance of her own Senſes, or upon the Relation or Tradition of another, ſhe unravels a further Clew of Knowledge, enlarging her Sphere of Intellectual Light, by laying open to her ſelf the cloſe Connexion and Coheſion of the Conceptions ſhe has of things, whereby inferring one thing from another ſhe is able to deduce multifarious Concluſions, as well for the pleaſure of Speculation as the neceſſity of Practice.

2. From this ſingle Faculty or common Root of improved Knowledge ſhoot out many Branches: but I ſhall name only ſome main ones; ſuch as are The skill of Natural Philoſophy, of Arithmetick and Geometry; the Power of Speech, whether merely Grammatical, or alſo Rhetorical; A capacity of civil Education, and an ability of Diſcourſing and Acting alſo after an exteriour way in matters of Religion.

3. This is a ſhort Deſcription of the Middle Life which is neither Animal nor Divine, but is really (what the Aſtrologians phanſy Mercury to be) ſuch as that with which it is conjoined, whether Good or Bad, Divine or Animal.

4. For if Reaſon be ſwallowed down into the Animal Life, it ceaſes not to operate there, but all her Operations then are tinctured with that Life into which ſhe is immers'd: So that ſhe will be active there, either in crafty Contrivances for the getting of Wealth, or in merry Wiles for the Enjoyment of Pleaſure; or elſe be plotting Deſigns to ſatisfie Ambition; or at leaſt be perpetually taken up for the getting of a ne-ceſſary Livelihood. Nor doth ſhe contain her ſelf within the Bounds of mere dry Action, but, according to the Genius of the Party, diſcovers her ſelf in the Power of Speech and Eloquence: She enabling ſome to write very ſage Political Diſcourſes, employing others in framing out very curious Concluſions in Matters of Religion; others ſhe buſies as much to excogitate all the Cavils they can againſt the Religion they are born under, and indeed againſt the whole Profeſſion of Piety in general, endeavouring to make the Belief of a God and his Providence ridiculous to the World. Sometimes ſhe further aſſociates to her ſelf the help of Poetry, the more winningly to recommend her own Conceptions to thoſe to whom ſhe communicates them. Hence are ſo many melting Elegies upon the unexpected Death of ſome famous Beauty, Triumphant Songs upon cruel and barbarous Victories in bloody War, Impure Sonnets to that polluted Goddeſs the terreſtrial Venus, wild Catches that applaud and encourage exorbitant Abuſes of the blood of the Grape.

5. Nor is this all that Reaſon and Phanſy can do, while they are inſpired merely from the Animal Life with a competent Advantage from Education and Complexion: but they will alſo adventure to compoſe Devout Hymns in honour of the Saints, to the bleſſed Virgin eſpecially, nay to Chriſt himſelf, and to the Holy and Eternal Trinity; deſcribe to us the Pleaſures and Riches of Paradiſe, though they never came there, nor it may be never will do. And if theſe things may ſeem more ſlight, becauſe Poetical, thoſe more ſeeming Subſtantial Performances in ſolid Proſe, I mean ardent and prolix Prayers, long and fervent Preaching, backed with much Affection and winning Eloquence, I muſt pronounce of theſe alſo, That they may, and do too often, ariſe from no higher a Principle than what we have deſcribed, and are the Reſults of ſuch Powers as may reſide in the mere Natural Man.

CHAP. XII.

1. The wide Conjecture and dead Reliſh of the mere Animal Man in things pertaining to the Divine Life, and that the Root of this Life is Obediential Faith in God. 2. The three Branches from this Root, Humility, Charity, and Purity; and why they are called Divine. 3. A Deſcription of Humility. 4. A Deſcription of Charity, and how Civil Juſtice or Moral Honeſty is eminently contained therein. 5. A Deſcription of Purity, and how it eminently contains in it what ever Moral Temperance or Fortitude pretend to. 6. A Deſcription of the trueſt Fortitude. 7. And how tranſcendent an Example thereof our Saviour was. 8. A further repreſentation of the ſtupendious Fortitude of our Saviour. 9. That Moral Prudence alſo is neceſſarily comprized in the Divine Life. 10. That the Divine Life is the trueſt Key to the Myſtery of Chriſtianity; but the Excellency thereof unconceivable to thoſe that do not partake of it.

1. AND now I have advanced the Animal Life ſo high, by adding this Middle Nature to it, that you may perhaps marvail upon what I ſhall pitch that may ſeem more precious and deſirable, unleſs it be ſome Wonder-working Faith, whereby a Man might caſt out Devils and command Mountains to remove and be carried into the midſt of the Sea. But it is ſo far from proving any ſuch like Priviledge that the Tumour of the natural Spirit of Man would pleaſe it ſelf in, that I am afraid when I ſhall deſcribe it, he will have no Reliſh at all of it, ſcarce underſtand what I mean; and if he do, yet he will look upon it as a dry inſipid Notion without any Fruit or Pleaſure therein. But however I will declare it to him as well as I can; and that nothing may be wanting, I ſhall Firſt give a ſhort glance at the Root of this Divine Life alſo, which is an Obediential Faith and Affiance in the true God, the Maker and Original of all things. From this Faith Apoſtate Angels and lapſed Mankind are fallen; but the Soul of the Meſſias ever ſtood upright, wading through the deepeſt Temptations that humane Nature could be encumbred with.

2. But this Holy and Divine Life, to ſuch as have an Eye to ſee, will be moſt perceptible in the Branches thereof, though to the Natural Man they will look very Witheredly and Contemptibly. Theſe Branches are Three, whoſe Names though trivial and vulgar, yet if rightly underſtood, they bear ſuch a Senſe with them, that nothing more weighty can be pronounced by the Tongue of Men or Seraphims: and in brief brief they are theſe, Humility, Charity, and Purity; which, where-ever they are found, are the ſure and infallible Marks or Signs of either an unfallen Angel or a Regenerate Soul.

Theſe we call Divine Vertues, not ſo much becauſe they imitate in ſome things the Holy Attributes of the Eternal Deity, but becauſe they are ſuch as are proper to a Creature to whom God communicates his own Nature ſo far forth as it is capable of receiving it, whether that Creature be Man or Angel, and ſo becomes * Θεάνθρωπος, or * Θεοδαίμων, that is * Θεάγγελος. For ſuch a Creature as this (and Chriſt was ſuch a Creature in the higheſt manner conceivable) has conſpicuouſly in it theſe three Divine Vertues, namely, Humility, Charity and Purity.

* Divine Man. * a Divine Dæmon. * a Divine Angel.

3. By Humility I underſtand ſuch a Spirit or gracious Property in the Soul of Man or any Intellectual Creature, as that hereby he does ſenſibly and affectionately attribute, all that he has or is or can do, to God the Author and Giver of every good and perfect Gift. This is the higheſt piece of Holineſs, and the trueſt and moſt acceptable Sacrifice we can offer to God, thus lively and freely to acknowledge that all we have is from him: From whence we do not arrogate any thing to our ſelves, nor contemptuouſly lord it over others. In this Grace is comprehended an ingenuous Gratitude, which is the freeſt and moſt noble kind of Juſtice, that is, A full renouncing of all Self-dependency, a firm and profound Submiſſion to the Will of God in all things, and a Diſguſt, or at leaſt a Deadneſs to the Glory of the World and the Applauſe of Men.

4. By Charity I underſtand an Intellectual Love, by which we are enamoured of the Divine Perfections, ſuch as his Goodneſs, Equity, Benignity, his Wiſdom alſo, his Juſtice and his Power, as they are graciouſly actuated and modified by the forenamed Attributes. And I ſay, that to be truly transformed into theſe Divine Perfections, ſo far forth as they are Communicable to Humane Nature, and out of the real Senſe of them in our ſelves, to love and admire God in whom they infinitely and unmeaſurably reſide, is the trueſt and higheſt kind of Adoration, and the moſt grateful Praiſing and Glorifying God that the Soul of Man can exhibit to her Maker. But in being thus transformed into this Divine Image of Intellectual Love, our Minds are not only raiſed in holy Devotions towards God, but deſcend alſo in very full and free Streams of deareſt Affection to our Fellow-Creatures, rejoicing in their Good as if it were our own, and compaſſionating their Miſery as if it were our ſelves did ſuffer; and according to our beſt Judgment and Power ever endeavouring to promote the one, and to remove the other. And this moſt eminently contains in it whatever good is driven at by Civil Juſtice or Moral Honeſty. For how ſhould we injure thoſe for whoſe real Welfare we could be content to die?

5. By Purity, I underſtand a due Moderation and Rule over all the Joys and Pleaſures of the Fleſh, bearing ſo ſtrict an Hand, and having ſo watchful an Eye over their ſubtile Enticements and Allurements, and ſo firm and loyal Affection to that Idea of Celeſtial Beauty ſet up in our Minds, that neither the Pains of the Body, nor the Pleaſures of the Animal Life, ſhall ever work us below our Spiritual Happineſs, and all the competible Enjoyments of that Life that is truly Divine. And in this conſpicuouſly is contain'd whatever either Moral Temperance or Fortitude can pretend to. For ordinarily he is held Temperate enough, that can but ſave his Brains from groſs Sottiſhneſs, and his Body from Diſeaſes; but this Purity reſpects the Divine Life it ſelf, and requires ſuch a Moderation in all the Affairs of the Fleſh, that our Bodies may ſtill remain unpolluted Temples and meet Habitations for the Spirit of God to dwell in and act in, whether by way of Illumination, or Sanctification and Animation to interiour Duties of Holineſs. And as for Fortitude, it is plain that this Purity of the Soul having mortified and tamed the exorbitant Luſts and Pleaſures of the Body, Death will ſeem leſs formidable by far, and this mortal Life of leſſer Value.

6. But the greateſt Fortitude of all is, when Love proves Stronger than Death it ſelf, even in the deepeſt and moſt bitter Senſe of it: and not ſo much the Weakneſs and Inſenſibleneſs of the Body, nor yet the full Carreer or furious Heat and Hurry of the natural Spirits makes Pain and Death more tolerable; but the pure Courage of the Soul her ſelf animated only by an unrelinquiſhable Love of the Divine Life, and whatever Deſign is impoſed upon her by that Principle.

7. The Example of this Fortitude is admirable in our bleſſed Saviour, and tranſcends as much the general Valour recorded by the Pens of Poets and Hiſtorians, as the Valour of thoſe Heroes does exceed the ſalvage Fierceneſs and Boldneſs of Bears, Wolves and Lions. For a Man to encounter Death in an exalted Heat and Fire of his agitated agitated Spirits, is not much unlike a mere drunken Fray, where their Blood being heated with the excesse of Wine, the Combatants become unsensible of those mortal Gashes they make in one anothers Bodies. But to Fight in cold Blood, is true Valour indeed, and the greater, by how much more the Occasion of the Enterprise approves it self noble, and the Parties are not at first engaged by any Rage or Passion. For then they Sacrifice their Lives but to a rash Fit of Choler, or at least to, that Tyrant in them, Pride, which they, for the better Credit of the Busines, ordinarily call The Sense of Honour; else they could willingly upon better Thoughts save themselves the Pains and Danger of the Combate.

8. But to speak of Valour more lawful and laudable, which is to meet the Enemy in the Field, where their Minds are enraged and heightned by the sound of the Drum and the Trumpet, (which are able to put but an ordinarily-metal'd Man out of his Wits) it is yet counted a very valiant and honourable Act, if a Man in this Hurry and Tumult of his Spirits makes his Sword fat with the Blood of the Slain, and mows down his Enemies on every side as a Sacrifice to his Country and Friends, I mean to his Wife and Children, and all that are near unto him. Which yet may be parallell'd with the Courage and Rage of Wolves and Tigers, who will fiercely enough defend their young by that innate Valour and Animosity in them, without help of any external Artifice to heighten their Boldness. But the Valour and Fortitude of the ever-blessed Captain of our Salvation has no Parallel, but is transcendently above whatever can be named. For what Comparison is there betwixt that Courage which is inspired from the Pomp of War or single Combat, from the Heat and Height of the Natural Spirits, from the Rage and Hatred against an Enemy, or from the Love to a Friend; and such a Fortitude, as being Destitute of all the Advantages of the Animal Life, nay clogg'd with the Disadvantages thereof, as with a deep Sense of Death, Fear, Agony and Horror, yet notwithstanding all this, in an humble Submission to the Will of God, and a dear Respect to that lovely Image of the Divine Life, wades through with an unyielding Constancy, and this (which is not to be thought on without Astonishment and Amazement) not to rescue or right a Friend, but to save and deliver a malevolent Enemy?

9. We have seen how Justice, Temperance and Fortitude are in a supereminent manner comprehended in the Divine Life, which taking Possession of the Middle Life or Rational Powers, must needs beget also in the Soul the truest Ground of Prudence that may be. For this Divine Life is both the Light and the Purification of the Eye of the Mind, whereby Reason becomes truly illuminated in all Divine and Moral Concernments. * Which Mystery, though it cannot be declared, according to the Worthiness of the Matter, yet some more external Intimations may serve for a Pledge of the Truth thereof. As for Example, in that it does remove Pride, Self-interest and Intemperance that clog the Body and cloud the Soul, it is plain from hence, of what great Advantage the Divine Life is for the rectifying and ruling our Judgments and Understandings in all Things.

* See further of this, Book 8. chap. 11.

10. I have endeavoured, according to the best of my Abilities, briefly to set before you the Excellency of that Life which we call Divine. But it is impossible by Words to conveigh it to that Soul, that has not in her in some measure the Sense of it aforehand. Which if she have, it is to her the truest Key to the Mystery of Christianity that can be found; and in this Light a Man shall clearly discern, how decorous and just a thing it is, that This Life which is transcendently better than all, should at last after long Trials and Conflicts triumph over all; and that for this purpose Jesus Christ should come into the World, who is the Author and Finisher of this more than Noble and Heroical Enterprise.

BOOK

BOOK III.

CHAP. I.

1. That the Lapſe of the Soul from the Divine Life immerſing her into Matter, brings on the Birth of Cain in the Myſtical Eve driven out of Paradiſe. 2. That the moſt Fundamental Miſtake of the Soul lapſed is that Birth of Cain, and that from hence alſo ſprung Abel in the myſtery, the vanity of Pagan Idolatry. 3. Solomon's univerſal Charge againſt the Pagans, of Polytheiſm and Atheiſm, and how fit it is their Apology ſhould be heard for the better underſtanding the State of the World out of Chriſt. 4. Their Plea of Worſhipping but one God, namely the Sun, handſomely managed by Macrobius. 5. The Indian Brachmans Worſhippers of the Sun: Apollonius his Entertainment with them, and of his falſe and vain Affectation of Pythagoriſm. 6. The Ignorance of the Indian Magicians, and of the Dæmons that inſtructed them. 7. A Conceſſion that they and the reſt of the Pagans terminated their Worſhip upon one Supreme Numen, which they conceived to be the Sun.

1. HAving with a competent Clearneſs, as I hope, ſet forth the Nature of the Divine Life, (to ſuch as have a Principle to judge thereof) as alſo of the Animal, we ſhall the more fully underſtand wherein conſiſts the Lapſe or Revolt as well of the Rebellious Angels as of Fallen Man. Which was in that they forſook the Law of the Divine Life, and wholly gave themſelves up to the Animal Life, Ranting it and Revelling it there without any Meaſure or Bounds. Of which this ſeems to be the ſad Effect, that the Soul of Man had quite forgot his Creator, being fully plunged and immerſed into the very Feculency of the Material World. For that Faculty in him whereby he is capable of Corporeal Joy, which is the * Myſtical Eve, had grown ſo Rampant and Lawleſs, that it had quite devoured and laid waſte thoſe more noble and delicate Senſes of the Mind; and had ſo intimately joyn'd him in Love and Dependance on Matter, that his Soul having forſaken God her true Lord and Husband, by a lively Adheſion ſtuck ſo cloſe to this groſs Corporeal Fabrick, this outward ſenſible Univerſe, that in this near and Affectionate Conjunction with it, ſhe made good in the Myſtery that which is ſaid in the Letter concerning Eve, after ſhe was driven out of Paradiſe, She brought forth her firſt-born Cain, whoſe Birth in the Myſtical Senſe is nothing elſe but that falſe Conceit that the Reaſon of his Name imports, קניתי איש את יהוה. I have got a Man, or an Husband, who is the very Jehovah, according to the moſt eaſie and natural Meaning of the particle את

* See Cabbala Philoſophica on Gen. chap. 2, and 3.

2. This therefore is the Firſt and moſt Fundamental Miſtake of lapſed Mankind, that they make Body or Matter the only true Jehovah, the only true Eſſence and firſt Subſtance of whom all things are, and acknowledge no God but this Viſible or Senſible World. And therefore ſtop not here, but naturally proceed to the Birth of Abel, which Joſephus interprets πένθος, ſorrow. Which certainly the Soul of Man in this Condition is abundantly Obnoxious to. But the word may as well, and does more ordinarily, ſignify Vanity, according to that of the Apoſtle concerning the Heathens and their Religion, that they were grown vain in their Imaginations. And ſo that came to paſs which the Author of that pious Book, entituled, The Wiſdom of Solomon, ſo ſadly complains of.

3. Surely vain are all Men by Nature, who are ignorant of God, and could not out of the good things that are ſeen, know (τὸν ὄντα, Jehovah,) him that is; nor by conſidering the Works, acknowledge the Work-maſter: But deemed either Fire, or Wind, or the ſwift Air, or the Circle of the Stars, or the violent Water, or the Lights of Heaven, to be the Gods that govern the World.

The Charge is laid home by this Writer upon Univerſal Paganiſm. But it is but a juſt thing to give them a little Scope to plead for themſelves, that thereby Truth may be the better diſcovered and the more firmly eſtabliſhed, and the natural State of Mankind, before Chriſt came into the World, be more fully underſtood; which is the preſent Buſineſs in hand, and the laſt Point we propounded by way of Preparation to our main Work.

The

The Crime they are accuſed of here is Polytheiſm, which neceſſarily includes in it Atheiſm. For to ſay, There are more Gods than one, is to aſſert, There is none at all; the Notion of God, in the ſtricteſt Senſe thereof, being incompetible to any more than One. Wherefore the Heathens being Polytheiſts in Profeſſion, by undeniable Conſequence are found Atheiſts.

4. But here ſome of them Apologize for themſelves after this manner; affirming that they acknowledged one only ſupreme Deity, viz. the Sun: and that the ſeveral Worſhips which were Exhibited were to this One, though under ſeveral Names, by reaſon of the ſeveral Powers or Virtues obſerved in him. This is the Plea of Macrobius, and he manages it under the Perſon of Vettius Prætextatus very handſomely and wittily, reducing, from either Properties of Nature, alluſion of Names, the likeneſs of Statues or Images, the conformity of Ceremonies, or teſtimony of Oracles, no leſs than ſixteen Deities of the Heathens (that to the vulgar ſeem Diſtinct) to this One of the Sun, namely Apollo, Bacchus, Mars, Mercury, Æſculapius and Salus, Hercules, Iſis, Serapis, Adonis, Attin, Oſiris, Horus, Nemeſis, Pan, Jupiter, Saturnus. And I doubt not but with the like Windings and Turnings of Wit and Imagination he may reduce the Worſhip of the reſt to the ſame Deity; he having let fall an ominous Word taken out of the Mouths of the Ancients at the very entrance of the Diſcourſe, ἓν τὸ πᾶν· which if it be well followed, will not fail to make good, That the Heathens Worſhip was terminated upon one Supreme Object, which Macrobius will have to be the Sun. And he concludes all, for a fuller confirmation thereof, with a double Citation. The one is of a ſhort Invocation of the Heathen Theologers, the Form whereof runs thus, Ἥλιε παντοκράτορ, κόσμου πνεῦμα, κόσμου δύναμις, κόσμου φῶς· i. e. O Sun omnipotent, the Spirit of the World, the Power of the World, the Light of the World. The other is out of the Hymns of Orpheus,

Κέκλυθι τηλεπόρε δῖνης ἑλικαύγεα κύκλου
Οὐρανίαις τροφάλιγξι θοΐδρομον αἰὲν ἑλίσσων.
Ἄγλαε Ζεῦ, Διόνυσε, πάτερ πόντου, πάτερ αἴης,
Ἥλιε παγγενέτορ, παναίολε, χρυσεοφεγγές.

Thou that doſt guide the ever-winding Gyre
And wide Rotations of th' Æthereal Fire,
O Sol, great Sire of Sea and Land, give ear.
Omniparent Sol with golden Viſage clear,
All-various Godhead, Bacchus, glorious Jove,
Or what e're elſe thou'rt ſtyl'd, my Vows approve.

In which Verſes the Government and Generation of all things are attributed to the Sun, who (that it may be leſs Incongruous) is allowed to have Senſe and Underſtanding in him, as you may ſee in the ſame Author, Saturnal. lib. 1. cap. 23. which is alſo aſſerted cap. 18. where he proves Bacchus and the Sun to be all one. For he gives the Reaſon of the name Διόνυσος as if it were Διὸς νῦς, i. e. Mens Jovis, underſtanding by Jupiter * Ζεὺς φυσικὸς, which is the Air or liquid part of the World, as Theon explains it upon Aratus. And here Macrobius ſays that Jupiter ſignifies Heaven. * Phyſici Solem Mundi mentem dixerunt: Mundus autem vocatur Cælum, quod appellant Jovem.

* The Natural Jupiter.

* i. e. The Natural Philoſopherscalled the Sun the Mind or Soul of the World. But the World is called Heaven, which they name Jupiter.

5. That the Sun is the Supreme Numen of the Heathens, may be further evinced from the Ceremonies and Worſhip the Indian Brachmans did to him, who were alſo called the Prieſts of the Sun, whom Apollonius Tyaneus, that induſtrious Reſtorer of Paganiſm, ſo loudly extols, and ſo far prefers before the Babylonian Magi, Gymnoſophiſts and all the Wiſe Men of the World beſides. But the Circumſtances of his Entertainment there according to Philoſtratus, is an Argument only of their being more able Magicians or Conjurers than the reſt of the World, not more truly Wiſe, as we that worſhip the true God muſt of neceſſity conclude. For what elſe can we gather from that black ſwarthy Page with a golden Anchor in his Hand and a Creſcent like the Moon ſhining upon his Forehead, that met Damis and Apollonius in the Way, told them their purpoſe aforehand, and conducted them to the Magi? What from that ever-ſmoaky Mount, guarded or enveloped with a perpetual thick Cloud or Miſt, ſo that theſe Sages could not be found without ſome ſuch black Guide of their own ſending, nor their Habitation entred, though there be neither Man nor Ditches to defend them? What from their manner of Entertainment of this zealous Greek that traverſed ſo great great a part of the World to find them out? whom they received at a Banquet where Wine and Viands were conveyed to the Table without the help of the Hand of any Mortal. What from their Hymns and frantick Dances in a Round by way of Divine Worſhip done unto the Sun, when ſtriking the Ground with a Rod, the Earth would riſe in Waves under them, while they danced thus and ſung their Morning Songs to their ſuppoſed Deity as he appeared above the Horizon? What, I ſay, can be gathered from all this, but that they were a Conventicle of Witches or Conjurers? though I will not deny but they might be the moſt accompliſhed Prieſts that Paganiſm at that time could vaunt of, and the fitteſt Inſtructers of Apollonius, whoſe purpoſe was with all care and diligence to reſtore the Heatheniſh Rites, and thereby ſtop the growth of Chriſtianity.

And ſurely the Devil made Paganiſm as deſirable and lovely as he could in thoſe notable Ornaments of Wit and Manners, and other more miraculous Accompliſhments that were found in that Perſon. But his conſtant Devotions he did to the Sun, though they ſhew him to be a very skilful and orthodox Hierophanta in the Pagan Superſtition; yet his Ignorance in Philoſophy demonſtrates him no genuine Pythagorean, but that he did craftily abuſe that Name and Profeſſion, the better to promote his Heatheniſh Deſign.

6. It ſeems thoſe Spirits that the Indian Magicians and Apollonius were acquainted withal, were either very Envious or very Ignorant, or at leaſt Philoſtratus that wrote their Story. For in the opening of their Myſteries, ſuch things fall from them as are inconſiſtent with the moſt Eſſential Parts of Pythagoras his Philoſophy and Truth it ſelf. But as for this of making the Sun the Supreme Numen, theſe lapſed Spirits being haply as much concerned in the Benefit of it as we Mortals, (as Homer intimates, > Ὥρνυθ' ἵν' Ἀθανάτοισι φόως φέρῃ ἠδὲ Βροτοῖσι,

> He roſe to ſhine to Gods as well as Men;)

it is not improbable but being fallen ſo low from the true God, that themſelves make this the Object of their Worſhip from whom they find the moſt ſenſible Good, and are kept from that utter Darkneſs, that a ſad Fate at the long run may bring upon them.

7. All which things conſidered, we may well grant what Macrobius ſo induſtriouſly drives at, That the worſhip of the Heathen was terminated in One Supreme Deity, which the profounder Myſtagogi conceiv'd to be the Sun; and they were taught by the Clarian Oracle to call him Jao, as if he were the true Jehovah.

CHAP. II.

1. That the above-ſaid Conceſſion advantages the Pagans nothing, for as much as there are more Suns then one. 2. That not only Unity, but the reſt of the Divine Attributes are incompetible to the Sun. 3. Of Cardan's attributing Underſtanding to the Sun's Light, with a confutation of his fond Opinion. 4. Another ſort of Apologizers for Paganiſm, who pretend the Heathens worſhipped one God, to which they gave no Name. 5. A Diſcovery out of their own Religion that this innominated Deity was not the True God, but the Material World.

1. BUT it is eaſily demonſtrated that they get nothing by this Grant: For whereas they pleaſe themſelves moſt of all in the Unity of this Numen, there being as they fancy but one Sun in the World, as the Latine Word Sol implies, and * Ἀπόλλων in Greek; (Nay Macrobius dotes ſo much on this Notion, that he will not have him called Apollo Delphicus from the Place of his Worſhip, but from ἀδελφὸς an old Greek Word which ſignifies Unus, from whence Ἀδελφὸς muſt be derived quaſi jam non unus:) yet the noble and free Spirit of Philoſophy will not be carried Captive with theſe Cobweb-fetters of Superſtition and verbal Criticiſm; and therefore thoſe that are more knowing in Nature boldly point us to as many Suns as there are diſcovered Fixed Stars in the Firmament; as is to Admiration made clear in that never-ſufficiently-extolled Philoſophy of Des-Cartes. Than which, if rightly underſtood, there there cannot be found a ſtronger Bar againſt either the Folly of Paganiſm, or the Profaneneſs of Atheiſm.

* See book 3. chap. 16. ſect. 5.

2. But not only this obvious Attribute of Unity is wanting to this Pagan Deity, but ſeveral others alſo that are as neceſſarily included in the Notion of a God: ſuch as are Spirituality, Immenſity, Omnipotency, Omniſciency and the like. For the Reflexion of his Beams is a Demonſtration that Light is a Body; and therefore unleſs all Bodies were Light or at leaſt Diaphanous, he cannot be Immenſe, but he muſt be excluded by other Bodies. And hence he is not Omnipotent, no not ſo much as in his moſt eminent Property. For he cannot illuminate both ſides of the Earth at once, nor free his own Face of thoſe importunate Spots, that ever and anon lie upon it like Filth or Scum, maugre all the Power of his Divinity, as Scheiner and Des-Cartes have diligently obſerved. He is alſo ſo far from being Omniſcient, that he has no Knowledge at all, a Body being uncapable of Cogitation, as the Carteſian School judiciouſly maintains, and I have fully demonſtrated in my Book Of the Immortality of the Soul.

3. But Cardan attributing Underſtanding to this Luminary, writes more like a Prieſt of the Sun (as indeed both himſelf and his Father have been ſuſpected for Magicians) than a Man of Reaſon or a ſound Philoſopher. But that the Charge may not ſeem incredible, I will produce his own Words. Cumque Sol luceat intellectu, ſays he, qui ei eſt tanquam anima; ſi ab eo ſecedere poſſet Intellectus, non aliter luceret Sol quàm Terra: That is, And whereas the Sun ſhines by Underſtanding, which is to him as a Soul; if ſo be that Underſtanding ſhould recede from him, the Sun would ſhine no otherwiſe than the Earth.

In which he plainly makes Viſible Light and Intellect all one. From whence yet it would follow, That the Sun diſcerns nothing done in the dark, and that therefore he is not Omniſcient, and that a Glow-worm or Ruſh-candle are better Witneſſes what is tranſacted in the Night than he can be. For if Viſible Light and Intellect be all one, every new-lighted Lamp or Taper will prove an Intelligence: So vain is this Suppoſition, that the Sun is the ſupreme Numen of the World.

4. But there is another ſort of Apologizers for Heatheniſm, that frame their Defence more cautiouſly, averring only in general, That the various Rites done to Particular Deities were meant to One Supreme Cauſe of all things, though they have the Diſcretion not to venture to name him. For the Proof whereof they alledge, Firſt, that when they invoked any particular Deity that was proper for them then to invoke, the Prieſts afterwards added an Invocation of all the Deities in general, as Servius notes upon that of Virgil, Diique Deaque omnes, ſtudium quibus arva tueri.

Secondly, that all the Deities were σύμβωμοι, that is, there were Altars that were conſecrated to them all in general, with ſuch Inſcriptions as theſe,

DIS DEABUSQUE OMNIBUS,

and

DIBUS DEABUSQUE OMNIBUS,

and the like.

Thirdly, that they had one common Feaſt for them all, which was called Θεοξενία, or rather Θεοξυνία, as Mr. Selden notes.

Laſtly, The Ægyptians, a People more infamous for Polytheiſm and variety of Religions than any Nation under the cope of Heaven, yet their Prieſts are obſerved more compendiouſly to do their Ceremonies to certain Spheres or round Globes, whereof there was one in every Temple, but kept very cloſe from the ſight of the Vulgar; the Prieſts reſerving the Knowledge of the Unity of the Object of their Worſhip as an Arcanum only belonging to themſelves.

5. But that This One Object of Worſhip was not the true God, but the Material World, the very Figure they make uſe of does moſt naturally intimate; and I have noted above that Mundus and Jupiter in the Pagan Philoſophy is one and the ſame. And Plutarch ſpeaks expreſly concerning the Ægyptians, ὅτι τὸν κόσμον Θεὸν τῷ πανὶ ἢ αὐτὸν νομίζουσι, That they account the World or Univerſe to be the ſame with the prime God or Firſt Cauſe of all Things. Him the Ægyptians worſhipped under the name of Serapis; who being asked by Nicocreon King of Cyprus, what God he was, the Oracle gave this Anſwer,

Εἰμὶ

Εἰμὶ θεὸς τοιόσδε μαθεῖν δίον· ἐγὼ δ' εἶπω·
Οὐράνιος Κόσμος κεφαλὴ, γαστὴρ δ' ἁλὸς ὑγρὴ,
Γαῖα δέ μοι πόδες εἰσὶ, τὰ δ' οὖατ' ἐν ἀιθέρι κεῖται,
Ὄμμα τε τηλαυγὲς λαμπρὸν φάος ἠελίοιο.

Such is my Godhead as to thee I tell:
The Heaven's my Head, the Seas my Belly ſwell;
The Earth's my Feet, my Ears lie in the Air,
My piercing Eye's the Lamp of Phœbus fair.

From which Hypotheſis is moſt eaſily underſtood what is meant by that Enigmatical Inſcription in the Temple of Sais in Ægypt; Ἐγώ εἰμι πᾶν τὸ γεγονὸς, καὶ ὂν, καὶ ἐσόμενον, καὶ τὸν ἐμὸν πέπλον οὐδεὶς πω θνητὸς ἀπεκάλυψεν, I am all that was, and is, and is to come, and my veil no mortal ever did yet uncover. A venerable Riddle under which there lies not one grain of Truth, unleſs there be nothing but modified Matter in Being. But thus to make the World God, is to make no God at all; and therefore this kind of Monotheiſm of the Heathens is as rank Atheiſm, as their Polytheiſm was proved to be before.

CHAP. III.

1. The laſt Apologizers for Paganiſm, who acknowledge God to be an Eternal Mind diſtinct from Matter, and that all things are Manifeſtations of his Attributes. 2. His Manifeſtations in the External World. 3. His Manifeſtations within us by way of Paſſion. 4. His more noble Emanations and Communications to the inward Mind, and how the ancient Heathens affixed perſonal Names to theſe ſeveral Powers or Manifeſtations. 5. The Reaſon of their making theſe ſeveral Powers ſo many Gods or Goddeſſes. 6. Their Reaſon for worſhipping the Genii and Heroes.

1. THE laſt and beſt ſort of Apologizers for Paganiſm are thoſe who profeſs one Eternal Spiritual and Intellectual Being, the Governour and Moderator of all things. Such as Plutarch a Pagan Prieſt defines God to be, Νοῦς ἓν ὁ θεὸς, χωριστὸν εἶδος, τουτέστι, τὸ ἀμιγὲς πάσης ὕλης, μηδενὶ παθητῷ συμπεπλεγμένον, Wherefore God is a Mind or Intellect, an Abſtract Form or Being, pure from all Matter, and diſintangled from whatever is paſſible. Which he ſets down according to the mind of Socrates, Plato, and his own. The moſt ſubtil therefore and ingenious among the Heathens defend themſelves thus;

We acknowledge (ſay they) One Eternal Deity, infinitely Holy and Benign, Omniſcient, Omnipotent, which is the Firſt Cauſe and Original of all things in the World, as well Spiritual as Corporeal; and that there is nothing in the World but what is a Manifeſtation of the Preſence and precious Attributes of this one Deity. And therefore we look upon the vaſt Capacity of the wide Univerſe as a moſt auguſt and moſt Sacred Temple of His Divine Majeſty, who fills and poſſeſſes every Part thereof: every Appearance to our outward Senſes, every Motion and Excitation within our own Bodies, every Impreſſion upon our Minds, being nothing elſe but ſo many Manifeſtations of either the Wiſdom, the Goodneſs, the Power, the Juſtice, or the Wrath of that One God; whoſe Appearances we are every where ready to adore.

2. Whether therefore our Eyes be ſtruck with that more radiant Luſter of the Sun, or whether we behold that more placid and calm Beauty of the Moon, or be refreſhed with the ſweet Breathings of the open Air, or be taken up with the Contemplation of thoſe pure ſparkling Lights of the Stars, or ſtand aſtoniſhed at the guſhing Down-falls of ſome mighty River, as that of Nile, or admire the Height of ſome inſuperable and inacceſſible Rock or Mountain, or with a pleaſant Horrour and Chilneſs look upon ſome ſilent Wood, or ſolemn ſhady Grove; whether the Face of Heaven ſmile upon us with a chearful bright Azure, or look upon us with a more ſad and minacious Countenance, dark pitchy Clouds being charged with Thunder and Lightning to let fly againſt the Earth; whether the Air be cool, freſh and healthful, ful, or whether it be ſultry, contagious and peſtilential, ſo that while we gaſp for Life, we are forc'd to draw in a ſudden and inevitable Death; whether the Earth ſtand firm and prove favourable to the Induſtry of the Artificer, or whether ſhe threaten the very Foundations of our Buildings with trembling and tottering Earth-quakes accompanied with remugient Echoes and ghaſtly Murmurs from below; whatever notable Emergencies happen for either Good or Bad to us, theſe are the Joves and Vejoves that we Worſhip, which to us are not many but one God, who has the only Power to ſave or deſtroy: and therefore from whatever part of this magnificent Temple of his, the World, he ſhall ſend forth his Voice, our Hearts and Eyes are preſently directed thitherward with Fear, Love and Veneration.

3. Nor does our Devotion ſtop here, or rather ſtray only without, but thoſe more notable Alterations and Commotions we find within our ſelves, we attribute alſo to him whoſe Spirit, Life and Power filleth all things. And therefore thoſe very Paſſions of Love and Wrath, on the former whereof dependeth all that kindly ſweetneſs of Affection that is found in either the Friendſhip of Men or Love of Women, as on the latter all the Pomp and Splendor of War; theſe with the reſt of the Paſſions of the Soul, we look upon as the Manifeſtations of his Preſence, who worketh every where for our Solace, Puniſhment, or Trial.

4. Nor can we omit thoſe more noble Communications of His and Heavenly Emanations into our Minds, ſuch as are Wiſdom, Juſtice, Political Order, and the like; all which, with the former and an innumerable Company more which we have paſſed by, the Religion of our Anceſtors fram'd into Perſonal Gods and Goddeſſes; calling Wiſdom, Minerva; Juſtice, Dice or Themis; Political order, Eunomia: to Love are to be referred Cupid and Venus; to Wrath, Mars and the Furies. That Power which ſhaketh the Earth is termed Enoſichthon. The Sea they call Neptune; the Air Juno; the Sun Apollo; the Moon Diana; the Earth Veſta; the Corn Ceres; Wine Bacchus; and ſo of the reſt.

5. Of which certainly there can be no other Reaſon, than that the ancient Inſtituters of Paganiſm were ſo Enthuſiaſtically tranſported in the ſingle Contemplation of every Divine Power or Manifeſtation in the World, that being rapt with Admiration of the great Conſequence thereof, they were reſolved in their Devotional Thoughts and Meditations to dwell on every one ſingly alone, and not to huddle up all thoſe Excellencies in one general Worſhip; they having ſo reverent eſteem of every Attribute of God, that they thought it ſufficient of it ſelf to conſtitute a Deity. And therefore they underſtood by theſe Perſonal Appellations, whether Male or Female, (for God, ſay they, is ἀῤῥενόθηλυς) one and the ſame Deity under This or That Manifeſtation of himſelf in the World, according to which they gave him a proper Name, as if he were a different Perſon; when as it is but with him as with the Ocean, who changes his Name according ro the Coaſts he beats upon.

Εἷς μὲν ἐὼν, πολλῇσι δ' ἐπωνυμίῃσιν ἀρηρώς

as Dionyſius notes in his Geographical Poem.

6. And if they took into their Religious Conſideration the Worſhip of the Genii or Spirits, whether ſuch as whoſe Appearance was ſo horrid and terrible that it cauſed Affrightment, or ſuch as whoſe benign Aſpect was accompanied with a more pleaſing Wonderment and Joy; theſe they look'd upon alſo as eminent Manifeſtations of that One Eternal Deity which runs through all things, giving Life and Being to all, whom therefore they called Ζῆνα and Δία· whom though they make three, viz. Jupiter cœleſtis, Jupiter marinus, and Jupiter infernalis, the latter two whereof they alſo call Neptune and Pluto; yet it is one Eternal Spirit (ſay they) which we Worſhip in theſe Three, whoſe Kingdom and Dominion is over all, though the Adminiſtration thereof differ according to the Nature and Merit of them that are Governed. The ſame Apology we may make for that Honour we do to the deceaſed Heroes, whoſe noble Perſons and refined Spirits the Divine Excellencies more illuſtriouſly ſhone through than ordinary. For in truth we do not ſo much Worſhip them, as God ſhining through them; as he that bows to the Sun or Moon through a Glaſs-window, intends not his Obeiſance to the Glaſs, but to thoſe Celeſtial Luminaries; nor do we bow our Body to thoſe Luminaries, but to God who to us appears through all things.

CHAP.

CHAP. V.

1. The Heathens Feſtivals, Temples and Images. 2. Their Apology for Images. 3. The Significancy of the Images of Jupiter and Æolus. 4. Of Ceres. 5. Of Apollo. 6. Their Plea from the Significancy of their Images, that their uſe in Divine Worſhip is no more Idolatrous than that of Books in all Religions; as alſo from the uſe of Images in the Nation of the Jews. 7. Their Anſwer to thoſe that object the Impoſſibleneſs of repreſenting God by any outward Image. 8. That we are not to envy the Heathen, if they hit upon any thing more weighty in their Apologies for their Religion; and why.

1. NOW according to the various Appearances of This One Divinity, that puts forth it ſelf every where, our Anceſtors Inſtituted various Religious Rites and Ceremonies, appointed ſundry ſorts of Feſtivals and Sacrifices, built Temples, ſet up Altars with ſeveral Inſcriptions, and erected Images proper and ſignificative of that or this Divine Power, which at ſet Times and Places they were to Worſhip. To which Religious Cuſtoms under which we were Born we ſubmitted our ſelves without being obnoxious, as we conceive, to any juſt Imputation of Idolatry.

2. For we Worſhipped not thoſe Images which we thus erected, no more than any other Nation does the Holy Volumes of their Law or Religion, when either they pray out of them, have them read, or uſe them in the Adminiſtring of an Oath. For that Reverence that is done, is not done to the Book, but to him whoſe Word it is ſaid to be, to him whom they pray to or ſwear by: And thoſe Images to us are not unlike the Religious Books of others, they being very expreſſive of the Circumſtances of the Exertion of that Divine Power which we at any time adore. As you may ſee in the Images of Jupiter, Æolus, Ceres, Apollo and the reſt.

3. For Jupiter, who was their God of Thunder, as he bore in his Left Hand a Royal Scepter, his Right Hand was charg'd with Thunder, according to that of the Poet,

--------Cui dextra triſulcis
Ignibus armata eſt--------

Æolus, the God of the Winds, he was made ſtanding at the Mouth of a Cave, having a Linnen Garment girt about him, and a Smith's Bellows under his Feet: At his right Hand ſtood Juno covered with a Cloud, putting a Crown upon his Head, as having given her Kingdom to him; and on his Left Hand ſtood a Nymph up to the middle in Water, which Juno gave him to Wife. Which Image is very ſignificative of the Nature and Cauſes of the Winds, and ſo intelligible, if we do but take notice that Juno is the Air, that it wants no further explication.

4. Ceres was made in the figure of a Country-Woman ſitting upon an Ox, having in her Right Hand a Plough-ſhare, and a Basket of Seeds hanging from her Arm, in her Left Hand a Sickle and a Flayl: Juno the Goddeſs of the Air and of the Clouds was on one ſide, and Apollo or the Sun on the other; intimating how the warmth of the Sun and kindly ſhowrs are to ſecond the Labour of the Husbandman, or elſe nothing will proſper.

5. The Figure of Apollo or the Sun was thus; His Image had a Youthful Countenance: In his Right Hand he held a Quiver of Arrows and a Bow, in his Left an Harp; under his Feet was a terrible Monſter, in the form of a Serpent having three Heads, viz. of a Wolf, of a Lion, and of a fawning Dog: On the Top of his Head was a Golden Trivet, and about his Temples a Crown of Twelve precious Stones. The meaning whereof, tho' it may ſeem abſtruſe at firſt ſight, yet if you conſider it a while, it very fitly ſets out the nature of the Sun, and of Time whoſe Knowledge depends on him, and of Knowledge which depends on Time. His Bow and Arrows ſignify nothing but the Darting of his Beams from ſo far a diſtance, whence he is called ἑκηβόλος Ἀπόλλων by the Poets: And his youthful countenance nothing but his unfading vigour, which Age ſeems not at all to diminiſh. His Harp ſignifies the dance of the Planets about him, as if he ſate and played to them, or at leaſt according to the other Hypotheſis, as if he led the dance himſelf, playing on his Harp, and the reſt of the Planets followed him. The twelve precious ſtones ſignifie the twelve ſigns of of the Zodiack, with which he is incircled; and the three-headed Serpent deciphers Time in the threefold notion of it, Paſt, Preſent, and to come. The time paſt, as Macrobius notes, like a Ravenous Wolf devouring the memory of things: The time preſent being urgent and raging like a Lion through its inſtant Actuoſity; and the time to come flattering us with hopes like a fawning Dog. And laſtly the Golden Trivet or Tripod denotes the Threefold object of Knowledge which Time affords them that are wiſe, ſuch as Homer makes Calchas the Prieſt of Apollo to be,

Ὃς ἤδη τά τ' ἐόντα, τά τ' ἐσσόμενα, πρό τ' ἐόντα,

Who knew what was, what is, and what's to come.

So that it is apparent how ſtrange ſoever the uſe of theſe Images may ſeem, that it was no other than that of Books; they raiſing our Minds (and it may be with a greater advantage of Devotion and Admiration) into the ſenſe and conſideration of that Divine Power which we were to adore.

6. Wherefore that Imputation is very unjuſt that would charge us with Idolatry properly ſo called, as if we did Worſhip the Idols themſelves. But to uſe Images in Divine Worſhip, (there being that Convenience of them which we have alledged,) we queſtion not but that it is lawful in it ſelf, where there is no Command from God to the contrary. And where his Command is moſt expreſs, as it is to the Nation of the Jews, yet it is very well known that there was alſo a Religious uſe of Images; as is plain in the Cherubims that covered the Mercy-ſeat, and the Brazen Serpent which they were to look up to in the Wilderneſs. For through that did the Almighty exert his healing Power upon thoſe that were ſtung with fiery Serpents. * For ſuch Effects as theſe are not from Nature or Art, but from the Efficacy of Religion, as the very word Teleſme does plainly bewray. Now it ſeems to us a thing incredible that God ſhould command any thing abſolutely Evil in it ſelf, and therefore 'tis undeniable, but that the uſe of Images in Divine Worſhip is not in it ſelf Evil.

* See further of this, Book 8. chap. 15.

7. Nor does that which is mainly and moſt ordinarily alledged againſt Images in Religious Worſhip, (viz. That it is impoſſible to repreſent God by any outward Figure) ſeem of any weight at all to us. For neither do we admit that theſe Images are intended for Figures and Repreſentations of God, but only for the Senſible ſetting out to our ſight the Effects and Objects of thoſe Powers and Attributes which we adore in him: And if we admit it, yet we have wherewith to defend our ſelves. For if we are not to uſe Images in Divine Worſhip, becauſe they cannot ſet out the Nature of God as he is in himſelf, we are not at all to think of him when we Worſhip him; the Thoughts concerning his very Nature or Perſon which we frame of him (tho' haply they be not without ſome Truth) having yet as little ſimilitude with him whom we Worſhip, as the Imagination of a Man Born blind hath with the Glorious Image of the Sun: He feels indeed the comfortable Effects of his preſence upon his Body, but his Eyes did never ſee, nor can his Mind conceive how Illuſtrious he is to look upon.

8. To this purpoſe the moſt witty, cautious and ſubtle ſort of the Pagans Apologize for themſelves: Nor are we to envy them, if they hit upon any thing more weighty and ſubſtantial in their Apologie. For Chriſtianity is ſo excellent in it ſelf, that we need not phanſy any Religions worſe than they are, the better to ſet off its Eminency. Beſides, the more tolerable Senſe we can make of the Affairs of the Ancient Pagans, the eaſier Province we ſhall have to maintain againſt Prophane and Atheiſtical Men, to whom if you would grant, That Providence had utterly neglected for ſo many Ages together all the Nations of the World, except that little handful of the Jews, they would whether you would or no from thence infer, That there was no Providence over them neither, and conſequently no God; it being a thing incredible, that there ſhould be any Providence at all in things of the higheſt concernment, unleſs it diſpread it ſelf further than into ſuch an inconſiderable part of the World as ſome imagine. But that the Heathen were not ſo utterly deſtitute of Means as ſome would make them, St. Paul ſeems largely enough to declare in his Epiſtle to the Romans. And that their Condition was not ſo horridly deſperate, he may perhaps ſeem to intimate from that favourable expreſſion in his Speech to the Athenians, where he ſaith, God connived at the times of their Ignorance. But I had almoſt forgot my ſelf, my Deſign being not to Apologize for the Heathens, but to anſwer what they Apologize for themſelves: Which I ſhall do very briefly.

Rom. 1. 19, 20.

Acts 17. 30.

CHAP.

CHAP. V.

1. An Answer to the last Apology of the Pagans; as first, That it concerns but few of them. 2. And that those few were rather of the Σεβόμυσοι, than pure Pagans. 3. That the Worship of Images is expresly forbid by God in the Law of Moses. 4. That they rather obscure than help our Conceptions of the Divine Powers. 5. That there is great Danger of these Images Intercepting the Worship directed to God. 6. He refers the curious and unsatisfied to the fuller Discussions in Polemical Divinity.

1. First therefore we are to consider, that what has been here alledged in Defence of the Pagans, concerns but very few of them, the Generality of them being Idolaters in the grossest Sense, as is manifest out of the Complaints of David, Psalm 135. as also out of the Epistle of Jeremy, and other places, which imply at least, that the Heathens did not adore the true God, but those Demons, which they falsely believ'd to be joyned to the Images.

2. Secondly, It is questionable whether those few, such as Pythagoras, Socrates, Plato, Plotinus, Plutarch, and the like, are to be reputed mere Pagans, or whether they came nearer to the nature of the Σεβόμυσοι, having been imbued with the Knowledge of that one Eternal Spirit which is the Creator and Governor of all things, by conversing with the Jews, or by conversing with them that had conversed with them. And that they had the Knowledge of Him by the Communication of some such hidden Tradition or Cabbala, seems manifest in that these more holy and more expert Men in Divine Mysteries amongst the Heathens taught also the Triunity, as well as the Immateriality of the Godhead; I mean the First and Chiefest of them, such as Pythagoras and Plato: which being a Reach above humane Wit, and a thing so useful to be taken into Christianity, is to me a strong Argument that it was none of their own Invention, but that they had it either from those that were inspired themselves, or had received it from those that were inspired.

3. Thirdly, The making of Graven Images and falling down before them, is a thing expresly forbidden to the People of God in that Religion where himself thought fit to appear in the framing of it; which is an evident Sign of the Faultiness of the Use of Idols in Divine Worship.

4. Fourthly, The pretended Serviceableness of Images for the instructing the People and the setting out to them the nature of that Divine Power which they are to adore, seems very Questionable. For the presence of so strange an Object before their Eyes striking the outward Sense so strongly, may rather hinder the inward Operation of their Mind from more pure and genuine Conceptions of God, than at all further them in the framing of them; and as Memory is too often lost by the use of Writing, so the Power of Imagination as to Divine Things, may be spoiled and enfeebled by these false Props of external Representations.

5. Fifthly and lastly, There is a great Danger, of which the Jealousie of God seems very sensible, that these Vice-Royes and Representatives of the Divine Majesty, as they would have them to be, may prove treacherous to the highest Soveraignty, intercepting and keeping to themselves all those Prayers and Praises, all those Immolations and Sacrifices that are offered by the People. For the unskilful Multitude seeing the Priest Sacrifice, and all the People pour forth their Devotions with their Eyes fixed on the Idol, set upon some high Place, carved into all the Members and Organs of Life and Sense so artificially that he seems to sight to be a living Person, are easily driven through the Weakness of their Wit to imagine him to be such indeed, and to adore him as a living and powerful Deity, such as is able to do them good or hurt according to his own Pleasure, as Grotius well observeth out of S. Augustine.

6. But if this our Answer shall seem liable to a further Reply, I shall remit the Disputacious to the mercy of School-Divines, and the rack of Polemical Theology, my self being better employed in laying on a Charge upon universal Paganism so evidently true, that the craftiest and most refined Wits of them all shall not be able to elude it.

CHAP.

CHAP. VI.

1. A new and unanſwerable Charge againſt Paganiſm, namely, That they adored the Divine Powers no further than they reached the Animal Life, as appears from their Dijoves and Vejoves. 2. Jupiter altitonans, Averruncus, Robigus and Tempeſtas. 3. From the pleaſant Spectacle of their God Pan: what is meant by his Pipe, and the Nymphs dancing about him. 4. What by his being deemed the Son of Hermes and Mercury, and what by his beloved Nymph Syrinx, his Wife Echo and Daughter Jambe. 5. The Interpretation of his Horns, Hairineſs, red Face, long Beard, Goats Feet, and Laughing Countenance.

1. THat heavy Accuſation of Polytheiſm, Atheiſm and Idolatry which was laid upon the Heathens you have already heard, and with what Slights of Wit they have endeavoured to defend themſelves, pretending that in the Variety of their Worſhips, it is but one Eternal Deity that they adore according to the Manifeſtations of his Preſence who worketh all in all. The Charge we ſhall lay upon them now is not, I confeſs, ſo grievous, but more devoid of all ſhew of any ſolid Anſwer whereby they may quit themſelves thereof. And in brief it is this, viz. That though we ſhould admit that they did Worſhip one Eternal and Incorporeal Deity, infinitely Wiſe, Good and Powerful; yet it is evident that they worſhipped him only in ſuch Manifeſtations of him that neareſt concerned the Animal Life; that is, in ſuch as were moſt dreadful and terrible, or elſe moſt pleaſing and agreeable thereunto. Hence it is, as I ſaid before, that they had their Vejoves as well as Dijoves, both which was but Apollo, or the Sun who is the viſible Dieſpiter or Lucetius: but becauſe he ſometimes by the ſultry Heat he cauſes in the Air raiſes alſo Plagues and Peſtilences, he was worſhipped likewiſe under the name of Vejovis, whoſe Temple was of old to be ſeen in Rome, and his Image holding Arrows in his Hand as being ready to hurt; as you may ſee in Gellius.

2. The Horrour of Thunder alſo made them worſhip Jupiter under the notion or Title of ὑψιβρεμέτης or ἀρχικέραυνος, of Jupiter altitonans, as the Latins call him; and the Scripture it ſelf forbears not to call Thunder the Voice of God. The fore-named Critick adds to this Ἀπόλλων ἀποτρόπαιος (as the Greeks would Style him) Averruncus and Robigus; the latter whereof, he ſays, is to be pacified for the Security of our Corn, the other for the ſafety of our ſelves. But the former ſeems rather a general Name belonging to every Divine Power that is to be atoned to keep off Miſchief, than to any one particular Manifeſtation of the Wrath of God in the World. Such as is a Storm or Tempeſt at Sea, which the Romans made a particular Deity after their Conſul Cornelius Scipio had eſcaped the Danger.

Te quoque, Tempeſtas, meritam delubra fatemur,
Cum pené eſt Corſis obruta claſſis aquis,

3. Such Inſtances as concern the Pleaſure and Gratification of the Animal Life are innumerable; but ſome we muſt produce, that thereby you may the better judge of the reſt. And it ſeems their God Pan, by whom, as his name denotes, they underſtood the Univerſe, was a very pleaſant Spectacle to them, both by his Picture, and other Conceits they had of him. For why was he pictured with a Pipe in his Hand and a Laughing Countenance? Why were the Nymphs imagined to Dance about him at the ſound of his Muſick? but that they did acknowledge that all things in the World are ordered with an excellent Congruity and Harmony; ſo that the Inhabitants thereof, that is, the Souls of living Creatures, which are the Nymphs here mentioned, being touched every one with the Senſe of what is moſt grateful and agreeable to it ſelf, are conceived to skip and dance for joy. That they meant the Material or Viſible World by Pan, is apparent as well from what they write of his Birth and Amours, as from other Obſervables in his Image.

4. For he is ſaid to be the Son of Mercury or Hermes, which is the Divine Λόγος, the * Λόγος ἐνδιάθετος of God, as the World is the † Λόγος προφορικός. Now the Univerſe being but one, Pan is rightly exempted from that rabble of Sweet-hearts that

* The inward Word.

† The outward Word or Speech.

the

the other Deities are feigned to have had; for there is no body for him to love, only the Reflection of himself from the Minds of Men that contemplate him. This, when his Nature is returned most truly, and the Order of Things and Ends of Providence are rightly understood, is his beloved Nymph Syrinx; if more rudely and brokenly Reflected, his Wife Echo, of whom was born Jambe a tattling Gossip full of ridiculous Stories and old-wives Tales, full of Scoffs and Cavils and Misrepresentations of those Things that are observed in the World. By which reputed Daughter of Pan may be well understood the false-Sects of Philosophy and vain Superstitions that ever abounded in all Ages, which though they may please the ignorant, yet seem either Idle or Impious to them that know better.

5. But it is most manifest by his Image, that they understood the Universe by him. For what could be meant by his acute Horns and the Hispidity or Hairiness of his Skin, but the Effluvium of Particles or the Rays of things, burring out from all Bodies that act at a distance? which is most Conspicuous in the Lights of Heaven, which are so far removed, and which yet we see, as also all other Objects of Sight, by vertue of a Pyramid, whose Basis is in the Object, and Cuspis is in our Eye. These in general are the Horns of Pan: and the bright Redness of his Face denotes that Colour in the Sky; as his prolix Beard the streaming Light of the Sun and Moon; and his being cloathed with the spotted Skin of a Leopard the Stars; it may be also the spottedness of the Sea and the Earth, the one with Islands and the other with Flowers. That he is partly Man and partly Beast, denotes the Comprehension of all living Creatures as well Irrational as Rational; and that he stands on the Feet of a Goat, that the Species of things could not subsist without proclivitie to Lust, of which the Goat is a notorious Emblem. And that he is made Laughing, signifies that the whole World is Res Ludicra, as that merry Prophet Mahomet speaks; to whom we may adjoin the suffrage of the Poet who makes Man's Life a Stage-play.

Σκηνὴ πᾶς ὁ βίος, καὶ παίγνιον ἢ μανδὲ παίζειν
Τὼ σπουδὴν μελέτεις, ἢ φέρε πὰς ὁδώσας.

This Life's a Scene of Fools, a sportful Stage,
Where Grief attends him that is over-sage.

But this I have touch'd upon already. We pass therefore to their particular Deities.

CHAP. VII.

1. That as the World or Universe was deified in Pan, so were the parts thereof in Cœlius, Juno, Neptune, Vulcan, Pluto, Ops, Bacchus, Ceres, &c. 2. That the Night was also a Deity, and why they Sacrificed a Cock to her, with the like Reason of other Sacrifices. 3. Interior Manifestations that concern the Animal Life, namely that of Wrath and Love, which are the Pagans Mars and Venus. 4. Minerva, Mercurius, Eunomia, &c. Manifestations referred to the Middle Life. 5. The agreement of the Greeks Religion with the Romans, as also with the Ægyptians. 6. Their Worship of the River Nilus, &c. 7. That the Religion of the rest of the Nations of the World was of the same nature with that of Rome, Greece and Ægypt, and reached no further than the Animal Life. 8. And that their worshipping of Men deceased stood upon the same ground.

1. THis Universal Specimen of the Divine Power, the World, as they have deified the Whole, so they have also made Deities of the Parts thereof. For their Uranus or Cælius, what is it but the Heavens? Their Jupiter and Juno, the Air and Clouds? Neptune the Sea? Vulcan (that limping Deity) the Fire? who is said to halt, quod sine ligneo tanquam baculo progredi nequeat, as Phornutus notes, meaning by his going with a Stick the Fewel he is sustained by. By Pluto they mean the interiour parts of the Earth, out of which Gold and Silver and other precious Commodities are digged. By Ops or Bona Dea the exteriour Parts of the Soil in general, that afford the Neceſſaries of Life to both Man and Beaſt. Hither alſo is to be referred Bacchus, Ceres, Pomona, Flora, and ſuch like Deities; as to Cælius the Hoſt of Heaven, and in ſpecial the Sun and Moon, the moſt famous Deities among the Pagans: The latter goes under the name of Diana, the former of Apollo, and it may be of Veſta. For her Temple was round, and a Fire was kept there conſtantly by the Veſtal Virgins in the midſt of the Temple; which denotes that the Sun is in the midſt of the World: and her Name ἑστία, which is from ἵστημι, that he ſtands ſtill, according to that more accurate Hypotheſis.

2. Neither were they ſenſible only of the pleaſure of the Lights of Heaven, but alſo of the convenience of Night, that dark ſhadow of the Earth, within whoſe Sable Curtains all living Creatures ſo ſweetly repoſe themſelves: Wherefore they made Night alſo a Goddeſs, under the name of Latona or Nox; and they Sacrificed a Cock to her, as Ovid tells us in his Faſtorum, becauſe he was a diſturber of the reſt and ſilence the Night is the beſtower of to wearied Mortals. So they Sacrifieed a Dog to Diana for his bold barkings at the Moon, a Goat to Bacchus for brouzing on the Vine, a Sow to Ceres for rooting up her Corn. Such obvious Reaſons as theſe brought in an infinite number of Ceremonies, which will not be worth the while to run over. The Nature of the Deities themſelves which the Pagans worſhipped being a ſufficient Argument of the Senſe and Meaning of their Religion, and that it reached no farther than the Animal Life.

3. We have named the moſt eminent exteriour Manifeſtations of the Divine Power in the World: We ſhall now give a few Inſtances of the Interiour. And the moſt notable, I conceive, are thoſe two Natural Paſſions of Wrath and Love; which Powers they adored under the names of Mars and Venus. The Schoolmen would call them the Iraſcible and Concupiſcible, to which two they reduce the reſt of the Paſſions of the Mind: but we cannot inſiſt upon theſe Things.

4. There are alſo other Interiour Deities, as I may ſo call them, ſuch as Pallas or Minerva, Mercurius, Eunomia, and the like: all which reach no further than the Middle Life I ſpoke of, and are the Improvements of Man's Reaſon in the knowledge of Nature, the diſcipline of War, Political Juſtice, skill in Trades and Traffick, the Invention of Letters, of Muſick, of Architectonicks, and (if you will) of all kinds of Mathematicks (an Inſtance whereof you have in that Precept of the Oracle, that bad them double the Cube;) which becauſe they may be in us without any Senſe of the Divine Life at all, I think we may alſo venture to call Animal or Natural. For as for him that is the beſt accompliſh'd in theſe, yet that of the Apoſtle may be ſtill true of him, Animalis homo non capit quæ ſunt Spiritûs Dei, The Natural Man is uncapable of Spiritual and Divine Matters.

1 Cor. 2. 14.

5. That the Religion of the Romans, upon which we have chiefly inſiſted hitherto, reached no further than the Animal Life, is plain. The Greeks differ'd little or nothing from them, their Βωμὸς τῶν δώδεκα Θεῶν being intended to Twelve of thoſe Deities which were acknowledged by the Romans, and ſuch as we have named already. And for the Ægyptians, it is evident alſo that their Religion was no better, if not worſe; their Serapis being the ſame with Pan or the Univerſe, according to the Conceſſion of his own Oracle; and their Oſiris and Iſis but the Sun and the Moon, Deities ſcarcely left out of the Worſhip of any Heathens. It is true there is a People in Africk that curſe the Sun by reaſon of his immoderate Heat; but it is the ſtronger Argument where the Comfort of his Rays is felt, (and in what Nation are they not?) that the rude People did as much bleſs him and adore him.

6. The River Nilus was a great God with the Ægyptians too, as Ganges with the Indians, they both of them wonderfully fattening the Soil by their Overflowings. The Divinity of Nilus, Apollonius alſo that rambling Greek did ſuperſtitiouſly acknowledge, by doing his Devotions to the River within the ſight and noiſe of his roaring Cataracts, after he had viſited the Gymnoſophiſts. But for themſelves it is no wonder they ſhould deifie ſo grand a Benefactor, they Worſhipping ſuch things as liv'd on his Benevolence. For ſuch were the living Creatures, Birds, Beaſts and creeping Things, to which they did Divine honour; nay you may add Trees and Plants, Onyons and Garlick not excepted, as every one caſts into their Diſh.

7. What we have ſaid of Rome, Greece and Ægypt, may be made equally to appear concerning the Religion of all the parts of the World beſide, as of Arabia, Perſia, India, China, Tartary, Germany, Scythia, Guinea, Æthiopia, and in the New-found World, as in Virginia, Mexico, Peru and Braſilia. But it would be as tedious as needleſs to Harp ſo long on one String by ſo Voluminous an Induction; and it is more warrantwarrantable to be ſparing than over-laviſh in ſo copious and confeſſed a Matter. Whoever reads thoſe Writers, which are numerous enough, that can inform them in this inquiry, he will aſſuredly find, That the Religion of the Heathens reached no further than the Objects of the Animal Life; and that though they may go under ſeveral Names, yet that they are the ſame Things every where, viz. Wrath, Luſt and Senſuality; or ſuch things as are in ſubſerviency to theſe, as Corn, Wine, and other Requiſites for the neceſſities or delights of Man; as alſo thoſe Powers that have an Influence upon theſe, as the Sun, Moon and Stars, Fire, Water, Air, and the like.

8. We may add to theſe Inanimate things, Eminent Perſons whom they could not but acknowledge as their great Benefactors. Such were their Law-givers, Kings and Commanders that fought their Battels ſucceſsfully; the firſt Inventors of Arts or any uſeful Contrivance for the convenience of Life. Wherefore the moſt ſubtil Defenders of the Worſhip of the Pagans, let them elude the charge of Idolatry as well as they can, or Polytheiſm, yet they can never avoid the Imputation, That their ſerving of God in the Heathens Ceremonies, is not any thing more than the acknowledging that Power that is able to gratifie or grieve the Spirit of the mere Natural Man.

CHAP. VIII.

1. That Judaiſm alſo reſpected nothing elſe but the Gratifications of the Animal Life, as appears in their Feſtivals. 2. That though the People were held in that low Diſpenſation, yet Moſes knew the meaning of his own Types, and that Immortality that was to be revealed by Chriſt. 3. That their Sabbaths reached no further than things of this Life. 4. Nor their Sabbatical years and Jubilees. 5. Nor their Feaſt of Trumpets. 6. Nor their Feaſt of Tabernacles. 7. Nor their Pentecoſt. 8. Nor laſtly their Feaſt of Expiation.

1. AND truly that the abſolute Tranſcendency of the Chriſtian Religion may be the better underſtood, I cannot here omit that Judaiſm does very much ſymbolize with Paganiſm in this Point we are upon. For though the Jews were very right and orthodox in this, in that they did direct their Worſhip to that One and only true God that made Heaven and Earth, and is the Author and Giver of every good Gift; and that without the Offence and Scandal of Idolatrous Worſhip; yet under this Diſpenſation of Moſes, he ſeems openly to promiſe nothing more to the People of the Jews than the preſent Enjoyments of this Natural Life, nor threatens any thing but the Plagues thereof, as ſeems manifeſt, Deuteronomy 28. where the Bleſſings of Obedience to Moſes his Law, and the Curſings of Diſobedience are largely ſet down.

2. Not but that I can eaſily believe, that Moſes himſelf underſtood the Myſtery of Immortality, and the Promiſe of thoſe Eternal Joys to be revealed by the Meſſias in the fulneſs of time, as alſo the meaning of all the Types that refer unto him; and that his Succeſſors alſo in that Nation, their Holy Men or Prophets, had ſome meaſurable Knowledge thereof: But my meaning is, that the Generality of the Jews were locked up in this lower kind of Diſpenſation, and that Moſes his Law in the Externals thereof drives at no higher than this; as is apparent from all the Feſtivals thereof, they none of them concerning any thing more than the Enjoyments and Conveniences of this preſent Life.

3. For as for their Sabbaths, they were but a Memorial of the Creation of this viſible World, the belief whereof the Sadducees embraced as well as others, though they denied that there was either Angel or Spirit; for there is not any mention of the Creation of any ſuch thing in the external Letter of Moſes, and therefore the Appearances of Angels they look'd upon as only preſent Emanations from God, which ceaſed as he diſappeared.

4. And for their Sabbatical year, as alſo the year of Jubilee, which was celebrated at the end of ſeven times ſeven years, beſides that they are not without a Reflection upon the Creation of the World, which was compleated at the ſeventh day, wherein therefore God reſted; the other Reaſons, according to the Text of Moſes, reach no further than the things of this preſent Life. For as concerning the Sabba- tical year, the Precept runs thus: Six years thou ſhalt ſow thy Land, and gather the Fruits thereof; but the ſeventh year thou ſhalt let it reſt, and lie ſtill, that the poor of thy People may eat: in like manner thou ſhalt deal with thy Vineyard and with thy Olive-yard. And for the Jubilee, it is evident that it had a ſecular uſe, for the Releaſement of Servants, and reſtoring of Lands to their firſt Owners who were neceſſitated to ſell them. Thoſe Feaſts therefore were Inſtituted in order to a Politi-tical Good.

5. Their Feaſt of Trumpets and their New-Moons ſeem indeed to have an higher uſe, to call the People together to hear the Law: but I told you before that the Bleſſings and Curſings of the Law were merely Temporal. And for their Sacrifices of Thankſgiving and of Atonement, they were in reference to what is Good or Evil to this life of the Fleſh.

6. Their Feaſt of Tabernacles was Inſtituted in remembrance that the Children of Iſrael dwelt in Tabernacles and Booths, when God brought them out of the Land of Ægypt. As alſo their Paſſover was a more particular Repreſentation of the manner of their Delivery out of the Hands of the Ægyptians; as you may ſee Exodus the 12.

7. Their Pentecoſt, that is, the fiftieth day after the Paſſover, in this they offered two Wave-loaves; as upon the ſecond day of the Paſſover they offered a Sheaf of the firſt Fruits of their Harveſt: So that thoſe Solemnities reſpected merely the Fruits of the Earth.

8. And laſtly, as for the Feaſt of Expiation, wherein the Scape-Goat carried away the Sins of the People and the Evils deſerved thereby into the Wilderneſs; being, as I have already intimated, that thoſe Plagues or Evils denounced in Moſes his Law be but of a ſecular Conſideration, it is plain that this particular Ceremony in the Religion of Moſes, in the Letter thereof, reaches no further than the Pleaſures or Aggrievances of this Mortal Life: It being reſerved for Chriſt alone to bring the moſt certain and moſt comfortable News of that Eternal Joy which we ſhall be made partakers of with him for ever in the Heavens, who was to aboliſh Death, and to bring Life and Immortality to light through the Goſpel, as S. Paul ſpeaks.

2 Tim. 1. 10.

CHAP. IX.

1. The Pre-eminency of Judaiſm above Paganiſm. 2. The Authors of the Religions of the Heathens who they were. 3. How naturally lapſed Mankind falls under the ſuperſtitious Tyranny of Devils. 4. The palpable effects of this Tyranny in the Nations of America. 5. That that falſe and wild Reſignation in the Quakers does naturally expoſe them to the Tyranny of Satan. 6. That their Affectation of blind Impulſes is but a preparation to demoniacal Poſſeſſion, and a way to the reſtoring of the vileſt Superſtitions of Paganiſm.

1. WHat ſhall we ſay then? Is there no real difference at all betwixt Judaiſm and Paganiſm? Yes, a great deal. For though they both ſeem to agree in this, that neither of them reach further in their End than the Gratifications of the Animal Life (it being indeed incredible, that their Souls, that are ſo low ſunk that they cannot ſee beyond this preſent State, ſhould emerge to ſo high a pitch of Sanctification as is underſtood by that Life we call Divine:) yet Judaiſm has the Pre-eminence far above Paganiſm. Firſt, In that thoſe rich Diſcoveries of the Goſpel are ſo exactly adumbrated and ſhadowed out in the Moſaical Types, that a Man may be aſſured that they were prefigured by them. Secondly, That the Worſhip of God according to the Rites of Moſes is more pure and devoid of all ſuſpition of Idolatry, which the Religion of the Heathens was not, as has been already declared.

2. Laſtly, In that God himſelf was the Inſtitutor of the Religion of the Jews, when as the Rites of the Heathens were found out and appointed either by Angels, as ſome would have it, ſuch as were the Overſeers and Guardians of ſeveral Nations and Countries, (who if they were good, the Inhabitants of the Earth it ſeems revolted from them, and corrupted their Primitive Inſtitutions ſo long ago, that the Knowledge of them never arrived at our Hands;) or elſe at the beſt they were were but the better ſort of lapſed Spirits, or crafty Political Men, or impure and malicious Devils. And ſo far as Hiſtory will give us light, all the Religions of the World, ſaving thoſe of Moſes and Chriſt, have no better Authors than thoſe of the Three laſt Kinds, as you may gather out of what has been already ſpoken; and too many of them, I ſuſpect, have been ordained by the fouleſt and wickedeſt of all the lapſed Crew.

3. For Mankind being ſo much ſunk and fallen from God by the Temptation of the Devil, like a Bird of Prey he follows his Prize, and hunts there where his Game is moſt, hovering over the Sons of Men, whom he having ſtruck down to the Earth, lets not his hold go, but having once ſeized upon them, keeps them as long as he can within his own Power; it falling to his ſhare to domineer over Men as naturally as wicked Men to circumvent and domineer one over another, I mean the more powerful and ſubtle over the more weak and unwiſe.

4. Of which the whole New-found World ſeems to be an ample Teſtimony; there being very few Places in America, but ſuch as were diſcovered to be palpably and viſibly under the Power of the old Serpent, their religious Rites and Ceremonies being as uncouth and antick and more bloody and cruel than thoſe that Witches are known to be tied to here. For the Mind of theſe Apoſtate Spirits is, that the Remnant of the Law of Nature and Light of Reaſon in Man ſhould be quite obliterated, and that Mankind ſhould be wholly their Vaſſals, and that they ſhould forget the Nobleneſs of their own Condition, and ſtoop to whatſoever they require of them, which are commonly ſuch things as become none but Mad-men and Beaſts.

5. And therefore it is a very dangerous and falſe kind of Reſignation, in thoſe that would pretend to a more than ordinary pitch of Religion, to bid adieu to the Rules of Humanity and Reaſon under the pretence of the Exerciſe of Self-denial. For thus giving away their own Will in thoſe things that are laudable and good, they give room for the Devil to enter and to poſſeſs them Soul and Body, and to drive them to the moſt vile, ſordid, the moſt uncivil and ridiculous, nay the moſt wicked and impious Actions, that Humane Nature is liable to; as is too much already found in ſome of that Fanatick Sect of the Quakers, who under pretence of crucifying the Dictates of Reaſon and Humanity, and every thing they find their Spirit carried to, ſmother that Lamp of God in them: and being thus got in the dark, are the ſcorn and laughing-ſtock of Satan, that ſworn Enemy of Mankind the Devil; and deluſive Spirits, like ſo many Ignes Fatui, lead them about in this bewildring Night that they have voluntarily brought upon themſelves, by not making uſe of that Talent that God already had given them, but flinging of it away as an unholy thing.

6. This is true of ſeveral of them by their own Confeſſions; and things of a like Nature to theſe are evident in moſt of them, whether themſelves will confeſs it or not: but let them pretend what they will, moſt certain it is, That that Spirit that leads them from the Scriptures, from the uſe of Reaſon, from common Humanity, from their Loyalty to Chriſt that died for them, and whom God has exalted above all Powers and Principalities whatever, either amongſt Men or Angels; that Spirit, I ſay, that ſeduces them from ſuch indiſpenſable Points as theſe, is none other than he that ſeduced Man at firſt, and would again bring him into a ſlaviſh Subjection to himſelf by deſpoiling him utterly of all thoſe tender touches of Spirit, and warrantable Suggeſtions of Reaſon and Natural Conſcience, or the laudable Cuſtoms of his Education, to act merely upon blind Impulſes, of which no account is to be given, that thereby he may be the eaſier poſſeſſed by him, and be hurried to any Vileneſs or Wickedneſs, to any Cruelty or Uncleanneſs without ſtop or reſiſtance; and that the Law of Chriſt being extinguiſhed, the moſt foul and barbarous Form of Religion amongſt the Gentiles may be reſtored. For the virulent Enmity of this Sect againſt the Miniſters of the Goſpel is no obſcure Argument that they are acted by the Envy of the Devil, whoſe Kingdom already has in part, and ſhall ſtill fall more and more by the hand of our Saviour: whoſe Triumphs that we may ſee how juſt they are, we muſt not paſs over Paganiſm ſo favourably as we have, but diſcover the beaſtly and bloody Tyranny of Satan upon the Nations of the Earth in his more execrable Rites and Ceremonies, the Abominableneſs whereof demonſtrates, That they had no other Inſtitutor but himſelf.

CHAP. X.

1. The Devil's Uſurped Dominion of the World, and how Chriſt came to diſpoſſeſs him. 2. The largeneſs of the Devil's Dominion before the coming of Chriſt. 3. The Nation of the Jews, the Light of the World; and what Influence they might have on other Nations in the midſt of the Reign of Paganiſm. 4. That if our Hemiſphere was any thing more tolerable than the American, it is to be imputed to the Doctrine of the Patriarchs, Moſes and the Prophets. 5. That this Influence was ſo little, that all the Nations beſides were Idolaters, moſt of them exerciſing of obſcene and cruel Superſtitions.

1. THat the Kingdoms of the Earth are, or rather were, at the diſpoſal of the Devil, was his own Boaſt to our Saviour when he would have tempted him to fall down and Worſhip him: and it is obſervable that our Saviour diſputes not his Title, though he denyes him that Homage; nay he ſeems to acknowledge his preſent Poſſeſſion and Dominion over this World, by calling him The Prince thereof, though an Uſurper, and ſuch as himſelf came to deliver the Nations from. Now is the Redemption of the World, (for ſo Κρίσις ſignifies, as Grotius has noted) now is the Prince of this World caſt out; and I when I am lifted up from the Earth, will draw all Men unto me.

John 12. 31.

2. Now how abſolute and univerſal his Dominion was before Chriſt came into the World, we ſhall eaſily underſtand if we conſider that he had one Hemiſphere entire, viz. America with the adjacent Iſlands; and this other wherein we live, and which contains thoſe three great Continents, Europe, Aſia and Africk, (ſaving the little that that handful of the People of God did poſſeſs,) what of it was not his?

3. This Family therefore of the Faithful has in all Ages been, as our Saviour ſpeaks, The Light of the World; though never ſo viſible and ſo ſpreading as after his coming: and it is not to be doubted but Wiſe Men of ſeveral Nations converſing formerly with the Jews, whether in Paleſtine or Ægypt, carried ſomething with them whereby they might better the Laws and Rites of thoſe Countries wherein after they did for any time reſide. So that if the Examples of the Tyranny of Satan, or the Impurity of his Inſtitutions and Ceremonies be not ſo many, nor ſo heinous and abominable in theſe Parts of the World as in the other Hemiſphere, it is not to be referred to any Tolerableneſs of his Malice or Wickedneſs, but to the Efficacy of that Light, whoſe appearance very oft is ſo grateful and congruous to the Soul of Man, that though it have been nurſed up in vain and unclean Superſtitions, and bloody and beaſtly Rites of a falſe Religion; yet ſo ſoon as a purer Form is propounded, with confidence it cloſeth with what is Better, and reſiſteth the Power both of a bad Cuſtom and an ill Maſter at once.

4. I ſpeak not this as if the Knowledge of God in the ancient Patriarchs, Moſes and the Prophets, had had any ſuch conſiderable Influence upon the Inhabitants on this ſide of the Earth, as that we were at a loſs for Examples of what was ſufficiently abominable amongſt the Nations; but that, if we may ſeem to have been in any more tolerable Condition than the Americans, it may not be imputed to any Remiſneſs in that Hater and Contemner of Mankind, but to the Providence of God and the Power of Truth, the Light whereof at ſo great Diſtances, and after ſo many Reflections and Refractions, is not without ſome Effect.

5. But ſcarce any where at all of that Efficacy, as to keep off the groſsneſs of Idolatry: but in many Places it was ſo perfectly abſent, that Beaſtlineſs, Obſcenity and execrable Cruelty was added to the other unpardonable Parts of their Superſtitions. It would be an endleſs Buſineſs to bring in all the Inſtances we may, but ſome we muſt, as a pledge of the reſt, and in what order it ſhall happen; and that with all briefneſs poſſible, only naming their Abominations, not inſiſting upon them.

CHAP.

CHAP. XI.

1. The villanous Rites of Cybele the Mother of the Gods. 2. Their Feaſts of Bacchus. 3. Of Priapus, and the Reaſon of ſacrificing an Aſs to him. 4. Their Lupercalia, and why they were celebrated by naked Men. 5. The Feaſts of Flora. 6. Of Venus, and that it was the Obſcene Venus they worſhipped. 7. That their Venus Urania, or Queen of Heaven, is alſo but Earthly Luſt, as appears from her Ceremonies. 8. That this Venus is thought to be the Moon. Her laſcivious and obſcene Ceremonies.

1. THE Firſt that comes to my Thoughts is the Mother of the Deifyed Rable, Cybele, mater Deorum, the Celebration of whoſe Rites had ſo much Villany and Debauchedneſs in it, that the more ingenuous of the Romans were aſhamed of the Office. The Prieſts clad in party-coloured Garments danced antick Dances, writhing about their Heads ilfavouredly, and keeping time with their Hands upon their Breaſts to the tune of the Tabret, Pipe and Cymbals, footed it thus from Houſe to Houſe through the Streets, begging Mony of the People to the uſe of Cybele the Mother of the Gods. From whence they were called Metragyrtæ as well as Menagyrtæ. But they were ſuch noted Beaſts and Drunkards, that their groſs Miſdemeanours, gave an occaſion to that By-word, Circulator Cybelejus, whereby they underſtood a lewd diſſolute Villain, given wholly up to Drunkenneſs and Debauchedneſs.

2. I cannot name the Bacchanalia, but your Phanſies will prevent me, where it ſeems (and it is the Complaint of that ſober Writer Livy) that though the Title of the Feaſt be Bacchus, yet the concluſion is promiſcuous Luſt and Venery, nay Martial Force and Fightings and frequent Murders. For the Opportunities of Night, and the mixture of Men and Women together of ſeveral Ages and Orders, and the incitation of Luſt through the intemperance of Wine made them tranſgreſs all the Bounds of Shame and Modeſty; ſo that with unreſiſtible Violence they would force whom they could, and falling out about their Prey, wound and kill one another; the noiſe and grones of the dying Parties, and the Shrieks of the raviſhed Women not being heard by reaſon of the rattling and tinckling of their Tabrets and Cymbals which ſounded all the while: ſo that it ſeems the Romans as well as the Sicyonii worſhipped Διόνυσον Χοιροφάλλην. But to let that go uninterpreted.

3. Priapus, what a filthy Deity was he? His Image ſo obſcence, as you may ſee in the Poets, that no chaſt Pen would deſcribe it after them, though their Deſcription be but a Teſtimony of the truth of that Abomination. To this impure God they ſacrificed an Aſs: the Reaſon Ovid in his Faſtorum tells at large; but it is ſo laſcivious, that it will be ſufficient only to have hinted it. It ſeems the God was in love with the Nymph Lotis, who lying with the reſt of the Rural Deities in the Graſs in a Moonſhine Night, and being fallen aſleep, Priapus by ſtealth intended to have deflowred her: but when he was juſt about to perpetrate his Villany, old Silenus his Aſs chanced to Bray ſo rudely and loud that he wakened the Nymph and defeated the God of his lewd Purpoſe, bebarring him of his deſired Pleaſure, and expoſing him to the deriſion of all the Rural Deities by the miſhap.

Omnibus ad Lunæ lumina riſus erat.

And therefore the Heathens ſacrifice an Aſs to Priapus, as a reiterated Revenge upon that Beaſt for doing him ſo great a Diſpleaſure.

4. Some ſuch Reaſon as this the ſame Prophet of the Heathens, as I may ſo call him, gives of Mens running up and down ſtark naked in the Lupercalia, which were celebrated to the honour, or rather diſhonour, of Pan Lycæus, Faunus or Sylvanus; for it is nothing but a Memorial alſo of his defeated Lechery. For Hercules having retired into a Wood with his Wife Omphale, a fair and goodly Perſon and richly attired, this Rural God by chance eſpying her, fell in Love with her, watched where they took up their Lodging, and ſilently ſtole into the Cave by Night: where Hercules and Omphale having changed Garments, he lying in his Wives Cloaths, and ſhe in his Lion's Skin, made the luſtful God miſtake ſo unluckily, that it coſt him, beſides the Shame, the bruiſing of his Body againſt the ſides of the Cave, where the en-enraged Heroe caſt him, diſcharging himſelf of ſo uneouth and unſutable a Bed-fellow. And this is the Reaſon why Sylvanus will have his Ceremonies performed by naked Men in deteſtation of that Deceit and Miſtake that may lye under Cloaths.

Veſte Deus luſus fallentes lumina Veſtes
Non amat, & nudos ad ſua ſacra vocat.

The God abus'd by Cloths that hinder ſight, Unto his Feaſts the naked doth invite.

So laſcivious are the Rites, and ſo frivolous the Theology of the Ancient Pagans.

5. Flora is a Name that ſounds more innocently, but yet her Solemnities are not performed without ſhameleſs Wantonneſs and uncivil Mirth; lewd Harlots being appointed to run up and down naked, pleaſing the Spectators with their obſcene Geſtures and meretricious Diſportments.

6. Their Goddeſs Venus can be no ſooner mentioned than ſuſpected, and that deſervedly. For though Plato and Plotinus acknowledge a Twofold Venus, the one Heavenly, the other Popular and Carnal; yet that Diſtinction in the true meaning thereof ſeems only to be lodged amongſt the better ſort of Philoſophers, the People doing their Devotions to that lower Deity, as it appears by Epithets they give her and the Ceremonies they perform to her. For Ἀφροδίτη Σύβαρις which the Argivi, ἑταίρα which the Athenians, and καλλίγλουτος which the Syracuſans worſhipped, can be no other but that Power which is the Preſident of Luſt, as the meaning of thoſe unchaſt Epithets does plainly demonſtrate. And that Venus which was worſhipped at Cyprus, the Phallus which was ſhewn amongſt other of her Ceremonies evidently declares her Nature to be of the ſame kind.

7. There was indeed an Urania, a Celeſtial Venus, ſhe is called the Queen of Heaven in Scripture, Venus Mylitta in prophane Writers, (Mylitta ſignifying γυνήτειρα, as if it were from מילדתא) which was worſhipped as well in ſome parts of Africk as in Babylonia; but the reaſon of her Name, which we have already told, as alſo the manner of her Ceremonies, do manifeſtly ſhew that ſhe was but that Popular Venus we ſpoke of before. For young Women ſat in her Temple, their places being diſtinguiſhed by certain Lines or Threads, which any Stranger that would make uſe of their Bodies, broke, and ſo carried her apart that he had a mind to deal with from the reſt, and gave her a piece of Mony for a requital; and after this Superſtitious kind of Fornication ſhe was permitted to Marry whom ſhe pleaſed. The better ſort of Women made their abode near the Temple in certain Waggons covered like Tents: from whence the abomination was called Succoth Benoth, and the Goddeſs her ſelf Benoth for ſhortneſs, whence the Criticks with great probability derive the Latin Word Venus.

8. This Venus which was worſhipped ſo in ſeveral Places, is conceived by ſome to be the Moon, as by Philochorus, who affirms her to be ſacrificed to, if by Men, in Womens Apparel, if by Women, in Mens Apparel: Which Planet is rightly called the Queen of Heaven, and under the name of Hecate is alſo Maleficarum Venus, as Selden notes. Aſtarte alſo is the ſame Numen, ſerved by her impure Prieſts, Men of filthy and effeminate Manners. The abominableneſs of the Worſhip of this Goddeſs of Luſt is lively ſet out by Euſebius in the Life of Conſtantine, Nemus erat & delubrum extra publicam viam ſpurco Veneris dæmoni in parte verticis montis Libani in fruticeto poſitum. Erat hîc malitiæ Schola omnibus laſcivis, ubi viri non viri muliebri morbo dæmonem placabant. And beſides this, it was, as he ſays, the Rendezvous of all lewd Perſons, Men and Women given to Wantonneſs, where they committed Adultery, Fornication and Sodomy with Impunity, becauſe no Man of any Repute would come amongſt them.

CHAP.

CHAP. XII.

1 Of their famous Eleuſinia, how foul and obſcene they were. 2. The Magnificency of thoſe Rites, and how hugely frequented. 3. That the bottom thereof was but a piece of Baudry, held up by the obſcene and ridiculous Story of Ceres and Baubo. 4. Of their foul Superſtitions in Tartary, Malabar, Narſinga, and the whole Continent of America.

1. THat ſo villainous Doings are found under ſo bad a Title as this Goddeſs bears, may ſeem leſs marvel; but ſuch Solemnities as have had the greateſt fame for Myſteriouſneſs and Sanctity are not found clear of this courſe kind of Filthineſs. We will inſtance in one Example for all, in the Sacra Eleuſinia inſtituted to the honour of Ceres, whom one would expect that ſhe ſhould approve her ſelf an honeſt Country Matron; whereas ſome of the Sights to be ſeen in her Temple (as holy as they made thoſe Myſteries) were but the Enſigns of a Bawdy-houſe, which was the cauſe, I ſuppoſe, that made Socrates and Demonax not care to be initiated.

2. But whether by the Power of deluſive Spirits, or the Fraud of the Prieſts, that cauſed unexpected flaſhings of Light and aſtoniſhing Thunderings, beſides other ſtrange Sights which they exhibited to them that were come to an ἀυτοψία and were called ἐποπτεία, theſe Myſteries were in ſo great requeſt, that they were honoured ſometimes with the preſence of no leſs than Thirty Thouſand Perſons. Claudian in his de Raptu Proſerpinæ ſets out the Solemneſs of theſe Rites very lively. Lib. 1.

Jam mihi cernuntur trepidis delubra moveri
Sedibus, & clarum diſpergere culmina lumen,
Adventum teſtata Dei: jam magnus ab imis
Auditur fremitus terris, Templumque remugit
CECROPIDUM ——

Now do I ſee the trembling Temple move
From the Foundation, and the Roof all bright
To ſend down ſudden day ſhot from above,
Sign of the God's approach; Now ſtrange affrights
Of bellowing murmurs echoing under ground
Fill the CECROPIAN ſtructure with their ſound.

3. But this magnificent Deſcription of the Poet will be quite daſh'd out of Countenance, if we do but produce that ſmart taunt to their foul Superſtition ſet down by the Pen of one of the ancient Fathers, Tota in Adytis divinitas, tota ſuſpiria Epoptarum, totum ſignaculum linguæ, ſimulacrum membri virilis revelatur. To this of * Tertullian we might add out of Theodoret, or rather (as ſome would have it) correct Tertullian's miſtake. For they did (ſay they) exhibit to the Eyes of the Epoptæ τὸ κλέινα, not τὸ φαλλόν. But the Ἰακχαγωγία being part as it were of this Solemnity, Tertullian's miſtake is not quite ſo wide as they would make it, but the Peoples Eyes were befool'd with the ſight of them both. Τὸν κλέινα μὴν ἔχει ἡ Ἑλλάς, ſays * Theodoret; and Clemens gives a reaſon of it, becauſe Ceres after her long Travail in ſeeking Proſerpina, being weary and very ſad, ſate in that heavineſs on a certain Stone, the Greeks call it πέτραν ἀγέλαστον, Ovid Tranſlates it, Saxum triſte, the ſad Stone;

* Adverſus Valent. cap. 1.

* Therap. l. 7.

Hic primùm gelido ſedit mæſtiſſima ſaxo,
Illud Cecropidæ nunc quoque TRISTE vocant.

The Goddeſs being in this diſconſolate Condition, one Baubo, ſaith * Clemens, an old Country-woman, offer'd her to drink: but the Goddeſs being overcome with ſadneſs and refuſing it, ἀναχέλλεται τὰ αἰδοῖα ἡ Βαυβὼ, τέρπεται ὃ τῇ ὄψει ἡ Δηὼ, and afterward it ſhould ſeem more chearfully took off her Cup.

* In Protrept.

4. Thus filthy and impure is the Religion of the Pagans all over, whoſe naſty Ceremonies had not been recorded by the Pens, nor uttered by the Mouths of the holy Fathers, had not Neceſſity done violence to their Modeſty. Nor will I detain you any longer in ſo unſavory a Subject, though we might travel further in this Mire, relating to you the unclean Cuſtoms of Candu in Tartary, where they proſtitute their Siſters, their Daughters, nay their own Wives to Strangers by way of Honour to their Idols: Of Calecut in Malabar, where the King ſtrains Courteſie with the High Prieſt, and will needs have him reap the primitiæ of the Pleaſures of the new-married Bride; in that City alſo is there a Temple dedicated to the Ape, an Animal of noted Lechery: Of Narſinga, where Women proſtitute themſelves to get Money for their Idols: Of the whole Continent of America, where beſides that their common Luſt and Venery has no bounds, they alſo offer their Daughters to be deflowred by their Prieſts, and dedicate young Boys to Sodomy; particularly at Old Port and Puna in Peru, where the Devil ſo far prevailed in their beaſtly Devotions, (as Purchas relates out of Cieza) that there were Boys conſecrated to ſerve in the Temple, and at the times of their Sacrifices and ſolemn Feaſts the Lords and principal Men abuſed them to that deteſtable Filthineſs; and generally in the Hill Countries the Devil under ſhew of Holineſs had brought in that Vice. For every Temple or principal Houſe of Adoration kept one Man, or two, or more, which were attired like Women even from the time of their Childhood, and ſpake like them, imitating them in every thing; with whom under pretext of Holineſs and Religion their principal Men on principal Days had that Helliſh Commerce. But enough and too much of the Foulneſs of the Pagan Superſtition.

CHAP. XIII.

1. The bloody Tyranny of the Devil in his cruel Superſtitions. The whipping of the prime Youth of Lacedæmon at the Altar of Diana. 2. The ſacrificing to Bellona and Dea Syria with the Prieſts own Blood. The Blood of the ſick vow'd to be offered in Cathaia and Mangi, with other Vile and Contemptuous Abuſes of Satan. 3. Other ſcornful and harſh miſuſages in Siam and Pegu. Men ſqueezed to death under the Wheels of an Idol's Chariot in the Kingdom of Narſinga and Biſnagar. 4. Foul tedious Pilgrimages in Zeilan, together with the Cuttings and Slaſhings of the Fleſh of the Pilgrim. 5. Whipping, eating the Earth, plucking out Eyes before the Idol in New-Spain, with their Antick and Slovenly Ceremonies in Hiſpaniola. 6. The intolerable harſhneſs of their Superſtitious Caſtigations in Mexico and Peru. 7. That theſe barbarous and baſe Uſages are an infallible Demonſtration of the Devil's Hatred and Scorn of Mankind.

1. HAving given you a competent view of the Miſgovernment of the Prince of this World in the lawleſs Extravagancies of unclean Luſt; we ſhall now conſider his cruel Inſolences and deſpightful Uſages of contemned Mankind, which we may call the bloody Tyranny of the Devil over Men. And there are not a few Examples thereof: We ſhall not omit to produce ſuch as are on this ſide Murther, and yet are manifeſt Arguments of that Envy and Scorn he bears to Man. As the Whipping of the prime Youth of Lacedæmon before the Face of their Friends at the Altar of Diana: A Cuſtom ſo barbarous, that Theſpeſion the chief of the Gymnoſophiſts thought fit to object it to Apollonius that great Reformer of Paganiſm. But he is fain to excuſe the Lacedæmonians, as having choſen that which was the more tolerable; the Scythian Goddeſs rigidly exacting of them the effuſion of Man's Blood at her Altar.

2. The Sacrificing to Bellona was with the Prieſt's own Blood, which was alſo done to Dea Syria by hers at the Fire-Feaſt, where alſo young Men in a ſuperſtitious Rage, (who after ran through the City with that in their Hand which they had cut off from their Body, and caſt it into ſome Houſe or other, thereby to oblige them to give them their Womaniſh Habit and Attire) diſmembred themſelves in Honour to the Goddeſs. The ſick in Cathaia and Mangi (as is recorded by Paulus Venetus) were taught to vow the offering of their Blood to their Idol, if they recovered. And what had leſs Pain (but more Contempt and Scorn with it) the Prieſt uſed to beſprinkle his Congregation, before he diſmiſſed them, with Blood, Mire, pieces of Earth and Cows-dung.

See Purchas his Pilgrim. Part 1. Book 1. Chap. 15.

reco-

3. In Siam the Religious Orders are held under very hard Laws, it being Death to ſpeak to a Woman, and to drink Wine no leſs than Stoning. That alſo is a baſe Abuſe of the People in Pegu, as Purchas relates out of Gaſp. Balby, who drink the Water wherein the Prieſt has waſh'd himſelf. In the Kingdom of Narſinga and Biſnagar there is an Idol to which they make long Pilgrimages, and when they appear before him, come with their Hands bound, or with Ropes about their Necks, or with Knives ſticking in their Arms or Legs, or elſe cut their Fleſh, and caſt the pieces into the Idol's Face. The Idol being drawn in ſolemn Proceſſion, the more Zealous of the People lye in the way to be ſqueezed to Death by the Wheels, as both Balby, Odoricus and Lintſchoten Write. I might add other Examples of this kind, but I will not overmuch tranſgreſs my propoſed Method, not intending for the preſent to ſpeak of any Cruelties of Satan but ſuch as are on this ſide Murther.

4. In Zeilan they make Pilgrimages of incredible tedioufneſs; for having travailed many Hundred Miles, they are fain to wade near Twenty Miles together in ſtinking Mire, beſides their clambering up an Hill of many Miles aſcent by the help of Ropes and Hooks and Buſhes that they are to take hold of: And when they are got up to the Top, and have fed their Eyes with the print of his Foot that was their ancient Law-giver, they compleat their Penance with pricking and cutting their own Fleſh.

5. In New-Spain they ſought Pardon of their Idols by whipping themſelves on the naked Shoulders, and taking up Earth and eating it. In Peru they lay proſtrate on the Ground before their Idols, the more Zealous not ſparing to pluck out their own Eyes in a blind Devotion. In Hiſpaniola, when they ſacrific'd, they were wont to thruſt a Conſecrated Hook down their Throats to fetch all out of their Stomachs; which done they ſate round their Idol in an antick Poſture, Wry-Neck'd and Croſs-Leg'd, praying for the acceptance of their Sacrifice.

6. The Prieſts and Religious at Mexico were wont to riſe at Midnight, and having caſt Incenſe before their Idol, to retire into a large Place where many Lights were burning, and there with Lancets and Bodkins to pierce the Calves of their Legs near to the Bones, anointing their Temples with the Blood. They would alſo ſlit their Members in the midſt in a frantick purſuance of a thankleſs Chaſtity. They whipp'd themſelves alſo with Cords full of knots, beſides their tedious and deſtructive Faſtings. Theſe ſad Ceremonies they alſo uſed in Peru, where they ſwinged themſelves with ſtinging Nettles, and ſtruck themſelves over the Shoulders with hard Stones.

Theſe and the like wicked and ſpiteful Abuſes (that you may meet withal in Writers) which Satan has put upon Mankind, are a Demonſtration of his great Contempt and Hatred of us. But we ſhall come nearer now to make good that charge, which our Bleſſed Saviour, who came to deſtroy his Dominion, moſt juſtly has laid upon this Uſurper, That he was a Murderer from the beginning: Which is moſt evident from that Execrable Cuſtom of Sacrificing of Men to him under what account or Title ſoever: Which was an Abomination practiſed of Old in moſt parts of the World, as the Teſtimony of Hiſtorians will make good.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Men ſacrificed to the Devil in Virginia, Peru, Braſilia. They of Guiana and Paria alſo eat them being ſacrificed. The Ceremony of theſe Sacrifices in Nicaragua. 2. The hungry and blood-thirſty Devils of Florida and Mexico. 3. Their ſacrificing of Children in Peru, with the Ceremony of drowning a Boy and a Girl in Mexico. 4. The manner of the Mexicans ſacrificing their Captives. 5. The huge numbers of thoſe Sacrifices in Mexico, and of their dancing about the City in the Skin of a Man new flay'd. 6. And in New-Spain in the Skin of a Woman.

1. THE Knowledge of this is freſh concerning the Americans, as that they in Virginia ſacrificed Children to the Devil, as alſo in Peru for the Health and Proſperity of the Ingua, and for Succeſs in War. The ſame they do in Braſilia. The People of Guiana, of Paria and other adjacent parts do not only Sacrifice Men, but ſome of them after feed upon the Sacrifice. The Prieſts of Nicaragua, as Purchas relates out of Gomara, after the Ceremony of a mournful Sound and going thrice about their Captives, fly upon them unawares, of a ſudden ripping up their Breaſts with certain Knives of Flint, and then after the diſtribution of the Body to the King, their High Prieſt and him that took the Captive in War, they ſet their Heads upon Trees, under which they Sacrifice alſo other Men and Children.

2. In Florida the Devil appears to them, and complains that he is Thirſty: But nothing quenches his Thirſt but the Blood of Men. Acoſta relates of the Mexicans, that their Prieſts would tell their Kings that their Gods were ready to die for hunger: the meaning whereof was, that they muſt forthwith go out to War to get Captives for Sacrifices to their Gods.

3. In Peru, at the Inauguration of their new Ingua, they ſacrificed two hundred Children; they either cut off their Necks, anointing themſelves on the Face with their Blood, or drowned them and ſo buried them with certain Ceremonies. And the Mexicans alſo are reported at a Feaſt which they keep in their Canaoes on the Lake, to drown a Boy and a Girl, to keep the Gods of the Lake Company. They of Peru would alſo Sacrifice Virgins out of their Monaſteries, as the ſame Author writes: And ordinarily any Indian of Quality, and thoſe too of mean ſort, would Sacrifice their Firſt-born to redeem their own Life, when the Prieſt pronounced that they were mortally Sick.

4. The Mexicans indeed, if Acoſta is not too favourable to them, ſacrificed only Captives to their Idols. But they were unmercifully laviſh of the Blood of their Conquer'd Enemy, their Sacrifices being often repeated, and they ſacrificing at leaſt Forty or Fifty at a time, making them to aſcend to the top of an high Terras in the Court of the Temple, where the chief Prieſt (as alſo his Aſſiſtants) being clad in moſt ugly and diabolical Dreſſes to aſtoniſh the People, opened the Breaſt of the Captive with a wonderous dexterity, pull'd out the Heart with his Hands, and ſhew'd it ſmoaking to the Sun, to which he did offer this heat and fume of the Heart, and then caſt it at the Idol's Face, and with a ſpurn of his Foot tumbled the Body of the Sacrifice down the Stairs of the Temple.

5. So Prodigal was their abominable Religion of humane Blood, that ſome Days they have ſacrificed five thouſand or more, and in divers Places above twenty thouſand, as Acoſta relates from the reports of the Indians. There is one naſty and horrid piece of Cruelty that he ſays was uſed in Mexico, which was the flaying of a Slave, and apparelling another Man with his Skin, who was to go dancing and leaping through all the Houſes and Market-places of the City to beg Money for the Idols; and they that refuſed to give, he was to give them a flap on the Face with the bloody Corner of the Skin.

6. This is ill enough; but that ſomething worſe in New-Spain, where they flay'd a Woman, and covered a Man with her Skin, who was to dance about the Streets two Days together. So deſpightfully Cruel and Tyrannical has the Rule of the Devil been in the New-found Pagan World; and yet we ſhall not find him much better in the Old. For there we ſhall alſo find him a Blood-thirſty Murderer in moſt of the parts thereof.

CHAP. XV.

1. The ſacrificing of Children to Moloch in the Valley of Hinnom. 2. That it was not a ſimple Februation, but real Burning of them. 3. That this Cuſtom ſpread from Syria to Carthage. 4. Further Arguments thereof, with the Miſtake of Saturn being called Iſrael rectified by Grotius. And that Abraham's offering up Iſaac was no occaſion at all to theſe execrable Sacrifices. 5. Sacrificing of Men in Britain, Luſitania, France, Germany, Thrace, and in the Iſle of Man. 6. In ſundry Places alſo of Greece, as Meſſene, Arcadia, Chios, Aulis, Locri, Lacedæmon. 7. That the Romans were not free neither from theſe ſalvage Sacrifices. 8. To which you may add the Cimbrians, Lituanians, Ægyptians, the Inhabitants of Rhodes, Salamis, and Tenedos, Indians, Perſians, &c.

1. SYria is famous, or rather fouly Infamous, for that cruel God of the Ammonites, Moloch, to whom they ſacrificed their Children burning them in the Fire. This was, as in other Places, ſo alſo done in the Valley of Hinnom, ſo called, à rugitu ſeu lamentis puerorum dum exurebantur, From the Roarings and Cryings of Children whilſt they were a burning, or elſe from the Poſſeſſors of that Field, the Sons of Hinnom. It is alſo named Tophet, from the beating of the Drums they then uſed to drown the Cries of the poor Infants that were ſacrificed. Some are of Opinion, that it was only a Februation, Purification, or Conſecration of their Children, not a Sacrificing of them: But Mr. Selden has ſufficiently confuted that Conceit, to whom I remit the Curious, De Diis Syris, Syntagm. 1. Cap. 6.

2. Gaffarel indeed, though he will admit that certain Perſian Colonies ſeated in Samaria ſacrificed their Children to Adramelech and Anamelech the Gods of Sepharvaim, yet he will not allow by any means that Children were Sacrificed to Moloch, but only februated: And this he does in favour to the Jews whom he would not have to ſtand guilty of ſuch a deteſtable piece of Idolatry. But it is beyond all exception plain, that they did Sacrifice their Sons and Daughters to Devils, Pſal. 105. and Joſephus himſelf acknowledges of Achaz, * Ὅτι ἴδιον ὁλοκάυτωσε παῖδα κατὰ τὰ Χαναναίων ἔθη. See Grotius upon the 18. of Deuteronomy, where he does plainly enough prove that Children were really ſacrificed to Moloch, though he does not deny but in proceſs of time the rigour of this cruel cuſtom might be chang'd into what was more tolerable, viz. the Traduction of their Children between two Fires; later Ages finding out ſuch σοφὰ φάρμακα, for the mitigating of the Barbarouſneſs of their antient Rites. And it is not unlikely but that before this Cruelty was laid aſide, there was firſt a ſeldomer uſe of it, and that at laſt it vaniſhed into ſimple Februation; which is the beſt way I know to ſave Solomon's Credit, and vindicate him from the Suſpicion of ſo barbarous a piece of Idolatry, though he reigned long before Achaz.

* i. e. That he burnt his own Son, offering him as an Holocauſt, according to the Cuſtoms or ſuperſtitious Rites of the Canaanites.

3. That this Cuſtom of ſacrificing Children ſpread it ſelf out of Syria into Europe I cannot ſay: but it is likely that the Carthaginians had it from thence, they being a Colony of that Nation; and Lactantius charges them with this cruel Superſtition, that they uſed to ſacrifice Men to Saturn; and that, being overcome by Agathocles King of Sicily, and ſuſpecting their God was angry with them, they ſacrific'd ducentos nobilium filios, two hundred Noble-mens Sons at once. This Abomination of ſacrificing their Children Ennius alſo had noted of old, Pœni ſunt ſoliti ſos ſacrificare puellos.

4. The Cretians alſo as well as the Syrians ſacrificed to Saturn, however they took up the Cuſtom. But a further Evidence that the Carthagenians had theirs from the Syrians is, that the name of the God they ſacrificed to was called Amilcas, as Selden notes out of Athenagoras, which comes very near to Moloch or Milcham, and that they uſed alſo Drums and Pipes to drown the Noiſe and Crys of the ſacrificed. Porphyrius out of the Phœnician Chronicles tells us, that this Saturn the Phœnicians call Iſrael, who was their antient King, and ſacrificed his only-begotten Son to deliver his Kingdom from a preſent danger of War. His Son's name alſo, he ſaith, was Jeoud, which has near affinity with the Hebrew יחיד ἀγαπητὸς, unigenitus; and the whole Narration ſeems to ſome a deprav'd Story of Abraham's ſacrificing Iſaac, though Grotius be of another Mind, and haply out of a true Conjecture: The miſtake being in ſome Scribe, who finding Ἰλ, which was the name of the King that ſacrificed his Son, (Ἴλου τὸν καὶ Κρόνον, as Philo Byblius has it out of Sanchuniatho) thought it the uſual Contraction of Ἰσραήλ, when as that Phœnician King was called איל (which the Syrians uſe for אל) as Enoch bore the name of יהוה, as Grotius will more fully inform us upon Deuteron. 18. But though that way that Selden recites out of Porphyrius were true, I do not ſee that this Occaſion ſhould need to have any influence on remoter parts in Europe, they of Peru without any ſuch Invitation being laviſh of the Blood of their Children in ſacrificing them to the Devil. But if it had, it were no Excuſe, but a greater Reproach to them and their ill Maſter, that God's refuſal of ſo high and rigorous an Homage (though he had an indiſputable Right to it) could not bind their Hands from either offering or receiving ſuch bloody Sacrifices.

Abraham's

5. Wherefore, without any ſuch Animation or Emulation, I believe, the Apoſtate Spirits every where full of Scorn and Cruelty, did of themſelves ſet up ſuch abominable Rites in moſt parts of the old World. As here in Britain, where they were wont to ſacrifice Captives to foretel things to come, as Tacitus writes. Strabo affirms the ſame of the Luſitani, who for the ſame purpoſe ſacrificed their Captives to Mars. Diodorus writes the ſame concerning the Gauls, and Suetonius of the Germans; Euſebius of the Thracians, who ſacrificed Men, to be better aſcertained of their Succeſs in War: And Tacitus concerning the Iſle of Man near us, ſaith, that it was the feat of the Druids who were great Men-ſacrificers, which they performed in Woods. Lucos ſævis ſuperſtitionibus ſacros, that Author calls them.

6. Neither were the Greeks free from this bloody Superſtition. For Ariſtomenes Meſſenius ſacrificed three hundred Men to Jupiter Ithemius. The Arcades alſo ſacrificed Boys to Jupiter Lycæus, and the Inhabitants of Chios a Man to Diomedes. The Locri were commanded by their Oracle, for the aſſwaging of a Peſtilence, to ſend every year two Virgins to Troy, which had their Throats firſt cut, and then were burnt in ſacrifice to Pallas Trojana: And Iphigenia, the butchering of her (under the pretence of Marriage) by the Hand of the Prieſt at the Altar of Diana in Aulis, is notoriouſly known, and lively ſet out by Lucretius, with this Epiphonema at the end of the Narration, Tantum Relligio potuit ſuadere malorum.

The Lacedæmonians alſo ſacrificed Men to Mars. Phylarchus affirms all the Greeks to have done the like.

7. Pliny boaſts that the Romans were free from thoſe cruel and impious Superſtitions: But if he mean they were always ſo, it will be found but a vain Boaſt. For of old they ſacrificed Men to Saturnus and Jupiter Latialis, as Tertullian and Lactantius have noted; and it was a thing moſt uſual with them to give Men to be devoured by Beaſts in their great Feſtivals, which they celebrated to this or the other Deity. Beſides, they are ſaid to have ſacrificed at Rome two Greeks and two Gauls, a Male and Female of each, every year. And throughout Sicily and Italy thoſe barbarous Sacrifices were very frequent according to Pliny's own Teſtimony, and were not abrogated at Rome till about ſix or ſeven hundred years from the Building of the City.

8. We might reckon up more Nations polluted with this execrable Impiety, as the Cimbrians, Lituanians, Ægyptians, the Inhabitants of Rhodes, Salamis, Tenedos and Cyprus, alſo thoſe of Laodicea, beſides the Indians, Perſians, Arabians, Albanians, and others; but theſe may ſuffice which we have already named for remarkable Examples of Satan's villainous Miſcarriages in his uſurped Rule over the Sons of Men.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVI.

1. Four things ſtill behind to be briefly touch'd upon for the fuller Preparation to the underſtanding the Chriſtian Myſtery; as Firſt the Pagan Catharmata. The uſe of them prov'd out of Cæſar. 2. As alſo out of Statius and the Scholiaſt upon Ariſtophanes. 3. That all their expiatory Men-ſacrifices whatſoever were truly Catharmata. 4. The Second, their Apotheoſes or Deifications of Men. The names of ſeveral recited out of Diodorus. 5. Of Baal-Peor, and how in a manner all Temples of the Pagans were Sepulchers. Their Pedigree noted by Lactantius out of Ennius. 6. Certain examples of the Deification of their Law-givers.

1. WE have clearly and fully enough ſet out unto your view the Uncleanneſs and Cruelty of the Pagan Superſtitions: There are only four Things behind which we will lightly touch upon, and then I think we ſhall ſufficiently have prepared the Way to give you an eaſie and intelligible Repreſentation of the whole Frame of Chriſtian Religion, as it is ſet out in the Holy Scripture.

The firſt of the four Things I am to mention is, the Καθάρματα, Purgamenta, Piacula of the Pagans: but the Greek word is more proper, which ſignifies the Death of ſome Man which the Pagans ſacrificed for the expiating of their Faults, and ſaving themſelves from the Rigour and Vengeance of their Gods. This Reaſon was acknowledged plainly by the Gauls, amongſt whom this ἀνθρωποθυσία, this Mactation of Men was ſo frequent, as Cæſar has obſerved. Pro vita hominum niſi vita hominis reddatur, non poſſe Deorum immortalium numen placari arbitrantur: i. e. They think that unleſs the Life of a Man be given in lieu of the Life of Men, the Majeſty of the Immortal Gods cannot be pacified. And therefore, in gravioribus morbis, præliis, periculis, homines pro victimis immolant aut immolaturos vovent, as Ortelius cites it out of Cæſar: And therefore in more grievous Diſeaſes, Wars, Dangers, they either ſacrifice Men, or at leaſt make a Vow they will ſacrifice them.

2. This kind of Sacrifice becauſe it was made ordinarily of the vileſt ſort of People, Slaves or Captives or other Contemptible Perſons, the Apoſtle, to ſhew how vilely himſelf was eſteemed of by Men, ſet off his Condition by a Phraſe borrowed from thence, ὡς περικαθάρματα τῷ κόσμῳ ἐγενήθημεν, 1 Cor. 4. 13. To this Cuſtom Papinius Statius alludes, where he brings in Meneceus his Mother ſpeaking to him thus,

Luſtralemne feris ego te, puer improbe, Thebis
Devotumque caput, vilis cen mater, alebam?

Have I, O wicked Child, thee nouriſhed Like Mother poor, for cruel Thebes to be A luſtral Wretch, a vile devoted Head?

This is noted alſo by Servius upon Virgil. But there can be nothing more pertinent either for the explaining of that Phraſe of the Apoſtle, or for a clearer witneſſing of this Heatheniſh Cuſtom, than what Grotius adds upon the place out of the Scholiaſt upon Ariſtophanes his Plutus, Καθάρματα ἐλέγοντο οἱ ὅτε λοιμός τινος ἢ τινος ἕτερας νόσου δυόμενοι τοῖς θεοῖς, τοῦτο δὲ τὸ ἔθος καὶ παρὰ Ῥωμαίοις ἐπεκράτησεν· i. e. Men that were ſacrificed to the Gods for the clearing of a City or People from the Peſtilence or any other Diſeaſe, were called Catharmata, which cuſtom alſo obtain'd amongſt the Romans. And on another Comedy the Scholiaſt aſſerts it to have been alſo the Cuſtom of the Athenians, and that they made choice of ſome poor uſeleſs Wretches for that purpoſe. Ἔθος ἦν τι καὶ Ἀθηναίοις λιμὸν ἀγενεῖς καὶ ἀχρήστους, καὶ ὅτε καιρῷ συμφορᾶς τινος ἐπελθούσης τῇ πόλει, λοιμοῦ λέγω ἢ τοιούτου τινός, ἕνεκεν τούτου ἕνεκα τοῦ καθαρθῆναι τοῦ μιάσματος, ὃς καὶ ἐπωνόμαζον καθάρματα· i. e. For the Athenians alſo got certain baſe and uſeleſs Perſons, and in the time of any Calamity coming upon the City, as of Peſtilence and the like, they ſacrificed theſe, thereby to be cleared of their piacular Crime, for which cauſe theſe Men were called Catharmata: Which in Latin is Piacula or Purgamenta.

3. We

3. We might alledge other Teſtimonies, as that out of Suidas upon the word καθάρματα, and others; but theſe may ſuffice in ſo plain a matter. For all the Expiatory Sacrifices wherewith they would appeaſe the Wrath of the Gods, as often as they were ἀνθρωποθυσίαι or mactations of Men (which were too-too frequent all over the World,) theſe Men that were thus ſacrificed were indeed Catharmata properly ſo called.

4. The ſecond thing we would have noted is, Their Apotheoſes, than which nothing was more frequent amongſt the Gentiles, there ſcarce being any of the Imortal Gods, ſo deem'd amongſt them, but ſome Mortal Man there was alſo that bore the ſame name, and had the ſame Worſhip alſo done unto him. Diodorus inſtances in Sol, Saturn, Rhea, Jupiter, Pan, Ceres, and others, whoſe Genealogies, Inventions, or famous Exploits that Hiſtorian purſues in his firſt Book of Bibliotheca Hiſtorica. He names alſo Belus the Son of Neptune and Lybia, as the Captain of an Ægyptian Colony which he conducted into Babylon, with whom it fared as it did with inumerable others, who were conſiderable Benefactors to the Country they liv'd in, or People with whom they did converſe: They had Altars and Temples erected to their Memorial, and Sacrifices and Religious Ceremonies appointed to be done to them as to the Immortal Deities.

5. And as to Baal-Peor to whom Iſrael joyned, Pſal. 106. where they are ſaid to eat the Sacrifices of the dead; Bede upon the Text expounds it to this Senſe, They were initiated and ſacrificed to Baal who was worſhipped in Phegor, for Belus was the Father of Ninus, &c. and that is the reaſon that they were called * יבחי מתים, becauſe they were Sacrifices offered to the Soul of the deceaſed Belus. Clemens Alexandrinus upbraids to the Heathen, that in a manner all their Temples were nothing elſe but the Sepulchers of ſome famous Men, whoſe Memory was the firſt occaſion of thoſe Religious Solemnities and Ceremonies that were performed there. Lactantius alſo out of Ennius and Cicero plainly demonſtrates that the generality of the Pagan Deities, ſuch as we have already named out of Diodorus, were once Men living here on Earth, and produces out of Ennius their Pedigrees, Counſels and Tranſactions in this Life. Cicero makes a kind of diſtinction in his Books de Legibus, where he makes this Decree concerning Religion: Divos & eos qui Cœleſtes ſemper habiti ſunt, colunto, & eos quos in cœlo merita locaverunt, Herculem, Liberum, Æſculapium, Pollucem, Caſtorem, Quirinum, i. e. Let them Worſhip the Gods, both thoſe who were ever accounted Celeſtial, and thoſe whom their Merits have placed in Heaven, as Hercules, Bacchus, Æſculapius, Pollux, Caſtor, Quirinus.

* The Sacrifices of the dead.

6. For the Romans worſhipped Romulus, as the Babylonians Belus, like as other Nations alſo have Deified thoſe that have firſt given them Laws and religious Rites; as the Scythians Zamolxis, and the Chineſes their Kings, and in particular their Law-giver Confuſius. Minos alſo, Æacus and Rhadamanthus, for their ſingular Juſtice while they lived, were by the Greeks aſſigned to the Honour of being Judges amongſt the dead in the other World. But of this enough.

CHAP. XVII.

1. The Third Obſervable, the Mediation of Dæmons. 2. This Superſtition glanced at by the Apoſtle in θρησκεία τῶν ἀγγέλων. And that Dæmons are the Souls of Men departed, according to Heſiod. 3. As alſo according to Plutarch and Maximus Tyrius. 4. The Author's Inference from this Poſition.

1. THE third Thing Obſervable is their δαίμονες. By δαίμονες or Dæmons I mean their Dii Medioxumi, i. e. middle Gods, or rather thoſe Spirits that were Mediators (as I may ſo call them) betwixt the Supreme Deities and Men. According to this Senſe is that of Plato in his Sympoſion, Θεὸς ἀνθρώπῳ οὐ μίγνυται, ἀλλὰ διὰ δαιμονίων πᾶσα ἡ ὁμιλία καὶ ἡ διάλεκτος θεοῖς πρὸς ἀνθρώπους· i. e. God intermingles not himſelf with Man, but all the Converſe and Conference betwixt the Gods and Men is performed by Dæmons. And the ſame Philoſopher ſays plainly and expreſly, That theſe δαίμονες receive the Prayers and Oblations that Men make, and preſent them to the Gods, and bring back from them Rewards and Injunctions which they communicate ſome way or other to Men. But this is not Plato's Opinion alone, but of moſt of the ancient Philoſophers that would venture to ſay any thing at all in Religion;

gion; as of Zoroaſter, Thales, Pythagoras, Celſus, Plutarch, Apuleius, and who not? Nay this conceit is ſo natural, that it is found among the rude Americans, who profeſs that their Zemes are no other than Mediators and Meſſengers from the great God that is Eternal and Inviſible, as Peter Martyr relates in his firſt Decad, lib. 9. concerning the Inhabitants of Hiſpaniola.

2. This Opinion of the Heathen ſeems to have been glanced at by the Apoſtle, Coloſſ. 2. 18. ἐν ταπεινοφροσύνῃ καὶ θρησκείᾳ τῶν ἀγγέλων, as Grotius alſo obſerveth upon the Place. Nor does the difference of the words ἄγγελος and δαίμων make any difference in the thing, the Greek word δαίμων being the ſame with ἄγγελος, as Philo has noted; and either of them is competible to the Soul out of the Body, as the ſame Author alſo acknowledgeth. But δαίμων ſignifies alſo the Soul in the Body, according to Xenocrates in Ariſtotle, ὁμοίως ὃ καὶ εὐδαίμονα ἔφη εἶναι ὁ δαίμων ἢ εὐδαίμων, καθάπερ ὁ Ξενοκράτης φησὶν, εὐδαίμονα εἶναι τὸν τοῦ ψυχοῦ ἔχοντα εὐδαίμων. ταύτην γὰρ ἑκάστῳ εἶναι δαίμονα· i. e. In like manner that he is Εὐδαίμων (i. e. happy) who has a good δαίμων or Genius, as Xenocrates ſays, that he is happy or has a good Genius that has a good Soul. For the Soul is every Man's Dæmon or Genius. But the more proper Senſe, and that which we mean in this place, is that of Philo: To whom we may add the ſuffrage of Heſiod, out of Plutarch: αἱ δ' ἀπηλλαγμέναι γενέσεως ψυχαὶ καὶ χολάζεσθαι τὸ λοιπὸν ἀπὸ σώματος, δαίμονες εἰσιν ἀνθρώπων ἐπιμελεῖς, καθ' Ἡσίοδον· i. e. But the Souls that have quit themſelves from Generation, and are for the future free from the Incumbrances of the Body, become Dæmons, careful Inſpectors over Mankind, according to Heſiod. From whence haply δαίμων may be from δαίω divido, it ſignifying the very ſame that Anima ſeparata.

3. And Plutarch himſelf ſubſcribes to Heſiod's Opinion, That Souls freed from their Bodies become Dæmons or Genii, and that they go up and down the Earth as being Obſervers and Rewarders of the actions of Men; and that though they be not Actors themſelves, yet they are abettors and encouragers of them that Act; as old Men that have left off the more youthful Sports, love to ſet the younger ſort to their Games and Exerciſes, themſelves in the mean time looking on. So Plutarch in his De Genio Socratis and Maximus Tyrius endeavour at large to prove, that the δαίμονες or Genii are nought but the Souls of Men departed, who are occupied much-what in ſuch Employments as they were in the Fleſh.

4. From whence it will follow that good Men that were full of Humanity and Love to Mankind, will prove good Genii: and by how much their Love is greater and their Spirits more free and univerſal, that they will have a more general Inſpection, or at leaſt they will be more fit for it; were they but armed with ſufficient Power and Authority from above anſwerable to that noble and tender affection they bear to Man: And in that themſelves have been in the Fleſh, and taſted what belongs to our Condition, they will be the more kindly Mediators and Negotiators in our Affairs. So reaſonable is this Opinion of the Pagans concerning the Interceſſions of the Genii; but their Worſhipping of them is no leſs raſh, they having no ſufficient Warrant for ſo foul a Superſtition.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. The Fourth and laſt thing to be noted, namely their Heroes, who were thought to be either begot of ſome God, or born of ſome Goddeſs: The latter whereof is ridiculous, if not impoſſible. 2. The former not at all incredible. 3. Franciſcus Picus his Opinion of the Heroes (feigned ſo by the Poets) as begot of the Gods: That they were really begotten of ſome impure Dæmons, with Joſephus his ſuffrage to the ſame purpoſe. 4. The poſſibility of the thing further illuſtrated from the impregnation of Mares merely by the Wind, aſſerted by ſeveral Authors. 5. The Application of the Hiſtory, and a further Confirmation out of Dr. Harvey. 6. Examples of Men famed for this kind of miraculous Birth of the Heroes, on this ſide the tempus μυθικὸν or Ἡρωϊκόν.

1. THE fourth and laſt Thing I would propound to your view is their Heroes, which are δαίμονες alſo, that is, the Souls of Men departed this Life: but there was ſomething ſpecial in their Birth, in that they were conceived to be born of ſome Goddeſs impregnated by a Man, or ſome Woman impregnated by ſome

God. From whence Plato would give the reaſon of the name Ἥρως, as if it were from Ἔρως, Love, becauſe the Heroes were begot by ſome God or Goddeſs falling in love with Mortals. Such was the Birth of Æneas, as Antiquity has conceited, who was begot on Venus by Anchiſes, and of Achilles the Son of Thetis by Peleus. But that Goddeſſes, that is, Spirits ſuſtaining the Perſon of Women, ſhould bring forth Children; though there be pretended true Stories of ſuch things, and that it may be it is not impoſſible, yet it ſeems to me very incredible.

2. But that the Genii or Spirits which Antiquity called Gods, might impregnate Women ſo, that they might bring forth Children without the help of a Man, ſeems not to me to be at all incredible; and moſt of your Heroes have been reported to be ſuch, the greater number of the moſt famous of them being certain By-blows of Jupiter upon ſeveral Women he fell in Love with. For he is ſaid to beget Hercules upon Alcmena, Pelaſgus of Niobe, Sarpedon of Laodamia, Dardanus of Electra, Amphion of Antiope, Minos and Rhadamanthus of Europa, of Leda Caſtor and Pollux, and Perſeus of Danaë. His four laſt Adulteries are handſomely comprized in a Diſtich by the Epigrammatiſt, with the faſhion or fraud he uſed in his Aſſaults upon thoſe Women.

Ζεὺς κύκνος, ταῦρος, σάτυρος, χρυσὸς, δι ἔρωτα
Λήδης, Εὐρώπης, Ἀντιόπης, Δανάης.

3. Which I could not forbear to rehearſe, the firſt Transformation there named, viz. of Jupiter's becoming a Swan (when he had to do with Leda) putting me in mind of Ludovicus the Familiar of that Witch whoſe Story Franciſcus Picus ſo fully proſecutes, whom ſhe confeſſed to have to do with her, though in the reſt of his parts in the ſhape of a Man, yet with Feet faſhioned like a Gooſe. But the main thing obſervable in that Dialogue is Picus his ingenious Conjecture concerning theſe ſuppoſed Fables of the Poets, as ſome would have them. But he conceives there may be a conſiderable Truth in them as concerning the Generation of the Heroes, and that in rude Antiquity, when the Dominion of the Devil was more free, and Mankind more fooliſh and ignorant, there were really and frequently ſuch Congreſſes or venereous Conjunctions of unclean Spirits with Women, according to that practice which to this day is confeſſed by Witches, eſpecially in their Meetings and jovial Revellings in the Night at that Solemnity which they call our Lady's Play, the Ancients called it Ludum Dianæ or Ludum Herodiadis; where the Witches, as themſelves confeſs, do eat and drink and dance, and do that with theſe impure Spirits which Modeſty would forbid to name. Which dalliance had ſometime ſuch real effect with them of ancient Times, that the Women, as Picus would have it, were impregnated by the Dæmones or Genii, the deemed Gods of the Heathens. From whence came Famous Men, that were not only reputed but really ſprung ex ſtirpe Deorum, according to their Opinions they had of the Gods. Joſephus a ſober Writer acknowledges the Birth of the Giants of old to be after this manner, to whom he aſcribes all the Impiety and Injuſtice that had crept into the World before Noah's Flood. * πολλοὶ γὰρ ἄγγελοι Θεοῦ γυναιξὶ συμμιγέντες, ὑβρεις ἐγέννησαν παῖδας, ἐπὶ παντὸς ὑφορίας καλῶ, διὰ τὸ ὅτι τῇ δωμάμει πεποίθησαν, as he writes in his firſt Book of Jewiſh Antiquities.

* Many Angels of God having to do with Women, begot inſolent and injurious Children, and deſpiſers of all goodneſs, by reaſon of their Confidence in their own Strength. Lib. 3.

4. And though this may ſeem incredible to others, yet ſtranger matters have been aſſerted concerning the Conception of Females without the help of a Male in the perfecteſt kind of living Creatures: As that which Virgil affirms in his Georgicks concerning ſome metal'd Mares that have conceiv'd of the Wind.

Ore omnes verſæ in Zephyrum ſtant rupibus altis,
Exceptántque leves auras; & ſæpe ſine ullis
Conjugiis, vento gravidæ (mirabile dictu!)
Saxa per & ſcopulos fugiunt——

All ſtanding on high Crags with turned Face
To gentle Zephyr, the light Air they draw;
And oft (O Wonder!) without Venus Law,
Quick with the Wind o're Hills and Rocks they trace.

Which Silius Italicus expreſſes alſo very livelily of the Spaniſh Gennets of his Country;

Et Venerem occultam genitali concipit aurâ.

Which that you may not ſuſpect to be only the Levity and Credulity of Poets to report ſuch things, I can inform you that S. Auſtin and Solinus the Hiſtorian write the ſame of a race of Horſes in Cappadocia. Nay, which is more to the purpoſe, Columella and Varro, Men expert in rural Affairs, aſſert this matter for a moſt certain and known Truth.

5. Wherefore if the free Air by the advancing of the Pleaſure of the Spirits of theſe Animals, or actuating them by a volatil Salt, will fill them ſo full of Life and Joy, that it will make their Wombs bloſſom, as I may ſo ſay, and after bring forth Fruit; why may not an airy Spirit transforming himſelf into the ſhape of a Man, ſupply his place effectually, he being able, as Witches have confeſſed, to raiſe as high Pleaſure and indeed higher than any Man can do; and ſo to looſen the Body into a Transmiſſion of ſuch Principles and Particles as will prove in their conflux in the Womb vital and prolifical? Which may be the eaſilier admitted, if we conſider that the Seed of the Male gives neither Matter nor Form to the Fœtus it ſelf, as Dr. Harvey expreſſes it. So that the Pagan Gods, when they would have to do with Women, needed no ſuch ambages as ordinarily Men imagine, viz. firſt to play the Succubi, and then the Incubi, that is, firſt to receive the Seed of Man, having transformed themſelves into the ſhape of a Woman, and then to transfuſe the Seed into the Womb of a Woman, after they had changed themſelves into the form of a Man. For it is not the Matter of the Seed, but a grateful Contact or Motion fermenting or ſpiriting the place of Conception, that make the Female fruitful. So great a probability is there, that there is ſome Truth in that Fame concerning the birth of the ancient Heroes, though their time by reaſon of the uncertainty of the Story is called * χρόνος μυθικὸς as well as * Ἡρωϊκὸς by Hiſtorians.

* The fabulous time.
* Heroical.

6. But there is ſo ſtrong a Suſpicion in the Minds of Men that there are ſuch Events in the World, that they venture upon ſome Examples within the compaſs of more approved Hiſtory, as Alexander and Scipio, whom many conceited to be the Sons of Jupiter. And Diogenes Laertius tells a formal Story of Perictione Plato's Mother being impregnated by Apollo, which he confirms by the Authority of three ſeveral Writers, Speuſippus, Clearchus and Anaxilides.

CHAP. XIX.

1. That out of the Principles we have laid down, and the Hiſtory of the Religions of the Nations we have produced, it is eaſie to give a reaſonable account of all Matters concerning our Saviour from his Birth to his viſible return to Judgment. 2. That Chriſtianity is the Sum and Perfection of whatever things were laudable or paſſable in any Religion that has been in the World. 3. The Aſſertion made good by the enumeration of certain Particulars. 4. That our Religion ſeems to be more chiefly directed to the Nations than the Jews themſelves. 5. An enumeration of the main Heads in the Hiſtory of Chriſt, that he intends to give an account of.

1. I Have now omitted nothing of conſiderable moment to our preſent Purpoſe, having laid down by way of Preparation ſuch Grounds, as will inable us to give a ſolid account of whatſoever occurs in the Hiſtory of Chriſt, whatſoever happened to him, was done or is to be done by him, from his Birth to his viſible return to Judgment. For beſides that there are no Effects ſo miraculous there recorded, as to exceed the efficacy of thoſe Inviſible Powers which we have demonſtrated to be in the World; ſo the Reaſonableneſs of every thing will be eaſily illuſtrated by what we have diſcovered concerning the Nature and End of Chriſtianity, which is to advance the Divine Life upon Earth, and to bring the Partakers thereof to eternal Happineſs; and in the mean time to redeem the World out of the Dominion and Tyranny of the Devil, and to bring in the Worſhip of Chriſt as the lawful Owner of all Soveraignty in Heaven and in Earth: And that not by external Force and Violence, but by the wonderful Wiſdom of God diſcoverable in the Goſpel; there being ſuch winning Compliances and Condeſcenſions to the Faculties of Man, and ſo powerful Endearments upon his Affections, that at the firſt hearing it is able to carry away the ingenuous Captive into obedience to it, with joy in their Hearts and tears in their Eyes, their whole Man melting into an eaſie pliableneſs to this new gracious Law in the ſenſe of ſo great Joy, Love and Sorrow: beſides their being ſurprized with a juſt Slighting or Indignation againſt the Religions they were formerly ingaged in, for either their beggarly Elements or abominable Sacrifices and Ceremonies.

2. For whatſoever is defective in any, Chriſt makes a full ſupply; and where their Rites are execrable and deteſtable, he treads quite contrary there to both the foul obſcenities and bloody cruelties of Satan. But what Propenſions in Mankind were more warrantably natural, he gratifies them in a truer and higher manner than ever they were yet in the World. So that of a very truth Chriſtianity is not only the Compleatment and Perfection of Judaiſm, but alſo of univerſal Paganiſm; the Sum or Subſtance of whatever was conſiderable in any Religion being comprehended in the Goſpel of Chriſt, which was reſerved to the laſt Periods of time as an ἀνακεφαλαίωσις or ſumming up Epheſ. 1. 10. of all that went before, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks in his Epiſtle to the Epheſians, That in the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of times he might ſum up all together in Chriſt, whether things in Heaven or things in Earth.

3. For as for things in Heaven, whether it be the Objects of the Worſhips of the Heathen, namely their ἀποθεωθέντες, Men canoniz'd for Gods and their Heroes, or the Truſt they had in their Dii Medioxumi, in the Mediation and Interceſſion of their Dæmons, or whatſoever obſcure hopes they had of enjoying the Life of the Gods themſelves in Heaven after the diſſolution of the Body; all theſe things are more compendiouſly, and yet more truly, plainly and warrantably, comprehended in Chriſt. As alſo the Things in Earth, as the Jewiſh Sacrifices and the Pagans Καθάρματα, ſo many and ſo curious Ceremonies of Expiation and Purification, they are all more fitly and more effectually contained in the Sacrament of Baptiſm, and in the celebration of the Death of our Saviour, than in any of the Rites of the Nations.

4. And truly all things are ſo ſhrewdly levelled at the Religion of the Heathens in the Tranſactions of Chriſt and Matters belonging to him, that he may rather ſeem to be meant for them than the Jews themſelves, though they had the firſt refuſal of him; ſo that the Counſel of God is made evident as well in the Contrivance as the Effect thereof. And this may ſerve for a general Hint concerning the Nature and Compoſure of Chriſtianity.

5. But we ſhall not content our ſelves therewith, but deſcend to a more particular Account, applying the Grounds which we have laid down to all the conſiderable Matters contained in the Hiſtory of Chriſt; which we ſhall refer to theſe Heads: His Birth; His Life; His Crucifixion; His Reſurrection; His Aſcenſion; Ἀποθέωσις' Interceſſion; Principality over Men and Angels; His Miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles; The Succeſs of all this in changing of the Affairs of the World, and ruining of the Kingdom of the Devil; his viſible returning again to Judgment to take vengeance of the Wicked, and to compleat Redemption to the faithful, crowning all their Labours and Sufferings with Glory and Immortality, and re-eſtabliſhing of them in thoſe Paradiſiacal Joys which they had forfeited and fallen from by the Envy and Subtilty of the Devil. Of all theſe we ſhall ſpeak with what Brevity we can.

BOOK

BOOK IV.

CHAP. I.

1. That Christ's being born of a Virgin is no Impossible thing. 2. And not only so, but also Reasonable in reference to the Heroes of the Pagans. 3. And that this outward Birth might be an Emblem of his Eternal Sonship. 4. Thirdly in relation to the Sanctity of his own Person, and for the recommendation of Continence and Chastity to the World. 5. And lastly for the Completion of certain Prophesies in the Scriptures that pointed at the Messias.

1. COncerning the Birth of Christ, or whatsoever else happened miraculously to him, or was done by him, I conceive I shall give a sufficient Account, if I shew not only their Possibility, but their Reasonableness. And it is not at all Impossible that a Virgin should bring forth a Son, if we understand the meaning of that Term aright, which signifies a Woman that never had any thing to do with a Man. For it implies no Contradiction for her to conceive from some other hidden Cause, and therefore at least the omnipotent Power of God can bring it to pass. For whether is it easier to create all things of nothing, to make Plants and Animals to spring out of the Earth without the help of either Male or Female, or to prepare the Womb of a Woman so, as to make her conceive without the help of a Man? Wherefore to deny the Possibility thereof is to deny the Existence of God in the World.

2. But it is not only Possible, but Reasonble. For besides that in general it is fit that so extraordinary a Person as our Saviour, in his coming into the World should be accompanied with miraculous Indications of his Eminencie, there is a peculiar accommodation in this of his being conceived by a supernatural Power to those either true stories or strong Suspicions of the Pagans, who did so easily believe that their famous Heroes, whose Memory continued so long with them, and was so sacred, that they did divine Honours to them, were not sprung of mortal Race, but were ex stirpe Deorum, as you have already heard; which is in a most true and eminent Manner accomplished in the Birth of our Saviour.

3 Again, Christ considered out of the Body, he being not a mere humane Soul, but being truly, livingly, and really united with the Λόγος, is by Union the Eternal Son of God. Now that being to come to pass which S. John speaks of in the beginning of his Gospel, ὁ Λόγος σὰρξ ἐγένετο, The Word was made Flesh; he that was to be born of Mary (the Spouse of Joseph) he being, I say, the true and genuine Son of God, begotten of the Father from all Eternity, when he was to be born here into the World in time; who was so fit to be entitled to his Procreation as he that was the Author of his eternal Generation? and therefore he was to be born of a Virgin, and to be conceived by a supernatural Way, that his visible Humanity as well as his inward Divinity might have a just Occasion of being called the Son of God, and that the one might be the Emblem as it were of the other.

4. Thirdly, you have seen how full of abominable Obscenity and Uncleanness the Superstition of the Heathen was; to say nothing of the Carnality and Uxoriousness of the Jews, and of that Impurity which by almost all Nations (unless where Superstition has emboldened them to Beastliness) is confessed to be in the Acts of Venery; they commonly concealing those Parts which Nature ordained for such Uses from the Eyes of Men, as being ashamed to acknowledge themselves subject to so low a kind of Sense. It was therefore unfit that Christ should be born according to that common way of Generation, that he might give no Encouragement to that which Men are so madly set upon, notwithstanding that Bridle of Shame that Nature would curb them in by; especially himself coming into the World to be the highest Pattern of Purity that can be exhibited to Mankind: for which Reason he also abstained from Marriage, and commended the Virgin Life; which he might do with better Reason than any, he being a more certain Pledge of those Holy, Heavenly and Eternal Joys, than ever was yet manifested to the World. Wherefore partly in Opposition to the Uncleanness of Paganiſm, and partly for an Invitation to his Followers to ſet a due Price upon Continence and Chaſtity as great helps to the purifying of the Soul, and the making of her reliſh thoſe Delights which are truly Divine, himſelf did not vouchſafe to take our Fleſh upon him in that way which is accompanied with the Perception of groſs carnal Pleaſures; nor when he had taken our Fleſh, to reap the Joys thereof, no not ſo much as upon thoſe allowable Terms of Marriage; he coming into the World on purpoſe to ſlight and ſlur that which is of the greateſt Eſteem and ſweeteſt Reliſh with the Natural Man.

of

5. Fourthly and laſtly, the being born of a Virgin being one of the Notes of the Meſſias, as the very firſt Propheſie of him in the more proper and emphatical Senſe thereof ſeems to imply, That the ſeed of the Woman (in Oppoſition or Excluſion of the Man's Seed) ſhould break the Serpent's Head, as alſo that more plain Alluſion and lively Type in the Prophet Iſaiah of a Virgin conceiving a Son whoſe Name was Immanuel, does exquiſitely prefigure; This, I ſay, adds alſo to the congruity of this Miracle of Chriſt's Conception in the Womb of a Virgin. All which things put together are more than enough to ſufflaminate thoſe blaſphemous Suſpicions of witleſs and ungodly Men, and to convince them that it was not the colouring of ſome caſual Miſcarriage in the Mother of Chriſt, that he was ſaid to be begotten of the Holy Ghoſt; but that it was ſo indeed, and ſo determined by the Wiſdom and Counſel of God. The greateſt Reaſon whereof was (as I conceive) the Sanctity of our Saviour's Soul, and his purpoſe of Diſcountenancing of the Pleaſures and Pollutions of the Fleſh, and the drawing of Mens Minds to the Study of Purity, a very conſiderable Branch of the Divine Life which he came to raiſe in the World.

CHAP. II.

1. That as the Virginity of Chriſt's Mother recommended Purity, ſo her Meanneſs recommends Humility to the World; as alſo other Circumſtances of Chriſt's Birth. 2. Of the Salutation of the Angel Gabriel, and of the Magi. 3. That the Hiſtory of their Viſit helps on alſo Belief, and that it is not Reaſon but Sottiſhneſs that excepts againſt the Miniſtry of Angels. 4. His Deſign of continuing a Parallel betwixt the Life of Chriſt and of Apollonius Tyaneus. 5. The Pedigree and Birth of Apollonius, how ranck they ſmell of the Animal Life. 6. The Song of the Angels and the Dance of the muſical Swans at Apollonius's Birth compared.

1. NOW as his being born of a Virgin is a recommendation of Purity, ſo his being Born of ſo mean a Virgin as the Spouſe of a Carpenter is a recommendation of Humility. For it is obſervable that Chriſt on ſet purpoſe vilified and ſlighted that which is moſt eſteemed and moſt dear to the Animal Life, and ſuch are all thoſe Things that make for our Honour and Reputation amongſt Men; And Nobleneſs of Parentage is not one of the meaneſt of them. Other Circumſtances of his Birth tend alſo to the ſame Scope; for no ſooner came he into the World, but he practiſed that which he after taught others, he took the meaneſt Place in the Inn: and though he were Heir of all things, and the deſigned Soveraign of Angels and Men; yet he was ſhouldered out from amongſt them, and was fain to take his Lodgings in the Stable amongſt the brute Beaſts. But in this low Condition while he is taken no notice of by ſupercilious Mortals, yet the Angels celebrate his Nativity with an Heavenly Carol, imparting the good News of his Birth not to the Wiſe or Noble of this World, not to the learned Rabbies or Rulers of the People, but to Men of a lowly and innocent Profeſſion, to Shepherds attending their Flocks by Night. All which Circumſtances of his Birth you ſee how reaſonable, how ſignificant and decorous they are.

2. Nor is that Salutation of the Angel Gabriel concerning it, and his Prediction to Mary, an uſeleſs and idle Complement: but it was requiſite that what was to happen to her ſhould be foretold her, that the modeſt Virgin might not be abaſh'd to ſee her Womb ſwell, ſhe not knowing the Cauſe of it. The ſame may be ſaid alſo of the journey of the Magi, that it is not a thing vainly inſerted into the Hiſtory to make a Show, but that the Fame of the Jews Expectation of their Meſſias about that time being ſpread all over the Eaſt, theſe Genethliaci that lov'd to buſie themſelves about Nativities and ſtrange Events

Events in the World, amidſt their viewing the Conſtellations, diſcovering a New Star as it ſeem'd to them, and obſerving its Motion, were led to the very Place were the young King of the Jews lay, where they worſhipped him, not as the Son of God, but as one that they expected would be a mighty ſecular Prince; and therefore to engage him to favour themſelves and their Country, they did unto him this timely Homage.

3. But though they intended no more than thus, yet it being ſo famous an Accident, could not but further the Faith of thoſe that were to be called in to the belief of the Goſpel. Beſides that, it was a preluſion to and prefiguration of the Forwardneſs of the Gentiles above the Jews to receive Chriſt as their Soveraign and Redeemer, as alſo a prelibation of that Glory that ſhould at laſt accrew to Chriſt for the great Debaſement of himſelf and unparallel'd Humiliation. So that nothing can make the Circumſtances of the Hiſtory of his Birth incredible, unleſs it be the mention of the Miniſtry of Angels in it, which none can cavil at but ſuch as believe no Angels at all, neither good nor bad: nor can any be of this Unbelief, but ſuch as prefer the ſottiſh Suggeſtions of their own dull Temper before the perpetual Teſtimonies of all Ages and all Nations of the World; who have ever and anon had new Inſtances of Apparitions and Communications with evil Spirits, and freſh Occaſions of executing the Laws they had made againſt Witches and wicked Magicians.

4. I ſhould now paſs to the ſecond Head I propounded, could I abſtain from touching a little upon the Circumſtances of the Birth of that famous Corrival of our Saviour, Apollonius Tyaneus; whoſe Story writ by Philoſtratus, though I look upon it as a mixt Buſineſs partly true and partly falſe, yet, be it what it will be, ſeeing it is intended for the higheſt Example of Perfection, and that the Heathens did equalize him with Chriſt, you ſhall ſee how rank his whole Hiſtory ſmells of the Animal Life, and how hard a thing it is either in Actions or Writings to counterfeit that which is truly Holy and Divine. For which end I ſhall make a brief Paralleliſm of the Hiſtories of them both in the chief Matters of either, that the Gravity and Divinity of the one, and the Ridiculouſneſs and the Carnality of the other may the better be diſcerned.

5. As in this very firſt Point is plain and manifeſt, which is diſpatched in a Word. For in that Philoſtratus writes how Apollonius was of an ancient and illuſtrious Pedigree, of rich Parents, and deſcended from the Founders of the City Tyana, where he was born, is not this that which is as ſweet as honey to the Natural Man, and ſuch as an Holy and Divine Soul would ſet no eſteem upon? Like to this is his Mother's being waited upon by her Maidens into a Meadow, being directed thereto by a Viſion, where while her Servants were ſtraying up and down making of Poſies and Chaplets of Flowers, (O what fine ſoft pompous doings are here!) and her ſelf diſporting her ſelf in the Graſs, ſhe at laſt falls into a Slumber, the Swans in the mean time ranging themſelves in a Row round about her, dancing and clapping their Wings, and ſinging with ſuch ſhrill and ſweet Accents that they filled the neighbouring Places with their pleaſant Melody, they being as it were inſpired and tranſported with Joy by the gentle Breathings of the freſh and cool Zephyrus; whereupon the Lady awaking is inſtantly delivered of a fair Child, who, after his Father's Name, was called Apollonius.

6. The amenity of the Story how grateful and agreeable it is to Fleſh and Blood! But how ridiculous is that Dance and Roundelay of the muſical Swans compared with that heavenly Melody of the holy Angels at the Nativity of Chriſt! For that, if it could be true, is but a ludicrous Prodigy and Preſignification that Apollonius would prove a very odd Fellow, and of an extraordinary Strein, and ſerves only for the Magnifying of his Perſon. But this is a grave and weighty Indication of the Goodneſs of God and the Love of his holy Angels to Men, and a Prediction of that Peace and Grace which ſhould be adminiſtred unto them through Jeſus Chriſt that was then born. Behold, ſaid the chief Angel whoſe glorious Preſence ſurrounded the Shepherds with Light, Behold, ſaid he, I bring you good Tidings of great Joy which ſhall be unto all People; For unto you is born this Day a Saviour, which is Chriſt the Lord: whereupon there was ſuddenly with this Angel a multitude of the heavenly Hoſt praiſing God and ſaying, Glory to God in the higheſt, and on Earth Peace, good Will towards Men.

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

1. That whatever miraculouſly either happened to, or was done by our Saviour till his Paſſion, cannot ſeem impoſſible to him that holds there is a God and Miniſtration of Angels. 2. Of the Deſcending of the Holy Ghoſt, and the Voice from Heaven at his Baptiſm. 3. Why Chriſt expoſed himſelf to all manner of Hardſhip and Temptations. 4. And particularly why he was tempted of the Devil, with an Anſwer to an Objection touching the Devil's Boldneſs in daring to tempt the Son of God. 5. How he could be ſaid to ſhew him all the Kingdoms of the Earth. 6. The Reaſon of his Fourty Days Faſt. 7. And of his Tranſfiguration upon the Mount. The three firſt Reaſons. 8. The Meaning of Moſes and Elias their receding, and Chriſt's being left alone. 9. The laſt Reaſon of his Tranſfiguration, That it was for the Confirmation of his Reſurrection and the Immortality of the Soul. 10. Teſtimonies from Heaven of the Eminency of Chriſt's Perſon.

1. WE have done with the Birth of Chriſt, we proceed now to his Life: wherein we ſhall conſider only thoſe things that extraordinarily happened to him, or were miraculouſly done by him, till the time of his Paſſion; wherein nothing will be found impoſſible to them that acknowledge the Exiſtence of God, the active Malice of Devils, and the Miniſtry of Angels. But that which I intend mainly to inſinuate is, the Comelineſs and Suitableneſs of all things to ſo Holy and Divine a Perſon; which that it may the better appear, I ſhall after ſhew the Difference of this true Example of ſolid Perfection, Chriſt, and that falſe Pattern of feigned Holineſs in that Impoſtour Appollonius, whom the later Heathen did ſo highly adore.

2. The chief things that happened in an extraordinary way to Chriſt before his Paſſion are theſe Three. 1. The deſcending of the Holy Ghoſt upon him in the Shape of a Dove at his being baptized, and the Emiſſion of a Voice from Heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleaſed. 2. The Temptation of the Devil upon his Faſting. And 3. His Tranſfiguration upon the Mount.

Concerning the Firſt, there is great Reaſon for that Miracle. For God having a Deſign to ſet on foot the Divine Life in the World by his Son Jeſus Chriſt, Why ſhould he not countenance the Beginning of his Miniſtry by ſome notable Sign, by which Men might take Notice that he was the Meſſias, ſent of God? And John the Baptiſt confeſſes himſelf aſſur'd thereof by this Indication. And being there was to be ſome extraordinary Appearance, What could be more fit than this of a Dove, a known Emblem of Meekneſs and Innocency, inſeparable Branches of the Divine Life and Spirit? And at what better time, than when Jeſus gave ſo great a Specimen of his Meekneſs and Humility, as to condeſcend to be waſh'd, as if he had been polluted, when he was more pure than Light or Snow; and to be in the Form of a Diſciple to John, when he was able to teach him and all the World the Myſteries of God? Which may be noted to the eternal Shame of our conceited Enthuſiaſts, who fancying they have got ſomething extraordinary within, contemn and ſcorn the laudable Inſtitutions of the Church; which is an infallible Argument of their Pride, as this of our Saviour's Humility. But while he humbled himſelf thus, God did as highly advance him, adding to this ſilent Show, an articulate Voice from Heaven, the better to aſſure the By-ſtanders that he was the Meſſias, the Son of God.

John 1. v. 32.

3. As for his being tempted of the Devil, it has the ſame Meaning that the Hardſhip of his whole Life. For being that the Kingdom of God on Earth, which is the Church, was to overcome the Kingdom of Satan by Suffering; our Saviour Chriſt gives himſelf an Example of all manner of Trials and Troubles, of the moſt tedious Difficulties that could occur; like a wiſe and couragious Commander animating his Soldiers, by his own Willingneſs to ſuffer as deeply as they that he commands. Which Polyænus relates to be the Stratagem of Iphicrates, who when he ſaw it convenient to draw out his Soldiers in a cold froſty Night to aſſault the Enemy, and obſerved their Averſneſs by Reaſon of the Bitterneſs of the Seaſon, and the Thinneſs of their Clothing, he ſtrait-way clad himſelf more thin than the thin-

neſt

neſt of them, and on his bare Feet trudged from Tent to Tent to ſhew himſelf to his Camp: which did ſo encourage the Soldiers, that they ſet upon the Enterprize without Delay under the Conduct of ſo wiſe and valiant a Commander.

4. And therefore Chriſt in like manner, for the Encouragement of his Followers, went before in all manner of Difficulties, not only in Poverty, in Reproach, and in a conſtant Refuſal of all the Pleaſures, Riches, and Honours of this preſent World, as being to eſtabliſh the Faith of a better; but he was given up alſo to be tempted of the Devil, that we may not be diſmay'd by ſuch Encounters, and know how to behave our ſelves when we are engaged in them. For, his being tranſported thus ſecurely in the Air by the Hand of Satan, like ſome innocent Bird in the Talons of a rapacious Hawk, and yet not fainting under it, What can it be but an eminent Effect of his Faith in the living God, which is the very Root and inmoſt Original of the Divine Life? The ſame may be ſaid of his miraculous Faſt; For himſelf in Anſwer to the Tempter did profeſs, Man lived not only by Bread, but by Faith in that Word that ſuſtaineth all things. That alſo is worth the noting that Grotius obſerves upon the place, That this Threefold Temptation wherewith the Devil tempted Chriſt is the moſt uſual and moſt prevalent that he aſſaults Mankind withal, viz. Egeſtas*, Confidentia Prædeſtinationis, & Spes ſplendoris humani, (eſpecially thoſe that have diſentangled themſelves from the more ſoft and ſenſual Deſires of the Fleſh:) and the Advantage of Chriſt's Temptation is, that we are punctually inſtructed aforehand how we are to oppoſe. Wherefore this Hiſtory of his Temptation is very decorous and agreeable to Reaſon. Nor does the Relation of the Devil's aſſaulting of the Son of God make it the leſs credible: for it is moſt likely that he was not ſure yet he was ſuch in that Senſe that we underſtand the Son of God; and a Queſtion whether all the Devils be yet convinced that he is what we rightly believe him to be. But for his own Curioſity to try what he was, as well as out of a malicious Deſign to pervert him, if he could, he aſſaulted him after this Manner in the Wilderneſs.

*Poverty, Preſumption of being elected, and Hope of worldly Honor and Preferment.

5. That of ſhewing him all the Kingdoms of the Earth from an exceeding high Mountain, ſeems to have ſome Difficulty in it. For if it was only a preſtigious Repreſentation of the Glory of the Kingdoms of the Earth, What needed a Tranſportation of him to the Top of a Mountain, or at leaſt of a Mountain ſo exceeding high? But if it was a real View of them, the higheſt Mountain in the World will not enlarge our Proſpect ſo as to take in one ordinary Kingdom under our Sight. But to this I anſwer, That this cunning Preſtigiator took the Advantage of ſo high a Place to ſet off his Repreſentations the more lively, and to make them the more probable to be true. For the Proſpect ſeeming ſo great to the Eye, and ruder Fancies imagining the Earth a round Flat, this old Juggler might eaſily hope that he might delude the Carpenter's Son with ſo large a Show, and perſwade him that what was ſo great, was all; eſpecially affecting in ſuch a manner his Sight, as that the whole Horizon ſhould ſeem full of the pompous Varieties of the Powers and Principalities of the World.

6. As for the long and ſolemn Faſt of Chriſt and his Retirement into Solitude for fourty Days, after Notice was given from Heaven that he was the Meſſias the Son of God, this was very ſeemly and convenient to ſharpen the Deſire of the People to receive him when he did return, and to gain more Authority to his Doctrine which he was to teach them, and to inculcate to his Succeſſors, by his Example, how fit it is to ſtarve the Animal Life, and quite vanquiſh all the Pleaſures of the Body, before they take upon them to be Inſtructers in Divine Matters, which are of eternal Concernment to the Soul. When as now a-Days by how much the more a Man's Skin is full treg'd with Fleſh, Blood, and natural Spirits, and by how much the more eager Appetite he has to the things of the World, by ſo much impatienter he is to get into the Pulpit to exerciſe his Voice and Lungs, and thereby to approve himſelf for a Preferment: Whenas Chriſt would not exerciſe this Office of preaching the Kingdom of Heaven, before he had at once deſpiſed all the Riches, Pomp, and Pleaſures of the Earth. And as his Wiſdom is diſcovered in undertaking this ſolemn Abſtinence and Retirement; ſo is alſo his Humility in affecting no Innovation therein, but he took up the Example of Moſes and Elias, who after conferr'd with him in the Mount at his Transfiguration. which is the third and laſt eminent Accident which happen'd to our Saviour before his Paſſion, and which is not recited to fill up the Story, but is of very deep and weighty Conſequence.

7. Our Saviour takes unto him Peter, James, and John, three of the Prime of his Apoſtles, to be Spectators and Witneſſes of what they ſhould ſee on the Mount, whither he carried them, where he was transfigured before them, his Face ſhining like the Sun, and his Raiment becoming as white as the Light; where Moſes alſo and Elias talked with him concerning his Death and glorious Reſurrection. Which Conference was Firſt a great Cordial to animate our Saviour the better to go through his heavy Sufferings; and Secondly a great Satisfaction to as many of the Jews as ſhould be converted to Chriſtianity, that Moſes and Elias, that is, their Law-giver and the chiefeſt of their Prophets, were Abettors to Chriſt in this new Diſpenſation he was to ſet up in the World; and Thirdly, there was a particular Injunction (even while Moſes and Elias were preſent with him Face to Face) to hearken and yeild Obedience now to Chriſt as to the beloved Son of God, and to let Moſes and Elias go, all things being compleated in him. For a Cloud overſhadowed them, and a Voice came out of the Cloud, ſaying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed: hear ye him.

Luke 9. 34.

8. And the very Viſion was a Repreſentation of what was to come to paſs: For after this Moſes and Elias vaniſhed, and his Diſciples, when he had raiſed them up from the Ground, (for they had fallen flat on their Faces out of Fear) lifting up their Eyes, ſaw no Man ſave Jeſus only.

9. Fourthly and laſtly, It was a very fit and powerful Inſtance to aſſure Men of the Immortality of the Soul, and to beget a more unſhaken Belief of the Reſurrection of Chriſt out of the Grave: and therefore Chriſt bad his Diſciples tell no Man of the Viſion, but reſerve it till its due Uſe and Time, that is, till Chriſt had riſen from the Dead, to be added as a further Confirmation of that Myſtery of enjoying of Life and Immortality in a glorified Body, againſt that dull Infidelity of Atheiſtical Men that think the Soul of Man cannot act unleſs in the Fleſh.

10. In the Firſt and Laſt of theſe memorable Accidents we rehearſed, there is an eminent Witneſs from Heaven of the Excellency of Chriſt's Perſon, to which that nothing remarkable may be omitted, we ſhall add alſo that recorded in John 12. where Chriſt praying, Father, glorifie thy Name, there came a Voice from Heaven, ſaying, I have both glorified it, and will glorifie it again.

CHAP. IV.

1. What miraculous Accidents in Apollonius his Life may ſeem parallel to theſe of Chriſt's. His ſuperſtitious faſting from Fleſh and Abſtinence from Wine out of a Thirſt after the Glory of foretelling Things to come. 2. Apollonius a Maſter of Judiciary Aſtrology, and of his ſeven Rings with the Names of the ſeven Planets. 3. Miraculous Teſtimonies given to the Eminency of Apollonius his Perſon by Æſculapius and Trophonius how weak and obſcure. 4. The Brachmans high Encomium of him, with an Acknowledgment done to him by a fawning Lion. The ridiculous Folly of all theſe Teſtimonies.

1. WE have now gone through the chiefeſt things that happened to Chriſt in an extraordinary Manner before his Paſſion. Before we proceed any further, being mindful of our Promiſe, we ſhall give a Glance at what may ſeem parallel in the Life of Apollonius. And to the miraculous Faſt of Chriſt undergone for ſo ſober Purpoſes, which he was carried to by the Power of the Spirit, I find nothing to be compared in that famous Philoſopher, if he deſerved ſo ſolid a Title, but his continual voluntary Abſtinence from Fleſh and Wine. Which needleſs Superſtition is coloured with as contemptible an End, that is, a vain Affectation of Glory by foretelling of things to come; a Faculty that mightily pleaſes and tickles the natural Man: and the Affectation thereof ſhews the Levity and Pride of Apollonius his Spirit, as alſo of his grand Inſtructers in that Science the Brachmans of India, who having asked Damis if he had any Skill in Divination, and he profeſſing that his Study and Knowledge reached no further than to things uſeful and neceſſary, laughed him to ſcorn.

2. But Philoſtratus writes of Apollonius as wholly giving himſelf up to the Study of Divination and Judiciary Aſtrology, and how Iarchas the chief of the Brachmans gave him ſeven Rings with the Names of the ſeven Planets inſcribed upon them, as alſo that Apollonius wrote four Books of this Art. Which things are a Demonstration of his gross Ignorance in Nature and Philosophy, and of the corrupt and trifling Temper of his Spirit: and that there was nothing truly divine in him, though the deceived Pagans adored him for a God. For those that descend to such Arts, it is a Sign there is no solid Knowledge in them, much less any supernatural Principle either in them or assisting to them; but that their Predictions are Diabolical, or else that they are mere Whifflers and Jugglers, and have no extraordinary Assistance at all.

†

that

3. I shall add but another Parallel and so proceed; and that is the Testimonies concerning the Eminence of their Persons, in which there is as great a Difference as of their Persons themselves. The Person of Christ being witnessed to by an audible Voice from Heaven, God affirming thereby to the World that he was his beloved Son, and requiring their Obedience to him; but the Eminency of Apollonius being recommended by none but the Ghost of Æsculapius and Trophonius, whose Den he entred, and (as it became a Necromancer) confabulated there a long time with him, as he did also with Achilles at his Tomb, who imploy'd him to renew his annual Rites and Honours in Thessalie. But this Recommendation of his was not immediate from either, but by their Priests, who being informed, the one by a Dream, the other by some obscure Voice in the Temple (of which there was no Witness but the Priest himself) gave out great Matters of Apollonius.

4. We may add also the Testimony of the Brachmans those famous Magicians, whom Apollonius so much applauding, they return'd his Civility, and concluded among themselves that he was worthy to be honoured as a God, both alive and after Death. Nay we will give him in all to make up the Weight. A certain tame Lion in Ægypt seem'd also to acknowledge his Divinity, coming to him as he was sitting in the Temple and crouching under him; who when Apollonius told the People that he was that ancient Ægyptian King Amasis come into a Lion's Body, the Beast began to roar, and lament and weep bitterly, as begging his Succour in so bad a Condition: Which Apollonius being sensible of, got the Lion to be sent to Leontopolis a City of Ægypt, and there to be kept in such sort as was more suitable to his Royal Soul. How obscure, confounded and ridiculous are all these Testimonies of the Eminency of the Person of that subtil Impostor! So mean and empty is all humane Contrivance against the Glory and Soveraignty of Christ the true Son of God.

CHAP. V.

1. Three general Observables in Christ's Miracles. 2. Why he several times charged Silence upon those he wrought his Miracles upon. 3. Why Christ was never frustrated in attempting any Miracle. 4. The Vanity of the Atheists that impute his Miracles to the Power of Imagination. 5. Of the delusive and vanishing Viands of Witches and Magicians.

1. WE come now to what Jesus miraculously did in his Life-time. We may refer the most of his Miracles to these four Heads; His feeding the hungry Multitudes. His healing the Sick. His raising of the Dead, and his dispossessing of Devils. In all which you may observe.

First, That his Wonder-working Power was exercised upon known and familiar Objects, such as often occur amongst Men. For such are Hunger, Sickness, Death, and Possession of Devils or Witchery; not that I think them both one, but that sundry Persons are possessed that way, and it may be most frequently.

Secondly, That Christ puts forth his Power no where out of any Levity or vain Ostentation, but as the Necessities of Men required it: all his Miracles being a perpetual Exercise of Love and Compassion to Mankind. To which we might add also in the Third place, what is likewise general to them all, his Purpose of glorifying God by them, and laying Foundations of Faith for the People to believe in him, as the true Messias.

2. Which Belief yet he would not accelerate too fast, that it might not prevent his Suffering; nor yet accelerate his Suffering too fast, before he had done the due preparatory Works which he had to do. Which made him ſometime to ſeem unwilling to do over publick Miracles, as that at the Wedding of turning Water into Wine; and after he had fed the Multitude, he hid himſelf that they might not make him a King; and ſeveral times when he miraculouſly healed Men with more privacy, he ſtrictly charged them that were thus healed to tell no Man; as well that he might not over-haſtily precipitate Belief in Men, as I have already intimated, as alſo to keep himſelf from the Rage of the Phariſees till the due time of his Suffering was at hand. In the mean while his Miracles and Doctrine were to diſtill into the minds of Men by degrees, to prepare them for a fuller Belief upon his Reſurrection from the Dead.

3. It would be too voluminous a Buſineſs to rehearſe the Story of every particular Miracle, and to deſcant upon it. What we have thus advertiſed in general, is moſt conſiderable and moſt profitable to be noted. Nor need we add any thing to facilitate the Belief of them to thoſe that are not ſuch Infidels as not to believe the Exiſtence of either God or Spirit. For others will very eaſily conceive, that Chriſt being joyn'd with that Eternal Word that healeth all Things, might heal thoſe that are abſent either by his Word, or by the Miniſtry of Angels who were always to attend him. And it is no wonder that Chriſt ſhould never be miſtaken in any Attempt or Preſage, he being ſo livingly united with the Eternal Wiſdom of God, and being of one Will and Spirit with him, not diſturb'd or diſtracted with any Excurſions or Impetuoſities of his own Will.

4. The whiffling Atheiſts impute all to natural Power of Imagination, and pleaſe themſelves mightily in the Abuſe of thoſe Paſſages in the Goſpel that ſeem to aſſert that Chriſt was hindred from working of Miracles becauſe of the Unbelief of the Peo-
Mark 6. 5, 6. ple, as it is ſaid in the Goſpel of S. Mark, that he could do no mighty Works, becauſe of their Unbelief. But it was not a natural but moral Impoſſibility; he could not induce his Mind thereto, he being provoked to ſo juſt Indignation againſt his own Country that deſpiſed him. But ſay in good Sadneſs, poor blind and baffled Souls, How can the natural Strength of Imagination heal the abſent? to ſay nothing of the preſent Sick of ordinary Diſeaſes, ſuch as the Leproſy, Palſy and Dropſy; who ever cur'd thoſe by mere Imagination? How then ſhall Imagination recover Sight even to them that were born Blind? How ſhall it raiſe the Dead in whom there is no Imagination at all? as in Jairus his Daughter, and Lazarus who had lien four Days in the Grave. Can Phanſy feed five thouſand Men with five Loaves and two Fiſhes? Or four thouſand beſides Women and Children with ſeven Loaves and a few little Fiſhes, being almoſt hunger-ſtarv'd by three Days Receſs into the Wilderneſs?

5. Which things though not ſo ſubſtantially performed, are notwithſtanding in ſome Meaſure imitated by Witches and Magicians, I mean in their Junketings; whoſe Viands are obſerved to afford ſo little Satisfaction to Nature, that they leave oftentimes the Partakers of them as weak and faint almoſt as if they had eaten nothing (as Bodinus relates of the Magical Entertainments of that Nobleman of Aſpremont, whoſe Gueſts by that time they had rid a little ſpace from his Houſe were ready to faint and fall down both Horſe and Man for hunger;) and alſo to be of ſuch a fugitive Conſiſtence, that they ordinarily vaniſhed at the taking away of the Cloth: whenas in both theſe Miracles of Chriſt many Baskets full of the Fragments were reſerved.

CHAP.

CHAP. VI.

1. Of Christ's dispossessing of Devils. 2. An Account of there being more Dæmoniacks than ordinary in our Saviour's Time. As first from a possible want of care or skill, how to order their Mad-men or Lunaticks. 3. The second from the power of the Devil being greater before the coming of Christ than after. 4. That not only Excommunication but Apostasy from Christ may subject a Man to the Tyranny of Satan, as may seem to have fallen out in several of the more desperate Sects of this Age. 5. An Enumeration of sundry Dæmoniacal Symptoms amongst them. 6. More of the same Nature. 7. Their profane and antick Imitations of the most solemn Passages in the History of Christ. 8. A further Solution of the present Difficulties from the premised Considerations. 9. A third and fourth Answer from the Fame of their Cure and the Conflux of these Dæmoniacks into one Country. 10. A fifth from the Ambiguity of the word Δαιμονιζόμενοι. 11. The sixth and last Answer, That it is not at all absurd to admit there was a greater number of real Dæmoniacks in Christ's time than at other times, from the useful End of their then abounding.

1. AS for our Saviour's dispossessing or ejecting of Devils out of Men; as his raising of the Dead was a Pledge and Prefiguration of that Power he professed was given him of Crowning them that believed on him with Life and Immortality at the last Day, so was this a very proper Prelude to that utter Overthrow he was to give the Kingdom of Satan, he being to dispossess him of all Places at last. There's nothing can seem harsh to them that believe there are Spirits (and none but sensual, prophane and foolish Men will misbelieve such things) there is nothing, I say, can seem harsh in this kind of Miracle, unless it be the Multitude of Persons then possessed, or the multitude of Devils in one possessed Person whose Name was Legion.

2. But as for the First, there may be many Answers, none whereof want their Use and Weight. Wee'll begin with what seems of meaner Consideration first: where we will not omit to mention that the Redundancy of Dæmoniacks in Christ's time above what we observe in later Ages, may proceed from the differences of the Skill and Care that was then had of Mad-men and Lunaticks in Judea and the adjacent Countries of the Gentiles from whence no small part of them came, and what is used now a-days. It is, I say, questionable whether they had so good Provision for distracted People at those times and in those Places for keeping them within and ordering their Distemper to the greatest Mitigation it was capable of. For the stronger it is, the more effectual Allurement is there to bring some evil Spirit or other into the Body of a Man. For he ceasing to be his own, another does the more naturally become the Master of him. As he that is not his own Man through the Soveraignty of Drink, will find also many other Masters busie about him; all the Boys in the Town flocking after him, and heightening his Intoxication by their apish Injuries. But I will not insist upon this.

3. Secondly, It is not so strange that there should be a greater number of possessed in Christ's time than now, because since Christianity the Power of the Devil is much more curbed. For it is plain that where Paganism Rules, the Persons of Men are more subject to the Cruelty of the Devil. As appears by what is recorded in History concerning the Inhabitants of several Countries; as of Madagascar, where the Devil Afflicts them Bodily: In Florida he astonishes them with dreadful Apparitions, and cuts their very Flesh off in his Approaches: they of Guiana are beat black and blew by him, and the Brasilians so grievously tormented, that they are ready to die for fear upon the very thought of him. The Apostate Jews that they fell under his Power is the Opinion of their own Rabbins: and the primitive Christians delivered to Satan felt to their Smart the rigour of his Lash. All which may go for a sufficient Proof, That the Profession of Christianity and the Worship of the true God in that way that he will be worshipped, is a personal Defence, and a Protection from the gross and bodily Incursions and Assaults of the Devil.

4. A Man might add further, That not only they that are duly Excommunicated by the Church are made obnoxious to his Tyranny, but also those that revolt of themselves, and deny the Lord that bought them, by their Misbelief of the sacred History of the Gospel, and the personal Office of Christ, even of him that died betwixt two Thieves at Jeruſalem, As is notoriouſly apparent in ſome of the forlorn and giddy-headed Sects of theſe times, amongſt whom, I dare ſay, a Man may find out a greater Number of true Dæmoniacks than Chriſt and his Apoſtles are ſaid to cure.

two

5. For to what more rationally than to the Poſſeſſion of theſe deceiving Spirits can be attributed thoſe wild Extaſies they are in, their falling down dead, the ſwelling of their Bodies and foaming at the Mouth, their Neglectedneſs, Sordidneſs, and Abhorring from all decent Order and Humanity, their antick Poſtures and Geſtures? One going in the open Market Place with his Head lift on high and his Arms ſpread out, roaring and mouthing out fanatical Denunciations; and another following him at the Heels with a ſoft ſneaking Pace, his Head hanging down as if his Noſe bled, and his Hands preſſing his Navel, as if he were troubled with the Belly-ach; others creeping on all Four like Brute Beaſts, and wallowing and tumbling on the Ground like Dogs or Swine. Others taken with the expected Power they lay vacant for, were hurried on in a very ſwift Pace on Tip-Toes, with their Hats inverted on their Heads, and yet not falling off, and their Arms ſtretched directly upwards with their Fore-fingers pointing to the Zenith; and this for ſo long a Space as no ordinary Man could do the like; an Argument that they were thus acted by ſome Demon.

6. Add to this their being troubled with Apparitions, their fearful and hideous Howlings and Cryings, their wild and extatical Singings and frantick Dancings, their running naked through Towns into Churches and private Houſes, their violent and irreſiſtible Shakings and Tremblings, to the utter weakening of Nature and making their very Bodies ſore: and all this tranſacted by a Power or Spirit which themſelves confeſs diſtinct from themſelves, which alſo ſpeaks diſtinctly and audibly in them, and uſes their Arms and Hands to the beating their Head and Body, which impoſes upon them very abſurd Commands, macerating moſt, killing ſome with Faſting,, tyrannizing over them all in every thing, almoſt as much as the Devil does over the poor Indians.

7. Creeping, crouching, licking the Duſt, eating of Butterflies, feeding of nought but Crumbs and Bones, ſuch as we fling to Dogs, Cabbage-ſtalks and Leaves of Coleworts ſcattered and caſt away by the Market-Women; theſe are ſmaller Services of that imperious Fiend within them. But this new Gueſt countermanding the allowable Voice of Nature ſo as ſcarce to ſuffer a Man to take four and twenty Hours Reſt in five and twenty Days, to condemn him to the Guidance of every fooliſh Flie that comes in his Sight, and ſo to adjudge him to hold his Leg ſo long and ſo cloſe to the Fire (the Flie guiding him, the time) that it was ſcorched from the Knee to the Foot, in ſuch grieveous manner that it was not to be cured in leſs than a Quarter of a Year; theſe are more ſevere and rigid Services of that infernal Task-Maſter. Beſides that, ever and anon this inward Voice, and ſometimes outward, utters very audibly to them ſome place or other of Scripture to a ridiculous Abuſe and Prophanation of it; and not that only, but enforces the poor captivated Vaſſal in Scorn and Contempt of the Perſon of Chriſt to act ſome remarkable Paſſages in his Story, ſuch as his Death, and Triumph at Jeruſalem; the former by James Milner and John Toldervy, the latter by James Naylor, who had his Horſe led in Triumph by two Women trudging in Dirt at his entring Briſtol, with Holy, Holy, Holy, and Hoſanna's ſung to him by the fanatical Company that attended him; Garments alſo in ſome places being ſtrowed in the Way. Such wild Tricks as theſe are thoſe deluded Souls made to play, to make Sport for thoſe aerial Goblins that did drive them and actuate them.

8. I might enlarge further upon this Matter: but this ſhort Glance at things might be enough to induce any indifferent Man (that can at all believe that there is any ſuch thing as Witches and Poſſeſſion of Evil Spirits) not eaſily to miſtruſt but that the Diſtemper of this preſent Age has been ſuch, (and it may be ſtill is) that if there were any ſuch venerable Perſon as could command them from under this Power by which many of them are ſo madly actuated, there would plainly prove a more plentiful harveſt of Dæmoniacks in theſe times than in our Saviour's; and a number more beſides John Gilpin and John Toldervy would acknowledge themſelves to have been poſſeſſed by the Devil. But at leaſt we will gain this reaſonable Obſervation from our Digreſſion we have made, which will be ſuccedaneous to what we mainly aim at, viz. That if one Age be ſo exceeding Fanatical above another, Why may not one Age be as much more Dæmoniacal than another?

† 9. Thirdly,

9. Thirdly, Such diſtracted and Epileptical Perſons, as alſo Dæmoniacal, would not be talked of unleſs they were miraculouſly cur'd; which not happening in other Ages, they are not ſo much taken Notice of. Fourthly, Our Saviour going from Place to Place, and his Fame flying further than the Motion of his Perſon, he was likely to meet with and to have brought to him more of ſuch Perſons by far from the Pagan Nations about him, than otherwiſe at any time could in any likelihood have been taken Notice of, though there were in other Parts of the World and in other Ages as many.

10. Fifthly, Thoſe δαιμονιζόμενοι ſo called in the Scripture, there is no need to take them all in the ſtricteſt Senſe: Mad-men, Lunaticks or Epileptical Men, or any Men extraordinarily diſtempered with Melancholy, being by the Jews deemed and called Dæmoniacks, the People being as much over-prone to aſcribe natural Diſeaſes to the Devil, as many Phyſicians are to aſcribe Diabolical Diſtempers and Vexations to Nature. But Chriſt cured the Diſeaſes by his Word, (* ἐπετίμησε τῷ πυρετῷ) ſuffering the People to call them by what Title they pleaſed: as he that has a Catholick Medicine, is not very curious of either the Name or the Nature of the Malady. But there is no Queſtion but that there was a competent Number of Dæmoniacks properly ſo called. * Luke 4. 39.

11. Sixthly and laſtly, Suppoſing all ſo called were properly Dæmoniacks, and that there were a greater Number of them in Chriſt's time and in thoſe Parts than there elſewhere has been at any time, What Inconvenience is there in this, if Providence would ſo diſpenſe, for ſo good a Purpoſe? As Chriſt intimates in the Caſe of the Man that was born blind, where he profeſſeth, That it was not his Parents Fault nor his own that he was born blind, but it was the Will of God it ſhould be ſo, that he might have the Occaſion of doing the more glorious Miracle. And there wanted nothing then but the Divine Permiſſion to make ſo many Dæmoniacks, no more than there was any thing more requiſite but the Permiſſion of Chriſt for the Gadaren Devils to take Poſſeſſion of the Swine, and ſo to hurry them into the midſt of the Sea. And certainly they are very captious that will not permit ſo free a Soveraignty to the Almighty to lay ſome Hardſhip on ſome few of his Creatures for the general Good of the reſt, eſpecially when thoſe Creatures themſelves may have deſerved infinitely worſe at his Hand than he inflicts upon them, and are compenſated with a peculiar Advantage for their Sufferings. Some one of theſe Anſwers, or ſeveral of them put together are ſufficient, if not more than ſufficient, to ſatisfie this firſt Difficulty.

CHAP. VII.

1. That the Hiſtory of the Dæmoniack whoſe Name was Legion has no Incongruity in it. 2. That they were a Regiment of the Dark Kingdom that haunted moſt the Country of the Gadarens; and that whether we conceive their Chieftain alone, or many of his Army to poſſeſs the Man, there is no Abſurdity therein. 3. How it came to paſs ſo many Devils ſhould clutter about one ſorry Perſon. 4. The Reaſon of Chriſt's demanding of the Dæmoniack's Name, and the great uſe of recording this Hiſtory. 5. The Numeroſity of the Devils diſcovered by their Poſſeſſion of the Swine. 6. Several other Reaſons why Chriſt permitted them to enter into the Gadarens Herds. 7. That Chriſt offended againſt the Laws of neither Compaſſion nor Juſtice in this Permiſſion.

1. THE Second Difficulty, concerning that fierce Dæmoniack that had ſo many Devils in him, that he thought fit to call himſelf by the Name of Legion, as being poſſeſt by ſuch a Multitude of unclean Spirits, though it bears at the firſt View the Face of an extravagant and incredible thing, yet if it be throughly examined it will prove a very weighty Hiſtory; all being found congruous to the Nature of things, and decorous and beſeeming ſo Divine a Perſon as our Saviour, who was to conquer the Devil and ruine his Kingdom, as we ſee he has in ſome meaſure done at this very Day. That there ſhould be ſuch an Army of Spirits in one place, ought not to ſeem ſtrange to him that will believe the Sight and Report of the Young-man whoſe Eyes were opened at the Prayer of Eliſha, whereupon he ſaw the Mountain full of Horſes and Chariots of Fire round about the Prophet. Nor is it any real Incongruity, that there ſhould be a multitude of Dæmons or Spirits within the compaſs of one Man's Body, though it may be ſo many of that Legion were not entred into him, but that he was actuated principally by the Captain thereof, he being rebuked by Chriſt in the ſingular Number, and he anſwering as one in the Name of many. Which we may as well underſtand of thoſe that were near him and followed him, and had ſome malign Influence its likely on the Dæmoniack by way of Obſeſſion, as of ſuch only as were entred into him and properly did poſſeſs him.

ſaw

2. For it ſeems by their Petition to Chriſt, they were a Regiment of the Dark Kingdom, that uſed to rove and ramble about in the Country of the Gadarens, out of which they had no mind to depart; thoſe Parts being more obnoxious to the Infernal Powers, they abounding ſo with Apoſtate Jews, who being fallen from the Holy Covenant became more ſubject to the Tyranny of the Devil. Wherefore there is no neceſſity of granting a whole Legion of Fiends in this Dæmoniack, but a competent Multitude or ſome chief one of the Legion. Though without any Violence to their Natures, there may many lodge in the Body of a Man; theſe Spirits being able to draw themſelves out of their uſual Extent into a far narrower Compaſs, and perhaps wholly to quit their own Vehicle to make uſe of another's; and ſo many may unite with the Blood and Spirits of a Man.

3. Nor need it ſeem ſo harſh that ſo great a number be buſied about one ſorry Wight. For that military word Legion ſuggeſts unto us a very fit and eaſie Solution of this Difficulty, viz. That this did not happen primarily, but by Conſequence; the chief Commander of this dark Regiment having his uſual Haunt and Recourſe to him, and therefore the Obſeſſion of this numerous Rabble is only by ſequel: as if ſome Captain ſhould make his ſtay for his own Pleaſure in ſome blind ſolitary Cottage in the Field; it would be no Wonder to ſee the Houſe beſet with the multitude of his Souldiers, they being there in Attendance on him, rather than in any Satisfaction or Advantage to themſelves, there being not a proportionable Booty for ſo great a Company; but the Place notwithſtanding would not fail to be foully peſtred by them. After this ſort it far'd with this miſerable Dæmoniack, who could not but be even ſtifled with the throng of this helliſh Legion.

4. Nor is it any Queſtion but that Chriſt knew how ſtrong they were and numerous: and therefore that the greater Glory may accrew to himſelf and to him that ſent him, he makes them confeſs their numeroſity by asking the poſſeſſed his Name. And it was more fit that the Power of Chriſt ſhould be demonſtrated and the Divinity of his Perſon, in chaſing a whole Army of Devils relating to one poſſeſſed, than that there ſhould be as many poſſeſſed as there were Devils, for him to ſhew his Power on: For the Victory is never the leſs, (the Devils being nothing the weaker for not appearing harneſſed with Humane Fleſh) and a great deal of Inconvenience to Mankind was declined; beſides the great Noiſe and Turbulency in the World which would have riſen thereupon, which Chriſt ever avoided. But it was fit that this Hiſtory ſhould be Recorded as well as Tranſacted, that the Church might have the more ſtrong Faith in the Son of God, who even while he was in the Fleſh had ſuch noble Victories over the Powers of the dark Kingdom, putting to Flight many thouſands of Devils at once.

5. The truth whereof was very handſomely aſſured by Chriſt's permitting what theſe unclean Spirits deſired, which was to go into a Herd of Swine, which, the Text ſays, was about two thouſand; which was a very fair Pledge of their Numeroſity to them that will not Cavil; theſe impure Spirits, as both Triſmegiſt and Pſellus have obſerved, pleaſing themſelves to dabble in the Blood of Brutes as well as of Men, and therefore to lodge themſelves in their Veins and Arteries. And Malice being as ſweet to them as the refreſhing of their other foul Appetite, every Soldier of this dark Regiment would be very nimble at ſeizing of his Prey; and ſo they dividing their Booty amongſt them, every one reaped the Satisfaction of his own foul and malicious Mind, by entring the Swine and hurrying them into the midſt of the Sea: which they indeed had not been able to do, had not Chriſt permitted them. But Chriſt was not at all overſhot in this Conceſſion or Permiſſion to effect their Project: For though they deſired it for miſchief ſake, that they might incenſe the Gadarens againſt him, yet he plainly outwitted them in their Project, it being more ſerviceable to him than to them.

6. For hereby was the foulneſs and miſchievous Virulency of the Devils more plainly demonſtrated. Whence his Mercy to the poſſeſſed was the more fully illuſtrated: and by the loſs of the Swine the Temper of the Gadarens was alſo diſcovered, the

Mo-

Moſaical Abſtinence ſeaſonably countenanced againſt the Apoſtate Jews of that Country, the ſwiniſh Nature of Men Ænigmatically perſtringed, and the Divine Power of Chriſt, as I ſaid, who alone could deal with ſuch numerous Troops of Infernal Spirits, manifeſted to the World; and the Mouth of ſuch frivolous Allegoriſts ſtopped, as would make the Devils that Chriſt is ſaid to caſt out of the poſſeſſed, to be no Eſſential Spirits, but only deprav'd Affections, as Calvin obſerves upon the Place. Wherefore there is nothing of Levity, Injury or any Extravagancy in the whole Story, but all Circumſtances therein are ſober, juſt and uſeful.

7. For Chriſt was not bound to hinder the loſs of the Swine, their periſhing being for ſo publick a good, and of ſo great importance, as to aſſure us of the vaſt Power he has who ſhall one Day be judge, and do final Vengeance upon all the Infernal Powers at once; and that, though he be ſo full of Compaſſion towards Mankind as to lay down his Life for the World, that through Belief in him he may ſave them from eternal Deſtruction, yet no ſoftneſs or effeminacy of Spirit, or unſeaſonable Pity to the brute Creatures, ſhall hold his Hands from doing Execution upon unbelieving and obdurate Perſons; but that as here the Devils and the Swine were plunged together into the bottom of the Sea, ſo a deluge of Fire ſhall be poured out upon the Earth at the laſt Judgment, wherein all terreſtrial Animals together with the Devils and the Damned ſhall burn in Flames unquenchable.

CHAP. VIII.

1. Of Chriſt's turning Water into Wine. 2. The Miraculous Draught of Fiſh. 3. His whipping the Mony-changers out of the Temple. 4. His walking on the Sea, and rebuking the Wind. 5. His curſing the Fig-tree. 6. The meaning of that Miracle. 7. The Reaſon why he expreſſed his meaning ſo Ænigmatically. 8. That both the Prophets and Chriſt himſelf (as in the Ceremonies he uſed in curing the Man that was born blind) ſpoke Δι' τύπων, in Typical Actions. 9. The things that were typified in thoſe Ceremonies Chriſt uſed in healing the Blind; as in his tempering Clay and Spittle. 10. A further and more full Interpretation of the whole Tranſaction. 11. Some brief Touches upon the Prophecies of Chriſt.

1. BEſides thoſe Miracles which are referrable to the four general Heads we noted, there be alſo other Single Examples of different Natures: ſuch are His turning Water into Wine; The miraculous Draught of Fiſh; His driving the Buyers and Sellers out of the Temple; His walking on the Sea, and his rebuking of the Winds, To all which it is common with the reſt, That they were not done out of any Vanity or Oſtentation, but out of a Principle of Love and kind Affection, being always invited by ſome preſent Exigency to ſhew his wonder-working Power. As in that of turning Water into Wine at a Wedding in Cana of Galilee, which he did at the Solicitation of his Mother, though with ſome reluctancy, becauſe of the Envy of the Phariſees that ſought to kill him; as alſo out of a principle of Humanity, they being at a loſs for Wine (more Company its likely for Jeſus his ſake coming to the Marriage-feaſt than was expected;) nay I may ſay out of a Frame of Spirit becoming the Divinity of his Perſon. For what is more Divine or God-like, than himſelf being utterly exempted from the Pleaſures of this Life and the Knowledge of the Nuptial-bed, yet wholly laying aſide all Superciliouſneſs and Exprobrations to others, to countenance neceſſary Marriage, gratifying their lawful Deſires (who could not well be diſentangled from theſe Things) in the ordinary and natural Enjoyments of the Body?

2. The miraculous Draught of Fiſh Simon pulled up after he had caſt his Net at our Saviour's Appointment, it was partly a Compenſation of their long Toil all Night, when they caught nothing, and partly a Prefiguration of Peter's excellent Succeſs when he was become a Fiſher of Men.

3. That Miracle of whipping the Money-Changers out of the Temple, (for ſo Grotius will have it to be eſteemed, Chriſt performing it, as he writes, nullâ vi externâ, ſolâ divinâ virtute venerabilis) though it ſeem full of unwarrantable Paſſion or Fury, yet the Provocation was very juſt, and the Principle from whence this fit of Zeal did flow, the beſt that could be, viz. a dear Regard to the deſpiſed Gentiles, (whoſe Atrium or place of Worſhip the Jews did thus contemptuouſly prophane) and a juſt Indignation againſt the Jews, who out of a fond Pride and Conceit of their being the Seed of Abraham, though they prov'd themſelves the Sons of the Devil, ſcorn'd and deſpiſed the poor Gentiles for whom Chriſt was to die; and it was an Act full of Love and Heroical Affection to right them thus while he lived.

4. His Walking on the Sea, it was to come to his Diſciples that were toiling and rowing againſt the Wind and the Stream, he having in all likelihood not the Convenience of taking a Boat any where to come unto them. And laſtly, His rebuking the Wind and the Sea in a mighty Storm, Neceſſity plainly extorted that Miracle, the Ship being covered with Waves, and his Diſciples, as they conceived, ready to be caſt away, which made them awaken him, crying out, Lord ſave us, we periſh. So natural, decorous and becoming are all the Actions and Miracles of Chriſt.

5. There is only one behind, Inſtantia monodica, as a Man may call it, an Example not parallel'd in the whole Hiſtory of the Goſpel, which is The curſing of the Fig-Tree: The Meaning whereof has puzzled many, as the Narration it ſelf has ſcandalized ſome; as if this Act was guilty not only of Levity but of a ridiculous kind of Ferocity, with a Semblance of Injuſtice, if Injuſtice can be committed againſt a Tree. For was there any Reaſon that a Tree ſhould be curſed for not bearing Fruit, when the Time of Year was not yet for the bearing thereof? This ſeems very odd and prepoſterous. But if it be rightly underſtood, there is nothing more grave, more ſober, nor more weightily myſterious.

6. For my own part, I make no Queſtion but that the genuine Meaning of it is this, and what it ſignifies it ſets out to the very Life, viz. That the moſt acceptable and deſirable Fruit of the everlaſting Righteouſneſs was not then found in the Judaical Diſpenſation: nay, I add further, That it was never intended that that Tree ſhould bring forth any ſuch Fruit, but only the fair Fig-leaves of an external and ceremonial Righteouſneſs, and a more overly and legal kind of Morality; but the more perfect Fruits of the regenerating Spirit were not to be found there, though Chriſt came into the World to exprobrate to them the Want thereof, and ſo to put a Period to the Judaical Diſpenſation, ſo as that it ſhould quite wither away and fall to nothing as we find it come to paſs at this very Day. Which Conſideration, amongſt others that occur in Scripture, more evidently confirms what we find true in effect, That according to the eternal Counſel of God, Chriſt was mainly intended for the Gentiles, and that breaking this Shell of Judaiſm, in which he was brooded, under ſo many Types and Shadows, he ſhould take his Flight thence, and after ſpread his Wings from one End of the Earth to the other.

7. But this Myſtery having ſomething of ſeeming Harſhneſs in it to Men of leſs profound Minds, ſuch was the Sweetneſs and Inoffenſiveneſs of our Saviour's Temper, that he would neither ſcandalize them, nor grate too hard againſt the Judaical Oeconomy, which that Nation ſo highly reverenced, and therefore recorded this Truth only in this Enigmatical Miracle,

*In Types. *In Words.

8. And thus to ſpeak * Δια τύπων as well as * Δια λόγων was not only uſual with the Prophets, but practiſed alſo by our Saviour himſelf in other Caſes as well as in this: As in the manner of his healing him that was born blind, John 9. where the Ceremonies he uſeth ſeem very uncouth and ſtrange before one knows the Meaning of them, but rightly underſtood, they muſt be acknowledged admirably fit for the purpoſe: I mean, not for curing of the blind, (For what can Clay and Spittle, and the Water of a Pool avail for the reſtoring of Sight to one that was born blind?) but for myſteriouſly ſetting out ſome grand Truths concerning Jeſus.

9. As that he was the Son of God, or that Eternal Word, whereby God created the World and framed Man of the Earth, in token whereof he tempers Clay and Spittle, he being about to rectifie and amend the Workmanſhip of his own Hands. To which Eraſmus ſeems plainly to allude in his Paraphraſe upon the Place; Ejuſdem autem Autoris eſt reſtituere quod perierat, qui condiderat quod non erat.* Beſides another Truth of very great Importance which is ſet out to the very Life in this Typical Cure, viz. That we are to expect the Renovation of our Minds and our Regeneration from that Power that created us; That no Man can come to Chriſt, as he is a viſible Perſon, unleſs the Father, that is, the Eternal Divinity, draw him, or as the Apoſtle ſpeaks to the Corinthians, That no Man can ſay that Jeſus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghoſt.

* It is for the ſame Author to reſtore what had periſhed, who had made what before had no Being.

1 Cor. 12. 3.

10. Now

10. Now I say, That Christ's tempering Clay and Spittle does emblematize the Eternal Deity that created all things; and his acting first upon the blind Man, and so sending of him to the Pool of Siloam (by which undoubtedly is meant Shilo or the Messias) this does plainly figure out the forementiond Truths; That those that do come to Christ, and faithfully adhere to him, are prepared and given to him of God; and that by Faith, they are purg'd and purified from all Blindness and Filthiness, by the Assistance of that Spirit which is promised to all that believe in him: according to what Christ himself has pronounced, He that believeth on me, out of his Heart shall flow Streams of living Waters: which he understands of the Spirit, of which these Waters of Siloam are therefore a very fit Figure or Emblem, they fitly denoting even from the very Name, as I have already intimated, the clearing and healing Spirit of Christ, who is the Shilo or Siloam wherewith we are to be washed and cleansed from that Foulness and earthly-Mindedness which we had contracted in the State of Nature or First Creation, before the Work of Regeneration was either begun or compleated in us. John 7. 38.

11. We have consider'd the Miracles of Christ; let us give a short Glance on his Prophecies. In which, that which is mainly considerable is, that they are very few. Which I look upon as a Reprehension and Reproach of that natural Itch in Mankind to Divinations and Predictions; of which Impostors usually much boast, and a Nation of America, tho' more Atheistical than the rest, are so vehemently set upon, that they often even grow mad again with that Study. But very little fell from our Saviour's Mouth by way of Prophecy, but what was in a manner of indispensable Concernment to be foretold. Such as his own Sufferings and Resurrection, the Destruction of the City, and the General Judgment. He exercised also his Power of Divination in his Conference with the Woman of Samaria: But his Applications there were so serious that he forgot the Sense of Hunger, being more pleased with the Attempts of her Conversion and her Country-men, than with the most delicate Junkets that could be set before him. He foretold also who should betray him: but it was to demonstrate that both his Betraying and all his Sufferings else, they being foreseen, might have been avoided; and therefore that he underwent them willingly. To which also that Prediction tends, When I am lifted up, I shall draw all Men unto me; as also that of the good Shepherd laying down his Life for his Sheep, and then presently adding, And other Sheep I have which are not of this Fold, meaning the Gentiles who were to be brought in by his Death. Which is a plain Demonstration that Christ suffered Death voluntarily* out of his entire Love to the World, and that he knew aforehand what an Effectual Instrument his Passion would prove for the Conversion of the Gentiles to the true Knowledge of God. John 12. 32. *See Book 7. chap. 17. sect. 8.

CHAP. IX.

1. The Miracles of Apollonius compared with those of Christ. 2. His Entertainment at a Magical Banquet by Iarchas and the rest of the Brachmans. 3. His Cure of a Dropsie and of one bitten by a Mad Dog. 4. His freeing of the City of Ephesus from the Plague. 5. His casting a Devil out of a laughing Dæmoniack, and chasing away a whining Spectre on Mount Caucasus in a Moon-shine Night. 6. His freeing Menippus from his espoused Lamia.

1. WE have now done with the Actions of Christ, such as were more extraordinary and miraculous: we will proceed to his Passion after we have made a short Comparison of the most famous Exploits of Apollonius with these of our Saviour, according to those Heads we have already insisted upon; His miraculous feeding of the People; His curing Diseases; His casting out Devils; His raising of the dead, and His Predictions of things to come.

2. As for the First, I do not remember any Example of it in Apollonius his Life; only Philostratus writes that Apollonius himself was entertained by the Brachmans at such a Banquet as was provided in a miraculous Manner, together with the King of Media, where three-footed Tables were brought in and plac'd in the midst without the Help of any Man's Hand; as also the Floor spread with odoriferous Herbs and

Flowers; and Bread, Wine, Fruits and Sweet-Meats on Plates conveyed through the Air and ſet upon thoſe Tables without any Servitours to carry them. Which Story being ſo very like the Junketings of Witches, and the Behaviour of Iarchas and his Brother Brachmans being ſo full of Scorn and Inſolency towards the King and the very chief of his Retinue, his Brother I mean and his Sons, may fully confirm any Man that they were no better than Magicians; nor their Favorite and Diſciple Apollonius any other than a Wizzard and a Necromancer, as his conjuring up the Ghoſt of Achilles does further prove.

3. As for his Cures, I do remember but Three, the Firſt of which ſeems to have more of the Power of Nature and Morality than of a Miracle; he curing a young Man of a Dropſie by Precepts of Temperance in the Temple of Æſculapius. The other was of one bitten by a Mad-dog, who was ſo diſtempered therewith, that he would bark, go on all four, and crouch on the Ground like a Dog: But it looks ſo like a Piece of Witchery, and Apollonius was ſo punctual in diſcovering what the Inhabitants of the place (which was Tarſus) could not inform him of, as of the Colour, Shaggedneſs, and other Qualities of the Dog, as alſo where he was, that it is a Suſpicion that he that cured the Diſeaſe did inflict it himſelf, or rather his Familiars for him; and ſo it is likely that the Dog as well as the Man was bewitched. For he came along from the River-ſide (where he was ſhivering as if he had an Ague) ſo ſoon as Damis had whiſpered in his Ear that Apollonius would ſpeak with him: who told the People alſo while he was cheriſhing him and ſtroaking him, that the Soul of Telephus the Myſian was entred into him; which is a further Confirmation of our Conjecture. But indeed all the Circumſtances of the Story are either ludicrous and ridiculous, or elſe impious; As his making the Dog cure the Man by licking of him, and then himſelf curing the Dog by praying to the River Cydnus and flinging the Dog into the Stream.

4. But the moſt famous Cure of all is that, when he freed the City of Epheſus from the Plague. But it being diſcovered already what a kind of Man this Apollonius was, viz. a mere Magician, I cannot but ſuſpect that the Caſe is the ſame with that former, and that the whole City ſuffered ſo direful a Diſeaſe as the devouring Peſtilence by the Hand of the Devil, to get the greater Renown to Apollonius that ſtout Hyperaſpiſtes of Paganiſm, who for the advancing of his own Credit was to free them from this raging Evil. Of which Opinion of ours there are two grand Arguments: The one his aſſembling the People in the Theater, and there incouraging them to ſtone an old ragged Beggar, which he perſwaded them was the Plague, but it ſeems it was πλαμναῖος δαίμων, a deſtroying Dæmon; as it appeared by his Eyes as he was a ſtoning, and by that Deluſion of a ſhagged Dog as big as a Lion found under the Heap of Stones, when the People had thought to have ſeen him there in his former Shape of a patch'd Beggar. The other Argument is the Epheſians erecting the Image of Hercules Apotropæus in the place where this old Mendicant was ſtoned, which is a Sign that Pagan Idolatry was the Upſhot of the Plot. Wherefore I look upon theſe two laſt Cures as done out of ſuſpicable Principles, and the Miracles as perform'd upon abſurd and unſuitable Objects.

5. As for his caſting out Devils, I do not remember any Example thereof ſaving one, and that was of a Young-Man of Corcyra who was a laughing Dæmoniack, out of whom at Athens, by a many repeated Menaces and imperious Railings, he at laſt ejected the Evil Spirit, who for a Sign of his Departure made a great Image tumble down from the royal Porch in the City with a great Noiſe and Clatter. To this Head we may refer alſo, though by an improper Reduction, his conjuring of a Phantaſm that appeared to him and his Fellow-Travellers as they were journying on Mount Caucaſus in a bright Moon-ſhine Night: Which Phantaſm went before them ſometime in one Shape and ſometime in another; but by many vehement Chidings, by many Railings, Reproaches and Execrations, was made to diſappear at laſt, and to depart, crying and whining at the diſcourteous Uſage.

6. We may add to theſe the Story of Menippus and the Lamia: Who in the Form of a beautiful Young Woman made Love to Menippus, and at laſt perſwaded him to marry her. But Apollonius being at the Naptials, diſcovered the Illuſion, and by reproaching the Bride, made, I think, the whole Edifice, (which was ſuppoſed to be plac'd near Corinth) I am ſure the Furniture and Riches thereof, all the Moveables, the Tapeſtry, the Gold and Silver-Veſſels, nay the Pages, Servants and Officers of this fair Lady to vaniſh at once, and her ſelf only left was compelled to confeſs feſs her ſelf a foul carnivorous Fiend. So either frivolous or exorbitant are all the miraculous Fxploits of this deified Impoſtor. But all the Objects of our Saviour's Miracles were, as I at firſt noted, more obvious and familiar: which is the greater Aſſurance as well of the Innocency and Sincerity of his Perſon, as of the Truth of his Hiſtory.

CHAP. X.

1. Apollonius his raiſing from Death a Young Married Bride at Rome. 2. His Divinations, and particularly by Dreams. 3. His Divinations from ſome external Accidents in Nature. 4. His Prediction of Stephanus killing Domitian from an Halo that encircled the Sun. Aſtrology and Meteorology Covers to Pagan Superſtition and converſe with Devils. 5. A Diſcovery thereof from this Prediction of his from the Halo compared with his phrantick Ecſtaſies at Epheſus. 6. A general Concluſion from the whole Parallel of the Acts of Chriſt and Apollonius.

1. THAT famous Exploit at Rome, which was the raiſing of a Young Woman to Life that was carrying to be buried, had been indeed a more ſolid Miracle, if it had been any at all. But the time not being ſet down how long ſhe had been dead, it is moſt likely that it was no more than is competible to a Trance. But the Knowledge of the Devil extending further than his Power, he might eaſily inform Apollonius what a ſeaſonable Opportunity he had to do a ſeeming Miracle. But our Saviour's raiſing of Lazarus after he had been four Days buried, gives ſufficient Credit to his other two Miracles of that kind, that they were real and true. This Re-enlivening therefore of the new married Bride at Rome is rather to be referred to the Predictions or Divinations of Apollonius than to his Miracles, which were very few in compariſon of the other: Of which yet we will give you ſome Examples, for it would not be worth the while to reckon up all, nor to rehearſe theſe at large, but only briefly to name them.

2. Such therefore was the Diſcovery of the unclean Luſt of Timaſion his Mother in Law in Ægypt, and the Prediction of a foul Act in an Eunuch upon one of the King of Babylon's Concubines; as alſo of ſaving Pharion at Alexandia from being executed amongſt other Robbers that were led along to die, by keeping the Executioner in diſcourſe till a Meſſenger on Horſe-back galloping with all ſpeed ſeconded Apollonius his Divination with a clear Demonſtration of Pharion's Innocency. You may add to theſe his Divinations by Dreams, as that of the ſuppliant Fiſhes that beſought the Dolphin's Favour, which he interpreted to the Advantage of the Eretrians, for whom he interceded with the King of Babylon: and another by which he was diverted from going to Rome till he had ſeen Candy; a Woman with a rich Crown upon her Head, who told him ſhe was the Nurſe of Jupiter, embracing him in his Sleep, and deſiring him that he would firſt come to converſe a while with her before he went to Rome: Which Woman he intepreted to be Crete, where Jupiter was born and brought up.

3. There were alſo ſeveral of his Divinations which he ſeemed to gather from ſome external Accident in Nature. Such was that from the chirping of the Sparrows in the midſt of his Speech to the Epheſians, whereupon he broke off, to tell them that not far off a Young-man had ſpilt a Sack of Corn in the Street. And that from the Lioneſs the Hunters had ſlain in Babylonia, as Apollonius was in his Journey to India, which having eight young Lions in her Belly, he preſaged from thence that it would be a Year and eight Months till their Return. A third from a terrible Thunder at an Eclipſe at Rome; whereupon he lifting up his Eyes toward Heaven, ſaid that it were a great Marvel indeed if this ſhould end in nought. But his meaning was known by the After-Clap, for Nero's Cup was ſtruck out of his Hand, as he was drinking, by a Flaſh of Lightning, while he ſate at Table. A fourth from a monſtrous Birth in Syracuſe, a Woman of Quality being brought to Bed of a Child with three Heads, which he interpreted of the three Roman Emperors, Galba, Otho, and Vitellius.

4. The Fifth and Laſt we ſhall mention is an Halo which was obſerved about the Sun in Greece; which Meteor being round like a Crown, but much obſcuring the Light of the Sun, Apollonius his Prediction was, that one Stephanus (which ſignifies a Crown) ſhould kill the Emperour Domitian. But for my own part, I conceive, that the Obſervation of Prodigies can as little help a Man in ſuch punctual Predictions, as of the Figurations of the Stars: but that theſe things are Pretences and Covers of a baſer Art, or rather of ſome wicked Superſtition and unlawful Familiarity with the Apoſtate Spirits.

5. Which a notorious Circumſtance of the Event of this laſt Prediction will demonſtrate to the indifferent. For while Domitian was a murdering at Rome, Apollonius being at Epheſus, ſees the Tranſaction of the Buſineſs ſo plainly as if he had been there, and at the very Hour it was done encouraged Stephen to the Act; and ſtarting backwards and forwards, and ſtaring terribly with his Eyes, bad him ſtab the Tyrant, as if he had been preſent by to aſſiſt. Which Phrantick and gaſtly Ecſtacy is an Argument that he was then poſſeſſed of the Devil that raiſed this Theater of things in his Mind, and therefore in all likelihood foretold him them alſo before they came to paſs.

6. Wherefore briefly to conclude concerning the extraordinary Acts of Chriſt and Apollonius, in the one there is nothing but what is ſound and neceſſary, of weighty and uſeful Importance and from a divine and irreprehenſible Principle; in the other nothing but what is either vainly affected, ſlight and frivolous, or elſe infernal and diabolical; that of Pharion not excepted, which looks the moſt plauſible of them all. For that Divination is no more than is performed by ordinary Witches; and that Act of Juſtice which was the reſcuing of the innocent from Death, though good in it ſelf, was proſtituted by him to baſe Purpoſes, to the gaining of Credit to a grand Reſtorer of Paganiſm, and induſtrious Upholder of the Kingdom of the Devil.

CHAP. XI.

1. A Compariſon of the Temper or Spirit in Apollonius with that in Chriſt. 2. That Apollonius his Spirit was at the height of the Animal Life, but no higher. 3. That Pride was the ſtrongeſt Chain of Darkneſs that Apollonius was held in, with a Rehearſal of certain Specimens thereof. 4. That his whole Life was nothing elſe but an Exerciſe of Pride and Vain-Glory, boldly ſwaggering himſelf into Reſpect with the Greateſt where-ever he went. 5. His Reception with Phraotes King of India, and Iarchas Head of the Brachmans. 6. His intermeddling with the Affairs of the Roman Empire, his Converſe with the Babylonian Magi and Ægyptian Gymnoſophiſts, and of his plauſible Language and Eloquence. 7. That by the Senſe of Honour and Reſpect he was hook'd in to be ſo active an Inſtrument for the Kingdom of Darkneſs. 8. That though the Brachmans pronounced Apollonius a God, yet he was no higher than the better ſort of Beaſts.

1. WE have made a Parallel of the Miracles and Prophecies of Chriſt and Apollonius, and have ſpent our Judgments upon them; the Equity and Truth of which Cenſure that it may the better appear to all, we ſhall briefly compare their Temper or Frame of Spirit.

2. Which I confeſs is as Brave in Apollonius as the Animal Life will reach unto. But that Animal Life at the beſt falls ſhort of the ſaving Knowledge of God, and is but that which in a manner is common to Beaſts, Devils and Men. This therefore we will acknowledge to be in Apollonius a generous Senſe of Political Juſtice, a ſevere Profeſſion of Temperance, and a great Affectation of Knowledge, eſpecially of things to come. But as for Political Juſtice and Civil Agreement and Concord, which he ſeems often to be very ſenſible of, and earneſtly to exhort the Cities to, where he went, no leſs than this can be entertained in the very Kingdom of Satan; which, if it were divided againſt it ſelf, could not ſtand. And for his vehement Affectation of Knowledge ledge, it is evident that it is a mere Branch of the Natural Life, and ſuch as is as competible to the Apoſtate Spirits, nay more by far than to an ordinary good Man: and Apollonius his Temperance aiming but at this which is ſo low and vile, How far ſhort does it fail of what is truly Heavenly and Divine? This therefore is obſervable in him, that if he quitted one Entanglement of the Animal Life, it was the more fully and willingly to be fettered by another.

3. But the ſtrongeſt Chain of Darkneſs that he was caught in, is that of Pride, which though it be made of more ſubtile and ſmall Links, yet holds us longer captive than any. This is that which blemiſhes the Hiſtory of his Life more than any Immorality elſe whatſoever. For to what but this can be reduced that ſcornful and ridiculous Prayer he made to Apollo at Antioch, that he would turn the Country-People into Cypreſs-Trees, that the Wind taking their Branches, they might at leaſt by that Means make ſome Sound, they being as yet quite mute and not able to diſcourſe with ſo ſage a Philoſopher? To what but this can we impute that magnificent Anſwer he gave the Keeper of the Bridge as he paſſed into Meſopotamia, when he was demanded what Merchandizes he brought? To whom he reply'd, That he brought along with him Juſtice, Temperance, Fortitude, Continence, Tolerance, Magnanimity and Conſtancy. He adds Modeſty to the reſt; but it was ill plac'd in ſo flaunting a Diſplay of his own Praiſes. To what but this can you refer his Cavilling with the ſober Queſtions asked him by the Captain of the Guards on the Confines of Babylon, where he takes upon him as if himſelf was King of every Country he came into?

4. But what need we recite Particulars? His whole Life being nothing elſe but a lofty Strutting on the Stage of the Earth, or an induſtrious Trotting from one Nation of the World to another, to gather Honour and Applauſe to himſelf, by correcting the Cuſtoms of the Heathen, or renewing their fallen Rites, and playing the uncontroulable Reformer where-ever he pleaſed: Which is a very pleaſant thing to Fleſh and Blood. Beſides the bold Viſits he gave to Princes and Potentates, with the greateſt Confidence and Oſtentation of his own Virtues that could be imagined, making himſelf the Meaſure of others Worth, inſomuch that he would not do the ordinary Homage to Bardanes King of Babylon, till he was certified whether his Virtues deſerved it or no. With whom, as alſo with other Princes, he treated of Political Affairs, not detrecting to intermeddle with the preſent Adminiſtration of Juſtice. But this unexpected Audacity of his proved ever ſucceſsful, he always, by I know not what Luck or Power, ſwaggering himſelf into reſpect, by deſpiſing both the Pomp and Perſons of the greateſt. So that he was ever hail fellow well met with the higheſt Kings and Emperours, they being ever taken with great Admiration of his Wiſdom. And therefore Bardanes is brought in in the Story courting of him at laſt, and earneſtly intreating the beggarly Philoſoper to take his Lodging in his Palace, ſhewing him all the Glory and Pomp of his Kingdom, offering him great Sums of Gold and precious Stones, The former whereof though he refuſed, yet he could not well abſtain from fingering the latter, under Pretence, forſooth, that there was ſome ſtrange Philoſophick Virtue in them, as alſo that they ſhould be an offering to the Gods at his Return into his own Country.

5. So alſo Phraotes King of India is ſaid to receive him with very great Reſpect, he carrying him to bath himſelf in his Royal Bath, and after receiving him at a Feaſt, and placing him next himſelf, above his Nobles. Beſide the great Honour he had from Iarchas and the reſt of the Brachmans, to whom the King of India wrote in his behalf. Where in conference with thoſe Sages he was plac'd in Phraotes his Chair of State, being forbidden alſo to riſe up at the coming in of the King of Media; with whom (at that Banquet which I have already mentioned) he having ſome Conteſtation, the King became at laſt ſo much his Friend, that he was almoſt uncivilly importuate to ſee him at his own Court in Media at his Return.

6. Add unto theſe his intermeddling in the Affairs of the Roman Empire; his large political Conferences with Veſpaſian; his abetting Conſpiracies againſt Nero and Domitian; his learned Diſcourſes with the Babylonian Magi, concerning whom he told Damis, that they were not ſo perfect but that they wanted the Benefit of ſome of his Inſtructions, as he confeſſed that ſomething he learned from them; his campling and cavilling with the Gymnoſophiſts, who though they ſeemed not ſo great Wizzards, yet were not leſs virtuous than either the Brachmans or himſelf; and laſtly, his plauſible Language and great Eloquence, he making in ſeveral places very winning Orations and Exhortations to Morality and the Obſervance of the moſt behoofful hoofful Laws and inſtitutes, ſuch as would tend moſt to Civility and the Peace and Security of the People.

7. From all which it is moſt evident, That a natural Senſe of Honour and Gallantry was the Wing and Spirit that made Apollonius ſuch a great Stickler in his time; and that, he being of a lofty and generous Nature apt to reach out at high things, the Kingdom of Darkneſs hook'd him in, to make an Inſtrument of him for their own Turn, and ſo to dreſs up Paganiſm in the beſt Attire they could, to make it, if it were poſſible, to vie with Chriſtianity: and that there ſhould be nothing wanting to this Corrival of Chriſt, the Indian Brachmans pronounced him of that Eminency, that he deſerved to be reputed and honoured as a Deity, both living and dead, as I have already related to you.

8. But if the Excellency of his Perſon be better examined, he will be found ſo far from being in the Rank of a God, that there can be no more acknowledged of him than that he was of the better ſort of Beaſts, that is, that he was a mere natural Man, only dreſſed up and diſguiſed by his Pythagorick Diet and Habit, and a Magical Power of doing of Miracles; as is demonſtrable from the whole Tenour of his Story, there being nothing in it that reliſhes or ſavours what is above the Animal Life. From whence we may ſafely conclude there is nothing in him Divine.

CHAP. XII.

1. The Contrariety of the Spirit of Chriſt to that of Apollonius. 2. That the Hiſtory of Apollonius, be it true or falſe, argues the exquiſite Perfection of the Life of Chriſt, and the Tranſcendency of that Divine Spirit in him that no Pagan could reach by either Imagination or Action. 3. The Spirit of Chriſt how contemptible to the mere Natural Man, and how dear and precious in the Eyes of God. 4. How the ſeveral Humiliations of Chriſt were compenſated by God with both ſutable and miraculous Priviledges and Exaltations. 5. His deepeſt Humiliation, namely, his Suffering the Death of the Croſs, compenſated with the higheſt Exaltation.

1. WHerefore we ſhall find the Life of our Saviour quite contrary to his, there being nothing Recorded in him that is plauſible to Fleſh and Blood, no ſplendour of Parentage, no ſtreams of Eloquence, no favour of Potentates, no affectation of any Peculiarity to himſelf in any thing; but being every where reproached and deſpiſed, he ceaſed not to do good without any Man's Applauſe. And whereas the very Spirit and Life of all Apollonius his Actions is a Gallant Senſe of Glory, which the Devil befool'd him by; ſo that which perpetually breath'd in the Actions of our Saviour was a paſſive, loving, profound Spirit of Humility, which is the moſt certain Character of the Divine Life, of any thing that is.

2. So that let the Hiſtory of Apollonius be wholly true, or partly falſe, or wholly falſe, it is all one to me. For if it be True, this grand Example of Divine Virtue, as he is pretended, falls infinitely ſhort of the Truth of the Divine Life manifeſted in Chriſt, there being indeed nothing found in Apollonius that is truly Divine. But if it be a Figment, in whole or in part, how tranſcendent is that Divine Worth in Chriſt, and how lovely and illuſtrious is the Beauty of his Image, that the Pens and Pencils of the moſt learned and accompliſh'd Pagans cannot draw one Line thereof, nor give one Touch or Stroke near his Reſemblance?

3. And indeed how ſhould it ever come into the Mind of a mere natural Man to think of an humble, paſſive, Soul-melting, ſelf-afflicting, and ſelf-reſigning Divinity lodging in any Perſon; or if it did, that there were any ſuch great Price upon that Spirit more than on that which ſeems to the World more gallant and generous? But certainly this is more precious in the Eyes of God than all things in the World beſide; and whatſoever Injury is done to this, it is like the touching of the Apple of his own Eye. And ſo tender was he over our Saviour, in whom this was tranſcendently found, that he ever compenſated his Sufferings with a proportionable Triumph, and his willing Submiſſions and Debaſements of himſelf with anſwerable Exaltations.

4. And

4. And therefore his humble Birth he Honoured with the Muſick of a Quire of Angels from Heaven, and the Homage of the Wiſe Men from the Eaſt who brought Preſents to him, as to a new-born King. So his long Faſting in the Deſart was compenſated by the Power not only of curing Diſeaſes, but of turning Water into Wine, and of miraculouſly feeding of Multitudes in the Wilderneſs. As alſo his refuſing of all the Pomp and Glory of the World, (which was ſhewn him from the top of a Mountain) by the Transfiguration of his Perſon on the top of mount Tabor into ſo great a Glory as all the ſpecioſities of the World could not equalize, his Face ſhining as the Sun, and his Garments being bright as the Light. And laſtly, his being carried from Place to Place by the Hand of Satan, as an Innocent Lamb in the Talons of an Eagle, this Temptation alſo was amply recompenſed by having a palpable Power over the Kingdom of Satan, and diſpoſſeſſing Dæmoniacks, and putting to flight many thouſands of Devils at once, as you heard concerning him whoſe Name was Legion.

5. But the emergency of the greateſt Honour that accrew'd to him was from the deepeſt Sufferings, even from his bitter Paſſion on the Croſs: Which was fully remunerated by ſo glorious a Reſurrection and Aſcenſion, by his Seſſion at the Right Hand of God, and his Exaltation above all Principalities and Powers, whether in Heaven or Earth; he being made Head and Soveraign over Men and Angels, and indued with a Power of Crowning all Believers with a Glorious Immortality at the laſt Day. Of all which we ſhall ſpeak in order, ſhewing the Fitneſs and Reaſonableneſs of every thing in its Place.

CHAP. XIII.

1. The ineffable Power of the Paſſion of Chriſt, and other endearing Applications of him, for winning the World off from the Prince of Darkneſs. 2. Of his preceding Sufferings and of his Crucifixion. 3. How neceſſary it was that Chriſt ſhould be ſo paſſive and ſenſible of pain in his Sufferings on the Croſs; againſt the Blaſphemy of certain bold Enthuſiaſts. 4. Their Ignorance in the Divine Life, and how it alone was to triumph in the Perſon of Chriſt unaſſiſted by the Advantages of the Animal or Natural. 5. That if Chriſt had died boldly and with little ſenſe of pain, both the Solemnity and Uſefulneſs of his Paſſion had been loſt. 6. That the ſtrange Accidents that attended his Crucifixion were Prefigurations of the future Effects of his Paſſion upon the Spirits of Men in the World. 7. Which yet hinders not but that they may have other ſignifications. 8. The third and laſt Reaſon of the Tragical unſupportableneſs of the Paſſion of Chriſt, in that he bore the Sins of the whole World. 9. The Leguleïous cavils of ſome conceited Sophiſts That pretend that it is unjuſt with God to puniſh the Innocent in ſtead of the Guilty. 10. The falſe Ground of all their frivolous ſubtilties.

1. FIrſt therefore as concerning his Paſſion, I ſay, it is an Enraviſhing conſideration to take notice how this humble Candidate for ſo great an Empire as I have deſcribed, applies himſelf to his deſign, giving an infallible proof not only of his Power, that he is able to protect, but of his dear Affection and entire Love to his People, in that he can undergo ſo horrid Agonies in their behalf; and being to win the Kingdoms of the Earth out of the poſſeſſion of the Devil, how he uſes no other Engine than the diſplaying of his own Nature, and the endearing Lovelineſs and Benignity of his own Spirit, to ſhame and confound the uglineſs and deteſtableneſs of his uſurping Competitor. Wherefore he did not only tread counter to the ways of Satan in Humility and Purity and continual Beneficency in his Life-time: But further to ſhew the vaſt Diſparity or Diſcrepancy betwixt that old Tyrant and this Gracious Prince that is to Succeed; whenas the Devil, as you have already heard, inflicted unſupportable penances upon his abuſed Vaſſals, ingaging them to cut and ſlaſh their own Fleſh, and frantickly to diſmember themſelves, to whip themſelves with knotted Cords or ſtinging Nettles, to wound themſelves with ſharp Flints, and to faſt and macerate themſelves ſo as to pine away in Deſarts, or break their Necks down ſome ſteep Rock or Precipice, as Acoſta reports of them; not to mention the infinite Numbers of Human Sacrifices: Chriſt, quite contrary to this, is ſo far from ſuch like Tyranny and Cruel handling of others, that to ſatisfy us concerning the juſtly-ſuſpected wrath of his Father, he undergoes all this Load himſelf, to win us off to a more perfect and chearful Obedience to his holy Precepts, by ſo great and ſenſible an Engagement. The Weight and Power of his Scepter being mainly to be felt in the Senſe of Love, which is the ſtrongeſt Tie imaginable even to Natural Ingenuity. But the Power of the old Serpent was Exerciſed in Fear and Terror and Deſpightful Scorn upon poor Diſtreſſed Mankind. There being this great Advantage therefore of winning of the Hearts of Men from the Kingdom of Darkneſs to the Power of God by Chriſt's Afflictions and Sufferings; it is no wonder that he ſubmitted himſelf to them, tho' they were ſo unſpeakably grievous.

2. And indeed what can be imagined more grievous than that lively Repreſentation of his bitter Paſſion (unleſs the Paſſion it ſelf,) when in the Mount of Olives, at his Devotions, he was in ſuch an Agony, that he ſweat as it were great drops of Blood that fell from his Face to the Ground? Beſides the deſpightful mockings and ſpittings in his Face, with cruel and bloody ſcourgings: The conſideration whereof would drive a Man to any hardſhip to approve himſelf faithful and thankful to ſo loving a Saviour. What then may the contemplation of his Direful and Tragical Crucifixion do? Where ſo Divine a Perſon, nay, where the Son of God in the Fleſh, being diſgracefully placed betwixt two Thieves, his holy and ſpotleſs Humanity was ſo deeply pierced with the preſent ſenſe and real Agony of Death, that the weight and burthen thereof enforced him to cry out, Eloi, Eloi, My God, My God, why haſt thou forſaken me? And here he may appeal from the Croſs to all the World in the words of Jeremiah; Behold and ſee, if there be any ſorrow, like unto my ſorrow wherewith the Lord hath afflicted me, in the Day of his fierce Wrath.

3. Which Sorrow and Paſſion had it not been as real and as great as it is recounted, how ſlight and ludicrous a matter would the Myſtery of Chriſtianity be? How prophane therefore and execrable are thoſe Wretches, that would turn that to the diſgrace of Chriſt, which is the Glory of the Goſpel? As if our Saviour was leſs Perfect by being thus Paſſive and ſo ſenſible of pain. But it is plain that theſe bold and inſolent Enthuſiaſts, which boaſt ſo much of Perfection as to equalize themſelves or their blind guides with Chriſt, nay, prefer them before him, I ſay, it is plain they are ſo Ignorant that they do not know in what the true Perfection conſiſts.

4. For I have already declared, That in the Perſon of Chriſt, that only which was truly Divine was to have the Triumph and Victory, unaſſiſted with any thing that is precious and praiſe-worthy in the Eyes of the World. And the true Perfection approveable before God is found only in that which is Divine, not Natural or Animal, ſuch as would be applauded by a mere Carnal Man. And ſuch is Stoiciſm and Spartaniſm, a Power as well reliſhed by wicked Men and Apoſtate Angels, nay, I may ſay, better, than by the Holy and Regenerate. And it is an Exerciſe of far greater Faith and Obedience to the Divine Will, to undergoe Pain and Affliction, when it ſearches us ſo deep, and ſtings us ſo vehemently; than when by any forced Generoſity and Stouteneſs of Spirit, or any Natural or Artificial helps whatſoever, we bear up againſt the Senſe thereof, and quit our ſelves in this heat and ſtomachfulneſs, as if we were invincible and invulnerable Champions.

5. If it had fared thus with Chriſt at his Death, the Solemnity of his Paſſion had been loſt. Indeed it had been no Paſſion, nor would have cauſed any in them that read the Story. But his Sufferings being ſo Great and ſo Real as they were, it is the greateſt Attractive of the Eyes and Hearts of Men towards him that could poſſibly be offered to the World: Which himſelf was very well aware of, and did foretel it in his Life-time; When I am lifted up, I ſhall draw all Men unto me.

6. Which Effects of his Paſſion, thoſe Miraculous Accidents that attended it ſeem alſo to preſage. For what was that rending of the Vail of the Temple from the top to the bottom at Jeruſalem? What were thoſe Earth-quakes in more remote Places of Judæa, and the torn or cloven Rocks, but a Preſage how the Earthly Minds and Stony Hearts of all Men in time, as well Jews as Gentiles, would be ſhaken and broke in pieces with Sorrow and Grief at his Sufferings who is the Saviour of the World? Nay, what did the Sun, the very Life and Soul of the Natural World, what did that deliquium or ſwooning Fit of his betoken, but that this ſad Spectacle of the Crucifixion of Chriſt would ſo empaſſion the Minds of all Ingenuous Men, and ſo melt their Hearts with Love and Affection to this Univerſal Saviour, that they would willingly die with him, that they might alſo live with him and rejoice with him for ever in Heaven?

7. I ſpeak

7. I ſpeak not this to exclude other Significations of theſe Prodigies. For they may alſo have their truth and uſe as well as theſe, eſpecially ſome of them: As that of the Eclipſe of the Sun, which may alſo ſignify that the true Light of the World (he that was termed by the Prophet the Sun of Righteouſneſs) was then a ſuffering; and that of rending the Vail of the Temple, which no queſtion denoted the reſcinding of the Moſaical Rites and Ceremonies, and the abrogation of the High-Prieſt's Office, Chriſt now having taken away the Partition-Wall, and given every Believer free acceſs to the preſence of his Father by his own Death whereby he has reconciled us to God.

8. Which offers us a third Reaſon why this Paſſion of Chriſt ſhould be ſo Tragical as it was, and the weight thereof ſo unſupportable. For he bore then the Wrath of God for the Sins of the World, being ſmitten, as the Prophet ſpeaks, for our Tranſgreſſions, and the Iniquities of us all were laid upon him; that is, he was an Univerſal Sacrifice for all Mankind. Which the Proud and Self-conceited Enthuſiaſt, that phanſies himſelf ſo well within, that he contemns all External Religion (unleſs it be of his own Invention) being not at leiſure to conſider, boldly and blaſphemouſly traduces him for weak and delicate, that willingly underwent the greateſt Pain that ever was inflicted upon any Mortal, that bore a weight more heavy then Mount Ætna, and too big for the ſhoulders of any Atlas to bear.

9. As little to the purpoſe are the leguleicus Cavils of ſome Pragmatical Pettifoggers, as I may ſo call them, in matters of Divinity, who tho' they be favourable enough to the Perſon of Chriſt, and ſeem to condole his ill Hap that he fell thus into the Hands of Thieves and Murtherers; yet ſet no price at all upon his Death, no more than upon theirs that died with him, accounting his Blood as common and unholy as that of the Malefactors that were Crucified with him; the Wrath of God being not at all atoned, as they ſay, by his ſuffering, becauſe it is unjuſt that an Innocent Man ſhould be puniſhed for thoſe that are guilty. But what Unjuſtice is done to him that takes upon him the debt or fault of another Man willingly, if he pay the Debt or bear the Puniſhment; provided that he that may exact or remit either, will be thus ſatisfied?

10. But ſuch trivial and captious Intermedlers in matters of Religion, that take a great deal of pains to obſcure that which is plain and eaſie, deſerve more to be ſlighted and neglected than vouchſafed any Anſwer. For all their frivolous Subtilties and Fruitleſs Intricacies ariſe from this one falſe Ground, That the Sovereign Goodneſs of God and his kind Condeſcenſions and Applications to the Affections of Man are to be meaſured by Juridical niceties, and narrow petty Laws, ſuch as concern ordinary tranſactions between Man and Man. But let theſe brangling Wits enjoy the Fruits of their own elaborate Ignorance, while we conſidering the eaſy Air and Senſe of Sacrifices in all Religions, ſhall by this means be the better aſſured of the natural meaning of it in our own.

CHAP. XIV.

1. That Sacrifices in all Religions were held Appeaſments of their Gods. 2. And that therefore the Sacrifice of Chriſt is rather to be interpreted to ſuch a Religious Senſe than by that of Secular Laws. 3. The great diſſervice ſome corroſive Wits do to Chriſtian Religion, and what defacements their Subtilties bring upon the winning comelineſs thereof. 4. The great advantage the Paſſion of Chriſt has, compared with the bloody Tyranny of Satan.

1. HOW General the Cuſtom of Sacrificing was in all Nations of the World is a thing ſo well known, that I need not inſiſt upon it; and that their Sacrifices were accounted an Appeaſement of the Wrath of the Gods and Expiation for their Faults, is alſo a Truth ſo conſpicuous that it cannot be denied. Hence theſe Sacrifices we ſpeak of were called ἱλαστικὰ, ἁγνιστικὰ, καθαρτικὰ, in Latin Placamina, Februa, Piamina. Much of this Nature you may read in Grotius, De Satisfactione Chriſti, Cap. 10. where he does not only make good by many Expreſſions and Examples, that the Sacrifices of the Ancient Heathen pacified the Anger of the Gods, but alſo (which is nearer to our purpoſe) That the Puniſhment of thoſe that were thus reconciled and purged was transferred upon the Beaſt that was Sacrificed: For the clearing whereof he alledges many Citations; and theſe two amongſt the reſt. One out of Cato;

Cum ſis ipſe nocens, moritur cur victima pro te?

Since thou thy ſelf art guilty, why
Does then thy Sacrifice for thee die?

The other out of Plautus,

Men' piaculum oportet fieri propter ſtultitiam tuam,
Ut meum tergum ſtultitiæ tuæ ſubdas ſuccedaneum?

That is to ſay, Is it fit that I ſhould be made a piacular Sacrifice for your fooliſhneſs, that my back ſhould bear the ſtripes that your folly has demerited?

2. Wherefore this being the Senſe of the Sacrifices we ſpeak of in all the Religions in the World, it is more fit to interpret the Death of Chriſt, who gave himſelf an Expiation for the Sins of the World, according to that Senſe which is uſual in the Myſteries of Religion, than according to the entangling niceties and intricacies of ſecular Laws.

3. But as for thoſe buſy and Pragmatical Spirits, that by the acrimony of their Wit eat off the comely and lovely gloſs of Chriſtianity, as Aqua Fortis or rather Aqua Stygia laid on poliſh'd Metal, what thanks ſhall they receive of him whom yet they pretend to be ſo zealous for? The moſt winning and endearing Circumſtances of his exhibiting himſelf to the World being ſo ſoiled and blaſted by their rude and foul breath, that as many as they can infect with the contagion of their own Error, Chriſtianity will be made to them but a dry withered branch; whenas in it ſelf it is an aromatick Paradiſe, where the Senſes and Affections of Men are ſo tranſported with the Agreeableneſs of Objects, that they are even enraviſhed into Love and Obedience to him that entertains them there. And nothing can entertain the Soul of Man with ſo ſweet a Sorrow and Joy, as this Conſideration, That the Son of God ſhould bear ſo dear a regard to the World as to lay down his Life for them, and to bear ſo reproachful and painful a Death to expiate their Sins and reconcile them to his Father.

4. But this is not all the Advantage he had to win the Government of the World unto himſelf. For not only his exceeding Love to Mankind was hereby demonſtrated, but the cruel and execrable nature of that old Tyrant the more clearly detected. For whereas the Devil, who by unjuſt uſurpation had got the Government of the World into his own Hands, tyrannizing with the greateſt cruelty and ſcorn that can be imagined over Mankind, thirſted after humane blood, and in moſt parts of the World, as I have already ſhewn, required the Sacrificing of Men; which could not ariſe from any thing elſe but a ſalvage Pride and Deſpight againſt us: This new gracious Prince of God's own appointing, Chriſt Jeſus, was ſo far from requiring any ſuch villainous Homage, that himſelf became a Sacrifice for us, making himſelf at once one Grand and All-ſufficient κάθαρμα or Piamen to expiate the Sins of all Mankind, and ſo to reconcile the World to God.

CHAP.

CHAP. XV.

1. An Objection concerning the miraculous Eclipse of the Sun at our Saviour's Passion, from its not being Recorded in other Historians. 2. Answer, That this wonderful Accident might as well be omitted by several Historians as those of like wonderfulness; as for Example the darkness of the Sun about Julius Cæsar's Death. 3. Further, That there are far greater Reasons that Historians should omit the darkness of the Sun at Christ's Passion than that at the Death of Julius Cæsar. 4. That Grotius ventures to affirm this Eclipse recorded in Pagan Writers; and that Tertullian appeal'd to their Records. 5. That the Text does not imply that it was an Universal Eclipse, whereby the History becomes free from all their Cavils. 6. Apollonius his Arraignment before Domitian, with the ridiculousness of his grave Exhortations to Damis and Demetrius to suffer for Philosophy.

1. WE have seen how Reasonable the History of Christ's Passion is; neither do I know any thing that may lessen the Credibility of it, unless it be the miraculous Eclipse of the Sun. Not that the Eclipse it self is so incredible, but that it may seem incredible that so wonderful and so generally conspicuous an Accident of Nature should be recorded by none but by the Evangelists themselves, Learning and Civility in those times so Universally flourishing, and there being no want of Historians to recount such things. This Objection makes a great shew at first; but you will see at length it will come to nothing.

2. First therefore let us set down the like Accidents to this that have fallen out, and been as conspicuous to all the World: As that Sensible obscurity and languor of the Sun in Julius Cæsar's time, as also in Justinian's time, and lastly that Bloody dulness in the Face of that Luminary for four Days together in the times of Carolus Quintus; things as remarkable in themselves as this Eclipse at the Passion of Christ, and all its likely proceeding from like Causes. But the moderating of these Causes so, as that the Effect should take place just at the time of our Saviour's suffering, this was miraculous and by special Providence. Now I demand for that first observation of the Sun, that indured a whole Year together, and was a Concomitant of Julius Cæsar's Death; when there were so many Historians in the after-Age till Suetonius his time, viz. Livy, Strabo, Valerius Maximus, Velleius Paterculus, Philo, Mela, Plinius, Josephus, Plutarch, Tacitus, how many of these recorded so great a Prodigy. I do not find any Historian alledged but Pliny, who likely had it from Ovid and Virgil, who after the manner of Poets pleasing themselves to record strange things and to magnify great Men, recite this Accident in Nature, in Honour to Julius Cæsar.

Ille etiam extincto miseratus Cæsare Romam,
Cum caput obscurâ nitidum ferrugine texit,
Impiáque æternam timuerunt secula noctem.

At Cæsar's Death he Rome compassioned,
In rusty hue hiding his shining Head,
And put the guilty World into a fright
They were surpriz'd with an eternal Night.

As Virgil has it in his Georgicks. And Ovid in his Metamorphoses to the same purpose, Lib. 1.

——.....Solis quoque tristis imago
Lurida sollicitis præbebat lumina terris.

Lib. 15.

The Sun's sad Image Cæsar's fate to moan
With lurid light to anxious Mortals shone.

Which condition of the Sun, Pliny writes, lasted for a whole Year. The like Cedrenus reports to have happened in Justinian's time. But there were nigh twenty considerable Writers from Justinian's time till Georgius Cedrenus. I would therefore remit the Caviller to peruse these Historians, and observe in how few of them this Prodigy in Justinian's Days is Recorded. The same may be said of what happened under Carolus Quintus.

Quintus. And then if he deprehend that ſo remarkable Accidents be taken no notice of by many Writers that had a capacity of recording them, I would have him alſo to conſider, that ſuch like Reaſons that might cauſe them to omit the Writing of thoſe Prodigies, might alſo fit thoſe that omitted the ſetting that down that happened at our Saviour's Paſſion; and to reſt contented that he finds it recorded by them that are moſt concerned in it, that is, three of his faithful followers, Matthew, Mark and Luke, who bearing a truer reſpect to Chriſt's Perſon than thoſe flatterers of Princes, Virgil and Ovid, to the Deceaſed Julius, recorded this Miraculous Eclipſe to his Honour, as they did that long obſcuration of the Sun to the Honour of their adored Cæſar.

3. Neither is this all; for I may further add, That there are greater Reaſons why all, ſaving Chriſt's own Followers, ſhould omit the recording that Eclipſe at his Paſſion, than that thoſe Writers we ſpeak of ſhould the continual Obſcurity of the Sun, that was to be obſerved for a whole Year together about the End of Julius Cæſar's Reign. For the Novelty of that in Cæſar's time might make the greater Impreſſion upon Mens Spirits; when as that obſcurity of the Sun at our Saviour's ſuffering (tho' I doubt not but that it was ſo great, as that the Stars appeared through the defect of the Sun's Light, ſo as they may do in a Summer's Night) might well be neglected by the Nations of the World, they having noted already that the Light of the Sun is obnoxious to ſuch obfuſcations and dulneſſes, and that for ſo long a time together. So that altho' this lurid deadneſs of the Sun at the Paſſion was far greater than that at Cæſar's Death; yet it being ſhorter by far, as laſting not above three hours, it might ſeem to them leſs conſiderable; eſpecially they not knowing what was the meaning of it. And when they did, they had the leſs encouragement to record it, it making for a new Religion contrary to their own. So that even that Conſideration alone may ſeem a ſufficient Reaſon why this notable Accident may be pretermitted by both Jewiſh and Heatheniſh Hiſtorians.

4. But Grotius out of Phlegon a Pagan Writer ventures to anſwer more point-blank, namely, That the ſaid Author does affirm that in the fourth Year of the two hundred and ſecond Olympiad, (which is the Year wherein Chriſt ſuffered according to the uſual Opinion) there was the greateſt Eclipſe that ever was known; Night ſurprizing Men at the ſixth hour of the Day (which is at noon,) and being ſo dark that the Stars were ſeen at that time of the Day. He mentions alſo therewith a mighty Earthquake in Bithynia, and how the greateſt part of Nicæa was ruined thereby. Other things to the ſame purpoſe are there alſo recited out of another Pagan Writer by Euſebius; whom Grotius diſcovers to be one Thallus. Which Teſtimonies will ſtand good, till the Oppoſer of the Truth of the Narrations of the Evangeliſts, ſhall either prove infallibly by Chronology, that Chriſt did not ſuffer that Year, or elſe by Aſtronomical calculation, that there was a natural Eclipſe of the Sun in that Year he ſuffered, ſo horrid and diſmal as Phlegon deſcribes. But Phlegon confining it to no place, intimates it was Univerſal, and therefore not Natural. Tertullian alſo ſpeaking to the Pagans concerning this matter, appeals to their own Records concerning the Truth thereof. And for my own part, I make no queſtion but that it is true in the very Senſe we ſpeak of, viz. that it was an Univerſal Eclipſe, whatever becomes of the Teſtimonies of Thallus and Phlegon.

5. But being the Text does not neceſſarily imply thus much, we may with Calvin reſtrain it to Judæa, God miraculouſly intercepting the Light of the Sun from thoſe parts only, by the interpoſition of ſome conſpiſſated body, or by raiſing a black caliginous miſt, ſuch as he cauſed in the Land of Ægypt. For the Scripture will ſute well enough with any of theſe Senſes; ſo little of any juſt occaſion is there left to the Caviller and Infidel. So that the Credibility and Reaſonableneſs of the chief Circumſtances of our Saviour's Paſſion is ſufficiently cleared.

6. To which we have nothing to parallel in Apollonius his Life, except it be his Arraignment before Domitian: Where Domitian quitting him for the charge that was laid againſt him, yet he for oſtentation ſake, to ſhew what an expert Magician he was, vaniſhes in the midſt of the Court, to the great amazement of the Emperor and the reſt of his Judges. But in the mean time he having ſuch a trick of Legerdemain as this, to keep himſelf from peril; it makes all his magnanimous Precepts concerning the Contempt of Death that he ſo gravely imparts to Damis and Demetrius (encouraging them to ſuffer any thing for the cauſe of Philoſophy) hypocritical and ridiculous. So whiffling and ludicrous is every thing of Apollonius, if compared with that ſolid Truth and real Excellency that is diſcoverable in Chriſt.

BOOK V.

CHAP. I.

1. Of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, and how much his Eye was fixed upon that Event. 2. The chief Importance of Chriſt's Reſurrection. 3. The World excited by the Miracles of Chriſt the more narrowly to conſider the Divine Quality of his Perſon, whom the more they looked upon, the more they diſliked. 4. Whence they miſinterpreted and eluded the force and conviction of all his Miracles. 5. God's upbraiding of the World with their groſs Ignorance by the raiſing him from the dead whom they thus vilified and contemned. 6. Chriſt's Reſurrection an aſſurance of Man's Immortality.

1. WE have done with the Paſſion of Chriſt: We come now to his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion; and firſt to his Reſurrection. Concerning which it is obſervable, That our Saviour's Eye was fix'd upon nothing more than it; He Propheſying of it in his Life-time under that Parable of deſtroying the Temple, and then raiſing of it up within three Days, meaning the Temple of his Body; as alſo in the application of that ſtrange Accident that befell Jonas: For as Jonas was three Days and three Nights in the Whales Belly, ſo the Son of Man ſhould be three Days and three Nights in the Belly of the Earth. He deferred alſo the divulging of his Transfiguration in the mount till his Reſurrection, as not being of any ſuch efficacy to beget Faith in the People, till this alſo had happened unto him; not to mention now that more invidious Circumſtance of the diſappearing of Moſes and Elias, Chriſt alone remaining. John 2. 19. Matth. 12. 39, 40.

2. Now the grand Importance of this ſo wonderful an Accident conſiſts chiefly in theſe three things.

Firſt, In that it is a very Eminent Triumph of the Divine Life in the Perſon of Chriſt.

Secondly, In that it is ſo plain an aſſurance of a bleſſed Immortality.

And Thirdly, In that it is ſo ſure a Seal and ſo clear a Conviction of the truth and warrantableneſs of all the Miracles Chriſt did in his Life-time.

3. That our Saviour Chriſt was the moſt Illuſtrious Example of the Divine Life that ever appeared in the World, cannot be denied by any but ſuch as are blind, and have no Eyes to behold that kind of ſplendour. But that the Judgment of the World might be the more notoriouſly baffled, God aſſiſted this Divine Worth with many ſtrange Miracles, that they might more fixedly and conſiderately contemplate this ſo holy and lovely a Perſon. But the more it ſeems they looked upon him, the more they diſliked him, the whole World being ſo deeply lapſed into the Animal Life, (the Jews themſelves not excepted,) that they had no knowledge nor reliſh of the Divine. Nay, they had an Antipathy againſt him, as the wiſe Man very lively expreſſes it, He is grievous unto us even to behold, His Life is not like unto other Mens, his ways are of another faſhion: He was made to reprove our thoughts. Wiſdom, chap. 2. 14, 15.

4. Wherefore they having ſo ſettled an hatred againſt him, all the Miracles that he did, or whatſoever happened miraculouſly unto him, did but ſet a more venemous edge of their ſpleen againſt him. From whence it was eaſy for them to miſinterpret and elude every thing, imputing his caſting out Devils to a contract with Beelzebub the Prince of the Devils; The Teſtimony from Heaven, That he was the Son of God, to the deluſion of evil Spirits that would lapſe them into Idolatry; His feeding the multitudes in the Wilderneſs, to Witchcraft and Sorcery; and his raiſing of Men from the Dead, to the Nature of ſome Lethargical or obſtupifying Diſeaſe, that may ſeem to make a Man devoid of Life for four Days together. The Eclipſe of the Sun indeed was a very ſtrange thing, if the darkneſs was in the Sun it ſelf: But they might remember, at leaſt from the Relations of others, that it was ſtrangely obſcured for a whole Year together about the Death of Julius Cæſar, and ſo interpret this at the Paſſion as a mere caſual coincidence of things; or that ſome deluſive Spirits intercepted the Light of the Sun in favour of the great Magician, whom they thought juſt to Crucify betwixt thoſe other two Malefactors.

5. But

5. But he whom they numbred amongſt the Tranſgreſſors, and took to be the vileſt of Men, becauſe he was not recommended by any thing that the Animal Life likes and applauds, (as Nobleneſs of Birth, the Power of popular Eloquence, Honour, Wealth, Authority, high Education, Beauty, Courtſhip, Pleaſantneſs of Converſation, and the like;) he is, I ſay, notwithſtanding this general contempt from Men, very highly prized by him who is the infallible Judge, whoſe ways are not as our ways, nor his thoughts as our thoughts; But that he might conform our apprehenſions to his own, raiſed Jeſus Chriſt from the Dead, bringing that paſſive, contemptible Divinity that lodged in him into a deſerved Victory and Triumph; exprobrating to the blind World the Ignorance of that Life that is moſt dear and precious to himſelf; making him alive whom they maliciouſly killed, and preparing a way to an Univerſal Homage for him, who was Univerſally ſcorned and became περίψημα πάντων, the off-ſcouring of all, tho' his Spirit, Life and Nature was of more worth than all the things of the World beſide.

6. Nor is this Reſurrection of Chriſt only a particular Honour and high Teſtimony given to the Perſon of Chriſt, who was ſo ſplendid an Habitation of the Divine Life; but it is alſo an aſſurance of a bleſſed Immortality to all thoſe that will adventure to 1 Cor. 15. 58. follow his Example, that their Labour ſhall not be in vain in the Lord. And therefore he is not ſaid here to riſe alone; but in token of what a general concernment his Reſurrection was, the Monuments of ſome lately-deceaſed Souls flew open, and themſelves appeared to ſeveral in the Holy City. Which things were a palpable Prophetical prefiguration of that bleſſed Immortality that Chriſt has purchaſed for all Men that believe in him and obey him.

CHAP. II.

1. The laſt End of Chriſt's Reſurrection, the Confirmation of his whole Miniſtry. 2. How it could be that thoſe chief Prieſts and Rulers that hired the Soldiers to give out, that the Diſciples of Chriſt ſtole his Body away, were not rather Converted to believe he was the Meſſias. 3. How it can be evinced that Chriſt did really riſe from the Dead; and that it was not the deluſion of ſome deceitful Dæmons. 4. The firſt and ſecond Anſwer. 5. The third Anſwer. 6. The fourth Anſwer. 7. The fifth Anſwer. 8. The ſixth and laſt Anſwer. 9. That his appearing and diſappearing at pleaſure after his Reſurrection is no argument but that he was riſen with the ſame Body that was laid in the Grave.

1. THE laſt End of Chriſt's Reſurrection is the Confirmation of his whole Miniſtry. For aſſuredly the Jews dealt with him as with ſome Magician and Impoſtour, who tho' he did very ſtrange things whilſt he lived, yet if he were once judicially tried, condemned and put to Death, they did not make any queſtion but that it would be with him as with other Malefactors, the trouble of him would end with his Life; as is uſually obſerved in matters of this kind: Otherwiſe it would be a great flaw in Providence, and the Generations of Men would not be able to ſubſiſt for the Inſolencies of Witches and Sorcerers. But God thus extraordinarily and miraculouſly interpoſing his Power, in raiſing Jeſus from the Dead, gave the moſt certain and moſt confounding Teſtimony againſt the malicious cruelty of the Jews (if we may call that Malice which the Love and Candour of Chriſt in the midſt of his bitter ſufferings named only Ignorance) that poſſibly could be given. For their judicial proceedings are hereby not only in an extraordinary way made ſuſpicable and taxed of injuſtice, but by ſuch a miraculous means, that it is manifeſt that none other but God himſelf is their Accuſer, as well as the Acquitter of the Innocent whom they put to Death, and did ſo throughly Martyr, that none but the Hand of God could recover him to Life. The Fame therefore of ſo notable an Accident the chief of the Jews very well knowing, and that it would, if believed, demonſtrate that all he did or ſaid before in his Lifetime was right, and from an undeniable Principle; that the People might not receive him for their Meſſias now, whom three Days ago they had Crucified; hired the Soldiers that watched his Monument, to tell abroad that his Diſciples ſtole him away by Night while they were aſleep.

2. But

2. But here haply ſome may demand, how it came to paſs that theſe chief Prieſts and Rulers, being ſo punctually informed by the Soldiers (which watched the Sepulcher of Chriſt) that he was riſen from the Dead, were not Converted to the Faith themſelves, and convinced that Jeſus was indeed the expected Meſſias? But we may very well conceive, that what might prove very effectual to move others to believe in Chriſt, might yet take no hold upon them; partly becauſe they were further engaged in this bloody and direful Tragedy than others were; and having a deeper Senſe of Honour and Repute with the People, than of the favour of God and Love to the Truth, they might in a deſperate and obdurate condition venture, as the ſaying is, over Shoes over Boots; being more willing to expoſe themſelves to any thing, than to that ſhame and reproach that would attend the acknowledgment of ſo Hainous an Error. And then partly becauſe tho' this Accident may ſeem very ſtrange, yet they might conceit that it was not above the Power of Evil Spirits to perform, who might change themſelves into the Luſter of Angels of Light, and therefore that it was but a greater temptation upon them to try their faithfulneſs and obedience to the Law of Moſes. For what would not they think rather than find themſelves guilty of ſo grand Ignorance, as not to know the promiſed Meſſias when he came into the World, and of ſo groſs a Crime as to be Murderers of him that from Heaven was declared the Son of God?

3. But out of this Solution, you'll ſay, ariſes as great a Difficulty as the former, viz. How we can be aſcertained that Chriſt is really raiſed from the Dead: Becauſe ſome deluſive Spirits might open his Sepulchre, and carry him away, and afterward appear in his ſhape, making uſe of his Body to ſhew to Thomas, or changing their own vehicles into the likeneſs of Fleſh and Bones, ſo that no Man's Senſe may diſcover any difference. But to this many things may be anſwered: And

4. Firſt, That that which may be an Exception or Evaſion in any caſe, is of conſequence in no caſe. For what does there at any time really happen, but Evil Spirits have a Power to imitate ſo near, that our Senſes may well be deceived?

Secondly, Tho' they have this Power in themſelves, yet I deny that they can exert it, when, and ſo far as they pleaſe; and therefore God would not permit them to add ſo irreſiſtible Credit to the whole Miniſtry of Chriſt by this laſt Miracle, if Chriſt had not really been the Meſſias: But he being the Meſſias, it was no deluſion of theirs, but a real tranſaction by that Hand that is Omnipotent.

5. Thirdly, Every thing was exactly as if he had riſen from the Dead: The Watch ſaw the Earth-quake, and the Stone rolled from the Door of the Sepulchre by an Angel from Heaven: Peter look'd in and beheld the Linen Cloaths lying by themſelves, the Body of Chriſt was miſſing there. He appeared to his Diſciples elſewhere, he diſcourſed with them, eat and drunk with them, they felt his Fleſh, and put their very Fingers into his wounds. What greater demonſtration than this could there be that he was really riſen from the Dead? And therefore by Men indifferent it muſt needs be acknowledged to be ſo, tho' there be a poſſibility of being otherwiſe.

6. Fourthly, Thoſe Miraculous things, either happening to him or done by him while he was alive, they being ſo real as they were, muſt needs beget Faith in the unprejudic'd, that this Accident was real alſo. For is it ſo ſtrange a thing that that Divine Power ſhould raiſe Chriſt from the Dead, that enabled him to raiſe Lazarus out of the Grave when he had been four Days Buried? To ſay nothing of his other Miracles, and thoſe evident Teſtimonies from Heaven that he was the Son of God. For tho' there was ſome room left for the ſhuffles and ſubterfuges of the blinded Jews; yet to thoſe that are free and piouſly diſpoſed, the Reſurrection of Chriſt compared with what either ſupernaturally was done by him, or happened to him in his Life and at his Paſſion, they do ſo bind and ſtrengthen one another, that there is no place left for misbelief.

7. Fifthly, Beſides the Teſtimony of the Angels that told Mary Magdalen, Joanna and others, that Chriſt was riſen, and that they did fondly to ſeek the living amongſt the dead, our Saviour's own Prophecy concerning his riſing the third Day could not but make the thing undoubtedly ſure to his Diſciples, and all ſuch as were concerned in it, and had believed on him before, whereby they became zealous aſſertors and witneſſers of it to the World.

8. Sixthly and laſtly, All theſe things happening thus extraordinarily and ſupernaturally to a Perſon that profeſſed himſelf the Meſſias, * at that very time that the Jewiſh Propheeies foretold the Meſſias would come; it is an unanſwerable Demonſtration that this was he, and that therefore all things that he did, ſpoke, or happened unto him, were no vain Illuſion, but Reality and Truth.

* See Book 7. chap. 4.

9. Neither does his appearing and diſappearing at pleaſure, and coming in to his Diſciples when the Doors were ſhut, at all weaken the truth of his Reſurrection and vital actuating that very Body that lay in the Grave. For he gave a Specimen of a wonderful Power reſiding in him in his Transfiguration on the Mount; and that he carried that about him then, that was able to ſwallow up Mortality into Life, tho' it was uſually reſtrained as a light in a dark Lanthorn. His Divinity therefore with his inward exalted Humanity, I mean his Soul, took hold again of his Body, and did vitally irradiate it, ſo that he was as naturally united with it as any Angel is with his own Vehicle, or any Soul of Man, or any other Animal with their Bodies. Nor was it any greater wonder that Chriſt ſhould rarify his Body into a diſappearing Tenuity, than that Angels and Spirits condenſate their Vehicles into the viſibility and palpability of a Terreſtrial Body, the ſame Numerical Matter ſtill remaining in both.

CHAP. III.

1. The Aſcenſion of Chriſt, and what a ſure pledge it is of the Soul's Activity in a thinner Vehicle. 2. That the Soul's Activity in this Earthly Body is no juſt meaſure of what ſhe can do out of it. 3. That the Life of the Soul here is as a Dream in compariſon of that Life ſhe is awakened unto in her Celeſtial Vehicle. 4. The Activity of the ſeparate Soul upon the Vehicle argued from her moving of the Spirits in the Body, and that no Advantage accrews therefrom to the wicked after Death.

1. THere is no reaſonable allegation therefore againſt the Reſurrection of Chriſt: And as Uſeful and Intelligible a Myſtery is his Aſcenſion. For we are not leſs aſſured by his aſcending into Heaven of the Life and Activity of the Soul out of an Organical terreſtrial Body, than by his Reſurrection of her Immortality. For the Body of Chriſt in his Aſcenſion, tho' it left the Earth in all likelihood Organiz'd and terreſtrially modified, yet paſſing through the ſubtil Air and purer Æther, it cannot be conceived but that it aſſimilated it ſelf to the Regions through which it paſſed, and became at laſt perfectly Celeſtial and Æthereal, whatſoever was Earthly or Feculent being abſorp't or ſwallowed up into pure Light and Glory.

2. Nor can it ſeem harſh to any that has well conſidered theſe things, that the Soul freed from this Terreſtrial Dungeon ſhould have ſo great Power and Activity over a thinner Vehicle; the ſubtilty thereof in all likelihood contributing much to this Activity and Vigour: Of which tho' ſhe have but a ſmall ſpark at firſt, yet the Power of the Mind being kindled therewith may, as ſhe pleaſes, Convert her whole Vehicle into an Æthereal flame. For we are no more to meaſure what ſhe can do being rid of the fatal Entanglements of this Earthly Priſon, by what ſhe does in it, than we can of the Proweſs and Activity of ſome Captive Champion when he is ſet free, by what he does in Fetters and hard Bondage; or of her own Agility, Reaſon and Perſpicacity when ſhe is awake, by her ſtupidity and inconſiſtency of thoughts while ſhe is aſleep.

3. For the whole Life of Man upon Earth Day and Night is but a Slumber and a Dream, in compariſon of that awaking of the Soul that happens in the recovery of her Æthereal or Celeſtial Body: Which tho' it be (unleſs it pleaſe her occaſionally to mould it into any Organiz'd ſhape) one Simple and Uniform Light, which we may call an Æthereal Star, as Ficinus calls thoſe of leſs purity ſtellas aereas; yet all the more Noble functions of Life are better performed in this Heavenly Body than in the Earthly, ſuch as Intellection, Volition, Imagination, Seeing, Hearing, and the like. The ſame may be ſaid of the Paſſions of the Mind, they being more pure, more pleaſing and more delicate than can poſſibly happen, or at leaſt for any time continue with us, in this Life.

4. What I have affirmed of this Æthereal Body, this Uniform and Homogeneal Orbe of Light, cannot ſeem raſhly ſpoken to them that underſtand the immediate Organ of Senſe in thoſe Bodies we are now United with: Which I have already intimated to be either the Animal Spirits or the Conarion, as unlikely a Seat of Senſe as the Air or Æther, and either of theſe as unlikely to be diſobedient to the Power of the Soul as the the Animal Spirits now are in the State of Conjunction. * And therefore it being undeniable but that the Soul does move them some way in the Body, I see no difficulty but in her releasement from the Body, she may be able to act upon her Vehicle of like Tenuity with them, so as to mould and transfigure it even as she pleases: That natural charm that lull'd her Active Powers asleep while she was in the Body, losing its force now she is out of it. Which notwithstanding will prove no advantage to the wicked, they being thereby awakened into a more eager and sharp torment, and a more restless and intolerable Hell.

* See my Discourse of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 2. Ch. 8.

In the mean time 'tis evident, that tho' we should yield an Æthereal Body to be altogether Homogeneous, i.e. of like Substance, and Inorganical, i. e. without Parts of Various Use and Structure, yet would this prove no Hindrance of the Soul to perform the Operations of Sense and Understanding; which is sufficient to put to Silence certain Philosophers, who vehemently deny that the Soul can Operate, unless United to an Organical Body. But that the Celestial Body is also an Organical one, is plainly by us declared in the following Chapter.

CHAP. IV.

1. Christ's Session at the Right Hand of God interpreted either figuratively or properly. 2. That the proper Sense implies no humane shape in the Deity. 3. That tho' God be Infinite and every where, yet there may be a Special presence of him in Heaven. 4. And that Christ may be conceived to sit at the Right Hand of that Presence, or Divine Shechina.

1. TO the Ascension of Christ we are to add his Session at the Right Hand of God, his ἀποδημία, and his Intercession with God for his Church. And for the First, there is no difficulty therein, whether we understand the phrase Figuratively, as Calvin seems to do, (For then by his Sitting at the Right Hand of God nothing else is signified, but that he is next to God in the Administration of his Kingdom, that he is as his Right Hand to sway his Scepter over Men and Angels, to bruise the wicked as with a Rod of Iron, and to receive the Righteous into favour;) or whether we understand it Properly, as some others would have it to be understood. For there is no inconvenience to acknowledge the Glorified Body of Christ to be in humane shape, and that this Organized Light will sit as steadily on an Æthereal Throne, as a Body of Flesh and Bones on a Throne of Wood or Ivory.

2. Nor does that expression of the Right Hand of God imply any absurdity in it, as if God himself were an Essence also in Humane shape, and that he had a Left Hand as well as Right, and the rest of the parts of the Body of a Man. For from the words of the Text, * Καὶ ἐκάθισεν ἐκ δεξιῶν τοῦ Θεοῦ, a Man may as well prove that he has many Right Hands as any at all: Which shews plainly that the Anthropomorphites have no ground for their fond and ridiculous conceit from such passages of Scripture as these. * Mark 16. 19.

3. But yet tho' God be Infinite, and consequently every where at once, nothing hinders but that there may be some special presence of him in one place more than another, whither if a Man had access, he may be truly said to converse with God Face to Face. We will grant therefore a Divine Shechina and a peculiar visible Glory of God which no Creature can imitate residing in the Heavens, which presence he may manifest in many places at once if he please: But where-ever it discovers it self, it is a most certain and infallible sign that God himself is in a special manner there. Which ineffable and unimitable Glory is of this great consequence, that the Holy Saints and Angels receive commands from thence as from the very Mouth of God, are recreated more by that wonderful Luster than we Mortals are by the Light of the Sun, and that it is an Oracle with whom they may consult, and receive answers of clear and indubitable certitude, and do Divine Worship and Honour to the external Substance, as it were; and visible Presence of the Deity.

4. At the Right side of this Glory might Christ in his humane shape be placed, as at the Right Hand of his Father that sent him into the World, to whom also he prayed with his Eyes lift up to Heaven, and to whom he said that he was to return when he left the Earth, with whom also Steven saw him standing, and comforting him at his Martyrdom: Whether his Visive faculty was in a wonderful and stupendious measure fortified to discern so distant an Object, or whether that Object was not so distant as the false conceits of some vain Philosophers would determine: For my own part, I think that if the true Philosophy were known and rightly understood, there would nothing more facilitate the belief of Christianity than it.

CHAP. V.

1. The Apotheosis of Christ, or his Receiving of Divine Honour, freed from all suspicion of Idolatry, forasmuch as Christ is God properly so called, by his Real and Physical Union with God. 2. The Real and Physical Union of the Soul of Christ with God being possible; sundry Reasons alledged to prove that God did actually bring it to pass. 3. The vain Evasions of superficial Allegorists noted. 4. Their Ignorance evinced, and the Apotheosis of Christ confirmed from the Immortality of the Soul and the Political Government of the other World. 5. That he that equalizes himself to Christ is ipso facto discovered an Impostour and Lier.

1. THere is nothing therefore harsh or incongruous in the Session of Christ at the Right Hand of God the Father, the Mystery being fitly explained: His ἀποθέωσις will be found as Reasonable, if rightly understood. By his ἀποθέωσις I mean his Residence in Heaven, and his receiving of Divine Honour and Adoration from the Church. In which there can be nothing suspicable, unless there be any danger of Idolatry there where he that is truly God is Worshipped. The * Apology of the Gentiles you have heard already, and how far guilty they were of that miscarriage in the worshipping of Creatures under the pretence of their being only more Eminent manifestations of that One Eternal Deity which they did adore. But the immediate Object of our worship is not simply a Creature, but God properly so called; forasmuch as he is as Really and Physically united with God as our Soul is with our Body. Now as a Man is truly said to be a Body or a Corporeal Substance because of the Real or Physical Union of his Soul with the Body; so Christ is truly and properly said to be God, because his whole Humanity is joined with God. This is a very easy and intelligible way of conceiving this Mystery; neither does it imply any Contradiction or Inconsistency in it, no more than is found in the natural Union of Soul and Body; God being as able to find fitting means of really and vitally uniting the Soul of the Messias to himself, as of uniting an Humane Soul to a Terrestrial Body.

* See Book 3. Chap. 3.

2. Now this which was in the Power of God to do, we may be the better ascertained that he did do it, or is to do it some time, (For I will not anticipate and fall upon the Third part of my Discourse, before I come at it,) if we consider the Congruities thereof. I have recited to you Examples of the Pagan Apotheoses, how they did Divine Honour to Men that liv'd amongst them, and were considerable in their Generations for several Benefactions and Gratifications of the Animal Life, whether they were the Improvers of their Pleasures or their Profit, such as Law-givers, successful Commanders in War, or happy Inventers of some useful things to supply Humane Necessities. Hence it came to pass that Venus, Mercurius, Zamolxis, Mars, Bacchus, Ceres and others were deified by them. Now there being so transcendent an advantage to accrew to Mankind by the coming of the Messias into the World, and he being to suffer for the Sins of the People, and so by his Death to vanquish the Power of Death, and to set open the Gates of Heaven to all Believers; that that strong, natural, and at least pardonable propension in Mankind of exhibiting the highest Honours they can to their most Heroical Benefactors might not be frustrated and seem ever to be in vain; as also that the great Humiliation and Reproachful Passion that the Messias was to undergo might be largely compensated; and that that which is most lovely of all things, and yet in the Eyes of Men most despicable, I mean the Divine Life, might be Exalted, even in an outward Homage and Worship, as high as ever the Animal Life was, in the World, and that warrantably and without any guilt of Idolatry: God, when he sends the Messias into the World, is so to Communicate his own Nature to him, or so really and physically to unite himself with him, that he may be a lawful Object

Object of Divine Worship. Which he is, if not only by a Moral adhesion, or Political institution, but by a Natural and Real Union with the Divine Λόγος, he truly become the Son of God.

3. We see then upon what warrantable and rational Grounds the Messias is Exalted to so high a pitch of Honour, God having made him Supreme Head over Men and Angels: I speak of the very Person of Christ as well as his Nature. For the shuffling and superficial Allegorist will acknowledge that the Divine Nature or upright Being, as some of them call it, is above all. But that they are so shie of taking any notice of the Person of Christ, is either out of Ignorance in their Understanding, or out of a total misbelief of the History of Christ, wherein is asserted the Existence of Angels and the Immortality of the Souls of Men.

4. Now if there be Angels, and if the Souls of Men Subsist and Act out of their Bodies, they must also (as I have already demonstrated in my preparative Assertions) needs fall into Political Order and Government, and therefore must have some Head over them: Which here the Scripture does plainly assert to be Christ, who is the Captain of our Salvation for to assist, direct and encourage all the Powers of the Kingdom of Light to defend themselves and rescue others out of the Captivity of the Kingdom of Darkness and Tyranny of the Devil.

5. Wherefore if any Man start up and pretend an Equality with Christ, he is ipso facto convinced of Ignorance in the Mystery of Godliness, and deprehended to be an Impostor and a Lyar; or he is haply a Beast and an Epicure, denying the Immortality of the Soul, and thereupon building all his slights and contempts of the Personal knowledge of our Saviour; he deeming him as all Men else wholly Mortal, and therefore utterly to have perished above sixteen hundred Years ago.

CHAP. VI.

1. An Objection against Christ's Soveraignty over Men and Angels, from the meanness of the rank of Humane Spirits in comparison of the Angelical Orders. 2. An Answer to the Objection so far as it concerns the fallen Angels. 3. A further inforcement of the Objection concerning the unfallen Angels, with an Answer thereto. 4. A further Answer from the incapacity of an Angel's being a Sacrifice for the Sins of the World. 5. And of being a fit Example of Life to Men in the flesh. 6. That the capacities of Christ were so Universal, that he was the fittest to be made the Head or Soveraign over all the Intellectual Orders. 7. Christ's Intercession: His fitness for that Office. 8. What things in the Pagan Religion are rectified and compleated in the Birth, Passion, Ascension and Intercession of Christ.

1. BUT it may be further objected, That altho' it be very Reasonable that the Angels and the Spirits of Men, whether in the Body or out of the Body, be reduced under some Political form of Government; yet it seems very incongruous and disproportionable that some one of the lowest rank of all the Orders of Rational Creatures should be made the Soveraign over all, over Angels and Arch-Angels, and all Principalities and Powers whatsoever, whether in Heaven or in Earth.

2. But to this I answer, That tho' the Superior Orders of Intellectual Beings may have far more strength and natural Understanding in them than Man; yet the Humanity of Christ may not be Inferior to them in Humility and an Holy adhesion to God, in Self-resignation, and Faith in him who is the Root of all things, in Love also and dear Compassion over the whole Creation, and, in a word, in whatever appertains to the Divine Life. But as for the lapsed Angels, let them be otherwise as cunning and knowing in all Arts and Subtilties of Nature, let them be as Powerful and as Gigantick as they will, even to the overturning Mountains, and striking down Steeples at a blow; yet Christ has infinitely the pre-eminence of them in those Divine Accomplishments I have recited; nay, he has a Principle beyond them, removed above their Sphere, as Man has a Principle beyond Beasts. And therefore it is no more wonder that God has constituted him Lord over these Rebellious Titans, than that Man is made Superior to Lyons, Elephants, Whales, and other mighty and monstrous Creatures.

3. But

3. But you'll say, Tho' it seem just that the usurped Empire of the Devil be taken from him, and given to Christ, yet there is no reason that the unfallen Angels should be brought under his Scepter, they being naturally of an higher order than himself, and having forfeited nothing by Rebellion or Disobedience to God: And therefore it had been more Reasonable for God to have united himself Hypostatically (as they call it) with some Angel than with Humane Nature. But what art thou, O Man, that pretendest to be so wise as to give Laws to God? May not he dispose of his own and of himself as he pleases? Besides, there being so great a Revolt in the Angelical Orders, who tempted also Mankind into their lapse, the pretermission of them all in the conferring of so great an Honour as was conferred upon Christ, was but a just check and slight cast upon all their Orders at once; the Angelical Blood, as I may so say, being tainted with Treason.

Again, the Revolt and Rebellion of the Apostate Angels being nothing else but a wild and boundless giving themselves up to the Pleasures and Suggestions of the Animal Life, and Christianity (as I have already defined it) nothing else but a Triumph of the Divine Life over the Animal; this Triumph, Scorn and Insultation over the Animal Life is more exactly pursued, by how much in every place those things that seem of most Value to it are left out, as slighted and disregarded; and the whole Mystery of the Recovery of the lapsed Creation to God performed by him who undertook it without the false Pomp of those needless Circumstances of Highness of Order, Nobleness of Birth, Worldly Authority, Strength and Beauty of Body, Subtilty of Wit, Knowledge of Nature, Plausibility of Eloquence, or whatsoever else seems precious to the mere Natural or Animal Spirit. So that upon this very account the Angels were to be excluded from this Function.

4. But fourthly and lastly, If any Angel would have been Competitor with our Saviour in this Honour, that question put to Zebedee's Children might well have dash'd Matth. 20. 22. him out of countenance in his Competition: You know not what you ask: Can you drink of the Cup that I am to drink of, and be baptized with the Baptism that I am to be baptized with? That is, Can you undergo that shameful and scornful Death of the Cross? Cerly an Angel cannot. For if he could be Born into the World in Humane Flesh, and suffer those Agonies the Soul of the Messias did, this Angel were no Angel, but an Humane Soul. But perhaps you'll reply, that tho' an Angel cannot suffer Death in an Humane Body, yet he is so capable of torment and punishment, that he may be made an Expiation for the Sins of the World. But I demand how we that are so much concerned in it shall know of that suffering. For the Transactions of Men are a Spectacle to the Angels, but the Transactions of Angels are not discerned by Men by reason of the Tenuity of their Vehicles. But this suffering Angel would have appeared on purpose: Yet how unsatisfactory and phantastical would this have been conceived in comparison of the real and assured Passion of our Saviour Christ.

5. Besides, If an Angel had undertaken this Office, he could not have been so fit an Example of Life to us as Christ, who was a Man subject to the same Infirmities with our selves, and who really felt what belong'd to the imbecillity of our Natures. For the Passions of his Mind were no more abated nor destroyed by his Union with the Deity, than the Passibility of Matter is by being united with a Soul. Wherefore Christ wading thus faithfully without Sin or blame throughout all the incumbrances of the Flesh, which are greater than those that the Angelical Orders are liable unto, is a very concerning Spectacle of both Men and Angels: But what an Angel could do, would but very little concern us Men.

6. Wherefore he who was of so Universal a Capacity, as to be an Example of Good and a Reprover of Evil to all the Orders of Intellectual Beings that are peccable and mutable, and of so general a kindness and compassion to all rational Souls, that he could die a most shameful and bitter Death, to reduce them from their Rebellion and Confederacy with the Kingdom of Darkness, to return to the Kingdom of God; this Person, I say, whose influence is so great upon all, is fit to be made Head over all, according as Matth. 28. 18. himself has declared, To me is given all Power in Heaven and in Earth. Whence it is plain that there is none save God himself above him, at whose Right Hand he Sits, and intercedes for his Church.

See Book 3. chap. 17. Sect. 4. 7. Which is the last thing I propounded, His Intercession; upon which I need make no stay, there being no difficulty at all in it, but a very great Congruity, and such as is incompetible to any Angel, as I have already intimated. The Author to the Hebrews takes notice of it, Chap. 4. For we have not an high Priest which cannot be touched with the Heb. 4. 15. feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without Sin.

Who

Who therefore muſt needs prove a very Compaſſionate and Potent Interceſſor for us with his Father, not only for Forgiveneſs of Sins, but for all needful ſupplies of Grace and Aſſiſtance to his Church Militant here on Earth.

8. Thus we have ſeen how in the Birth, Paſſion, Aſcenſion and Interceſſion of Chriſt is comprehended a full and warrantable completion of thoſe four notable Parts of the Pagan Religion which relate to their Heroes, to their Catharmata, their Apotheoſes, and Interceſſions of their Δαίμονες, or Dii Medioxumi. For what they were naturally groping after and miſtaken in, in thoſe Points, all that is rectified here and made lawful and allowable, nay meritorious and effectual for both preſent and future Happineſs, I mean in Chriſt Jeſus; all buſineſſes betwixt God and us being to paſs through his Hands, if we look for Grace and Succeſs. Which Accommodation contriv'd by the Wiſdom of God was of very great Virtue for the bringing of the Nations of the World to cloſe with the Truth of the Goſpel, they being invited to that upon good Grounds, which their blind propenſions carried them out to in a way of error and miſtake.

CHAP. VII.

1. That there is nothing in the Hiſtory of Apollonius that can properly anſwer to Chriſt's Reſurrection from the Dead. 2. And that his Paſſage out of this Life muſt go for his Aſcenſion; concerning which reports are various, but in general that it was likely he died not in his Bed. 3. His reception at the Temple of Diana Dictynna in Crete, and of his being called up into Heaven by a Quire of Virgins Singing in the Air. 4. The uncertainty of the manner of Apollonius his leaving the World, argued out of Philoſtratus his own Confeſſion. 5. That if that at the Temple of Diana Dictynna was true, yet it is no demonſtration of any great worth in his Perſon. 6. That the Secrecy of his Departure out of this World might beget a ſuſpicion in his admirers that he went Body and Soul into Heaven. 7. Of a Statue of Apollonius that ſpake, and of his dictating Verſes to a young Philoſopher at Tyana, concerning the Immortality of the Soul. 8. Of his Ghoſt appearing to Aurelian the Emperor. 9. Of Chriſt's appearing to Stephen at his Martyrdom, and to Saul when he was going to Damaſcus.

1. WE have ſpoken of the Birth, Life, Death, Reſurrection and Aſcenſion of Chriſt; we will come to the Three laſt things we propounded, when we have briefly conſidered what in Apollonius is parallel to Chriſt's Reſurrection and Aſcenſion: For there is always ſome Glance or other in his Life at the moſt notable Paſſages in our Saviour's. But I can find nothing that muſt go for Apollonius his Reſurrection from the dead, but his eſcaping out of the Hands of Domitian: which Danger was ſo great, that all Men took him for a dead Man. *But what a whiffling Buſineſs it was and a mere Piece of Magical Oſtentation, I have already noted. * See Book 4. Chap. 15. Sect. 6.

2. His real Paſſage therefore out of this World muſt go for his Aſcenſion, as his Eſcape out of that deſperate Danger for his Reſurrection. But the Reports concerning his Departure are various; ſome affirming that at a full Age, being fourſcore or an hundred Years old, he died at Epheſus. But it ſeems not likely, Philoſtratus profeſſing that he had travelled the greateſt part of the habitable World to enquire of his Sepulchre, and that he could hear no News of it any where. But ſo grave and divine a Perſon as Apollonius was reputed, could not fail to be honoured with a very pompous Funeral and ſumptuous Monument where-ever he happened to die, he being ſo famouſly known over all the World: wherefore it is likely that he did not die, as they ſay, in his Bed, but in ſome Solitude, either by a ſudden Surprizal of Death, or on ſet Purpoſe, as Empedocles, who caſt himſelf into the Flames of Ætna, that he might be thought what Apollonius profeſſed himſelf before Domitian, an Immortal God.

Οὐ μάν με κτανέεις, ὅτι ἔσσομαι ἀθάνατος θεός.

3. Others

3. Others report that having entred into the Temple of Minerva at Lindus in Rhodes, he ſuddenly diſappeared before the People, and went no Man knows whither. Others affirm that he left this mortal Life in Crete, where approaching the Temple of Diana Dictynna, the Doors flew open of themſelves, to the Admiration of the Keepers of the Temple: who ſuſpected him for a ſacrilegious Enchanter, in that the fierce Maſtives that kept the Treaſury fawned on him with more Kindneſs and Familiarity than on them that fed them. Wherefore the Sextons bound Apollonius with Fetters to ſecure the Treaſury; but about Midnight he ſet himſelf free, and calling the Guards by their Names, that they might not think he would ſteal away privately, he went to the Door of the Temple, which, as I ſaid, opened of it ſelf, and when he had entred in, ſhut of it ſelf again: Whereupon were heard Voices from Heaven, as it were of young Girls ſinging melodiouſly, and chanting forth a Stanza to this ſenſe, Come from the Earth, come, leap hither up to Heaven, mount from the Earth on high.

4. But concerning this Hiſtory of his leaving of the World, two things are obſervable. Firſt, That Philoſtratus does invalidate his Narration by varying the Story ſo much as he does: For he profeſſing that he made it his Buſineſs to enquire of this matter, travelling moſt part of the habitable World for his better Satisfaction, and not determining which of theſe three Reports is the trueſt; it is a ſign that he was not aſcertained of the Truth of any of them, but that his End may be ſuch as I at firſt intimated.

5. But ſuppoſe the laſt and moſt glorious of theſe three Stories was the trueſt; yet Apollonius his Credit is much obſcured by parting thus in the Night, though we allow him a Moon-ſhine Night for his Voyage: For then the higheſt Myſtery (if it be not mere Forgery) that may be in it, is but thus much; That theſe young Girls, the Nymphs of Diana, called and carried away the old Wizzard to the Enjoyment of thoſe Diſportments and Pleaſures that ſuch ludicrous Spirits, together with old Hags and others of the Fraternity, uſe to make with one another in far remote Solitudes under ſome broad-ſpread Oak, or on the Top of ſome ſteep Mountain environ'd with Woods and ſhady Trees, (which Solemnity is called Ludus Dianæ by the Antients, as I have noted already out of Mirandula:) where out of a ſpecial Favour to him for the great Service he did to the Powers of Darkneſs, they might break his Neck in a Frolick from ſome Precipice, cracking the Shell to enjoy the Kernel, or ſome more handſome way or other uncaſe him of his wrinkled and loathed Veſtments of Mortality; that ſo being ſtrip'd more naked than when he appeared before the Tribunal of Domitian, he might be entertain'd with the more loving Embraces of the Officers of the dark Kingdom, and receive the Wages thought due to ſo faithful and induſtrious a Servant; which were but ſuch, though it may be in an higher degree, as other Magicians and Enchanters do receive. So vain, ſo frivolous and vulgar are all things in the Life of Apollonius, if compared with what is recorded in the Life of Chriſt.

6. But be his Departure out of this World what way it will, it is likely that the Secreſie thereof conciliated much Credit to his Perſon; and by adding to his Pagan Zeal the ſpurious Pretences of Abſtinence, Chaſtity, Contempt of the World and other plauſible Shows of Morality, beſides thoſe Miracles (as a Man may call them) which he did by the Aſſiſtance of the Powers of the dark Kingdom, he did not fail to be thought by ſome to have been carried Body and Soul into Heaven, as Enoch and Elias were, and to have obtain'd an happy ἀποθέωσις among the Gods. In confidence whereof, they erected Statues to him here on Earth, as Philoſtratus relates, and particularly in Tyana, the Town where he was born.

7. Grotius relates out of an Eccleſiaſtical Writer, That there was a Statue of his that ſpoke, being actuated by ſome aſſiſtant Dæmon; but that his Mouth was ſoon ſtopped by the Power of Chriſt and the Preaching of the Goſpel. He dictated alſo certain Verſes to a young Student of Philoſophy in Tyana, concerning the Immortality of the Soul, who had for ſome ten Months together earneſtly prayed to him to reſolve him of that point: which Verſes he recited to his Fellow-Students in a frantick Poſture, ſtarting out of his Sleep, and averring Apollonius was there preſent, though none ſaw him but himſelf: Which would make a Man think it was nothing elſe but the Continuation of a confuſed Dream, which he compleated betwixt Sleep and Waking; it being no rare thing for Men aſleep to anſwer to more Queſtions than his Fellow-Students put to this young Philoſopher.

8. But

8. But his real Appearance to Aurelian the Emperour, ſeems more probable. For his Forces, as Vopiſcus writes, marching againſt Tyana, and the Citizens ſhutting the Gates of the Town againſt him, incenſed the Emperour ſo, that he made a raſh Vow that he would not leave one Dog alive in the City. But Apollonius his Ghoſt appearing to him in his Tent, and dehorting him from ſo great a Cruelty, and threatning him into a better Mind, prevented the Miſchief; ſo that the Town being taken, he merrily interpreted his Reſolution to the Deſtruction of the Dogs only, but ſtrictly charged his Soldiers to ſpare the Citizens. This Story if it was true, it was handſomely contrived, both for the keeping up of the Honour of the deified Apollonius, by making him ſo ſeaſonably deliver his native Town in ſo great an Exigency, and alſo for the ſaving of the Emperour's Credit with the Soldiers, that he might ſeem by the Divine Powers to be abſolved from that rigid Vow of giving the whole Town up to the Slaughter and Plunder of the Soldiery.

9. Theſe are the main things I have met with concerning Apollonius his manner of leaving of the World, and the Effects of his ſuppoſed Divinity after he had left it. But (beſides the Uncertainty and Suſpicability of the Story) it is evident that they are very ſorry and obſcure Indications thereof, if they be compared to the Evidences that are produced for the real ἀποθέωσις of Chriſt. For Stephen while he was a ſtoning, to the great Corroboration of his Spirit in his cruel Martyrdom, ſaw the Heavens opened, and Chriſt ſtanding at the Right-Hand of God in Glory and great Majeſty. And Paul, as he was going to Damaſcus to perſecute the Diſciples of Chriſt, was ſtruck off from his furious Purpoſe by the glorious Appearance of Chriſt from Heaven: For there ſhone a very great Light about him, and a Voice was heard from Heaven, ſaying, Saul, Saul, Why perſecuteſt thou me? &c. His Fellow-Travellers ſaw alſo the Coruſcation of the Light and were aſtoniſhed, and heard the Sound from Heaven, though they underſtood not the Meaning of it; they hearing it not ſo articulately as he that was moſt concern'd in it. Which are Two notable Demonſtrations of the Truth and Legitimateneſs of Chriſt's Apotheoſis, to which there is nothing comparable in the Story of Apollonius. But I ſhall add alſo a Third, and that of all the moſt illuſtrious; which is the Revelation that Chriſt made to John of what things ſhould befal the Church from that time forward to the End of the World; than which there cannot be deſired a more eminent Confirmation of our Saviour's Apotheoſis.

Acts 7. 56.

Acts 9. 3.

CHAP. VIII.

1. The Uſe of this Parallel hitherto between Chriſt and Apollonius. 2. Mahomet, David George, H. Nicholas, high-pretending Prophets, brought upon the Stage, and the Author's Apology for ſo doing. 3. That a Miſ-belief of the Hiſtory of Chriſt, and a Dexterity in a moral Mythology thereof, are the greateſt Excellencies in David George and H. Nicholas. 4. That if they believed there were any Miracles ever in the World, they ought to have given their Reaſons why they believe not thoſe that are recorded of Chriſt, and to have undeceiv'd the World by doing Miracles themſelves to ratifie their Doctrine. 5. If they believed there never were, nor ever will be any Miracles, they do plainly betray themſelves to be mere Atheiſts or Epicures. 6. The wicked Plot of Satan in this Sect in cloathing their Style with Scripture-Language, though they were worſe Infidels than the very Heathen. 7. That the groſs Infidelity of theſe two Impoſtors would make a Man ſuſpect them rather to have been crafty prophane Cheats than honeſt through-crackt Enthuſiaſts. 8. That where Faith is extinct, all the rapturous Exhortations to Vertue are juſtly ſuſpected to proceed rather from Complexion than any Divine Principle.

1. WE have now ſtretch'd the Parallel as far as it will go, the Line failing on Apollonius his ſide: but ſo long as the matter would afford, we thought it worth our Pains to continue the Compariſon, that the Excellency of our Saviour's Perſon might more clearly appear, ſo illuſtrious a Counterfeit becoming his Competitour; and that all the World may be ſatisfied, that it was not Chance or Luck, but the incomparable Dignity of the Perſon of Chriſt, and the weighty Circumſtances of Providence that gave ſuch ample Teſtimony to him, which made the World turn Chriſtians rather than Apollonians, that is, made them rather embrace the Goſpel than continue in Paganiſm, though reformed after the neateſt and moſt refined manner by the nobleſt and gallanteſt Perſonage that ever was purely Pagan, the famous Apollonius.

2. But that our Saviour may have the Field clear to himſelf, it will not be amiſs to digreſs a little further, and take notice of ſome few others that put in for an Equality with him or a Superiority above him: and the chief of them are theſe Three, Mahomet, David George and the begodded Man of Amſterdam; whom I dare not venture to bring into the Liſt without a Preface for Pardon and Excuſe for that which looks ſo like a Piece of Diſhonour and Diſreſpect to our Saviour. But Dueſſa, till unſtripped, will compare with Una; you know the Story in Spencer: and the bold Ignorance of ſome does ordinarily make others take a great deal of Pains to explain and evince that which to any indifferent Man is uſually true at firſt ſight. Which kind of Undertakings, though they be no great Arguments of a Man's Wit, yet they are of his Faithfulneſs and ſincere Love to the Truth, which is far better.

3. Firſt therefore to ſpeak a little of the two latter, David George and him of Amſterdam, thoſe two meal mouth'd Prophets that court the World to follow them by ſo many myſtical Good-morrows, making the whole Goſpel but as one long-winded Fable, and themſelves the only inſpired and infallible Lights of the World, becauſe they fancy they have found the right *Ἀπιρώδιον of it. So that their Excellency ſeems to conſiſt mainly in theſe Two things; in a reſolved Infidelity or ſtout Misbelief of the Hiſtory of Chriſt ſo far as it is Miraculous, and a Dexterity in a moral Mythology thereof: whereby the Goſpel is utterly abrogated, and more fundamentally deſtroy'd than the Law of Moſes is by the Goſpel. For there was never any Chriſtian ſo immodeſt as to deny the Miracles of Moſes, and ſo conſequently the Truth of the Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament, which theſe do in the New; by which you may judge what they do concerning the Old alſo. For it is moſt likely they believe there were never any ſuch things as Miracles done any where.

*The moral Meaning of a Fable.

4. But if they believe there were Miracles, let them ſhew their Reaſons why they diſtruſt that what is recorded of our Saviour is but a Fable, and let them produce Miracles themſelves to demonſtrate to us that we believe a Falſehood, and that God has ſent them upon ſuch a ſpecial Errand as they pretend. If they can do no Miracles, God is no Witneſs unto them, but they witneſs only of themſelves; and therefore are mere Fanaticks and diſtemper'd Enthuſiaſts, having nothing to drive them forwards to ſo bold and prodigious an Enterprize as the ſuperannuating of Chriſtianity and the abrogating of the Office of the Perſon of Chriſt, but the Pride and Fury of their own inflam'd Spirits, and a phantaſtical Conceit of themſelves, as if God had inlightned them more than all the World beſides.

5. If, according to the Impulſe of that Spirit of Infidelity in them, they conceive there never was nor ever will be any Miracles done in the World, but that all things are carried according to the Courſe of Nature; they betray themſelves in this, that they are ſo far from being extraordinarily illuminated, that they are more blind and blockiſh than every ordinary Man that has the Fear of God before his Eyes; and that they are, what ſome ſuſpect them to be, a skulking kind of Epicureans and Atheiſts. But this I dare boly ſay, that ſtrip their Style of all Scripture Phraſes, and all Alluſions to the Hiſtory of Chriſt and of the Old Teſtament, you ſhall find nothing affirmed in theſe Authors that will riſe higher than the Faith of Epicurus, Democritus or Lucretius; they poſitively affirming nothing but what any ordinary moral Pagan would affirm, not ſo much as the better ſort that held the Immortality of the Soul.

6. But this is the wicked Plot of the Devil in this Sect, that he clothes their Style with Scripture Language, that they may, as it were, wear the Colours of the Kingdom of Light, and ſo covertly deſtroy or win the Chriſtian Soldiers from their Allegiance to Chriſt, and lapſe them into the Bondage of the dark Kingdom. So that that mighty Prop of Faith in thoſe precious Promiſes of the Goſpel being taken away, their Heart may fail them in the Hour of Temptation, and they may be wrought by degrees into a full Compliance with every tranſitory Pleaſure which the natural Man reliſhes, whether in Riches, Honour, or Satisfaction of the Fleſh; and that upon whatever Terms the World ſhall propound it to them. So far therefore are thoſe two forward Fellows of Delph and of Amſterdam from approving themſelves ſo great Lights of the World as they pretend, that they are more dark in their Underſtanding than many of the Heathen, who had ſome kind of Glimpſe of a World a World to come, believed the Exiſtence of Spirits and the Power of Miracles.

7. Which Conſideration would make a Man think that they were not ſo much as honeſt through-crackt Enthuſiaſts, but rather cunning Cheats and Impoſtors, who being down-right Epicureans, but of ſomething a finer Contexture, could abuſe their rapturous and enthuſiaſtick Complexion to deceive the whole Chriſtian World, calling them off from Chriſt to an Admiration of themſelves: which might be a conſiderable Profit, as well as no ſmall Pleaſure to them; and under Pretence of teaching them the Great Myſtery of the Goſpel, might endeavour to undermine the Goſpel by taking away the ſubſtantial Hiſtory of it, wrapping up ordinary Precepts of Life, ſuch as any moral Pagan can give concerning Virtue, in the myſterious Dreſs of the Birth, Death, Reſurrection, and Aſcenſion of Chriſt; making the whole Myſtery of Chriſtianity nothing but a finely contrived Fable to ſet out ſome trivial moral Truths, ſuch as are acknowledged by almoſt every Atheiſt and Epicurean, and the Practice whereof reaches no further than the more advantagious Managements of the Pleaſures and Enjoyments of this preſent Life.

8. I do not deny but that the frequent Uſe of Scriptural Alluſions and Phraſes in their Writings may raiſe in well-meaning Men a Senſe beyond the Feeling of them that wrote them. But where Faith in Chriſt is extinct and of thoſe Promiſes that he made ſo clearly known to the World by his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion, I conceive that this is an infallible Argument that the Divine Life is extinct alſo; and that it is from ſome Impurity of Body, Soul, or Spirits, that a Man ſinks below that Belief; and that his Virtues then are but Complexional or merely Moral, ſuch as are found in a cicurated Beaſt or ſome better-natur'd Brute. This in all likelihood was the utmoſt of that Light which was in thoſe two grand Boaſters; which compar'd with that in Chriſt, bears not ſo much Proportion as the Flame of a ſtinking Lamp to the glorious Luſter of the Sun: Inſomuch that if they had not been both by themſelves and others either equalized to, or preferred before our Saviour, I ſhould not ſo much as have vouchſafed to have made any Compariſon betwixt them, or ever to have mentioned them in my Writings.

CHAP. IX.

1. Mahomet far more oxthodox in the main points of Religion than the above-named Impoſtors. 2. The high Pitch this pretended Prophet ſets himſelf at. His Journey to Heaven, being waited upon by the Angel Gabriel. His Beaſt Alborach, and of his being called to by two Women by the way, with the Angel's Interpretation thereof. 3. His Arrival at the Temple at Jeruſalem, and the Reverence done to him there by all the Prophets and holy Meſſengers of God that ever had been in the World. 4. The crafty political Meaning of the Viſion hitherto. 5. Mahomet bearing himſelf upon the Angel Gabriel's Hand, climbs up to Heaven on a Ladder of Divine Light. His paſſing through ſeven Heavens, and his commending himſelf to Chriſt in the ſeventh. 6. His Salutation of his Creator, with the ſtupendious Circumſtances thereof. 7. Five ſpecial Favours he received from God at that Congreß. 8. Of the natural Wilyneß in Enthuſiaſts, and of their ſubtile Pride where they would ſeem moſt humble. The ſtrange Advantage of Enthuſiaſm with the rude Multitude. 9. And the wonderful Succeß thereof in Mahomet. Other Enthuſiaſts as proud as Mahomet, but not ſo ſucceßful, and why.

1. THE Third pretended Prophet and Head of the Nations is Mahomet: who though he haply be not ſo moralized a Man, or at leaſt not ſo cautious, as theſe Two we laſt ſpoke of, but more openly entangled in the Pleaſures of the Fleſh, if he be not belied, than theſe two Sadducees, were, and more able to enjoy himſelf in thoſe Pleaſures; yet (be it Luck or Choice or mere Policy,) he ſeems more orthodox in the grand points of Religion than they; he holding not only the Exiſtence of a God and of Angels and Spirits, but alſo the Immortality of the Soul, and a ſolemn Judgment to come, wherein every Man ſhall receive according to what he has done in the Fleſh, whether it be Good or Evil.

2. The Succeſs of this Pretender has been ſo wonderfully great in the World, that I think it not amiſs to make ſomewhat a longer Stay upon him than upon the two former. We ſhall therefore take notice what Pitch he ſets himſelf at, and after endeavour to level him and reduce him to his due Place.

If we will believe his own Teſtimony, we ſhall find him ſo much favoured by God and the Heavenly Powers, as to be carried up into the higheſt Heavens, at leaſt by Viſion. But he tells the Story of himſelf as if it was a real Tranſaction, viz. That once about midnight the Angel Gabriel knocked at his Door, and told him that he ſhould travel up to Heaven, for Almighty God would ſpeak with him. That the Angel brought along with him a Milk-white Beaſt called Alborach, ſomething bigger than an Aſs, but leſs than a Mule, which the Angel bad Mahomet get upon: but the Beaſt kicking and refuſing his Rider, the Angel asked him why he did ſo, for he never did nor ever could receive upon his Back a better Man than Mahomet. But Alborach anſwered, he would not admit him, unleſs he would promiſe to procure him an Entrance into Paradiſe: which Mahomet promiſing, he got up, and the Angel led the Beaſt by the Reins of the Bridle, till they were come to Jeruſalem. Now as they were in their Way upon their Journey, Mahomet heard the Voice of a certain Woman crying to him aloud, Mahomet, Mahomet; but the Angel forbad him to anſwer; and when they had gone further, another Woman called him after the ſame manner; but the Angel commanded him to hold his Peace. And that afterward he asked the Angel what theſe Women were: to which the Angel replyed, that the Firſt was the Promulgatreſs of the Jewiſh, the Second of the Chriſtian Law; and that if he had anſwered to the firſt Woman, all the Mauri had become Jews, if to the ſecond, Chriſtians.

3. When they had come to the Gate of the Temple at Jeruſalem, that Mahomet lighted off from his Beaſt Alborach, and that he and the Angel went into the Temple, where all the Prophets and Meſſengers of God that ever came into the World met him and ſaluted him, ſaying, Joy to the Meſſenger and honourable Prophet of God. Afterwards waiting on him in great Pomp to the Chappel Mihrab, with much Reverence they deſired him that he would pray for them all: which when he had done, they beſought him alſo that he would be mindful of them when he came into the Preſence of God. This done, all went away, and Mahomet and the Angel were left alone in the Temple.

4. By which crafty Figment Mahomet aſſuredly meant nothing elſe but a Juſtification of himſelf for beginning a Third Sect, diſtinct from the Religions of Jews and Chriſtians, and the Recommendation of himſelf to the World as the greateſt Prophet that ever yet appeared on Earth. But we are not come to the Height of the Viſion yet.

5. The Angel and Mahomet afterwards coming out of the Temple, found a Ladder made of Divine Light which reached from Earth to Heaven, whereby they both, Mahomet bearing himſelf upon the Angel's Hand, aſcended up thither, paſſing through ſeven Heavens; The firſt of pure Silver where Adam was, the ſecond of Gold where Noah, the third of a certain precious Gemme wherein was Abraham, the fourth of Smaragdus wherein Joſeph, the fifth of Adamant wherein Moſes, the ſixth of Carbuncle wherein John the Baptiſt was found, and the ſeventh of Celeſtial Light wherein was Jeſus Chriſt. All theſe venerable Perſonages welcomed Mahomet with loving Salutations and kind Embraces, and commended themſelves to him; but in the ſeventh Heaven Mahomet ſeems to commend himſelf to Chriſt. The infinite Numbers, monſtrous Figures and immenſe Bigneſſes of Angels that he ſets off his Viſion by, for the greater Aſtoniſhment of his Followers, I thought good to omit, as being too vile and tedious, and he is not got to his Journey's End yet.

6. The Angel Gabriel takes leave of him in this ſeventh Heaven, telling him he may go no further with him, but that God alone now muſt be his Guide. Mahomet therefore holding on his Journey, was carried on the Tops of incredible Heights and Sublimities, wading through much Water and deep Snow, inſomuch that he had been quite ſpent, had not a Voice refreſhed him, ſaying, Mahomet, come hither and ſalute thy Creator. He following therefore the Sound of this Voice, ſaw ſo great a Light, that he was almoſt blinded therewith: For the Face of God was cover'd with Veils of Celeſtial Light ſeventy Miles thick; to which he approached within the Space of two flight Shot, but could not ſee the Face of God by reaſon of the hot Gleames and glorious Rays that ſtreamed from thoſe Veils of Light. But God laid his Hand upon him to refeſh him, which felt exceeding cold.

7. In

7. In this Congreſs he received the Law from God and many wonderful Secrets: But he Glories moſt of all that in this Night he had conferr'd upon him Five things which no Man before or after ever had.

Firſt, That God then made him the firſt and moſt chief Creature in Heaven and in Earth.

Secondly, That he ſhould be the moſt Excellent and moſt Honourable amongſt the Sons of Adam at the Day of Judgment.

Thirdly, That he ſhould be the general Redeemer of the World.

Fourthly, That he ſhould have the Knowledge of all Tongues.

Fifthly and Laſtly, That he ſhould be Victorious, and carry away the Spoils of War.

8. We ſee how high Mahomet has mounted himſelf, and how much Political Craft is intermix'd with this Fanatical figment. For Enthuſiaſtick madneſs, as it is never disjoined from the higheſt kind of Pride, even there where it ſeems to be moſt humble, (For the attributing nothing to it ſelf, but that all its Knowledge and Power is immediately from God, is nothing elſe but an Oſtentation of an higher kind of Power and more infallible way of Knowledge than other Mortals have, of which this Viſion of Mahomet's is a lively Repreſentation) ſo it has very often ſtrange and unexpected fetches of Fraud and Guile in it, ſuch as would not eaſily come into the mind of an ordinary ſober Man. Whereby an Enthuſiaſt amongſt rude People, if he be not quite crackt, but be of an active Spirit, and have opportunity offered him, may do wonderful things in the World, ſuch as no ſober Man could ever atchieve or dare to attempt. Such is the caſe of this Mahomet, who in the midſt of his Fanatical madneſs, wild Mirth, inſatiable Luſt and Ambition, Poetical Raptures and Martial fury, laid the Foundation of that mighty Empire that all the World ſtands amazed at at this Day. The firſt ſtep to which was that Enthuſiaſtick phrenſie that emboldened him either to think or at leaſt to profeſs himſelf The Laſt and Greateſt Prophet that ever God would ſend into the World. For the bold Inculcation of this, ſeconded with many occaſional fetches of Wit to ſave himſelf when his Impoſtures were diſcovered, carried the buſineſs ſucceſsfully with that rude Nation he had to deal with.

9. As for that Pride that accompanies Fanatical madneſs, I muſt confeſs there were others had their minds ſet as high on that Rack as he, I mean David George, he of Amſterdam, the Peruvian Doctor, and others who affected the ſame Title and Office with him, and it may be being more throughly mad (at leaſt ſome of them) did more firmly believe themſelves to be That great Prophet God would ſend into the World than Mahomet did. But Mahomet having a more Governable Enthuſiaſm in him, and a more Martial and Political Spirit, and, what is chiefeſt of all, better opportunity of playing his Game, as having to deal with rude and illiterate People; his Succeſs did not only exceed theirs, but prov'd ſo admirable, that it might have become a True Prophet indeed, and recommended him to the World.

CHAP. X.

1. That Mahomet was no true Prophet, diſcovered from his cruel and bloody Precepts. 2. From his inſatiable Luſt. 3. From his wildneſs of Phanſy, and Ignorance in things. What may poſſibly be the meaning of the black ſpeck taken out of his Heart by the Angel Gabriel. 4. His pretence to Miracles; as his being overſhadowed with a Cloud, when he drove his Maſter's Mules. 5. A ſtock of a Tree cleaving it ſelf to give way to the ſtumbling Prophet. The cluttering of Trees together to keep off the Sun from him, as alſo his dividing of the Moon. 6. The matters hitherto recited concerning Mahomet taken out of Johannes Andreas the Son of Abdalla a Mahometan Prieſt, a grave Perſon and Serious Chriſtian.

1. BUT that he was not a true Prophet, but a mere Political Enthuſiaſt of a vafrous and verſatil Wit, with a little ſmack of Cracktneſs and Lunacy, is very deprehenſible as well from his Immorality, as his Ignorance of things and the Wildneſs of his Phanſy. I ſhall give ſome few Inſtances of each. And to the Firſt I refer his Cruelty, in giving Laws to Butcher all Men that would not preſently turn to his Religion. Which Precept is ſet down in the Alcoran, as alſo in Zuna, Occidite homines, quouſque que Omnes Mauri fiant. And that they may Act this Tragedy more zealously, and not be affraid of being kill'd themselves, he promised them so great a Joy in that Death (besides their speedy entrance into Paradise, and feasting it there with their Creator) that they would even willingly leave Paradise, and come again into the Flesh to be capable again of so great Joy as that kind of Death affords them.

2. Besides that he was thus Cruel, he was also insatiably Venereous, as may be gathered by several Acts of his; as his taking away his Servant Zeydin's Wife from him, whenas himself had no less than nine at home already of his own, and Zeydin but this one. In the Book Azear and Assameil he is said to have fifteen Wives, and extolled for his virility in that he had to do with them all in one hour. He committed Adultery also with one Marina, a Jewish Girl, which was given him of fifteen Years of Age; and being caught in the Act by Axa and Hafeza the two chiefest of his Wives, and chid for it, he Swore to them he would never meddle with her again: But his Lust being stronger than the obligation of an Oath, his two Wives found him at that unlawful Game once more: Whereupon Mahomet enlarged the Laws of Matrimony, to save his own credit, and made it lawful for all his Followers to have to do with their Maid-Servants. He is said also, when he had already seven Wives, to have married that Axa at six Years of Age, and to have lyen with her when she was but eight Years old. Finally at last he set no bounds to his Lust, but taught the People he might lie with whom he would, tho' he kept them within a certain stint: Whereby he was not so kind as * David George, that permitted this freedom to all his Followers as well as to himself.

* See Enthusiasmus Triumphatus, Sect. 34. Art. 9.

3. His Wildness of Phansy and Ignorance in things is evident in several Passages; as his making Mary the Mother of Jesus, the Sister of Moses and Aaron; in asserting the Stars to be hung in Golden Chains, and that the biggest of them are no bigger than a great Mountain; in affirming that God has established the Earth on a * Bull's Horn, and that the shaking of his Head is the cause of Earth-quakes. This Mahomet delivers in the Book Zuna: Where also he Teaches how when a Man is Buried, two black Angels come unto him, and force him to raise himself on his Knees, and to put on his Soul upon the out-side of his Body as a Shirt or Surplice; which done, they examine him whether he believe in the Law of Mahomet, with a deal of other stuff to that purpose. That also is a wonderful fine fiction of his, That when he was four Years old, the Angel Gabriel took him by the Hand, and led him behind a Hill, and there with a sharp Rasor cut up his Breast, and took out his Heart, which having cleansed of a black speck, he after put it in again. But it is evident from the Effect, that the Angel did not use his Incision-knife for the best advantage for preventing of those so many and so enormous Acts of Adultery which Mahomet was Famous for: Or it may be the meaning is, that that black speck being taken out, he was then impeccable, I mean, in that Fanatick Sense, that do what he would, he could not Sin, no not tho' he lay with his own Mother, or murthered his Father; a wild conceit of some Enthusiasts of these Days.

* See Johan. Andr. Confus. Sectæ Mahometanæ, Cap. 5.

4. It would be an endless Labour to record all the Follies of this Prophet, the most judicious whereof is his Pretense to Miracles. For he that has neither Miracles nor can feign any, what Face has he to profess himself a Prophet? The first Miracle he pretends to, we have mentioned already, which was the cleansing of his Heart of the black spot, which makes Men obnoxious to be assaulted by the Devil, as the Mahometans conceive.

The second happened when he was seventeen Years old, when a Cloud like a Canopy kept over his Head in an hot Day, as he travailed with his Master's Camels. To these you may add his being saluted by an Angel in the Cave, and spoken to by Stones and Trees and brute Creatures, with this compellation, Haile MAHOMET, the Messenger of God, as also the weeping of a dry trunk of a Palm-tree at his departure and exile from Mecha.

5. But the Three most notable Miracles are still behind. The First whereof is the cleaving of the stock of a Tree by Mahomet's stumbling at it, as he was walking with his Eyes devoutly looking up unto Heaven. For the Tree clove of it self, to give the Holy Prophet passage; but when he was gone by, presently grew together again.

The Second is the cluttering of Trees together to keep the Sun off from him, and the retiring of them every one to his own place at his command. In Zuna, Mahomet more particularly affirms, that on a Day he doing the necessities of Nature in an open place, he commanded two Trees to come to him to keep off the heat of the Sun from him; which they did immediately, their Roots being torn out of the Earth: And that he commanding them to return, the Trees obeyed, and were fastened into the Earth in their own place as before.

But

But the laſt and moſt notable Miracle, which equally argues his Ignorance of Nature as well as the Wildneſs of his Phanſie, is his dividing of the Moon into two parts, and making one part go into one of his Sleeves and the other into the other, and both of them to come out at his Neck, and then ſoldering of both parts together, and ſo reſtoring her to the ſame place in Heaven from whence by his Prayer he made her to deſcend. Of which Miracles this is briefly to be noted, That as ſome of them are not poſſible, ſo none of them that are, are pretended to be done before Witneſſes; and that moſt of them are very fooliſh and ridiculous.

6. Theſe things are recorded by a very Grave and Pious Perſon, and a true and ſincere Chriſtian, ſo far as I can diſcern, Johannes Andreas, the Son and Succeſſor of Abdalla a Mahometan Prieſt, a Man throughly-well Skill'd in the Religion and Law of Mahomet, who after his Converſion to Chriſtianity wrote a Book, and in my apprehenſion with a great deal of honeſty and judgment, concerning the Impoſture of Mahometiſm; out of which I have recited what you have heard, and might add much more both out of him and other Writers. But this will ſuffice to demonſtrate Mahomet to be ſuch as I have Characterized him, and make us by ſuch compariſons as theſe the better underſtand, and the more ſenſibly reliſh, the Sobriety, Decency, and unexceptionable Solidity of our own Religion.

CHAP. XI.

1. Three main Conſequences of Chriſt's Apotheoſis. 2. Of the Miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, and the Apoſtles Power of doing Miracles. 3. The manner of the deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon them at the Day of Pentecoſt. 4. The ſubſtantial Reaſonableneſs of the Circumſtances of this Miracle. 5. The Symbolical meaning of them. 6. What was meant by the ruſhing Wind that filled the whole Houſe. 7. What by the fiery Cloven Tongues. 8. A recital of ſeveral other Miracles done by or happening to the Apoſtles. 9. The Congruity and Coherence of the whole Hiſtory of the Miracles of Chriſt and his Apoſtles argued from the Succeſs.

1. AFter our ſomething long but needful Digreſſion to view the falſe and unſound ways that Mahomet, David George and his Fanatical Fellow of Amſterdam would lead Men in, we return now to that faithful Way and true Guide Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe Reſurrection, Aſcenſion and Apotheoſis we having paſſed through, we ſhall now proceed to the Three laſt things we propounded, all which are very natural and ſuitable Conſequences of his Apotheoſis, his ſitting and ruling of the World at the Right Hand of the Father: And they are theſe; His ſending of the Holy Ghoſt at the Day of Pentecoſt, and enabling his Apoſtles and Diſciples to do Miracles: The great Succeſs of their Endeavours in the World, they being thus aſſiſted by ſo Miraculous a Power; And Chriſt's viſible return into the World, to judge the quick and the dead.

2. The Firſt of theſe, which is The Miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, and the enabling of his Apoſtles to work Miracles, it was not only fitting to be performed, as being firſt promiſed by Chriſt, while he was with them here on Earth; but alſo needful to have been done, tho' it had not been promiſed, that when they went out to Preach the Goſpel to the Nations, they might not ſeem wholly ridiculous and contemptible in propounding ſuch vain and incredible things, (as they would ſeem to the World,) and ſuch as had ſome kind of blemiſh or reproach with them, recommending to them one for the Son of God whom the Jews had Crucified for a Malefactor betwixt two Thieves. Certainly if an extraordinary Power had not aſſiſted them, and they could not have done ſomething beyond Nature, they would have been laughed at and hiſſed out of every place they came to. But having this ſupernatural Aſſiſtance, both their own Faith was the more firmly Rooted thereby, they finding that Jeſus approved himſelf to the utmoſt to be all that with his Father which he profeſſed himſelf to be; and alſo they were ſo exceedingly encouraged and emboldened through this ſenſible preſence of the Deity going along with them, that no Dangers nor Affronts, no not the fear of Death or Torment, could hinder them from being open Witneſſes to the World of all thoſe things which they had ſeen and moſt certainly knew concerning the Crucified Jeſus, the Son of God and Saviour of Mankind.

3. We

3. We have ſeen in general how requiſite this Supernatural Aſſiſtance was to the Apoſtles; We ſhall now take notice in particular how congruous at leaſt and decorous the Firſt appearance thereof was at the Day of Pentecoſt. The Apoſtles together with other Diſciples being met in an upper Room at Jeruſalem, and being all of one Mind and of one Faith and Expectation of the promiſe of the Spirit, at the above-named Day of Pentecoſt, of a ſuddain there came upon them a ſound from Heaven, as of a mighty ruſhing Wind, which filled the Houſe where they were ſitting; and there appeared unto them Cloven Tongues, like as of Fire, which ſate upon each of them: And they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and began to ſpeak with other Tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

4. Suppoſing a God, a Providence and the Miniſtry of Angels and Spirits, there is not a jot of this impoſſible or incredible. But we ſhall alſo take notice of the Congruity of Circumſtances, which are either for an handſome Symbolical Senſe, or elſe for a more indiſpenſable convenience; as I conceive the Day to be, and their aſſembling thus together on this Day of Pentecoſt in one place. For their ſeeing what happened thus miraculouſly to every one of them is a ſtronger confirmation of all their Faiths, and they are the more ſufficient Witneſſes to all the World of what thus miraculouſly befell them. And the Day of Pentecoſt was the moſt convenient time for this to happen, becauſe of the greater concourſe of People on that Day.

5. But it does not exclude that more Myſtical and Symbolical Senſe of St. Auſtine's; That as the written Law was given to the Jews on the fiftieth Day after the Paſſover, ſo the Law of the Spirit which was to be written in Mens Hearts was thus wonderfully begun here on the ſame Day, by the Preaching of the Apoſtles, on whom the Spirit deſcended in ſuch an extraordinary manner. Nor does that other Senſe concerning the Unity of place exclude that Moral intimation of Grotius, Deus dona ſua promiſit unitati. That alſo of their being ſeated in an upper Room muſt ſignify Morally, or nothing conſiderable; for elſe the more removed from the Earth, the never nearer to God, eſpecially within the ſmell of the Atmoſphere. Which Philoſophick contemplation Apollonius purſues with a great deal of Pomp and Gravity, indoctrinating Damis, while they were travelling on Mount Caucaſus, (which the Neighbour Inhabitants look'd upon as the Holy Manſion of the Gods, as other Hills alſo are call'd ὄχημα Θεῶν from that Opinion,) that a Man is never the nearer the Knowledge of Religion and Vertue, if he were mounted upon the higheſt Athos, Olympus or all the Caucaſus's in the World, unleſs he contemplate Religious and Divine matters, not ſo much in a pure and ſubtile Air, as from an undeprav'd and ſincere Spirit.

6. But that which is of the greateſt ſignificancy is the mighty ruſhing Wind and the fiery Cloven Tongues. The former whereof is an Emblem of the External Violence which God would do to the World in the introducing of the acknowledgment of his Son into it. For without doubt thoſe wonderful Miracles that were done by the Apoſtles, beat ſo ſtrongly upon the outward Senſes of Men, that they were after a manner forcibly driven to acknowledge that the Hand of God was with them, and that the Doctrine which they Taught was true. The Knowledge whereof at laſt, with the Fame of their Miracles, filled the whole World, as that Sound from Heaven and mighty ruſhing Wind filled the whole Houſe where they ſate. I am ſure the chief Prieſts complained betimes that the Apoſtles had filled all Jeruſalem with their Doctrines. Acts 5. 28.

7. The latter, viz. The fiery Cloven Tongues; the fierineſs of them intimates the ſearching, penetrating, melting and purifying Power of the Spirit; as their being Cloven or divided the Effect of the living word which accompanied their Preaching, which we may better call τὸν διαιρῶντα λόγον, than the Stoicks their meager Reaſon. For this is that which is ſharper than any two-edged Sword, piercing even to the dividing aſunder of Soul and Spirit, and of the Joynts and Marrow, and is a diſcerner of the Thoughts and Intents of the Heart; as may be obſerved at the Preaching of Peter's Sermon. Or, not to be altogether ſo Myſtical or Spiritual, διαμεριζόμεναι γλῶσσαι theſe divided or Cloven Tongues may be only an External Symbol of that inward Power given them to ſpeak and underſtand ſeveral Tongues, tho' they were never Taught them. Which was a Gift of very ſober and neceſſary uſe (as all the Miracles are that were done either by Chriſt or his Apoſtles) they being to Preach to Men of ſeveral Nations then ſojourning at Jeruſalem, and afterwards to Travel into ſeveral Countries to Convert Men to the Faith.

8. This is a ſolid account of all the Circumſtances of that great Miracle done partly upon, and partly by the Apoſtles, after Chriſt's Aſcenſion into Heaven: Which Divine Power ever after aſſiſted them in all their Travels and Labours in the Goſpel, as you may may ſee in the Acts. Where you ſhall find them not only endued with this miraculous Power themſelves, but by * Prayer and Impoſition of Hands conferring it upon others for the benefit of the Church: Where you ſhall ſee them * healing the Sick, making the * Lame to walk, * raiſing the Dead, * caſting out Devils, and doing over again all the moſt conſiderable Miracles of our Saviour; and ſome which he never did, as the ſpeaking with Tongues, and healing * by the mere ſhadow of their Bodies, which ſeems more wonderful then by the touching of the Hem of Chriſt's Garment. To which you may add what ſtrangely happened to them; as upon their Prayers and Devotions how the Houſe * ſhaked under them, as in an Earthquake, through the ſenſible preſence of the Divine Power attending them: Their being * Tranſported thro' the Air by the Hand of an Angel from one place to another: Their being viſited by * Angels in Priſon, who opened the Priſon Doors, and made the Fetters fall off from their Bodies of their own accord: The transfiguration of their countenances into an Angelical Glory; and the * appearance of Chriſt from Heaven to them in a ſplendour more bright and radiant then the Sun at mid-day, as it happened to Paul as he was Travelling to Damaſcus. The Credibility of which things, as alſo of the Reſurrection and Miracles of Chriſt, the Succeſs it ſelf does plainly argue.

* Acts 8. 15.
* Acts 5. 15.
* Acts 3. 6, 7.
* Acts 9. 40.
* Acts 5. 16.
* Acts 5. 15.
* Acts 4. 31.
* Acts 8. 39.
* Acts 5. 19. and ch. 12. v. 7, 8, 9, 10.
* Acts 6. 15.
* Acts 7. 55, 56. and ch. 9. ver. 3, 4.

9. For it ſeems utterly impoſſible that Chriſt, a Man cut ſhort of all accompliſhments that are plauſible to Fleſh and Blood, being neither Arm'd by the Power of Eloquence, the Knowledge of Philoſophy, the Authority and Honour of the World, nor the Advantages of Birth or Fortune; but on the contrary being diſadvantaged by leading a Life and offering himſelf an example of manners that are either ſcorn'd or hated by every natural Man, who was ſtill made more odious and contemptible by his ſuffering a ſhameful Death betwixt two groſs Malefactors; I ſay, if an high Hand from Heaven had not carried on the Affairs of Chriſtianity, that is, if Chriſt had not done ſome ſuch Miracles himſelf as are recorded, if he had not riſen from Dead, aſcended into Heaven, and thence powred forth his Spirit upon the Apoſtles, and enabled them to do ſuch wonderful Works as they did, * it had been utterly impoſſible that Chriſtianity could have had any ſuch Succeſs in the World as we ſee it has at this Day. So that the whole Hiſtory of Chriſt is very congruous and coherent, and ſuch as according to the nature of the thing ought to be whenever the Meſſias was to come into the World.

* See Book 7. chap. 13.

CHAP. XII.

1. Three main Effects of Chriſt his ſending the Paraclete, foretold by himſelf, John 16. When the Paraclete ſhall come, &c. 2. Grotius his Expoſition upon the Text. 3. The Ground of his Expoſition. 4. A Brief Indication of the Natural Senſe of the Text by the Author. 5. The Prophecy of Chriſt fulfilled, and acknowledged not only by Chriſtians but alſo Mahometans. 6. That the Subſtance of Mahometiſm is Moſes and Chriſt. Their zealous profeſſion of One God. 7. Their acknowledgment of Miracles done by Chriſt and his Apoſtles, and of the high priviledge conferred upon Chriſt. 8. What Advantage that Portion of Chriſtian Truth which they have embraced has on them, and what hopes there are of their full Converſion.

1. IT would be too tedious a buſineſs particularly to Proſecute that ample Succeſs that the Paſſion, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion of Chriſt and his Sending the Holy Ghoſt had in the World: But the moſt univerſal and fartheſt-ſpreading Effects thereof we cannot paſs by in ſilence; eſpecially thoſe three which himſelf foretells, John 16. That when the Paraclete ſhould come, he would convince the World concerning Sin, Righteouſneſs and Judgment.

Concerning Sin, becauſe they believe not on me.
Concerning Righteouſneſs, becauſe I go to the Father, and you ſee me no more.
Concerning Judgment, becauſe the Prince of this World is judged.

2. All which, as Grotius interprets the place in a Forenſal Senſe, is of a very large extenſion, and acknowledged as well by Turk as Chriſtian. For that Learned Expoſitor makes Chriſt to ſend the Spirit as an Advocate to plead his cauſe againſt the World, (and indeed the word Παράκλητος properly ſignifies ſo, and nothing elſe,) and thereby to convince the World, Firſt, of that great Crime of Infidelity, and of killing of their true Prophet, nay their expected Meſſias. This properly reſpects the Jews who crucified him: and they felt the Divine Vengeance for ſo heinous a Fact, their City being ſacked, their Temple demoliſhed, and themſelves ſcatterred and made Underlings in all places of the World.

Secondly, of the Equity and righteous dealing of the juſt God with Chriſt, who, becauſe he had ſuffered ſo wrongfully, made him a Compenſation, by making him a Partaker of his Heavenly Glory for the Reproach and Injury he bore upon the Earth.

Thirdly and laſtly, of Juſtice betwixt Party and Party; and that therefore as the Devil excited the Jews to put Chriſt to Death, ſo by way of Retaliation Chriſt ſhould put the Devil out of his preſent Dominion and Rule in the World, by the Deſtruction of Idolatry and the Worſhip of thoſe Apoſtate Spirits; tho' the τὸ ἀντιπεπονθὸς ſeems ſomething lame here, the Members being ſo heterogeneal one to another.

2. But the Expoſition will appear ſufficiently ingenious for all that, if we do but conſider what he ſets down for the ground of his Interpretation; That Sin, Righteouſneſs, and Judgment ἁμαρτία, δικαιοσυνὴ, κρίσις, anſwer to the Hebrew משפט צדק חטא. The firſt חטא ſignifying publica judicia de criminibus; but the other two, privata judicia, unum ex æquo & bono, which is צדק δικαιοσυνὴ, alterum certam ex lege formulam habens, which is משפט κρίσις. Which aſſuredly comprehends ſuch Laws as concern the Right of Poſſeſſion as well as that of Retaliation, which Grotius ſo ſpecially aims at in his citing Levit 24. 20. The Devil therefore being a meer Uſurper and having no Right to the Rule and Dominion of the World, the Action will lie againſt his Uſurpation, and thus the Interpretation will be unexceptionable. And that the Action is of this kind is plain, in that Chriſt, the Son of God is Heir of all things, as himſelf ſomewhere intimates, and the Apoſtle alſo in plain tetms * declares.

*Heb. 1. 2.

4. The Senſe therefore of the forecited Text in ſhort is this, That the Spirit, which is called the Paraclete or Advocate, when he comes ſhould convince the World of the Veracity of Chriſt, and the Infidelity and Cruelty of the Jews that crucified him who was a true Prophet, neither Deceiver nor deceived; and of the Equity of God that compenſated his Sufferings amongſt the Jews, by taking him to himſelf, and crowning him with immortal Glory; and of the Judgment of God againſt the Devil, *ὅτι ὁ ἄρχων τοῦ κόσμου τούτου κέκριται, that God has given Sentence againſt him already that he ſhall be ejected out of his uſurped Dominions, and that all the Pagan Forms of Worſhip ſhall be abrogated and deſtroy'd.

*John 16. 11.

5. This the Paraclete or Spirit of God coming upon the Apoſtles and aſſiſting them and the Church ſo miraculouſly for many Ages, has with ſuch undeniable Conviction made good, that not only all Chriſtendom is aſſured thereof, but that vaſt Empire of the Turks and all the Mahometans where-ever diſperſed in the World. So that after a manner the whole Earth is filled with the Fame and Belief thereof: which I thought worth the taking notice of, that this Succeſs may not ſeem leſs ample than it is.

6. For tho' the Mahometans are not Chriſtians but Pagans in too true a ſenſe, yet it is plain that much of the Letter of their Law is Moſes and Chriſt. And to the Confuſion of groſs Idolatry and Polytheiſm they profeſs One only God, Creator of Heaven and Earth; and their great Streſs of their Religion lies upon this main Article, with which they are ſo tranſported, that they ſpend a great deal of their time in their Moſco's in chanting out this one Truth, * La illa ilella, la illa ilella, that is, There is but one God, as Hiſtorians relate. But this is no more than the Jews believe, and perhaps not on ſo good Grounds: but they proceed further, as if they were ambitious to make out that broken Title that one gives them, who calls them Semichriſtianos Half-Chriſtians.

*See Chap. 16. Sect. 5. in the fifth Trumpet Viſion, where the Hypocriſie of their Zeal in this point is diſcovered.

7. For partly in their Alcoran, and partly in Zuna, it is recorded how Jeſus Chriſt, was conceived by the Holy Ghoſt, and ſo born of the Virgin Mary. That the Goſpel is the Way, the Light and Salvation of Men, and that they that obey it not ſhall be damned. That Chriſt knew the very Thoughts of Mens Hearts, that he raiſed the Dead, that he healed Men of incurable Diſeaſes, that he gave Sight to the Blind, and made the Dumb to ſpeak. That the Apoſtles of Chriſt, Mathew, Peter, and Paul, healed one Habid Anaiar of the Leproſie at Antioch, and raiſed the King's Daughter from the dead; as alſo gave Sight to a Child that was born blind. And laſtly three Pre-eminences the Alcoran gives to Chriſt, which it gives not to any other other Prophet, to Abraham, Moses, no nor Mahomet himself. The first is, That he was carried up to Heaven Body and Soul; where it is expresly added in Zuna, that he shall return from thence to judge the World with righteous Judgment. The second, That he should be called The Word of God. The third, That he should be called The Holy Spirit of God. These things you may read more at large in Johannes Andreas his Confusio Sectæ Mahometanæ, as also in others; out of whom you may also add, that the Turks have so venerable an Esteem of S. John's Gospel, that they wear it next their Bodies as an Amulet when they go to war to keep them from Gunshot.

See Johan. Andr. Confuſ. Sectæ Mahometanæ, cap. 11.

8. This I thought worth the noting, partly that that Honour which is due to Christ may not be given to Mahomet; of whom the best that can be said is only this, That he did not so utterly pervert and deprave the Mystery of the Gospel by either his Ignorance, political Tricks or fanatical Humours and Whimsies, but that there was so much of the Substance and Virtue thereof left, as being seconded with the Dint of the Sword, was able enough to hew down the more *grosse Heathenish Idolatry, chastise the disobedient and Hypocrital Christians, and ruine the external Dominion of the Devil in the World: and partly that we may discern what great Hopes there are that in due time, when the chief Scandals of Christendom are taken away, (they being so far prepared already in their reverend Opinion concerning our blessed Saviour) the whole Turkish Empire may of a sudden become true Christians; that which is vain and false among them having no better Prop than the foolish and idle Visions, false pretended Miracles and groundless Fables of a meer wily, phansiful and unclean Impostor; whenas the pure Christian Religion comprehended in the Gospel is so solid, sincere, and rational, that no Man that is Master of his Wits but may be throughly satisfied concerning the Truth thereof.

*See Chap. 16. sect. 5. in the vision of the fifth Trumpet.

CHAP. XIII.

1. The Triumph of the Divine Life not so large hitherto as the Overthrow of the external Empire of the Devil. 2. Her conspicuous Eminency in the Primitive times. 3. The real and cruel Martyrdoms of Christians under the Ten Persecutions, a Demonstration that their Resurrection is not an Allegory. 4. That to allegorize away that blessed Immortality promised in the Gospel is the greatest Blasphemy against Christ that can be imagined.

1. YOU see then how large the Success or Event of our Saviour's coming into the World is in reference to the external Overthrow of the Kingdom of the Prince of this World, that old Usurper over the Sons of Men. If you demand of me how great the Triumph of the Divine Life has been in all this Victory; I must answer, I could wish that it was greater than it is, that it had been larger and continued longer: but something has been done all this time that way too.

2. For Faith in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, and a firm Belief of a Life to come, and the Effect of this Faith which is the very Nature and Spirit of Christ dwelling in us, consisting of Purity, Humility, and Charity, this sound Constitution was very much in the Church in the Primitive Times, even then when they had no Succour nor Support from the Hands of Men; nay when they were cruelly handled by them: they chusing rather to be banish'd, imprisoned, tortur'd and put to any manner of Death, than to deny him who had redeemed them with his most precious Blood, and had prepared a place of Eternal Happiness for them with himself in Heaven.

3. Here Faith and the Divine Life was very conspicuously victorious and triumphant, in that in the Eyes of all the World it set at nought all the cruel Malice of the Devil and the Terror of Death it self in the most ghastly Vizzard he could put on; as you may see innumerable Examples in the Ten bloody Persecutions under the Heathen Emperours. Which History must needs make a Man abominate such light-headed and false-hearted Allegorists that would intercept the Hopes of a future Life by spiritualizing those Passages in Scripture that bear that Sense into a present Moral and Mystical Intepretation; as if the Gospel and the precious Promises therein contained, reached no further than this Life we now live upon Earth.

4. Which is the higheſt Reproach and Blaſphemy that can be invented againſt Chriſt Jeſus, as if he were rather a Betrayer than a Saviour of Mankind; and that he was more thirſty after humane Blood than thoſe Indian Gods we have ſpoke of, who were ſo laviſh thereof in their Sacrifices; and as if it were not Love and dear Compaſſion towards us that made him lay down his Life, but hatred and a ſpightful Plot of making Myriads of Men to be maſſacred and ſacrificed out of Affection to him that thus ſhould betray them. Wherefore whoſoever interprets the New Teſtament ſo as to ſhuffle off the Aſſurance of Reward and Puniſhment after the Death of the Body, is either an arrant Infidel or horrid Blaſphemer.

CHAP. XIV.

1. The Corruption of the Church upon the Chriſtian Religion becoming the Religion of the Empire. 2. That there did not ceaſe then to be a true and living Church, tho hid in the Wilderneſs. 3. That though the Divine Life was much under, yet the Perſon of our Saviour Chriſt, of the Virgin Mary, &c, were very richly honoured. 4. And the Apoſtles and Martyrs highly complemented according to the antient Guize of the Pagan Ceremonies. 5. The Condition of Chriſtianity ſince the general Apoſtacy compared to that of Una in the Deſart amongſt the Satyrs. 6. That though this has been the State of the Church very long, it will not be ſo always; and while it is ſo, yet the real Enemies of Chriſt do lick the Duſt of his Feet. 7. The mad Work thoſe Apes and Satyrs make with the Chriſtian Truth. 8. The great Degeneracy of Chriſtendom from the Precepts and Example of Chriſt in their Wars and Bloodſhed. 9. That though Providence has connived at this Pagan Chriſtianiſm for a while, he will not fail to reſtore his Church to its priſtine Purity at the laſt. 10. The full Proof of which Concluſion is too voluminous for this place.

1. WE have given a light Glance upon the Condition of the Primitive Church before Chriſtianity became the Religion of the Empire: what Change would be wrought then, a Man might diſcern out of the very Cauſes. For whenas not only the Fear of Perſecution was taken away, but great Honours and outward Advantages added to the Church, the very worſt and moſt Atheiſtical of the Pagans would be moſt forward to cloſe with the Chriſtian Religion; and if any of the Heathen ſtood out, it is not unlikely but they were ſuch as had moſt Conſcience, though in an erroneous Worſhip. So that the Net then drew up more Mud and Dirt than good Fiſhes. The Garden of God which had before nothing elſe but wholeſome Herbs and Flowers, was all over-run with Weeds. Or, if you will, the true Church which was before as conſpicuous as a City on a Hill, was now hid and diſperſed in the wide Wilderneſs of the Roman Empire, which though it bore the Name of Chriſtian, yet for Life and Manners was worſe than Pagan.

2. But yet not to make things leſs conſiderable than they were; Firſt, The true Chriſtian Church was, I ſay, but hid, not loſt, as it fares at this very Day. For ſhe is ſtill hid in the Wilderneſs, and like that Voice in the Wilderneſs complains and witneſſes againſt the beaſtly, ſenſual, and abominable Lives and ſalvage Dealings in that part of the World which is called Chriſtendom. For there always were and ſtill are in this great rude Maſs of Chriſtianity ſome that are truly regenerate and rightly form'd by the Hand of God into the lovely Image of Chriſt, who give witneſs of the loathſome and deteſtable Deviations of thoſe that ſo impudently and imperiouſly boaſt themſelves to be the only true Chriſtians, when in Truth they are not Chriſtians, at all, that is, no true Members of Chriſt, as having nothing at all of his Spirit, as their Works do evidently declare.

3. And Secondly, Though I muſt confeſs that the Divine Life it ſelf, as communicable to the Church, is very much under the Hatches ſince Chriſtianity and Political Intereſt went Hand in Hand; yet after the Church became ſo rich and pompous, they had laid out their Riches very much in Honour not only to our Saviour, in whom the Divine Life dwelt in a tranſcendent manner, but to his bleſſed Mother, and the holy Apoſtles and Martyrs, who were alſo great Examples of it. And being that theſe Generations were ſuch that God could expect no better of them, his Providence, I think, did wiſely permit that they might be ſo deeply engaged gaged in their external Homage to Christ and his most faithful Followers: that that might be fulfilled in some measure in the Martyrs also which was propheſied concerning Christ, Therefore I will divide him a Portion with the great, and he ſhall divide the Spoil with the ſtrong, becauſe he hath poured out his Soul unto Death. Isa. 53. 12. And therefore the Martyrs sharing so deeply in the Sufferings of Christ, were permitted also in a measure to partake of that Glory and Honour that is done to great Princes and Emperours after their Deceaſe; to have Images and Temples erected to their Name. This makes me not so much wonder at that Passage of Providence which allowed so much Virtue to the Bones of the Martyr Babylas once Bishop of Antioch, as to stop the Mouth of Apollo Daphneus, when Julian would have enticed him to open it by many a fat Sacrifice: To say nothing of several other memorable Miracles that were done by the Reliques of Saints and Martys in those times.

4. Hitherto therefore the Pagan World since they became Christians have been very religiously complemental according to the antient Guize of Paganism, devoutly cringing and courting with many sacred Rites and Ceremonies not only Christ, but the blessed Virgin and all the holy Martyrs and Confessors, very freely and forwardly bestowing upon them all external Reverence, consecrating Chappels and Days to their Honour and Memories: So that the personal Worship of the Divine Life as it is seated in Christ, in the blessed Virgin, in this or in that Saint or Martyr, is as punctually performed, as the Worship of those excellent Dowries of the Animal Life in antient Paganism, which they honoured in Belus, Bacchus, Ceres, Apollo, Venus, and other eminent Persons amongst the Heathens, who were great Gratifiers of the natural Life of Man.

5. Methinks * Spencer's description of Una's Entertainment by Satyrs in the Desart, does lively set out the condition of Christianity since the time that the Church of a Garden became a Wilderneſs. They danc'd and frisk'd and play'd about her, abounding with external Homages and Observances; but she could not inculcate any thing of that Divine Law of Life that she was to impart to them. The Representation is so lively, and the Verses so Musical, that it will not be tedious to recite some of the chief of them; as Stanza 11. where he makes the Satyrs to lay aside their rudeness and roughness as much as they could, to revive the dismayed Virgin after her great Distress.

* In his Fairy Queen, Book 1. Cant. 6.

Their frowning foreheads with rough Horns yclad,
And ruſtick horror all aſide they lay,
And gently grenning, ſhew a ſemblance glad
To comfort her, and fear to put away,
Their backward bent Knees teach her humbly to obay.

And then again in the following Stanza,

They, in Compaſſion to her tender Youth,
And wonder to her Beauty Soverain,
Are won with pity and unwonted ruth,
And all proſtrate upon the lowly Plain
Do kiſs her Feet, and fawn on her with count'nance fain.

XIII.

Their Hearts ſhe gueſſeth by their humble guiſe,
And yields her to extremity of time;
So from the ground ſhe fearleſs doth ariſe,
And walketh forth without ſuſpect of Crime.
They all, as glad as Birds of joyous Prime,
Thence lead her forth, about her Dancing round,
Shouting, and Singing all a Shepherds Rime,
And with green Branches ſtrowing all the Ground,
Do worſhip her, as Queen with Olive girlond Crown'd.

XIV.

XIV.

And all the way their merry Pipes they ſound,
That all the Woods with double Echoring,
And with their Horned Feet do wear the ground,
Leaping like wanton Kids in pleaſant Spring, &c.

But in all this alacrity and activity in their Ceremonies and Complemental obſervances, Una could beat nothing of the inward Law of Life into them, but all was ſpent in an outward Idolatrous flattery, as the Poet complains Stanza 19.

Glad of ſuch luck, the luckleſs lucky Maid
Did her content to pleaſe their feeble Eyes,
And long time with that Salvage People ſtay'd,
To gather breath in many miſeries:
During which time, her gentle Wit ſhe plies
To teach them Truth which worſhip her in vain,
And made her th' Image of Idolatries.
But when their bootleſs Zeal ſhe did reſtrain
From her own worſhip, they her Aſs would worſhip fain.

6. But tho' it has been thus ſo long, yet it ſeems incredible it ſhould be always ſo; and while it is as it is, yet the Divine Life is in its Perſonal Triumph. And now the Enemies of Chriſt even while they are ſuch, (and ſuch are all unregenerate Men, let them be called Chriſtians never ſo loudly) do lick the very duſt of his Feet, and they lout and lye proſtrate to the Names of thoſe Men whoſe Lives, if they were on the Earth again (they are ſo contrary to theirs) they would unreconcilably hate, and ſcorn their Perſons for their meanneſs, and tread them under Feet; nay it may be with more ſhame and cruelty then ever, make them ſuffer once again thoſe bloody Martyrdoms.

7. So that it is an uncouth Spectacle to conſider what ſtrange ridiculous Work theſe Satyrs, Monkeys and Baboons, (I mean the unregenerated Maſs of Mankind, who are enlivened with nothing but the mere Animal Life) have made theſe many hundred Years in the Wilderneſs, with the moſt precious Truth of the Goſpel; what Sophiſtical Knots and Nooſes, fruitleſs ſubtilties and niceties, what groſs contradictions and inconſiſtencies the Schoolmen and Polemical Divines have filled the World with; what needleſs and burdenſome Ceremonies, what enſnaring new-coined Articles, what ſetting up of ſelf-flattering Sects and Intereſts, what variouſly-carved Forms and new-fangled Curioſities have been contriv'd and ſhap'd out by either Superſtitious Churchmen or Carnal Politicians.

8. But if there were nothing worſe then this, tho' this be ill enough, the Scene would ſeem only Comical, in compariſon of what enſued: For at laſt the wretched Ape cuts his own Throat with the Shoo-makers Knife, and Chriſtendom lyes tumbling and wallowing, I know not for how many Ages together, in its own Blood. The reaſon of which is, that in this long buſtle for and great Oſtentation of an External Religion, the inward Life and Spirit of Chriſtianity which conſiſts in Humility, Charity and Purity, is left out, and Pride, Luſt and Covetouſneſs are the firſt movers in all our Actions: So that tho' we pretend to be for Chriſt, and are called by his Name, yet our Hearts and real Services are groſly Pagan; whilſt we Conſecrate our very Souls with all the Powers, Affections and Faculties of them to the worſt-titled Deities of the Heathen: And whereas we are ſtrictly and moſt expreſly commanded by our Saviour to love one another, as it were in deſpight, to ſhew what real Apoſtates we are to Paganiſm, we choſe rather to pour forth one anothers Blood as a Drink-offering to Mars, then keep that inviolable and indiſpenſable Precept of his, whom at the ſame time we profeſs to be our liege Lord and Soveraign.

9. Thus has it pleas'd that ever-watchful Eye of Providence to connive as it were a while at this Pagan Chriſtianiſm, as well as he did in former Ages at the Ancient Paganiſm. But aſſuredly it will be better, and all the Glorious Predictions of the Prophets concerning Chriſt, even in this World will not end in ſo tedious a Scene, where there is ſo little good, and ſuch a flood of Filth and Evil.

But

But the Spirit of the Lord will blow upon these dry Bones, and actuate these external Form of Religion with Life and Power, and the Scales will fall upon her Eyes, and that Load of scurf and ascititious foulness will fall from her Skin, and the Flesh shall be as of a tender Child, and she shall grow strong, healthful and irreprehensibly lovely to look upon. When these things come to pass, the Divine Life will be in her highest Triumph or Exaltation upon Earth; and this excellent State of the Church will continue for a very considerable time. * But the wicked shall again assault the just, and Christ visibly returning to judgment shall decide the controversy.

* Revel. 20. v. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, &c.

10. This is the truest and most faithful representation in general (so far as my Skill in Church-History or Prophecies will reach) that I can make of that Interval of time, betwixt Christ's powring forth of the Holy Ghost on his Apostles and his coming again to Judgment. But because it would be a voluminous business more particularly to make good what I have asserted, and that it is not so essential to the present purpose I have in Hand, I hold it not at all necessary to engage in any operose endeavours of demonstrating the Truth of the conclusion. I shall rather send him that doubts, to satisfy himself in the perusing of the Learned Writings of that incomparable Interpreter of Prophecies Mr. Joseph Mede: Whose proceedings are with that care and caution, with that clearness and strictness of reason, with that accuracy of judgment and unparallel'd modesty and calmness, that the study and enquiry into these matters, which had even grown odious and infamous by the wild and ridiculous miscarriages of hot Fanatick Spirits, has in my apprehension gained much Credit and Repute by the orderly and coherent methods and unexceptionable ratiocinations of this grave and venerable Person. Upon whose account I am not ashamed to profess, I think it clear both out of Daniel and the Apocalypse that the Scene of things in Christendom will be in due time very much changed, and that for the better.

And because there does nothing so much counterbalance the weight of Mr. Mede's Reasons as the Autority and Luster of that worthily-admired Name of the Learned Hugo Grotius, who has interpreted the Revelations to quite another Sense; (the ingenuities and prettinesses of whose expositions had almost imposed upon my self to a belief that there might be some such Sense also of the Revelation as he drives at) to make all clear I shall take the pains of exhibiting both to the view of the Reader. Who I hope will not take it ill that so Pious, so Learned and Judicious a Person as Mr. Mede, and that in a matter to which he may seem to be peculiarly selected and set apart to by God and Nature, to which he mainly applied himself with all possible Care, Seriousness and Devotion, should see further then Hugo Grotius, who has an ample Harvest of Praise from other performances, and who by reason of his Political Employments could not be so entirely vacant to the searching into so abstruse a Mystery.

CHAP. XV.

1. Grotius his Reasons against Days signifying Years in the Prophets, propounded and answered. 2. Demonstrations that Days do sometimes signify so many Years. 3. Mr. Mede's Opinion, That a new System of Prophecies from the first Epocha begins Chap. 10. v. 8. cleared and confirmed. 4. What is meant by the Three Days and an half that the Witnesses lye slain. 5. Of the Beast out of the bottomless Pit. 6. Of the First Resurrection. 7. The conclusion of the matter in Hand from the evident Truth of Mr. Mede's Synchronisms.

1. THE strongest Presumption that Grotius has against Mr. Mede's way is his confidence that Days never signify Years. Which if he could make good, it would utterly invalidate and make useless the whole frame of Mr. Mede's Apocalyptical Interpretations. But he affirms it with all boldness imaginable; * Dies etiam apud Prophetas dies sunt, non anni ut quidam somniant: And endeavours to prove it, and pretends he has done it very plainly, from Daniel 8. 14. And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred Days; then shall the Sanctuary be cleansed, compared with verse 16. And the Vision of the Evening and Morning which was told thee, is true, that is, saith he, has nothing in it obscure, but is clear and plain. From whence he further infers, That it is plain every where that Days have never any hidden meaning in them, but signifie signify merely Days, not Years. Which in my apprehension is not at all well argued by so Learned an Expositor. For tho' we should admit that true in this place signifies plain and clear without any Figure or Ænigme; it does not at all follow that where-ever Day is used, it must be in this usual and proper Sense. Which answer were solid, tho' the very Word יום or יוֹמַיִם were used here. But they are not, but the Text runs thus, עד ערב בקר אלפים, that is, unto two thousand Evenings-Mornings, &c. or two thousand νυχθήμερα. But elsewhere, as chap. 12. v. 11, 12. there ימים is put. And therefore it was a very groundless Inference to conclude, because where Day is so described by its natural Parts of Evening and Morning, there it signifies naturally and not figuratively, that therefore it should do so where it is not thus described. To which you may add, that the Angels telling Daniel, That this Vision of Evenings and Mornings, that is, of Days, is clear, doth plainly imply that the Visions of the Number of Days are sometimes not clear but obscure, and may signifie Years; otherwise this Intimation had been in vain; As truly the very numbring thus by Days also; whenas it had been more natural to have expressed the Prophecy by so many Years, if it had not been of set purpose to make the Prophesies of Daniel more obscure, and to hide them from such Eyes as the Wisdom of God thought fit, that they should not perceive their Meaning. This is the utmost that Grotius has to say against the expounding of Days by Years.

2. Let us see now what may be said for it. First, It is plain that the prophetical Descriptions of Time do sometimes affect certain Ambages and Obscurities to hide themselves in, which our Adversaries themselves cannot deny: Otherwise Daniel might have said more plainly, Three Years and a half, than * a Time and Times and half a Time. Wherefore why may not Years be signified by Days as well as Time and Times signifie Years, especially there being some handsome Analogy in the matter, they being both measured by a compleat Circuit of the Sun, the one annual, the other diurnal?

*Dan. 7. 25. & chap. 12. 7.

Again, we see plainly that God himself has de facto in several places of the Scripture made Days the compendious Representatives of Years. As Numb. 14. 34. Forty Days, each Day for a Year; and Ezekiel 4. 6. I have appointed thee each Day for a Year. To which you may add, That the Jewish Doctors of old took it up for a Principle to interpret Prophesies by; which reaches the Case very home, in reference to the Apocalypse, whose Author our Adversaries will acknowledge not to abhor from Cabalism.

Thirdly, I shall urge that very Text which Grotius has so strangely perverted to his own Sense, Daniel 8. 26. Where the Angel tells Daniel that the Vision of the Evening and the Morning is true or perspicuous and clear. Which most certainly is an Intimation to Daniel, that some Prophesies imparted to him, where the Time is numbred by Days, are not clear, but are to be looked upon as enigmatical and figurative. But here the Mention also of Evening and Morning shews plainly that natural Days or ordinary νυχθήμερα are to be understood, and yet the Angel puts in this Caution. Whereby it is still more evident that Days do ordinarily in Prophecy signifie Years.

† Fourthly, The little Horn, Dan. 7. that rules for a Time and Times and half a Time, it is evident that it is not Antiochus Epiphanes, because this little Horn is part of the Fourth Beast, namely the Roman; but Antiochus part of the Greek Empire. For it is clear from chap. 8. v. 21. that the great Horn being the first King, the four following Horns are of the same Kingdom; in the latter time whereof Antiochus Epiphanes rises up, as appears v. 23. These things are so plain that nothing can be plainer. Wherefore the little Horn in the Seventh Chapter is a part of the Roman Empire, a Power there whose Reign cannot be circumscribed within the Compass of Three Years and a half, but these Years must be resolved into 1260 Days, and these 1260 Days into so many Years, or no Sense can be made of the Prophesie. But this is done to our Hand in the Apocalyse, where the Woman in the Wilderness is said to abide there for * a Time and Times and half a Time as well as * 1260 Days. Which plainly shews the Warrantableness of this Solution.

*Chap. 12. 14.
*Ver. 6.

See Mr. Mede De Numeris Danielis.

Fifthly, Those Numbers of Daniel, chap. 12. v. 11, 12. namely, one thousand two hundred and ninety Days, and a thousand three hundred and five and thirty Days, they being so unapplicable to any thing in the Sense of Days, but so exactly pointing out the latter times in tne Sense of the Years, is a further Demonstration that Days sometimes signifie Years in the Prophetical Writings.

† where is the Proof that the Macedonian was not the 4th Empire? 1. The Assyrian. 2. the Median. 3. the Persian. 4. the Macedonian. And what a strange Prophecy that e confesso hourly here fulfilled were ours as obscure as before!

Sixthly,

Sixthly, It ſeems exceeedingly improbable, a ſingle Day being ſo inconſiderable a Space of time to tranſact thoſe things in that are propheſied of in Scripture, that the Spirit of God ſhould number out the Time by Days, when it might more compendiouſly be ſet down by Years; eſpecially theſe Pettineſſes being below the Divine Majeſty to catch at, and there being no Examples of Events that have been obſerved thus punctually to anſwer to a Day where Propheſies have been numbred by Days, that would have filled up any Number of Years. How unlikely then is it that half a Day* ſhould come into compute, as it does in the ſlain Witneſſes, if Days be meant, and not ſome greater Meaſures of Time? *Rev. 11. 9. 11.

Seventhly, It is manifeſt, and confeſſed of all Hands, That the Days of Daniel's Weeks are Years. Here Grotius would fain evade if he could, by feigning a peculiar Privilege of שבוע to ſignifie a Week of Years, unleſs there be the Mention of days added to determine the Senſe the other way: which makes me wonder that a Perſon otherwiſe ſo ingenuous ſhould vent ſo Groundleſs and falſe Suppoſitions. I dare ſay you can ſcarce believe me unleſs I produce his own Words, which are theſe; Ubi de dierum hebdomade agitur, ſolet adjici dierum nomen:* Whenas yet there are but two Inſtances of this Addition of ימים to שבוע, the one Daniel 10. v. 2, 3. which is done as uſual, but to add Light in all likelihood to the precedent Propheſie of the Weeks of Years, for Diſtinction ſake, and does imply that they would alſo naturally ſignifie Weeks of days. The other, Ezekiel 45. 21. where it is ימים שבעות and tranſlated ἑπτὰ ἡμέρας, as if they had read שבעה ſeven days, not, Weeks of days. But quite contrary to what he has pronounced, שבוע or Week, without any thing added to it, does always ſignifie a Week of days, unleſs in a Prophetical Scheme the days of the Week ſignifie Years, as it does here in Daniel. See Gen. 29. 27, 28. Exod. 34. v. 22. Levit. 12. v. 5. Numb. 28. v. 26. Deut. 16. 9, 10, 16. 2 Chron. 8. 13. Jer. 5. 24. In all theſe places שביע ſignifies a Week of days without ימים added to it. Nor is there any Example where it has ſuch an Addition but theſe two produced by himſelf, of which we have given an Account. * Grotius in Dan. 9. 24.

Eightly and laſtly, Mr. Mede's Synchroniſms are apodictically true to any one that has but a competency of Wit and Patience to peruſe them. But according to theſe Synchroniſms the continuance of the conculcation of the outward Court, the mournful Propheſies of the Witneſſes, the Woman in the Deſart, the ten-horned and two-horned Beaſts, the Sealed Servants of the Lamb, the Whore of Babylon, the Succeſſion of the firſt ſix Trumpets, the continuance, I ſay, of all theſe is Circumſcribed within the ſpace of Three Years and an half, if the 1260 Days be but Days and not Years, as Grotius would have it. Which is a thing impoſſible, eſpecially if we conſider that Beaſts are, in the Prophetical Scheme of Speech, Polities or Kingdoms, not Perſons, and therefore unconceivable to be ſo ſhort-lived as to laſt but Three Years and a half. To which you may add, That the chief matters of the Apocalypſe are comprehended within this Synchroniſm; and that it is a wonder that there is no mention of Years in all this Book, ſaving of the Millennium, but only of Months or Days and half a Day: Which is a ſhrewd Preſumption that the computation of Years is hidden under theſe Terms where they ſignify any definite time at all. Wherefore I think it is as clear as the Light, that Days in Prophecy do ſometimes ſignify Years. Nor ſee I any reaſon why Time may not as well as Things and Actions be figuratively expreſſed by the Prophets.

3. The greateſt Cavils that can be made againſt Mr. Mede's way, I conceive, are either againſt his dividing the Apocalypſe from the Fourth Chapter to the end of the Book into two Syſtems of Prophetical Viſions, the one containing the Fate of the Empire, the other of the Church, and both beginning from one Epocha; or elſe againſt his interpretation of the time of the killing of the two Witneſſes; or laſtly againſt his making the Beaſt out of the bottomleſs Pit (chap. 11.) the ſame with the Beaſt out of the Sea (chap. 13.)

The greateſt thing objected againſt the firſt is, That one of his chiefeſt Marks of the Beginning a new Series of Propheſies fails him. For whereas he argues from chap. 10. ver. 11. Δεῖ σε πάλιν προφητεῦσαι, that there is a παλινδρομία, a running over the ſame Space of time again and that à carceribus ad metam; and from v. 8. The Voice which I heard from Heaven ſpake unto me again; which he would parallel with chap. 1. v. 10. and with chap. 4. v. 1. the former whereof is the Beginning of the Propheſie of the Seven Churches, the latter of the Seven Seals: It is objected againſt the ſecond Mark, that it is defective, in that this Voice is not joined with the mentioning of a Trumpet as thoſe two to which he would parallel it are. I confeſs if the Mention of a Trumpet had been here joined, the Beginning of the Prophesie a-new had been notoriously plain and palpable. Indeed too plain for a Book of Prophesies that the Wisdom of God has used so much Artifice to obscure. But this half-Indication was enough to such as God had made fit (and thought the time seasonable) to unriddle the Mystery.

But methinks there are other Indications of the Beginning of a new System of Prophesies, that may in good measure compensate the Imperfectness of this. I shall but briefly intimate them. As First the extraordinary Majesty of that Angel that has this opened Book of Prophesies in his Hand; his Description being not unlike that of his that had the sealed Book, Rev. chap. 4. & 5. And then Secondly, this new Book of Prophesies seems naturally to imply a new System of Prophesies distinct in kind as well as in Volume; the one, suppose, containing the Affairs of the Empire, the other of the Church. Which things though different in Nature, yet runing parallel in time, it is reasonable to conceive that the second Book of Prophesies reaches up to the same Epocha with the first. Which in the Third place is further intimated by the Oath of the Angel who swears there shall be no more time, but that the Mystery of God shall be finished at the sounding of the seventh Trump. Which pronouncing that there will be no more time, certainly is meant of the Time
Rev. 10. 6, 7. and Times and half a Time which shall then be expired with the the sixth Trumpet, and which was pointed at by Daniel the Servant and Prophet of God. Which is the reason of the adding of those Words, as he has declared to his Servants the Prophets. And lastly, that you may be still more sure that the Propheſie begins again from the first Epocha, there is not only this more light and general Mention of the verse 7. Seventh Trumpet, which is the last Period of the sealed Book, but also a Distribu-
* verse 3. chap. 8. 1, 2. tion of it into Seven Thunders, as there was of the Seventh Seal* into Seven Trumpets. And this mighty and illustrious Angel, who, though he be not one of the another Angel.* Seven properly so called (and here is only said to be * ἄλλον ἄγγελον) yet he immediately succeeding the Sixth, is in some sort the Seventh, and may well sustain the Person of the Seventh for this Bout, he seeming also to continue his roaring all the time the seven Thunders utter their Voices. The last of which it's likely may be Thunder properly so called, namely that final Conflagration of the World and the setting the Earth on fire by Thunder and Lightning. And surely when the Propheſies of the Seals have reached to this last Catastrophe, he must be very scrupulous that will make any doubt but that the Propheſies of the opened Book begin again from the first Epocha of the Revelation.

To all which you may add, That Mr. Mede's Synchronisms do not depend upon this Hypothesis, but on the contrary, prove by undeniable Evidence that it is more than an Hypothesis, even a necessary Truth resulting from the Demonstration of the said Synchronisms.

4. As for the three days and an half that the Witnesses are said to lie slain, there
Rev. 11. 9, 11. are scarce any now so ignorant as not to be ashamed to conceit these days to be natural days, and these witnesses to be any two particular men. But the Objection is against them that will acknowledge them to be three Years and a half, as Mr. Mede does, how it can be likely that at the very last Gasp of the Power of the Beast, the truest and most Apostolick Christians should be in worse Plight than ever before. But to this I answer, That the Truth of Mr. Mede's Synchronisms does not at all depend upon this, nor is his Conjecture so impossible to be true.

But I must confess, I think there is still a better way of answering, namely, That these three days and an half are the same that a time and times and half a time, that is, three times and a half. For it is unquestionable but that יום often signifies no more than χρόνος or καιρός. Now that it should signifie so here, (besides the Improbability of an Effect answerable to the other Interpretation, or that the Witnesses should be otherwise slain than they have been often or for a long time together) that Mention of half a day answering to half a time, fairly invites to believe; it being also unlikely that Providence would affect the Curiosity of counting by half a year, a thing not to be sampled in all Divine Prophesies. These three days and an half therefore are first to be changed into three times and an half, and then these three times and an half into three years and an half, and these three years and an half into 1260 Prophetick days. Which Ambages and Circuits are not at all improbable, if we consider what studied Concealments and Obscurities there are in this Book of the Apocalypse, as particularly in the Number of the Beast, and of the new Jerusalem, upon which we shall touch a little anon. To say nothing of a main Usefulness of these three days and an half to determine the true Number of a time and times. For how can we be aſſured how many times are deſigned thereby, eſpecially it being עדנין in Daniel, which is the plural Number, not the dual, and therefore bids fair to be more than two times, at leaſt three? Whence it would be four times and an half. But three days and an half correct or prevent the Miſtake, by fixing theſe time and times and half a time to three times and a half. Which I confeſs I do little doubt but that it is the true meaning of the Myſtery.

and

Nor does their being ſlain * ὅταν τελέσωσιν, at all prejudice our Interpretation. For it is not well rendred, when they ſhall have finiſhed, nor yet need be rendred, while they are making an end of their Witneſſings, as if this ſhould happen at the latter end of it; but may very warrantably be expounded dum peragunt, while they are performing this Office of witneſſing from the beginning of the 1260 Days to the end thereof. Nor yet is that a real but ſeeming Abſurdity that this Interpretation brings along with it, as if the Witneſſes could propheſie while their Carcaſſes lie dead in the Streets. For it is plain that in that ſenſe they are ſaid to be dead, they may propheſie in Sackcloth, nay they will neceſſarily do ſo, I mean perform their witneſſing with Sadneſs and Mourning. For their death is nothing elſe but a Political death, their want of Power and Rule in the World. For ſuch is their Reſurrection, namely Political, they being raiſed to Honour and Government, as Mr. Mede himſelf acknowledgeth. Wherefore there is no Abſurdity neither in the inward Meaning nor outward Cortex of this Propheſie. *Revel. 11. 7.

For the inward Meaning is ſuch as I have told you: And the outward Cortex framed with very graceful Artifice, like that in the Image of Nebuchadnezzar, where meerly for the decorum of the Type, the whole Image is repreſented as ſtanding and ſtruck upon the Legs, whenas yet that which was ſignified by the Head, by the Breaſt and Arms, and by the Belly and Thighs, to wit, the Babylonian, Perſian, and Greek Monarchies were paſſed away. So for the like decorum in this Type of the Witneſſes, if not for Neceſſity, to avoid a ſeeming groſs Incogruity, that the Witneſſes might not be ſaid to propheſie while their Bodies lay dead in the Streets; the time of their Death, which really pervades the whole 1260 days, is concealed under and contracted into theſe three days and an half, and made not to appear, where in the things ſignified it is; as thoſe Parts of the Image were repreſented as ſtanding, when the things that they ſignified ceaſed to be. Which Scheme is not at all more hard in the one than in the other, and in this Type of the Witneſſes more uſeful and neceſſary.

5. Concerning the Sameneſs of the Beaſt out of the Sea* with the Beaſt out of the bottomleſs Pit*, there could have been no Scruple, if Tranſlators had interpreted ἐκ δ ἀβύσσε out of the Sea, as it is very well capable, ἄβυσσος and θάλασσα ſignifying the ſame very often in Scripture; as Job 38. 30. and chap. 41. 23. ἀναζεῖ ἄβυσσον ὡσπερ χαλκεῖον· And Pſalm 105 v. 10. ὡδήγησεν αὐτὸς ἐν ἀβύσσῳ ὡς ἐν ἐρήμῳ. As alſo Iſa. 63. 13. Jon. 2. 6. and other places. *Rev. 11. 7. *Rev. 13. 1.

Wherefore the Wiſdom of God thought good to vary the Phraſe here, only for Concealment; as this whole Book of Propheſies is beſet with many purpoſed, though not invincible, Obſcurities and Difficulties, to keep this Treaſure hid till the time appointed. Or it may be the uſing of the Word ἄβυσσος here in the ſtead of θάλασσα might be not to determine the Senſe to the ten horned Beaſt, but to give at leaſt a Liberty of interpreting it alſo of the two horned contemporary with him.

6. But in no Aſpect does this Book of the Apocalyſe look ſo hopeleſs and diſcouraging as in that of the firſt Reſurrection, chap. 20. But withal it is to be noted, there is no Difficulty here but ſuch as will at leaſt equally urge thoſe that begin the Millennium at Conſtantine's time: So that this can be no Prejudice to Mr. Mede's Interpretations and Synchroniſms. For whether we will go the Allegorical way with ſome, and underſtand this firſt Reſurrection in a Political Senſe like that of the Witneſſes, this way is better accommodated to Mr. Mede's Synchroniſms than to the other Hypotheſis. Nor were it any great Inconvenience to admit it as true, thoſe Phraſes which at laſt will have a Literal fulfilling, being often uſed in a Figurative; as we may obſerve in the Lake of Fire, ſome Deſcriptions of God's coming to particular Judgments, the ſix Thunders, and the like: all which Expreſſions will have at laſt a Literal and Phyſical Completion.

But though the Figurative Senſe of Reſurrection may be paſſable and tolerable in this place, yet I muſt confeſs I dare not avouch it to be wholly true. My Reaſons ſhall be ſuggeſted in the Expoſition of the Text, which runs thus. And I ſaw Thrones, and they ſate upon them, and Judgment was given unto them: and I ſaw the Souls of them that were beheaded for the Witneſs of Jeſus, and for the Word of God,

God, and which had not worſhipped the Beaſt, neither his Image, neither had received his Mark upon their Foreheads or in their Hands; and they lived and reigned with Chriſt a thouſand Years. But the reſt of the dead lived not again unnil the thouſand Years were finiſhed. This is the firſt Reſurrection. Bleſſed and holy is he that hath part in the firſt Reſurrection, on ſuch the ſecond Death hath no Power, but they ſhall be Prieſts of God and of Chriſt and ſhall reign with him a thouſand years.

There was never any Book penned with that Artifice as this of the Apocalyſe as if every Word were weighed in a Balance before it was ſet down; which is manifeſt out of other Places as well as this. In which I conceive a double Deſign is aimed at, a Prediction of a proper Reſurrection of the Witneſſes to the Truth by their Deaths, and of a Political Reſurrection to the true and Apoſtolical Church that does ſurvive upon Earth. The former are οἱ πεπελεκισμένοι, the latter thoſe that worſhipped not the Beaſt, &c. which if they were not diſtinct from the other, it had been better to have omitted καὶ, and to have read οἵτινες δὲ προσεκύνησαν or τοὺς μὴ προσκυνησάντων, &c. Wherefore this is the firſt Intimation that there are two Orders of Men there ſet down, The one that ſuffered Death for the Cauſe of the Goſpel; The other that are ſtill alive, but reſolute Oppoſers of the Beaſt. But there is alſo a ſecond Hint in the following Words, καὶ ἔζησαν καὶ ἐβασίλευσαν, They lived and reigned, The Spirit of God ſeems on ſet purpoſe to make choice of ἔζησαν, rather than ἀνέζησαν, that he might not bear too hard toward the Senſe of a literal Reſurrection, and ſo urge the Reader too forcibly to underſtand both theſe Orders above diſtinguiſhed to be Candidates of a real and literal Reſurrection at this time. And therefore he uſes ἔζησαν, which in reference to the πεπελεκισμένοι will naturally imply a literal Reſurrection; and in reference to the other, no literal Reſurrection, (they being not ſuppoſed naturally dead,) but meerly living upon the Earth and reigning there with Chriſt, which is their moral and political Life and Reſurrection. The πεπελεκισμένοι ſhall reign with Chriſt in Heaven, and thoſe other with Chriſt on Earth, he being univerſal Prince over both Churches: and therefore neither Heaven nor Earth is here mentioned, that the Senſe may be accommodated to either the reigning with Chriſt in Heaven or in Earth, according to the diſtinct Capacities of the Perſons. And the like Caution is uſed in the Prefiguration of the Time; of which there is no Neceſſity to conceit that it ſignifies juſt a thouſand years literally, but that it ſignifies at leaſt a thouſand years, and certainly not more than there are Days in that thouſand, nor in likelihood near ſo many. But the Signification is rather Symbolical, as the ten Days are, chap. 2. v. 10. And ye ſhall have the Tribulation of ten Days, that is, the utmoſt Extent of Tribulation, beyond which there is nothing further, as there is no Number beyond Ten: By which therefore muſt be meant Death. And that is the Reaſon why preſently is added, Be thou faithful unto Death, and I will give thee the Crown of Life. So this thouſand years upon Earth is a Symbol of the Churches ſtable Duration to the End of the World, that there ſhall no Polity Flouriſh beyond it; it being a Cube whoſe Root is Ten. And the Application of it to the reigning of the Children of the Reſurrection with Chriſt in Heaven, diſcovers the unſhaken Stability and endleſs Duration of that celeſtial Kingdom alſo, beyond which abſolntely there is nothing at all.

It means the very extreamest Decemdiecum is used even in Terence for a very short time, as we say, a Days' wonder.

But the reſt of the dead οὐκ ἀνέζησαν, lived not again. The uſing of ἀνέζησαν here and not ἔζησαν has plainly reſpect to the πεπελεκισμένοι, and intimates that their Reſurrection was real and literal, to which others ſhould not attain till after the thouſand years upon Earth. After which it is plainly ſaid, that there is a general Reſurrection, and that all the dead do riſe (ver. 12, 13, 14.) Wherefore this general Reſurrection being literal and real, it is too too harſh and violent to underſtand this firſt Reſurrection mentioned in this fifth Verſe to be only Figurative and Myſtical. But underſtanding it literally, that which follows has a wondeful natural and eaſie Senſe. Bleſſed and holy is he that has part in the firſt Reſurrection (which he ſpeaks thus in the ſingular Number, one would think, on purpoſe to keep Men off from conceiting he means it of the ſucceſſive Body of the Church during the thouſand years) ὅτι τούτων ὁ δεύτερος ὁ θάνατος, upon theſe the ſecond death has no Power, namely, the Lake of Fire (ver. 14.) into which Hades or the whole Region of Mortality is caſt, the Earth being all on Fire. But bleſſed are thoſe that have Part in the firſt Reſurrection, for they are ſped already and ſafe, having obtained thoſe celeſtial Bodies that do certainly exempt them from this Fate. For theſe and all ſuch as God ſhall afterward make Partakers of this bleſſed kind of Reſurrection, are naturally free from the Reach of the ſecond Death: But they ſhall be Prieſts of God and of Chriſt, Chriſt, and reign with him, not * τὰ χίλια ἔτη, but for Sureneſs and for Diſtinction ſake, ſimply, * χίλια ἔτη that is, They ſhall be holy, ſacred, and Divine Perſons, and live with Chriſt in his immutable and everlaſting Kingdom in Heaven for ever and ever.

*the thouſand years upon Earth.
* thouſands of years never to be ended.

This I conceive to be the moſt eaſie and natural Senſe of this place, and that the Perſonal Reign of Chriſt upon Earth and of his holy Martyrs is a very raſh and groundleſs, and unſafe Conceit, fit for nothing but heat and tumult both of Fancy and Action. Nor do I think it neceſſary that the Sons of this firſt Reſurrection ſhould at all appear to us, their celeſtial Bodies, into which they are vivificated, being naturally inviſible, and therefore a kind of Miracle for us to ſee them, and no more neceſſary than the exhibiting thoſe Souls to view which Chriſt carried to Heaven in triumph after his Reſurrection; which yet he did not exhibit to the Sight of the World. And if he do here, I can imagine no better end than that of Mr. Mede's, that it may be for a Sign or Beckening to the Jews, to help on their Converſion: but I can affirm nothing of theſe things. Only I am well aſſured that if Chriſtenddom were once well purged of all her Idolatries, fooliſh and contradictious Opinions, and wicked Practiſes, it would be a very great Miracle if the Jews could be kept off from being converted.

7. Wherefore in brief to conclude, ſeeing the Truth of Mr. Med's Synchroniſms, as far as reſpects this preſent Subject, is ſo apodictical, and that there is nothing material to be alledged againſt them, and that the Numbers of Days and Months there mentioned are of neceſſity to be interpreted Years, and that according to this Hypotheſis there can be no other Senſe of the Woman in the Wilderneſs, of Babylon the great City, of the two-horned Beaſt, and the ten-horned Beaſt, &c. than what Mr. Mede hath given; it is manifeſt that the Church of Chriſt would be lapſed into a degenerate Condition for 1260 years: and as evident that there will be a Recovery out of this Lapſe, by reaſon that there has been yet no room for the promiſed Millenium, Perſecution dogging the Church till Conſtantine's time, after which the 1260 Days were to ſucceed, and therefore the Millenium is yet to come. As appears further in that it is Synchronal to the Seventh Trumpet, and that the * Reſurrection of the Witneſſes is after their lying dead either all the 1260 Days, or at leaſt the laſt three days and an half; in that the Marriage of the Lamb* commences from the burning of Babylon, and the * Company of Palm-bearers from their Victory over the perſecuting Beaſt. Theſe things are ſo plain that they are not worth inſiſting upon.

*Rev. 11. 11, 12.
*Chap. 19.
*Chap. 7. 9.

And it is a great Privilege of this Synchronical Architecture of Mr. Mede, that it is not built upon any Hypotheſis but the innate Characters of the Apocalyptical Viſions themſelves; whenas Grotius his way depends ſo on the Chronology of the writing of the Apocalypſe, that unleſs John received theſe Revelations in Claudius his time, (which yet is againſt the common Current of all, both antient and modern Writers) the fabrick of his Expoſitions falls to the Ground. To which you may add, that he has no Guide nor Clue at all in this prophetick Labyrinth, no not ſo much as that obvions, but fallible one, the Order of the Propheſies as they lie; but it is forced ſometimes to go back, as he fancieth himſelf able to apply his Hiſtorical Materials. So that he has indeed no Guide at all from the Apocalypſe it ſelf; whenas Mr. Mede is directed and limited by the demonſtrative Law of thoſe innate Synchroniſms he has gathered. Of whoſe Truth this may be one general After-ratification, that the things that are found to be Synchronical, have alſo a natural Connexion and Complication one with another, as he that but caſts his Eye upon his Scheme of Synchroniſms, and conſiders the Natures of things will eaſily deprehend.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVI.

1. Of the Four Beasts about the Throne of Majesty described before the Prophesie of the Seals. 2. Of the first six Seals according to Grotius, 3. Of the first six Seals according to Mr. Mede. 4. Of the inward Court, and the Fight of Michael with the Dragon, according to Grotius and Mr. Mede. 5. Of the Vision of the seven Trumpets. 6. The near Cognation and Colligation of those seven Synchronals that are contemporary to the six first Trumpets. 7. The Mistakes and Defects in Grotius his Interpretations of those Synchronals. 8. Of the Number of the Beast. 9. Of the Synchronals contemporary to the last Trumpet. 10. The Necessity of the Guidance of such Synchronisms as are taken from the Visions themselves, inferred from Grotius his Errours and Mistakes who had the want of them. The Author's Apology for preferring Mr. Mede's way before Grotius's, with an Intimation of his own Design in intermedling with these Matters.

1. BUT for further Conviction of the Excellency of Mr. Mede's way above that of Grotius's, I shall compare some of their main Interpretations. For to meddle with all would be too tedious and voluminous; but to give a Specimen in some, very commodious, if not necessary. First therefore, In the first six Seals, I may add also in the first six Trumpets, Grotius fixes the Scene of all these Visions in Judea, and ends them with the sacking of the City. Of which in general it is to be noted, That his Applications are too small and petty usually for these Prophesies; and that the Prophesies themselves, if they had no other Meaning, might very well have been spared; whatever is needful in them to the Church having before more plainly been predicted by the Mouth of our blessed Saviour, and therefore not likely to fill so great a part of the Apocalypse by their more obscure Prefigurations. But we will descend also to their particular Weaknesses and Inconcinnities; and first of the Seals, with the Session of Majesty prefixed before them.

Rev. 4. Where Grotius makes the Four Beasts, the Lion, Calf, Man, and Eagle, to be Peter, James, Mathew, and Paul. Which besides that in general it is a Figment at pleasure without ground, the Applications I think are not so congruous. For why should Peter, who out of Fear denied his Master, be a Lion more than Paul, whose Heat assuredly was rather greater than the others? And why Paul an Eagle rather than a Calf, who certainly laboured like an Ox in the Ministry, and compares himself to one that treadeth out the Corn, 1 Cor. 9. 9? And though he took long Journies, yet he did not fly in the Air, or go faster by Land or Water than other Travellers did. And why should Mathew be a Man more than all the rest, or rather than James, the Brother of Jesus who was peculiarly styled the Son of Man?

Wherefore Mr. Mede's account seems far more solid, as having an acknowledged ground, the order of the Camp of Israel, which was distributed into four Parts, each Part being under a Standard or Ensign: those that lay on the East, of a Lion; on the West, of an Ox; on the South, of a Man; and on the North, of an Eagle. So that this glorious Session of the divine Majesty is set out by the Order of the Israelitish Camp, where in the midst was the Tabernacle as the Throne of God, and about it the Tribes of Israel so disposed as I have intimated. Which is infinitely a more solid Account than that of Grotius, as you shall more distinctly understand in the opening the four first Seals, whose Applications are admirably fit to each Beast in Mr. Mede's way, but very frigid and faint in Grotius's. For he thinks it reason enough

*Rev. 6. 1, 2. of the Lion, that is, Peter, his calling to see the Rider of the White-Horse*, because Peter was the first that preached the Gospel, and therefore he speaks first here. Whenas it does not appear he spake first of those that spake the unknown Tongues so fast, Acts 2. who questionless preached the Gospel in them.

2. That this Rider of the White-Horse is Christ, they both agree in; but why the first Beast should be the Præco before this Sight, Mr. Mede's Reasons are far more satisfactory, as you shall hear anon. The Præco of the Rider of the Red-*

*Verse 3, 4. Horse, he makes Mathew, because it is written Matt. 24. 7. Nation shall rise up against Nation, and Kingdom against Kingdom. But this is not Mathew's Prophesie but our Saviour's. The Vision he fancieth fulfilled in the War betwixt the Beræans and Philadelphians, but names no distinct time, nor Prince that should be Rider of this red Horse.

The

The Præco of the Rider of the Black Horſe* he makes Paul, becauſe Agabus foretold him this Famine which he fancieth ſignified here. But then Agabus ſhould have rather been the Beaſt than Paul. Beſide that, Agabus told other Chriſtians as well as him of it. The fulfilling of this Viſion, according to him, was in the Reign of Claudius. *Verſe 5.

The Præco of the Rider of the Pale-Horſe* he makes James, becauſe he threatens rich Men with Death, chap. 5. But himſelf acknowledges that by Death here is meant Plague and Peſtilence, whenas that Menace in James is War and Slaughter, the taking and burning Jeruſalem by Fire; as himſelf alſo interprets the third Verſe of that Chapter. You ſee by what ſmall Strings the Applications of theſe four Beaſts are tyed to theſe four Viſions hitherto, to omit what is very inconcinne, the breaking the Order they were firſt named in, (chap. 4. ver. 7.) the firſt a Lion, the ſecond an Oxe, the third a Man, and the fourth an Eagle. Which ſhould have anſwered to the firſt, ſecond, third, and fourth Seals without any miſplacing; whenas the ſecond Beaſt is here applied to the fourth Seal, the third to the ſecond, and the fourth to the third. * Verſe 8.

The *Fifth Seal he interprets of the Revenge of the Blood of Martyrs, as Mr. Mede does, but reſtrains the Viſion to Stephen and James, and ſome few elſe he knows not who: and by this means leaves no Viſion for the ten bloody Perſecutions which were more than ten thouſand times more conſiderable than what he aims at. *Rev. 6. 9.

The *Sixth Seal, which mentions a great Earthquake, the Eclipſe of Sun and Moon, the falling of the Stars, &c. he interprets literally of ſuch Prodigies, quite againſt the way of prophetick Interpretation, and without the Application of Hiſtory to countenance it. Such is the Inconcinnity and Inſignificancy of Grotius his interpreting of the Six Seals: which is quite otherwiſe in Mr. Mede.

3. For firſt the Application of the four Beaſts to the four Seals is both orderly and very proper and articulate. For the Lion on the Eaſt ſide of the Iſraelitiſh Camp is applied to Chriſt the Prince from the Eaſt, in more ſenſes than I will inſiſt upon, they being ordinary and obvious. Beſide that, the Nature of a Lion is ſutable to the thing ſignified in the Viſion, to wit Victory to him on the White-Horſe. And the like in the reſt. For ſo the Oxe on the Weſt ſide of the Camp is applied to Trajan on the Weſt; the Man on the South ſide, to Septimius from the South; and the Eagle on the North ſide, to Maximinus from the North. The Natures alſo of the Viſions are ſutable to the things that came to paſs under thoſe Emperours. The mighty Slaughters under Trajan and his Succeſſour Adrian are indigitated by the Oxe. The Exactneſs of adminiſtring Juſtice and careful Proviſion of Septimius and Alexander Severus, by a Man, to whom numbring and meaſuring, and the Adminiſtration of Juſtice is ſo proper. The extraordinary raging of the Famine, Sword, and Peſtilence under Maximinus, by the carnivorous Eagle that feeds upon dead Carcaſſes. *Verſe 12.

In brief, the meaning of the firſt ſix Seals is this: That Prince of unſpotted Righteouſneſs, the Rider of the White Horſe, with his Arrow and his Bow in his Hand, aims at ſomething of high Importance, (and it is no leſs than what he promiſed his Followers at the loweſt Ebbe, Fear not, little Flock, for it is your Father's good Pleaſure to give you the Kingdom:) and he hits the Mark in the ſixth Seal, where the Pagan Empire of the Devil is ſhattered to the Purpoſe by Conſtantine's turning Chriſtian. But to adorn the Courſe of time till then by ſome prophetick Remarks, the Riders of the red, black, and pale Horſes are brought in: as alſo moſt concerningly the Cry of the Souls of the Martyrs under the Altar, whereby is denoted eſpecially the Reign of Diocletian and that ten years unparallel'd Perſecution then commencing. Which fifth Seal, the reſcuing of the Empire into the Hands of Chriſt by the Subverſion of the Pagan Powers doth immediately ſucceed, and is the matter of the ſixth Seal figured out by proper prophetical Expreſſions. So that all things in Mr. Mede's way as they are eaſie, natural, and diſtinct, ſo are they very weighty and worthy the Spirit of God and his holy Prophets to predict. Luke 12. 32.

Nor has Grotius ſo much as any ſeeming Advantage of him in any thing, unleſs in the interpreting of the Rider of the black-Horſe. Which, if Hiſtory would have complyed, Mr. Mede could have been content to have interpreted of Famine alſo. But in my Apprehenſion nothing can be more ſignificant of that which Mr. Mede applys it to than this Viſion is. For what Colour is more ſignificant of the Severity of Juſtice than black, whether we look upon the Temper of the Spirit wherein it reſides, which a grave, ſad, rigid Melancholy; or the Execution thereof in criminal minal Matters, which is Death, whoſe mournful Emblem is black? The black-Horſe

Revel. 6. 6. therefore, with the pair of balances, argues the Rider ſeverely juſt, frugal and provident, and one that will have a ſpecial Care, 1. That if one Chœnix of Wheat be ſold for a Penny, that three of Barley ſhall be ſold for a Penny. 2. That Men ſhall live by their honeſt Labours, and not by Theft and Rapine. For Chœnix ſignifies Ἡμεροτροφὶς, the Food for a Day, and Denarius the Wages for a day's Labour. 3. That there ſhall be no Stealing nor robbing (but buying by Meaſure,) though it ſhould be ſo hard a time that their Day-labour will but find them Food. 4. He will provide that they ſhall have at leaſt a Chœnix for a Penny, that the Price of Bread-Corn and neceſſary Victuals may not exceed a Day's Wages. And ſo of Wine and Oyl he will take heed there be no Fraud in buying and ſelling there neither, nor any Spoil or Waſte by the unruly Soldiery.

4. I ſhould now paſs to the Trumpets, but I will rather deal with thoſe Viſions
*Revel. 12. 7. firſt that are Synchronal to the time of theſe Six Seals. And that is the Fight of* *Rev. 11. 1. Michael with the ſeven-headed Dragon; and the Temple and Altar of God that are Symmetral* or commenſurable to the Angels meaſure. Mr. Mede interprets this Fight of the ſeven-headed Dragon and Michael, the Conflict of the Church of Chriſt with the Pagan Cruelty till Conſtantine's and Theodoſius's times; which therefore as it is Synchronal, ſo has it alſo a great Cognation with the Viſions of the ſix Seals. For the Archer on the White-Horſe aims at that Effect all the time of this bloody Battel, which he hits or reaches in the Completion of the ſixth Seal.

But Grotius refers the Viſion to Simon Magus and Peter, who brought him
*Rev. 12. 10. down headlong out of the Air by his Prayers, at which he ſuppoſes *that Acclamation of the Angels, who were the Spectators of this Cacomagical Funambulo, and beheld him out of the Windows of Heaven while he tumbled down to the Ground. But what a petty and ludicrous Buſineſs is this in reſpect of that Effect comprized in the ſixth Seal, which is both the Iſſue of this Battle and Mark the Archer on the White-Horſe aimed at by all the Labours and Patience of his Saints?

*Rev. 11. 1,2. That of the Temple of God or the inward Court of the Temple, Grotius expounds only to this ſenſe, That it is thus meaſured, to ſignifie that Adrian ſhould not build upon it, tho' he did upon the Ground about it, and called the City Ælia, after his own Name. But he brings no expreſs Proof that the inward Court was not built upon; nor, if it were not, was it a thing worth Divine Propheſie taking notice of: nor is there any likelihood that Providence regarded the place ſo which God had utterly rejected, and * hindred
*See Book 7. ch. 9. ſect. 10. the rebuilding of it by Fire breaking from the Foundation. Certainly ſo Divine a Propheſie as this of the Apocalypſe looks not at ſuch petty Matters as theſe. Beſides the Angel's bidding John meaſure not only the Temple and Altar, but alſo the Men that worſhipped therein, plainly intimates that there was another kind of Meaning in the thing than Grotius ſought after, but is certainly that which Mr. Mede has found, namely, that this inward Court that is meaſured ſignifies the pure Chriſtian Church before it was adulterated by a kind of Chriſtian-Paganiſm. Which Condition alſo of the Church has a plain Cognation with other things Synchronal, as
*Rev. 12. 11. their *reſolute oppoſing the Dragon, and being ſo ſerious in their Religion that they preferred it before their own Lives.

*Rev. 8. 7. 5. We proceed now to the Trumpets. That Viſion of the *Firſt Trumpet, Hail and Fire mingled with Blood, Grotius (quite out of the road of prophetick Expoſition) inteprets to a moral Senſe of Hardneſs of Heart and bloody Anger, which he applys to the Jews. Whenas Hail-ſtones and Fire are ſymbols of hoſtile Vengeance executed upon others, not of Anger burning and conſuming in ones ſelf; and therefore theſe Hail-ſtones and Fire are ſaid to do Execution upon the Trees and Graſs. Wherefore Mr. Mede does more fitly apply it to the Infeſtation of the Roman Empire from the year 395. to 406. partly by Alaricus and the Goths, and partly by the barbarous Nations under Radagaiſus, and partly by the Vandals and Alani. Theſe are the Northern Storms of Hailſtones with Blood and Fire that fell upon the Empire.

*Verſe 8. The Viſion of the *Second Trumpet, namely, the burning Mountain caſt into the Sea, Grotius expounds of the Tower Antonia, whoſe Fall notwithſtanding was not accompanied with burning, and therefore he rather underſtands it of the ſallying of the wrathful Soldiers out of the Tower upon the People of Jeruſalem. Which is but a petty Matter in compariſon of Alaricus his taking and firing of Rome, upon which followed a continual Spoil of the Empire till it was dilacerated into Ten Kingdoms; which is Mr. Mede's Expoſition of this Viſion. But the other is unſutable to that Expreſſion Expreſſion eſpecially, * and the third part of the Ships periſhed. Which intimates that the Sea ſignifies here far larger than the Inhabitants of one City, or a croud of People in one Street thereof. To ſay nothing how this Book of Propheſies that characterizes things ſo often by Numbers, underſtands here as elſewhere by * τὸ τρίτον μέρος the Roman Empire. *Verſe 9. *the third part.

The *Third-Trumpet Viſion is the great Star falling into the third part of the Rivers burning likk a Lamp, the Comet Lampadias, ſuppoſe, properly ſo called. This Grotius applys to that Ægyptian Impoſtour mentioned in the Acts and in Joſephus, But beſide that τὸ τρίτον the third part here again characterizes the Roman Empire, this Star is too big in my Judgment for that Ægyptian Vagabond and eaſily-defeated Deceiver. Mr. Mede's Interpretation is much more accommodate, who applys it to the Extinction of the Weſtern Cæſareate, which was grown very low and obſcure in thoſe inconſiderable Emperours, Avitus, Majoranus, Severus, Anthemius, Olybrius, Glycerius, Nepos, the immediate Predeceſſors of Auguſtulus; but fell quite and was extinct in this Prince of Sorrow, Bitterneſs, and ſad Misfortunes, whom Odoacer King of the Heruli pulled out of his Throne, Anno 476. *Verſe 10. Acts 21. 38. *Antiq. lib. 20. cap. 6. Bell. Jud. lib. 2. c. 23.

The *Fourth-Trumpet Viſion, an Eclipſe of the third part of the Moon and Stars proceeds forth concerning Rome, and ſignifies that that Light ſhe ſhone with under the Oſtrogoth Kings ſhould be extinct, that ſhe ſhould be deſpoiled of Regal Majeſty, yea, of Conſulſhip and Authority of the Senate. Which ill Fate is very properly prefigured by the Obſcuration of the Sun, Moon, and Stars, as Mr. Mede has undeniably made good, and accordingly applied the Hiſtory. Grotius interprets it only of the taking of certain Towns in Galilee and other places by Veſpaſian, and the Slaughter of the Jews. Which is a very laxe and dilute Interpretation in compariſon to Mr. Mede's. *Verſe 12.

The *Fifth-Trumpet Viſion is the Key-Bearer of the Bottomleſs Pit, and the Locuſts. Which Grotius refers to Eleazer the Son of Ananias (though he confeſſes the time does not agree) and to the Faction of the Zelots. Whom he cannot fancy to be thoſe Scorpion-tail'd Locuſts but in their general account of being Robbers and Devourers, and the leiſurely doing their Miſchief, the Poyſon of the Scorpion being three Days a killing. But it does not appear that that Evil of the Zelots may be accounted leiſurely in any ſuch ſpecial manner, the Plague of them not laſting longer than ſuch like barbarous tyrannizing of maſterleſs Souldiers uſes to do; and it is but five Months* according to Grotius his Account, but he does not ſo much as go about to prove his Account by Hiſtory. Beſides, how can golden Crowns* belong to theſe Zelots? For Grotius his expounding ὡς στέφανοι χρυσοῖ, as if ὡς implyed that they were the boaſting of Crowns and Victory, not real Crowns, is very groundleſs and confutable out of his own Expoſition of * τείχας ὡς τείχας γυναικῶν, and ὀδόντες ὡς λεόντων, by which he acknowledges real mulieroſity and voracity in theſe Zelots. That concerning the * Sting in their Scorpion-Tails, Introibant ut defenſores, exibant raptores, is indeed witty, but not ſolid. For if you will have their Form to figure their Behaviour, they went in Robbers as well as went out. For the fore-parts of theſe Scorpio-locuſtæ repreſent Robbery more perfectly than the hinder parts. *Rev. 9. 1, 2, 3. *Verſe 5. *Verſe 7. *Verſe 8. *Verſe 10.

Mr. Mede's Application of this Viſion to Mahament and the Sarazens is in every reſpect admirably natural and punctual. The Miſchief therefore of the Fifth-Trumpet is that falſe Light or Pſeudo-Prophet Mahomet, ſent down upon Earth by the Vengeance of God; whoſe Doctrine is the Fume of the bottomleſs-Pit, and his Followers the Saracens the Locuſts here ſpoke of. As 1. Coming out of Arabia, as the Ægyptian Locuſt did that plauged the literal Ægypt. 2. And then hugely numerous, as the Companies of Locuſts uſed to be. 3. And alſo making their ſtay μῆνας πέντε, which you may turn menſes quinos, by fives of months. Which is an Alluſion to the uſual Continuance of Locuſts (Plin. 11. 29.) and anſwers in the prophetical ſenſe to the five months of years, that is, a hundred and fifty years that theſe Locuſts infeſted Italy; and to the twice one hundred and fifty years that the Saracenical Kingdom continued. So properly are fives of Months applicable to them. 4. As alſo the golden Crowns to the Multitude of their Conqueſts, they having ſubdued Paleſtine Syria, both the Armenias, the leſſer Aſia, Perſia, India, Ægypt Numidia, Portugal and Spain, within the ſpace of fourſcore Years. 5. The Arabians, whence the Saracens were, tyed up their Hair with an Head-tire like Women. 6. The Sound of the Wings of theſe Locuſts, which was as the ſound of Chariots and of many Horſes running to battle*, is too big an Expreſſion for the Faction of the Zelots, but fitly ſignifies the *Rev. 9. 9.

mighty and ſwift Victories of the Saracens. 7. As alſo their poiſonous Scorpion-tails do the Venom of the Old Serpent under the falſe Religion of Mahometiſm. For all thoſe Powers that are not under the Kingdom of Light are part of the Powers of the Prince of the dark Kingdom, the Devil. 8. As is here intimated very clearly, the King over them* being the Angel of the bottomleſs Pit, though they pretend to be ſuch zealous Worſhippers of that One true God* that made Heaven and Earth. Their Pretence to which ſeems to be perſtringed in the very Name of their Prince Abaddon*, alluding to עבורא and אבדי, as Mr. Mede would have it.

*Verſe 11.

*See chap. 12. ſect. 6.

*Verſe 11.

That Alluſion of Grotius in Apolyon to Ἀπόλλων is more expreſs, but not better to our Purpoſe then his; Ἀπόλλων according to Chryſippus being from α and πολὺς or πολλὸς, and therefore ſignifying Unus, as Adad* alſo does, the God of the Aſſyrians. Which Name is not ſo concealed in Abaddon, but that by cutting it into אב and אדון and taking away the inſignificant Termination, and letting looſe the two ד held ſo hard together by the dageſh, אדד immediately ſhews himſelf to make good the Paronomaſia. Which אדד therefore muſt be the Aſſyrians Ἄδαδ, βασιλεὺς θεῶν, as Philo Byblius calls him; and he might with Homer, as well have ſtyled him πατὴρ θεῶν, he being the ſame with Apollo and Jupiter, whoſe Titles in Orpheus his Hymns are Πάγγενέτωρ, πατὴρ πόντου, πατὴρ αἰθήρ. And אב in Hebrew ſignifies as well Soveraignty as Paternity, as appears in that regal Title Abimeleck. Wherefore אב דאון as much as Ἄδαδ πατὴρ, or Ἄδαδ βασιλεύς, the ſupream Adad, the Father and Soveraign over all; and the Paranomaſia ſo palpable in אב אדון and Abaddon, that they have in a manner the very ſame Sound. Whence it is manifeſt that it is not for nothing the Prophet has pitched upon this Name Abaddon rather than *others which were more ordinary and ſignifie a Deſtroyer as well as this, and why he would interpret it rather Ἀπολλύων than ὀλοθρεύτης or ὀλοθρεύων: namely to point at the Saracens hypocritical Oſtentation of Monotheiſm* or worſhipping one God, which they do mainly in Envy and Oppoſition to the Chriſtians Profeſſion of the Trinity, while themſelves in the mean time are under the Deſtroyer, and are ſtill as truly Pagans as the Aſſyrians and Greeks that worſhipped Adad and Apollo.

*As אשמורי, בשחית, and others.

*See chap. 12. ſect. 6.

*Ver. 14, 16.

The *Sixth-Trumpet Viſion is the Euphratean Horſemen, which Grotius applyeth to the Roman Army that beſieged Jeruſalem, which he is content to be nominated Euphratean, becauſe ſome of the Roman Forces, namely thoſe of Syria, were quartered near Euphrates. But why ſhould the whole Roman Army be denominated from hence? And then the four Angels how can they fitly be referred to Veſpaſian, Titus, Mucianus, and Tiberius Alexander, being theſe Four were not of an equal Rank and Power co-ordinate, and but one was the chief Commander of the Army? And that ſeveral others might have as well been put in as ſome of theſe Four, may appear from what himſelf writes on Verſe 16. Beſides, he gives no account of the time, namely, a Day, a Month, and a Year*; nor of their Numeroſity, * Δύο μυριάδες μυριάδων, and that of Horſe. He interprets alſo their breaſt-Plates of Fire, and of Jacinth and Brimſtone*, of the Colours of their Horſemens Coats, as if they were made of thread either Colour de feu, violet Colour, or a pale ſulphurate Colour: which is too mean a Buſineſs to be taken Notice of in ſo ſacred a Propheſie. The applying of the Falaricæ to the Fire, Smoak, and Sulphur coming out of the Horſes Mouths, is ingenious if conſidered alone. We ſhall compare it with Mr. Mede's anon. But the Footman that the Romans ſometimes placed behind a Horſe-man for readineſs. eſpecially conſidering he rid not with his Face backward, nor ſlipt off over the Horſe Tail, but lighed on one ſide, very hardly makes out the Similitude of an Amphiſbæna; not to add that the Amphiſbæna it ſelf in his ſenſe is but a Fiction. His Interpretation alſo of worſhipping* the Dæmonia and Idols of Silver and Gold to a myſtical Senſe is more faint and dilute than the literal Meaning.

Ver. 14, 15.

*Verſe 15.

*Verſe 16.

*Verſe 17.

*Verſe 20.

But in every one of theſe Particulars Mr. Mede's Interpretation has a Fitneſs unexceptionable: He referring the Four Angels at the River Euphrates* to the four Sultanies of the Turkiſh Dominion, Bagdad, Cæſarea, Aleppo, Damaſcus, planted on this ſide and that ſide Euphrates: He calculating the time of a Day, Month, and Year*, (i. e. 396) Years) from the Inauguration of Togrulbec the Prince of the Turks to the taking Conſtantinople, which is juſt 396 years: He applying thoſe Myriads of Myriads of Horſe* to the known Numeroſity of the Turkiſh Armies, who being Perſians by their long Abode in that Country, are called Perſæ in the Greek Hiſtory; ſo that the Foot are in this Alluſion Horſemen too, פרס ſignifying Eques as well as Perſia. Which Alluſion to Names is uſed alſo by Daniel in making the He-Goat ſtand for the Kings of the Ægeades, that is, of the Macedonians. Their

*Verſe 14.

*Verſe 15.

*Verſe 16.

Their Breaſt-Plates of Fire, Jacinth, and Sulphur, he interprets of that Aſpect they ſeem to have by diſcharging their Carbines or Piſtols in Fight, which makes all their Breaſts for a time ſeem fiery, then of a blew Jacinth Colour by the Smoak, and the moſt laſting Object of Senſe is the Stinking of the Sulphur. Which Repreſentation is to be underſtood of them nearer at hand. This Invention of Gun-Powder (foreſeen by that Providence that inſpired John, and not vainly pointed at in theſe Viſions, but for the better Aſſurance of what time they belong to) is again intimated in that it is ſaid, that *the Heads of the Horſes were as the Heads of Lions; which Grotius gives this ſhort Account of, Rictus Equorum ſanguinolenti, qualis Leoni poſt devoratas pecudes: as if theſe did eat Fleſh to bloody their Jaws withal; elſe where is the Lion-like Repreſentation in them more than in others? I rather therefore conceive that their Heads are compared to the Heads of Lions, becauſe of the Terrour of the Noiſe, dreadful like the roaring of a Lion, when the Horſemen diſcharged together againſt the Enemy. For preſently follows, and out of their Mouths came Fire, and Smoak, and Brimſtone; all were breathed out together from their Jaws at once. To which Grotius his Application of the Falaricæ is not to be compared, as any one that conſiders their Nature and the Manner of flinging them, will deprehend at the firſt ſight.

* Verſe 17.

* Verſe 17.

* Verſe 17.

Mr. Mede's Expoſition alſo of the Serpentine Tails of the Horſes is both more handſome and more important. *Αἱ γὰρ οὐραὶ αὐτῶν ὅμοιαι ὄφεσιν, ἔχουσι κεφαλάς, that is, The Tails of the Horſes were as if they had been half a Serpent clap' to and hanging out with his Head. Which is an Emblem of that ſad After-Clap of their Victory over Men. The Devil then, that old Serpent, being ready to parly with them and to ſeduce them to Mahometiſm. And laſtly his interpreting of the Worſhip of Dæmons and Idols in the proper ſenſe, and applying it to the Reſidue of the Roman Empire infected with what we call papal Superſtition and Idolatry, I could wiſh it were not ſo fit and appropriate as it is.

* Verſe 14.

* Verſe 20.

The Application of theſe two laſt Trumpet-Viſions is ſo particular and exquiſite, that though they were not neceſſarily enforced by vertue of his Synchroniſms, it would be very hard to doubt of them. Which would make a Man eager to conſider the Meaning of the Seventh and Laſt Trumpet-Viſion; which conſiſts of loud Praiſes to God in Heaven, for that the Kingdoms of the World are become the Kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Chriſt. This Grotius interprets of the Liberty the Chriſtians had to profeſs their Religion at Jeruſalem, when the Jews were all baniſhed thence. But the Viſion certainly is far too big for ſo ſmall a Matter. Ἐγένοντο αἱ Βασιλεῖαι τοῦ κόσμου· It is very hard to interpret *κόσμος, and *βασιλεῖαι in the plural Number, of Judæa only. And beſides, how doth Chriſt reign for ever there, whenas his Subjects are now ſuch miſerable Thrals to the Turk? If he had taken the great Power to himſelf in that place, he has loſt it again, if this ſenſe of Grotius be true. But it is plain this Seventh Trumpet appertains to the Recovery of the Church out of Apoſtacy, by *the appearing of the Temple of God and the Ark of the Govenant in Heaven, which is a Figure of the political Power that pure and Apoſtolick Men will be advanced to. For the Temple ſignifies the Church in its pure Condition, while it was Symmetral to the Angelical or Divine Meaſure, ver. 1.

* The World Kingdoms.

* Verſe 17.

* Verſe 19.

But the appearing of the Ark of the Covenant thus in Heaven is accompanied with Lightnings, and Voices, and Thunders, and Earthquakes, and great Hail. As is intimated alſo by the very Title of the Seventh Trumpet, it being a Trumpet of *Woe to the wicked and unbelieving: anſwerably to the Seven Thunders that filled the Space of the Seventh Trumpet while that mighty and illuſtrious Angel roars like a Lion, and is juſtly conceived to repreſent our Saviour Chriſt, the Lion of the Tribe of Juda, who being once ſtirred up will never ceaſe purſuing the Prey, till he has brought all under his Feet, Death it ſelf not excepted.

* Ver. 14, 15.

*Revel. 10. 3.

6. But we return to thoſe things that are Synchronal to the ſix firſt Trumpets. Which Viſions, though they be more than any Synchronals beſides, yet they have all a very near Cognation or manifeſt Colligation one to another. The general Summary of the Condition of the Times they point out, is the Apoſtacy or Degeneracy of the Church; which yet is never conceived ſo ill, but that there were ſome pure and Apoſtolick Chriſtians in it; and therefore to repreſent the two ſorts of Profeſſors of Chriſtianity, there are two ſorts alſo of Viſions: Thoſe of the Whore of Babylon, the ten-horned Beaſt, and the two-horned Beaſt, relating to the Degeneracy of Chriſtendom; the two Witneſſes mourning in Sackcloth, the Virgin Company, the ſealed of the Lamb, to thoſe that keep their Purity in the Church. All theſe

+ It would be an easy matter to decide, whether Mede + More was at a greater distance from the Meaning, or Grotius from the poetry of this Chapter. Whether M. was in the wild or G. more tame, flat, and prosaic.

ſynchronize with the ſix firſt Trumpets, out of which is blown the Wrath of God upon the Roman Empire, as is but juſt, by reaſon of their Apoſtacy; as it is alſo equal with God to protect his own then. And therefore the Company of the Lamb are ſealed and marked* to be kept from the common Calamities. This general Apoſtacy alſo could not have crept in, if the Eccleſiaſtick and Secular Power had not conſpired, and therefore there is the two-horned Beaſt as well as the ten-horned. Againſt which are oppoſed the Two mourning Witneſſes, the one ſuſtaining the Perſon of the unpolluted Prieſt, the other of the faithful Magiſtrate. And this Apoſtacy conſiſting much in groſs Idolatry and vain Superſtition, which according to Scripture-Language is termed Whoredom; this State is ſet out alſo by the Viſion of the * Whore of Babylon, to which is oppoſed the * Virgin Company.

*Revel. 7. 3.

*Revel. 17.

*Revel. 14. 4. There are yet two Viſions behind which are not properly to be referred to this ſort ot that, but each of them to both, namely, *the Woman in the Wilderneſs, and the outward Court and holy City trodden down by the Gentiles*. Which Viſions have the Inſinuation of both Piety and Prophaneneſs in them at once: The truly pious part of the Church being ſignified by the Woman; but the Wilderneſs the Salvageneſs and Brutiſhneſs of the reſt of Chriſtendom, they being wholly given up to the Animal Life. By the Outward Court and holy City is noted the Sanctity of the Chriſtian Church ſet apart from the reſt of the World; but by the being trodden down by the Gentiles, the Imitation of Pagan Worſhip introduced by the general Apoſtacy of Chriſtendom. So that you ſee by what a ſtrong Tye from the very Nature of the things themſelves theſe eight Synchronal Viſions are held together with, in one time.

*Revel. 12. 6.

*Revel. 11. 2.

7. Let us now conſider Grotius his chief Miſtakes or Defects in interpreting of them. As in thoſe of the Two Witneſſes, and of the outward Court and holy City being trodden down by the Gentiles for forty two Months, which is, ſaith he, for about three Years and a half. This City he interprets of Ælia built by Adrian: which therefore in that regard is not to be looked upon as holy; as indeed the City of Jeruſalem ceaſed ſo to be, when the Jews had ceaſed to be God's People. The trampling the holy City he interprets of the building of a Temple there to Jupiter Capitolinus. As if that Temple ſtood but three Years and an half. But he would terminate theſe Years from the Beginning of the building of this Temple to the Sedition of Barchochab; but brings no Hiſtory to make good his Device: and if he could make this time of Barchochab good, it were yet good for nothing, unleſs he could alſo pull down the Temple at the three Years and an half's end. The Two Witneſſes he would have the Two Churches in Ælia, the one ſpeaking Hebrew, the other Greek; as if the Spirit of God divided theſe into two that profeſſed one Faith and were of one Mind, not diſtinguiſhed in any thing ſave in outward Language.

Verſe 8, 9. The bodies of theſe ſlain Witneſſes lying in the Streets of the great City three Days and an half, this he interprets of the Oppreſſion and Perſecution by Barchochab; which certainly was very ſhort, if but three Days and an half long: neither does he here bring any Proof of Hiſtory, nor is it probable that divine Prophecy would affect the Preciſeneſs of half a Day or three Days and an half in ſuch a general Prefiguration of things as the Apocalypſe is. Beſides, how unlikely is it that Jeruſalem, that had now loſt all its Glory and Power, ſhould be ſtyled by the Name of the great City?

Verſe 8. The chiefeſt ground that they have to think ſo, is that Expreſſion, as if our Lord was crucified there. But I anſwer, that our Lord in a literal ſenſe was not crucified either in Sodom or Ægypt, which ὅπου immediately refers to; nor in a ſpiritual ſenſe more in Jeruſalem than in the reſt of the Roman Empire. Wherefore this City is nothing elſe but the degenerate Polity of the Apoſtate Church where Chriſt is perſecuted (as he complains to Saul*) in his true and living Members. Where alſo Chriſt according to the Spirit, that is, the Divine Life, is rightly ſaid σταυρωθῆναι. to be crucified, not in the time paſt only, but ἀορίστως, indefinitely, was, is, and will be crucified ſo long as this Power of Apoſtacy holds up. For the Præter Tenſe in Prophecy is very uſual for the Future. But if any one diſreliſh this more myſtical Senſe, I ſhall ſubſtitute that of Mr. Mede's, which the courſeſt Literaliſt connot evade, namely that by πλατεῖα is underſtood the Extent of the whole Roman Empire within which Chriſt was literally crucified. See Mr. Mede upon the Text.

*Acts 9. 4.

The Viſion of the Woman crowned with twelve Stars (which number ſignifies the pure and Apoſtolick Church) *her being in the Wilderneſs 1260 Days, he interprets prets of the extinguiſhing the Church, to outward ſight at leaſt, at Rome, by the Miracles and Sorceries of Simon Magus, (which yet is a ſuſpected Hiſtory) and her appearing only in the Country and Villages, which are but as a Deſart in reſpect of the Populoſity of that renowned City. But the time of 1260 Days he makes out by no Hiſtory. To ſay nothing how this Interpretation depends on another very harſh one, namely the expounding, * And her Child was caught up unto God, and to his Throne, of the diſappearing of the Church by the Seductions of Simon. Whenas to be carried up to the Throne of God ſurely ſignifies Magiſtracy, as אלהים Magiſtrates. As is intimated alſo in the foregoing part of the Verſe, that he ſhould rule the Nations with a Rod of Iron. * Verſe 5.

*Rev. 12. 6.

The Viſion of the Whore ſitting upon the Scarlet Beaſt with ſeven Heads and ten Horns*, and, if you will, of the Beaſt, coming out of the Sea, Chap. 13. (For we may put them together, they being the ſame according to Grotius his own Confeſſion) This Beaſt he makes the Sin of Idolatry. Which is quite out of the way of interpreting Prophetick Schemes, where Beaſts ſignifie Kingdoms or Dominions, as is plain out of Daniel. But the ten Horns he will allow to be ten Kings: in which he were right, if he had acknowledged a Body fit to bear them. The Seven Heads he makes the ſeven Cæſars, Claudius, Nero, Galba, Otho, Vitellius, Veſpaſian, Titus. But if the Cæſars be Heads, there muſt be more Heads than ſeven: for there were four Cæſars before Claudius, and I think thirty after Titus that were not Chriſtians. But Claudius, ſaith he, is the firſt that baniſhed the Chriſtian Teachers. Which Act was yet ſo inconſiderable, that the firſt Perſecution was fix'd on Nero, and the other nine noted Perſecutions were after Titus, the laſt of them raging a little before Conſtantine the Great. So that there is a juſter Reaſon that this Beaſt ſhould have above thirty Heads than but Seven. *Rev. 17. 3.

Again, in this Beaſt which the Prophet John reſembls to a * Leopard in his Body, and to have the Feet of a Bear and the Mouth of a Lion, he will have Claudius, who before was one of the Heads of the Beaſt, now to be the Body thereof; and Domitian, who is later than the laſt of theſe ſeven Cæſars, and ſo in order more like the Tail, to be the Mouth of the Beaſt, and in chap. 17. to be the Beaſt it ſelf. So much of Forcedneſs and Incoherency is there in the making out this falſe Hypotheſis. That alſo is harſh in my Judgment, the making preſently one of theſe Heads, which were before Cæſar's, to be the Capitol at Rome; though it be ſaid to be wounded to Death*, and that by the ſtroke of a * Sword, and to be healed alſo: which methinks are very unnatural applicable to a Hill or a Tower. He pretends he has hit the time of * the forty two months this Beaſt ſhould make War: but he refers to no Hiſtory; and Helvicus affixes the Beginning of the ſecond Perſecution to the tenth of Domitian's Reign: Whence it will not be three Years and a half, but rather Six years, that he wars againſt the Saints. *Rev. 13. 2. *Verſe 3. *Verſe 14. *Verſe 5.

But the chiefeſt Artifice of his Miſ-interpretation is upon Chap. 17. of the Revelation. Where the Beaſt * that was, and is not, and is to aſcend out of the bottomleſs Pit, and to go into Perdition, he again applys to Domitian, making nothing of transfiguring a ſingle Head into a whole Beaſt. But the Deſcription is more accurate, verſe 10, &c. The ſeven Heads are ſeven Kings; five are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come: and when he cometh, he muſt continue a ſhort ſpace. And the Beaſt that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the ſeven, and goeth into Perdition. And the ten Horns which thou ſaweſt, are ten Kings, which have received no Kingdom as yet; but receive Power as Kings one Hour with tke Beaſt. *Rev. 17. 8.

The five Kings here that are fallen, ſaith Grotius, are Claudius, Nero, Galba, Otho, and Vitellius: which how fond a Conceit it is, I have already demonſtrated. And one is, that is, ſaith he, Veſpaſian, in whoſe Reign it is ſuppoſed, not proved, that John wrote theſe Viſions. The other is not yet come, namely Titus. And when he comes muſt continue but a ſhort time. But Galba, Otho, and Vitellius much ſhorter. The Beaſt that was and is not, to wit Domitian, who was Emperour while his Father Veſpaſian was abſent from Rome. Which if he were really, and not ſtyled ſo out of Complement and Flattery, the Application is handſome. For then it was ſometimes true of him, that he was, and is not, and ſhall be Emperour again. He is the eighth. Domitian is indeed the eighth and ſo diſtinct an Head and ſo conſiderable, as reigning longer than any of his Predeceſſors, that he quite ſpoils the Interpretation. For thus the Beaſt will be eight-headed, not ſeven-headed; contrary to the Viſion: Which thoſe Words, and is of the ſeven, do therefore correct, and ſhew that the eighth is not so the eighth but that there are still but seven Heads: which * this Exposition can never unriddle. To say nothing how if ἐκ τῶν ἑπτά ἐστιν signifie he is the Son of some of the seven, it would have been less ambiguous to have said ἀπὸ τῶν ἑπτά, or rather τῶ ἑπτᾶ. For he was not the Son of all seven, but of Vespasian only. *Verse 12. The ten Horns are the ten Kings, which have received no Kingdom as yet, &c. This Grotius himself expounds of the Ostrogothi, Wisigothi, Vandali, Gepidæ, Longobardi, Heruli, Burgundiones, Hunni, Franci, Saxones. These are the ten horns of the Beast Domitian, (for Grotius will have Domitian this Beast, growing up and acting some Ages after the Beast ceased to be. Which is an Interpretation so extravagant, that nothing can be more.

not

*See Mr. Mede's Comment. Apocalypt. upon this 17 Chapter.

Rev. 13. 11. The last Synchronal of the Six Trumpets that we shall touch upon, is the Two-horned Beast: Which Grotius against all Analogy of Prophetick Interpretation expounds of Art Magick, not of any Polity either Ecclesiastical or Civil. The Horns like those of a Lamb, are two Christian Virtues imitated by Magicians, Temperance in Diet and Abstinence from Venery. But Abstinence from Venery is common to other Religions with Christianity: and to abstain from Flesh and Wine no Christian Precept at all. His haling also the Ghost of Achilles and Statue of Apollonius to the making up an Exposition of *Verse 14. * λέγων ποιῆσαι εἰκόνα τῷ θηρίῳ, understanding by εἰκόνα the Umbra of Achilles, which is unusual, or the Statue of Apollonius made by his Followers; and then presently in the same Breath to interpret τὴν εἰκόνα (when it it had so often signified either the Statue of Apollonius or Umbra of Achilles) concerning Images in general, is to make the Scripture an Image of Wax, and to mold it into what Shape we please.

8. But there is yet a further and more substantial Eviction of Grotius his Mistake upon the Account of the Number of the Beast. For certainly that must the *Rev. 13. 17. where it is the Beast, namely the Two-horned Beast, not the Image of the Beast, to which the Number belongs. two-horned Beast* to whom the Number 666 can rationally be applyed: which Grotius would fit up to Ulpius the known Name of Trajan the Emperour, which he reads ΟΥΛΠΙΟC, making C stand for six. But considering 'tis called the Number of the Name of the Beast, by this Conceit Trajan would be the Beast. Which is contrary to the Law of Prophetick Schemes, where Beast signifies not any particular Man, but a State Politick, and also against his former Exposition of the Beast, which according to him must be either Idolatry or Magick. Wherefore Λατεῖνος is far more passable in that regard than this of ΟΥΛΠΙΟC. To say nothing how it is called the Number of the Beast, without mentioning any Name; as also the number of a Man, without mentioning any Name; as also the number of a Man, without intimating any thing to do with his Name. Which plainly imports that there is a further reach than an Allusion to any Man's Name or the Name of any State. But the meaning of *ἀριθμὸς γὰρ ἀνθρώπου ἐστίν, is, That it is Numerus humanus, such a Number as men usually deal with, aud may be numbred by humane Art. But it seems there is some Skill to be used therein, because he saith, here is Wisdom, and let him that hath Understanding calculate the Number of the Beast. Which if it were but the putting of the numeral Letters of some Name together, would be but a very petty piece of Skill. All the Skill or rather Luck would be to find out the Name, but there will be no Skill at all in calculating of the Number. But the Text saith, Let him that hath Skill calculate the Number of the Beast; and it sets down the very number that is to be number'd. Which Number yet cannot be numbred after the manner of Men (which way notwithstanding is intimated) but by Extraction of the Root: and therefore undoubtedly Mr. Potter has found out the true and solid Solution of this Mystery.

*Ver. 18. For it is the number of a Man.

Concerning which no Man can fail to be satisfied, unless either Ignorance or Prejudice make him uncapable, if he consider, First, in general, what rich Mysteries the Spirit of God has been pleased to wrap up in Number. Of which there are many pregnant Examples in the Creation of the World distributed into Six Days. The meaning whereof is not otherwise to be understood but by the Nature and Powers of Numbers, as I have clearly enough shewn in the Defence of my Philosophick Cabbala.

And then in the next place (which is closer to the purpose) if he take Notice of what the abovesaid Author urges most pertinently, That other Numbers in Scripture are of Necessity to be numbred thus by the Extraction of the Root either Square or Cubick, to know the particular Dimensions of things numbred by them. As those Stones mentioned 1 Kings 7. 10. which are said to be some of eight, others of ten Cubits: Which must needs be the Cubick sum of each stone, as he hath undeniably undeniably demonſtrated. That Square Numbers are alſo taken Notice of, is evident from Ezekiel 48. 20. Five and twenty thouſand by five and twenty thouſand. But to come nearer to the Buſineſs in hand, the Cubical ſum of the new Jeruſalem, namely, Twelve thouſand Furlongs, is ſet down in the * Apocalypſe; of which there can be no ſenſe in way of numbring but to find the Perimeter thereof. Which is not to be done but by the Extraction of the Cubick Root. The Meaſure alſo of the Wall, * an hundred forty four Cubits, is utterly unapplicable thereto if we look upon it as the Number of one Line. For it would be too little for the Perimeter by far, and too great for the Altitude thereof: whereof the Meaſure of the Thickneſs and Height of the Wall is the Root of an hundred fourty four, namely Twelve.

*Chap. 21. 16.

*Verſe 17.

Thirdly therefore, the Applicability of the Number 144 to the Holy City appearing in the Root thereof, to wit 12, which is a Number peculiarly conſecrated to ſignifie the chief Matters of the new Jeruſalem; the Chiliarchies alſo or Regiments, as I may ſo call them, of the Lamb being ſummed up in this Number in the very begining of that *Chapter that immediately follows the Mention of the Number of the Beaſt, and being made up of twelve times twelve Chiliades, as appears ch. 7. how unexceptionable a Warrant and Aſſurance is it, that the numbring of the Number of the Beaſt muſt be the finding out of the Root of his Number alſo, and that the ἀντίστοιχία lyes not betwixt 144 and 666 ſo much as betwixt 12 and 25, and that as 12 is the Number of the pure and Apoſtolick Church, ſo 25 of the lapſed and Antichriſtian?

*Rev. 14. 1

This is the clear and unbyaſſed Reaſon of the thing in Abſtracto, let it light where it will. But it lights ſo pat upon the Romiſh Hierarchy, that a Man cannot but be amazed at ſo exact a Providence. For this lucky and learned Writer has out of Hiſtory made it even over-clear, that Twenty Five is a Character as eſſentially interwoven into the Hierarchy of Rome as Twelve is into the State of the new Jeruſalem. And thoſe ſix main things that this holy City is ſet out by in the Apocalypſe, namely

1. Twelve Gates.
2. Twelve Angels at the Gates,
3. Twelve Tribes written on the Gates,
4. Twelve Foundations with Names written on them,
5. Twelve thouſand Furlongs, the ſolid Meaſure of the City,
6. Twelve manner of Fruits of the Tree of Life, have their ἀντίστοιχία exactly in the Roman Hierarchy and City, viz.

1. Five and twenty Gates, whether taken literally, or myſtically for Churches to baptize in,
2. Five and twenty Angels, that is, Paſtors,
3. Five and twenty Titles or Pariſhes,
4. Five and twenty Cardinals,
5. Five and twenty thouſand Furlongs, the Perimeter of which Cube is the Circuit of Rome, as the Perimeter of the Cube twelve thouſand Furlongs the Circuit of Jeruſalem,
6. Five and twenty Articles of the Creed which ſhould be the Food of the Tree of Life to all Believers.

In theſe eſſential Matters, and in many other things beſide, has he evidently ſhewn how exactly the root of 666 is applicable to the Roman Hierarchy; to whoſe Treatiſe I muſt refer thee for further Satisfaction. Which thou canſt not fail of, if thou be free from prejudice, and furniſhed but with a tolerable inſight in Geometry and Arithmetick.

The greateſt and moſt obvious Objection againſt his Interpretation is, That 666 is not a perfect ſquare Number as 144 is. For they will demand, if 25 be the Number aimed, Why was not the expreſs Number of the Beaſt rather 625, the exact Square of 25? Or why not any other Number betwixt 625 and 676 as well 666? To which I briefly anſwer, That as it was not expreſſed by the Root but by the Square, for Concealment ſake; ſo for the ſame Reaſon not by the perfect Square, there being ſo ſmart a Clang of the Root it ſelf at the End of it, which might have hindred the Completion of the Prophecy, and awakened them into an over-great Caution how they affected the Number of 25, it being ſo conſiderable a part of the Number of the Beaſt, and might have betrayed or diſcovered the Myſtery of numbring it alſo too ſoon to the World. And for the Numbers betwixt 625 and 676, 676, I demand, Why not 666 as well as any of the reſt? For having once paſſed by the true Square, for which there was ſo good Reaſon, any modeſt Man might judge the Choice of the reſt free and indifferent.

But beſides, that there may want no Exactneſs in this Myſtery, the Number 666 bears along with it very important Significations and very oppoſite to the Matter it is applyed to: As that noted by Mr. Mede, That the Idolatrous Poyſon of the Sixth head is ſignified thereby, pervading all the Body of this Antichriſtian Beaſt. That alſo of Grotius is ingenious, Senarius numerus res hujus mundi ſignificat, ut Septenarius res ſeculi melioris. So that by this Account both the outſide and inſide of this Number of the Beaſt is worldly, carnal and ſenſual. For the Root alſo, viz. 25, intimates the ſame Nature; the Root of that Root being Five, an Hieroglyphick of Senſuality an ſtupid Adheſion to the Objects of the outward Senſes; which are the chief Faculties of the Soul that are careſſed and employed in the Roman Religion. There their Religion begins, and there it ends, as it is in this Number 25, which is made by 5 into it ſelf, and ends in 5 again. This is the Circuit of their Superſtitious Performances that reach not the rectifying of the inward, but are mere fruitleſs, though bewitching Entertainments of the outward Man.

And laſtly, the above-cited Author's own Account is not only very witty, but equally ſolid, in my Judgment, concerning the nearer Approximation of the Root of 666 (taking in the Fraction) to 26 then to 25, that both theſe Numbers may have a Pretence to be the Root. For thereby the Number 666 does more exquiſitively and unavoidably figure out the Papal Hierarchy. By its Root 25, the twenty five Cardinals in diſtinction to the Pope, an Head above them. By 26, the 25 Cardinals with the Pope, who pretends alſo when he pleaſes to be one of the Cardinals. But he adds alſo another reaſon of this Number, which is not raſhly to be rejected: That as 144, being a perfect Square, ſets out the Figure of the Area of Jeruſalem, ſo the moſt perfect Figure 666 has the ſame proportion of Length and Breadth that the Figure of the Area of Rome. Theſe Argumentations will ſeem very ſtrange and odd to ſuch as are not ſo much as aquainted with the firſt Rudiments of Arithmetick and Geometry, or at leaſt have not taken notice that the ancienteſt and beſt Wiſdom has been hid in the Symbols of Numbers; which is notorious in Pythagoras his School. But he that ſeriouſly conſiders what ſmall Senſe can be made by a Philoſopher of the Six Days Creation and God's reſting on the Seventh, without this Key of the Natures of Numbers and Figures, will be enforced to confeſs, That there is one ſupreme Wiſdom that has ever attended the Church and the Holy Scriptures, from end to end, which in the abſtruſeſt Myſteries thereof has been pleaſed to make uſe of a Method of Concealment which is Numeral, or, if I may ſo ſpeak, Cabaliſtical.

9. The laſt Synchronals are thoſe that are contemporary to the Seventh Trumpet, and commence at the ending of the Sixth, and end at the Day of Judgment properly ſo called, that immediately leads to Hell or Paradiſe. Theſe Synchronals are the Ligation of Satan, the bleſſed Millenium, or Reign of Chriſt with his Saints upon Earth, the Bride of the Lamb, the New-Jeruſalem, and the Company of Palm-bearers. The Connaturality of the thiugs comprized under this Synchroniſm I have hinted already; I ſhall only here bring Grotius his Expoſitions of the chief of them into View. The Bride of the Lamb*, he interprets of Conſtantine's Family and Retinue; wherein he commits a groſs Parachroniſm. For it is plain this Spouſe is to be married to Chriſt after the Deſtruction of the City by fire, as it appears both by the Order of theſe Viſions, and by Chap. 19. v. 2, 3. But the burning of Rome by Totilas was after Conſtantine's time. The beginning of the * Millenium, Grotius affixes to an Edict of Conſtantine's, which Euſebius ſpeaks of, and wherein there is mention made of the Ligation of Satan. This makes a pretty ſhew, as alſo his interpreting the Reign of the Martyrs with Chriſt, of that honour they had done them at their monuments. But it is to be conſidered in how ſhort a time that Honour was turned into idolatrous Reproach, as alſo how the thouſand Years according to his Account are expired above three hundred years ago; from whence commences the Devil's being let looſe: which we cannot term * μικρὸν χρόνον a little time in reſpect of the Millenium, it being no leſs then a third part; and it is no good ſenſe, if it be not underſtood in reſpect of it.

* Rev. 19. 7.

* Rev. 20.

* Verſe 3.

But which is ſtill worſe, while he interprets the Devil's being let looſe of the Invaſion of the Ottoman Family upon Chriſtendom, he reminds us of the great Victories the Sarazens had, who were as very Devils as the Turks, and yet had vexed ed the Chriſtian World much, before the year 800. So that according to this Account the Devil was let looſe in the midſt of the Millennium, and has been looſe almoſt a Millenium already, which therefore in reſpect of the Millennium cannot be μικρὸς χρόνος. Upon this falſe Hypotheſis hangs the Conceit of the Turks beſieging Conſtantinople, to be the begirting of the Holy City by the numerous Armies of Gog and Magog. For the Greeks themſelves ſtyled Conſtantinople New Sion, as Grotius has noted. But it is plain the Expoſition is a mere Hallucination, becauſe the holy and beloved City in the Propheſie is not taken, God interpoſing by Fire from Heaven, and ſweeping all away by that final Judgment. But the Turks have taken this Sion, and have peaceably poſſeſſed it theſe two hundred hundred years.

I ſhall conclude with the *new Jeruſalem, the Lambs Bride, adorned for her Huſband; which Grotius interprets of the Catholick Church made now more ſplendid with outward Ornaments by the Care and Coſt of Princes. Which in my Apprehenſion is no good Senſe; Marriage rather ſignifying the bringing in ſome people to Chriſt that were not united to him before, or at leaſt the appearing of a People that was before hid, then the external adoring of them that were already the known and profeſſed People of Chriſt. Beſides, that the Times that Grotius points at are the moſt unlike that new Jeruſalem, which is the Church recovered to her Apoſtolical Symmetry again, and to be meaſured by the golden Reed of the Angel*, and which runs all upon Twelves, to ſhew that it is purely Apoſtolick, and has no other Foundation nor Structure than Chriſt and his Apoſtles. For the whole ſolid Content thereof, Length, Breadth, and Height, is twelve thouſand Furlongs*: the Breadth of *the Wall alſo and the Height thereof is meaſured by Twelve. So that there is nothing in this new Jeruſalem but what is Pure and Apoſtolical; which is not ſo in the gariſhly-adorned Church that Grotius looks at. Beſides that it is ſaid there was no Temple there*; whenas every Church is a Temple under the Roman Hierarchy.

*Revel. 21. 2.

*Verſe 15.

*Verſe 16.

*Verſe 17.

*Verſe 22.

10. I might have examined his Expoſitions of *the Vials alſo with other Paſſages, wherein I could have diſcovered the like Errours and Miſtakes. But what I have inſtanced in already, is ſufficient to ſhew upon what unnatural, diſtorted, nay I may ſay, impoſſible Applications they are caſt that would attempt the interpreting of the Apocalypſe without the Guide of Synchroniſms taken from the innate Characters of the Viſions themſelves: but by the Benefit of that Guide how eaſie and natural Senſe is made of every Viſion, and how perfectly anſwerable to Hiſtory and Events, as is manifeſt in the Expoſitions of Mr. Mede. Whom I have not preferred thus before Grotius out of any ill Will or Diſreſpect to that Miracle of his Age for Learning and Ingenuity, but meerly out of Love to the Truth, as I am verily perſwaded Grotius has framed his Interpretations; but withall (which is a further Commendation of him) out of a very deep Senſe of the Advantages of Peace, and out of a Spirit of Sweetneſs, Candor, and Humanity, for which I do believe him ſingular and eminent. And verily if I were not conſcious to my ſelf that the very ſame Spirit did in ſome meaſure act me in this Diſcovery of his Miſtakes, that did him in committing of them, I mean the Senſe of Peace and common Good of the Church, I had rather be in his Errours accompanied with Humanity and Kindneſs of Spirit, than be in a Truth that muſt needs be attended with Salvageneſs, Ferocity, and Fury. But as the Truth I ſtand upon is above Grotius's Miſtakes, ſo I hope the Good of my Deſign will not appear inferiour to his, after you have conſidered the Benefit of Mr. Mede's Interpretations of the Apocalypſe, as well as the Truth thereof.

*Rev. 16.

CHAP. XVII.

1. That ἃδεῖ γνέσθαι ἐν τάχει does not imply, That moſt of the Matters in the Apocalypſe appertain to the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem and to Rome Heathen. 2. The important Uſefulneſs of this Book for the evincing of a particular Providence, the Exiſtence of Angels, and the Ratification of the higheſt Points in Chriſtianity. 3. How excellent an Engine it is againſt the Extravagancy and Fury of Fanatick Enthuſiaſts. 4. How the Mouths of the Jews and Atheiſts are ſtopped thereby. 5. That it is a Mirrour to behold the nature of the Apoſtacy of the Roman Church in. 6. And alſo for the Reformed Churches to examine themſelves by, whether they be quite emerged out of this Apoſtacy; with the Author's Scruple that makes him ſuſpect they are not. 7. What of Will-Worſhip and Idolatry ſeems ſtill to cleave to us. 8. Further Information offered to us from the Viſion of the ſlain Witneſſes. 9. The dangerous Miſtakes and Purpoſes of ſome heated Meditatours upon the Fifth Monarchy. 10. The moſt uſeful Conſideration of the Approach of the Millenium, and how the time may be retarded, if not forfeited by their Faithleſneſs and Hypocriſie who are moſt concerned to haſten on thoſe good Days.

1. AND truly the Benefit of the Apocalyſe ſo interpreted as Mr. Mede has expounded it, is invaluable. For the Viſions are ſo perfectly and patly applicable to acknowledged Hiſtory this way that he goes; that he that will not believe the Propheſies fulfilled in thoſe things he produces, cannot believe the fulfiling of any Propheſies at all: whenas on the other ſide, if the Applications were no more weighty, nor clearer and fitter then they are Grotius's way, this Book of Propheſies would be utterly Uſeleſs, it being in the Power of no Man that is not extremely credulous to be ſatisfied with ſuch lame, imperfect, nay, as I ſaid, impoſſible Interpretations. Wherefore the Vindication of the Method of Mr. Mede in interpreting this Book, is really the reſcuing of the Book it ſelf into that Power and Uſe it ought to have in the Church: For it is a ſtanding Light to all the Ages thereof, and the greateſt to the laſt.

* Rev. 1. 1. & ch. 22. 6.
* Verſe 3.
* Ch. 22. 7.

Nor do thoſe Expreſſions of *ἃδεῖ γνέσθαι ἐν τάχει, and ὁ γὰρ καιρὸς ἐγγύς, and *Ἰδὲ ἔρχομαι ταχύ, at all infringe the Truth we have declared, or import that all the matters in the Apocalypſe appertain to either the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem or to Rome Heathen. For as the former, it ſeems very needleſs to ſpend many Viſions upon it; our Saviour having propheſied of it ſo clearly before, and with all uſeful Circumſtances that could be deſired. How vain therefore is it to imagine ſo many Viſions ſpent thereupon in this Book, that are not only obſcurer than our Saviour's Propheſie, but ſo obſcure that they are now not tolerably applicable to the known Events; and therefore muſt be utterly uſeleſs to the Church, becauſe they could neither forewarm them of any thing before the Event, nor be a Record of God's Foreſight and Providence after it?

And for the latter, I ſay there are Viſions plain and expreſs enough concerning Heathen Rome, and her bloody Perſecuting the Church, in the Battle of Michael and the Dragon. The firſt ſix Seals alſo appertain to that time while Rome was Heathen; the Sixth whereof ſignifies the mighty Change of things to the Advantage of the Church, the Empire becoming Chriſtian. Wherefore there is no want of Viſions for Heathen Rome, nor any but what were very ſignificant and uſeful, as all the ſix Seals and the Viſihn of Michael and the Dragon are: Which encourage the Church to be patient under thoſe Ten bloody Perſecutions, in aſſurance that at laſt they ſhould have the Victory over their perſecuting Enemy. And what could they deſire more to be ſignified then this in ſuch general Propheſies as theſe? Nay I ſay further, they might have counted the Nearneſs of their Deliverance by the Poſture of the Beaſts that were the Præco's of the four firſt Seals, obſerving from what Quarter ſuch Emperours came as bore the greateſt Similitude with the Riders of the red, black, and pale Horſes: and when the Perſecution was the higheſt, their Hopes were the cleareſt, and the Event neareſt; as appears from the eaſie meaning of the Fifth and Sixth Seal. So that there are Viſions enough concerning the Roman Empire while it was Pagan, ſo far forth as it concerned the Church.

And

And why ſhould there not be Viſions that concern the Empire when it was turned Chriſtian, and Paganized again under Chriſtianity, and in this Apoſtacy cruelly oppreſſed and perſecuted the true Members of Chriſt? Why ſhold not this State of things be propheſied of as well as the former? To this there are but theſe two Anſwers to be given; Either that the Church is not apoſtatized, or that thoſe Phraſes παχὺ and ἐν πάχει do plainly ſignifie that the Scope of the Apocalypſe reaches not ſo far. The former Anſwer I could wiſh were ſolid, but have no Leiſure here to diſpute it. The latter I conceive is very weak and unſatisfactory, and from an Inference as ridiculous as his would be, that upon the Report that ſuch a Comedy or Tragedy was to be acted half an quarter of an hour hence, which, I think, is very quickly, ſhould conclude that all the Acts and Scenes thereof would not be a quarter of an hour long. And to make uſe of the Suffrage of our very Adverſaries, Grotius himſelf interprets ὁ ἅγιος καιρὸς ἐγγὺς not of the whole Series of Viſions, but of ſome of them only, and particularly of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem; and other ſome they are fain to expound of ſuch Events as have hapned but two hundred years ago, and of ſuch as are not to come to paſs before the End of the World. Which is a Demonſtration of the Inſolidity of this Exception againſt Mr. Mede's Method of interpreting this Book: Whoſe meaning for the general we having cleared from all poſſible Prejudices, let us now conſider the important Uſefulneſs thereof.

2. In the firſt place therefore, in my Apprehenſion it is the cleareſt and plaineſt Conviction that can be offered to the Underſtanding of a Man, That there is a ſpecial Providence over the Church of God, and That there are Angels, the Miniſters of this Providence, to conſider how there has been the Communication of Propheſies concerning the Affairs of the Church and Family of God by the Miniſtry of Angels appearing to his Servants the Prophets from Abraham's time, the Father of the Faithful, to this very Age and onwards; the Truth of the Events plainly lying before our Eyes, either in things that ſtill continue, or are to be read in undoubted Hiſtory. Which is a ſign that thoſe Prophets who ſaid they did commune with Angels, did not commune with their own Fancies, but had real Conference with thoſe Celeſtial Inhabitants. As Abraham certainly had Gen. 18. where the Angels tell him, That in him all the Nations of the Earth ſhall be bleſſed, namely, by Chriſt who was of his Seed. Nor did Daniel, when he was by the River * Ulai, talk with his own Shadow, as the Truth of the Event proves, but with an Angel; As alſo Gabriel was, who impartcd to him the Propheſie of the ſeventy Weeks, then which nothing can be more accurately anſwering to the Event. To which you may add thoſe Angels that appeared to him on the Banks of the River * Hiddekel, the Event of whoſe Predictions are partly come to paſs, and partly now fulfilling under * the Time and Times and half a time, which alſo are almoſt expired, and are the Period of the latter times pointed at by thoſe *Numbers, 1290 Days and 1335 Days mentioned by the Angel on the Banks of the River Hiddekel, as Mr. Mede has I think very ſolidly interpreted. Which general Intimations in Daniel's Propheſies are more particularly and more fully ſet out in the Apocalypſe of St. John: who alſo plainly profeſſeth himſelf to have had Conference with Angels; and his Viſions ſuiting the Events ſo punctually, it is a Demonſtration of both the continued Providence of God over his Church, and of the Exiſtence of thoſe Angelical Beings. Which is the firſt great Fruit and Uſe of this Book of the Apocalypſe, that he that reads and rightly obſerves the exact Applicableneſs of the Viſions to the Event, cannot doubt of the Exiſtence of God and of his holy Angels, nor of his ſpecial Providence over the Church.

*Dan. 8. 16.

*Chap. 10.

*Chap. 12. 7.

I might add alſo, nor of the Souls Immortality; Chriſt appearing ſo plainly to John, and ſpeaking to him in theſe Words, * I am he that liveth, and was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore, Amen: and have the Keys of Hell and Death, that is, of raiſing Men at the laſt Day, &c. To which you may add the Deſcription of the General Reſurrection, chap. 20. Which things being uttered by a Prophet whoſe Viſions hitherto ſo punctually anſwer the known Events of things, cannot but be an unexceptionable Demonſtration of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, and of our own Immortality: and indeed of the whole Truth of Chriſtianity, and eſpecially of thoſe two higheſt points thereof, the Divinity of Chriſt and the Triunity of the Godhead. For it being ſo generally acknowldged by the Church of God, That the Goſpel and the Epiſtle of St. John, and this Book of the Apocalypſe, have all one Author, as indeed the very Matter and Style of them do further argue, (the Phraſes and matter coming neareſt the Notions of the antient Cabbala of the Jews, as in particular, his uſing of the term Λόγος in them all concerning Chriſt;) it cannot but be a great Satisfaction that a Perſon ſo highly honoured with the Gift of Divine Revelation is ſo expreſs an Aſſertor of that holy Myſtery, as he is ſurely in the Beginning of his Goſpel. Which therefore even they are alſo to believe with Reverence that are not able to fit themſelves with any eaſie Conception thereof; it being not at all unreaſonable that one ſo highly inſpired as St. John, ſhould have ſomething communicated to him that paſſes the underſtanding of ordinary Capacities: So that Pride here muſt be the Mother of Unbelief. And this is the firſt and main general Uſe that may be made of this eminently-Divine Book of the Apocalypſe, and has reached, I muſt confeſs further then the Order of things requireth at this time: But I cannot but prefer the Uſefulneſs of my Diſcourſe before the Elegancy and accuracy of my propoſed Method.

*Rev. 1. 18.

3. But then ſecondly, There is alſo another excellent Uſe thereof even againſt thoſe whom either the Pretence to or Affectation of ſuch kind of Knowledge has made either to appear or really to be very mad and extravagant. For I think it not improbable that ſome Men may be content to appear this way minded upon Deſign and for Advantage. Which political Abuſe of the holy Oracles of God, is, in my Apprehenſion, one of the worſt and moſt execrable Kinds of Sacrilege that is. But by being well skilled in the meaning of the Viſions of this Book, we ſhall be the more able to defeat the evil Purpoſes of ſuch Enthuſiaſts and Impoſtours, who being wholly ignorant of the Affairs of the Kingdom of Chriſt, will yet pretend to be the great Inſtaurators of his Empire, and the Beginners of the bleſſed Millennium, and of the Reign of the Spirit. Whoſe Fraud and Villany is eaſily diſcoverable from the ſolidly-framed Synchroniſms of Mr. Mede.

I ſpeak chiefly in reference to that great Prophet of the Familiſts, whom I have *Revel. 11. 1. ſo often named, whoſe Impoſture is eaſily confutable out of the Apocalypſe. For the Church having continued for ſome Ages Symmetral, that is, * commenſurable to the Reed of the Angel (which Ages were before the Apoſtacy of the Church;) it is evident that the Faith and Practice of the Church Catholick then is allowable and approvable by the Rule of God, and therefore not to be reproved by Men, nor to be reformed any further than into that primitive State, when they held the Creed in the plain literal Senſe thereof without any Shuffling Allegories, as alſo the Diſtinction of Laity and Clergy, and met together in places ſet apart for publick Worſhip. Which is an undeniable Teſtimony out of this ſo divinely-inſpired Prophet St. John againſt all thoſe that would lay aſide the Perſon of Chriſt, and deny his Divinity with the Triunity of the Godhead, antiquate his Mediatorſhip, make no Diſtinction betwixt Laity and Clergy, would pull down Churches, with the like wild fanatical Profeſſions and Intentions. Which certainly would have been accounted abominable in thoſe Ages that the Church was Symmetral, which laſted till about four hundred Years from the Birth of Chriſt; as appears out of that ingenious Inference of Mr. Mede from the Proportion of the outward Court of the Temple to the inward, which according to Villalpandus is as 7 to 2, and therefore 1260 Days of Apoſtacy implys 360 Days of the Purity of the Church foregoing this Apoſtacy, which added to the Years from the Birth of Chriſt to his Suffering make up 400 Years or thereabouts. Or elſe, if you reckon from theſe very Times (wherein this Period of Apoſtacy ſhould be near its Expiration) backward, and take 1260 from 1660, there will remain 400 Years again: Till which time the Faith and Practice of the Catholick Church is out of the Viſions of the Apocalypſe aſſured to us as approvable before God. Which I look upon as a fit Engine to beat back the Fury of ſuch Reformers as thoſe Enthuſiaſts are I mentioned, and a Demonſtration that for all their Heat and Canting they are but Demoniacks, and no divinely-inſpired Men.

But as in Times that the Meſias was perſonally to come into the World, many Impoſtours inſtigated by the Devil ſtood up to deceive the People of the Jews, and brought them into ſuch Miſery and Miſchief; ſo now the Times being at hand that Chriſt is to appear in the Spirit, and the dead Witneſſes are to riſe up and rule, many falſe Diſpenſations will crowd in with Fury, Boldneſs, and Tumult, and pretend to be the true Diſpenſation. Which will not be prevented by ſlurring the main Scope of the Apocalypſe, and pretending that all the Matters there are meant either of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem or elſe of Rome Heathen, (this is but like the ſprinkling a little Water upon too violent a Fire, which will but make it rage the more;) but by applying our Minds more throughly to underſtand the Meaning of of these Divine Visions, that we may be the more able thereby to steer the Zeal of Men off from doing so much hurt as they may be instigated to do; that the Wheat be not burnt up with the Cockle, but that what is pure and Apostolical may be preserved.

And so also in Secular Affairs: Whereas the very Power of the Civil Magistrate and his Security is hazarded by wild and hot-spirited Men, that would raise a fifth Monarchy by Blood and Rapine, and tumble down all Government, according as either their own Enthusiastick Heat shall instigate, or Opportunity invite or give Leave; pretending that all Authority, all Orders and Degrees in this fourth Monarchy are unholy and prophane, and that they are the Pioners to level all plain and break all Government in pieces, that Christ, the fifth Monarch, may personally' come and begin his Millenial Empire upon Earth; it behoves the Christian Rulers, whether Ecclesiastical or Civil, to be so well acquainted with the Meaning of these Prophesies, that they may be able to stop the Mouths of these loud Fanaticks by those holy Oracles they pervert thus and abuse, and to shew them that there is no Proof at all of such things as they thus vainly imagine: as assuredly there is not, as I have already shewn in my Interpretation of the fourth and fifth Verses of the twentieth Chapter; and that it was both the Doctrine of the Apostles, and the Practice of the Church, while it was Symmetral, to obey the Magistrate and live peaceably under him, though he were an Heatheu: How much more then are they to obey them that are Christians? That Superiour and Inferiour are as natural to People as Head and Feet in an humane Body; and that therefore no Man can decry Government but out of Madness or some villianous Design to enthrawl others at last under the Yoke of their own lawless Fury. That there are Kings and Governours under the renewed State of things in the Millennium, as appears Rev. 21. 24. and that no Frame of Government can be evil where Governours rule by a good Law. And lastly, That to make any thing essentially evil or good that is in it self indifferent, and left so by Christ and his Apostles, is a fundamental Transgression against the Law of the New Jerusalem, whose Foundation and Structure is all upon Twelve. But instead of convincing them by what is true, to endeavour to stop their Fury by imposing upon them by false Glosses, is the next way to imbolden them the more, and make them contemn the Authority of them that should guide them and instruct them. For the prefiguration of the Apostacy of the Church, and her Recovery out of it (which may be done, at least without changing any Temporal Powers and Superiorities) is a thing so plain that it cannot be hid.

4 A third Use of the Apocalypse is the answering a very crooked Objection both from the Jew and Atheist. For seeing things have been so ill for so many Ages of the Church together, that the World has grown Pagan again after a manner, and that the Turk has also swallowed so great a part of the Church; surely there is no true Religion at all, nor Providence, will the Atheist say; and the Jew, as that their Messiah is not yet come, Idolatry having in a manner filled all the Nations that profess him. But to both we may answer, That nothing has happened in all this but what was foreseen by God, and predicted plainly in these Visions of the Apocalypse; to say nothing of what Daniel had more generally adumbrated before. Which therefore is rather an Argument for Providence then against it, and a Demonstration of the Messiah's faithful Vigilancey over his Church, rather then of his not yet having gathered one in the World. For it is plain that Christ is the Author of those holy Visions, and that the great Plagues that have fallen upon the Church, either by the Turk or others, have been by reason of their Apostacy from the Purity of the Apostolick Faith and Practice.

5. A fourth Use, and that an eminent one, of the Apocalypse is, to be as a clear Mirrour of both the Apostacy of the Church and of the Way of her Recovery. The Apostacy of the Church is intimated more generally in the Number of the Name of the Beast, whose Root being 25, as the Root of the Number of the Apostolick Church 12, intimates that their Apostacy consists, in the general, of adding to the Root and Foundation of Christian Religion supernumerary Articles of their own Invention and coining, being not contented with the Essentials or Fundamentals of Faith, which were plainly and clearly delivered by the twelve Apostle, and are easily without any Dispute and Contest understood to be in the holy Scriptures. I intimated also before from the Root of 666, being 25, resolvable also into 5 again, That their Apostatical Religion was framed chiefly to gratifie and entertain the external Senses, that it began there and ended there, and let the Diviner and more heavenly Notions of the Mind lye a ſleep. But yet more particularly this Apoſtacy is indigitated by the Square 666; as if the Poiſon of the ſixth Head of the Beaſt, that red bloody Dragon, that is, cruel Perſecution and Idolatry, were ſpread through

ly

Rev. 13. the Body of the Apoſtatized Church: Whoſe chief part the Two-horned Beaſt muſt needs be, who made the whole Roman Empire very lively reſemble the Beaſt, whoſe deadly Wound he healed, that is, the antient Pagan Power. But enough of this, it deing a Theam that will be over-eagerly liſtned to by ſome, and obſtinately, without any Conſideration and Reaſon, rejected by others.

6. But this Apocalyptick Glaſs is not only for the Romaniſt but all the Churches of Chriſtendom to look their Faces in, and to conſider how much they are ſtill engaged, or how far emerged out of this Lapſe and Apoſtacy, or whether they be quite emerged out of it or no. For I muſt confeſs I do much ſcruple the matter, and that upon account of the 1260 Days, wherein the Woman is in the Wilderneſs, and the Witneſſes mourn in Sackcloth. Concerning the Epocha of which Days the very higheſt Mr. Mede pitches upon is 1260, namely, from the Death of Julian, which will end the 1260 Days, Anno 1625. But many Years before this were there the ſame different Churches that there are now. Wherefore it is a ſign that the Woman was not then, nor yet is, out of the Wilderneſs; but that the true Church is ſtill hid in theſe Diviſions of Churches, and that all hitherto for the outward Face of things is but a wild Deſart.

Moreover thoſe Diviſions of Churches which were made about an hundred Years ago, and which immediately became the Churches of this or that Polity; if thoſe Alterations then had been into a way purely Apoſtolical, it had been plainly the enlivening of the Witneſſes, and the calling of them into Heaven, many Years before the Expiration of the 1260 Days. Which is a ſtrong Preſumption all is not yet right, and that the Witneſſes are not yet alive, nor the Woman yet out of the Wilderneſs.

7. Wherefore out of a due Humility and Modeſty ſuſpecting our ſelves not to have emerged quite out of this General Apoſtacy of the Church, into which the Spirit of God has foretold ſhe would be lapſed for 1260 Years; let us ſee if we can find out what Remainders of this Lapſe are ſtill upon us. Which I ſuppoſe we ſhall be the more ready to acknowledge, by how much the more they ſhall be found to ſymbolize with that Church whom we juſtly judge to be ſo manifeſt an Apoſtate. Now I demand, Is not one fundamental Miſcarriage in that Church, That they make things Fundamental that are not, and mingle their own humane Inventions with the infallible Oracles of God, and imperiouſly obtrude them upon the People? We are very ſenſible our ſelves of this in Ceremonies. And are not uncertain and uſeleſs Opinions as arrant a Ceremony as Ceremonies themſelves, which we ſo kick againſt and fly away from, like wild Horſes? Nay I may add alſo, That it will be hard to waſh our Hands clean from that other Badge of the Beaſt, Unchriſtian Perſecution in Points of Religion, and that for differences where Chriſt himſelf has made none, but our ſelves only imagine them.

Again, as for Idolatry, another known Character of the Beaſt, cannot we find that alſo amongſt our ſelves? I do not mean Covetouſneſs only, which the Apoſtle calls Idolatry, but the adventuring to erect Imaginations, if not Images, of God, ſome more horrid and affrightful than thoſe that ſtand in the moſt polluted Temples of the Pagans, (the Statue of Saturn tearing his own Children a-pieces with his Teeth and eating of them, is but an Hieroglophick of Mercy in compariſon thereof;) while in the mean time the mournful Witneſſes teſtifie both out of Moſes and out of St. John, That the true Nature of God is quite another thing. God is Love, and he that abideth in Love abideth in God, and God in him. The Lord, the Lord God, gracious and merciful, long-ſuffering, and abundant in Goodneſs and Truth. And yet what forcible Aſſaults are there to ſet up this Idol or falſe Image in the Temple of every man's Mind, which otherwiſe ſhould be conſecrated to the Love of God and the warm and comfortable Reſidence of his Holy Spirit? That alſo is a blind Image of God, worſe than the Pagan Cupid, which ſome conceited Fondlings ſet up in favour of themſelves, That God ſees no ſin in his Elect, let them ſin never ſo groſly; whenas the Scripture expreſly affirms, That his Eyes behold, his Eye-lids try the Children of Men, and That he is of purer Eyes than to endure Iniquity any where. To ſay nothing that Opinions themſelves that are framed by humane Curioſity in points of Religion, though otherwiſe harmleſs, become Idols, and have the very ſame effect that Idols have, that is, They lay aſleep the Mind, and beſot it ſo, that it becomes ſenſeleſs of the indiſpenſable Motions of the Divine Life. And further, ther, That the tricking up our selves with such Curiosities is but a a self-chosen Holiness, and a worshipping and serving God after our own Humour, which assuredly is little better than Idolatry.

8. And lastly, more compendiously and at once, Let us consider the Nature of the Witnesses slain by the Beast of the bottomless Pit. Which is a childish thing to conceit to be Two Persons, forasmuch as they prophesie for 1260 Years together, as Mr. Mede has well defined; and I also add, that they are dead in another sense even that time they are said to prophesie, as I have * above noted, and I think there is very little doubt to be made of the Interpretation. Let us therefore now consider what these Two Witnesses are. And truly, according to the Richness of Prophetick Expression, I do not think they are restrained to one single Signification, but type out at last these two things, The Old and New Testament, which by a Prosopopœia are here called the Two Witnesses; or else The Magistracy and Ministry, forasmuch as those things they are described by, are Allusions to Moses and Aaron, and to Zerobabel and Joshua. The Concinnity of the former Interpretation does not depend only on that obvious Allusion to that latine Word Testament, but is further ratified by the Greek μαρτύριον, μαρτύρια frequently signifying the Laws or Institutes of God, rendred also for עדות, διαθήκη. Not to add, that the Old and New Testament are, whether they are called so or no, two eximious Witnesses of the Mind of God unto the World.

* Chap. 15. Sect. 4.

Where is the probability of this so long before the existence of the collection, since called the N. T.?

Wherefore now, more Prophetico, making these two Books two Persons, they may be said to be alive, or slain, either in a Political, or Moral Sense. They would be alive in a Political Sense, if they had the only Rule in the Transactions of the Affairs of Church and Commonwealth: that there should be no Injunctions as indispensable in matters of Religion, but such as they plainly determine, much less any thing against them. And so likewise in State-Affairs all Oppression and Tyranny would be prohibited. Wherefore while the Inventions of Men rule in the Church instead of the Dictates of those holy Oracles, and while course Oppression and Tyranny over the Members of Christ is prevalent, that is, while Men think they have Power and Wealth, and Wit and Policy, merely to tread down the People, and not to succour them and guide them for their real Good, and to ennoble their Spirits as much as they are capable, rather than to make them besotted Vassals and Slaves, to put out their Eyes, to make Mill-Horses of them, that they may the better droil and drudge for the Satisfaction of their Lusts; whereever things are carried on this way, the Beast of the bottomless Pit has slain the two Witnesses in the Political Sense, the Law of God in the mean time protesting against their Proceedings, both in the Old and New Testament, as is plain to every one that peruses those Writings.

The Witnesses also would be alive in a Moral Sense, if those indispensable Precepts of Life witnessed by them were really turned into Life and Practice in us. For the external Word is but a dead Letter, but then is properly alive, when that Life is begotten in us whereof it testifies. Which if it be neglected; as also their Rule, so far forth as it respects ecclesiastick Policy, be declined, and Men act, both in political Affairs and in their private Capacities, according to the Rules of Men and their unprofitable Institutes, and thereby neglect the indispensable Commands of God; who cannot but see that the Two Witnesses we speak of are plainly slain, and that the Old and New Testament are but as two liveless Carcases, lying unburied indeed, (for they will not burn them, and put their Ashes in an Urne, and hide them under Ground, for fear of the People) but useless and unactive, having no Power to curb the wicked Enormities of the World, who have taken up another self-chosen Law to themselves, minted and forged by the false Antichristian Church, consistent enough with, nay very favourable to, all those Pomps and Vanities that we are sworn against in our very Baptism? Whence it is said, that the Inhabitants of the World are so glad and triumphant and send Gifts to one another upon the slaying of the Witnesses, their Death conducing so much to the uncurbed Fruition of all worldly and carnal Enjoyments; but the Church in the mean time becoming no better than Sodom* and Ægypt, a Land of Tyranny and Beastliness, a City of Carnality and Oppression.

Rev. 11. 10.

* Verse 8.

Wherein (to proceed to the other Sense) Moses and Aaron, Zerobabel and Joshua, the holy and legitimate Magistracy and Ministry are slain, that is, kept out of all political Power by this Beast out of the bottomless Pit, ἐκ τῆς ἀβύσσου. Which as it may signifie the Sea, may be understood of the ten-horned Beast; but as it may a deep

a deep Pit in the Earth, ſuch as that from whence Smoke came and the Locuſts,
*Rev. 13. 11. may ſignifie the two-horned Beaſt, who is ſaid to come out of the Earth*, and is the Maſter of that Wiſdom that is earthly, ſenſual, and deviliſh, and which is accompanied with bloody Zeal and Strife about their vain and uſeleſs Opinions and Ceremonies.

This, I believe, we will be prone enough to acknowledge againſt others, namely in thoſe Dominions wherein Popery has ſo great a Stroke: but it is more to our Advantage to examine alſo what is amiſs at home. For it does not follow, becauſe the Number of the Beaſt is not upon us, that we do not Beſtianize; nor is it the purple Spots, but the Diſeaſe, that is mortiferous. But the Caſe is as if a Man not yet knowing Sheep from Goats, ſhould be told, that thoſe in ſuch a Paſture that had ſuch a Mark or Figure upon them, were Goats: It were a fond thing for him to think that this Mark or Figure were ſo of the Eſſence of a Goat, but that, when in another place he met with a Creature ſo ſhaped, of the like Bigneſs, and with ſuch a Cry as a Goat has, he might take the Boldneſs to pronounce that that was a Goat too, though the aboveſaid Marks were wanting. Wherefore let us impartially conſider whether we be yet pure Sheep or no.

If the Witneſſes be dead in both a Moral and Political Senſe amongſt us, that is, if we follow the Name or Authority of any Man, and be ruled more by that than the plain Scriptures; if we are not content with ſuch a Faith as is plain out of them, and was the Faith of the Church when it was Symmetral; if by fulſome and courſe Antinomianiſm, by the Doctrine of the Needleſneſs or Impoſſibility of being good and of living according to the Precepts of Chriſt, we hinder the Scripture from being alive in us, and by mingling Conceits of our own and imperiouſly impoſing of them upon others Hazard with ſome Belief of the whole, and keep others out of ſuch place and Authority as naturally falls to their Share, though never ſo cordial and exemplary Chriſtians according to the old Symmetral Pattern; we, having thus tranſgreſſed that holy, antient and apoſtolick Number (12) by our new-fangled Additions, and adding alſo Perſecution thereto, do as certainly become or continue part of the Beaſt, as the Goat is a Goat without the above-ſaid Mark or Figure upon him.

Nor ſhall we ever be quit from the Crime of ſlaying of the Witneſſes, till we lay aſide all Heat and Pride in prefering our own Opinions, whereby we do but make void the weighty Precepts of Life, and make the Commandments of God of none effect by our Traditions; engaging the Affectious of the People in things that are unprofitable, and inuring them to lie cool to the indiſpenſable Law of Chriſt. Which is truly to ſlay the Witneſſes, and to let them lie ſtark dead in the Streets. And while thoſe that govern, govern for themſelves, and love to feel their own Power, and forget that the very Rule of their Government is the Comfort and Ennoblement of the Spirits of the People, (that they may be free and knowing, faithful Chriſtians and Subjects) and that whatever any one has, it is given him for the Good of another, and not for the Satisfaction of his own vain Luſts: while ſuch Miſcarriages as theſe are in either Miniſtry or Magiſtracy, Supream or Subordinate, in what meaſure theſe are, in that meaſure is Moſes and Aaron, Zerobabel and Joſhua, the Old Teſtament and the New Teſtament ſlain and caſt out dead into the Streets; and all Power, (let it change into what Frame it can) but the playing of the Leviathan in the Waters of the Sea, making the deep boil before him, and leaving an hoary Tract of Froth after him, boaſting himſelf in his Power and Title that he is the Prince of the Children of Pride.

9. Wherefore that Millennial Happineſs that ſome Men talk ſo loud of, is not in demoliſhing of all Ranks and Orders of Superiority in Church or State, which things are natural and neceſſary; but in the right Adminiſtration of Affairs in both, by thoſe Orders of Men. Who if they would reform all things according to the Apoſtolical Rule, and inſtitute ſuch a Diſcipline as would countenance the indiſpenſable Life of God, not the unprofitable Humours of raſh and fallible Men; and every one in their Rank would pay their Duties of Support and Succour to the People, that every Man that is honeſt and virtuous might live according to his Quality in a Chriſtian comfortable way; the Tributes of Honours and Titles to ſuch Orders of Men are but their juſt due, and become as well uſeful as ornamental to the World. It is therefore but a Fanatick or Satanick Fury in ſuch that under pretence of uſhering in the fifth Monarchy, as they call it, would deſtroy all Orders and Ranks in Church and State, as if the Wrath of Man could work the Righteouſneſs of God: when neither neither these Orders themselves have any Unholiness in them, nor the Persons haply in possession are less Saints then they that would pull them down. For if the enriching a Man's self by the Destruction of others entitle a Man to Saintship, the greatest Robbers are in the readiest way to enter into the Holy of Holies. But such Zelots as these, what miserable Redeemers they are like to prove, is too sadly prefigured by that Jewish Faction at Jerusalem, more intolerable by far to the Inhabitants then the Enemy that besieged them.

Wherefore the gaping after a fifth Monarchy in this sense, can be nothing else but the thirsting after Spoil and Blood, many Men being stimulated thereto by the secret Sting of the old Serpent in Envy to the Church of Christ, hoping to root out the Gospel by destroying of setled Authority, and by starving the Ministry, and so to bring in a rabble of Fanatical Superstitions, or Atheistical Prophanenesses. The most certain Prevention whereof, in my Judgment, is the Reduction of the Church, by those that are in Authority, to such a Frame as is purely Apostolical. For then the Constitution of things will be so sacred and unexeeptionable, that it will awe and keep off the Villany and Boldness of such Men that are otherwise encouraged by the conspicuous intermixture of things false, idolatrous and impious, to flie against all at once, and to rend all into pieces. Besides that they row with the Stream, and Tide of Divine Vengeance will carry them along; which will ever and anon flow in upon the Church, till a true and sincere Reformation. For there is no Stability to be expected till that City be raised, whose not only Foundation is laid in Twelve, but whose Gates, Tribes, Angels, the Breadth and Height of the Wall, and the solid Content of the whole City, are nothing else but the Replication still of Twelve throughout, that is to say, till that Church appear that is purely Apostolical in Life and Doctrine.

10. Which times being so very near at hand, as appears by compute of Prophesie, it should be a great Encouragement for every one to look thither-ward, and to shake off that Dulness and Lethargicalness that has possess'd the World so long, as if it would never be better. For this Article of Infidelity among the rest keeps the Witnesses still dead in all the Senses above-named. Wherefore let every Man reform himself, and exhort and encourage his Neighbour, and witness the good Witness of the Power of God to the conquering and subduing of all manner of Sin. For these times come not on by Rapine and Violence, but by the increase of Righteousness upon Earth. For the real and speedy Advancement whereof there is nothing more effectual than the Belief that God will now, in these last time of all, give more than ordinary Assistance to them that will be faithful in his Covenant, and that the Work of Righteousness will go on with much more Ease than hithertofore and with infinitely better Success.

Wherefore it is good striking while the Iron is hot, and making use of this Day of Salvation, lest such Prophesies of Grace being conditional, it may fare with us as it did with the Israelites whose Carcases fell in the Wilderness, in a tedious delay and a long leading them about, who otherwise had in their own Persons entred the promised Land. So I do not see that it is impossible or improbable but this Prophesie of the Churches change into so excellent a State may be foreslacked by the ill Management and Faithlessness of them from whom God more peculiarly expects that they should be industrious Labourers in this white Harvest of Apostolick Purity and Sanctity; they having now for some time separated from the great Babylon to build those that are lesser and more tolerable, but yet not to be tolerated for ever; it being more than high time they should clear up into an holy City of God. Otherwise I do not see but the Success is likely to answer the Endeavours of them that are chiefly concerned. And the Variety of numbring the Period of time by Days, Months, and Semi-Times seems to threaten some such matter. And therefore according to that laxer Computation by Months and Semi-times, seems there may lie hid a Reserve of Delay for thirty, nay, an hundred or two hundred years longer than God otherwise intended to commence this glorious Dispensation. But the Certainty of the Events of other Propheſies that preceed in order, if this Promise be not conditional to both Jew and Christian, is a Demonstration that it will not fail to take effect.

This is the faithfulest Account that I can give of the Affairs of Christendom from the pouring out of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles, till Christ's Coming again in the Spirit to renew his lapsed Church into true Holiness and Righteousness in the rising of the Witnesses and the reigning of the Saints upon Earth a thousand Years. The Close of which will be the Day of Judgment properly so called which, after this long but not impertinent Digression, if it be a Digression, we shall now take into Consideration.

BOOK VI.

CHAP. I.

1. Three chief things conſiderable in Chriſt's Return to Judgment, viz. The Viſibility of his Perſon, The Reſurrection of the Dead, and the Conflagration of the World. 2. Places of Scripture to prove the Viſibility of his Perſon. 3. That there will be then a Reſurrection of the Dead, not in a Moral but a Natural Senſe, demonſtrated from undeniable places of Scripture. 4. Proofs out of Scripture for the Conflagration of the World, as out of Peter, the 3 Chap. of his ſecond Epiſtle. 5. An Interpretation of the 12 and 13 Verſes. 6. A Demonſtratoon that the Apoſtle there deſcribes the Conflagration of the World. 7. A Confutation of their Opinion that would interpret the Apoſtle's Deſcription of the burning of Jeruſalem. 8. That the Coming of Chriſt ſo often mentioned in theſe two Epiſtles of Peter is to be underſtood of his laſt Coming to Judgment. 9, 10. Further Confirmation of the ſaid Aſſertion. 11. Other places pointed at for the proving of the Conflagration.

1. IN the Return of Chriſt to Judgment theſe three things are to be conſidered as very nearly annected and comprehended in it; The Viſibility of his Perſon and Pomp of his Coming, The Reſurrection of the Dead, and Conflagration of the World. But becauſe all theſe things are doubted by ſome that do not profeſs themſelves Anti-Scripturiſts, I ſhall firſt produce ſuch places of Scripture as do plainly aſſert theſe Points, and then in the next place ſhew how Reaſonable the Aſſertion is.

2. The Viſible or Perſonal Return of Chriſt to Judgment, though it may be proved from many places, yet I ſhall content my ſelf with a few. And I muſt confeſs I look upon the 24 of Matth. from the 30 to the 32 Verſe, (where the Son of Man is ſaid to come in the Clouds of Heaven, with Power and great Glory, and to ſend out his Angels with a mighty Sound of a Trumpet) to be a pregnant Teſtimony thereof. But the 29 Verſe to be a Deſcription of the State of the World, eſpecially of the Roman Empire, till the Appearance of the Sign of the Son of Man. But whether this Sign of the Son of Man be the ſame with the Son of Man coming in the Clouds, or ſome Sign in the Heavens to be given long before his coming, for the Converſion of the Jews, I take not upon me to decide. But from the 32 to the 36 Verſe, I think there our Saviour may re-aſſume his firſt Subject, the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem; and therefore being within the View of the Temple and of the City, he uſes the pronoun πᾶντα theſe things, in his Propheſie of them. But in the 36 Verſe, purſuing his Prediction of the End of the World, he ſays περὶ δὲ τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης, but concerning THAT Day: and ſo he gives wholeſome Precepts of Watchfulneſs to his Church, to the End of this Chapter. Which ſenſe is very agreeable to the following Chapter, which moſt eaſily and naturally is
* Mat. 25. 31. wholly to be underſtood of the laſt Judgment. But from the 31 Verſe of that Chapter to the End, even they that would wind the former part of the Chapter to another ſenſe, acknowledge it to be underſtood of the laſt Day. And there the Viſible Pomp of Chriſt coming to judge the World is plainly ſet down, viz. his ſitting upon a Throne with his holy Angels about him. To theſe you may add the *Acts 1. v. 11. *Teſtimony of the two Men clothed in white ſhining Raiments, that told the Diſciples as they were gazing up into Heaven after Chriſt, as he aſcended, that he ſhould come down again in the ſame manner as they had ſeen him go into Heaven: As alſo that of St. Paul to the Theſſalonians, For the Lord himſelf ſhall deſcend
1 Theſ. 4. 16, 17. from Heaven with a Shout, with the Voice of the Archangel and with the Trump of God; and the Dead in Chriſt ſhall riſe firſt. Then we which are alive and remain, ſhall be caught up together with them in the Clouds to meet the Lord in the Air, and ſo ſhall we be ever with the Lord. Theſe places are ſo plain concerning the Viſible Appearance of Chriſt's Perſon in his coming to Judgment, that no tolerable Allegory can elude them.

3. That there will be a Reſurrection of the dead (in a natural not a moral Senſe) at the ſame time, is as evident from the very laſt Words I cited. For who but a mad-

Man

† We may draw from hence the ſtrongeſt ſupport of the Fact of the Aſcenſion, or at leaſt of the (& of course of the first generation of Chriſtians) belief of it. For had they not believed his aſcent, whence could they have borne the univerſal expectation of his deſcent? his bodily perſonal deſcent?

Man will interpret the meeting of Christ in the Air in a moral Sense? If it had been written [in the Heavens,] they would have shuffled it off, and said, in the Heavenly Being or Heavenly Nature mystically understood. But will they have the Impudence not to acknowledge the Airiness and Phantastry of their Mysteries of Incredulity, when they must according to the same Analogy be driven to say that we shall at the Resurrection meet Christ in the Airy Being mystically understood? But it is as false a Gloss to interpret the Doctrine of the Resurrection 1 Cor. 15. so as to exclude the Natural and Physical Sense of it, it being plain that such a Death and such a Resurrection is spoken of concerning us, as is argued from the Death and the Resurrection of Christ, who is said to die ὑπὲρ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν ἡμῶν, for our Sins; which is impossible to be interpreted mystically. Read from the first to the eleventh Verse, it is a plain History. From whence the Apostle infers that there is a blessed Resurrection or glorious Immortality in Body and Soul, which Christ will bestow on all true Believers at the last Day: as himself has promised over and over again in the sixth of St. John's Gospel, [and I will raise him up at the last Day.] Many other places there are to this purpose in Scripture which I willingly omit.

4. The third and last is the Conflagration of the World, of which I hold that of St. Peter an undeniable Testimony; But the Day of the Lord shall come as a Thief in the Night; in which the Heavens shall pass away with a Noise, and the Elements shall melt with fervent Heat, the Earth also and the Works therein shall be burnt up. The Explication of which Prophesie Mr. Jos. Mede has set down with a great deal of Caution and Judgment. To which I should wholly subscribe, did I not believe that this Execution of Fire were the very last visible Judgment God would do upon the Rebellious Generations of Adam, leaving them then to tumble with the Devils in unsupportable Torment and Confusion. 2 Pet. 3. 10.

5. And therefore I would expound καινὸς ὃ ἀρχαὶς verse 13. But notwithstanding, or nevertheless, before this Conflagration of the Earth we expect a new Heaven and a new Earth, in a political Sense, in which Righteousness shall dwell. Nor does that Phrase verse 12. προσδοκῶντας καὶ σπεύδοντας looking for and hastning the coming of the Day of God, warrant any one to restrain this Prophesie to a moral Meaning, as if it were only high Expressions signifying something in our own Power and to be done by us. For προσδοκᾶν καὶ σπεύδειν may be either an Ἓν διὰ δυοῖν, and denote no more than κατὰ σπουδὴν προσδοκᾶν, that is, with great Earnestness and Diligence to expect; or if so be you take them for two several things, and σπεύδοντας must signify hastning, that Sense is also consistent enough with our Interpretation. For being the Day of the Lord is a Day of great Joy and ample Remunerations to the Godly, as well as of Destruction to the Wicked, (and suppose it also comes not till Righteousness has had its Reign upon Earth) we may well be exhorted by our Prayers and Conversations to hasten and accelerate as much as in us lies the coming of either.

6. But that by no such mystical Interpretation as this the Earth can be excused from being burnt by a visible add palpable Fire, is clear beyond all Exception from the 5, 6 and 7 Verses of this Chapter. Where the Apostle alledges against that usual Refuge and Security of Atheists, to wit, The Sameness and Immutableness of the Law of Nature and the Order or Course of things, that all things are as they were from the Beginning, and ever will be so, and that therefore God will never step out in such an extraordinary way to Judgment; To this the Apostle opposes that eminent Example of God's Vengeance in bringing the Flood upon the old World, and drowning the Earth in an immense Deluge of Water: But the Heavens and the Earth which are now, saith he, are reserved unto Fire against the Day of Judgment and Perdition of ungodly Men. Were the Waters in Noah's time natural, when God had a Controversie with all Flesh, and shall the Fire that the World shall be destroyed with be spiritual? But light-minded Men whose Hearts are made dark with Infidelity, care not what Antick Distorsions they make in interpreting Scripture, so they bring it but to any shew of Compliance with their own Fancy and Incredulity.

7. I know there be that would understand by this burning of Heaven and Earth, the Destruction of the City of Jerusalem. But the Description is too big by far for so small a Work, and not likely to be understood of them it was intended as a Comfort to, it being so exceedingly well fitted to the Conflagration of the World, and so disproportionated to the other Event. Moreover it is manifest from the Scoffer's arguing againſt the Promiſe of Chriſt's coming ver. 4. (That Nature keeps ſtill the ſame Courſe it did ſince the beginning) that this Coming of Chriſt was not underſtood by them (and conſequently not by St. Peter) of the burning of a City by War, (For ſuch things have happened often, and ſo they might not think it improbable Jeruſalem might be burnt in due time;) but of that final glorious coming of Chriſt to judge the World, which Judgment the Conflagration of the Earth is to attend.

8. And truly if a Man will but weigh things without Prejudice, he ſhall find the main matter of theſe two Epiſtles to be nothing elſe but an Exhortation to grow perfect and eſtabliſhed in all Chriſtian Virtues from the Hope of that excellent Reward that ſhall be beſtowed at the appearing and coming of the Lord Jeſus: as
2 Pet. 1. 11. you may ſee in this ſecond Epiſtle, the firſt Chapter, For ſo an Entrance ſhall be adminiſtred unto you abundantly into the everlaſting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour
1 Pet. 1. 4. Jeſus Chriſt. Which is parallel to that in his firſt, where the Promiſe is an Inheritance incorruptible and undefiled that fadeth not away, reſerved in the Heavens; and ſo on to the thirteenth Verſe. Which Verſes doubtleſs no unbyaſſed Judgment will ever underſtand of a Delivery from any Temporal Calamity, much leſs the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, from which place thoſe diſperſed Jews were far enough removed, as far as Pontus, Cappadocia, Aſia, Galatia, Bithynia. To ſay nothing that the ſo-careful an Inculcation of that ſad Theam of the fatal Deſtruction of the holy City would not ſo much become the Pen of this venerable Apoſtle, nor the Guſt of them he wrote to, being Jews by Nation as well as Chriſtians: to neither of which Capacities could that fearful Deſtruction of their City be ſo comfortable a Contemplation, whenas it drew Tears from our Saviour's Eyes, though at a greater diſtance of Time. And his great Solicitude that they ſhould have theſe
*2 Pet. 1. 12, 13, 14, 15. & Chap. 3. 1. things always in *Remembrance after his Death, is a Sign that what he inſiſts upon is a matter of more Conſequence and longer Continuance then what reſpects the Burning of the City.

9. Furthermore, the Argument whereby he would ſet on theſe things upon the Spirits and belief of them he wrote to, that he was an Eye-Witneſs of the 2 Pet. 1. 16, 17, 18. glorious Transfiguration of Chriſt, when his Perſon appeared in that Splendour which might become a glorified Body, ſuch as himſelf will appear in at his Return to Judgment, makes it ſtill more reaſonable that that δύναμις καὶ παρουσία, that powerful coming of Chriſt there mentioned, is his final coming to Glory, when he ſhall change our vile Bodies into the Similitude of his glorious Body according to the working of his mighty Power. This chief Article therefore of the Chriſtian Faith, in which all Chriſtians are the moſt highly concerned, was that which the Apoſtle did preſs ſo earneſtly and carefully upon them before his Departure, which was the chief Prop of their Faith and Patience, and which he affirmed from a ſpecial Experiment of his own in that glorious Transfiguration on the Mount, (where Moſes and Elias talked with Chriſt, which was a moſt certain Argument of the Soul's Immortality) to be no cunningly-contrived Fiction, but a certain Truth, both from what he ſaw there before his Eyes, and what he heard diſcourſed at that holy Meeting. Where the Paſſion of Chriſt was treated of, and the exceeding glorious Conſequences of it; of which the greateſt of all, is his laſt Return to Judgment, when he ſhall conſummate the Happineſs of all Believers with everlaſting Glory, and ſo reſtore the Creation to a perfect Recovery into what they had fallen from, and puniſh the obſtinate with eternal Fire. Which things being declared without the Circumſtance of the Series of Time, it was eaſie for thoſe three Auditors on the Mount to conceive them to be very ſhortly to come to paſs, and therefore to make that Enquiry of Elias his coming firſt, according as their Scribes taught them out of Malachi; if ſimply the Appearance of Elias and his going away again, contrary to their Expectation and Deſire, did not put them upon that Queſtion.

10. But that the glorious Coming or powerful Preſence of Chriſt, which he ſo ſolicitouſly would aſcertain them of, is not his coming to deſtroy Jeruſalem, appears further from the nineteeth Verſe of this Chapter; where after he has endea-
2 Pet. 1. 19. voured to eſtabliſh them in the Belief of that main Article, from the reſplendent Transfiguration of the Perſon of Chriſt (of which he was an Eye-Witneſs on Mount Tabour, as alſo an Ear-Witneſs of that Voice from Heaven, This is my beloved Son, and of that precious Promiſe that he was to be the Performer of at the laſt Day; which Transfiguration was a viſible Pledge of his being inveſted into that ſupereminent Office of the glorious Judge of the quick and the dead) and had recommended to them alſo the Propheſies of the Old Teſtament as a Light that ſhines in the dark to give ſome Direction; yet he inſinuates further, that they ſhall have a more clear and firm Aſſurance of this ſo concerning a Truth, the Day dawning and the Day-Star ariſing at length in their Hearts. Which is very harſh to apply to any thing but to the more clear Conviction, by the Spirit of God in their Souls, of the Truth of this Promiſe of an eternal Reward, of that Crown of a bleſſed Immortality to be given at Chriſt's Return to Judgment at the laſt Day. Theſe and ſuch like Conſiderations make it ſeem to me utterly incredible that by this fiery Deſtruction ſhould be underſtood the burning of Jeruſalem, and not the Conflagration of the Earth; and by the appearing and coming of Chriſt ſo often mentioned in theſe Epiſtles, his Vengeance on the Jews, and not his final Return to judge the whole World: a Suppoſition in my Apprehenſion far more agreeable to the Weight and Gravity of this Apoſtle's Style.

eminent

Thus much by the way for the reſcuing of theſe two excellent Epiſtles to that more natural and more ſolemn and uſeful Senſe they were ever underſtood in, till of late; though I muſt confeſs they have not depraved the meaning of the ſeventh Verſe of the laſt Chapter of the ſecond Epiſtle, it being indeed impoſſible to interpret it otherwiſe then of the burning of the World, which alone is ſufficient for our preſent purpoſe.

11. We might add ſeveral other Paſſages as well in the Prophets as in the Apocalypſe and other places, that tend to the ſame Purpoſe with this of St. Peter, for the proving of this final Judgment of God by Fire; as alſo ſuch places of Scripture elſewhere as imply that there is ſome notorious Puniſhment reſerved for the Devils, which ſhall be inflicted upon them at laſt. For when and upon what occaſion can it begin ſo fitly as at the Conflagration of the World? That there is a certain horrible Torment in Store for them is plain from Matth. 8. 29. Art thou come to torment us before the time? And 2 Pet. 2. 4. (as alſo Ep. of Jude. ver. 6.) where the Devils are ſaid to be reſerved in Chains of Darkneſs unto the Judgment of the great Day, σειραῖς ζόφου ταρταρώσας παρέδωκε. That God has confined them to this lower Region of caliginous Air as to a dark Priſon till the great Aſſizes, as ſome very judiciouſly expound it. With which places if you compare that laſt Malediction or ſevere Sentence of our Saviour againſt the wicked, Go ye curſed into everlaſting Fire prepared for the Devil and his Angels, it will be very eaſie to infer what this final Puniſhment is, and when, and how it will begin. But we need not inſiſt upon theſe things, we having ſufficiently proved the point already.

CHAP. II.

1. The Fitneſs and Neceſſity of Chriſt's viſible Return to Judgment. 2. Further Arguments of his Return to Judgment, for the convincing of them that believe the Miraculouſneſs of his Birth, his Transfiguration, his Aſcenſion, &c. 3. Arguments directed to thoſe that are more prone to Infidelity, taken out of Hiſtory, where ſuch things are found to have happened already in ſome meaſure as are expected at Chriſt's viſible Appearance. 4. That before extraordinary Judgments, there have uſually ſtrange Prodigies appeared by the Miniſtry of Angels, as before great Plagues or Peſtilences. 5. As alſo before the Ruine of Countries by War. 6. Before the ſwallowing down Antioch by an Earthquake. 7. At the firing of Sodom and Gomorrah. 8. And laſtly, before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

1. IT remains now that we ſhew, That theſe three main Circumſtances of Chriſt's coming to Judgment (which we have proved to be contained in the Myſtery of our Religion) are in themſelves congruous and reaſonable. Which we ſhall firſt make good concerning the viſible Pomp and glorious Appearance of the Perſon of Chriſt in the Air, attended by his holy Angels, he deſcending as it were with the Noiſe of Battel and Alarm of War, an Archangel ſounding a Trumpet before him as the heavenly Camp marches on and moves. For he will certainly appear in an Equipage moſt terrible and glorious, and in this ſolemn and dreadful dreadful Order he will face the bold, prophane, and atheistical World, * who by no other Means would be convinced of either a Providence or a Deity, but with supercilious Looks and scornful Speeches have contemned all the Hopes of future Reward, and laugh'd at the Religious for weak brain'd Fools or mad-Men. But then shall the Hearts of the faithful be filled with Joy, they seeing so comfortable an Appearance of him whom their Soul longed for; who will reward all their Injuries, Sorrows, and Reproaches with condign Honour and Happiness. Nay I may say that Christ will then vindicate himself from all those Scorns and Revilements that bold and prophane Wretches out of their Sensuality and High-mindedness have cast upon him from Age to Age, pleasing themselves and gratifying other Epicurean Brutes of like Impiety with themselves with their ungodly Jears and Scoffs against him who was the highest Example of divine Perfection that ever appeared in the World. Nay, I add further, That there is in a manner a Necessity of this Personal Return of Christ thus in Glory to judge the World according to his Promise, that these Blasphemers may not be encouraged to reckon him with such Impostours as David George and Mahomet, who, though they prefixed a shorter time to their Followers, shall not again be heard of till they appear before his Tribunal of whom we speak.

* See Book 2. chap. 5. sect. 3. & ch. 6. sect. 1.

2. And as for those that do believe that the Person of Christ does still subsist, that he was so miraculously born, so gloriously transfigured on the Mount, so wonderfully raised up from the Dead, and did so conspicuously ascend into Heaven, * two Angels in bright Garments affirming to them that beheld him, that he would thus return again, viz. in a Personal Visibility; What stranger thing is it that he should return, then that which they acknowledge to be true of him already? And how fit is it that he should still retain this Supremacy over the World, none elss having bought it so dearly as himself did by his most bitter Death and Passion? And he that is so compassionate a Mediatour, by reason of his humane Nature, will prove the more fit and equal Judge. And that there will be a Period and full Pause of the Generations of Men upon Earth, I have already little less than demonstrated, though it be enough to shew there is no Incongruity nor Inconvenience in it. For that is sufficient to stop modest Men from either inventing or embracing such evasive Allegories as do elude the Testimony of the Scripture in an Article of so weighty a Concernment as this.

Acts 1. v. 10.

See Book 2. ch. 6. sect. 2.

3. And as for those that are greater Infidels, and look upon the above-framed Description of Christ's coming to Judgment to be exceeding improbable, if not impossible, I say, nothing but the very Dulness of Atheism it self can make them conceit thus. For it being once admitted, That there are Angels as well as Men, this glorious Appearance of Christ with the holy Angels is as easie and natural to admit, as the Martial Pomp of a mighty Army, or the Solemnity of a great Assize. But that there are Spirits or Angels, and that they can appear to Men in what Region of the Air they please, History affords innumerable Instances. And how much for the Miraculousness of it does this pompous Approach of Christ in the Clouds differ from those Fightings and Skirmishings of whole Armies in the Air, of which all Ages almost and all Historians ring, as well sacred as prophane? The clattering also of Armour and the Sound of the Trumpet have been very frequently heard from the Heavens, as Plinie and other Historians do report. Virgil and Ovid record these things with Verses suitable to the Solemnity of the Prodigies.

Armorum sonitum toto Germania cœlo
Audiit----- Georgic. lib. 1.
All o're the Heavens the Noise of Arms was heard
In Germany.

And Ovid concerning the same matter.

Arma ferunt inter nigras crepitantia nubes
Terribilesque tubas auditaque cornua cœlo.
Clashing of Arms amidst black pitchy Clouds
Was heard, with Trumpets hoarse and Cornets loud.

So that the Apostles Prediction of Christ's coming thus visibly to judge the World, attended with the heavenly Hosts, and the Archangel sounding a Trumpet before him, is so far from being impossible, that it has in some manner and measure ſure been already in the World, though thoſe aſtoniſhing Prodigies fall infinitely ſhort of the Glory and Terrour of the Day of Judgment.

4. Beſides, if we may compare ſmall things with great, as certainly we may, the Analogy being ſo conſpicuous, What particular Judgment and Vengeance of note God done in the World, wherein there has not been a ſenſible Adminiſtration of has Angels forerunning it? I might make a very copious Induction, but I will keep my ſelf within meaſure. Before ſweeping Plagues and Wars, How frequent are theſe Apparitions? Cardan makes mention of ſeveral of the firſt kind. Before the Plague at Galaratum there appeared to a young Man, as he was riding thither in a rainy Night, a Cart all covered with Fire, which, gallop he as faſt as he would, was ever over-againſt him: he heard the Voice alſo of Ruſticks ſaying, Cave Cave, Take heed, Take heed. This Spectre attended him till he got to the Temple of St. Lawrence, which was without the Town Gate, and there ſunk into the Ground both Cart, Oxen, Ruſticks, and Fire and all.

Cardan. de Rerum varietate lib. 14. cap. 69.

The ſame Author relates alſo of a ſtranger Prodigy of a Peſtilence in Peru upon the Banks of the River Conſote near Carthage, where there appeared to certain Women waſhing there, as their Cuſtom was, a Man of a huge Stature with his Belly cut up and exenterated, and two Children in his Arms: he ſpoke to them, and told them that all the Chriſtian Women ſhould die, and the greateſt part of them alſo. This Spectre was alſo ſeen on Horſe-back on the ſide of the Hills, running ſwifter than the Wind. A mighty Plague followed, that deſtroyed almoſt all the Inhabitants of the place.

Idem lib. 15. cap. 81.

That alſo out of Fincelius is very remarkable, The appearing of twelve or fifteen Men in Marchia of huge and horrid Statures in the Corn-field with ſythes in their Hands, mowing down Oates with might and main, ſo that the very hitting of the Sythes was plainly heard a far off, but in the mean time no Oates were cut down. People endeavoured to apprehend them, but they ran too ſwift for them, and yet they nevertheleſs mowed as laborioufly in their Flight as before. A great Plague enſued thereupon. I could add to theſe what I have been credibly informed has happened in England.

See Hemingus Groſius his Magica de Spectris, lib. 1. Sect.

5. But I ſhall rather paſs to the other Prodigies of War; concerning which Machiavel does plainly confeſs as well as Cardan, that before great Commotions, Wars, and ſacking of Cities, there have often appeared ſtrange Prodigies, and particularly the skirmiſhing of Armies in the Air, ſuch as was ſeen over Aretium before the coming of the French King into Italy, as Machiavel himſelf teſtifies. And Cardan alſo doth furniſh us with farther Examples, as that of Mexico before it was deſtroyed, where the like Prodigies happened. A Croſs alſo was ſeen by the Mexicans in the Eaſt, and a Man of ſo high Stature, that his Head ſeemed to touch the Heavens, which much terrified them. He writes alſo of the Picts in England, that before their Deſtruction there were ſeen fiery Armies in Heaven fighting with one another; and that in the Confines betwixt the Picts and Scots at mid-day there was ſo great a Noiſe of armed Horſemen that encountred one another, that it almoſt frighted the poor Countrymen out of their Wits.

See Machiavel de Republica, lib. 1. cap. 56.

Cardan. de Rerum varietate, lib. 15. cap. 78.

6. That was alſo a terrible Prodigy that preceeded that hideous Ruine of Antioch by an Earthquake. There was ſeen over that great City a Spectrum in the Air of a vaſt Stature in the Habit of a Woman, but with an horrid Countenance, ſo that ſhe frighted all that looked on her, but eſpecially when ſhe flaſh'd a Whip which ſhe had in her Hand, the Cracks thereof were ſo loud and dreadful. This continued for fifteen Nights together, from two a Clock till four, in the Month of May, Anno 349.

See Joan. Garibus, de Phænomenis Syſtem 2.

7. But there is nothing more accommodate to our purpoſe then the Deſtruction of Sodom and Gomorha with Fire from Heaven, a compendious Repreſentation of the final burning of the World. For before that Vengeance was done upon thoſe two wicked Cities, three Angels appeared to Abraham, and revealed that Deſign to him: two alſo viſited Lot, and by a main Hand drew him out of the fearful Deſtruction.

8. I might add many more Examples, but I ſhall content my ſelf with the Superaddition only of that one and moſt eminent Inſtance of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, wherein the inviſible Powers, I mean the Angels, were diſcerned to act in a ſenſible and palpable manner. Which is deprehended not only by that flaming Sword that hung over the City for a whole Year together, and a ſudden Light in the Night-time that ſhone about the Altar and the Temple, ſo that it made it as light as Day; as alſo the ſpontaneous opening of the Eaſt-Gate of the Temple which was ſo heavy and maſſy, as being made of Braſs, that it was as much as twenty Men could do to ſhut it, (to which you may add the Voice that was heard by the Prieſts, as they went into the Temple by Night at the time of Pentecoſt, μεταβαίνωμεν ἐντεῦθεν Let us go hence:) but mainly, and what is moſt of all to my purpoſe, by thoſe ἅρματα καὶ φάλαγγες ἔνοπλοι διάτρεσαι τὴν νεφῶν, thoſe Chariots and armed Companies of Soldiers which were ſeen round about in the Air before the Sun ſet, to ſally out of the Clouds, and to fill all with the Numeroſity of their Troops. Wherefore if ſuch particular Judgments were executed with a viſible Attendance of the Angels of God; when he ſhall execute Vengeance on the whole World, can we think it ſtrange if he then ſhall appear more than ordinarily glorious in his heavenly Retinue, thouſand thouſands miniſtring unto him, and ten thouſand times ten thouſand ſtanding before him, as the Prophet ſpeaks? Which Propheſie if it could reſpect ſhorter Periods of time, yet certainly the fulleſt and moſt proper Completion of it will be at the laſt Judgment.

which

CHAP. III.

1. The Reſurrection of the dead by how much more rigidly defined, according to every Circumſtance and Punctilio delivered by Theologers, by ſo much the more pleaſant to the Ears of the Atheiſts. 2. That the Reſurrection in the Scholaſtick Notion thereof was in all likelihood the great Stone of Offence to thoſe two Enthuſiaſts of Delph and Amſterdam, and emboldened them to turn the whole Goſpel into an Allegory. 3. The incurable Condition of Enthuſiaſts. 4. The Atheiſts firſt Objection againſt the Scholaſtick Reſurrection propoſed. 5. His ſecond Objection. 6. His third and laſt Objection. 7. That his Objections do not demonſtrate an abſolute Impoſſibility of the Scholaſtick Reſurrection, with the Author's Purpoſe of anſwering them upon other Grounds.

1. WE come now to the ſecond particular propounded, The Reſurrection of the Dead, which I dare ſay the Atheiſt will liſten to with more than ordinary Attention, and greedily ſuck in the Doctrine, provided it be ſtated with the moſt curious Circumſtances that the rigideſt of Theologers will deſcribe it by, and mainly by theſe two; That we ſhall have the ſame numerical Bodies in which we lived here on Earth, and that thoſe very Bodies, the Molds being turned aſide, ſhall ſtart out of the Grave. This Doctrine the Atheiſts very dearly hugs as a Pledge, in his bold Conceit, of the Falſeneſs and Vanity of all the other Articles of Religion. Wherefore he fancying the Upſhot of Chriſtianity to be ſo groundleſs and incredible, he fairly quits himſelf of the trouble of all, and yields himſelf up wholly to the Pleaſures of this preſent World.

2. And I queſtion not but that this is the great Stone of Offence upon which thoſe two blind Enthuſiaſts of Delph and Amſterdam (of whom I have ſo often ſpoken) fell and ſplit themſelves; the Rock which made them ſuffer the Shipwrack of their Faith, in allegorizing the Reſurrection of the Dead and the laſt Judgment into a mere moral Senſe, and in conceiting the laſt Trump to be only their Doctrine, and that Chriſt was come in them to judge the Quick and the Dead; and that the happy Reſurrection ſo much talked of and ſo long expected, was nothing elſe but to be raiſed up into the like Life and Belief with theſe Fanaticks, as I muſt call them: and I would ask them, What is meant by the Reſurrection of the unjuſt, if this be the Reſurrection of the juſt? Or if this be the Reſurrection to Life, What is meant by the Reſurrection to Condemnation?

3. But in truth it is ſcarce fit to ask Enuhuſiaſts any Queſtions at all, they, under pretence of Inſpiration, wholly diſclaiming the uſe of Reaſon, and imperiouſly dictating their own wilful Imaginations to the World for certain and undiſputable Revelations: And therefore in this regard there is more hope of the Atheiſts then of them, who by propounding their Objections put Men in a Capacity of finding out an Anſwer; but when Men will haughtily and ſuperciliouſly deny a Truth under the pretence of the Spirit, without rendring a Reaſon, this Ignorance or rather Madneſs is utterly incurable.

4. Leaving

4. Leaving therefore theſe Men to the full Enjoyment of their own Fancies, let us hear the Objections of the Atheiſts againſt this Article ſo ſtated as has been above defined; which are chiefly Three.

Firſt, againſt the numerical Identity of our Bodies in the Reſurrection: Becauſe, ſay they, the Anthropophagi or Cannibals are continually fed with Man's Fleſh, as alſo they feed one upon another. To give therefore the higheſt Inſtance againſt this Aſſertion; How can that Man, ſay they, that has been fed with Man's Fleſh in a manner perpetually, and at laſt himſelf fed upon by Men, have the ſame Body at the Reſurrection? For he will be left as bare of Fleſh, as the Crow was of Feathers when every Bird had pecked away what belonged unto themſelves. Beſides the Hazard of loſing that Fleſh that was his own, (if any was his own) by being himſelf devoured and digeſted into the Fleſh and Body of others.

5. Their ſecond Objection is againſt Mens Bodies riſing out of their Graves, and runs thus; It implys, ſay they, that all Men were buried: whenas Myriads have been drowned in the Seas and eaten by Fiſhes. Beſides infinite Numbers that have had the uſual Burial of their Nations, have had a very inconſiderable part of their Bodies committed to the Ground, only a few Aſhes in an Urn; the reſt of their Body, in the burning, vaniſhing into Air. Which in ſome ſort comes to paſs in burning, vaniſhing into Air. Which in ſome ſort comes to paſs in them that are wholly buried in the Earth. For the Body rots and melts away there into Fume and Vapours, which the Heat of the Sun exhales and draws into the Air. Some it may be ſhoot up into the Blades of Graſs, which either rots upon the Ground, or is Food for Horſes, to whoſe Shares it doth not fall to have honeſt Burial, but lie to rot alſo in the open Fields, or elſe are eaten by thoſe Creatures that at length do ſo. So that the Soul, if ſhe were to ſeek for her Body, would hear more likely News of it in the Air then in the Earth. So incredible is it, that it is kept circumſcribed in ſo particular a part of the Earth as the Grave.

6. And laſtly, to make all ſure, They endeavour to enervate the very Grounds and dig down the deepeſt Foundation of this Aſſertion of Identity of Bodies at the Reſurrection, by alledging that the very End thereof implys a Contradiction. For whereas the reaſon is given, That the Body that was Partner either in unlawful Pleaſures or the laudible Pains and Labours of the Soul, might partake alſo of her Puniſhment or Reward: here they pretend that the Body is not the ſame numerical Body throughout the whole Life of a Man, no more than a River is the ſame River, but that the Body waſts and is reſtored, that the preſent Spirits, Blood and Fleſh are paſſing πλαμῶ δίκη, * as Heraclitus ſpeaks, and new Supplies are perpetually made by Food; and that therefore we have no more the ſame numerical Body always than the ſame numerical Cloaths, but that in both we wear out the old and get new, but in our Cloaths at once, in our Bodies by degrees. Wherefore to contend that the ſame numerical Body ſhall riſe that was buried, and that upon point of Juſtice, is to contend for the greateſt piece of Injuſtice that may be: For ſo ſhall the Body of an Old-man be puniſhed for the Sins of that Body he had when he was young.

* After the manner of a River.

7. Theſe and ſuch like are the Arguments of thoſe that would over-throw Religion upon this Advantage, as they deem it; and ſomething they drive at that ſeems to tend to a Perſwaſion of ſome kind of Incongruity and Incredibility in the matter, but it will not all amount to an utter Impoſſibility. But to me it ſeems ſo inconſiderable, that I ſhall not vouchſafe it an Anſwer upon thoſe Terms and that Hypotheſis they go upon. I ſhall ſoar a little higher, that my way being aloft, as the Wiſe-man ſpeaks, I may be free from the Snares beneath.

But what I anſwer I would be underſtood to direct to the Atheiſt and the Infidel, permitting them that already believe the Subſtance, to vary their Fancies with what Circumſtances they pleaſe. But for theſe others I muſt hold them to hard meat, and cut my Skirts as ſhort as I can, that they ſit not upon them.

CHAP. IV.

1. An Anſwer to their firſt and laſt Cavil, from thoſe Principles of Plato's School, That the Soul is the Man, and That the Body perceives nothing. 2. An Anſwer to their ſecond, by rightly interpreting what is meant by Riſing out of the Grave in the general Notion thereof. 3. That there is no warrant out of Scripture for the ſame numerical Body, but rather the contrary. 4. The Atheiſts Objection from the Word Reſurrectio anſwered, whoſe ſenſe is explained out of the Hebrew and Greek. 5. תקומה and תחיה: what the meaning of them is in that general Senſe which is applicable as well to the Reſurrection of the unjuſt as of the juſt.

1. I Anſwer therefore firſt out of the beſt ſort of Philoſophers, That Animus cujuſque is eſt quiſque, and Νῶς ἐφορᾷ πᾶ, τῦς ἐπακόϵ· That the Soul of every Man is his individual Perſon, and That ſhe alone it is that hears, that ſees, that enjoys Pleaſure and undergoes Pain; and that the Body is not ſenſible of any thing, no more than a Man's Doublet when he is well baſtinado'd. And this Anſwer takes away all occaſion of the Firſt and Laſt Cavil. For why are Men ſolicitous of the ſame numerical Body, but that they may be ſure to find themſelves the ſame numerical Perſons? But it being moſt certain there is no ſtable Perſonality of a Man but what is in his Soul, (for if the Body be eſſential to this numerical Identity, a grown Man has not the ſame Individuation he had when he was chriſtned;) it is manifeſt, that if there be the ſame Soul, there is exactly the ſame Perſon; and that the Change of the Body cauſes no more real Difference of Perſonality than the Change of Cloaths. And why do Men plead for the Conſociation of the Soul's numerical Body in Reward or Puniſhment, but that they fancy the Body capable of Pleaſure and Pain? But they erre? not knowing the Nature of things, the Body being utterly uncaple of all ſenſe and Cogitation, as not only the beſt of the Platoniſts, but alſo that excellent Philoſopher Des-Cartes has determined, and is abundantly demonſtrated in my * Treatiſe of the Immorality of the Soul.

*See Book 2. ch. 2. of that Treatiſe, as alſo chap. 4, 5, 6.

2. This therefore being cleared, I anſwer alſo to their ſecond Cavil, concerning Mens riſing out of the very Graves they were buried in, That the Expreſſion is only Prophetical and Symbolical, (though I do not deny but that in ſome it may happen literally to be true) and that it ſignifies no more then thus, That the ſame Men that die and are buried, ſhall as truly appear in their own Perſons at the Day of Judgment, as if thoſe Bodies that were interred ſhould be preſently actuated by their Souls again, and ſhould ſtart out of their Graves; and to give an Inſtance, they ſhall be as truly the ſame Perſons as Lazarus, when he roſe Body and Soul out of the Grave, after he had lain there four Days together. But that univerſal Expreſſion of Mens riſing out of the Grave is but a Prophetical Scheme of Speech the more ſtrongly to ſtrike our Senſes, as I have already intimated in my * Expoſition of the 15 of 1 Cor. againſt the Pſychopannychites. And therefore the greater Accumulation of Abſurdities that can be made againſt that Circumſtance, it will the more confirm that uſeful Interpretation of mine.

*See Book 1. ch. 6. ſect. 3.

3. This Succour we have againſt the Atheiſts out of Philoſophy; but I anſwer further as concerning Scripture it ſelf, (which is the only certain meaſure of the Truth of our Religion, and to which alone I dare finally ſtand, not thinking my ſelf bound to make good every Conceit that either the Pride, Precipitancy, Inadvertancy, or Ignorance of fallible Teachers have obtruded upon the World,) That I dare challenge him to produce any place of Scripture out of which he can make it appear, That the Myſtery of the Reſurrection implys the Reſuſcitation of the ſame numerical Body. The moſt pregnant of all is Job 19, which later Interpreters are now ſo wiſe as not to underſtand at all of the Reſurrection. The 1 Cor. 15. that Chapter is ſo far from aſſerting this Curoſity, that it plainly ſays it is not the ſame Body; but that as God gives to the Blades of the Corn Grains quite diſtinct from that which was ſown, ſo at the Reſurrection, he will give the Soul a Body quite different from that which was buried. Now if it be not the ſame Body that was buried, what need it run into the Earth to come out again? Wherefore it is plain that the Apoſtle there writes, as I ſaid before, in a Prophetical and Symbolical Style.

4. But

4. But the Atheiſt will ſtill hang on and object further, That the very Term Reſurrectio implys that the ſame Body ſhall riſe again, for that only that falls can be ſaid properly to riſe again. But the Anſwer will be eaſie, the Objection being grounded merely upon a Miſtake of the ſenſe of the Word, which is to be interpreted out of thoſe higher Originals the Greek and Hebrew, and not out of the Latin, though rhe Word in Latin does not always imply an individual Reſtitution of what is gone or fallen: as in that Verſe in Ovid, Victa tamen vinces ſubverſaque Troja reſurges.

But this is not ſo near to our purpoſe; let us rather conſider the Greek Word ἀνάστασις which Reſurrectio ſupplys in Latin, and therefore muſt be made to be of as large a Senſe as it. Now ἀνάστασις is ſo far from ſignifying (in ſome places) the Reproduction or Recuperation of the ſame thing that was before, that it bears no ſenſe at all of Reiteration in it. As Matth. 22. 24. ἵνα ἀναστήσῃ σπέρμα τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ. And Gen. 7. there ἐξανάστασις and ἀνάστημα ſignifie merely a living Subſiſtence: and therefore ἀνάστημα in an active Signification, according to this Senſe, will be nothing elſe but a giving or continuing Life and Subſiſtence to a thing. The Word in the Hebrew that anſwers to ἀνάστημα is יקום, which Tranſlators interpret a Living Subſtance: whence תקומה according to this Analogy may very well bear the ſame Latitude of Senſe that תחיה they being both Words that are rendred Reſurrectio, but ſimply of themſelves ſignifie only Vivification or Erection unto Life, or the being made a living Creature.

But ſeeing that Men are Creatures that have been once alive, and are to be made alive again, and to become ſenſible and viſible ἀναστήματα at the Day of Judgment; therefore תקומה and תחיה are ordinarily tranſlated Revivification, and ἔγερσις and ἀνάστασις are to be underſtood in the ſame ſenſe that imply a Recuperation of Life.

5. Now the Jewiſh Rabbins, as Buxtorf has noted, are very critical in theſe Words, appropriating תחיה to the Reſurrection of the Juſt, but the other to the Revivification of the Wicked; though they ſometimes again confound them. But that which is neareſt to our Purpoſe is to conſider in what Signification of the Words the thing ſignified is competible to the Unjuſt as well as to the Juſt. And I conceive it is that which the Apoſtle Paul ſpeaks, 2 Cor. 5. 10. For we muſt all appear before the Tribunal of Chriſt, that every Man may receive according to what he has done in his Body, whether Good or Evil. But as well the Wicked as the Juſt, before they thus appear, are really in Life and Being; though to us they be ἀφανῆ, dead, vaniſh'd and inviſible. Πάντες γὰρ Θεῷ ζῶσιν, Luke 20. But all are alive and viſible to God, even the Bad as well as the Good. Therefore the Reſurrection or Revivification (for the Word ſignifies no more than ſo) that is common to both, is this; That they become palpable and viſible ἀναστήματα, and appear at that general Aſſizes at the laſt Day. For then all the World, Good and Bad ſhall not only be alive to God, but alſo alive and viſible to one another. And this is that ἀνάστασις or Revivificatio that is common to all. And that this Notion is ſolid, appears from hence, in that Luke by ſaying, For they all live to God, implys that they are dead in reference to Men. Wherefore ſo far forth as they are ſaid to be dead, ſo far forth may they be ſaid to be revived or to be raiſed from the dead; as the Ghoſts of Men are ſaid to be by Art-Magick, becauſe they are made to appear. But the Devil is not ſaid to be raiſed from the dead, becauſe he was never properly ſaid to be alive amongſt us, or to live amongſt us.

CHAP. V.

1. An Objection againſt the Reſurrection, from the Activity of the Soul out of her Body, with the firſt Anſwer thereto. 2. The ſecond Anſwer. 3. The ſpecial Signifi-cations of תקומה and תחיה the firſt belonging to the Unjuſt, the latter to the Juſt. 4. That the Life that is led on the Earth, or in this lower Region of the Air is more truly a Death than a Life. 5. The manner of our recovering our Celeſtial Body at the laſt Day. 6. And of the Accompliſhment of the Promiſe of Chriſt therein.

1. I Should proceed, but that I muſt be contented to be interrupted by one Objection more, which is this; If the Souls of Men live and act out of their Bodies before the Reſurrection, What need is there of any Reſurrection of the Body? For what Want have they of any Bodies at all, if their Soul can live and act without them? But I anſwer,

First, That we are not infallibly aſſured but that the Souls as well of the Good as the Bad after Death have an Aereal Body, in which, if Stories be true, they have ſometimes appeared after their Deceaſe. And that they may act, think, and underſtand in theſe Aiery Vehicles, as well as other Spirits do, is not at all incredible nor improbable; the Faculties of an humane Soul being not inferiour to the Faculties of ſome Orders of Spirits, whoſe Underſtandings are not ſo clear but that they are divided in their Jndgments, ſome being of one Sect of Philoſophers, ſome of anothers, as thoſe that appeared to Cardan's Father, profeſſed themſelves Avenroiſts.

See my Treatiſe of the Immorality of the Soul, Book 3. ch. 17.

2. But ſecondly, if it were granted that the Souls of the Deceaſed were ſtrip'd of all Corporeity, and yet could act, we may notwithſtanding very well conceive that that which once had ſo intimate Union with the groſſeſt of Bodies, has certainly a very ſtrong Propenſion, natural Complacency, or eſſential Aptitude always to join with ſome Body or other. Which Power, if we may not infallibly affirm to be ſo catching, that the Soul is never diſappointed of ſome kind of Vehicle, yet we may ſafely pronounce, that when that natural Capacity is ſatisfied, there accrues a greater Accompliſhment and more vigorous Enjoyment to the Soul, her Operations thereby being made more ſenſible and vivid. And therefore that great Reward of an Heavenly, Æthereal, or Immortal Body, which ſhall be given at the laſt Day, is of very high Concernment for the compleating of the Happineſs of the Souls of the Faithful, whether we ſuppoſe them in the mean time to live without Bodies, or to be alive only in Aiery Vehicles; the * latter whereof if examined to the Bottom, will appear the moſt unexceptionable Opinion, and leaſt liable to the Cavils of Gainſayers. But whether of them be moſt true, I leave to the Grave and Wiſe to determine.

*Ibid. Book. 3. chap. 1.

3. This Rub being thus removed out of the way, we now proceed to the ſpecial Significations of תקומה and תחיה. The former of which is called ἀνάϛασις κρίσεως, the Reſurrection to Condemnation; the latter ἀναϛασις ζωῆς, ἀνάϛασις δικαίων, and ſimply Ἀνάϛασις the Reſurrection to Life, the Reſurrection of the Juſt, and ſimply the Reſurrection, as it is 1 Cor. 15. and elſewhere. Wherefore תקומה or ἀνάϛασις as they belong to the wicked, have no further ſenſe of Revivification than in that general way we have explained, Ἀνάϛασις κρίσεως implying that they were raiſed and made to appear at this Day of general Summons, merely to receive the Sentence of Eternal Death, Go ye curſed into everlaſting Fire, &c. But now תחיה as it is appropriated to the Reſurrection of the Juſt, and is termed ἀνάϛασις ζωῆς, implys in it a further and more peculiar Revivification or Re-enlivening, viz. into that Life which was loſt by the firſt Fall, that Paradiſiacal Life, that Æthereal and Heavenly Life, which is unrecoverable unleſs we recover thoſe Heavenly glorified Bodies which are promiſed to us by Chriſt at his coming.

4. For this muddy Earth, and vaporous polluted Air which is the very Region of Death, wherein all the Pleaſures, Joys, and Triumphs of this Preſent Life are but like the grinning Laughter of Ghoſts or the Dance of dead Men, theſe foul Elements, I ſay, can afford no ſuch commodious Habitation for the Soul, as to arrive any thing near to the height of that Happineſs which ſhe ſhall be poſſeſſed of when when Chriſt ſhall be pleaſed to change theſe our vile Bodies into the Similitude of his glorious Body, and ſo to recover us into the Enjoyment of that Heavenly Life which we unhappily forfeited by our firſt Fall. For which purpoſe he came into theWorld, as himſelf profeſſes John 6. 40. This is the Will of him that ſent me, that whoſoever ſees me and believes in me, ſhould have everlaſting Life, and that I ſhould raiſe him up at the laſt Day.

5. And ſo certainly it will be at his Coming to Judgment, that they that then ſee him and firmly believe on him, ardently loved him and vehemently deſired his Appearing, ſhall find ſuch a warming Change in themſelves, partly by the glorious Approach of his Perſon and Luſtre of his numerous Retinue, partly by the wonderful ſecret Workings of the Divine Preſence in their very Bodies and Souls, that at laſt there will be kindled ſuch an irreſiſtible Faith, ſo rapturous a Joy and tranſportant Love, that breaking out upon the Body, be it what it will, it will turn all into a pure Æthereal Flame; and ſo Elias-like in thoſe Celeſtial Chariots ſhall they aſcend up to Chriſt, and meet him in the Air, and join with his Army whereever it moves, as becoming then ἰσάγγελοι their Vehicles being transformed by the Power and Preſence of Chriſt, and the working of his Divinity, into a pure Paradiſiacal and Angelical Nature.

6. And thus ſhall he make his Word good of raiſing us up at the laſt Day, in that he does re-enliven ns, and reſtore us to that Life and Joy which we had fallen from, re-enthrone us into that Glory we had defaced in our ſelves and was loſt in theſe dark Bodies of ours, and raiſe us up to that priſtine State of Happineſs and that ſuperiour Paradiſe, which we could not re-enter into, or be re-eſtated in, but by becoming wholly Æthereal or Celeſtial.

CHAP. XX.

1. That he has freed the Myſtery of the Reſurrection from all Exceptions of either Atheiſts or Enthuſiaſts. 2. That the Soul is not uncapable of the Happineſs of an Heavenly Body. 3. And that it is the higheſt and moſt ſuitable Reward that can be conferr'd upon her. 4. That this Reward is not above the Power of Chriſt to confer, proved by what he did upon Earth. 5. That all Judgment is given to him by the Father. 6. Further Arguings to the ſame purpoſe. 7. How far his Defence of the Reſurrection doth extend.

1. AND now I think we have ſo diſ-intangled the Myſtery of the Reſurrection from all the Prejudices and conceived Difficulties that it was involved in, that I may challenge all the World, the Atheiſt, Infidel, and new-fangled Enthuſiaſt, if they can frame any ſolid Exception againſt it, which they can manage by Reaſon, and is not a mere ſullen Dictate of their own dark and dull Minds.

2. For this precious Crown of Immortality which Chriſt ſhall then crown us withall, is neither beyond his Power to give, nor our Capacity to receive. For the Offers and Fluskerings, as I may ſo ſay, of the Faculties of the Soul of Man, even in this State of Death and Impriſonment, are ſo High, ſo Noble, and ſo Divine, as well in Speculation as Devotion, eſpecially when our Spirits are more than ordinarily pure, and come nearear to an Æthereal kind of Defecacy; that they that have the Experience thereof cannot diſtruſt but that, if ſhe had the Advantage of Angelical Body, her Operations would prove little inferiour to theirs. Which is a Demonſtration that ſhe is as well capable of ſuch Bodies as they; as alſo of the Worth and Value, and of the Fitneſs and Accommodateneſs of ſo ample a Reward.

3. For Philoſophy her ſelf can witneſs, That according to the greater Purity of our Spirits, the Motions and Paſſions of our Minds are changed and become more holy and divine, and our Thoughts and Apprehenſions more clear, our Love to God more ardent and ſincere, our Benignity to Men more free and general, and all the Facultities of our Soul in a ready Poſture to comply with the beſt Commands or Suggeſtions of Reaſon or Religion. Of what infinite Importance therefore muſt it be to have ſuch a Body as is not only perpetually thus compliable with the beſt Motions of the Soul, but by virtue of its Heavenly Purity does naturally encline the Mind to ſuch Thoughts, Motions and Affections, as are moſt acceptable acceptable to God and moſt enraviſhing to her ſelf? Which Conſideration does evidently demonſtrate that high Reaſon that is in our Religion, in the Promiſe of a glorified Body, as the greateſt Reward of our earneſt Colluctations and obedient Endeavours of this Life. For nothing but Divine Inſpiration, or ſome infallible Method of Philoſophy could diſcover to the Mind of Man ſo concerning a Point.

4. But to doubt whether Chriſt can cloath us with ſuch Bodies as thoſe, or enliven our whole Man, in whatſoever Bodies we be found, into that Immortality and Life which accrues to us by transforming our vile Bodies into the Similitude of his glorious Body, is either to forget or not to believe what mighty Power he had when he was here upon Earth; how merely by his Word he calmed the raging of the Seas, ſilenced the tempeſtuouſneſs of Winds, multiplyed a few Loaves and a few Fiſhes ſo, in the very eating of them, that he fed many thouſands therewith in the Wilderneſs; which was an eminent Specimen of his Power of transforming Matter into what Modification he pleaſed: beſides his healing of the ſick, not only thoſe that were preſent and believed on him, but alſo the abſent; to which you may add the raiſing of the dead, which comes nearer to our purpoſe, as alſo the Reſurrection of thoſe that roſe with him, to ſignifie his enlivening Power, who himſelf ſo miraculouſly roſe from the Grave.

5. By which wonderful Works he did plainly demonſtrate, That what he profeſſed of himſelf was true, That as the Father has Life in himſelf, ſo he has alſo given the Son to have Life in himſelf, that is, the Power of Vivification or enlivening of others, as you may ſee by the Context, John 5. 26. And not only ſo, but he has given him alſo the Power of puniſhing as well as rewarding, as it follows in the next Verſe, And he hath given him Authority to execute Judgment, becauſe he is the Son of Man, viz. That Son of Man that upon his Sufferings and after his being riſen from the dead, ſhould have all Power given to him in Heaven and in Earth. Which we may eaſily believe, whenas he had ſo vaſt a Power in the loweſt Ebb of his Humiliation, when he went up and down afflicted, deſpiſed, and neglected, being attended only by a few contemptible Fiſher-men and others of like inferiour Condition; and yet then he opened the Eyes of them that were born blind, and at a diſtance healed the ſick, and being unaccompanied with any viſible Pomp or Power, with one Word of his Mouth drove away a Legion of Devils at once. What ſhall he not then be able to doe, when he ſhall return in the higheſt Glory and Majeſty that the viſible Divinity can appear in? when the Heavens ſhall be filled with the Brightneſs of his Camp, and all the Nations of the World ſhall be aſtoniſhed at the dreadful Splendour of his coming?

See my Treatiſe of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 3. ch. 18. ſect. 15.

6. Shall he not then, who in his Dejectment could raiſe to Life, not only a faithleſs but ſenſeleſs Corps, enliven thoſe that at his glorious Appearance are ſo filled with Faith, Love, Joy, Deſire, and Admiration, that their empaſſioned Souls are ready to leave their Bodies, if it were poſſible, to come and do their Homage to their long expected Saviour and Redeemer? Shall not that Divine and Omnipotent Power then that worketh round about him, ſo co-operate with thoſe kindled Affections, as to change their very Bodies into an Ability of naturally aſcending up to him, and joining with him? Or is it hard for him to convert Fleſh or Air into a pure Æthereal Fire, and to awake ſuch a Faculty in the Soul as ſhall kindly and vitally inactuate it, who turned Air into Fleſh, and prepared the dead Carcaſe of Lazarus ſo fittingly for Re-union with the Soul, that he raiſed him out of the Grave on the fourth Day? Wherefore this Reſurrection, Life, and Immortality we ſpeak of, being neither impoſſible for Chriſt to give, nor our Nature uncapable to receive, it remains that we ſhall enjoy it, becauſe Chriſt both himſelf and by his Apoſtles has ſo plainly and expreſly promiſed it.

7. And theſe may ſuffice to defend the Doctrine of the Reſurrection againſt Atheiſts and Infidels, ſo far as it is contained in the holy Scripture, and in the three Creeds; with which I plainly affirm, that the ſame Body ſhall riſe, and that we ſhall be as really the ſame Perſons, as well in Body as Soul, both to our own Senſes and to the Senſes of others, as we were in this Life. But I have purpoſely declined the Scholaſtick Notion of the ſame numerical Body, being without the Scope of our preſent Deſign, as I have above given notice. And moreover I add, that I think it no wiſe difficult from the Nature of Nutrition, well known or underſtood, that one may plainly demonſtrate, that even in the Man-eaters who feed upon Man's Fleſh from their Childhood to the greateſt Old Age, that there may remain matter enough of that Body, which every one hath had in his Life time diſtinct from that humane Flesh with which they have been daily nourished, to make up to every one the Body in the Resurrection of the same Atoms in number with which they were vitally united in this State. But as I said, this was altogether wide from my purpose, who did in this Treatise undertake to defend the Christian Faith, not the Opinions of Men.

that

CHAP. VII.

1. Cæcilius his Scoffs against the Resurrection, and Conflagration of the World: That against the Resurrection answered already. 2. In what sense the soberer Christians understood the Conflagration of the World. 3. That the Conflagration in their sense is possible, argued from the Combustibleness of the parts of the Earth. 4. As also from actual Fire found in several Mountains, as Ætna, Helga, and Hecla. 5. Several Instances of that sort out of Plinie. 6. Instances of Vulcanoes, out of Acosta. 7. The Vulcanoes of Guatimalla. 8. Vulcanoes without Smoak having a quick Fire at the bottom. 9. Vulcanoes that have cast Fire and Smoak some thousand of years together. 10. Hot Fountains, Springs running with Pitch and Rosin, certain Thermæ catching Fire at a distance.

1. THE third thing we propounded comprized in Christ's Return to Judgment is the Conflagration of the World, a Point as incredible to most of the Heathen as the Resurrection of the dead; and the comparing them both together made it the more ridiculously incredible to them, as you may see by that Jear that Cæcilius gives the Christians in Minucius Felix. Quid? quod tot Orbi & ipsi Mundo cum sideribus suis minantur incendium, ruinam moliuntur? quasi aut Naturæ divinis legibus constitutus æternus ordo turbetur, aut, rupto omnium elementorum fœdere & cœlesti compage divisâ, moles ista quâ continemur & cingimur subruatur. Nec hâc fumosa opinione contenti, aniles fabulas astruunt & annectunt. Renasci se ferunt post Mortem & Cineres & Favillas. Nescio quâ fiduciâ mendaciis suis invicem credunt. Putes eos jam revixisse. Anceps malum & gemina dementia, Cœlo & astris quæ sic relinquimus ut invenimus interitum denunciare, sibi mortuis & extinctis (qui sicut nascimur sic interimus) æternitatem repromittere. To which you may add how they menace burning and meditate ruine to the whole Earth and to the Heaven it self with the Stars thereof; as if the eternal Order constituted by the divine Laws of Nature could be disturbed, or that this huge Fabrick wherein we are contained and surrounded, by the breaking that League amongst the Elements and Division of the celestial Compages could tumble down. And not content with this furious Opinion alone, they join and stitch to it old Wives Fables. They affirm that they shall rise again after Death, and live after the being turned into Embers and Ashes. I know not upon what Confidence they can thus believe one anothers Lies. You would think they were Men started out of their Graves already." A twofold Mischief and double Madness, to denounce Destruction to the Heavens and Stars which we leave in the same Condition that we find them, and to promise Eternity to our selves once dead and extinct, who as we are born into the World, so we die. But the double Sting of this twofold Jear is easily pulled out; and that indeed concerning the Resurrection already; we having plainly shewed, That that Mystery implys nothing more than this, That the same individual Persons shall be revivificated Body and Soul, and made happy with eternal Life. But the same individual Person does not involve any Necessity of the same numerical Body, as has been shewn at large.

2. The very Point and Sting of this Scoff against the Conflagration, is also a presumptuous Mistake as well as that against the Resurrection (though I deny the Possibility of neither) and it lies in these Words, ipsi Mundo cum sideribus suis minantur incendium, ruinam moliuntur. Such a Clatter as this indeed (though some of the Pagan Philosophers, as Lucretius and Seneca, are not affraid to admit, yet) might well scare the more sagacious from giving Assent to it. But the Conflagration of the World, according to the Truth thereof in the Christian Mystery, is limited with more modest and credible Bounds, it not concerning the Starry Heavens; unless you will call these Heavens Starry that are the Receptacle of Sublunary Comets and falling Stars. So that all the Destruction that is threatned by the better-knowing Christians is only to the Globe of the Earth, and the circumjacent Air, with all all the garniſhings of them, which ſhall be burnt up and deſtroyed: But the Air and Earth ſhall continue Air and Earth ſtill; but with ſuch Alteration as this terrible Burning ſhall work upon them.

3. That this is poſſible many things may induce us to believe, which are to be found as well in the Earth as in the Air. For what of the Earth is not combuſtible? The exteriour turfy part is ordinary Fewel, and Stones themſelves are calcined into Lime and Chalk by Fire. And the Pyrenean Mountains betwixt France and Spain took Fire ſo (whether from Thunder or by certain Shepherds) that the Gold and Silver Mines ran ſtreaming down for many Days together. From which accident ſome will have theſe Hills to have their Name from πῦρ ſignifying Fire. Beſides, there are many Mines of Minerals in the Earth that do not only yeild to the Power of Fire, but covet it in a manner and catch at it, as Naphtha, Sulphur, and Bitumen; to ſay nothing of ſundry ſorts of Coals, vaſt Woods and Wilderneſſes, which are ſo combuſtible, that the mere Exceſs of the Heat of the Air has ſometimes ſet them on fire, as it happened in ſeveral places Anno 1574.

4. We may add to this in how many places of the Earth there are found actual Fires by Natures own kindling, as if ſhe kept Houſe under Ground, and made ſeveral Hills her Chimneys: ſuch as Veſuvius in Italy, Ætna in Sicily, Helga and Hecla in Iſlandia, mountains ſo terrible for Thunder, Flamings out of Fire, caſting abroad Stones, Aſhes, Stink and Smoak, that the more phanſiful conceit that Hell is begun there aforehand. Which were more plauſible if the Apparitions that are ſeen there were as true as they are ſaid to be frequent.

Plin. Natnral. Hiſtor. lib. 2. cap. 106.

5. Plinie will furniſh us with more Inſtances of this Nature, as of Chimæra a Hill of Phaſelis in Pamphylia, the Hephæſtian Mountains in Lycia, Cophantus in Bactriana. Near Heſperius a Mountain in Æthiopia the Fields in the Night all glitter with Light, as alſo a certain piece of Ground in Babylonia. Nymphæus a Mountain of Apollonia flings out Fire and bituminous Matter, the Fury whereof is increaſed by Rain: as alſo the Fire of thoſe ignivomous Mountains in Lycia and Pamphylia. That Æolian Iſland Hiera near Italy was all on fire, and the Sea round about it, for ſome Days together; which he reports as a known Truth, and an Inſtance near at hand. But he concludes with the burning of that high and vaſt Mountain in Æthiopia called Θεῶν ὄχημα, that is, The Chariot of the Gods, as the moſt famous Example of this kind; adding to all this ſhort Epiphonema, Tot locis tot incendiis rerum Natura terras cremat.

Joſeph. Acoſt. Hiſtor. of the Indies, Book 3. chap. 24.

6. And yet theſe Vulcanoes are not leſs frequent in America. as Acoſta writes, and gives this Deſcription of them in general, That they be Rocks or Pikes of very high Mountains, having upon their Tops a Plain, and in the midſt thereof a Pit or great Mouth which deſcends to the very Foot of the Hill, a thing very terrible to behold, as he ſays. Out of thoſe Mouths is vomited Smoak, and ſometimes Fire, and ſometimes neither, as it fares ordinarily with that of Arequipa, as alſo with that of Mexico near the Village of Angels, which ſends out Smoak and Aſhes only by fits but never Fire; and yet the Inhabitants are afraid it will ſometime break out and burn all the Country.

7. The Vulcanoes of Guatimalla are more terrible. In the Year 1586. almoſt all the City of Guatimalla fell with an Earthquake. This Vulcanoe had then for ſix Months together, Day and Night caſt from the Top and vomited as it were, great Floods of Fire; a notable Inſtance of what Treaſures of Combuſtibles Nature is ſtored with. As is alſo obſervable in the Vulcanoe of Quitto, which caſt ſuch abundance of Aſhes, that in many Leagues compaſs thereabouts it darkned the Light of the Day.

8. There are alſo other kind of Vulcanoes which never caſt either Smoak, Flame, or Aſhes, but in the bottom they are ſeen to burn with a quick Fire never dying. This impoſed upon a greedy Prieſt, and made him think it was nothing elſe but Heaps of Gold melted in the Fire, which he thought to have fetched up by letting down a Iron-Kettle with Chains. But his Device was not Fire-proof, his Kettle and Chain melting ſo ſoon as they approached near the Bottom.

9. But the greateſt Wonder of all is that which Acoſta noteth of ſome Vulcanoes, that for ſome hundred, nay ſome thouſands of years have caſt out continually Smoak, Fire, and Aſhes. Theſe viſible Inſtances of particular Burnings of the Earth are notable Preſumptions that there are laid in the hidden Mines of Providence ſuch a Proviſion of combuſtile Matter as will ſerve for that univerſal Conflagration we ſpeak of, when the Day of Vengeance ſhall make uſe of thoſe Treaſuries of Wrath.

10. We

10. We might add further Arguments of ſubterraneous Fires and the Fewel thereof from Earthquakes and hot Fountains; of which there are ſome in Peru, as the ſame Writer reports, that are ſo hot, that Man cannot endure his Hand ſo long as the repeating of an Ave-Marie. There be infinite Numbers of theſe in the Province of Charcas. He makes mention alſo in the ſame place of ſeveral Springs and Fountains that run with Pitch and Roſin. Which yet ſeems nothing ſo ſtrange as thoſe Thermæ Fallopius ſpeaks of, in the Territories of Parma, whoſe Water catches fire at diſtance: and as for hot Fountains they are more ordinary in theſe known Parts of the World than that we need at all inſiſt thereupon. See Plin. lib. 2. cap. 103. Joſ. Acoſta] lib. 3. cap. 17.

CHAP. VIII.

1. A fiery Comet as big as the Sun that appeared after the Death of Demetrius. Comets Preſages of Droughts. Woods ſet on fire after their appearing. 2. Of falling Stars. Of the Tail of a Comet that dried up a River. 3. Hogſheads of Wine drunk up, and Men diſſipated into Atoms by Thunder. 4. That the Fire of Thunder is ſometimes unquenchable, as that in Macrinus the Emperour's time; and that procured by the Prayers of the Thundring Legion. 5. Of conglaciating Thunders, and the Tranſmutation of Lot's Wife into a Pillar of Salt. 6. The Deſtruction of Sodom with Fire from Heaven. That univerſal Deluges and Earthquakes do argue the Probability of a Deluge of Fire. 7. That Plinie counts it the greateſt Wonder, that this Deluge of Fire has not happened already.

1. WE have ſeen how well ſtored the Earth is toward this general Conflagration; let us now conſider what the Heaven or Air may afford. Where letting go other Fiery Meteors, we ſhall conſider ſome few Inſtances of Comets, falling Stars, and of Thunder.

By Comets I underſtand only ſuch new Stars as are Sublunary and of combuſtible Matter actually ſet on Fire, of which ſort there was one of ſo huge a Magnitude which appeared after the Death of Demetrius, that it was found no leſs than the Sun to ſee to, and with the Brightneſs of its fiery ſhining turned Night into Day. But to ſpeak more at large of this Meteor, Cardan and other Philiſophers would have them either Signs or Cauſes of great Droughts; and they may well be both, theſe ſublunary eſpecially: ſuch great fiery Bodies not being eaſily fed without waſting much of the kindly Moiſture, of the Air, which makes the Seaſon alſo unwholeſome and peſtilential. But for Droughts, it has been obſerved, that after the appearing of theſe Comets, the Year has been ſo exceſſive hot, that it has parched the Corn upon the Ground, ſet whole Woods on fire, and dried Fountains and Rivers; as it happened in the Years 1477 and 1539.

2. The Stellæ cadentes are either ſuch as Virgil deſcribes in his Georgicks,

Sæpe etiam ſtellas vento impendente videbis
Præcipites cœlo labi, noctiſque per umbram
Flammarum longos à tergo albeſcere tractus.
Oft mayſt thou ſee upon approaching Wind
Stars ſlide from Heaven, and through the Night's great ſhade
Long Tracts of flaming white to draw behind.

(Which Meteors though they make a great Show in the Night, yet do not ordinarily much hurt, unleſs they ſhould light upon the Fields of Aricia, whoſe Earth was ſo combuſtible that it would take fire upon the falling of any Coal) Or elſe they are ſuch kind of Comets, as themſelves become ſometimes falling Stars: Which Scaliger affirms to have been found true in his time: and Fromondus out of Sennertus writes, that the Tail of a Comet in the Year 1543 flew off, and falling into a River drunk up all the Water of it.

3. But the Effects of no fiery Meteor are ſo frequent or ſo terrible as that of Thunder. To which ſulfureous Exhalations out of the Earth contribute ſomething, as well as moiſt Vapours for the generating of Rain: As is diſcovered by the great Frequency of Thunders about the Vulcanoes we ſpoke of.

One notable Effect which Plinie takes notice of is like that of the Tail of the Comet. For he ſaith there is one kind of Thunder, quo dolia exhauriuntur intactis operimentis. Like to this is that which the above-named Writer recites out of Wolfangus Meurerus, that a certain Miniſter as he was going from Lipſia to Torga was ſo conſumed by Thunder, that not a bit of him was to be ſeen, his whole Body being diſſolved into Vapour and Exhalations, and blown away with the Wind. The cloſeſt Texture of Bodies will not hold, when this quick ſearching Fire aſſaults them. For this Meteor is made of ſuch ſubtile, glib and furiouſly-agitated Elements, that they will irreſiſtibly paſs where-ever they attempt, and disjoin every Congeries of Atoms, as Lucretius has well deſcribed them.

Quæ facile inſinuantur, & inſinuata repente
Diſſolvunt nodos omnes, & vincla relaxant.

Which eaſily pierce, and piercing ſtraightway looſe
All Knots, and ſuddenly break every Nooſe.

4. But that is as remarkable as any thing concerning Thunder, that the Fire thereof is ſometimes unextinguiſhable; as it happened in Macrinus the Emperour's time, when the Theatre was Thunder-ſtruck in the very Day they celebrated their Vulcanalia. And ſuch was that Fire that fell from Heaven in Aurelius his time by the Prayers of a Legion of the Chriſtians, which from this effect was called Legio Fulminatrix, the Thundring Legion. A competent Shower of ſuch Fire as this, that is thus peremptory and importunate, What part of the Earth is ſo incombuſtble that it would not ſubdue?

5. I would not mention that ſtrange and unexpected Effect of Thunder whereby it conglaciates or makes rigid, fluid, or ſoft Bodies, (which both Seneca and Cardan takes notice of: The one gives an Inſtance of Hogſheads of Wine turned into Ice by Thunder; the other of certain Mowers in the Iſland Lemnos, who being thunder-ſtruck as they were ſupping under an Oak, their bodies became ſo hard, rigid, and ſtiff, as if they had been ſo many Statues, which imitated the ſame Actions they were doing when they were alive, one ſeeming to eat, the other ſeeming to lift a Pot to his Mouth, a third to drink, &c.) I ſay I would not mention this, did it not give ſome Light and Credibility to that wonderful Tranſmutation of Lot's Wife into a Pillar of Salt; the Thundring and Lightning that then fell, ſome of it it ſeems being attempered to ſuch an effect, and directed to ſtrike that refractory Woman, that ſhe might be not only a Monument of God's Wrath upon diſobedient Curioſities, but alſo of the manner of his executing that ſignal Vengeance upon Sodom and Gomorrha with the neighbouring Cities, viz. That it was with Thunder and Lightning from above, as the Text witneſſeth, and Solinus and Tacitus alſo agree to, and not only by ſubterraneous fire breaking forth, and the Abſorption of Earthquakes that ſwallowed down the Cities, as Strabo ſeems to inſinuate.

Cardan. de Rerum Varietate, lib. c. 8. 43.

6. This Deſtruction of Sodom with Fire from Heaven, aſſented to by Heathens as well as Chriſtians, is ſo ample a Pledge of the Poſſibility of the Conflagration of the Earth, that though I could out of Plinie and others add other ſuch like Inſtances of Cities being burnt down with Thunder, yet I ſhall content my ſelf with this ſo notable an Example. And having ſhewn that there are ſuch copious and rich Treaſures of the fiery Principle in Nature, I ſhall make this brief demand, Why may not this Principle ſometime ſo break out and overflow, that there may be an univerſal Rage of Fire upon Earth, as well as there was once of Water? For the hidden Cauſes and Principles of Nature ſometimes work ſcantly, ſometimes moderately, ſometimes as if they had broke all Laws and Bounds: as is obſervable in Torrents and Earthquakes; they ſometimes being kept within the Compaſs of a very few miles, other ſometimes being in a manner univerſal, as thoſe Earthquakes were that happened in the Years 367, and 1289. So Floods ſometimes are ſo ſmall, that they ſcarce cover a whole Meadow; other-ſometimes ſo great, that they drown whole Towns; and other-ſometimes they are either ſo large as to be univerſal, or at leaſt to cover vaſt Kingdoms and Continents at once. Such were the Deluges of Deucalion, of Ogyges, and that of Noah. So likewiſe we ſee alſo in Hiſtory what particular Executions the Element of Fire, either by Fulgurations from Heaven or Eruptions out of the Earth has done on this Houſe, on that Town, nay upon whole Countries: Why may not the Rage of it then at laſt ſo break out, that it may be called even a general Deluge of Fire?

7. This

7. This ſeems ſo far from an Impoſſibility to Plinie, that conſidering how full fraught the World is with this Element, and how propagative it is of it ſelf, he ſaith it is the greateſt Miracle of all, that this univerſal Conflagration has not already happened. Excedit profectò omnia miracula, ullum diem fuiſſe quo non cuncta conflagrarent.

CHAP. IX.

1. The Conflagration argued from the Proneſs of Nature and the tranſcendent Power of Chriſt. 2. His driving down the Powers of Satan from their upper Magazine. 3. The ſurpaſſing Power and Skill of his angelical Hoſts. 4. The Efficacy of his Fiat upon the Spirit of Nature. 5. The unſpeakable Corroboration of his Soul by its Union with the Godhead; and the manner of Operation upon the Elements of the World. 6. That the Eye of God is ever upon the Earth, and that he may be an Actor as well as a Speculator, if duly called upon. 7. 8. A ſhort Deſcription of the firing of the Earth by Chriſt, with the dreadful Effects thereof.

1. THAT therefore which Nature ſeems thus perpetually to threaten of her ſelf, can it be hard for us to believe that Chriſt and his glorious Hoſt of Angels, who have a Power above Nature, will be able to effect when it ſhall ſeem good to him whom God has made viſible Judge of the World? Remember what Command he had over the Elements when he was in the Fleſh in the loweſt State of Humiliation, and what Power he had over them that for ſo long time have been permitted to lord it in this groſſer Elementary World, whoſe Chieftain is called the Prince of the Air. Remember how by a Word of his Mouth he ſent packing a whole Legion of his Kingdom at once. What is it then that he cannot do in his exalted Eſtate, when he returns to Judgment in ſo exceeding great Majeſty and Glory, when he ſhall deſcend with the Sound of a Trump, and face the Earth with his bright Squadrons, and fill the whole Arch of Heaven with innumerable Legions of his Angels of Light, the warm Gleams of whoſe Preſence is able to make the Mountains to reek and ſmoak, and to awake that fiery Principle that lies dormient in the Earth into a devouring Flame?

2. But beſides this, By deſcending thus low they drive the old Uſurper and his dark Legions from that upper Magacine, and now can turn his Atillery againſt himſelf, and make uſe of all the Proviſion fit for Fire-Works. For this is the time that Diphilus the Tragidian Propheſis of,

Ἔσται γὰρ, ἔσται καινὸς αἰώνων χρόνος,
Ὅτ' ἂν πυρὸς γέμοντα θησαυρὸν χάσῃ
Χρυσωπὸς αἰθὴρ, ἡ δ' ὑποκινηθεῖσα φλὸξ
Ἅπαντα ταπήγεια καὶ μετάρσια
Φλέξει μανεῖσα.

To this ſenſe,

The time will come when as the golden Sky
His hidden fiery Treaſures ſhall let fly,
And raging Flames burn up all and conſume,
Filling both Earth and Air with noiſome Fume.

And if there were not here already matter enough to contrive into the moſt miſchievous kind of fiery Meteors, ſuch as will be ſure to do Execution, yet that Word that created all things can eaſily change ſo much of any Matter into ſuch a Modification as will moſt effectually ſerve for this heavy Vengeance.

3. But I make no queſtion but that there are ſecond Cauſes on this ſide that Omnipotent Creative Power of the Godhead, that are ſufficient for ſuch Miniſtries of Providence as this. As truly thoſe innumerable bright Legions of Angels may ſeem to be, whoſe Skill and Power of Imagination upon the Elements of Nature is certainly tranſcendently above what we can conceive; their Faculties, at leaſt ſome of them, as far ſurpaſſing ours, as ours do thoſe of brute Beaſts who have not the leſt Conceit of our Power and Artifice in doing things.

4. What Power think you then is in the Head of these Heavenly Hosts Christ Jesus, who in the Flesh, as I have often noted, shewed such mighty Specimens thereof over the Elements of the World? The mere Fiat therefore of his Imagination and Will acting upon the Spirit of Nature, whether nearer hand or farther of, cannot but prove sufficient, if he so please, to undo that universal Coalition of Particles out of which arises the Compages and Consistence of every earthly Substance, and to turn them into such a Flame as some would have the whole Earth anciently to have been, or so to moderate the Action, and fire it so deep, and with such a Qualification of parts, as shall be most suitable to his present and after-Design.

5. This Effect will not seem beyond that inherent Power in the Divine Soul of Jesus, if we consider its unspeakable Corroboration by his mysterious Union with the Godhead, and the Obedience of the Spirit of Nature to the exalted Powers of the Soul, and the Power of this * Spirit upon the subtil matter of the World, and the force of that subtile Matter to disjoin all Coalescencies; and then the Promptness of these dissolved Particles to close again unto such a Form as the regulated Activity of the Spirit of Nature shall command them into. For all this is but an higher and diviner kind of Magick, working by the Excitation of the Spirit of Nature upon the changeable Elements of the World, no Creation nor Annihilation of any thing.

See my Treatise of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 3. ch. 6. sect. 6. also chap. 12. and 13.

6. So that keeping our selves on this side the naked Deity, to the Consideration of second Causes partly Natural and partly free Agents, amongst whom the highly-exalted and supereminently-divine Soul of Jesus is the chief, we discover a Power able to effect more than we have declared concerning the Conflagration of the Earth. And when this will suffice, how over-evidently are we assured of the Feisableness of this Atchivement from what St. Peter has suggested concerning the absolute Power of the Word of God, by whom all things are, and who is a perpetual Spectator of his Works? For the Spirit of the Lord filleth the World, as the Wise-man speaks, and that which containeth all things has Knowledge of the Voice. And it is as true that all things lie open to his Sight, and that the Earth is always under the present Eye of God. Wherefore he that perpetually looks on, Is it hard to conceive that at last, at some solemn Period of time, he may in a special manner step out into Action, if need so require, and he be invoked thereunto?

2 Pet. 3. 5.

Wisdom chap. 1. v. 7.

7. Wherefore the Faithful being gathered from all the Corners of the Earth, and carried up to * Christ their Saviour, and joyning with his Legions of Light; there being then left in the Earth and in the inferior Parts of the Air none but obdurate Adherents to the dark Kingdom, which shall now be made more externally dark than ever, black pitchy Clouds covering the whole Face of the Sky, and making Night fall upon the Inhabitants of the World even at Mid-day: in the midst of this sad, silent, and louriug Aspect of the Heavens, He that in the Flesh was heard and answered by Thunder, when he prayed saying, Father, glorifie thy Name, shall by the same Interest in the eternal God cause such an universal Thunder and Lightning, that it shall rattle over all the Quarters of the Earth, rain down burning Comets and falling Stars, and discharge such Claps of unextinguishable Fire, that it will do sure Execution where-ever it falls; so that the ground being excessively heated, those subterraneous Mines of combustible Matter will also take fire: which inflaming the inward Exhalations of the Earth, will cause a terrible Murmur under Ground, so that the Earth will seem to thunder against the tearing and ratling of the Heavens, and all will be filled with sad remugient Echoes; Earthquakes and Eruptions of Fire there will be every where, and whole Cities and Countries swallowed down by the vast Gapings and wide divulsions of the Ground. Nor shall the Sea be able to save the Earth from this universal Conflagration, no more than the Fire could preserve her from that over-spreading Deluge; for this fiery Vengeance shall be so thirsty, that shall drink deep of the very Sea; nor shall the Water quench her devouring Appetite, but excite it. For such is the Nature of some Fire, as History every where testifieth.

*See my Treatise of the Immortality of the Soul, Book 3. chap. 18. Sect. 15.

John 12. 28.

8. Wherefore every great Channel of the Sea shall be left dry, and all Rivers shall be turned into Smoak and Vapour; so that the whole Earth shall be inveloped in one entire Cloud of an unspeakable Thickness, which shall cause more than an Ægyptian Darkness, clammy and palpable to be felt; which added to this choaking Heat and Stench will compleat this External Hell, a place of Torment appointed not only for the prophane Atheist and Hypocrite, but also for the Devil and his Angels, where their Pain will be proportioned according to the Untamedness of their Spirits and Unevenness of their perverse Consciences.

CHAP.

CHAP. X.

1. The main Fallacies that cauſe in Men the Misbelief of the Poſſibility of the Conflagration of the Earth. 2. That the Conflagration is not only poſſible but reaſonable, The firſt Reaſon leading to the belief thereof. 3. The ſecond Reaſon, the natural decay of all particular ſtructures, and that the Earth is ſuch, and that it grows dry and looſes of its ſolidity, whence its approach to the Sun grows nearer. 4. That the Earth therefore will be burnt, either according to the courſe of Nature, or by a ſpecial appointment of Providence. 5. That it is moſt reaſonable that Second way ſhould take place, becauſe of the obdurateneſs of the Atheiſtical crew. 6. That the Vengeance will be ſtill more ſignificant, if it be inflicted after the miraculous Deliverance of the Faithful.

1. I Hope by this time we have prevailed ſo far as to perſwade the Poſſibility of the Conflagration of the World, in that Senſe we have explained it. And truly I know nothing that ſhould keep a Man from aſſenting to it as poſſible, but that dull Fallacy, whereby we conclude, That nothing can be done but what we have ſeen done, or phanſie we could do our ſelves. And this is the reaſon that makes the Atheiſt misbelieve Creation, becauſe he himſelf can make nothing but out of a prejacent Matter; and a ſettled courſe of things cauſes ſo deep an impreſſion in our Senſes, that we can hardly phanſy they will ever alter. Which makes ſome Men never think of Death, eſpecially if they have never been Sick; a flattering impoſſibility, by reaſon of ſo long continuance of Life, ſtealing into their hopes, as if they ſhould never die. And therefore that great Monarch was fain to have one to rub up his memory every Day with a Μέμνησο ἄνθρωπος ὤν, Remember that thou art Mortal. Well may we phanſy then ſuch unalterable Laws of Nature as ſhall ſecure the Earth from ſuch a Deſtruction as we ſpeak of, when we are led unawares into ſo favourable a conceit of our own Life or Fortune, after we have for a competent time been well ſettled in either, as not at all to think of the mutability of our condition. Wherefore I hope any one that is aware of this ordinary Fallacy, will eaſily recover himſelf into ſo much uſe of his Reaſon, as not to conclude the Conflagration of the Earth impoſſible, becauſe he knows not how to burn it himſelf; or that it will always continue unburnt, becauſe it has been unburnt thus long.

2. But that which I drive at is, to ſhew that the belief of a Chriſtian is not only of things poſſible, but reaſonable; which I have in ſome ſort made good already by diſcovering the manifold Treaſures of the fiery and combuſtible Principles in Heaven and Earth: To which I add further,

Firſt, That Providence ordering all particular Corporeal things by number, weight and meaſure, it is reaſonable that the continuance of this preſent Stage of things be numbred, that is, have its number of Years ſet, ſo that there be a full pauſe or Period, a laſt Exiit and Plaudite, to this Tragick Comedy.

3. Secondly, Whatever particular Corporeal ſtructure has a Beginning (unleſs it be a Body inacted with a glorified Spirit) will alſo have an End naturally of it ſelf, and that which will have an End, is ſubject to decaying. And for my own part, I queſtion not but that the Earth is of ſuch a Nature, and * that it waxes old by degrees, and will grow more and more dry and ſteril in Succeſſion of Ages; whereby it will become more kexy, and looſe of its Solidity. For a Body that is porous and can imbibe moiſture, the more moiſt, the more ſolid it is, and the more ſolid the Earth is, the better it will keep its diſtance from the Sun, as it is ſwung about him in this common Vortex of the Planets. Wherefore the diſtance of the Earth leſſening ſo, as Aſtronomers obſerve, might it not come from other cauſes, would be a parlous ſymptom and ſign that the Earth grows old apace, and much exhauſted: And the more it is exhauſted, the nearer ſtill it will be wrought toward the Sun, according to the Carteſian Philoſophy. So that at laſt, what by its over-dryneſs and what by its approaching ſo near to the Fountain of heat, not only Forreſts and Woods, which has happened already, but the ſubterraneous Mines of Sulphur and other combuſtible Matter will catch fire, and ſet the whole Earth in a manner on burning.

* See Book 2. ch. 6. Sect. 2.

4. I ſay

4. I ſay therefore, that the Earth will thus at the long run be burnt, either according to the courſe of Nature, (of which manner of deſtruction theſe be the main concomitants; That by reaſon of a long diſtemper and languiſhment, ſhe will be utterly unable or very wretchedly able to ſuſtain either Man or Beaſt for abundance of Ages together before ſhe be ruined and burnt up by this mortiferous Fever, and after this Death and Deſtruction of hers, far leſs able, ſhe becoming then but as a Caput Mortuum by reaſon of the long exhauſtion of the Life and Heart of the ſoil before this lingring Conflagration) or elſe by a more ſpecial or ſolemn appointment of Providence, the Period of her Conflagration ſhall be ſhortned. From which if any univerſal good doth accrue to the Creation, it is not unworthy of the Son of God and his mighty and moſt glorious Hoſt to be employed in ſo weighty a performance. For is not the whole Earth the Vineyard of the Lord, a particular platt of his skillful Culture and Husbandry?

5. Thirdly and laſtly, There being ſo many and obdurate rebellious Spirits, as well among the Apoſtate Angels as Men, that are ſo far revolted from God, that they ſcarce retain any Senſe of him in their Minds, that peremptorily deny a particular Providence, and ſtoutly phanſy that if there be a Deity, he takes no notice of the Affairs of any particular Creatures, that jear and flout at Religion, and look upon the Life of the Son of God when he lived in the World as a poor and Contemptible Example of Puſillanimity and Dejectedneſs of Spirit, that contemn all his true Followers for moaped Fools; but make their own Luſts their Law in all things, and therefore are inſenſible of whatever Injuſtice or Cruelty they commit, or whatever Beaſtlineſs or Vileneſs they give themſelves up to; theſe being paſt all Senſe within, but all of them ſenſible enough in their Bodies or Vehicles, the Devils themſelves not excepted, how fitting, nay how neceſſary is it, that a fiery Whirlwind and Tempeſt of Vengeance ſhould rattle upon their External Perſons, and that Corporeal pain ſhould pierce them to the very quick, and that all whatever they took delight in ſhould be demoliſht, and that they ſhould be ſmothered in tormenting Heat and Darkneſs, of which they know no end?

6. Theſe Conſiderations which I have alledged make the Conflagration of the World not only poſſible, but alſo very reaſonable, eſpecially with that Circumſtance of not coming * naturally, (for they would then look on it only as a common calamity) but of being inflicted viſibly by one whoſe Perſon and Laws are ſo much vilified and ſcorned by all the Powers of the Dark Kingdom: And then again, for further conviction and aggravation, after ſuch a time as they have ſeen the ſupernatural * deliverance of the Righteous before their Eyes. For this makes good that Promiſe and Threatning of our Saviour, what difference he would make betwixt the Sheep and the Goats, ſaying to one, * Come ye Bleſſed of my Father, Inherit the Kingdom; and to the other, Go ye accurſed into everlaſting Fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels.

* See Book 2. chap. 6. Sect. 2.

* See the Immortality of the Soul, Book ch. 3. 18. Sect. 15.

* Mat. 25. 34, 41.

CHAP.

CHAP. XI.

1. A Recapitulation or Synopſis of the more Intelligible part of the Chriſtian Myſtery, with an Indication of the Uſefulneſs thereof. 2. The undeniable Grounds of this Myſtery, The exiſtence of God, A particular Providence, The Lapſableneſs of Angels and Men, The Natural ſubjection of Men to Devils in this fallen Condition. 3. God's Wiſdom and Juſtice in the Permiſſion thereof for a time. 4, 5. Further Reaſon of that Permiſſion. 6. The Lapſe of Men and Angels proved. 7. The Good emerging out of this Lapſe. 8. The exceeding great Preciouſneſs of the Divine Life. 9. The Conflagration of the Earth. 10. The Good ariſing from the Oppoſition betwixt the Light and Dark Kingdom. 11. That God in due time is in a ſpecial manner to aſſiſt the Kingdom of Light, and in a way moſt accommodate to the humane Faculties. 12. That therefore he was to ſend into the World ſome Venerable Example of the Divine Life, with miraculous atteſtations of his Miſſion of ſo ſacred a Perſon. 13. That this Perſon, by reaſon of the great Agonies that befall them that return to the Divine Life, ought to bring with him a palpable pledge of a proportionable Reward, ſuppoſe, of a Bleſſed Immortality, manifeſted to the meaneſt Capacity by his riſing from the Dead and viſibly aſcending into Heaven. 14. That in the Revolt of Mankind from the Tyranny of the Devil, there ought to be ſome Head, and that the Qualifications of that Head ought to be oppoſite to thoſe of the old Tyrant, as alſo to have a Power of reſtoring us to all that we have loſt by being under the Uſurper. 15. That alſo in this Head all the notable Objects of the Religious propenſions of the Nations ſhould be comprized in a more lawful and warrantable manner. 16. That this Idea of Chriſtianity is ſo worthy the Goodneſs of God, and ſo ſutable to the State of the World, that no wiſe and vertuous Perſon can doubt but that it is or will be ſet on Foot at ſome time by Divine Providence; and that if the Meſſias be come, and the Writings of the New Teſtament be true, in the literal Senſe it is on Foot already.

1. WE have, I think, fully enough ſet forth the Reaſonableneſs of Chriſtian Religion in the Idea thereof, it may be more fully then was needful, before we come to prove, That it is more then an Idea. We ſhall by way of Recapitulation contract the more Intelligible frame thereof into a leſſer Model, that its due ſymmetry and proportion may be better ſeen at once. Which will be both a relief to our Memory, and alſo a help to our Judgment, when we ſhall have a more eaſy opportunity of conſidering the ſolid ſtrength and handſome congruity of the whole Fabrick.

2. And I dare challenge the moſt maliciouſly-wiſe and skillful, if he can find any rational exception againſt the ſtructure of this ſo intelligible a Truth, whoſe Foundation is no leſs firm then what is built upon theſe undeniable Grounds; That there is a God, and a Perfect and Particular Providence, That there are Angels, and Spirits of Men really diſtinct from their Bodies, and That the one as well as the other are lapſable. Which things I have demonſtrated * partly in this preſent Treatiſe, * partly in other Writings; and I appeal to all the World if they have any thing ſolid to oppoſe againſt what I have Writ. Moreover, That this Lapſe of Men and Angels is their forſaking of the Divine Life, and wholly cleaving to the Animal without any curb or bounds; whereby as well the fallen Angels or Devils as Man himſelf are become, as much as reſpects the inward Life, mere Brutes, being devoid of that touch and ſenſe of the Divine Goodneſs. And therefore their Empire is generally merely like that of the Beaſts, according to Luſt and Power, where the ſtronger Rules with Pride and Inſolency over the weaker; and ſo the Devils being a degree above Men, of more Wit and Power then they, it naturally falls to their ſhares to Tyrannize over Mankind, who were in the ſame Condemnation with themſelves, having become Rebels to God as well as they.

* See Book 2. ch. 1, 2, 3.
* In my Antidote againſt Atheiſm, and my Treatiſe of the Immortality of the Soul.

3. And it is but a piece of Wiſdom and Juſtice in that great Judge and Dramatiſt God Almighty, to permit this to be for a ſeaſon: And therefore the generality of the World were to be for a time under the Religion and Worſhip of Devils, who were wild and enormous Recommenders of the mere Animal Life to the Sons of Men without any bounds or limits; themſelves in the mean time receiving that tribute of abuſed Mortals which was moſt agreeable to their Pride and Tyrannical Natures, that is, Religious Worſhip and Abſolute Obedience, as I have proved by many Examples in Hiſtory.

4. And

4. And that God should stand silent all this time is no wonder, partly from what I have intimated already, and partly because he is out of the reach of any real Injury in all this; as also because the Object of this irregular Fury of both Men and Devils, in which they please themselves so much, is but the Effect of that one Power from whence are all things, or some Shred or Shadow of the Divine Attributes. For I have shewn fully enough that all the Branches of the Animal Life are good and laudable in themselves, and that only the unmeasurable Love and Use of them is the thing that is damnable. The great Rebellion therefore of both Men and Angels is but a phrantick Dotage upon the more obscure, evanid and inconsiderable Operations or Manifestations of that Power which shoots into all.

See Book 2. chap. 9.

5. In this low Condition is held the Kingdom of Darkness, who, maugre all their Lawlesness and Rebellion, do ever lick the very Dust of his Feet from whom they have revolted. For there is no Might nor Counsel against the eternal God, but his Will shall stand in all. That all-comprehending Wisdom therefore was not outwitted by these Rebels, but she suffered them to introduce a Darkness, out of which her self would elicite a more marvellous and glorious Light, and let them prime the Tablet with more duskish Colours, on which she was resolved to pourtray the most illustrious Beauty that the Eyes of Man could desire to look upon.

6. And that there is a Lapse of Men and Angels, is very manifest. That of Man is so plain, that not only the better sort of Philosophers, such as the Pythagoreans and Platonists, but the making of Laws and appointing of Punishments and Mens general Confession of their Proneness to Vice and Wickedness, doth abundantly testifie. And that there are wicked Spirits or evil Genii, as well as good, the Religion of the Pagans, and the Confession of Witches, and the Effects of them in the possessed are a sufficient Argument.

7. Now that Wisdom, as I have said, that orders all things sweetly, is not in the least measure baffled by this Misadventure of the fall of Angels and Men; but looks upon it as fit Fuel for a more glorious Triumph of the Divine Life, And that noted Aphorism amongst the Pythagoreans, who laid no Principles for mean Ends, comes in fitly here, Τὸ χεῖρον ἕνεκα τοῦ βελτίονος, That the Worser is made for the Service and Advantage of the Better. And the Kingdom of Darkness, no question, by him that rules over all is very dextrously subordinated to the greater Advantage of the Kingdom of Light, it yeilding them a due exercise of all their Faculties in the behalf of the Divine Life, which God most justly does magnifie above all things; as also a most successful Victory and Triumph. So that the Period of Ages ought to end (so exact a Providence attending things) as a very joyful and pleasant Tragick Comedy. This the Reason of Man will expect upon Supposition that there is a God and Providence, as most certainly there is both; especially if one quality of Souls and Spirits be better and more precious than another, and the Divine Life the most lovely Perfection of all.

8. Which is as true as touch to all that have once tasted the Excellency of it; and the Ignorance of the blind is no Argument against the certain Knowledge of them that see. For one Soul, Angel, or Spirit (though they may be the same in Substance, as all Corporeal things are the same in Matter) may differ as much from another, as Gold, Diamonds, and Pearls do from common Dirt or Clay, or the most exquisite Beauty from the horriblest Monster. That therefore that is base shall be rejected, and that which is precious and noble shall be gathered up, in that Day that the Lord shall make up his Jewels.

9. And there will be such a visible Day of Vengeance wherein the whole Earth shall burn with the Wrath of God, not only the common Fame throughout all Ages and Places, of the final Conflagration of the World, and natural Reasons in Philosophy, but also a Necessity of some universal, palpable, and sensible Punishment on impudently-prophane and atheistical People, is a warrantable Inducement to believe.

10. The great Good therefore that does arise out of this Revolt of Men and Angels, is a setting the Activity of the Creation at an higher pitch, and making the Emanations of all manner of Life felt more to the very quick, exciting and employing all the Faculties and Passions of Souls and Spirits in a greater degree of Life and Motion, with more Vigilancy and a more savoury Sense of acquired Enjoyments, then if there had been no such Opposition betwixt the Light and Dark Kingdoms.

11. Now therefore though God may seem at first to give the Dark Kingdom and Animal Life the Start of the Divine, yet he is in due time, by some very effectual Means Means, ſo to raiſe up, ſo to back and aſſiſt the Divine Life againſt the Powers of Darkneſs, that ſhe may be found to have very viſible Victories againſt the Uſurpation of Satan over the Sons of Men. Wherefore the Divine Wiſdom that does not act according to abſolute Power but according to the Congruity of the Nature of things, is to wind off Mankind from the Slavery of the Devil, and reclaim them from the Irregularities of the Animal Life to the Embracement of the Divine, by ſuch a way as is moſt accommodate to the humane Faculties and Capacities.

12. And what do we think could work more kindly upon the Nature of Man to diſenſlave him from the Bondage of Satan, and to make him cloſe with the Divine Life which he had forſaken, then to exhibit a very viſible Example thereof in ſome venerable Perſon, who ſhould earneſtly exhort Mankind to follow his Steps and Practices, and whoſe Doctrine ſhould be confirmed with ſenſible Teſtimonies from Heaven, in Approbation and Exaltation of his Perſon, ſhewing that he is the only Beloved, the Darling and Delight of the Eternal God, with ſome ſuch Expreſſion as this from the very Clouds, This is my beloved Son, hear him? In brief, That his Birth, Life, and Death ſhould be adorned with ſuch miraculous and ſupernatural Circumſtances, that it may be viſible to all Men that are not willingly blind, that this Man was a true and infallible Meſſenger ſent from God? Which would be a very forcible Battery laid againſt their outward ſenſes.

13. But being that this had been the ſadder Meſſage by how much more they had been aſcertain'd it had been true, That they muſt forſake the exorbitant Pleaſures of the Animal Life, and keep cloſe up to the Divine; it was alſo requiſite that they might be aſſured of a proportionable Reward for ſo great an Agony as they were to undergo in mortifying and caſtigating their natural or habitual Deſires, and betaking themſelves to the ſtreighter way. And therefore it is fit that that Truth that is ſo obſcure and incredible to the generality of Men, ſhould be made groſly manifeſt to the meaneſt Capacities; I mean, the Reward of a bleſſed Immortality after this Life, and the regaining of Heaven or Paradiſe which lapſed Mankind had loſt. The Certainty whereof I cannot tell how it may be better aſſured to them, than by the Witneſs of one whom we are ſure is infallible, and who ſays expreſly that he came from *thence, and after Death is to go thither again, and does not only tell the World ſo, but proves it to outward Sight, he being raiſed out of his Grave after he was perfectly dead, and aſcending into the Heavens, where Fleſh and Blood cannot inhabit. Which is a viſible Demonſtration of the Soul's Immortality, and as feelingly accommodate to the ſloweſt Apprehenſion, as if ſome Man, of whoſe Honeſty the People were indubitably aſſured, ſhould deſcend from ſome high-Hill, where none of the Country had had the Hap to have been as yet, and ſhould tell them what pleaſant Woods and Groves there were there, full of all manner of delicious Fruit, a true terreſtrial Paradiſe, and that it was not ſo ſteep or inacceſſible as they imagined; and therewith ſhould return thither in the very ſight of thoſe that queſtioned the Matter. This Conſideration would reach their very inward Reaſon and indiſpenſable Intereſt. For they that are the loweſt lapſed, are not fallen from the Senſe of their own good, and from a Deſire of everlaſting Happineſs if they find it poſſible.

*See Book 1. Chap. 8. Sect. 5, 6.

14. This were enough to make Mankind weary of the Devil's tyrannical Yoke. But in all Revolts there ought to be ſome Head; and no Perſon is ſo fit for ſuch a Purpoſe as he who is able to reward his Followers, whoſe Virtues are eminently oppoſite to the Vices of the Tyrant, and whoſe Rule, when he is inſtalled, will as little thwart the uſual or natural and innocent Propenſions of the People as may be.

Wherefore whereas the Devil's Government is notorious for unſpeakable Pride, Inſolency, and Cruelty to Mankind; (as has been at large diſcovered in thoſe bloody Sacrificings and deſpightfully Miſ-uſings of Men in a way of Superſtition, which no Man can doubt to have any better Author than Satan himſelf) the Head of this warrantable Revolt muſt be ſingularly kind and tenderly and affectionately loving and compaſſionate to the Generations of Men, as alſo very humble and lowly, and be ſo far from requiring ſuch abominable and bloody Homages as the ſacrificing of Men to him, that he would willingly lay down his Life for their ſake. Which muſt needs prove an unſpeakable Endearment of the Affections of his Followers to him, and raiſe in them a more vehement Deteſtation of the Devil's Tyranny. But becauſe Love is ineffectual that has no Power of doing good, this Head becomes the more perfectly compleat, if he be found not only so kind as to be willing to lay down his Life for his Subjects, but also to be able to save them from all the Inconveniencies that opposite Power intangled them in, whose Wages were no better than eternal Death; and therefore it was fitting that he should have a Power from God of giving everlasting Life and crowning them with a blessed Immortality at the last Day, and of saving them from that general Destruction that will in time seize as well on the rebellious Angels as the unreclaimed Souls of Men.

15. Lastly, Those natural and innocent Propensions of Mankind are gratified in this Head we speak of, if there be such Properties in him as are suitable to their Opinions, Practices and Desires, in Matters of Religion. And we know by History that the Heathen were very prone to suspect those that were their eminent Benefactors to have been born of more than humane Race; and that they had so high Sense of Gratitude toward them, that they Deified them after their Deaths, and did them divine Honour. Add to this, their Conceit of the Necessity of their καθάρματα and ἀνθρωποθυσίαι for the appeasing the Wrath of the Gods, and of the Convenience of their Dii Medioxumi. Wherefore if Divine Providence add these Gratifications also, in the Choice of the Head she shall appoint for the opposing and beating down the Kingdom of Satan, the Matter is still more compleatly fitted and accommodated to the humane Faculties; which having been long abused by idle Mistakes, cannot but be highly transported with Joy upon the discovering their true and warrantable Object: and so the Nations will find such a Prince and Leader, as the more they behold him and eye him, the more they must become enravished by him; Divine Wisdom condescending by this Contrivance to the utmost Curiosity of Courtship, to win off poor lapsed Mankind from the Tyranny of Satan to the Kingdom of God.

16. This is a short Review of the more intelligible part of Christianity; the Reasonableness whereof I take to be such, that I dare appeal to the Judgment of any, if it be not so worthy of the Divine Wisdom and Goodness, and so fitly suited unto the Nature and Condition of things and the State of Men upon Earth, that it is indispensable but that Providence some time or other should send into the World such a Prince and Redeemer of his People out of the Captivity of the Devil, as we have described: who having declared the Promises of eternal Life to his faithful Followers, and so raised himself a Party against the Powers of the Dark Kingdom, should exercise the Creation with this noble and high-concerning Conflict, and after a due time of Trial of the Faith, Resolution, Constancy, Love, and Obedience of his Adherents, return visibly again at last, according to Promise, giving Victory, Peace, and a blessed Immortality to his own, and pouring down Wrath, and Vengeance, and utter Destruction upon his implacable and contemptuous Enemies. This Providential Contrivance, I say, looking upon it in the Idea, is so congruous and rational, that there is no wise and virtuous Man but will easily assent, that it will some time or other be set on foot in the World; but I shall now endeavour to make good that it is already on foot, and that this Period of Providence is begun in the Appearance of Jesus Christ the Son of God and of the blessed Virgin: that is, That our Christian Religion, as it relates to the Person of Christ, according as I have propounded it and displayed it in the main Branches thereof, is not a mere Idea, but a real and actual Truth. Which I think will be sufficiently demonstrated, if I prove That the expected Messias is come, and That the Writings of the New Testament are true. For nothing then can defeat our Design, unless a Man will be so wild as to pervert the Literal Sense of those Writings, and turn every thing miraculous there into an Allegory.

CHAP.

CHAP. XII.

1. That the chief Author of this Myſtical Madneſs that nulls the true and literal Senſe of Scripture is H. Nicolas, whoſe Doctrine therefore and Perſon is more exactly to be enquired into. 2. His bitter Reviling and high Scorn and Contempt of all Miniſters of the Goſpel of Chriſt that teach according to the Letter, with the ill Conſequences thereof. 3. The Reaſon of his Vilification of them, and his Injunction to his Followers not to conſult with any Teachers but the Elders of his Family, no not with the Dictates of their own Conſciences, but wholly to give themſelves up to the leading of thoſe Elders. The irrecoverable Apoſtacy of ſimple Souls from their Saviour by this wicked Stratagem. 4. His high Magnifications of himſelf, and his Service of the Love, before the Diſpenſation of Moſes, John the Baptiſt, or Chriſt himſelf. 5. That his Service of the Love is a third Diſpenſation, namely of the Spirit, and that which ſurpaſſes that of Chriſt; with other Encomiums of his Doctrine, as that in it is the ſounding of the laſt Trump, the Deſcent of the new Jeruſalem from Heaven, the Reſurrection of the dead, the glorious coming of Chriſt to Judgment, and the everlaſting Condemnation of the wicked in Hell-Fire. 6. That H. Nicolas for his time, and after him the eldeſt of the Family of the Love in Succeſſion, are Chriſt himſelf deſcended from Heaven to judge the World, as alſo the High Prieſt for ever in the moſt Holy.

1. THERE being therefore this only Obſtacle to our proſperous Procedure in this Affair, and the ſpreading of this myſtical Madneſs being moſt of all from the Eſteem and Authority of that highly-adored Enthuſiaſt, H. Nicolas of Amſterdam; I find my ſelf neceſſitated to make here ſome ſtop, to diſcover his enormous Doctrines, and the Groundleſneſs of them; as well to undeceive his ſeduced Admirers, as to juſtifie my own *publick Diſlike of him, that I may not ſeem to have been in the leaſt meaſure either raſh or injurious. And that we may the better proceed therein, I ſhall firſt preſent him to you in all his Ruffe and Glory, adorned with the Teſtimonies of his own Style, ſuch as he would appear to the World to be; and then examine If there be any ground of believing him to be ſuch; and laſtly offer Reaſons whereby I ſhall clearly demonſtrate that he is not what he pretends to be.

* Enthuſiaſm. Triumphat. See. 40.

2. And that his Luſtre may ſeem as big as he deſires, you ſhall firſt hear what pitiful things all are that are not found of his Sect, if you will believe his Cenſure of them; namely, That there is no Knowledge of Chriſt nor of the Scripture but in his Family; That without his God-ſervice of the Love all the God-ſervices, Wiſdom, and Doctrine out of the Scripture, let them be taught by thoſe that are never ſo well learned therein, is but but Witchery and Blindneſs.* And that as many as mis-believe and oppoſe his Service of the Love, are earthly and deviliſhly minded.* And that there is no Remiſſion of Sins out of his Communialty.* That it is aſſuredly all Falſe and Lies, ſeducing and deceitful, what the* ungodded or unilluminated Men out of the Imagination or Riches of their Knowledge and out of the Learnedneſs of the Scriptures bring forth, inſtitute, preach and teach. That all Teachers and Learners out of his Communialty are a falſe Chriſtianity and the Devil's Synagogue or School, yea a Neſt of Devils and all wicked Spirits. And of their Knowledge compendiouſly and at once he pronounces, It is a falſe Being, the Devil, the Antichriſt, the wicked Spirit, the Kingdom of Hell, and the Majeſty of the Devil. No better then this is the moſt ſober and careful Reaſoning out of the Holy Scriptures, or the ſimple Apprehenſion of the Hiſtory of Chriſt and all his Promiſes, be they by never ſo ſincere and devout Souls, if they be not of his bleſſed Family of the Love, who have the Luck to be the only illuminated in the World. Of this you may read more fully in his firſt Exhortation, Chap. 15. and 16. Which ugly and uncharitable Character he gives of all Chriſtians beſides his own Family (who yet are indeed (as you ſhall hear anon) no Chriſtians at all) muſt needs imbitter the Spirits of his profeſſed Followers, and envenom them beyond all meaſure againſt the Miniſtry of the Goſpel according to the Letter thereof. Which yet clearly enough ſets out to us the Hiſtory of Chriſt, his Promiſes and Precepts; neither is there any myſtical Meaning that is true, that is not litterally ſet down in the Text. So that all their Boaſt is but of Alluſions and Phraſes, nor can they produce any thing that is not already plain-

*See his Introduct. ch. 8. 56. and ch. 1. 10.

*See his Propheſie of the Spirit of Love ch. 10. 7.
*His Exhort. ch. 7. 4.
* ch. 16. 17.

ly before our Eyes in the Letter it ſelf. And therefore if they have any choice Secret to themſelves, it is the Myſtery of Infidelity and Unbelief, a bold and groundleſs Preſumption that the Hiſtory is not true.

3. Which Preſumption makes them ſo peremptorily conclude all the Scripture-learned under Ignorance, none of them hitherto having been ſo naſute as to ſmell out the leaſt Falſity in the Oldneß of the Letter. And therefore that their Novices may not be entangled nor diſtracted through the ſimple Belief or plain Doctrine of ordinary Chriſtians, he exhorts them not to hearken to, nor believe any other Service or Information but what is adminiſtred by the Elders in the Houſe of the Love *enjoins them to give up their Underſtandings wholly to the eldeſt of the Family, and to give ear to none elſe but the Teacher of his own Sect. *Nay he will not ſo much as ſuffer them to appeal to the Light that is within them, nor to judge themſelves nor be judged by their own Conſciences, but only by the Elders of the Houſe of Love, concerning whom they muſt not have the leaſt Suſpicion of Error or Unfaithfulneſs. Which is the greateſt Tyranny and Slavery upon the Soul of Man that can be deviſed, and a ſhrewd Indication that thoſe Elders will approve and adviſe things againſt expreſs Scripture, Reaſon, and Conſcience. And thus is many a poor ſimple Lamb catched out of the Fold of Chriſt, and carried quite away without Recovery into the thickeſt and remoteſt Woods and darkeſt Caverns or Dens to be devoured by this white Wolf, who, by his gracious Speeches, heart-melting Inſinuations, ſoft-ſoothing Language, that is oyled and perfumed with nothing but Love, firſt intices the Little-ones, after whom his Mouth waters, to a great Eſteem of himſelf, and then utterly extinguiſhes in them, to their eternal Deſtruction, all that Faith they had in the Perſon and Promiſes of our ever-bleſſed Saviour.

Ch. 12. 37.

*ch. 13. 9. alſo 14 14. 1.
*ch. 20, 12, 13.

Which he does by intercepting all Aid that the Uſe of Reaſon and the Knowledge of the Scripture could adminiſter, giving them ſuch hard Language as we have above recited; the civileſt Aſperſion he beſtows, being the Imagination of the Knowledge: but magnifying himſelf and his Service of the Love, that is, his own Doctrine, above whatever yet appear'd to the Sons of Men, as you ſhall now hear.

4. For he ſets himſelf above Abraham, Moſes, David, and all the Prophets, above John the Baptiſt, yea above the Perſon of Chriſt himſelf. For indeed he will allow that the Service of the Fathers in the Covenant of Circumciſion untill Moſes, was the Forefront of the true Tabernacle; and that Moſes in Figures and Shadows ſet out the true Being of the true Sanctuary of God in the Spirit of their Sight: That John the Baptiſt was a Preparation by Repentance to an Entrance into the Holy of the true Tabernacle; and that this Holy of the true Tabernacle is the Service of Chriſt in the Belief: But the Holy of Holies, or the moſt Holy, this he reſerves to himſelf and his Service of the Love. * Wherein, as he boaſts, is the Perfection of Life, the Completion of all Propheſies from the Beginning of the World, the righteous Judgment of God, the Throne of Chriſt before which all things muſt needs be manifeſted, the perfect Being of the Godhead, and the true Reſt of the choſen of God. He calls alſo this his Service of the Love the laſt Day, and the Perfection and Concluſion of all the Works of God. Whereby he would intimate it to be an everlaſting Seventh Day or Sabbath. And yet he will have it alſo the Eighth Day, as if he affected an Holy Day beyond that of God himſelf, and a time beyond Eternity.

See his Evangelie, ch. 37.

*chap. 38. 3.

5. Again, in his Propheſie of the Spirit of Love, he ſets himſelf higheſt in the Enumeration of the Three Principal Services, namely the Service of the Law under God the Father, the Service of the Belief under Chriſt the Saviour, and the Service of the Love under the Holy Ghoſt. The Affectation of which Office he learnt of his Maſter David George, as is noted by them that have wrote of theſe Enthuſiaſts. I omit to ſpeak of leſſer Encomiums of his Doctrine; as that it is the laſt Trump, that ſure Word of Propheſie; that his Day of the Love is that new Day that the Lord has made, abundant in Clearneſs and full of eternal Joy, the new Jeruſalem deſcending from Heaven, and the Inheritance of the right-Perfection. We will conclude all with what he writes in his Revelation of God. Behold preſently in this Day is the Kingdom of the God of Heaven and his Righteouſneſs, the godly Majeſty and his Glory, as alſo the Salvation of Chriſt and the eternal Life appeared in perfect Clearneſs, with great Triumph and Joy; The Reſurrection alſo of the dead, the cleanſing of the Earth, the Bleſſing of all Generation, the righteous Judgmennt of God, the glorious Coming of Chriſt with all the thouſands of Saints, and the everlaſting Condemnation of all ungodly in the helliſh Fire. What therefore can you expect more than is accompliſhed in in his Service of the Love? And what greater Perſon can there be then he who ſets ſo Glorious a Diſpenſation on Foot on the Earth? Let us therefore take notice what he makes himſelf in the midſt of this Glory and Pomp which he ſets out.

See Revel. Dei cap. 29. v. 3.

6. As if it were a ſmall thing for him to be raiſed from the Dead, and to be anointed with the Holy Ghoſt, * he boaſted further that God has Sealed in him the Dwelling of his Glory and of his Holy Name; and elſewhere that he is Godded with God, and conſubſtantiated with the Deity: And expreſly in his Evangely, Chap. 34. he declares how God has manned himſelf with him, and Godded him with his Godhead, to a living Tabernacle, a Houſe for his dwelling, and to a Seat of his Chriſt the Seed of David; and how the Judgment-ſeat of Chriſt is revealed out of Heaven from the Right Hand of God, and that on the ſame Judgment-ſeat of Chriſt there ſitteth one (meaning himſelf) in the Habitation of David which judgeth uprightly, thinketh upon equity, and requireth Righteouſneſs, and that through him God will judge the compaſs of the Earth. * This, in his Introduction to the Glaſs of Righteouſneſs, is the right Meſſias, the high Prieſt for ever in the moſt Holy, the Noble King of Iſrael and Juda, that poſſeſſes the Seat of his Father, an everlaſting peaceable Prince over the Houſe of Jacob according to the promiſes. But you'll ſay this cannot be underſtood of H. Nicolas, but of Chriſt, according as he has wrote * elſewhere, that there is in his Communialty of the Love a true Judge, Jeſus Chriſt our Lord and King, which executes the right Judgment of his Father according to the Truth. But we are alſo to underſtand that This Chriſt, that ſits on the Throne of his Father David, is the eldeſt Father of the Family of Love, as appears out of his Evangelium, Cap. 31. Sect. 14. and 16. Which places compared with what has been recited, it is clear that H. Nicolas is this Chriſt on the Seat of David for his Life-time; and, which is ſtill worſe, and the Seed of endleſs Madneſs and Blaſphemy, that this wild Preſumption of the eldeſt in the Family being the very Chriſt from Heaven returned to judge the World with equity, will be entailed upon their Succeſſors for ever. And that the appearance of this Chriſt may be the more Glorious and more anſwerable to the very Phraſe of Scripture, he is accompanied with Angels as well as Saints, ſome of his Elders being adorned with the glittering Title of Seraphims, as is to be ſeen in the Legend of his Life, Entituled Mirabilia Dei, as alſo in his Glaſs of Righteouſneſs.

* Evangel. ch. 38.

* Chap. 12.

* Exhortat. chap. 20. 13.

CHAP. XIII.

1. An Examination of all poſſible Grounds of this Fanatick Boaſter's magnifying himſelf thus highly. 2. That there are no Grounds thereof from either the Matter he delivers, or from his Scriptural Eloquence, Raptures and Allegories. 3. The unſpeakable Power and Profit of the Letter above that of the Allegory, inſtanced in the Crucifixion, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion of our Saviour, and his coming again to Judgment. 4. That Allegorizing the Scripture is no ſpecial Divine Gift, but the Fruit of either our Natural Phanſy or Education. 5. That he had no Grounds of Magnifying himſelf from any Miracles he did. 6. Nor from being any Special Preacher of Perfection or Practiſer thereof. 7. Of that Imperfection that is ſeated in the impurity of the Aſtral Spirit, and ungovernable tumult of Phanſy in Fanatick Perſons.

1. BUT enough has been related to ſhew that tranſcendent eſteem this Enthuſiaſt had both of himſelf, and alſo would inſinuate into others, of his own Perſon and Doctrine. Let us now conſider what Right or Ground he had to aſſume ſo much to himſelf, or others may have to attribute ſo much unto him. And to bring all the Inducements imaginable into view; This high conceit of his being ſo ſupereminent a Perſon, muſt ariſe either from the Matter he does deliver, or his Eloquence, or the Raptures he was in when he penn'd down his Revelations, (as he would have them thought) or from the Myſteriouſneſs of his Allegories, or from his Evangelizing the Perfection, or laſtly for that he was Propheſied of in the Scriptures, as he in whom all things ſhould be fulfilled.

2. Now for the main Matter he delivers plainly and above-bord, it is the excellency of Love. Which is ſo Eſſential a Truth to Chriſtianity, * and plainly inculcated in the Goſpel, and ſo effectually recommended, that there is no true Chriſtian can miſs of it.

* See Book 8. ch. 2. ad 13.

it. So that we need no new Inſtructer in that Divine Grace, much leſs any inſpired Prophet to teach us what is ſo plain to us already. And therefore if there be any thing new in this Doctrine of Love, it muſt be ſuch a kind of Love that is new to Chriſtians, I mean to true Chriſtians; but not the Gnoſticks, nor the School of Simon Magus, who ſpoke as magnificently of himſelf as this Impoſtor can do poſſibly. And for his Scriptural Eloquence, his Raptures and Tranſportations in the penning down his Writings, how that ſuch things ariſe frequently from Nature and Complexion, is abundantly declared in my Enthuſiaſmus Triumphatus: (to ſay nothing of worſer Aſſiſtences then mere Complexion) as alſo the dexterity of Allegorizing; which yet how diſtortedly he performs, I ſhall note anon.

See Enthuſiaſ. Triumphat. Sect. 19, 20, 23, 24, 56, 59.

3. In the mean time I hold it well worth our obſervation, how giddy and injudicious thoſe Perſons are that are ſo mightily taken with the Myſtical Senſe of ſuch parts of the Hiſtory of Chriſt as are moſt profitable in the belief of the mere Letter: Such as his Paſſion, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion, his Seſſion at the Right Hand of God, and his coming again to Judgment, when he will change theſe vile Bodies of ours into the ſimilitude of his Heavenly Body. For making this a mere Repreſentation of ſomething to be performed within us, namely his Crucifixion, of our mortifying of the old Man, his Reſurrection, of our riſing to newneſs of his Life, his Aſcenſion into Heaven and ſitting at the Right Hand of God, of our entrance into and Rule and Reign in the Heavenly Being with Chriſt in the Spirit, and his Returning to Judgment, the judging and governing our Natural and Earthly Man with Righteouſneſs and Equity (which Allegories, or rather not ſo good, is the deepeſt Wiſdom and Divineſt Revelation that is to be found in this admired Prophet) ſuch Alluſions, I ſay, and Similitudes as theſe have no more force nor efficacy to urge us, or help us on to thoſe Accompliſhments they repreſent, then if the Hiſtory of Chriſt were a mere Fable. But if, in ſtead of making them Reſemblances, we ſhould uſe them as Arguments from a true Hiſtory, they have a Power unſpeakable for the making us good. * For thus any Ingenuous Spirit would melt into remorſe, when he conſiders how the Son of God, out of mere Love and Compaſſion to him, was Crucified for him; and thereby will willingly ſubmit to all the pain of Mortification in a kindly Gratitude to his Saviour: * And from the belief of the Reſurrection of Chriſt from the Dead, will be the further animated in his purſuance of the Reſurrection to an Holy Life, being aſſured of Eternal Enjoyment of his Labours by a Bleſſed Immortality; of which alſo His Aſcenſion into Heaven is a further pledge, and his ſitting at the Right Hand of God the greater motive to take off his mind from Earthly deſires, and to think of thoſe things that are above. * And laſtly, his certain hope of obtaining that Crown of Glory which Chriſt the Righteous Judge ſhall give unto him at the laſt Day (I mean that Gloried and Heavenly Body) will be the greateſt ingagement imaginable to ſpend the ſtrength of his Natural Body in his Service, to expoſe it to all Hardſhips, yea to Death it ſelf, if need ſo require, for the Honour of his Saviour; and in the mean time to poſſeſs it in all Sanctity poſſible, in a grateful obſervance of his Commands from whom we expect the Redemption of our Bodies.

* See Book 8. Chap. 16.

* See Book 8. Chap. 17.

* See Book 8. Chap. 18.

4. Wherefore the Literal meaning of the Hiſtory of Chriſt being ſo powerful and effectual to the making of us good, it is a ſign of a great deal of folly and levity to dote upon mere Allegories and Alluſions, that have no force at all in them to move us to Godlineſs and Vertue; or to ſurmiſe that there is any thing Spiritual or Divine in the mere Allegorizing of the Scripture. For there is nothing Divine, ſaving our full aſſurance of the Holy Truths themſelves that are delivered in the Goſpel, whether they be Life or Hiſtory, for this is a Spiritual Gift indeed. But that we conceive that one may repreſent the other, that is only the natural Nimbleneſs of our Phanſy, or a Dexterity accruing to us from Uſe and Education; ſuch as I queſtion not but was in Saint Paul, who was brought up a Phariſee, and therefore was well verſed in their Midraſh or Myſtical meaning of the Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament, which made him ſo prone to ſuch Applications in the New. But this was no ſuch ſpecial Inſpiration or peculiar Spiritual Attainment in him above the reſt of the Apoſtles, but merely a Caſt of his Office, a Specimen of his former Education, which accuſtomed him to Alluſions and Allegories in the Interpreting of the Law. So that I much pity thoſe poor * Souls that are ſo Tranſported and overcome with thoſe Alluſions and Allegorical Reflexions, as ſuch high Attainments, that they think themſelves illuminated above the Capacities of all other Mortals, being more pleaſed with the gaudy Colours of the Rainbow then with the pure Light which is reflected thence: Which yet all true Chriſtians plainly ſee and feel in the ſimplicity of its own Nature, without any ſuch cloudy refractions;

* See Book 10. chap. 13. ſect. 5.

fractions; and know that the rest is not the dictate of the Spirit, but the mere service of Phansy lending its aid to the setting forth of Divine Perceptions. And yet this slight sallad is the chief Food this pretended Prophet feeds his Followers withall, and the greatest demonstration of his being extraordinarily called and inspired.

5. For as for Miracles, he never did any, as you may see in that Book of his Life Entituled Mirabilia Dei, where nothing miraculous is Recorded, unless a certain Prophetical Dream, wherein he seemed to be frighted, together with some Devotional Expressions after he awakened out of it; as also a lucky escape out of the Hands of his Persecutors, who haply being not so vigilant as they might be, the phrase of the Story makes them struck with Blindness; and lastly his witty questions and answers to the Priest or Confessor when he was a Child: Wherein he does so fully utter the chief of his Doctrine, that he seems as wise at eight Years old as ever he was since, tho' he lived to a very considerable Age. But any one that has any insight in things may easily discern that the Discourse was never intended for a true History, but a Spiritual Romance. So that as petty Businesses as these are, they have no assurance of their Truth.

6. Now for his Pretensions of being the most Eminent Preacher of Perfection, it is a mere Boast. For whether he means by Perfection, Love, which is the Perfection of the Law, it cannot be more clearly and advantageously Preached then it is in the New Testament by Christ and his Apostles. * And what Comparison is there betwixt such a Teacher of Love, who being the declared Son of God by Signs and Miracles, gave his Life out of dear Compassion to Mankind, and a soft Fellow that only talks fine phrases to the World? Or whether he pretend to a more general Perfection in the Divine Graces or Holy Life, whose Root is true Faith in God and his Promises through Christ, and the Branches Charity, Humility and Purity; it shall appear anon, that as for true Faith he is perfectly fallen from it, and that he is as a dead Tree pulled up from the Root. And for the present it is evident also out of his own Writings (not to charge him with accusations out of others) that he is far from being perfect either in Charity, Humility, or Purity. For what greater sign of Uncharitableness, then to charge all Men that are not of his Communialty to be of the Synagogue of Satan and Children of the Devil? And what greater Pride, then to prefer himself before Abraham, Moses and Christ, and make as if he were God himself come to judge the World with his thousands of Saints and Seraphims? And lastly, what greater Symptoms of Lust and Impurity, then to be sunk down from all sense and presage of a Life to come? To say nothing of his Complaints, in his Glass of Righteousness, of such as came in to spy out their Liberty, * and his lusty animations against Shamefacedness and Modesty in Men and Women, and their shiness to such Acts as ordinary Bashfulness is loath to name. Which in my apprehension are very foul spots in that Glass of his, as if it had been breathed upon by the Mouth of a menstruous Woman.

* See Book 8. ch. 2. sect. 3.

* See his Glass of Righteousness, Book 3. Chap. 26.

7. But there is also a more subtil Uncleanness, from which who is not free, if he knew his own weakness, he would be ashamed to profess himself perfect; and that is the Impurity of the Astral Spirit, in which is the Seat and Dominion of unruly Imagination. Hence are our Sidereal or Planet-strucken Preachers and Prophets, who being first blasted themselves, blast all others that Labour with the like impurity, by their Fanatick Contagion. Those in whom Mortification has not had its full Work, nor refined the Inmost of their natural Complexions, are subject to be smitten and overcome by such Enthusiastick Storms, till a more perfect Purification commit them to the safe Custody of the Intellectual Powers. Wherefore let this pretended Prophet boast as much as he will of his Glorious Resurrection from the Dead, it is manifest to the more perfect, that he has not yet so much as passed through that Death that should have led him to the unshaken Kingdom of Truth, and letten him in to the immoveable Calmness and Serene stillness of the Intellectual World, where the Blasts and Blusters of the Astral Spirit cease, and the Violence of Phansy perverts not the faithful Representations of Eternal Reason. For God is not in these Fanatick Herricanoes, no more then he was in the Tempestuous Wind, Earthquake, or Fire that passed before the Prophet Elias. But the Divine Truth is to be found in that still small Voice, which is the Echo of the Eternal Word; not urg'd upon us by that furious Impulse of Complexional Imagination, but descending from the Father of Lights, with whom there is no shadow of change. This was an Attainment out of this Boasters reach, of which he had not the least sense or presage, and therefore was wholly given up to the hot scalding Impressions of misguided Phansy in his Astral Spirit. Which being strangely raised and exalted ted in this falſe Light, has a Power by Words or Writings to fire others, and to intoxicate them with the ſame heat and noiſe in their enraviſhed Imagination, whereby that ſtill and ſmall Voice of Incomplexionate Reaſon cannot be heard.

1 King. 19. 12.

CHAP. XIV.

1. That neither H. Nicolas nor his Doctrine was Propheſied of in Holy Scripture. That of the Angel Preaching the Everlaſting Goſpel groundleſly applied to him. 2. As alſo that Place, John 1. 21. of being That Prophet. 3. His own mad Application of Acts 17. ver. 31. to himſelf. 4. Their Miſapplication of 1 Cor. 13. ver. 9, 10. and Hebr. 6. ver. 1, 2. to the Doctrine of this new Prophet. 5. Their arguing for the Authority of the Service of the Love from the Series of Times and Diſpenſations, with the Anſwer thereunto. 6. That the Oeconomy of the Family of Love is quite contrary to the Reign of the Spirit. 7. That the Author is not againſt the Regnum Spiritûs the Cabbaliſts alſo ſpeak of, but only affirms that this Diſpenſation takes not away the Perſonal Offices of Chriſt, nor the External comelineſs of Divine Worſhip. 8. That if this Regnum Spiritûs is to be promoted by the Miniſtry of ſome one Perſon more eſpecially, it follws not that it is H. Nicolas, he being a mere miſtaken Enthuſiaſt, or worſe.

1. AND therefore being blinded with the Wind and Duſt of this Fanatick Tempeſt, they are carried on to ſo great a piece of Folly, as to fanſy this miſtaken Wight ſo Sacred and Divine a Perſon as to be Propheſied of in the Holy Scriptures. But the Places that are alledged are ſo weakly and ineptly applied, that it is a further confirmation of their being ſtrangely hood-winked and held down with an over-bearing effaſcination and witchcraft. For how vain a thing is it to make this Man that Angel that Preached the Everlaſting Goſpel, whenas that Angelical Preachment was at leaſt ſeven or eight hundred Years before he lived, according to all thoſe Interpreters that have endeavoured to give a ſolid and coherent account of S. John's Prophecy? But this is more then I need attempt, (or it may be can be done) to confute this aſſertion by Chronological demonſtration. It is ſufficient to note that it is groundleſs, a mere phanſy unbacked by Reaſon and Argument; whenas on the contrary there is evident Reaſon againſt it; This Perſon whom they ſo much adore being rather a Decryer of the Everlaſting Goſpel then a Preacher of it, as ſhall appear in due time.

Revel. chap. 14. v. 6.

2. The Second conceit of his being Propheſied of in Scripture is fixt upon that of St. John 1. ver. 21. where they would have him to be That Prophet, viz. an Eminent Prophet diſtinct from Elias and Chriſt. But it is very diſcernable how weak an Alledgment this is. For firſt, if there were ſuch an Eminent Prophet expected diſtinct from Elias and Chriſt, it does not follow it is he. And then again, this expectation of the Jews is no Divine Teſtimony. And thirdly, as ſome Interpreters have noted, they expected him before the coming of Elias, as Elias before the coming of Chriſt. Others underſtood by That Prophet the Prophet Jeremy, who is ſtyled ὁ Θεοῦ προφήτης, That Prophet of God. And laſtly, amongſt the reſt that excellent Critick and pious Interpreter Caſtellio renders it ſimply, a Prophet, the Senſe being, At leaſt art thou a Prophet? See Caſtellio upon the place. So many weaknings are there of this groundleſs Fiction of his being Propheſied of in this place of Scripture.

See Grotius upon the place.

Acts 17. v. 31.

3. But I ſhall produce a Third place, and that of his own chuſing, Acts 17. where God is ſaid to have appointed a Day in which he will judge the World in Righteouſneſs by that Man whom he hath Ordained; whereof he hath given aſſurance unto all Men, in that he hath raiſed him from the Dead. This ſhameleſs Enthuſiaſt does not ſtick to apply to himſelf this place, as if he were the Man Propheſied of therein. Whenas it is manifeſt, it is meant of the Perſon of Chriſt, whom God had Corporeally raiſed from the Grave as a palpable Pledge and Aſſurance that the World ſhould be judged by him according to the Scriptures, Matth. 25. 31. But ſuppoſing the meaning to be that which this Fanatick Boaſter would have it, ſee what Senſe it will make with the preceeding verſe, which would be this, That God now commands all Men every where to repent, namely, becauſe 1500 Years hence he will raiſe up H. Nicolas from the Dead, in a Moral Senſe, who ſhall judge the World by his Doctrine. What Bedlam Madneſs is this to vent ſuch Expoſitions of the Holy Writ upon pretence of higher Inſpiration then ever was yet in the Word? The Apoſtle's Exhortation would be as wild Senſe as if one ſhould ſhould earneſtly cry unto the People walking in Paul's to run out of the Church as faſt as they can, becauſe it is ready one thouſand five hundred Years hence to fall down upon their Heads.

4. That I may not omit any places that they alledge, I will add alſo 1 Cor. 13. ver. 9, 10. For we know in part, and we Propheſy in part: But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is imperfect ſhall be done away. And Hebr. 6. ver. 1, 2. Therefore leaving the Principles of the Doctrine of Chriſt, let us go on unto Perfection; not laying again the Foundation of Repentance from dead Works, and of Faith toward God, of the Doctrine of Baptiſm, laying on of Hands, and of the Reſurrection of the Dead, and of the Eternal Judgment. From theſe two places they are wont to gather that the Doctrine of Chriſt is imperfect, and a more perfect Doctrine was to come, which is, ſay they, the Doctrine of Hen. Nicolas. Which argument is as weak and frivolous as Blaſphemous. For it is plain that in the former place he compares not any Doctrine to be ſet on Foot on Earth with the preſent Doctrine of Chriſt and Knowledge of the Apoſtles, but the condition of the Knowledge of the Chriſtian Church in this Life with that which ſhe ſhall have in Heaven: And therefore he ſaith, Now I know in part, but then I ſhall know even as I am known. What, does S. Paul mean that he ſhall know nothing clear till H. Nicolas his time? O the madneſs and impudence of theſe giddy Interpreters! And to the latter Text; What would they have us to let go our Chriſtian Creed under pretence of a new Doctrine which is more perfect? Yea certainly they would ſo, as will appear more plainly anon. But how ſhamefully they abuſe this Scripture to that execrable end, is evident from the following Verſe, And this will we do, if God permit. That is, The Apoſtle himſelf will deliver that Doctrine of Perfection he mentions in the firſt Verſe; and therefore it is no Prophecy of the Doctrine of H. Nicolas, but a more exquiſite Declaration of the excellency of Chriſt's Prieſthood; which is too long and too accurate to fill a ſhort Creed. But what pitiful ſhifts are theſe deluded Fanaticks put to, when they have no better Alledgements then theſe for their Rebellious Errors againſt Chriſt?

5. I ſhall conclude my examination of their grounds of believing this Fanatick ſo great and eminent a Prophet, with ſomething a more trim conceit of his Followers, whereby they would countenance their high Opinion they have of him, which is hinted alſo from himſelf; namely, That the Series of Times and Providence ſeem to give witneſs to the mighty Profeſſions he makes of his own Miniſtry. For as there was for a time a Service of the Law under God the Father, and then a Service of the Belief under Chriſt the Son; ſo likewiſe the Holy Ghoſt muſt have his turn and have his Service: And what Service can that be, but the Service of the Love? To which I anſwer, That if they ſpeak this in good earneſt in reference to the three Hypoſtaſes of the ever-Bleſſed Trinity, it is plain that that Myſtery was not Communicated to the World under the Law of Moſes, but concealed in the hidden Cabbala among the Wiſe Men and Prophets, not to be publiſhed till Chriſt; for the better clearing and fitter recommending the Theory of his Union with the Eternal Word. With the appearance therefore of Chriſt, with whom all the fulneſs of Divine Wiſdom was to be imparted to Men, a diſtincter Knowledge of the Deity and clearer aſſurance of the Immortality of the Soul (the main Branches of the Ancient Cabbala) was alſo Communicated. But it is no where ſaid, nor can be conceived, That God the Father, diſtinctly from the Son and Holy Ghoſt gave the Law to Moſes; but it was an Act, as all Acts ad extra are, of the entire Godhead. Nor is the Father nor the Holy Spirit excluded in the Oeconomy of the Goſpel, but their Glory is acknowledged Coequal and their Majeſty Coeternal. Nor again can the Church ever ceaſe to be under the Belief of Jeſus Chriſt, ſo as that any other God-ſervice ſhould juſtle that out by its Succceſſion. For the Belief of the Promiſes of Chriſt's coming again viſibly to Judgment and Crowning his true Members with Eternal Life and Glory, muſt of neceſſity continue till the Promiſes themſelves be fulfilled: Which are but phantaſtically conceived to be fulfilled in the Service of the Love.

6. Moreover how can that Diſpenſation pretend to be the Miniſtry of the Spirit, where Men are kept off from believing the inward manifeſtations of their own Mind (where alone they can be properly ſaid to be Taught of God) and urged to give up all their Light and Conſciences to be rul'd at the pleaſure of the Elders of his Family? This is not to be inſpired by God, but to be Taught merely by Men, and to be carved and ſhaped out like a piece of dead Marble by the Hand of the Statuary. So wholly unlike the Diſpenſation of the Spirit is this Oeconomy of the Service of the Love. Beſide that it is a piece of Rapine and Robbery to appropriate that to their Family which is the Peculiar of every true Believer in Chriſt, who aſſuredly have the aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit, * as I have proved at large in the following parts of my Diſcourſe.

* See Book 8. ch. 8, and 9.

7. But if any one will adventure to affirm, That after this dead Form of Religion and external flattery of the Perſon of Chriſt, which has continued too many Ages, there will ſucceed a more general Reign of the Spirit of Life and experimental Knowledge of his Sceptre and Power in us, ſubduing all his Enemies there under his Feet, and renewing the World in true Righteouſneſs and Holineſs; it is that which I in no wiſe oppoſe; nay, I muſt confeſs I have a fatal and unalterable propenſion to think it to be true, and that this may be that Regnum Spiritûs which the Cabbaliſts of old did preſage, and does begin with the Reviving of the Witneſſes in the Apocalypſe of St. John. Of which things I have * already ſpoke. But in the mean time this is not the ſpecial Work of any one Man, but like the Viſion of * Ezekiel, where Breath comes from the four Winds of Heaven upon the Bones already covered with Sinews, Fleſh and Skin; and behold they lived, and ſtood upon their Feet, an exceeding great Army: An orderly Company, ſuch as the Church of Chriſt ought to be. For this Internal Power of the Spirit will not annul or deſtroy the External Frame of Chriſtian Religion, as it refers to the Offices of the Perſon of Chriſt, the Head of his Church, (as theſe Satanical Impoſtors would pretend) but rectify and corroborate it, and make it more irreprehenſibly and enraviſhingly beautiful; as there was more Luſtre in thoſe raiſed Bodies after the Spirit of Life had entred into them, then when they were mere dead Carcaſſes.

* See Book 5. Chap. 17. Sect. 8.

* Chap. 37. v. 9, 10.

8. Beſides, if we did conceive that this Diſpenſation of Chriſt in the Spirit was to be in a more ſpecial manner promoted by the Miniſtry of ſome one Perſon, it does not at all follow that H. Nicolas is the Man; and not only ſo, but I am confident I ſhall make it manifeſt that it is impoſſible that it ſhould be he. Which I ſhall have ſufficiently performed, when I have demonſtrated that he is nothing at all of that which he pretends to be, but only a mere miſtaken Enthuſiaſt, if not worſe; which was the laſt part of my Purpoſe. And this I conceive is fully evinced by proving him to have laid aſide all the Offices of the Perſon of Chriſt, as he is Man, and intercepted all the hopes of his Viſible Return to Judgment in the Clouds of Heaven, and of rewarding all true Believers with that Glorious Crown of Life in an Heavenly Body at the laſt Day. Which things are ſo clear in Scripture, that the Scripture it ſelf muſt loſe its Authority if theſe things once loſe their belief, as is manifeſt by what we have ſaid * already in this preſent Treatiſe. And therefore he that denies theſe things, it is plain he is not inſpired of God, but is a Miniſter and Factor for the Devil.

* Chap. 1.

CHAP. XV.

1. That the Perſonal Offices of Chriſt are not to be laid aſide: That he is a Prieſt for ever, demonſtrated out of ſundry Places of Holy Writ. 2. That the Office of being a Judge is alſo affixed to his Humane Perſon, proved from ſeveral Teſtimonies of Scripture. 3. Places alledged for the excluding Chriſt's Humanity, with Anſwers thereto. 4. The laſt and moſt plauſible place they do alledge, with an Anſwer to the ſame.

1. NOW that the Humane Perſon of Chriſt, as I may ſo call it, is not to be laid aſide, is evident (not to repeat what I have elſewhere alledged) from the whole Epiſtle of the Author to the Hebrews. For he that there is ſaid to be an high Prieſt for ever, is that very Man who was Crucified on the Croſs at Jeruſalem, who was ſaid to be like unto his Brethren in all things; that he might be a merciful and faithful high Prieſt, in things appertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the Sins of the People: For in that he himſelf hath ſuffered, being tempted, he is able to ſuccour them that are tempted. And it is further clear that it is this very Man we ſpeak of, in that he is ſaid to be Born not of the Tribe of Levi, but of the Tribe of Juda, Chap. 7. 14. And yet he is there declared a Prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec. Read the whole Chapter; nothing can be more clearly aſſerted then the Everlaſting high-Prieſthood of this Man, who ſanctifying the People with his Blood, ſuffered without the Gate. Which are ſuch particularities as muſt needs affix the Eternal high-Prieſthood to the Humane Perſon of Chriſt.

Hebr. 2. ver. 17, 18.

Again

Again in that he is said to suffer but once, it is apparent that it is to be literally understood of his Humane Person; And every Priest standeth daily ministring and offering oftentimes the same Sacrifices which can never take away Sins: But this Man after he had offered one Sacrifice for Sins, for ever sate down at the Right Hand of God, &c. And yet more fully in the foregoing Chapter: For Christ is not entred into the holy places made with Hands, which are the Figures of the true; but into Heaven it self, now to appear in the presence of God for us. Nor yet that he should offer himself often, as the high Priest entreth into the holy place every Year with Blood of others. For then must he often have suffered since the Foundation of the World. But now once in the end of the World hath he appeared to put away Sin by the Sacrifice of himself. And as it is appointed unto Men once to die, but after this the Judgment: So Christ was once offered to bear the Sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time, without Sin unto Salvation. To which you may add that of Peter, For Christ also hath once suffered for Sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God. And 1 John 2. 1. If any Man Sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous, and he is a propitiation for our Sins. And if he was so in S. John's time, why not always?

Hebr. chap. 10. ver. 11.

Hebr. 9. v. 24, 25, 26, 27, 28.

1 Pet. 3. 18.

Furthermore, Romans 5. 6. For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. He says not, by the ungodly, but, for the ungodly: Which therefore cannot be allegorized but into Nonsense. Like that, verse 10. For if when we were Enemies, we were reconciled to God by the Death of his Son. Is any one reconciled by killing the Holy Life, the Mystical Christ in him? Wherefore it is plain that in S. Paul's time the Humane Person of Christ was the high Priest who was an Atonement with God by the Sacrifice of himself. And God has not declared any where that he has or ever will put him out of his Office, till his coming again to Judgment, when he shall appear the second time, without Sin unto Salvation, as you heard out of the Author to the Hebrews; that is, When he shall not bring his Sin-offering with him, viz. an Earthly, Mortal Body, capable of Crucifixion, but shall appear as a Glorious Judge to compleat Salvation to all them that truly believe in him, and expect his joyful coming; at what time he shall finish the Redemption of our Bodies, and translate us to his everlasting Kingdom in Heaven.

2. And that this Office of a Judge is assured to his Humane Person, is plain from what we recited out of the Acts; namely, That God has given assurance to all Men, that he will judge the World by the Man Jesus, in that he has raised him so miraculously from the Dead. Which is that very Son of Man that shall appear on his Throne accompanied with his Angels, Matth. 25. And assuredly none will deny but that he who sitteth at the Right Hand of God, will come thence to judge the quick and the dead: But it is this Crucified Jesus, that for the Joy that was set before him endured the Cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the Right Hand of the Throne of God, Heb. 12. 2. To which truth St. Peter also witnesseth in the Acts. Where that very Jesus whom the Jews delivered up and denied in the presence of Pilate, is said to be received into Heaven, until the time of Restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the Mouth of his Holy Prophets since the World began. This implies that at the utmost fulfilling of the Periods of time he will again appear and finish the Mystery of Righteousness, and perfect Salvation to his People at the last, according as he has promised, John 6. No Man can come to me, except the Father, which has sent me, draw him; and I will raise him up at the last Day. Which certainly is to be understood of his Humane Person, forasmuch as for that very cause he has made him Judge of Life and Death, as appears, Chap. 5. ver. 26. For as the Father hath Life in himself, so likewise he hath given to the Son to have Life in himself; and hath given him Authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of Man. Now when he saith, No Man can come to me, except the Father draw him, it is manifest, that by the Father is meant the Eternal hidden Deity, whose workings and preparations within every Man's Soul fit him to join with Christ's Humane Person, the visible Head of the Church of God: Otherwise if by Christ were here understood the Eternal Word, it would not be good Sense. For that is that which draws, not the thing drawn to, in this place. Again, whereas he says, He will raise him up at the last Day, it is evident that it is not Morally or Mystically to be understood, but Literally; otherwise it could not be defer'd till the last Day, but should be done in this Life. Nor can it be understood of the Day of the Service of the Love: For then the Sense would be, That they that believed on Christ some sixteen hundred Years ago, should become Familists now, or rather some others for them; which Promises are insipid and ridiculous. Wherefore it is this Son of Man, to whom God hath also given Power to execute Judgment. And the very same certainly is he that is repreſented on the great white Throne, from whoſe Face the Earth and Heaven fled away, Rev. 20. And I ſaw the Dead, ſmall and great, ſtand before God: And the Books were opened, and another Book was opened which is the Book of Life: And the Dead were judged out of thoſe things which were written in thoſe Books, according to their Works. And the Sea gave up the Dead which were in it; and Death and Hell delivered up the Dead which were in them: And they were judged every Man according to their Works. And Death and Hell were caſt into the Lake of Fire. Hell, i. e. ᾅδης, is here the Region of the Dead: And the whole frame and phraſe of the matter here contain'd doth ſo plainly import that the Judgment is concerning thoſe that are Dead, whether drowned in the Sea, or buried in their Graves, or in whatever other Circumſtances quitted this Mortal Life; that this truth of Chriſt's viſible coming to Judgment cannot be concealed or eluded by any Allegorical fetches whatſoever.

Acts 17. v. 31.

Acts 3. 13, 21.

3. Nor have our inconſiderate Adverſaries any thing to alledge for their rebellious deſpiſing of the Humane Perſon of Chriſt, unleſs two or three groſly miſtaken places of Scripture. Such as Heb. 11. v. 26. where Moſes is ſaid to eſteem the Reproach of Chriſt greater Riches than the Treaſures in Ægypt; and chap. 13. v. 8. Jeſus Chriſt the ſame yeſterday, and to day, and for ever. Out of which Paſſages they fancy to themſelves ſuch a Chriſt only as was as well in Moſes's time as now, and was ever the ſame from the Beginning of the World, and ever will be. But they plainly in theſe Texts raiſe mountains of Molehills. For the ſimple and genuine Senſe of the former is nothing but this, That Moſes bare ſuch Reproaches as Chriſt and the firm Profeſſors of Chriſt bear, which he uſes as an Argument of Patience to the Hebrews from the Example of Moſes: unleſs you will interpret the place upon the Suppoſition of Chriſt being the Prefect of Iſrael before his Incarnation. But the former Senſe is more plain and paſſable. And for the other place, it is nothing but an exhortation to Perſeverance from the conſtancy of the Chriſtian Rulers and Governours who perſiſted in their Faith to the end: And the Apoſtle tells them hereupon, that the Faith is the ſame ſtill, and Chriſt's Aſſiſtance the ſame now that it was then to them, and will be ever the ſame to all true Believers. Which ſurely is all that is meant by Jeſus Chriſt the ſame Yeſterday, and to Day, and for ever. For to make Yeſterday to ſignify from everlaſting, is very raſh and croſs to the phraſe of Scripture, Pſal. 90. For a thouſand Years in thy ſight are but as Yeſterday; and Job. 8. For we are but of Yeſterday, and know nothing. Which is very true of theſe new upſtart Interpreters.

See Book 1. chap. 8. ſect. 4, 5, 6.

4. But their laſt and moſt plauſible Allegation is that out of the Corinthians, Wherefore henceforth know we no Man after the Fleſh; yea, tho' we have known Chriſt after the Fleſh, yet know we him ſo no more. Here they think they have full Commiſſion to lay aſide the Humane Perſon of Chriſt from the Example of S. Paul. But their miſtake is in not knowing the Hebrew Idiom of this place of Scripture. For as that excellent Interpreter Hugo Grotius has noted, the words are to be rendred, yea tho' we might have known Chriſt after the Fleſh, that is to ſay, Tho' I with others might have known Chriſt after the Fleſh, and converſed with him here upon the Earth, nay have been ſomething a-kin to him, as certain boaſted themſelves it ſeems at Corinth, yet henceforth, ſaith he, we ſhould know him after this manner no more, but as an Heavenly Prince: In whom he has the moſt Intereſt, that is the moſt nearly renewed into the Image of his Life. Or without this Hebraiſme, It may be an oblique Monition to the aforeſaid Perſons, and have rather the nature of an Exhortation to them, then of a Declaration concerning himſelf; which they would be more certainly enforced to take to themſelves, by how much more plain it was that Paul never knew Chriſt according to the Fleſh. That it has ſome ſuch meaning as this, and not that of our Adverſaries, is plain from the precedent Verſe, where he expreſly retains the Humane Perſon of Chriſt in his Prieſtly Office. For that he ſaith, that he is that one Man that died for all, (not killed by all, as I noted above) that they who live ſhould not henceforth live unto themſelves, but unto him that died for them and roſe again. Which is not Senſe, if it be not underſtood of the Humane Perſon of Chriſt. And verſe 20. he does plainly profeſs himſelf the Ambaſſador of the Crucified Jeſus, or Legate of the great Angel of the Covenant; Now then we are Ambaſſadors for Chriſt, as if God did beſeech you by us, we pray you in Chriſt's ſtead, be ye reconciled to God. For he hath made him to be Sin for us, who knew no Sin; that we might be made the Righteouſneſs of God in him. Of which there can be no poſſible meaning that excludes the Humane Perſon of Chriſt from his Prieſtly Office. We have therefore abundantly demonſtrated, That the Perſon of our Saviour is not to be laid aſide, but that he is a Prieſt for ever according to the Scriptures.

2 Cor. 5. 16.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVI.

1. That Hen. Nicolas does plainly in his Writings lay aſide the Perſon of Chriſt, as where he affirms, That whatever is Taught by the Scripture-learned is falſe, and that all the Matters of the Bible are but Prefigurations of what concerns the Diſpenſation of his bleſſed Family. 2. Other Citations to the ſame purpoſe, and his accurſed Allegory of Chriſt's celebrating his Paſſover with his Diſciples, whereby he would antiquate and aboliſh the true Hiſtorical Knowledge of him. 3. Several places where he evidently takes away the Prieſtly Office of Chriſt. 4. Others that plainly take away his Glorious Return to Judgment and the Reſurrection of the Dead in the true and Apoſtolical Senſe. 5. Why in this controverſy he hath rather uſed the word Perſon than Nature.

1. WE ſhall now make it as evident that this pretended Prophet we ſpeak of does lay him aſide, whereby we ſhall clearly convince the World of his Falſhood and Impoſture. And this ſhall be chiefly out of his own Writings. Out of which we ſhall firſt produce ſuch Paſſages as in a more general manner infer what we aim at. As certainly ſuch places do, as expreſly declare, That whatſoever is Taught of Chriſt out of his Communialty of the Love, is all falſe. Whence it does plainly appear, That the Articles of the Apoſtles Creed underſtood according to the Letter, are held falſe by this inſpired Communialty: For theſe Articles are Taught by them that are not of Hen. Nicolas his Family. In his Firſt Exhortation, Chap. 5. he plainly declares, That the true Belief in Jeſus Chriſt is not to be found in any People upon the Earth that walk without the Communialty of the Love. And Chap. 16. Sect. 15, 16. he tells us, That it is a preſumption againſt God and his Saints, that any one out of the Learnedneſs of the Letter, or out of the Imagination of the Knowledge, taketh upon him to be a Teacher or Preacher, or to inſtitute or intermeddle in any God-ſervice or Worſhip, unleſs he be an illuminated Elder of the Houſe of the Love. And Sect. 17. he does affirm, That it is all aſſuredly falſe and lies, ſeducing and deceitful, whatever is Taught by others out of the Learnedneſs of the Scripture. Again, in his Evangely, Chap. 32. there alſo he aſſerts, That to thoſe that are without the Family of Love, all the matters of Chriſtianity to them are in Images, Figures and Shadows, in Similitudes, Parables and cloſed Books. Where his meaning is eaſily underſtood out of Chap. 30. Sect. 17. For theſe Figures he makes Shadows of the true and ſpiritual things which were heretofore, through Jeſus Chriſt, come to paſs, ſeen, heard and preached, and have ſtood for a memorial of the true ſpiritual things which ſhould, in the time to come, come to paſs, namely by this inſpired Miniſter. Whereby the Hiſtory of Chriſt is made a mere Allegory and prophetick Prefiguration of what is fulfilled in his Diſpenſation of the Communialty of the Love: Wherein all becomes fulfilled in Chriſt, whatſoever was written of him, as he plainly aſſerts, Chap. 1. Sect. 10. And he more abundantly declares himſelf in his Prophecy of the Spirit of Love, Chap. 13. That a Man out of his natural and Scripture-learned underſtanding has not any Light or Knowledge at all of the Chriſtian Myſtery; yea, he is ſo utterly void of the ſame, that he cannot underſtand the ſmalleſt tittle thereof: He may indeed ſpeak out of the written Word, but underſtandeth nothing thereof according to the Truth; but it is all covered and ſealed before him in Similitudes, Images, Figures and Parables. Where again it is eaſy to infer, That this great Prophet holds nothing of the Articles of the Chriſtian Faith to be true in that Senſe the Scripture-learned teach them: Which is plainly to deny the Hiſtory of Chriſt, and to profeſs our ſelves mere Infidels. Out of which Spirit of Infidelity he has ſo diſtortedly allegorized all the clauſes of the Creed, that to ſuch as are not bewitched and beſotted by his Fanatick blaſts to a better Opinion of him then he deſerves, he muſt needs appear an Infidel. Laſtly, in his Introduction, Chap. 9. Sect. 35. there again he does boldly affirm, That it is certainly mere Lies what the Letter-learned inſtitute or ſet forth, how clear ſoever in underſtanding, if they be yet unreformed by the Love and her Service. And in the following Section he plainly declares, That the Scriptures are not to be taught nor held forth Hiſtorically, but as Prefigurations of the Promiſes that are fulfilled in his Service of the Love. Whence it is evident he had no belief in the Letter of the Scripture, nor of the miraculous Hiſtory of Chriſt, and of the Predictions concerning him, whereby our Faith ſhould be affixed to his Humane Perſon. Againſt which he uſeth all diligence imaginable, as if not ſimple Care but an inſpired Envy or Satanical Spite againſt the Honour of his Perſon did actuate him in all his Writings.

2. To

Chap. 12. Sect. 14.

2. To which purpose, I conceive, is that Caution in his Introduction, That no Man bind his Heart to any outward thing, which he is served with to the Righteousness of Life. For of all outward things nothing can be more serviceable then the Humane Person of Christ, who suffered for us, and redeemed us from the wrath to come, if we stand faithful in the Covenant. Those places also where he saith, That the Godly Life is the very Saviour himself; and that no Man knows Christ nor can confess him, unless his shape be in him, that is, his Life and Image be in him, seem intended as justling against the External Person of Christ; as also what he saith, Chap. 22. namely, That no other Foundation may be laid then that Jesus Christ who from everlasting was, and is, and abideth for ever: Whereby I doubt not but he intends the exclusion of his Humane Person, whose compute began about sixteen hundred Years ago. But the most wonderful slight he puts him off by, is his Mystical meaning of Christ's Celebration of the Passover with his Disciples. Which we shall easily understand, if we take notice what he means by Flesh in his Writings, namely, by Flesh is meant the Letter or History. In his Prophecy of the Spirit of Love, Chap. 13. ver. 4. Verily therefore they do all err very much that judge according to their understanding (out of the Earthly Being, or out of the Flesh or Letter) God's Truth, which is Heavenly and Spiritual. See also Introduct. Chap. 14. Sect. 20. Now if you will but read his Evangely, Chap. 21. Sect. 3, 7, 8, 10. also Chap. 22. Sect. 5, 6. and Chap. 25. Sect. 1, 2. you shall find in brief (for it were too tedious to write these Allegorical Ambages) that the right Celebration of the Pascha or Passover with Christ is, That he (namely, Christ after the Flesh, they are his own words) should be slain, that is, that Christ according to the Letter or History should be abolished, that he may be entertained only according to the Spirit. Which is the great Arcanum of this Sect of the Family. Behold, saith he, this is the right Passover with Christ, and the right Supper which the upright Believers and Disciples of Christ keep with Christ, to wit, that they depart even so with Christ out of the Flesh, (that is, that Christ according to the History or Letter be crucified or slain in them, that is, nullified and rejected as a mere Legend or Fable) and pass into the Spirit, (that is, the Spiritual Mystery of Christ, the ἀναγώγιον, or Moral of the Fable) and out of the Death or Mortality, (that is, out of the Dead Letter) into the Eternal Life of everlasting Immortality. In which sonorous Language that you may not promise to your self any such lasting purchase, there is nothing meant but the State of Perfection which these Familists phansy to themselves here upon Earth, and is everlasting in no other Sense then in Succession, they promising themselves that their Sect will continue for ever; and therefore he adds, where-through Sin and all Destruction becomes vanquished, namely, by this State of Perfection, wherein Sin and every imperfect and destroyable State is swallowed up. For they having come to the highest, there is no change of things, tho' their Persons be Mortal, according to their own Doctrine. This Allegory of the Passover is so odd a conceit, that did I not suppose the Author deeply Fanatical, I should suspect it accompanied with a sly jearing and scorn against the History of Christ, and to be the product of a scoffing Atheistical Spirit. For no Atheist could exercise his Wit here with more Villainous slineſs against the Truth of the Scriptures then thus. Which makes me sometimes think that he was not simply Fanatical, but either Atheistical, or possessed by the Devil, himself in the mean time not knowing whose ἀσοφίτης he was.

Introduct. Chap. 13, 27.

3. And thus we have had a taste in general, how sedulously this Author endeavours to out the Person of Christ. We shall now pursue the matter in two main Heads, the Office of his Priesthood, and his coming visibly to Judgment in his Humane Person. To which is annexed the promise of a Glorious Resurrection, and Eternal Life, in a plain and true Sense, without any shuffling or equivocating. That he makes nothing of the Atonement of Christ's Personal Sufferings, he does in my Judgment too plainly discover, Chap. 13. Sect. 8. of his Documental Sentences, where rather then he will acknowledge the usefulness of that Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous, who is a propitiation for our Sins, he does pronounce him that sins by Violence or Temptation to be guiltless, as the Ravished Virgin Deuteronomy 22. that so there may be no need of Christ's Sacrifice, whose Personal Death and Priestly Office he never takes notice of to this purpose: As you may observe further, Exhortat. Chap. 20. from Sect. 19. to the end of the Chapter. Where altho' he supposes a Man's stumblings and fallings daily very great and terrible before him, and that for that cause he is very woful of Heart, feels the pricking of Sin, the Darts of Death, and Condemnation of Hell, and so is in much Anguish and Affliction of Mind; yet is there no application at all of the Sacrifice of Christ upon the * Cross, nor any help nor comfort at at all held out by his Sufferings, tho' it was the moſt proper place that could be to mention them. And Chap. 24. in the Prayers he puts up there, inſtead of making uſe of the mediation of that Chriſt that felt the pains of Death on the Croſs for us, he makes uſe only of God's ſuppoſed Promiſe or Covenant he has made with the Houſe of the Love, Sect. 3. and 7. See him alſo upon the Beatitudes, Sect. 6. And it is no wonder we hear nothing of that Reconciliation made by the Croſs of Chriſt, for he does plainly aver, Sect. 34. That the true being in the Love is that peace with God and Man (mentioned Epheſ. 2. 14.) and the true Teſtament that ſtandeth faſt for ever. And Exhortation, Chap. 12. 44. Remiſſion of Sins is gained only by ſubmitting to the Houſe of the Love: The ſame that David George boaſted of his Doctrine. Therefore my beloved Children change ye not nor turn away your ſelves from the Houſe of Love. For there is in the ſame the ſtool of Grace, to an everlaſting Remiſſion of Sins over all ſuch as cleave thereon, and to a peace and reſt of the Life to all ſuch as humble them there-under. By ſuch ſlips and omiſſions as theſe, thoſe that are not very dull of perception may eaſily ſpell out his meaning. Which yet is more clear by other places of his Evangely, Chap. 13. Where he ſettleth the Everlaſting Prieſthood not upon Chriſt's Perſon, but makes this Kingly Prieſt no Perſon at all, but a thing, a ſtate or condition of him and his Followers here upon Earth. And therefore he calls there this myſtical Chriſt, The Lord's Sabbath, The ſeventh Day in the Paradiſe of God, The perfection, &c. And Chap. 22. he makes the entrance of Chriſt into Heaven and his viſible aſcending up thither, and ſitting at the Right Hand of God, and ſending down the Holy Ghoſt at the Day of Pentecoſt, (which was a real effect of his eternal Prieſthood and Interceſſion with God for his Church) nothing but the appearing of him according to the Spirit, out of the Heavenly Being in their Minds or Souls, upon which he ſent down his Spiritual or Heavenly Powers.

* See Book 8. ch. 15, and 16.

Wherefore this Myſtical Chriſt is the only high Prieſt that he acknowledgeth, and will allow him no otherwiſe then in this Myſtical and Spiritual Senſe to be an everlaſting and true Chriſt of God. See the place; of which you will aſſure your ſelf I have given the right Senſe, if you compare it with Chap. 26. Sect. 10, 11, 12. where he more plainly affirms, That it is the upright being of the Love, Chriſt after the Spirit, (which he calls the true Light) which is that high Prieſt that abideth for ever at the Right Hand of God in the Heavenly Being. Which phraſe, Heavenly Being, always ſignifies morally or myſtically with him, and means ſomething within us. And yet he has the Impudence to alledge, Acts 1. ver. 11. Where Chriſt is ſaid to aſcend into Heaven literally and naturally ſo called, his Diſciples gazing upon him as he went up. Thus you ſee how Induſtriouſly, nay how madly and raſhly, he ſhuffles out the Humane Perſon of Chriſt from his Prieſtly Office every where. And as he will have the Heaven or moſt Holy within us, ſo will he have his Sacrifice and Paſſion within us too. Introduct. Chap. 8. 38. Where do any now, ſaith he, keep the Supper of Chriſt, where they break, diſtribute and eat the Bread (which is the true Body of Chriſt) to a remembrance of Chriſt, that he hath ſuffered in us for the Sins cauſe the Death of the Croſs, and ſo his Death is publiſhed till he come in his Glory? Where it is plain that the Crucifixion of Chriſt is a Myſtery in us, and it is inſinuated a Duty too. For the Body and the Fleſh of Chriſt is Chriſt according to the Hiſtory. Which Chriſt according to the Fleſh is to be ſlain in us, if we celebrate the Paſſover aright: And thus we muſt publiſh his Death till he come in Glory, that is, in the Spirit.

4. And truly no other is his Glorious coming to Judgment, with this Sect, then this Myſtical and Spiritual coming; which was the ſecond part I intended to purſue; which I queſtion not but I ſhall make as clear as noon-day. Of this there are ſo many Teſtimonies and ſo pregnant, that the only fear is of being too copious in the proof of this matter. Revel. Dei cap. 7. There his illuminate Elders together with his Family of Love are the Heavens in which Chriſt the Son of God comes gloriouſly and triumphantly to Judgment, to Reign with God and his Righteouſneſs everlaſtingly upon Earth. Which plainly excludes the ending of the World and that coming of Chriſt that all Chriſtians expect. And Chap. 15. Sect. 6. he affirms that in this Eighth Day, which is the Day of the Spirit of Love, all the Dead that are deceaſed in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt do riſe from the Death, and all Generations of Heaven and Earth do become judged in the Judgment of God with Equity.

Again in his Introduct. Chap. 1. he ſaith, That now the true glorious God, who is the Reſurrection and the Life, revealeth his Saints out of his Boſom, where (ſince the time they fell aſleep) they have reſted until this Day of the Love; becauſe they ſhould now in theſe laſt times, in the Reſurrection of the Righteous, be manifeſted with Chriſt in Glory,

Evang. Regni. cap. 22.

to

to a Righteous Judgment of God on the Earth. And Chap. 12. he there alſo affirms, That in this Day of the Love there appear and come to us livingly and gloriouſly all God's Saints which in times paſt died and fell aſleep in God. And Chap. 22. there he alſo tells us, how that in ſure and firm hope of everlaſting Life the upright Believers have reſted in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, till the appearing of his coming, which is now in this Day of the Love revealed out of the Heavenly Being; with which Jeſus Chriſt the former Believers of Chriſt, who were fallen aſleep, reſted or died in him, are now alſo manifeſted in Glory, being raiſed from the Dead to the intent that they ſhould Reign alive with him over all his Enemies. To which you may add what he has wrote, Chap. 16. in his Prophecy of the Spirit of Love: Make you to flight, make you to flight, yea, get you now all out of the way, ye Enemies of the Lord, and of his ſervice of the Love, and give the Lord with his holy ones the room; yet ſhall ye not eſcape the Vengeance of God. For, he ſaith, the Lord cometh to judge betwixt the Family of the Love and the reſt of the World: Wherethrough the Earth is now moved, the Heavens troubled, the Elements melt with heat, and the token of the coming of the Son of Man appears in Heaven: With which rumour or ruſhing noiſe of the Power of God and his holy ones, the laſt Trumpet doth alſo preſently give forth her ſound; through whoſe blaſt of her vehement ſound, and through the appearing of the coming of Chriſt, the Dead ſhall ſtand up and ariſe unto the Judgment of God; who having revenged the Blood of his holy ones, that the Sinners have ſpilt and ſhed upon the Earth, he puts this pure Family in peaceable Poſſeſſion thereof; that they may Reign there-over, or judge the ſame with Righteouſneſs, from henceforth World without end. So that the completion of all the Prophets ends in the Triumph of Familiſm; the ſame which David George boaſted of himſelf. See alſo Chap. 15. Sect. 5.

Laſtly, In his Evangely, Chap. 35. 8. Behold in this ſame Day, namely of the Love, is the Reſurrection of the Lord's Dead come to paſs, through the appearing of the coming of Chriſt in his Majeſty according to the Scriptures. And a little after, Sect. 9. In which Reſurrection of the Dead, God ſhewed unto us that the time is now fulfilled, that his Dead (or the Dead that are fallen aſleep in the Lord) riſe up in this Day of his Judgment, and appear unto us in Godly Glory, which ſhall alſo henceforth live in us everlaſtingly with Chriſt, and Reign upon the Earth. Of which the plain Senſe is, That the Souls deceaſed ſo many hundred Years ago, are alive again in theſe of the Family of Love, and ſhall Reign everlaſtingly in them with the Myſtical Chriſt on the Earth. Which plainly excludes that other Judgment or Reſurrection in the Literal Senſe, as I ſaid before. Again Chap. 4. Sect. 15. For this cauſe our hope ſtandeth now in this Day very little on many of the Inhabitants of the World; but we hope with joy much more on the appearing of the Dead that die in the Lord or are dead in him, to wit, that they in their Reſurrection from the Death ſhall livingly come unto and meet with us. For all the Dead of the Lord and Members of Chriſt ſhall now live and riſe with their Bodies, and we ſhall aſſemble us with them, and they with us to one Body in Jeſus Chriſt, into one lovely Being of the Love, and be altogether concordable in the Love and Peace of Jeſus Chriſt. And let theſe things be ſaid, concerning the laying aſide the Perſon of Chriſt among the Familiſts; which I have ſo often called the Humane Perſon rather than Nature, not that I any otherwiſe think of the Hypoſtatical Union of Chriſt with the eternal word than the Catholick Church thinketh, as plainly appeareth out of other places of this preſent Treatiſe, as Lib. 1. Cap. 5. Sect. 1, 4, 5, 6. and Lib. 1. Cap. 6. Sect. 1. But that I would oppoſe the very Converſations and Equivocations of the Familiſts, who altho' they are found ſo boldly to lay aſide the Humane Perſon of Chriſt (by which I underſtand his Humane Nature Orthodoxly taken) yet they would ſtrenuouſly deny, that they in any wiſe reject or lay aſide the Humane Nature of Chriſt, to wit, hiddenly meaning any Humane Nature conjoined with the Divine Nature or deified, as they love to ſpeak, acknowledging among themſelves that this is the Humane Nature of Chriſt, where-ever it is exiſting. That I might obviate ſuch a ſubterſuge, I ſaid Perſon, not Nature, whereby I would have to be ſignified that particular Humane Nature which belongs to Jeſus Chriſt alone. Which I thought fit to notice, that none may conſtrue into a wrong Senſe, that phraſe which I have uſed, only on the account already mentioned.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVII.

1. His perverſe Interpretation of that Article of the Creed concerning Life everlaſting. 2. His misbelief of the Immortality of the Soul, proved from his forcible wreſting of the moſt pregnant Teſtimonies thereof to his Diſpenſation and Miniſtry here on Earth. 3. Their interpreting of the Heavenly Body mentioned, 2 Cor. 4. And the unmarried State of Angels, to the ſignification of a State of this preſent Life. 4. That H. Nicolas as well as David George held there were no Angels, neither good nor bad. 5. Further Demonſtrative Arguments that he held the Soul of Man Mortal. 6. How ſutable his laying aſide of the Perſon of Chriſt is to theſe other Tenets. 7. That H. Nicolas, as highly as he magnifies himſelf, is much below the better ſort of Pagans. His irreverent apprehenſion of the Divine Majeſty, if he held that there was any thing more Divine than himſelf.

1. FInally as for that Article of the Creed concerning Life everlaſting, his expoſition is this: We confeſs that the ſame everlaſting Life is the true Light of Men, and that God hath made and choſen him the Man thereto, that he ſhould live in the ſame Light everlaſtingly. Where, by him the Man, he means the Succeſſion of Mankind, as any one may know that is but a little acquainted with his manner of Writing: And by everlaſting Life and the true Light of Men, he means the Light of the Love and the Service thereof; which he preſages ſhall abide for ever. Which therefore he calls the Houſe of God's Dwelling, the eternal reſt of his holy ones, the everlaſting faſt-ſtanding Jeruſalem, the true and indiſturbable Kingdom, full of all Godly Power, Joy, and of all Heavenly Beautifulneſs, wherein the Laud of the Lord, with fulneſs of Eternal Life, and lively ſweetneſs is ſung from everlaſting to everlaſting. With ſuch ſweet Charms and pleaſing Enchantments does this grand Deceiver lull aſleep his little ones into an utter oblivion and perfect misbelief of thoſe precious Promiſes of Everlaſting Happineſs made to us by Chriſt, who hath brought Life and Immortality to Light by the Goſpel. Evang. Regni, cap. 34. and 37.

2. For that there is with him no other Life but this, nor any Immortality of the Soul or Bleſſed Reſurrection which conſiſts in the Soul's being inveſted with an Heavenly and Spiritual Body according to the plain and literal Senſe of Scripture; his groſs abuſe of thoſe two main proofs thereof [1 Cor. 15.] [1 Theſ. 4.] do plainly demonſtrate; which he does wildly diſtort, as he doth the reſt of the Scripture, to a mere prediction of his Service of the Love, in which he will have every thing of the laſt Day and of the Reſurrection fulfilled, that we may be ſure that there is nothing elſe to be expected but this. For in this the laſt trump ſounds; Chriſt appears in the Heavens, being come to Judgment; thoſe very Saints that in time paſt died and fell aſleep in the Lord, are now raiſed up in Glory, and that with their Bodies, and livingly come unto and meet with us, according to that in 1 Theſ. 4. and laſtly, theſe raiſed Saints, that is, the Family of Love, ſhall thus Reign with their myſtical Chriſt upon Earth for ever World without end. What interpretation of Scripture can more accurately and radically take away all expectation of Chriſt's Perſonal coming to Judgment, and the hope of a Bleſſed Immortality included therein by the Reſurrection of the Dead, than this of this bold Author? Which we may be the better aſſured he intends, in that his applications are ſo miſerably forced, and yet he has no better proofs then theſe for the ratifying of his Service of the Love. For if he thought they did ſignify that which all Chriſtians think they do, he could fancy no force at all in them for the eſtabliſhing of his Doctrine: But the Orthodox meaning ſeeming to him utterly incredible, makes him confident that he has found out the right Senſe; if he deal bonâ fide, and takes not the Scripture for a mere Fable, which he may abuſe as he pleaſes.

3. For we may obſerve him uſing the ſame Induſtry in eluding the force of ſuch places as are plain for an Immortal State after this Life, even there where he may ſeem unconcerned, if he held the Soul of Man Immortal. As that 2 Cor. 5. where the Promiſe of the Heavenly or Spiritual Body is evidently ſet down, as appears further out of the laſt Verſes of the precedent Chapter: And yet theſe Familiſts are not aſhamed to expound it of the moſt holy of the true Tabernacle, in their Canting Language; whereby they mean the perfection of the Love, a State in this Life, as you may ſee in their Mirabilia Dei. And in the Spiritual Land of Peace, That which is writ, Luk. 20. 35. concerning the Children of the Reſurrection, that they are neither married nor given in Marriage, but are as the Angels of God, he applies to the State of the Service of the Love, and makes it fulfilled in this Life. Which is an Allegory ſo croſs and crooked, that nothing but an Unbelief of the literal Senſe could ever have put a Man upon the framing of it: beſides that ſcurvy Intimation it bears along with it of Community of Wives, the very ſame Doctrine that David George* is ſaid to have vented.

*See Enthuſiaſm. Triumphat. ſect. 34. Art. 9.

4. Who alſo held, That Angels and Devils are only good Men and bad Men, or their Vertues and Vices: in whoſe Footſteps this Scholar of his Hen. Nicolas treads very carefully, as appears from his Revel. Dei cap. 14. where he makes the Righteouſneſs, the true Spirits or holy Angels. As alſo *elſewhere he ſaith, that he that has the ſeven deadly Sins in him, is poſſeſt of the ſeven horribleſt and deſtructionableſt Devils: intimating that the reſt of the Vices are Devils alſo, but not ſo deſtructionable. And he inſinuates further in the ſame place, that the ſeven Devils caſt out of Mary Magdalen were thoſe ſeven deadly Sins. And I am certain that the moſt knowing of the Family have freely profeſſed that there are no Devils nor Witches, nor Angels but thoſe in us. Which things being ſuppoſed, it is neceſſary either to caſt away the Scriptures, or elſe to allegorize them away into a mere moral or myſtical Senſe, as theſe Enthuſiaſts have done.

* See H. N. upon the ſeven deadly Sins.

5. They believing therefore the Exiſtence of neither Angel nor Spirit, of neceſſity they muſt believe no Immortality of the Soul. And that they believe no ſuch thing, there is ſtill a further Evidence, in that he never exhorts any Man to Holineſs upon that account (which yet is the moſt powerful Argument to make good Men that can be propounded) nor ever makes uſe of ſuch places of Scripture as imply a bleſſed Immortality to come after this Life, in the literal meaning of them. His encouraging his Followers to comply with any Superſtition, be it never ſo ugly idolatrous, rather than to expoſe themſelves to Danger, agrees alſo well with this Suppoſition. And ſome have noted that they have alledged this Reaſon for it, That the Temple of God may not be deſtroyed. Whereby they mean their humane Perſons, which they ſuppoſe loſt irrecoverably in the Death of the Body. And that there may be no Doubt at all that this is their Opinion, I will conclude with a Reference to *one of his Epiſtles, where he ſpeaks to this very Queſtion: which he does with ſo many Hacks and Heſitations, with ſo much ſhuffling and doubling Inſinuations to the contrary, that no rational Man can be unſatisfied but that he held it mortal. For if he had held it immortal, it had been impoſſible he ſhould have concealed his Opinion, or intimated any thing to the contrary; it being ſo uſeful a Doctrine for others, and ſo commendable for himſelf to profeſs. Which obdurate Conceit of his made him allegorize away all the Articles of the Creed, and ſo deny the Reſurrection of Chriſt as well as of all others that believe on him; and being ſecure, as he thought, that he does not now ſubſiſt, he could not dream of any Chriſt that could be Head of the Church but that myſtical one he inſiſts ſo much upon, the Upright Being of the Love, the Perfection of all. And verily if there be nothing to come after this Life, I dare allow him to be as great a Prophet as either himſelf or his Followers deſire he ſhould be eſteemed.

*Epiſt. 6. Chap. 10.

6. He is therefore upon his own Hypotheſis very conſonant to himſelf, in removing the Humane Perſon of Chriſt as a thing that has periſhed one thouſand ſix hundred Years ago, and in riveting the Godhead into his own Perſon ſo thwackingly and ſubſtantially, as that he may give the World to underſtand that he was as much God as that Chriſt that died at Jeruſalem, and that all thoſe that attained to the Perfection of the Love were ſo too: that he might abundantly compenſate thereby the Loſs of that one that died upon the Croſs, having fallen into the Hands of mercileſs Sinners. This, I ſay, is a conſiſtent Dream of his: and that it is no more but a Dream, I partly have already, and ſhall ſtill more clearly demonſtrate in this preſent Diſcourſe.

7. In the mean time it is very plain, that though he ſets out himſelf in ſuch Seraphical Language, and adorns his own Perſon with ſuch gorgeous Titles as if nothing ever yet appeared in the World ſo holy and divine; yet he is indeed much inferiour to the better ſort of Pagans, as being nothing more than an Enthuſiaſtick Sadducee, or a Fanatick Deiſt, if ſo much. For I wonder what a kind of God he imagines to himſelf, to whom he makes the Senate of Heaven ſo unmannerly as to uſe ſuch Forms of Speech to him as he does Revel. Dei cap. 21. Go to then, let it even be ſo, O God, it is vouchſafed thee that thou ſhouldeſt firſt bring forth a Declaration of thy right. But I have no mind to dive any further into this Depth of Satan, from which I pray God deliver every good Chriſtian.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. The great Miſchief and Danger that accrues to the World from this falſe Prophet. 2. The probable Ferocity of this Sect when time ſhall ſerve, and Eagerneſs of executing his Bloody Viſion. 3. That Familiſm is a plot laid by Satan to overthrow Chriſtianity. 4. What the face of things in likelihood would be ſuppoſing it had over-run all. 5. The Motives that inforced the Author to make ſo accurate a Diſcovery of this Impoſture.

1. OUT of the Deſcription we have given hitherto, we may eaſily compute the great miſchief that accrues to the World from this falſe Pretender to Revelations, where-ever his Witchcraft has Power to ſeize the Spirit of a Man. For firſt, That admirable Wiſdom of God in the outward Frame of Chriſtian Religion, as it reſpects the Perſon of Chriſt, his endearing Paſſion, his Glorious Reſurrection and Aſcenſion, his comfortable Interceſſion, and his Joyful Return to Judgment, when our Immortality ſhall be compleated in Heavenly Glory; all this is ſwept away, and therewith our aſſurance of Eternal Life. And beſides this, that there may be nothing wanting to the perfecting of that monſtrous Evil that is hatched in this Family, it may prove a Pandora's Box to Mankind even in this Life, if a more benign Providence do not prevent it. For they having, as I have told you, a full Licenſe from their infallible Prophet to diſſemble and æquivocate, to comply with any Religion whatever; they may multiply hiddenly in great Numbers to the Hazzard of a State or Commonwealth. For being taught by their illuminate Elders, That there is nothing to be expected after this Life, it muſt needs make them hang their Lips very longingly after the greateſt Enjoyments they can of this preſent World. The Poſſeſſion and Rule whereof their Prophet has promiſed them with ſuch magnificent Words and enthuſiaſtick Grandiloquence, that they cannot but be inflamed into violent Attempts upon the firſt occaſion that they ſhall fancy ſafe to make uſe of. And what full right do you think will they imagine themſelves to have to fly upon all, whenas they fancy the Head of their Faction to be no leſs than Chriſt himſelf come to judge the World in Righteouſneſs?

2. Wherefore if ſome ſullen Fellow amongſt them of a peremptory and imperious Spirit, overcharged with Pride and Melancholy, and deeply baptized into the Doctrine of this Sect, ſhall by his fanatick Heat, Parts, and Language emerge to that height of Honour as to be approved the Eldeſt of that Family; the ſame is preſently become in his own Conceit, and in theirs alſo, God himſelf returned to Judgment, and all his Hoſt, Saints and Seraphims, if ever Opportunity arm them to execute their Deſign. And then will they think that that is to be fulfilled which is figured out in that Viſion of a Man clothed with an Habergion, and Harneſs, and girded with an iron Chain, whoſe Hands and Legs to the very girdle were wet with Blood, with a Sword in his Left-hand alſo red and bloody, and another in his Right, which was altogether a glowing Fire, gliſning and crackling very terribly with many Fire-flames. Which direful Spectre gives out his Voice in the following Sections Vengeance, Vengeance, Vengeance; Now ſwiftly, now ſwiftly, yea now very ſwiftly, Wo, Wo, Wo unto all the Enemies of the Lord and his holy ones, and to all the Enemies of the Family of Love. So great Darlings do they give out themſelves to be of God and his Providence, and ſo miſerable an end, do they prefigure to themſelves, ſhall befal thoſe that are not of their bleſſed Family. God of his Mercy open the Eyes of all Men, that they may ſee the fearful purpoſes of this Diabolical Impoſtor, and quit themſelves of theſe ſubtil Deluſions of Satan.

See Revelat. Dei, Cap. 27. ſect. 8, 9, 10, 11.

3. For if I have any Senſe or Foreſight at all in me, it is a Plot to over-run and ſubjugate, if it be poſſible, all Chriſtendom, and perfectly to extirpate the Worſhip of Chriſt, and to extinguiſh the Belief of all his Promiſes, under Pretence of a greater Holineſs and Perfection than there is in Chriſtian Religion; though this Familiſm be ſuch as I have abundantly ſet out to you. See his Prophecy of the Spirit of Love, Chap. 11. alſo Chap. 14. Sect. 8. 9. and Chap. 16. Sect. 3, 4, 7, 8. and Chap. 19. ſect. 4. 5, 7, &c. In which places he promiſes to his Followers that they ſhall have the Day at laſt, That Familiſm ſhall thruſt Chriſtianity out of the World.

4. Which becauſe they have ſo great mind ſhould be fulfilled, let us ſuppoſe a while that they have got the Maſtery over Chriſtendom, and compute with our ſelves the Conſequences thereof. Without all queſtion, although every Page of this Divine Author (as they would have him) be ſo thick painted with the ſweet Repetitions of Love and Lovely, the Iſſue of ſuch a Victory would be the moſt beaſtly Tyranny that ever appeared yet upon the Stage of the Earth, worſe by far than Mahometiſm it ſelf. For firſt, all Hope of a Future Life being taken away, every Man according to his Power will be more free and eager to ſatisfie his Luſt in the ſuperfluous Pleaſures of this. From whence thoſe that are weak will be oppreſſed without Pity, to ſatiate the Deſires of the proud and injurious Oppreſſor. And then again, for Peace in Matters of Religion, upon which ſcore eſpecially, this flattering Deceiver would recommend himſelf to the World, the Interpretations of Scripture, whereby he would eſtabliſh his Authority with Men, are ſo wild and fanatick, and ſo diſſonant to all Senſe and Reaſon, that he has ſown therein the Seeds of perpetual Contention; unleſs it be prevented by a Remedy worſe than the Diſeaſe, that is, a perfect Slavery of the Conſcience, and an implicit Faith that their Prophet is infallible, without any Examination and Doubt. Which is the moſt baſe and villainous Degeneracy that the Spirit of Man can be forced into, and is ever there attempted moſt where the Religion of a Nation is the moſt rotten and falſe. But that this latter would be the way ſeems too-too probable, both from the Neceſſity of the Caſe, and from ſuch Intimations out of his Writings as I have already produced. To which you may add that in his Revelatio Dei, where he plainly forbids to try the Spirits by Reaſon, or Knowledge, or Scripture-learning, but by the true Being of the living Godhead. Which are high Words, but ſignifie nothing but that we never attain to the living Godhead till we think as he thinks: and therefore intercepting all Information of Reaſon, expects an immediate Aſſent, that is, ſuch an Aſſent as we know not why we do aſſent; than which nothing can be more mad and furious, or at leaſt reliſh more of Knavery and Deceit, and of a ready Reproach to all Diſſenters, as if they were utter Strangers to the living Godhead. But that Religion certainly is falſe at the bottom that will not ſuffer it ſelf to be enquired into by Reaſon; as * he ſaith very excellently of Mahometiſm, Meritò ſuſpecta merx eſt quæ hâc lege obtruditur, ne inſpici poſſit.

Revel. Dei, cap. 18. ſect. 10, 11, 12.

* Grotius de Religione Chriſtiana, lib. 6

5. You ſee what a wild and exorbitant thing this blind Enthuſiaſm is, the very Vehicle of Hell that carries to Atheiſm and Prophaneneſs, and the triumphal Chariot of the Devil; in which queſtionleſs this begodded mock-Prophet was hurried away, though haply he might not know it, but gloried in his Shame, and prided himſelf in his own Captivity. The Condition of whoſe Spirit, what it is, and whitherto it tends, if I know mine own Heart, I have thus carefully diſcovered, out of no other Principle at all but that Love and Loyalty I owe to my crucified Saviour and Sovereign, and out of that dear Compaſſion I bear to my Fellow-Members of his Body the Church. For verily I cannot but melt into Sorrow and Pity, to conſider how deceivable many well-meaning Souls are, and how captivable by the Witchery of a Fanatick Eloquence into a ſtrange Belief, that there is a more than ordinary Share of Divinity reſiding upon this Perſon, whom I am ſo well aſſured is but Epicurus turned Enthuſiaſt, and one ſunk as low beneath the Light of the Goſpel as any wretched Pagan that never heard thereof. And therefore I hope all his Admirers that are not ſo far baptized into his Way, as to have celebrated his Paſche and ſlain Chriſt according to the Fleſh, that is, according to the Letter and Hiſtory, and ſo become perfect Infidels, will take it well at my hands that I have ſo faithfully diſcovered the Deceit, that they may no longer give countenance to ſo horrid an Impoſture. And for as many as have thus ſlain the Lord of Life, which yet I hope are not very many, how they ſhould take ill this my Freeneſs of Speech, I can in no wiſe imagine. For I dare ſay for them, in that they have thus ſlain him, (as St. Peter ſaid in another caſe) they have done it out of Ignorance, through the preſtigious Enchantments of this grand Deceiver; and therefore they can no ſooner acknowledge their Errour, but find their Pardon, through him who was truly ſlain and ſacrificed for the Sins of the World, and roſe again for an Aſſurance to us of a bleſſed Immortality after the Death of the Body. Which muſt needs be a Meſſage of great Joy to all People that are of an upright and ſincere Heart. And let ſo much be ſaid of the rational Structure of the Chriſtian Religion, literally underſtood, and of the Impoſture of Familiſm.

BOOK

BOOK VII.

CHAP. I.

1. That the Subject of the third Part of his Diſcourſe is The Reality of the Chriſtian Myſtery. 2. That the Reaſonableneſs of Chriſtian Religion and the conſtant Belief thereof by knowing and good Men, from the time it is ſaid to have begun till now, is a plain Argument of the Truth thereof to them that are not over-ſceptical. 3. The Averſeneſs of ſlight and inconſiderate Wits from all Arguments out of Prophecies, with their chiefeſt Objections againſt the ſame. 4. That the Prophecies of the Meſſias in the Old Teſtament were neither forged nor corrupted by the Jews. 5. An Anſwer to their Objections concerning the Obſcurity of Prophecies. 6. As alſo to that from Free Will. 7. That all Prophecies are not from the fortuitous Heat of Mens Fancies, but by divine Revelation, proved by undeniable Inſtances. 8. A particular Reaſon of true Prophets amongſt the Jews, with ſome Examples of true Prophecies in other places. 9. A notable Prophecy acknowledged by Vaninus concerning Julius Cæſar's being kill'd in the Senate.

1. WE are come now to the third Part of our Diſcourſe, wherein the doubtful Dawnings of this great Myſtery we are clearing up will break out into a fuller Light, and the Progreſs of Truth will be like that of Righteouſneſs, that ſhineth more and more till perfect Day.

The Poſſible, as alſo Reaſonable Idea of Chriſtianity, which I have hitherto repreſented, is but as the Seminal Form of a Plant hid in the Seed under ground; but we ſhall now exhibit it as it were to ſenſe, ſhot up into open view, and demonſtrate that this Poſſible Idea has already arrived to a Real and actual Exiſtence in the World.

Which being a Matter of ſo great conſequence, we will not huddle it up at once, nor yet make any Steps more for Pomp than for Uſe and the fuller Conviction of the Truth we are to prove.

2. And truly the very firſt Step I ſhall make, or rather have partly made already, I hope, to any indifferent Man will ſeem not a little conſiderable. We have very amply and intelligibly declared how highly reaſonable the Frame of our Religion is, how becoming and conſiſtent all thoſe things are that Chriſt is recorded to have done or ſuffered. Add therefore to the Reaſonableneſs of the thing it ſelf, the conſtant and perpetual Tradition thereof for true, and that it has been ſo ſeriouſly believed in all Ages, that as well the Learned as Unlearned, as well the Noble as Ignoble, have been ready, nay have actually laid down their Lives for a Witneſs thereof. And methinks no Man that is not over-ſceptical, but this Conſideration ſhould fetch off his Aſſent. For the Fame of thoſe things that are ſeriouſly reported and conſtantly believed by knowing and judicious Men, cannot rationally be called into queſtion, unleſs the things themſelves affirmed ſeem unreaſonable, or elſe over-artificial and in too trim and cunning a Dreſs of Reaſon. That the things recorded are very Reaſonable, I have already demonſtrated: And how little of the cunning Artifice of either Logick or Rhetorick they partake of, I dare appeal to any that peruſe them. Wherefore if any Man perſiſt in his Unbelief, the Impediment is not in the Myſtery offered to him, but in himſelf, that has no Deſire it ſhould be true, either out of Pride, or not being willing to find himſelf to have been ignorant hitherto of the true Religion, or out of Love of either the Pleaſures or Profits of this preſent World, which the Belief of Chriſtianity does naturally curb.

But we proceed to what is ſtill more cloſe and cogent. That the Jews have for this many hundred Years expected, and do ſtill expect him whom they call their Meſſias, every one knows, as alſo that this Name Meſſias is the ſame with Χριστὸς from whence our Religion is denominated Chriſtian. Wherefore if I can prove that this Meſſias is already come, and that Jeſus whom we worſhip is that Chriſt, I have then performed the Promiſe of the third Part of my Diſcourſe; which is to prove That Chriſtianity (the Idea whereof I have hitherto deſcribed,) is not a mere Idea, but a real Truth.

Which

Which firſt I ſhall attempt from Prophecies, after from Hiſtory: the comparing of both which together will be ſo ſtrong an Argument, that to the Unprejudiced it cannot appear leſs than a perfect Demonſtration.

3. I know ſome are of ſo impatient and ſuperficial a Spirit that they vilifie the very Name or Mention of Prophecies, as Arguments of no Validity, becauſe they cannot find themſelves at leiſure to weigh the Force of them. But if they will rationally ſpeak againſt them, they muſt alledge ſome of theſe four Objections, viz. That either they are often forged, or at leaſt corrupted by ſome wily Politicians to ſerve ſome State-Deſign: Or are ſo obſcure that there is no certain Senſe or Meaning of them: Or if there be, that it does not infallibly import that things thus predicted will ſurely come to paſs, there being ſo great Dependance of the Affairs of the World upon the Actings of Men: Or laſtly, to ſtrike home, that there never was nor ever will be any Prophecies from any extraordinary Inſpiration, but that ſome Men have very hot Fancies, and their Minds running on future things, vent what they think; and their Predictions, like Dreams, ſometimes prove true, ſometimes falſe; and that the Report of thoſe that have happened true has begot that falſe Perſwaſion of their being Prophets in the World.

4. Such ſlight Conſiderations as theſe do marvellouſly gratifie the light-minded and atheiſtical, but more ſeverely looked into will prove of no force.

For as for the firſt Objection, it is plain it can have no place here, if we conſider with what Holineſs and Veneration the Jews look upon the very outward Letter of thoſe Divine Oracles committed to their Cuſtody. Beſides that it is ridiculous to ſuſpect them either to have foiſted in or any way altered ſuch Prophecies as we are here to make uſe of, they being ſuch as will manifeſtly make againſt themſelves: Which is a mighty Priviledge that Chriſtianity has, that in maintaining of her Cauſe ſhe can ſo boldly appeal to thoſe Records that have been ever kept in the Hands of her Enemies. Nor can the Chriſtian, if he would, corrupt theſe Prophecies, but he would be forthwith diſcovered by the Jews. Whence neither Atheiſt nor Pagan can rationally ſuſpect any foul Play of this kind.

5. As for the pretended Obſcurity or Ambiguity of Prophecies, I deny that they may all juſtly be termed Obſcure. Beſides that, the Words of them that are ſo in ſome meaſure, ever fit one Senſe better than another; and where there is any ſuch Ambiguity, that Senſe is to be accounted true that has been judged ſo by Men unprejudiced, and, all things conſidered, appears moſt proper and eaſie. The Satisfaction of which Anſwer will be better underſtood when we deſcend to Examples, than by general Precept.

6. The third Objection cannot be urged by any but ſuch as are over-doting Idolizers of the Faculty of Free-will, and forget that ſome Prophecies are not conditional but abſolute, as certainly all thoſe are that are of ſo vaſt and moliminous Concernment to the World as the appearing of the Meſſias is. Whoſe coming, if it had been conditional, nothing could be thought to hinder but Sin. Which in this caſe is as abſurdly inferred, as if one ſhould argue that the Sickneſs of the Patient keeps away the Phyſician, when it rather occaſions his Coming. And one end of Chriſt's Coming, as I have abundantly ſhewn already, is to be a Sacrifice for Sin, and to renew the World in Righteouſneſs.

7. The laſt Objection is the moſt perverſe and lubricous, but yet ſuch as is eaſily maſtered, if we conſider how punctually and particularly many things have been prefigured in Prophecy, and, that uſually thoſe that have propheſied, have alſo done Miracles, or ſomething miraculous and extraordinary has happened unto them; that they have ſeen *Viſions of Angels and have been aſſiſted by ſupernatural Powers. An eminent Example whereof is that Prophecy of the Man of God out of Juda againſt the Altar at Bethel, which was accompanied with the drying up and reſtoring of the Hand of Jeroboam, and the rending of the Altar and pouring of the Aſhes for a Sign that his Prophecy was true. Which yet was ſo punctual and particular, that he names the very Name of him that was to do this Vengeance againſt the Altar at Bethel, viz. Joſias; though it was a Prediction of a thing that was not to come to paſs within three hundred Years. So Iſaiah propheſied of Cyrus by Name, and what God intended to do by him in reference to his People, ſome hundreds of Years before Cyrus was born. And Daniel ſo punctually foretold the Tranſlation of the Empire from the Aſſyrians to the Medes and Perſians, and then to Alexander of Macedon, whoſe Succeſſors in part the Poſterity of Lagus and Seleucus ſhould be, and what great Evils the Jews ſhould ſuffer from them, that Porphyrius com-comparing the Greek Hiſtory with Daniel's Prophecy, had no other way to evade, but by pretending they were wrote after the Event. Which is ſo frivolous a Subterfuge, that it is not worth anſwering.

*See Book 5. ch. 17. ſect. 2.

1 Kings ch. 13. v. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

*

8. For being there is a Deity, and that the Jews in a more than ordinary manner lived under a kind of Theocracy, and were a People with whom it was uſual to have Prophets and inſpired Meſſengers from God; Why ſhould it ſeem ſtrange to Porphyrius or any one elſe, that God ſhould by his holy Angels inſtruct the Prophet Daniel ſo particularly and perfectly concerning things to come, wherein his own Nation was ſo nearly concerned? For even there where Providence ſeems to take leſs care, the greater Mutations of States and Kingdoms have been foretold by the Prieſts and Magicians of the Country. As it happened to Moteczuma King of Mexico, before the Invaſion of the Spaniard, as you may ſee in Acoſta and other Writers. And Valens the Augur, in Varro, is ſaid to have propheſied at the firſt building of the City of Rome, that it ſhould continue twelve hundred Years; which fell out accordingly.

9. And * Vaninus himſelf, that prophane Wit, was not ſo far beſotted with Epicurean Incredulity, but that he does acknowledge, nay rather aſſert with a ſerious Appeal to all Hiſtory as well antient as of late Days, if great Changes in the Affairs of the World have not been predicted miraculouſly one way or other; and himſelf inſtances in one notable Prophecy engraven in a Table of Braſs found in Capys his Sepulchre concerning the murdering of Julius Cæſar in the Senate. Which Capys notwithſtanding, King of Italy, lived near a thouſand Years before Julius Cæſar. So that if a Man be not very groſly ſtupid, he muſt needs confeſs that all Prophecies are not from the mere Ravings and Roamings of a buſie Fancy, but from ſome higher and more infallible Principle; and that it is far more rational, when Events anſwer to Prophecies of great Concernment, to impute it to Providence rather than to Chance. I know Vaninus refers all to the celeſtial Bodies or Influence of the Stars: But how groundleſs and childiſh his Conceit is, I ſhall evince in its * due place.

*In his De admirandis Naturæ Arcanis, lib. 4. Dialog. 52.

*See chap. 14. ſect. 2, 3, 4, 5, &c. And chap. 15, 16, 17.

CHAP. II.

1. The genuine Senſe of Jacob's Prophecy. 2. The Inference therefrom, That the Meſſias is come. 3. That there had been a conſiderable Force in this Prophecy, though the Words had been capable of other tolerable Meanings: but they admitting no other Interpretations tolerable, it is a Demonſtration the Meſſias is come. 4. The chief Interpretations of the Jews propounded. 5. That neither Moſes nor Saul can be meant by Shiloh. 6. Nor David. 7. Nor Jeroboam, nor Nebuchadonoſor. 8. That in the Babylonian Captivity the Scepter was rather ſequeſtred than quite taken away; with a further urging of the Ineptneſs of the Senſe of the Prophecy, if applied to Nebuchadonoſor. 9. Their Subterfuge in ער ב' noted and refuted. 10. The various Significations of שבט, and their Expoſitions therefrom. 11. An Anſwer to them in general. 12, 13. An Anſwer to their Evaſion by interpreting of שבט a Tribe. 14. An Anſwer to their interpreting of שבט a Staff of Maintenance. 15. An Anſwer to their interpreting it a Rod of Correction. 16. An Anſwer jointly to both theſe laſt Interpretations. 17. That their Variety of Expoſitions is a Demonſtration of their own Diſ-ſatisfaction in them all.

1. BEing now well aſſured of the Force of ſuch Arguments as are drawn from Prophecies, let us proceed and make uſe of them for the proving the matter in hand, That Jeſus, whom we worſhip, is the very Chriſt. Which we will do by producing firſt Such as preſine and circumſcribe the time of his coming, and then Thoſe that more perfectly characterize the Properties of his Perſon.

Of the firſt ſort is that moſt antient and eminent Prophecy of Jacob on his Death-Bed, The Scepter ſhall not depart from Judah, nor a Law-giver from between his Feet, till Shiloh come, and unto him ſhall the gathering of the People be. That our inference may be the more unexceptionable, let us briefly run over the Words. Gen. ch. 49. v. 10.

The Scepter. The Hebrew Word is שבט, which the Seventy interpret Ἀρχων, Aquila σκῆπτρον, Symmachus ἐξουσία, Onkelos שלטן. All which denote the ſame thing, the Soveraignty or Power Political.

From Judah. By Judah according to warrant of Scripture is to be underſtood, not only the Tribe of Judah preciſely, but what-ere Acceſſion or Co-optation there was into that Tribe, as appears from Malachi 3. 4.

Nor a Lawgiver, מחוקק. The Seventy render it ἡγούμενον. The Word naturally ſignifies a Commander or Decreer. I believe thoſe that have tranſlated it Dux, have not miſſed of the Mind of the Seventy's Interpretation. Let מחוקק therefore ſignifie, one that gives Laws or Commands to the People. Which is an unexceptionable Meaning of the Word, as all acknowledge, and is of neareſt Affinity with the former, according to that uſual way in Scripture of repeating the ſame thing twice, in Words little different in Signification. Of which Inſtances are innumerable.

From between his Feet, מבין רגליו The Seventy turn it ἐκ τῆς μηρῶν αὐτοῦ, that is, ex ſemine Judæ, in that ſenſe that Juda has been interpreted. That is to ſay, that Juda ſhall have a Prince, Governour, or Political Power of their own, or ſhall be governed or rul'd by thoſe of their own Blood.

Till Shiloh come: that is, Till the Meſſias come; as all the antient Interpreters of the Jews ever expounded it, their Judgments being then unprejudiced. Only they, as well as others, have varied about the Notation of the Name Shiloh, as you may ſee in Martinius. Some will have שילה put for שילו which is as much as שלי בנו ſignifying Filius, from whence is שליה Secundina. Others will have Shiloh to be a noun of the ſame Form with קמוץ and קימוש, and expound it, Salvator, Pacificus, from שלה The Seventy ſeem to have read שלו, which they render ᾧ τὰ ἀποκείμενα αὐτῷ, till he come for whom ſo great and illuſtrious things are reſerved. Others, as the vulgar Tranſlation, read שילוח miſſus. *Which reading always pleaſed me above any of them, and I have the Suffrage alſo of the incomparable Hugo Grotius upon that place.

*See Book 4. chap. 8. ſect. 8. 9, 10.

And unto him ſhall the gathering of the People be. The Word יקהת may either ſignifie Congregatio, Expectatio, Obedientia, or Confractio. None of the Senſes but agree with the Prophecy; but the ſecond and third are capable of a more eaſie critical Account.

2. It is plain from this brief and warrantable Expoſition of the Words, that the natural and genuine Senſe of Jacob's Prophecy is this, That whatſoever become of the Tribes of Iſrael, Juda, and whatever part of the Tribes have any Coalition with it, and go under one Name and Title, ſhall not fail to have a political Power and Government of their own, till the Meſſias come. This, I ſay, is the moſt eaſie and natural Senſe of this Prophecy, and ſuch as has been ever given by their own Expoſitors, till that ſad Miſtake of killing their Meſſias perverted their Judgments. Wherefore, before themſelves became guilty, and while they were fit to be Judges, we appeal to them, if Jacob's Prophecy does not plainly foretel, That the political Power and Government of the Jews ſhall not ceaſe till the Meſſias come. But it is evident it has ceaſed: therefore of a certain, the Meſſias is come.

3. Which this Prophecy would ſufficiently aſſure us of, though there were other tolerable Interpretations to be made beſides this; it being reaſonable to conclude, that where there may be various Senſes made of Words, that is the trueſt that flowes the moſt naturally, and ſeems to do ſo to ſuch as are unprejudiced. But to be ſtill more certain of the Truth of the Senſe of this Prophecy which has been already given; though both Jews and others have ſet their Wits on Tenter-Hooks to find other Meanings thereof, they have light upon none but what are intolerably vain and fooliſh.

4. It will not be amiſs to give you a Taſte of the chiefeſt of them. Firſt therefore, Thoſe that would not have the Meſſias underſtood by Shiloh, they underſtand either Moſes, Saul, David, Jeroboam, or Nebuchadonoſor. Firſt Moſes, becauſe when he was ſent to deliver the Children of Iſrael out of Ægypt, Juda ſurrendred the Scepter to him, though he was of the Tribe of Levi. Secondly, Saul, becauſe he was crowned in Shiloh. Thirdly, David, viz. implying that the Scepter was in Juda, and ſhould there continue till David's time, in whoſe Reign there was an Acceſſion of ſome People brought under his Rule. Fourthly, Jeroboam, as being he who was crowned in Shiloh, and took the Scepter from Juda. Fifthly, Nebuchadonoſor, becauſe he took the Scepter from Juda, and carried the People captive, and raſed Jeruſalem and the Temple to the Ground. But to theſe may be anſwered briefly.

5. To that concerning Moſes, That he could not take the Scepter from Juda, Juda having none. For all the Tribes together were not a Polity then, much leſs any one of them, but were miſerable Underlings and Bondſlaves to that cruel Tyrant

ant Pharaoh. To that of Saul, That he was not created King in Shiloh, but in Mizpeh; nor that Saul the Benjamite could take the Scepter from Juda, he having one yet, as was ſaid before; beſides that ridiculous Syntax of Shiloh's Coming, which is a Place, not a Perſon, according to this Interpretation: as alſo it is very frigid to apply the laſt Clauſe of the Prophecy to Saul.

6. To that of David may be anſwered much-what the ſame with that to the former, That Judah before David's time, though it had a precedency and Seniority, yet wielded no Scepter over the other Tribes, nor had any particular and Diſtinct Jurisdiction more than the other had: And that it is very inept, if we read the whole Prophecy, which immediately before ſpeaks ſo Magnificently of Juda's Courage and Proweſs, to think it preſently falls ſo flat, as only to Predict that Juda ſhall not loſe his Seniority or Precedency till David come. And ſtill, which makes it more harſh, the Words naturally ſeem to import, that Juda ſhall loſe his Scepter when Shiloh or David is come, though it be the firſt time then that he takes it up. I ſay the Words do naturally imply ſo, though not neceſſarily: But admit they do not, but the Royal Scepter continue with Juda for many Hundreds of Years afterwards, as it did, and that even then when almoſt all the Tribes were loſt; how frivolous do they make this Prophecy of Jacob, in ſetting off ſo petty Things in ſuch Magnificent Terms, and leaving out the moſt notable Matters that belong to that Tribe? And laſtly, that that Addition to the Juriſdiction of David does not ſo well fit nor fill up the Senſe of יקהת עמים, as that gathering of the People to the Meſſias whom the Jews expect.

7. To that of Jeroboam, That Jeroboam was not anointed King in Shiloh, but in Sichem a City of Ephraim: And that this Conſpiracy did not take away the Scepter from Juda, but rather gave Occaſion to Juda of being a Kingdom of it ſelf, and ſuch as was not diſſolved for many hundred Years after; whereas before it was but a Part of the Kingdom of Iſrael.

And laſtly to that of Nebuchadonoſor, That this Interpretation puts a very fooliſh and frivolous Senſe upon the Prophecy, as if it ran thus; That the Scepter ſhall not be taken from Juda, till ſome one come and take it by Force. As if Jacob would venture to foretel that Juda would not be ſuch a Fool as to give away his Scepter, though he might be ſo either cowardly or unfortunate as to have it wreſted out of his Hands. Wherefore he that is propheſied of here muſt be to the Jews more than a mere Robber or Deſpoiler, and muſt have ſome ſpecial Relation to them of either being their King or Prophet in ſome more than ordinary manner; or elſe the Senſe will be very flat and inept, as if he ſhould ſay, The Scepter ſhall not be taken away before it be taken away.

8. Beſides, the Scepter was not ſo much taken away by the Babyloniſh Captivity, as ſequeſtred for a Time, during which Space they were aſcertained from God by the Mouths of his Prophets, that they ſhould return again within the Space of ſeventy Years. So that it was rather an Interregnum than an Abolition of the Judaical Policy. Which ſome would have to continue in ſome ſmall degree amongſt themſelves even in that Interval of their Captivity, as having their רשי גלות, their αἰχμαλωτάρχας, who had a Power over all the People of Juda. But that is more than is worth the contending for. God's Obligation by the Mouth of his Prophets to bring them back within ſeventy Years, and the Smalneſs of the Continuance of their Captivity in reſpect of the Enjoyment of their Liberty afterwards, are ſufficient of themſelves to make that Captivity only a Suſpenſion, not a taking away, of the Scepter from Juda. To all this you may add the unſutable Connexion of this Prophecy with the foregoing Verſes, where Juda is ſo magnificently ſpoke of for his Stoutneſs and Courage; to which preſently it is ſubjoined (according to this Interpretation) that the Scepter ſhall never be taken away, till ſome vanquiſh him and take it away, as it ſeems Nebuchadonoſor did: Which is as incoherent and inſipid Senſe as can be imagined, as I partly intimated before.

But to interpret it, as the ancient Jews have interpreted it, of the Meſſias, the Coherence is very perfect, viz. That this ſtout Warriour Juda ſhall not finally loſe his Scepter, till that ſpecial Meſſenger of God and Expectation of the Nations come, viz. the Meſſias, who ſhall be of a more univerſal Concernment than to that little handful of the World, the Jews.

9. The next ſtarting-hole they ſeek, they think they have found in עד כי fancying that עד may there ſignifie (as it does ſometimes) in æternum; but the Accent Athnack in רגליו, which is as much as a Colon in Latine, hinders them from that Evaſion.

10. The laſt pretended Ambiguity is in שבט, which, ſay they, may ſignifie either a Tribe or a Staff, viz. of Support and Aid, or a Rod of Caſtigation and Affliction. Taking it for a Tribe, the Prophecy may run thus, That the Tribe of Juda ſhall never be taken away, till the Meſſias come; or thus, That the Tribe of Benjamin, whatever become of the reſt of the Tribes, ſhall not be taken from Juda, &c. Taking it for a Staff, the Senſe is this, That Juda, be he in what Captivity or Oppreſſion ſoever, yet he will be ſupported and ſuccoured by ſome or other, till the Meſſias come. Taking it for a Rod; That the Rod of Caſtigation and Affliction will never be taken from Judah, till Shiloh come.

11. To which I anſwer, and firſt in common to them all, That שבט and מחוקק being thus in the Prophecy, and ſo naturally anſwering one to another, if מחוקק did as naturally ſignifie a Scribe as one that had political Power and Rule, yet it were ſomewhat a forced thing to expound it ſo in this place, the Word שבט directing ſo naturally to the other Senſe; and ſtill more forced if you take Notice of מבן רגליו ex ſemine ejus, a thing not ſtood upon in thoſe inferiour Offices of a Scribe or Expounder of the Law. To which you may add that מחוקק is never ſo expounded in Scripture by the Seventy, but always either βασιλεὺς ἀρχων or ἡγέμων. So that tho' they might ſhuffle off the right Senſe of the Prophecy in the Beginning thereof, yet the following part defends both it ſelf and the other from that Violence and Injury. For 'tis plain, there muſt be מחוקק, that is, political Power, in Juda, till Shiloh come, let שבט ſignifie what it will.

12. But to touch upon them alſo in ſeveral; where we muſt take Notice that the Tribe of Juda, not his Perſon, is the Subject of this Prophecy. The Senſe therefore of the firſt Interpretation will be this, That Judah will not be taken from Judah till Shiloh come. Which indeed is very ridiculous. But ſo far as it is poſſible, Judah is taken from Judah, and therefore Shiloh is come. For Judah is taken all a-pieces and ſcattered amongſt the Nations in all the Quarters of the World. Or if they will againſt Reaſon fancy the Perſon of Judah the Subject of this Prophecy, (of which the Senſe will then be, Judah his Tribe ſhall not be taken from him, till Shiloh come) the Patriarch would have expreſſed himſelf more determinately, and ſaid, שבטו, not שבט, otherwiſe לא יסור שבט naturally ſignifies, no Tribe at all ſhould be taken from him, whereas Ten have been carried away at a Clap, and never yet returned. Beſides if שבט may ſignifie his own Tribe, that is properly taken from him too, and loſt, they not being under his Rule, that is, under the Government of Judah; but he is like a Commander whoſe Army is quite routed, and all carried away from him Captive, and under the Command of Strangers: and though they bear his Name ſtill, What is that if they be not under his Power? Surely the Patriarch's Mind was taken up with mean Matters on his Death Bed, if there be no more in the Prophecy than ſo.

13. The Second Interpretation, underſtanding ſtill שבט for a Tribe, is liable to the like Exceptions with the firſt, and the Foolery of it ſtill more palpably deprehendible. For here it is exceeding evident that לא יסור שבט מיהודה, will neceſſarily ſignifie, Not a Tribe ſhall be taken from Juda, &c. For it is as if one ſhould ſay, that a Sheep ſhall not be taken out of the Fold, till Dametas come. But if Dametas coming, there ſhould be found only one left, the other Shepherd would think himſelf deluded; if he that promiſed him ſhould pretend he has kept his Word in keeping but one Sheep in the Fold. For it were a fooliſh Fallacy to plead, that he promiſed that a Sheep ſhould not be taken away, and that there is a Sheep that is not. So that it is plain that by שבט one particular Tribe, Benjamin, cannot be underſtood, and therefore none at all. For all the reſt were carried away by Salmanaſſar into perpetual Captivity.

14. To the Third Interpretation we anſwer, That Jacob is diſtributing peculiar Benedictions to every one of his Sons; but this is common to them all, and therefore not to be affixed to Judah: And then, that it is a petty Buſineſs amongſt ſuch illuſtrious Predictions and Encomiums of Judah, that he ſhall not be put to ſuch utter Streights but that he ſhall be able to live, though an Underling, and dependent on other People; ſo that this is a very wretched and dilute Senſe of the Prophecy.

15. And the Fourth is as ill, if not worſe. For firſt, as before, what is common to all the Tribes, and yet belongs more to the other Tribes than to Judah, (the Ten I mean that were carried away by Salmanaſſar) is here appropriated to Judah, and that in the midſt of great Encomiums and Bleſſings. Read the whole Prophecy concerning Judah, and at the firſt Sight you will diſcover the Unreaſonableneſs of this Patch, if this be the Meaning of this part of the Prophecy. Beſides, the Prophecy according to this

Senſe

Senſe could not be true. For Judah was a flouriſhing Kingdom or Commonwealth for many hundreds of Years together, as appears out of their own Hiſtory.

16. And laſtly, in anſwer to both theſe laſt Interpretations at once; The Word שבט ſimply ſet down as it is here without any other Circumſtances to determine the Senſe of it, never ſignifies either the Staff of Maintenance or the Rod of Chaſtiſement. So that they might as well expound it Crutch, as either. For שבש פסחים will certainly ſignifie a Crutch: and therefore taking that Liberty that they take, the Senſe of this Prophecy may run thus, A Crutch ſhall not depart from Juda, nor a Scribe from betwixt his Feet, till Shiloh come: That is, That Juda never will want a Scribe with a Crutch, that is, an halting Scribe, a Scribe that will make lame, crooked, and perverſe Expoſitions of the Law in Defence of that capital Error of theirs, till the ſecond Coming of the Meſſias.

17. I have given you a brief Taſt of the fond Evaſions the Jews make uſe of, to hide the plain Senſe of this Prophecy of Jacob: concerning which it is worth the taking notice, That as their Expoſitions are very vain, and ſeem ſo to us, ſo it is manifeſt that they are unſatisfactory even to themſelves, in that they have produced ſo many. For what could put them upon excogitating a new one but a Diſſatisfaction in the old? And verily, tho' by wreſting the Words of the Prophecy, they have extorted as many as ever they could, yet are they utterly at a loſs, in which of them principally they ought to acquieſce.

CHAP. III.

1. The Prophecy of Haggai. 2. The natural ſenſe of the Prophecy. 3. That the ſecond Temple could not be more glorious than the firſt but by receiving the Meſſias into it. 4. That Herod's Temple could not be underſtood hereby. 5. An Anſwer to their Subterfuge concerning Ezekiel's Temple, 6. That the Prophecy of Malachi adds further Force to that of Haggai. 7. That the Prophet could underſtand no other Temple than that which was then ſtanding.

1. BUT if they could have found out any tolerable Evaſion in this Prophecy, yet their Work is not done, there being other plain Predictions to the ſame purpoſe: As in Haggai, For thus ſaith the Lord of Hoſts, Yet once, it is a little while, Haggai 2. v. 6. and I will ſhake the Heavens, and the Earth, and the Sea, and the dry Land: And I 7, 8, 9. will ſhake all Nations, and the Deſire of all Nations ſhall come, and I will fill this Houſe with Glory, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts. The Silver is mine, and the Gold is mine, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts. The Glory of this latter Houſe ſhall be greater than that of the former, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts: and in this place will I give Peace, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts.

2. The natural Senſe of which Prophecy is plainly this: The Prophet encourages the People to work and build the Temple, becauſe that though it ſhould not be ſo coſtly as the former in Ornaments of Gold and Silver, which yet it were an eaſie thing for God to beſtow if he would, (The Silver is mine and the Gold is mine;) yet the Glory of this latter Houſe ſhall be greater than the former, in that it ſhall be honoured with the Preſence of the Meſſiah in it, who is called here The Deſire of all Nations: and as he is elſewhere ſtyled, The Prince of Peace, ſo is his Coming ſet out here by the Gift of Peace; And in this place I will give Peace ſaith the Lord of Hoſts.

3. Now we demand of the Jews, in what reſpect this ſecond Houſe was more glorious than the former, if the Meſſiah came not into it while it was ſtanding. That it was a pitiful Structure in compariſon of Solomon's Temple, the Weeping of the Old men at the rearing of the Edifice was a plain Demonſtration. Beſides that the Rabbins themſelves ſay it was deſtitute of five Prerogatives the other had, viz. The Urim and Thummim, the Shechina, Fire from Heaven, the Ark of the Covenant, and the Spirit of Prophecy. The Evaſions of the Jews here are very poor and inconſiderable, viz.

4. That though the Temple at firſt was not ſo glorious, yet when Herod had reformed it, it was more ſplendid and ſtately than Solomon's. Which is not only falſe, but if it were admitted to be true, would not ſalve the Meaning of the Prophecy. For all thoſe external Ornaments could not compenſate the Loſs of the five Pre-eminences above-named. Beſides that it is ridiculous to make ſo petty a Deſign of building a fine Temple to be expreſſed with ſuch exceeding high Language as if the greateſt Miracle in the World were to be exhibited, (which yet was done by Herod, the vileſt of Men) I will ſhake the Heavens, and the Earth, and the Sea, and the dry Land, &c.

And the ſecond Alledgment, That this latter Temple ſtood ten Years longer than the former, is ſtill more frivolous. And therefore at laſt they are forced to quit this Temple, and affix the Prophecy on a third, viz. Ezekiel's Temple. Which is yet unbuilt, though it be above two thouſand Years ſince that Prophecy; whenas the Prophet ſaid, Yet a little while, and I will ſhake the Heavens and the Earth, &c.

5. But the Jews will be ſtill obſtinate, and ſtill urge that it is plain how magnificent a Temple Ezekiel's is, and that it is clearly propheſied of, and muſt be at laſt, and that therefore they will not expect their Meſſias till then. But to this I briefly anſwer, Firſt, That it may be, that Viſion of the Temple was nothing elſe but an Exhibition of the Temple of Solomon, ſuch as it was when Nebuchodonoſar deſtroyed it. To which Opinion Grotius is very inclinable. Secondly, if it be a more magnificent Structure, That the Prophecy is not abſolute, as that of the Meſſiah, but conditional; as ſeems to be expreſly intimated in the very Prophecy, Ezek. 43. Upon which, I conceive, it may be a Repreſentation of ſuch a magnificent Structure as the Jews would have raiſed even in their Meſſiah's time, if they had not refuſed him, that they would have pulled down Herod's Temple as built by the Hands of ſo execrable a Wretch, and raiſed this Structure of Ezekiel. This had been the natural Iſſue of their embracing the Meſſiah; but the Counſel of God muſt ſtand. Or laſtly, That the whole Viſion is of a mere myſtical or ſpiritual Meaning, which the Viſion of the Holy Waters and the ſtrange Virtue of them, as alſo the Trees there mentioned (*Chap. 47.) ſeem ſhrewdly to inſinuate. So that no Argument drawn from the Temple of Ezekiel can enervate the Force of this Prophecy of Haggai, it being ſo very clear in it ſelf, and the other ſo many ways interpretable to a Compliance therewith.

ver. 10, 11.

*See Ezekiel 47. v. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12.

6. The Truth whereof will be ſtill more evident if we add that of Malachi; Behold, I will ſend my Meſſenger, and he ſhall prepare the way before me: and the Lord whom ye ſeek, ſhall ſuddenly come to his Temple; even the Meſſenger of the Covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he ſhall come, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts.

Malach. ch. 3. v. 1.

Which Prophecy is parallel to the foregoing Prophecy, and does more fully deſcribe the Perſon of the Meſſias, whereby we may be the better aſſured that they are both meant of him: and the time here again ſeems plainly enough to be predefined, viz. That he would come into that Temple that the Jews had then ſtanding, tho' it had not been long rebuilt, and grace it with his preſence before it ſhould be utterly ruined and laid waſte.

7. This certainly is the natural Senſe of this Prophecy, and it is a very harſh thing to think that Malachi had any other Temple in his mind but this. But this Temple has been laid level to the ground above one thouſand ſix hundred Years ago, and therefore the Meſſias either came into his Temple then, or the Prophecy is falſe. For there never was any ſince for him to come into, nor is now, nor will be again for ever, at leaſt before his coming. For how ſhall the Jews build them a Temple before they have found the Meſſias? So that the Meſſias will be firſt, and the Temple after, if at all. But certainly this Prophecy of Malachi ſuppoſes the Temple firſt and ready built, and that the Meſſias in due time will be born into the World, and come into it. Which therefore was the Second Temple.

CHAP.

CHAP. IV.

1. The Prophecy of Daniel. 2. The Expoſition of the Prophecy. 3. That the ſaid Expoſition is as eaſy and natural as the meaning of any Writing whatſoever; and what an excellent performance it would be to demonſtrate out of Chronology, That the Paſſion of Chriſt fell two or three Days after the beginning or before the end of the Laſt Week. 4. The ſum of the Senſe of the whole Prophecy. 5. That the Circumſcription of the Prophetical Weeks is not made by the vaſtation of the City, but by the accompliſhment of thoſe grand Prophecies concerning the Meſſiah. And that no Epocha can be true that does not terminate upon them.

1. THE laſt Prophecy which we ſhall alledge is out of Daniel, Chap. 9. where he meditating upon that Prediction of Jeremy, That ſeventy Years ſhould be accompliſhed in the deſolations of Jeruſalem, and praying earneſtly to God in behalf of the People, the Angel Gabriel by expreſs command was ſent to him to impart this Prophecy to him.

I. Seventy Weeks are determined upon thy People and upon thy holy City, to finiſh the tranſgreſſion, and to make an end of ſins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlaſting Righteouſneſs, and to ſeal up the Viſion and Prophecy, and to anoint the moſt Holy.

II. Know therefore and underſtand, that from the going forth of the Commandment to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem, unto the Meſſiah the Prince, ſhall be ſeven Weeks, and threeſcore and two Weeks, the Street ſhall be built again and the Wall, even in troubleſome times.

III. And after threeſcore and two Weeks ſhall Meſſiah be cut off, but not for himſelf; and the People of the Prince that ſhall come ſhall deſtroy the City and the Sanctuary, and the End thereof ſhall be with a Floud, and to the End of the War Deſolations are determined.

IV. And he ſhall confirm the Covenant with many for one Week, and in the midſt of the Week he ſhall cauſe the Sacrifice and the Oblation to ceaſe, and for the overſpreading of Abominations he ſhall make it deſolate, even until the Conſummation, and that determined ſhall be poured upon the Deſolate.

2. This is ſo eminent a Prophecy, and ſo mainly to the purpoſe, that we are concerned to annex ſome ſhort Notes upon every Verſe, that the ſenſe may appear more plain; and if there be any diverſity of Interpretations, that we may the better ſhew that none does prejudice the main ſcope we drive at.

I. Seventy Weeks, that is, Weeks of Years. Of which ſenſe there is no doubt with either Jew or Chriſtian. And ſeventy of ſuch Weeks, not ſo preciſely as that what is foretold may not come to paſs before the ſeventieth Week be quite run out, or may not run out into ſome part of a following Week; the reckoning being by Weeks and not by Years, as Mr. Mede alſo has well obſerved, and is a Suppoſition that no body can juſtly cavil at.

Are determined. נחתך. that is, cut out, as ſome would have it, implying that immediately after the expiration of theſe, the Jews would be led into Captivity again. But that curioſity is more than needs, and not ſo conformable to the Senſe of the Prophecy: So that in my apprehenſion our Engliſh Tranſlation has the odds of it.

Upon thy People and upon thy holy City, i. e. Near upon the expiration of the Seventieth Week the People of the Jews ſhall be no longer the People of God, nor their City holy, their Religion naturally ceaſing upon ſome Act of theirs, whereby a better, according to the purpoſe of God, ſhall be brought in.

To finiſh tranſgreſſion, or, to fill up, perfect, or compleat tranſgreſſion. For ſo will the * word כלא here ſignify, and ſeems to be the moſt natural Senſe in this place: As if the Angel ſhould ſay, ſeventy Weeks ſhall the ſcourge be taken from thy People, wherein they will again follow their own evil ways and increaſe their ſins to the very height: Which they did the moſt notoriouſly by killing their Meſſiah.

* The Septuagint render it συντελεσθῆναι ἁμαρτίαν, ad conſummandam prævaricationem.

And to make an end of Sin. Or, to put an end to the Judaical Sin-offerings. For ſo will חטאות ſignify; and חתם. which is as much as to Seal, denotes a putting an end to a thing by fulfilling and compleating it, as towards the latter end of this verſe, to Seal up the Viſion and Prophecy, the word חתם is uſed.

And

And to make reconciliation for iniquity: Or, to expiate iniquity. For so כפר signifies: But the Senſe is much-what the ſame in both.

And to bring in everlaſting Righteouſneſs, i. e. Such a Law or Religion which ſhall endure for ever, and according to which if we live, that will be our Juſtification, not the Works of Moſes's Law, nor thoſe Offerings nor Sacrifices.

And to Seal up the Viſion and Prophecy, i. e. To fulfil and accompliſh the Prophecies, viz. thoſe illuſtrious and important Prophecies concerning the Meſſiah.

And to anoint the moſt Holy, viz. the moſt Holy Perſon that ever lived. For tho' קדש be the feminine gender, and may ſeem to ſignify rather Sanctity in the abſtract, or Res ſancta, yet the Jews themſelves underſtood it of a Perſon; Moſes Gerundenſis of the very Meſſiah: And it is uſed of any thing conſecrate to God, whether Field, Man, or Cattel, Levit. 27. 28. Beſides that קדש need not be a Noun of the feminine Gender, but be the ſame that קדיש ſanctus, as appears from Levit. 21. 7. and Numb. 6. 8. or the words there are to be read קדש. and therefore again confirm that קדש belongs to Perſons conſecrated as well as Things. If it had been meant of the moſt holy place of the Temple, it had in all likelihood been קדש קדשים, and not קדש שקדהום. But if קדש קדשים might go for the moſt Holy Place, Chriſt was alſo παος θεῦ in the moſt eminent manner imaginable: For in him dwelt the * Godhead bodily.

See Revel. 21. ver. 22.

* Coloſſ. 2. 9.

II. From the going forth of the Commandment to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem, viz. From the Decree or Command of Artaxerxes in the ſeventh Year of his Reign mentioned, Ezra 7. whereby Ezra was inabled to conſtitute Magiſtrates and Judges over the People, to have Power of Life and Death amongſt themſelves, and to live after their own Political Laws. In which conceſſion cannot poſſibly but be included a licence or decree to build up the Houſes of Jeruſalem. Beſides that, as Funccius alſo pleads, their Liberty of living under their own Magiſtrates is the trueſt and moſt ſubſtantial Senſe of building their City: and verſe 18. there is expreſs leave given to make what uſe they pleaſe of the Remainder of thoſe liberal Contributions which were given for Sacrifices and Religious Services. Whence it is plain the Power of building the City was included in this Commiſſion; only Ezra cared not to beg that expreſly that would be involved in a greater Grant, and ſuch as might incline the King's Spirit more powerfully, viz. matters of Religion, as you may ſee verſe 23. Wherefore this is the proper Decree for rebuilding the City, or elſe none. For the Titles of the other Decrees are either for building the Temple, or elſe reſtrained to the rearing of the Walls of the City, the Houſes having been built before, as you may ſee by reading the Hiſtory of Ezra and Nehemiah. Much what to this purpoſe do they argue, who hold this to be the Epocha of the Weeks.

Unto Meſſiah the Prince: That is, Unto the Manifeſtation of that Perſon that is ſo well known and ſo much expected by the Jews under the name of their Meſſiah, the word being never uſed abſolutely but concerning him.

Shall be ſeven Weeks, and ſixty two Weeks: That is, ſixty nine Weeks, there being no myſtery in the parting of theſe Numbers, ſaving an Hebrew Idiom to be underſtood from Ezekiel 45. 12. and Geneſ. 5. often in that Chapter, as alſo 8. verſe 3. as Grotius comments upon the place. Funccius offers at ſomething more conſiderable, That the State of the Jewiſh Common-wealth ſhould be more unſettled for the firſt ſeven Weeks or thereabouts, as is to be underſtood out of Ezra and Nehemiah.

The Street ſhall be built again and the Walls, even in troubleſome times. That is, not only the Area of Jeruſalem ſhall again be repleniſhed with Houſes, but the Wall ſhall alſo be built again, tho' in troubleſome and unſettled times; as appears in the above-mentioned Hiſtory: For the builders were fain to have their Swords in readineſs as well as their Trowels.

III. And after the ſixty two Weeks, which ſucceed immediately the ſeven Weeks, that is to ſay, after ſixty nine Weeks ſhall Meſſiah be cut off, viz. the above-named Meſſiah the Prince. For that muſt needs be the moſt natural meaning thereof; and, as I ſaid before, Meſſiah is never put thus abſolutely but here: whence doubtleſly the Jews gave him whom they expected for their Redeemer the name of Meſſiah.

Cut off. If it were יכרת it might ſignify tranſfixus or affixus, as Funccius, would have it: But it is יכרת. which ſignifies to cut off, not only from Life, but, as Mr. Mede obſerves, from Reigning as a King. And in reſpect of the Jews he was cut off in both theſe Senſes. For he was the Meſſiah their Prince whom his own People cut off from Life, and thereby from themſelves, that they ſhould be no more his People, nor he their King: And therefore it immediately follows ואין לו, which is not, and not for himſelf; but the Senſe is, The Meſſiah ſhall be cut off by the Hands of the People of the

! Jews

Jews, and that People ſhall be none of his. This expoſition of ואין לו Manaſſeh Ben Iſrael likes ſo well, that he applies it where it is not ſo natural and eaſy, or elſe is tautological. For he interprets it of Agrippa the laſt King of the Jews, whom, he ſays, Veſpaſian ſlew ſome three Years before the deſtruction of the Temple, ואין לו and ſo the Kingdom was no longer Agrippa's nor any of his Race. But in this Senſe concerning the Meſſiah, it being preſuppoſed that he is cut off by the Jewiſh People, it is very eaſy to conceive that they are the Nominative Caſe to the Verb underſtood in ואין לו, and that the People that cut him off ſhould be no longer his People, by reaſon of this hainous Act of theirs. So that upon this Act the Jews ceaſed to be the People of God; and thus being given over, at laſt comes that Vengeance Prophefied of in the following words, that their City and Sanctuary ſhould be deſtroyed by thoſe that were deſigned to be the People of the Prince the Meſſiah. For ſo Mr. Mede interprets the place excellently well in my Judgment, rendring עם נגיד הבא. Populus Principis futurus; underſtanding thereby the Romans, in which Empire Chriſt was to have chiefly his Church and Kingdom. And it is moſt natural that as Meſſiah before was the ſame with Meſſiah the Prince, ſo the Prince here ſhould be the ſame with the Meſſiah, the Senſe fitting ſo exceeding well. Whenas if the Meſſiah be not underſtood here by נגיד but only ſome Prince and People at large [the People of the Prince which ſhall come,] the Senſe thereof will be more lax and dilute, which would be more knit together and made of a more even Contexture upon Mr. Mede's Hypotheſis.

And the end thereof ſhall be with a floud. This is, After the deſtruction of the City, the Roman Army will overflow Judæa.

And to the end of the War deſolations are determined. Grotius interprets עד for, and renders it, Pro fine belli erit definita deſolatio. Deus hunc exitum bello iſti præfinivit, terræ vaſtitatem, God has determined that iſſue of the War, the devaſtation of the Land.

IV. And he ſhall. Mr. Mede renders it, Nevertheleſs he ſhall. For indeed the Conjunction ו has the force in a manner of any Conjunction, and may be rendred according as the Senſe directeth. And the moſt genuine Senſe ſeems that which Mr. Mede has given, That tho' Iſrael was caſt off, yet a Remnant according to the Election of Grace ſhould be won off to Chriſt by the Preaching of the Goſpel of his Kingdom: Which ſhould be done before and after his Paſſion, by himſelf and his Apoſtles. This is that Καινὴ διαθήκη, or new Covenant, * which adorns the very Title-page of the Greek Teſtament. And the Seventy turn it in this place διαθήκη, δικαιώσως διαθήκην.

* See Book 9. chap. 5. ſect. 7, 8, 9.

Confirm the Covenant. This is, as I ſaid, the Covenant of the Goſpel: See Funccius upon the place.

With many, i. e. with ſeveral; for ſo the word ſignifies frequently: Tho' it be true alſo that many of the Jews were converted and entred the Covenant within the ſpace of this one Week, which is the ſeventieth or laſt Week.

And in the midſt of the Week, or, of that Week. חצי השבוע may either ſignify in one half part of the Week, as Grotius interprets it, or elſe ſimply in the midſt of the Week. In which interpretation the midſt need not ſignify Mathematically the middle part of the Week equidiſtant from the extremes, but any part within the extremes: So that the ſecond or ſixth Year of the Week may be ſaid in this Senſe, and that truly, in the midſt of the Week. So that the Angel may mean no more by this expreſſion, than that what he foretells ſhall be done after the laſt Week begins and before it ends.

He ſhall make the Sacrifice and Oblation to ceaſe, viz. The Meſſiah then ſuffering ſhall antiquate and put an end to the Jewiſh Sacrifices and Oblations. For he that was prefigured by them being come, and having been Sacrificed and made an Oblation, it is plain that thoſe other ceaſed as to right and efficacy, that is, were abrogated or aboliſhed by the excellency of his Perſon, who offered up himſelf once a Sacrifice and Atonement for the Sins of the whole World. If Chronology will but admit of it, the wit of Man cannot find out a more becoming Interpretation than this concerning his making the daily Sacrifice to ceaſe. Which is as it were the Scope of the whole Prophecy. For to intimate within what Week the Meſſiah ſhould ſuffer, upon whoſe Death the Antiquation of Moſes's Law and the Introduction of the everlaſting Righteouſneſs depended, is a thing more decorous, and more befitting ſo preciſe an Accuracy, than the Deſtruction of the Temple, which other Interpreters ſay is meant by making the Sacrifice to ceaſe. Beſides, it had been more proper and compendious to have named the Temple than the Oblations and Sacrifices, if there had not been ſomething of an higher nature meant by this Expreſſion. The main drift therefore of the Prophecy is, more curiouſly to define the time, as of his Manifeſtation, ſo likewiſe of the Death of the Meſſiah, which I queſtion ſtion not but may very well be hinted at here in this Expreſſion; and what was ſpoke more at large and indeterminately in the foregoing verſe touching his being cut off, may here, for time, be more punctually defined: And as at the mention of his Death before, there was annexed that Vengeance upon them that murdered him; ſo here, where it is repeated again, the ſame Vengeance is repeated.

And for the over-ſpreading of abomination he ſhall make it deſolate. The Hebrew is, ועל כנף שקוצים משמם. Which with Mr. Mede I would render thus, And commanding over a Wing of abominations he will be a deſtroyer, i. e. over an Army of Idolatrous Gentiles, namely the Roman Army. See alſo Grotius upon Matth. 24. ver. 15. Whoſe Interpretation, tho' it differ ſomething from Mr. Mede's, yet in my Opinion does confirm it very much: He proving by ſeveral Citations out of Authors, that the Romans bore upon their Standards the Images of their Gods, which in Hebrew is שקוצים. We ſhall only inſtance in that one of many out of Tacitus; Fulgentibus aquilis ſigniſque & ſimulacris Deûm in modum Templi. So fitly is this Wing of Abominations interpreted of an Army of Idolaters.

Even until the conſummation and that determined. Read, and even until the conſummation, i. e. the finiſhing of this Deſtruction.

Shall be poured upon the deſolate. Read, it ſhall continue upon the diſtreſſed, viz. כנף שקוצים. The Roman Army ſhall continue upon Jeruſalem till they have brought it to utter devaſtation: Or, it ſhall be ſpread like Water poured upon the deſolate, in that Senſe that Inundation was interpreted in the foregoing verſe. For, as I intimated before, this is but a repeated Prediction of the ſame Vengeance upon the ſame occaſion, namely, the conſideration of their murdering their Meſſiah, which is implied in that expreſſion, He ſhall make the Sacrifice and Oblation to ceaſe, himſelf then becoming a Sacrifice according to the eternal Counſel of God.

3. The Senſe which we have given of this Prophecy is ſo coherent and of one piece, tho' taken out of ſeveral Interpreters, that no Senſe can be applied to any Writings more naturally. So that, as I ſaid, if Chronology will but favour the Interpretation, it is moſt certain that what we have given is the meaning thereof. And Funccius, who has made the Seventy Weeks expire exactly with the breath of our Saviour upon the Croſs, if he could have found the ending but a Year ſooner, had given a tolerable if not a commendable account of this Prophecy according to the Latitude of the Senſe of וחצי השבוע above mentioned. And it is not a thing hopeleſs, but that he and other Chronologers may be miſtaken a Year in their Computations. But whoever out of his Induſtry and Skill in Hiſtory and Chronology ſhall demonſtrate to the World, That the Paſſion of our Saviour fell out ſome two or three Years before the ending or elſe after the beginning of the laſt Week, his Invention will be more to Chriſtian Religion than either the Venæ Lacteæ or the Circulation of Blood to Phyſick and Philoſophy. For the fulfilling of this Prophecy will appear ſo clear and compleat, that if Porphyrius were alive again, he would again be driven to ſay it was writ poſt eventum, that is to ſay, That the Jews have contrived a Prophecy to confute themſelves withal.

4. The good news therefore that the Angel Gabriel imparts to Daniel in this Prophecy is this, That the Jews ſhould certainly return out of Captivity; and that from the going out of a certain Decree to rebuild Jeruſalem and give it the form of a City, that is, a Power of being governed by their own Laws and Magiſtrates, that from that time forward God had determined Seventy Weeks for them, that he would give them his ſpecial Protection ſo long, and they ſhould be his People, and their City ſhould be Holy, their Oblations and Sacrifices ſhould not be antiquated, nor their Law and Religion abrogated: But within that time a new Law or Religion ſhould begin, which ſhould never have an end, which therefore is called the Everlaſting Righteouſneſs; and that the Judaical Sin-offerings ſhould then ceaſe, that is, ſhould be no longer warrantable or effectual. For the Meſſiah ſhould by that time be come, whom they will ſlay, and he ſhall by his Death put an end to all other Sacrifices, his Blood being ſufficient to reconcile the whole World to God. But tho' the deſign of Divine Providence herein was holy and good, yet the Jews crucifying him out of malice and envy, (enormous wickedneſs having blinded their Eyes) the People of the Jews ſhall be caſt out of God's favour, nor ſhall they be the People of the Meſſiah, but a People that ſhall be the Meſſiah's, viz. the Romans, ſhall come and deſtroy their City and Sanctuary with an utter Deſtruction.

5. This is a ſhort and eaſy account of the whole Prophecy, in which it plainly appears, That the foretelling of the Deſtruction of the City is but an Appendix to the main Prophecy, and comes but in by the Bye, as an effect of that foul Act of the Jews in in ſlaying their Prince: But that the Circumſcription of the Prophetical Weeks is made by thoſe main Deſigns they were allotted to the Jews for, that is, they ſhould not expire till the Everlaſting Righteouſneſs was brought in, till the Prophecies were fulfilled, and the moſt Holy was anointed, that is, till the Meſſiah was come, till he ſuffered, roſe again, aſcended into Heaven, ſent down the Holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, and ſet the Chriſtian Religion on foot in the World. All which was done in the laſt Week. After which the City was to be deſtroyed by the Romans; but there was no need of preciſely ſetting down the time when.

But the noiſe and clatter of the devaſtation of it has ſo diſturbed the Judgments and Phancies of many Learned Writers, that they have very crookedly and unnaturally haled on the extent of the Weeks to reach the deſtruction of the City, and ſo have cauſed a needleſs obſcurity in ſo pregnant a Teſtimony of the Truth of our Religion. For indeed there can be no genuine or ſatisfactory Interpretation of Daniel's Weeks, unleſs they all of them, the ſeven, the ſixty two, with the ſingle Week, follow one another continuedly in one line, and ſuch an Epocha be pitched upon, as that at the expiring of the ſixty nine Weeks the Meſſiah may be manifeſted to the World, and in the ſeventieth Week be cut off, and be made a Sacrifice for ſin, and ſo abrogate the Jewiſh Law, and bring in the Everlaſting Righteouſneſs, &c. To which the Epocha from the ſeventh Year of Artaxerxes Longimanus ſeems indifferently well fitted according to Funccius his Computation, and in ſome meaſure agrees, tho' not altogether ſo accurately as might reaſonably be deſir'd. But whether this or any other be us'd, it matters not, provided it be taken from ſome Decree for Re-building the City, and lead us to the middle of the laſt Week. What in this reſpect has been perform'd by our Countreyman Lydiat, a Man of a ſingular Piety, and great Vivacity of Judgment, in his Chronological Work entitled Emendatio Temporum, taking the twentieth Year of Artaxerxes for his Epocha, very well deſerves in my Opinion to be conſidered. His Method in brief is this: Whereas he places the beginning of Artaxerxes Longimanus his Reign ſeven Years higher than Funccius, (for this laſt fixes it in the firſt Year of the ſeventy ninth Olympiad, but Lydiat in the ſecond Year of the ſeventy ſeventh) 'tis evident that Daniel's Weeks reckon'd from the fourteenth Year of Artaxerxes will have the ſame End as formerly, namely in the fourth Year of the two hundred and ſecond Olympiad. But for as much as Lydiat takes the twentieth of Artaxerxes for the Epocha of the Weeks, 'tis plain they muſt in this caſe end ſix Years Later, to wit, in the ſecond Year of the two hundred and fourth Olympiad. So that if Chriſt ſuffered in the laſt Year of the ſeventieth Week, according to the Epocha of Funccius, as Helvicus intimates; reckoning by the Epocha of Lydiat, his Paſſion will fall upon the firſt Year of the laſt Week. Wherefore this Ingenious Method is further imploy'd in proving, that the Suffering of Chriſt happened almoſt four Years later than the Vulgar Account, viz. in the twenty ſecond Year of Tiberius; whereas others had refer'd it to the nineteenth, and conſequently that Chriſt's Paſſion fell out exactly in the middle of the Week. This is a Summary of his Performance; but by what Arguments he makes it appear, the Reader may ſee in Lydiat himſelf.

CHAP. V.

1. The Application of the Firſt verſe of the Prophecy to prove that the Meſſiah is come. 2. The Jews evaſions propounded and anſwered. 3. An Application of the Second verſe of the Prophecy, with a Confutation of thoſe Rabbins Opinions that make Cyrus, Jehoſhua and Zerobabel, or Nehemiah their Meſſiah. 4. An Application of the Third verſe, with a Confutation of the Jews fiction of Agrippa's being the Meſſiah to be cut off.

1. I Have compleated the Senſe of the Prophecy of Daniel, and that with more accuracy then this preſent occaſion required, I ſpeak in regard of pitching upon that Epocha with Funccius, which is ſet down, Ezra 7. For without being ſo particular there is ſtrength enough in the Prophecy to evince, That the Meſſiah is already come.

For from the Firſt verſe thereof it is very clear, That within Seventy Weeks the Moſt Holy was to be anointed, and an Everlaſting Righteouſneſs to be brought in. Now I demand of the Jews or any elſe, take their Epocha where they will, if they can find any Everlaſting Righteouſneſs, Law or Religion, that was brought in before the Expiration of Daniel's Weeks, if it be not this of Chriſtianity: But by the Prophecy there muſt be ſome Law or everlaſting Righteouſneſs brought in by that time. And what or who was that moſt Holy that was anointed within theſe Weeks, if it was not the very Chriſt whom we Chriſtians worſhip? The Jews themſelves acknowledge the Second Temple was not anointed: Therefore it muſt belong to ſome Perſon; which muſt be the Meſſiah mentioned in the following verſe. I may add alſo, how is Viſion and Prophecy fulfilled, (the moſt eminent whereof was concerning their Meſſiah) I ſay, how are they accompliſhed and ſealed within the ſpace of theſe ſeventy Weeks, if the Meſſiah be not yet come?

2. The Jews have no way in the World to evade here but by forcing the moſt abſurd Interpretation upon this Verſe of the Prophecy that can be imagined; as if the Senſe were, That thoſe things there foretold ſhould come to paſs after the ſeventy Weeks. Whenas it is plain, That the caſting the Weeks ſo into parts, and expreſly foretelling that in this part this ſhall come to paſs, and in that, that; it is plain, I ſay, from hence, That the main ſcope of the Prophecy is to tell what things will come to paſs before their expiration. Which we ſhall be the better aſſured of if we examine the fondneſs of the other Suppoſition, and apply it to the words of the Text, which are theſe, Seventy Weeks are determined upon thy People and upon thy holy City, or, cut out for thy People and for thy holy City, שבע שבעים נחתך to finiſh tranſgreſſion, &c. If theſe things that follow in this verſe be to be underſtood as foretold to come to paſs after the ſeventy Weeks, what is the Senſe of the Prepoſition ל? Queſtionleſs there can be but theſe two Senſes of it; either ſo as the Septuagint have tranſlated it, τοῦ συντελεσθῆναι ἁμαρτίαν, viz. that tranſgreſſion may be finiſhed, as alſo our Engliſh Tranſlators have rendered it, which doubtleſs is the true Senſe; or elſe it muſt ſignify the ſame that עד, and there is no Senſe imaginable beſides theſe two that can be pretended.

If the firſt, the groſs Abſurdity is this, That whereas there has been about three hundred Weeks for the compleating thoſe things mentioned there in that verſe, and they not yet done, according to the Jews Opinion; yet the Prophecy mentions only Seventy, and thoſe wherein they themſelves confeſs nothing at all was to be done of them; than which nothing can be imagined more wild and ridiculous.

If the ſecond, I anſwer that the Seventy and other unprejudiced Interpreters alway turn it according to the former Senſe. Nay, that Abarbanel and Manaſſeh, who otherwiſe pervert the Senſe of this Prophecy, yet they tranſlate it ſo too, and yield that ל never ſignifies עד until. And laſtly, if it did ſo, yet the Senſe of the Prophecy would be pitifully lame and imperfect, if we compare it with the Event. For the Senſe would be, Seventy Weeks are determined upon thy People, until or before that the everlaſting righteouſneſs be brought in, the moſt Holy anointed, Viſion and Prophecy perfected, &c. Which certainly ſuppoſes that within a little time after, at leaſt after leſs than Seventy Weeks, theſe things ſhould be fulfilled; and yet there has thrice Seventy Weeks gone over ſince the expiration of the firſt Seventy, and no tidings of any ſuch things. Wherefore it is more clear than the Meridian Sun, that the things there underſtood were to come to paſs within the Seventy Weeks expreſly ſpoke of by the Prophet Daniel.

3. Again, from the ſecond verſe of this Prophecy we demonſtrate, That the Meſſiah is come: Becauſe from the going out of the Commandment or Decree to rebuild the City to the Meſſiah is but ſixty nine Weeks. Wherefore imagine what Decree you will, the time is run out, and many hundred Years beſides. And that this Prophecy is to be underſtood of that great Meſſiah their Prince and Redeemer, appears plainly enough becauſe he is called here by Daniel משיח נגיד and משיח abſolutely, as being his Proper Name, whenas in all other places of Scripture it is an Appellative. Whence it is more than conjectural that the Jews had the name of their Meſſiah out of this place, and underſtood it of that Meſſiah we ſpeak of. But after that unhappy miſtake of theirs in refuſing their Meſſiah when he came, they have forced other Interpretations, tho' utterly unapplicable to the Text; ſome underſtanding by Meſſiah King Cyrus, others Nehemias, others Jehoſhua the Prieſt, others Zerobabel: None of which conceits are ſo much as poſſible. For the Epocha from which they muſt reckon, muſt be from ſome Command or Decree to rebuild the City. For ſo the words run, מן מצא דבר להשיב From the promulgation of the Decree to reſtore, &c. That that is the Senſe of מצא דבר is plain from Eſther, chap. 1. ver. 19. יצא דבר מלכות let there go forth a Royal Command or Decree. Whence it is plain that דבר is as much as a Decree, and מצא the Promulgation of it; as may be underſtood alſo from Luke 1. Ἐξῆλθε δόγμα. And the particle ל doth put the buſineſs out of all controverſy that this דבר is, as the Seventy often tranſlate it, ἐντολὴ, πρόσταγμα, a Command, not a Foretelling or Talking of things; becauſe tho' ל may elegantly enough be tranſlated, Concerning, yet does not this Prepoſition exhauſt its ſignification, which is better rendred by, To, according to our Engliſh Verſion. So that none that have any either common Senſe or but moderate skill in the Hebrew, but will confeſs that מן מצא דבר להשיב ſignifies, From the Decree to cauſe to return, &c.

ſome

From whence it is very manifeſt, that none of thoſe Perſons which the Jews here offer can be accepted for the Meſſiah mentioned in this Prophecy. Not Cyrus; becauſe if you will apply him to the firſt Decree, which was his own, the account is abſurd at firſt ſight. For thus you muſt reckon from the Edict of Cyrus to the ſame Cyrus. The other Decrees are after Cyrus, and therefore the Senſe will be more abſurd, if any thing can be more. The reaſon is much-what the ſame concerning Jehoſhua and Zerobabel, for they were the very Perſons that immediately executed Cyrus his Decree. And for Nehemias, he is a great many Years too late from Cyrus his Decree, and as much too near to that Decree that went out the ſeventh Year of Artaxerxes. This I ſpeak in reference to that Evaſion they ſeek in the parting of the number of this Prophecy into ſeven Weeks, and ſixty two Weeks, as if it ſhould be but ſeven Weeks from the Decree to the Meſſiah, that is, forty nine Years. But beſides that it is plain, Chronology will not fit their turn for this ſubterfuge, it is further evident that if it would, it will yet appear but a Subterfuge. For unleſs you will join the Seven Weeks and the fifty two Weeks together, it will not make good Senſe, as any one that examines it will eaſily underſtand; and that the Meſſiah is not to come within the firſt Seven Weeks, appears in that he is to be cut off after the ſixty two Weeks.

4. Which ſhall be a third Argument (from the Third verſe of the Prophecy) That the Meſſiah is come. After ſixty two Weeks the Meſſiah ſhall be cut off, that is, not until the laſt Week begin and before it expire. For there is no queſtion but the Seventy Weeks being thus divided into parts for the ſetting out the time of the coming and appearing of the Meſſiah even to his Death, that what he did viſibly or ſuffered in the World is circumſcribed within thoſe Weeks; and therefore we may ſafely conclude, that before the Seventy Weeks expired the Meſſiah was cut off, that is, that he was cut off above ſixteen hundred Years ago, to wit, before the deſtruction of the City, as plainly appears in the Text, that makes the ſacking of Jeruſalem a conſequent of his Death: And the number of the Weeks, pitch upon what Decree you pleaſe, muſt needs expire many Years before the taking of the City, and therefore the Meſſiah was cut off, and conſequently came into the World ſo many Years ago.

Here the Jews, to evade ſo manifeſt a Demonſtration, tell us a ſtory of one Agrippa their laſt King, and of Mumbas his Son, whom they ſay Veſpaſian ſlew at Rome three Years and an half before the deſtruction of the Temple. This was he that was cut off from the Kingdom of Judæa, אוין לו, and it was no longer his nor his Poſterities. This is the moſt ſpecious Anſwer they have made yet, but yet upon examination it will be found exceſſively weak. For firſt it is plain from Records of Hiſtory and Antiquity, That Agrippa the laſt King of the Jews lived nigh upon thirty Years after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem. And then in the ſecond place, if we ſhould ſuppoſe their fiction to be true, the laſt Week of the Seventy will either expire many Years before, or run out beyond the cutting off this Agrippa, if you make, as you ought, the Decree for building of the City the Epocha of the account, and affix it to the Seventh Year of either Funccius his Artaxerxes or Scaliger's, or at leaſt to the twentieth Year of the former with Thomas Lydiat: To all which you may add that משיח being put here ſo abſolutely, it cannot but be underſtood of the great Meſſiah the Jews did and do ſtill expect, their own Rabbins expounding it ſo while they were unprejudiced; and that it is moſt natural to underſtand the ſame Perſon ſpoken of in the whole Prophecy; who is firſt prefigured in the expreſſion of קדש קדשים (which their own Doctors alſo interpret of their Meſſiah) by which if the Temple had been meant, it had been rather קדש הקדשים. Not to mention, that it does not appear the Temple was ever anointed, as was the Tabernacle. And therefore again an anointed Perſon being underſtood in the firſt verſe, which excellently agrees with the mention of an Anointed Prince immediately following in the ſecond, 'tis neceſſary that משיח which is found in the ſecond and third verſe, muſt be meant of the ſame Perſon; and there being in the firſt joyned with the mention of him not only ſo ſacred a Title as the Moſt Holy; but alſo the bringing in of everlaſting Righteouſneſs, the expiating of Sin, and fulfilling of Prophecies, it is plain that ſo mean a Perſon as Agrippa (or any elſe they have or can name) is unapplicable to this Prophecy of Daniel; ſuch things being there foretold as are utterly incompetible to him: But ſuch as will anon appear from other Prophecies to be ſingularly competible to the great Meſſiah the Jews expected, and are the Characteriſticals of his Perſon, as we ſhall fully make good in its due place.

CHAP. VI.

1. How convincing Evidences thoſe three Prophecies of Jacob, Haggai and Daniel are, That the Meſſiah is come. 2. That it was the General Opinion of the Jews, That the Meſſiah was to come about that time we ſay he did. 3. Joſephus his miſapplication of the Prophecy of Daniel to Veſpaſian. 4. A further confirmation out of Tacitus, that the Jews about thoſe times expected their Meſſiah. 5. Another Teſtimony out of Suetonius.

1. IN the mean time it is ſo plain and apparent from theſe Prophecies of Jacob and Haggai, That the Meſſiah is already come; that any one, tho' ſecluded from all Commerce with theſe parts of Europe, and knowing nothing of the face of things here, if he had but only certain information that the Jewiſh Polity and Temple were deſtroyed, and could but read the above-named Prophecies, he would be ſure that the Meſſiah was come into the World: As alſo out of this Prophecy of Daniel he might without any intelligence at all (provided only he took notice of the Epocha of Decrees, and how that the Weeks from any one of them would be expired many hundred Years ago) infallibly infer, That the Meſſiah was certainly come. Theſe things are ſo perfectly clear, that it is needleſs to add any thing elſe to confirm the belief of them.

2. Which yet ſome do by appealing to the Judgment of their own Rabbins, if they themſelves did not conclude that their Meſſiah was to come about that time we ſay he did. Nehemias, a Jewiſh Rabbin, that lived ſome fifty Years before Chriſt, did openly declare out of the Prophecy of Daniel, that the coming of their expected Meſſiah could not be prolonged above fifty Years; as appears out of Grotius, if he was not miſinformed by Stoctoxus. But by what he anſwers to Sarravius, one would think that he ſaw the place with his own Eyes; Oſtendit iſtum mihi locum olim Hagæ Stoctoxus. And that this was not one Rabbin's Opinion, but the apprehenſion of many of their wiſe Men, is manifeſt from what Joſephus has written, De bello Judaico, lib. 7. cap. 31. Τὸ ἐπάρεαν αὐτοὺς μάλιστα πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον ἦν Χρησμὸς ἀμφίβολος ἐν τοῖς ἱεροῖς ἐγκείμενος γράμμασιν, ὡς κατὰ τὸν καιρὸν ἐκεῖνον ἀπὸ τῆς χώρας τις αὐτῶν ἄρξει τῆς οἰκουμένης. τοῦτο οἱ μὲν ὡς οἰκεῖον ἐξέλαβον, καὶ πολλοὶ τῶν σοφῶν ἐπλανήθησαν περὶ τὴν κρίσιν. That which excited them moſt of all to the War, was a doubtful Prophecy found in the Holy Writings, as if about that time ſome one from their Country ſhould be Emperor of the World. This the Jews took as properly belonging to them, and many of the wiſe Men were deceived in their Judgments about that matter. Out of which words it plainly appears that the Learned of the Jews, and in a manner the whole Nation, was perſwaded that their Meſſiah, whom they thought would be the Prince of the known World, was hard at Hand. In which perſwaſion they were ſo ſerious that they ventured their Lives, Liberty, Temple and City thereupon, that being the greateſt thing that animated them to that infortunate War. Of their firmneſs in which Opinion a further argument is, that they were ſo ready to phanſy this or the other their Meſſiah about thoſe times. For there were many looked upon for a while as ſuch, as Herod, Judas Gaulonites, Jonathas, Barchochab and others.

See Sarrav. Epiſt. pag. 52.

3. Neither does Joſephus his note upon the Prophecy that gave the Jews this confidence, he calling it χρησμὸν ἀμφίβολον, an ambiguous Prediction, derogate any thing from the clearneſs thereof concerning the Time. But the Character of his Perſon, it ſeems, was not ſo perfectly ſet out, but that they miſſed the knowing of him when he was

was come: And therefore it was neceſſary for Joſephus to ſay that the Oracle was ambiguous. But it were ambiguous indeed, if it were, as he would make it, more applicable to Veſpaſian than to the true Meſſiah. For that Meſſiah there Propheſied of was to be cut off, which Veſpaſian was not; and that before the laſt Week, whenas Veſpaſian beſieged Jeruſalem about forty Years after. Beſides that it is ridiculous to reſolve the Solemnity of the Holy Oracles of the Prophets into ſo petty a buſineſs, as in ſtead of their foretelling that one of the Jewiſh Lineage ſhould become a great Prince, and ſway the Scepter over the Nations (which prediction was always looked upon as ſome peculiar Honour and Priviledge to the Jews) that only a Forreigner coming to Judæa, and for no better end than to ſack their City, deſtroy their Temple, and make Vaſſals of them and Slaves, that this Man after ſhould be choſen Emperor of Rome, as others had been before him. Whether awe and fear might baffle the underſtanding of Joſephus ſo as to think this a true Gloſs, tho' it be but ſervile flattery, I will not diſpute: But whether he thought it falſe or no, that it is ſo, I think I have put out of Controverſy.

4. But what Joſephus records concerning the Opinion of his Nation, that they thought the coming of their Meſſiah to be about that time, is got into the Hiſtory of the Pagan Writers alſo. Cornelius Tacitus writes ſo like to what Joſephus has ſet down, that it ſeems ſomething like a tranſlation of him, as in his ſpeaking of the Prodigies that did fore-run the deſtruction of the City; Viſæ per cœlum concurrere acies, rutilantia arma, & ſubito nubium igne collucere templum. Expaſſæ repentè delubri fores, & audita major humanâ vox, Excedere Deos, ſimul ingens motus excedentium. That is, Armies were ſeen skirmiſhing in the Heavens, weapons glittering, and the Temple filled with Light from the ſudden flaſhing of the Clouds. The Door alſo of the Temple inſtantly flung open, and a Voice was heard bigger than the Voice of any Man, That the Gods go out, and withal a mighty buſtle of them as going out together. After this preſently he adds, Quæ pauci in metum trahebant: pluribus perſuaſio inerat, antiquis ſacerdotum literis contineri, eo ipſo tempore ut valeſceret Oriens, profectique Judææ rerum potirentur: quæ ambages Veſpaſianum & Titum prædixerunt, i.e. Which ſome few interpreted as a dangerous Preſage: Moſt were perſwaded that it was contained in the ancient Books of their Prieſts, that at that very time the Eaſt ſhould grow potent, and that thoſe come from Judæa ſhould obtain the Empire: which ambages preſignified Veſpaſian and Titus. In which he plainly intimates that the Opinion of the near approach of their Meſſiah was ſo ſtrong, that it bore againſt all the ill Prodigies, nay made them interpret them to a good Senſe, as if this excedere deos was but their haſtning out to take poſſeſſion of the Nations; which was true in no other Senſe than in that Chriſt, who was the peculiar Guardian Angel, as I may ſo ſpeak, of the Jews before, became afterward the worſhip of the whole Empire. Or if you will, God, who was in a manner Topical before, reſtrained to Judæa, became the known and acknowledged God of the whole Earth.

Tacit. Hiſtor. ab Exceſſu Neronis lib. 5. cap. 13. See Book 6. chap. 2. ſect. 8.

5. Suetonius in the Life of Veſpaſian (Cap. 4.) in expreſs terms calls this Expectation of the Jews, veterem & conſtantem opinionem. Percrebuerat, ſaith he, Oriente toto vetus & conſtans opinio, eſſe in fatis ut eo tempore Judææ profecti rerum potirentur. Id de Imperatore Romano, quantum eventu poſtea prædictum patuit, Judæi ad ſe trahentes, rebellarunt, &c. An ancient and conſtant Opinion had grown very common over all the Eaſt, that the fates had ſo deſtined, that at that time thoſe that came from Judæa ſhould become Maſters of all. Which fate, as appeared by the event, foretold of the Roman Emperor, the Jews interpreting in favour of themſelves, rebelled, &c. By which expreſſions of Suetonius we may underſtand how aſſured the Jews were, that that was the time of the coming of their Meſſiah, and that the fame of it was not contained within their own Precincts, but had ſpread over all the Eaſt, and that the whole World was at a gaze in expectation of the Great Prince of the Jews.

CHAP.

CHAP. VII.

1. That it being evident the Meſſiah is come, it will alſo follow that Jeſus is he. 2. That the Prophets when they Propheſied of any eminent King, Prieſt or Prophet, were ſometimes carried in their Prophetick Raptures to ſuch expreſſions as did more properly concern the Meſſiah than the Perſon they began to deſcribe. 3. That theſe References are of two ſorts, either purely Allegorical, or Mixt; and of the uſe of pure Allegories by the Evangeliſts and Apoſtles. 4. Of mixt Allegories of this kind, and of their validity for Argument. 5. That eminent Prophecy of Iſaiah, that ſo fully characterizes the Perſon of Chriſt. 6. That the ancient Jews underſtood this of their Meſſiah, and that the modern are forced hence to fancy two Meſſiahs. The Soul of the Meſſiah appointed to this Office from the beginning of the World, as appears out of their Peſikta. 7. The nine Characters of the Meſſiah's Perſon included in the above-named Prophecy. 8. A brief Intimation in what verſes of the Prophecy they are couched. 9. That this Prophecy cannot be applied to the People of the Jews, nor adequately to Jeremy's Perſon. 10. Special Paſſages in the Prophecy utterly unapplicable to Jeremy.

1. WE have, I think, ſufficiently demonſtrated, That the time of the coming of the Meſſiah is expired, and therefore (the Predictions of him and Promiſes being not conditional, as I have above intimated, but abſolute,) it undeniably follows that he is come. Upon which we might immediately infer, eſpecially conſidering the Time of his coming, That Jeſus Chriſt is he. For whom elſe can they poſſibly pitch upon? But we ſhall proceed more punctually, and ſuſpend that Inference, until we have laid before you thoſe Prophecies that Characterize his Perſon, What a one he ſhould be, What he ſhould do, and what ſhould betide him.

2. Of which there is none ſo full as that of Iſaiah, Chap. 53. But before I enter upon it or any other, it will be very convenient, for the preventing of all Cavils and Tergiverſations, to ſet down a Suppoſition which is both rational in ſelf, and allowed of, nay highly magnified, in things where their Intereſt does not lie at ſtake, by the moſt Learned of the Jews. And it is this, That that eminent Perſon whom they call their Meſſiah, being at laſt to give them a viſit in this World, and as the very Senſe of his Name imports, which ſignifies Anointed, being to be the Top and Flower of thoſe three Functions in which this Anointing was uſed, viz. Prophet, Prieſt and King; it is very rational to conceive, how in their Actuations by the Spirit of God, when he fell upon the Prophets, that while they propheſied or ſpake of ſome more conſiderable Prieſt, Prophet or King (that Wiſdom guiding them which is omniſcient and more moving than any motion, which reacheth from one end to another mightily, and ſweetly orders all things) they were ſo actuated and tranſported, that in that fatidical Rapture they were caught up into, the Senſe of their Mind and Words was carried further than the particular Perſon they began to deſcribe. So that according to this Suppoſition we will of our own accord acknowledge that ſeveral, and thoſe of the moſt eminent Prophecies that Characterize the Perſon of Chriſt, did firſt touch upon ſome other Perſon, which was but a fainter Reſemblance of him. But that after this glance they are carried to their main ſcope they drive at, where they pierce and are fixt, as an Arrow ſtuck in the mark.

3. Now this Reference is of two ſorts, either a Perfect Allegory, or Mixt. That I call a Perfect Allegory, when all the expreſſions concerning the Perſon firſt ſpoke of do very well and naturally fit him, but may be interpreted (and that more exquiſitely it may be) of ſome more Illuſtrious Perſon that comes after. Such Alluſions as theſe are uſed by the Apoſtles and Evangeliſts to the great confirmation of our Faith, however the Jews are ſcandalized at it. For there can be no other Senſe of it than this, viz. That either theſe Interpretations which they put upon the Prophets were the known Interpretations of the Jews, and therefore very accommodate to perſwade the Jews by; and it was a ſign they were right Interpretations, they being made before prejudice had blinded them. Or elſe, that theſe Expoſitions were their own, that is, that they aroſe in their own Minds firſt; which was impoſſible they ſhould, they being but Alluſions, unleſs the certain knowledge of what hapned to our Saviour Chriſt had put them upon it. So that thoſe alluſive Proofs are to us ſtrong Confirmations that the Hiſtory of the Goſpel in thoſe things that ſeem moſt incredible is certainly true. I will content my ſelf with that one inſtance (tho' I might alledge many others) of Chriſt's being born of a Virgin. Certainly unleſs they had known that de facto he was ſo, or that their wiſe Men had interpreted that of Iſaiah, Chap. 7. to that Senſe, it is incredible that they ſhould ever alledge that place for it; and they making no uſe of any other but this, which is only alluſory, it is plain the certainty of the Event was that which caſt them upon the Interpretation.

4. I call a Mixt Allegory that which is partly alluſory, as being applicable firſt to ſome more Inferior Perſon, whether King, Prophet or Prieſt, and then to the Meſſiah, and partly ſimple and expreſs, not applicable to any but the Meſſiah himſelf; the Prophet being ſo actuated by the Spirit of God, that in the ſublimity of that divine Heat he is in, his ſenſe and expreſſions reach out further than the Perſon that is the Type, and ſtrike into ſuch Circumſtances that are not at all true but in the Antitype. And theſe Predictions of this nature concerning the Meſſiah are as Demonſtrative to thoſe that are not intolerable Cavillers, as if the Prophecy had been wholly carried to the Meſſiah, without glancing or touching upon any other Perſon.

5. Theſe things being premiſed, let us return to Iſaiah, and peruſe his whole Prophecy, that we may the more accurately judge thereof, Chap. 53.

1. Who hath believed our report? And to whom is the Arm of the Lord revealed?

2. For he ſhall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: He hath no form nor comelineſs: And when we ſhall ſee him, there is no Beauty that we ſhould deſire him.

3. He is deſpiſed and rejected of Men, a Man of Sorrows, and acquainted with grief; and we hid as it were our Faces from him: He was deſpiſed, and we eſteemed him not.

4. Surely he hath born our Griefs, and carried our Sorrows; yet we did eſteem him ſtricken, ſmitten of God, and afflicted.

5. But he was wounded for our tranſgreſſions, he was bruiſed for our iniquities; the chaſtiſement of our Peace was upon him, and with his ſtripes we are healed

6. All we like Sheep have gone aſtray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.

7. He was oppreſſed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his Mouth: He is brought as a Lamb to the ſlaughter, and as a Sheep before her ſhearers is dumb, ſo he opened not his Mouth.

8. He was taken from Priſon and from Judgment: And who ſhall declare his Generation? For he was cut off out of the Land of the living; for the tranſgreſſions of my People was he ſtricken.

9. And he made his Grave with the Wicked, and with the Rich in his Death, becauſe he had done no Violence, neither was deceit in his Mouth.

10. Yet it pleaſed the Lord to bruiſe him, he hath put him to Grief: When thou ſhalt make his Soul an Offering for Sin, he ſhall ſee his Seed, he ſhall prolong his Days, and the pleaſure of the Lord ſhall proſper in his Hand.

11. He ſhall ſee of the Travel of his Soul, and ſhall be ſatisfied: By his Knowledge ſhall my righteous Servant juſtify many, for he ſhall bear their iniquities.

12. Therefore will I divide him a Portion with the great, and he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong; becauſe he hath poured out his Soul unto Death; and he was numbred with the tranſgreſſors, and he bare the Sin of many, and made interceſſion for the tranſgreſſors.

6. The ancient and wiſeſt of the Jews ever interpreted this Chapter of their Meſſiah. And the later Rabbins being convinced of the clearneſs of the Prophecy, and reſpecting the Authority of thoſe wiſe Interpreters before them, have been ſome of them forced to acknowledge two Meſſiahs, the one the Son of Joſeph, the other of David. The former a ſuffering Meſſiah, the other victorious and triumphant, rather than to deny the evidence of this Prophecy. Out of which there is alſo a ſpecial Tradition ſet down in an ancient Book amongſt the Jews, which is called Peſikta, which further confirms our aſſertion of their interpreting of it concerning the Sufferings of the Meſſiah; How that the Soul of the Meſſiah was ordained (and did gladly accept the condition) to ſuffer, from the beginning of the World. The Tradition runs thus, * That when God created the World, he put forth his Hand under his Throne of Glory, and brought forth the Soul of the Meſſiah and all his Attendants, and ſaid unto him, Wilt thou heal and redeem my Sons after ſix thouſand Years? He anſwered he would. God ſaid again unto him, Wilt thou undergo the chaſtiſements to purge away their iniquities, (according as it is written (it is the Rabbin's own application) Certè morbos noſtros tulit?) The Soul of the Meſſiah anſwered, I will undergo them and that right gladly.

* See Hulſius De Meſſia, pag. 309. and Hornbeck l. 6. c. 1.

7. This

7. This is enough to confirm that it was the Opinion of the Ancient and unprejudiced Jews, That this Prophecy was meant of their Meſſiah: And, as I ſaid, there is not any one Prophecy ſo full of Characteriſticals of his Perſon as this, though not all of the like Clearneſs. But I dare ſay no leſs than theſe nine are in ſome ſort or other included in it. 1. his being rejected by the Jews; 2. And being made a Sacrifice for Sin. 3 His Reſurrection. 4 His Aſcenſion. 5. His Apotheoſis. 6. The excellency of his Doctrine. 7. His Reception by the Gentiles. 8. The Deſtruction of their Superſtition and of that Divine Honour done ro unwarrantable Perſons. 9. And the Eternity of His Kingdom.

8. I ſhall briefly intimate in what Verſes of the Prophecy every of theſe are hinted. His Rejection by his own is plainly intimated verſ. 1, 2 3. His Suffering and being a Sacrifice for Sin, ver. 4, 5, 6, 7, 10. His Aſcenſion and Reſurrection, ver. 8, 10. His Ἀποδέωσις, ver. 9. He made his Grave with the Wicked and with the Rich in his Death, that is, with the wicked rich Men, great Potentates of the Earth who were Rich, Powerful and Injurious, thoſe many Nimrods in the World, whoſe Sepulchres and Monuments were after Magnificent Temples, and themſelves deified as Gods. Becauſe he had done no violence. The Reaſon is incomparably ſolid: For if the Princes and Emperours of the World had Divine Honours done to them after their death, who were but Magnifici Latrones, as one calleth them, and carried on their Affairs either by Force or Fraud; much rather ſhould the Meſſiah, who did no Violence but was ſo faithful and good in all things, be exalted unto this Honour, have Temples built to him, and be worſhipped as a God. The 12 verſe does further confirm this ſenſe, Wherefore I will divide him a portion with the Great, and he ſhall divide the Spoil with the Strong; becauſe he huth poured out his Soul unto Death. Which Spoil cannot be ſo aptly underſtood of any thing as this Ἀποδέωσις, it being mentioned ſo upon theſe Terms, after his pouring out his Soul unto death. One verſe illuſtrates another ſo, that I think there can be no doubt of the ſenſe. The excellency of his Doctrine is underſtood ver. 11. which ſets out the Succeſs of the Goſpel. His Reception by the Gentiles ver. 10, 11. For if the Gentiles had not come in and join'd themſelves to the Church, there had been ſmall ſatisfaction for the Travel of his Soul; the Jews being excluded, or rather they excluding him, The Deſtruction of their Superſtition and unwarrantable Worſhip they did to unworthy Perſons, this is included in their Recepti on of Chriſt. The long Duration of his Kingdom, v. 8. And who ſhall declare his generation? that is, the permanency of his own Royal Perſon, and the ſucceſſion of his Church that will adhere to him for ever.

9. This is a punctual and very reaſonable Account of this Prophecy: But be it how it will, yet this is out of queſtion, that the Suffering and Glorification of the Meſſiah is here Prefigured,, and that if that in the general be not underſtood, there is no good ſenſe to be made of this Prophecy. For to diſtort it to the Affliction of the Jewiſh People, is very harſh, nay impoſſible, as appears from ver. 8. For the Tranſgreſſion of my People was he ſtricken. Wherefore it was not the People of God that are here ſtricken, but ſome Perſon ſtruck by reaſon of them. The moſt tolerable application of the Prophecy is to the Afflictions of Jeremy, of whom Grotius has expounded it, (though not excluding Chriſt) and has made ſenſe of it in ſo many places, that I do not deny but that it may be underſtood of Jeremy in the firſt and leſs-conſiderable meaning; but that withal the Application to Chriſt is not meerly alluſory, but that ſuch things are ſpoke in this Prophecy as cannot but with an exceeding deal of lameneſs and ineptneſs be applied to Jeremy.

10, And truly the very beginning of the Prophecy is too Magnificent by far for the Affairs of Jeremy; Who has believed our Report, &c. for there is nothing ſo incredible in all thoſe Tranſactions concerning him. Again yer. 5. With his Stripes we are healed. It is Ridiculous to attempt an Application of theſe Words to Jeremy. For he was no Sin-Offring to appeaſe the Wrath of God, but what he ſuffered was rather for their Miſchief. And that is as fooliſhly applied to him, ver. 8. And who ſhall declare his Generation? As if it were underſtood of Jeremy's Longevity, than whom far leſs conſiderable Men have lived much longer. So frigid and frivolous is this Interpretation. Neither without violence can that Phraſe, For he was cut off out of the land of the living, (eſpecially conſidering the mention of the Grave in the next verſe) be underſtood otherwiſe than of the inflicting of Death: Which was not Jeremy's Caſe. So verſe 20. When thou ſhalt make his Soul an Offering for Sin: To Interpret that of Jeremy is plainly to dote. For שים ſignifies fies a Sin Offering or Sin it ſelf; but God made Jeremy neither Sin nor Sin-offering for his People. And laſtly, to ſay nothing of the unfitneſs of that Expreſſion, I will divide him a portion with the great, and he ſhall divide the Spoil with the Strong, to be applied to that petty buſineſs of Jeremy, chap. 40. v. 5. Where the Captain of the Guards is ſaid to give him Victuals and a Reward, אֲרֻחָה וּמַשְׂאֵת, that is, he accomodated him for his Journey (the word אֲרֻחָה ſhewing what the whole gift was, only a Viaticum; and it had been the greateſt reproach imaginable for the Prophet to have received any thing more, to have made himſelf Rich with the Spoils of his own Country-Men) I ſay, to ſay nothing of the unfitneſs of that expreſſion to be applied to ſo ſmall a matter; the Words following are ſo full and home, becauſe he hath poured out his Soul unto Death, that they cannot ſignify leſs than an actual Dying; nor is there any Example that they ſignify otherwiſe. And therefore the diviſion of the Spoil with the Strong muſt be after Death, and denote his Apotheoſis. It is plain therefore as well out of the Confeſſion of the Rabbins themſelves, as out of the Words of the Prophecy, that it is not meerly an Alluſory Prefiguration of the Meſſiah, but a down-right Deſcription of him in ſuch Circumſtances as are incompetible to any beſides him, and therefore, as I ſaid, is as valid as if it had all been meant of him alone.

But becauſe all the Characters of him here included are not ſo full and clear as in other places, and thoſe that are the cleareſt are of ſo much Importance, that it will not be any loſs of labour to add other confirmations to them, I ſhall evidence every one of them more fully from other Prophecies.

CHAP. VIII.

1. Further Proofs out of the Prophets, that the Meſſiah was to be a Sacrifice for Sin. 2. That he was to Riſe from the Dead. 3. That he was to aſcend into Heaven. 4. That he was to be worſhipped as God. 5. That he was to be an eminent Light to the Nations; 6. And welcomely received by them. What is meant by His Reſt ſhall be glorious. 7. That he was to aboliſh the Superſtition of the Gentiles. 8. And that his Kingdom ſhall have no end. 9. That all theſe Characters are competible to Jeſus whom we Worſhip, and to him only.

1. THE firſt mark of the Meſſiah was his Rejection, that he ſhould be rejected of the Jews; but thoſe places that foretel his Killing, more ſtrongly implying his Rejection, we need add nothing particular thereof. That the Meſſiah was to be ſlain, and be a Sacrifice for Sin, beſides that full and copious Prediction of Iſaiah, is clear out of Daniel, who ſaith that after Sixty Nine Weeks the Meſſiah was to be cut off; and then adding afterwards that in the half of the Seventieth Week he ſhould make the Sacrifice to ceaſe, it is plain that his Death and ceaſing of the Jewiſh Sacrifices and Oblations were in one Week, and that thereupon his Death was a Sacrifice, whereby thoſe Judaical Oblations were antiquated. For it is well known that the Temple and their Oblations continued about Forty Years after the Paſſion of Chriſt: So that it cannot be underſtood of the outward Deſtruction of the Temple, and Prohibition of Sacrifices; and therefore it muſt be underſtood of the nulling of the Validity and Authority of them, their Law of Sacrificing being abrogated by that tranſcendent Sacrifice of the Body of our Bleſſed Saviour upon the Croſs. For there is nothing elſe that can be imagined to ceaſe or take away the Judaical Sacrifices in the midſt of the laſt Week but that. To theſe we might add Pſalm. 22. and Zachar. 12. 10. but what has been alledged already is more than enough.

2. Let us now rather ſee what has been foretold of his Reſurrection from the dead. And in my Mind that is a very clear Prediction thereof Pſalm 16. v. 8. where David being tranſported in his Spirit by a Divine Power, writes higher Matters than are competible to any but the true David, the Meſſiah himſelf. I have ſet the Lord always before me; becauſe he is at my Right Hand, I ſhall not be moved. Therefore my Heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth; my Fleſh alſo ſhall reſt in Hope: For thou wilt not leave my Soul in Hell, neither wilt thou ſuffer thy holy one to ſee corruption. Thou wilt ſhew me the path of Life: In thy Preſence is fulneſs of Joy, and at thy Right Hand there are Pleaſures for evermore.

This is ſo natural and lively a deſcription of one raiſed out of the Grave before he corrupt there, and aſcending into the Preſence of God in the Heavens to enjoy Eternal Life, that nothing can be more expreſs. But David was never raiſed out of the Grave himſelf, but his Fleſh ſaw corruption. Wherefore it appears that it was a Prophecy of ſome other, viz. the Meſſiah, of whom David was a Type.

3. The Aſcenſion of the Meſſiah is lively prefigured Pſalm 68. The Chariots of God are Twenty Thouſand, even Thouſands of Angels: The Lord is amongſt them as in Sinai, in the holy place. Thou haſt aſcended on high, thou haſt led * Captivity Captive: Thou haſt received Gifts for Men, for the Rebellious alſo, that the Lord God may dwell among them.

* See Book 1. Chaps 9. Sect. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

If this be applied unto Chriſt, the ſenſe is eaſie, eſpecially if you take notice how the Lord was amongſt them in Sinai, that is, there was one chief Angel, whom ſome would have to be Chriſt, which ſuſtained the Perſon of God, who might have the name of Adonai, as Chriſt alſo has, and is ſtiled the Angel of the Covenant, Malachi 3. 1. In lieu of him is here the Meſſiah himſelf attended with many Squadrons of Angels, and receiving Gifts of his Father to communicate to the World, that God might dwell amongſt them, that they might be brought in to be of his Church.

4. This Prophecy alſo plainly points at his Ἀποδείξις. but there are alſo other places that make it ſtill more clear, as Pſalm 110. The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, Sit thou at my Right Hand, till I make thine Enemies thy Footſtool: And then ver. 4 The Lord has Sworn, and will not Repent, Thou art a Prieſt for ever, after the order of Melchiſedeck. The Jews themſelves of Old acknowledged this Pſalm to be a Prophecy of the Meſſiah; and the firſt and fourth verſes are ſuch that they can bear no other Senſe, but that the Meſſiah was to be greater than David, and to be a King, Prieſt and Interceſſor at the Right Hand of God for ever.

Alſo Pſalm 45. 6. Thy Throne, O God, is for ever and ever; the Scepter of thy Kingdom is a right Scepter: Thou loveſt Righteouſneſs, and hateſt Iniquity; therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the Oil of Gladneſs above thy fellows. Him that the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks of here he calls אלהים, and it cannot ſignifie an ordinary King or Magiſtrate, becauſe he ſays, his Throne is עד ועלם, that is, for ever, abſolutely, as R. Moſes Ægyptius expounds that Phraſe. Wherefore moſt juſtly does the Chaldee Paraphraſt make this Pſalm a Prophecy of the Meſſiah, whoſe Ἀποδείξις or Divinity is plainly expreſſed in theſe verſes I have recited.

I will add one place more out of the Prophet Iſaiah Chap. 9. v. 6. For unto us a Child is Born, unto us a Son is given, and the Government ſhall be upon his ſhoulder; and his Name ſhall be called Wonderful, Counſellor, The mighty God, The everlaſting Father, the Prince of Peace: Of the Increaſe of his Government and Peace there ſhall be no end, upon the Throne of David and upon his Kingdom, to Order and to Eſtabliſh it with Judgment and with Juſtice, from henceforth and for ever: The Zeal of the Lord of Hoſts will do this. I do not doubt but that this Prophecy is in ſome ſort referrable alſo to Hezekiah, and hits upon him firſt, but the main ſcope of it is the Meſſiah; and that therein his Divinity and the Eternity of his Kingdom is ſet out, both the Teſtimony of the Chaldee Paraphraſt, the Tranſlation of the Septuagint, and the expreſſions in the Prophecy according to the Hebrew Text is evidence enough. For they Tranſlate ויקרא שמו פלא יועץ אל גבור אבי עד שר שלום and his Name ſhall be called Wonderful, Counſellor, The mighty God, The everlaſting Father, the Prince of Peace, after this manner, Καὶ καλεῖται τὸ ὄνομα αὐτῦ μεγάλης βελῆς ἄγγελος θαυμαστὸς σύμβελος, Θεὸς ἰσχυρὸς, ἐξουσιαστὴς, ἄρχων εἰρήνης, πατὴρ τοῦ μέλλονος αἰῶνος. As if they meant it of העולא הבם Which expoſition cannot poſſibly be ſenſe, if referred to Hezekiah, but agrees very well with the Ἀποδείξις of the Meſſiah. Beſides the Engliſh Tranſlation, Of the increaſe of his Government and Peace there ſhall be no end, is ſo exactly according to the Hebrew, that it is plain all the expreſſions are not competible to Hezekiah; and Grotius himſelf, who loves to ſtretch the ſenſe of every particular Expreſſion of theſe kind of Prophecies to the Perſon they firſt aim at, yet he acknowledges ingeniouſly, that they are more fitly and more plainly applicable to the Meſſiah. Which to any indifferent Man is ſatisfaction enough that they were meant of him; eſpecially if he conſider that the Ancient Jews, who may well be thought to underſtand the Genius of their own Prophets the beſt, have long ſince, before this inveterate Conteſt betwixt the Jew and Chriſtian, interpreted them ſo.

5. The

5. The Sixth Character of his Perſon is the Excellency of his Doctrine. This is intimated, as I ſaid, Iſaiah 53. By his knowledge ſhall my Righteous Servant juſtifie many; but is more fully expreſs'd Malachy 3. The Lord whom ye Seek ſhall ſuddenly come into his Temple, (which might have been produced as another Prophecy of the Divinity of the Meſſiah) even the Meſſenger of the Covenant, whom you delight in; behold, he ſhall come, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts. But who may abide the day of his coming? And who ſhall ſtand when he appeareth? For he is like a Refiner's Fire, and like Fuller's Sope: And he ſhall ſit as a Refiner and Purifier of Silver; and he ſhall Purify the Sons of Levi, and purge them as Gold and Silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an Offering in Righteouſneſs. Whereby is plainly denoted the Purity and Sanctity of that Law and Spirit that the Meſſiah was to communicate to his ſerious followers, that he would throughly purify them and purge them from their Hypocriſie and Sinfulneſs.

And again, Iſaiah 42. Behold my Servant whom I uphold, mine Elect in whom my Soul delighteth: I have put my Spirit upon him, he ſhall bring forth Judgment to the Gentiles. He ſhall not cry, nor lift up, nor cauſe his Voice to be heard in the Street. A bruiſed Reed ſhall he not break, and the ſmoaking Flax ſhall he not quench; he ſhall bring forth Judgment unto Truth. He ſhall not fail, nor be diſcouraged, till he have ſet Judgment in the Earth: And the Iſles ſhall wait for his Law. Thus ſaith God the Lord, he that created the Heavens and ſtretched them out, he that ſpread forth the Earth and that which cometh out of it, he that giveth Breath unto the People upon it, and Spirit to them that walk therein; I the Lord have called thee in Righteouſneſs, and will hold thy Hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a Covenant unto the People, for a light to the Gentiles: To open the Blind Eyes, to bring out the Priſoners from the Priſon, and them that ſit in darkneſs out of the Priſon-Houſe.

And Iſaiah 49. Liſten, O Iſles, unto me, and hearken ye People from far. The Lord hath called me from the Womb, from the Bowels of my Mother hath he made mention of my Name. And he hath made my Mouth like a ſharp Sword, in the ſhadow of his Hand hath he hid me, and made me a poliſhed ſhaft, in his quiver hath he hid me. And ver. 5. And now ſaith the Lord that formed me from the Womb to be his Servant, to bring Jacob again unto him: Though Iſrael be not gathered, yet ſhall I be Glorious in the Eyes of the Lord, and my God ſhall be my ſtrength. And he ſaid, It is a light thing that thou ſhouldeſt be my Servant to raiſe up the tribes of Jacob, and to reſtore the deſolations of Iſrael; I will alſo give thee for a Light to the Gentiles, that thou mayeſt be my Salvation to the end of the Earth. My Salvation, ישועתי, with an alluſion to the very name of Iſaiah ישעיה, which ſignifies, The Salvation of the Lord: Which ſeems to be alluded to in the firſt verſe alſo, from the Bowels of my Mother hath he made mention of my Name. Which is ſo near a-kin to the Name of Jeſus, that the Meſſiah may ſeem to be prefigured in the very Name of the Prophet Iſaiah as well as in his Perſon: As it muſt be confeſſed that both theſe two Prophecies do in ſome meaſure belong to Iſaiah himſelf firſt. But conſidering how the more excellent Kings and Prophets were to be Types of the Meſſiah, and that the Language is ſo very high, it cannot be doubted but that in theſe Divine raptures and exaltations of Spirit, the Mind and Tongue of Iſaiah was carried above what was competible to his own Perſon, and therefore muſt naturally be transferred to the Meſſiah; it being plain from other places, that there was at laſt to come ſome one tranſcendent Prince and Prophet anointed in an higher manner and meaſure than any other. Which the Jews expected, and called their Meſſiah. And therefore it is therewithal manifeſt, that their Meſſiah was to be an eximious Teacher, Prophet or Law-giver.

6. The ſeventh Character is that he ſhould be very welcomely received of the Nations; that which theſe laſt Prophecies alſo intimate. But I ſhall add others alſo. To this Senſe the Jews themſelves interpreted that Ancient Prophecy of Jacob ולו יקהת עמים to him ſhall be the gathering together of the Nations; the Seventy, αὐτὸς προσδοκία ἐθνῶν, and he is the hope or expectation of the Nations. And there is yet one, more Ancient than that, which implies it; viz. the Promiſe to Abraham that he ſhould be a Father of many Nations, and that in his Seed all * Nations of the Earth ſhould be Bleſſed. Of which other Prophecies alſo witneſs, Iſa. 2. 2. And it ſhall come to paſs in the laſt Days, that the Mountain of the Lord's Houſe ſhall be eſtabliſhed in the top of the Mountains, and ſhall be exalted above the Hills; and all Nations ſhall flow unto it. The Jewiſh Doctors themſelves acknowledge this to be underſtood of the times of the Meſſiah. And Chap. 11. 10. And in that Day there ſhall be a Root of Jeſſe which ſhall ſtand for an enſign of the People: To it ſhall the Gentiles ſeek, and his reſt ſhall be Glo- rious; or, Him ſhall the Gentiles ſeek, viz. In a Devotional way, ſhall pray unto him and Sing Praiſes unto him. For דרש is often uſed in that Senſe, ζητῆσαι τὸν Κύριον. And his reſt ſhall be Glorious, & ſepulcrum ejus erit glorioſum; ſo ſome turn it, and truly not raſhly nor without cauſe. For נוח in ſeveral places ſignifies the reſt of the Dead, Job 3. ver. 17. ושם ינוחו יגיעי כוח; which the Seventy render, ἐκεῖ ἀνεπάυσαντο κεκοπιακότες τῷ σώματι: It is in Job's deſcription of the State of the Dead. Alſo Proverbs 21. 16. בקהל רפאים ינוח, He ſhall reſt in the Congregation of the Dead, ἐν συναγωγῇ γιγάντων ἀναπαύσεται· but νεκρῶν is better; for רפאים and מתים are all one, as appears, Pſalm 88. ver. 11. Laſtly, Pſalm 23. ver. 2. מי מנוחות Aqua requietum, implies ſuch a reſt as Sleep, the Brother of Death. For there is nothing more prone than to lye and ſleep on the ſhady Banks of a River. Wherefore מנוחתו כבוד may very well ſignify Dormitorium ejus, or Sepulcrum ejus, erit glorioſum, that is, That it ſhall at laſt be exalted to the nature of a Temple, he ſhall have Divine Honour done unto him, and the Gentiles ſhall pray unto him and adore him: As is intimated in the words immediately going before. But this was more than we needed to charge this Prophecy with, tho' it be probable enough it is contained in it.

* Geneſ. chap. 12. ver. 3. and chap. 18. v. 18. alſo chap. 22. 18.

There are ſundry other places that ſerve for the proof of this ſeventh Character: But becauſe it is ſufficiently enough demonſtrated already, and little or no controverſy made of it, I paſs to the eighth.

7. Which is the Meſſiah his aboliſhing the Superſtition of the Gentiles, that is, ſuch Worſhip as they had no Divine Warrant for, they being ſo groſly miſtaken in the Object. This is ſo plainly included in the two laſt Characters, that I need add no other proof. But if there were need, that in the 2, and 110 Pſalms might further confirm it. Where he is conſtituted a new King and Prieſt; and therefore implies new Religion and Laws, and ſuch as the Heathen were Ignorant of before; but ſuch as they muſt obey upon pain of high diſpleaſure.

8. The laſt Character is the long Duration of the Meſſiah's Kingdom, Pſalm 89. v. 35. Once have I ſworn by my Holineſs, that I will not lye unto David. His Seed ſhall endure for ever, and his Throne as the Sun before me. It ſhall be eſtabliſhed for ever as the Moon, and as a faithful witneſs in Heaven. Alſo Pſalm 45. ver. 6. Thy Throne, O God, is for ever and ever, the Scepter of thy Kingdom is a right Scepter, &c. Which Prophecy makes good the former, and ſhews how it is to be fulfilled in the ἀποθέωσις of the Meſſiah. See alſo Pſalm 72. which the Hebrew Rabbins do acknowledge to be underſtood of the Meſſiah. Alſo Daniel 2. 44. and 7. 27. This Character is ſo clear, that I need not inſiſt any longer upon it.

9. Theſe are the main Marks and Characters of the Perſon of the Meſſiah, by which we may infallibly find out who he is. And who indeed can he be according to theſe Characters, but Jeſus whom we Chriſtians worſhip? For what Competitor for the Meſſiahſhip but he, was, being a Jew, rejected by the Jews and Crucified? Who is it that aroſe from the Dead and aſcended into Heaven but he? Who ever delivered ſo pure Doctrine to purge the World from wickedneſs and to enlighten the Nations as he? It is he therefore whom the Nations waited for, and have received: It is he for whoſe ſake they parted with their old vain and impure Superſtitions, by whoſe Doctrine they are brought to the Knowledge of the Eternal God: And laſtly, it is he whom for his bitter ſufferings God has exalted above Angels and Arch-Angels, and all the Hoſt of Heaven, and has ſet him at his own Right Hand to be a Prieſt and King over his Church for ever.

CHAP. IX.

1. The peculiar Use of Arguments drawn from the Prophecies of the Old Testament for the convincing the Atheist and Melancholist. 2. An Application of the Prophecies to the known Events for the conviction of the Truth of our Religion. 3. That there is no likelihood at all but that the Priesthood of Christ will last as long as the Generations of Men upon Earth. 4. The Conclusion of what has been urged hitherto. 5. That Christ was no fictitious Person, proved out of the History of Heathen Writers, as out of Pliny. 6. And Tacitus. 7. As also Lucian. 8. And Suetonius. 9. That the Testimony out of Josephus is suppositious, and the reasons why he was silent concerning Christ. 10. Julian's purpose of rebuilding the Temple at Jerusalem, with the strange success thereof, out of Ammianus Marcellinus.

1. WE have now made a very considerable Progress in the proof of the Reality of Christian Religion, That it is more than a mere Idea. Let us here make a stand and breath a while, and contemplate with our selves the peculiar Use and Advantage of this present Argument, for the stopping the Mouth as well of the bold Atheist as the suspicious Melancholist. For indeed it is too true, and every good Man could wish it were not so, that the latter Ages of the Church have not dealt faithfully with the World, but beyond the bounds of all Modesty and Conscience obtruded upon the People fond Legends and forged Miracles, as if they were given up into their Hands only to be imposed upon and abused. Which consideration does cast some Men into an unchangeable misbelief of the whole Business of Christianity, and makes them look upon it all as a mere Fiction and Fable. For they measure the Genius of the Primitive Church by what they see practised before their Eyes now-adays, and look upon the whole Tribe of the Priests as Impostors. Which censure tho' it be most unjust, yet it will be very hard to convince these Censurers but that it is very true, unless by some such Argument as now lies before us, viz. That the Ancient Prophecies in the Old Testament could not be forged by the Christian Priests, and that the Jews would not forge them against themselves. Nay they that know any thing of the Jews, will acknowledge them so religiously addicted to the Letter of these holy Writings, that knowingly and wittingly they durst not alter a tittle. Wherefore all those Prophecies we have alledged are real, and we have made good they clearly foretell, That the Messiah should come many hundred Years ago; therefore it is plain he is come. See chap. 1. sect. 4.

2. I therefore demand of either the Prophane or Melancholick, who is this Messiah, if Jesus be not he. Nay I appeal to them if the very Characters of his Person be not certainly to be known by their own Senses agreeably to the Prediction of those infallible Oracles. The Prophecies have said, He should be rejected of his own. Ask the Jews, they will acknowledge they have rejected him. The Prophecies foretold he should be cut off, be killed by them. Ask the Jews, they will not deny but that they did condemn him to Death, but deservedly, as they contend for their own excuse. The Prophecies foretold his Doctrine should enlighten the Gentiles. Ask thine own Eyes if the Gentiles be not turned from their vain and unwarrantable Superstitions to the knowledge of that one God that made Heaven and Earth, and of Jesus Christ whom he hath sent. The Prophecies prefigured his rising from the Dead and his ascending up into Heaven: And ask thine own Conscience if thou dost not believe that this was always the belief of the Christians; and consult with thine own Reason, if it had been possible that the Death of Christ could have drawn all the World after him, if it had not been seconded with his Resurrection. Certainly those that believed on him before, had deserted him after his Death, if he had not risen from the Dead: But of that more fully hereafter. Lastly, the Prophecies foretold that the Messiah should be worshipped as a Divine Person, and receive Divine Honour, and that God would make him a King and Priest for ever. Ask thine own Senses, if thou dost not find it so. How many thousand Temples are there Consecrated to his Name? In how many Nations and Kingdoms of the Earth is he honoured as the Son of God; Prayers offered unto him, and in his Name, and Praises Sung unto him with all Solemnity and Devotion imaginable?

3. And

3. And for the Duration of this his Royal Prieſthood, it has continued already a fair time, about one thouſand ſix hundred Years, as may be infallibly gathered out of Hiſtory. And as appears from theſe Ancient Prophecies of the Jews, he is a Perſon ſo Holy and Sacred, and upon whom the Eyes of Providence have been in ſuch a wonderful manner fixed, infinitely above any Perſon that ever was yet in the World, that it is impoſſible that the Teſtimonies given of him ſhould ever be obliterated by Succeſſion of Time; nothing but an univerſal Conflagration being able to make an end of all the Copies of the Jewiſh Oracles, or of the Chriſtian Goſpel. And therefore it is a thing beyond all Likelihood, nay I may ſay all Poſſibility, that this Honour and Kingdom of Chriſt upon Earth ſhould ever ceaſe till the Earth ceaſe to have Inhabitants. I do not deny but the inſupportable Wickedneſs of the Chriſtians, their Faithleſsneſs, Ferocity and Uncleanneſs, their accurſed Hypocriſy and open Prophaneneſs, may make this Kingdom of Chriſt very itinerant and to paſs from one Nation to another People; but it will ever be the Religion of ſome People and Nation or other: Or if not, there will at leaſt be ſincere Profeſſors of his Name in ſeveral Nations and Kingdoms, as in the Perſecuted Eſtate of the Primitive Church; which will certainly leaven the World again with the Chriſtian Religion, with more Glory and Purity than ever, unleſs a fiery Vengeance from Heaven ſtep betwixt, and Chriſt come again viſibly to Judgment in the Clouds.

4. The thing therefore that I ſay is this, That tho' a Man ſhould be ſo cautious forſooth and ſo crafty, as that becauſe theſe latter Ages have been guilty of ſo much Falſeneſs and Forgery, he will believe no Records of the Church at all, no not ſo much as the Holy Goſpels and the Epiſtles of the Apoſtles; yet he may have ſufficient aſſurance from the Prophecies of the Old Teſtament (which, unleſs he will be egregiouſly fooliſh and unreaſonable, he cannot have any pretence to ſuſpect as ſuppoſititious) That Chriſtianity is no Fiction, but a real Truth; if he will but compare the Prophecies with the Events of things as they lye before his Eyes, and with the free Confeſſion of thoſe that are open Enemies to the Chriſtian Religion, I mean the Nation of the Jews.

5. For the firmer belief whereof, he may alſo help himſelf ſomething from thoſe ſtrinklings that are found in prophane Writers. For if thou wilt be ſo prodigiouſly Melancholick and Suſpicious as to doubt whether there ever were ſuch a Man as Chriſt, the very Hiſtory of the Heathens may aſſure thee thereof; they mentioning theſe things ſo timely, as that there could be no error about the exiſtence of the Perſon they ſpeak of whether he ever were in the World or no. For Pliny, Tacitus, Lucian and Suetonius, all of them flouriſhed ſo near the time of the taking of the City of Jeruſalem, (viz. Pliny about twenty, Tacitus thirty, Lucian and Suetonius about forty or fifty Years after) that they could not but have certain information whether he was a fictitious Perſon or real, from the Captive Jews, who would not have failed to ſtifle a Religion they hated ſo, if it had been but a Figment at the bottom. Pliny in his Epiſtle to Trajan finds the Chriſtian Profeſſors in good earneſt, even to Death: Whoſe dangerous and miſchievous error he might eaſily have confuted, if the Hiſtory of Chriſt had been but a Romance; but he found them immoveable, nor could he help it. Which conſtancy of theirs he calls pervicaciam & inflexibilem obſtinationem, a Pervicacity and inflexible Obſtinacy. Which is ridiculous to think can befall Men in a mere Fiction within the time that ſearch may eaſily diſcover to be falſe, and that they ſhould ſtand out to the expoſing of themſelves to Death and Torture. He writes in the ſame Epiſtle that he put two Maid-ſervants on the Rack, Sed nihil aliud inveni quàm ſuperſtitionem pravam & immodicam, But I found nothing elſe (ſaith he) but a perverſe and immoderate Superſtition. And of thoſe that fear made deſiſt from the Profeſſion of their Religion, Affirmabant hanc fuiſſe ſummam vel culpæ ſuæ vel erroris, quod eſſent ſoliti ſtato die ante lucem convenire, carmenque Chriſto quaſi Deo dicere, &c. They affirmed that this was the ſum of their either fault or error, that they were wont on a ſet Day to meet together early in the Morning before Day-break, and Sing an Hymn to Chriſt as to a God. Which is a ſign that betimes the Chriſtians followed Chriſt, not as a mere eminent Moraliſt, that gave excellent Precepts of Life, better than ever any did, but that they held his Perſon truly Divine, and adorable for ſome wonderful conſiderations or other.

6. But this Inquiſition and Bloody Perſecution of the Chriſtians began higher than Trajan's time, to wit in Nero's, who, to ſmother that abominable Act of his in firing the City of Rome, did moſt ſalvagely puniſh the Chriſtians, as if they had been the Authors of it. Tacit. Annal. Lib. 15. Ergo abolendo rumori Nero ſubdidit reos, & quaſitiſſimis pœnis affecit, quos per flagitia inviſos vulgus Chriſtianos appellabat. Auctor nominis nominis ejus Chriſtus, qui Tiberio imperitante, per Procuratorem Pontium Pilatum ſupplicio affectus erat. Repreſſaque in præſens exitiabilis ſuperſtitio rurſus erumpebat, non modò per Judæam originem ejus mali, ſed per Urbem etiam, quò cuncta undiq; atrocia aut pudenda confluunt celebranturque. Igitur primò correpti qui fatebantur; deinde indicio eorum multitudo ingens, haud perinde in crimine incendii quàm odio humani generis, convicti ſunt. Et pereuntibus addita ludibria, ut ferarum tergis contecti laniatu canum interirent, aut crucibus affixi, aut flammandi; atque, ubi defeciſſet dies, in uſum nocturni luminis urerentur. Wherefore Nero to ſuppreſs the rumour of his own vile act, by ſuborning falſe Witneſſes got thoſe to be accuſed who being hateful for their wickedneſs were commonly called Chriſtians, and puniſhed them with exquiſite tortures. The Author of that Sect was one Chriſtus, who in the Reign of Tiberius was put to Death by Pontius Pilate the Deputy. Which damnable ſuperſtition, ſuppreſſed for a time, broke out afreſh, not only in Judæa the firſt ſource of that Miſchief, but alſo in the City of Rome, whither all villainous and ſhameful things flow from all parts, and are held in great eſteem. Wherefore they were firſt laid hold of that confeſſed themſelves Chriſtians; afterward by their diſcovery a huge multitude were condemned, not ſo much for being guilty of firing the City, as that they were hated of all mankind. They added alſo reproaches to their Death, Clothing ſome of them with the Skins of Beaſts, to be worried by Dogs; others were crucified, and others were burnt after Day-light, to ſerve in ſtead of Lynks or Torches. This Perſecution was not thirty Years after the Paſſion of Chriſt. I appeal now to any one, if he can think it poſſible that theſe that lived ſo near to that time when Chriſt was ſaid to be Crucified, that they might make exact inquiry into the matter; I appeal to him, if he can think it poſſible they could expoſe their Lives and Fortunes to the hatred and cruelty of the Heathen, if they were not moſt certain that there was ſuch a Man that was Crucified at Jeruſalem: And demand further, he dying ſo ignominious a Death, whether it be again poſſible that there ſhould not be ſome extraordinary thing in the Perſon of Chriſt, to make them adhere to him ſo after his Death, with the common hatred of all Men and hazard of their Lives.

7. And therefore Lucian, in his Peregrinus, does rightly term Chriſt ὁ μέγαν ἐκεῖνον ἄνθρωπον ὁ ἐν Παλαισίνῃ ἀνασκολοπισθέντα, that great Man crucified in Palæſtine. For at leaſt he ſpoke the Opinion of Chriſt's Followers, if not his own. And the Doctrine of the Chriſtians he calls θαυμασίων σοφίαν τῶν Χριστιανῶν, the marvellous Wiſdom of the Chriſtians, whom he affirms to renounce the Heathen Deities, ὁ ἀνασκολοπισθέντα ἐκεῖνον σοφιστὴν αὐτῶν προσκυνεῖν, and to Worſhip their Crucified Sophiſt, or their Crucified Maſter and Teacher. And in his Philopatris, if it be his (and if it be not, it is not much material, being it muſt be of ſome Writer coetaneous to him) there are ſome inklings of very high matters in Chriſtianity, as of the Trinity, of Life Eternal, of the Galilean's Aſcenſion into the third Heaven; εἰς τρίτον οὐρανὸν ἀεροβατοῦσας, ὅπου τὰ κάλλιστα ἐκμεμαθηκὼς ὁ θεὸς ἡμᾶς ἀνεκαίνισεν, walking up the Air into the third Heaven, where having learned moſt excellent matters he renewed us by Water. Which is likely to be ſome intimation of the Aſcenſion of Chriſt into Heaven, or elſe of Paul's being rapt up into the third Heaven, tho' the Narration thereof be depraved. And Critias in that Dialogue ſwears νὴ τὸν υἱὸν τὸν ἐκ πατρός, By the Son that is from the Father. And he and Triephon jearing Divine Providence betwixt them, as being ſet out by the Religious, as if things were written in Heaven, Critias asketh Triephon if all things, even the Affairs of the Scythians, were written there alſo. To which Triephon anſwereth, πάντα, εἰ τύχοι γε Χρηστὸς ἐν ἔθνεσιν, all things, if ſo be CHRESTUS be alſo amongſt the Nations. All which Paſſages intimate what a venerable Opinion there was ſpread in the World concerning Chriſt, and that therefore there was ſome extraordinary worth and excellency in his Perſon. Which concluſion I ſhall make uſe of in its due place.

8. In the mean time I ſhall only add that mention made of him in Suetonius, in Vita Claudii, Cap. 25. where he is called Chreſtus, as before in Lucian's Philopatris he was called Χρηστός. Judæos, impulſore Chreſto, aſſiduè tumultuantes Româ expulit, He expelled the Jews out of Rome, they making perpetual tumults by the inſtigation of Chreſtus. Which is the higheſt Record of our Religion that is to be found in prophane Writers; and no marvel, it reaching ſo near the Paſſion of Chriſt from whence our Religion commenced. For the Reign of Claudius began about ſeven Years after Chriſt's Paſſion, and ended within thirteen Years. And that Chriſt ſuffered under Pontius Pilate, Tacitus himſelf gives witneſs in what we have above recited. But a more accurate Chronology of theſe things cannot be expected but from them who are more nearly concerned, viz. the Chriſtians themſelves.

9. Joſephus

9. Josephus his Testimony had reached higher in time, if we could be assured that what he seemed to write of Christ was not foisted in, by some thankless fraud of unconscionable Superstitionists, or short-sighted Politicians, that could not see that the solidity of Christian Religion wanted not their Lies and Forgeries to sustain it. But, for my own part, I think it very unlikely that Josephus, being no Christian, should write at that rate concerning Christ as he does, besides other Reasons which might be alledged. And therefore for the greater Compendium, I shall be content to acknowledge that what is found in his Antiquities concerning the Crucified Jesus is supposititious, and none of his own. Which Omission I impute partly to his Prudence and partly to his Integrity. For certainly he knowing the Affairs of Jesus so well as he did, could not in his own Judgment and Conscience say any thing ill of him, more than that he was Crucified; which was no fault in him, but in his unjust and cruel Murderers: And simply to have nominated him in his History, without saying any thing of him, had been a frigid, lame business; and to have spoke well of him, had been ungrateful both to his own Country-men the Jews and also to the Pagans. Wherefore it being against his Conscience to vilify him and revile him and his Followers, so as the Heathen Historians have done; and against his Prudence, being not convinced that he was the very Messiah, to declare how excellent a Person he was; it remains that in all likelihood he would play the Politician so far as not to speak of him at all.

Antiquitat. Judaic. l. 10. c. 4.

10. We shall produce but one Testimony more out of Pagan Historians, and that is out of Ammianus Marcellinus, concerning Julian's purpose to re-edify the Temple of Jerusalem, that the Jews might Sacrifice there according to their Ancient manner. Which was looked upon to be done more out of envy to the Christians, than in Love to the Jews; and in an affront to that universal and inestimable Sacrifice of the Body of Christ once offered upon the Cross, which was to cease the Jewish Sacrifices, and to put an end to the exercise of the Mosaical Ceremonies. Ruffinus and Sozomen declare the matter more at large; but we shall contain our selves within the recital of what Ammianus has written, (lib. 23. near the beginning) who being an Heathen, puts as fair a gloss upon the Emperor's Action as he could; but the Event is plainly enough set down, and such as does much confirm the Truth of Christian Religion. Julianus imperii sui memoriam magnitudine operum gestiens propagare, ambitiosum quondam apud Jerosolymam templum (quod post multa & internecina certamina obsidente Vespasiano, postea & Tito, ægrè est expugnatum,) instaurare sumptibus cogitabat immodicis; negotiumque maturandum Alipio dederat Antiochiensi, qui olim Britannias curaverat pro Præfectis. Cum itaque rei idem fortiter instaret Alipius, juvaretque Provinciæ Rector; metuendi globi flammarum prope fundamenta crebris assultibus erumpentes fecere locum, exustis aliquoties operantibus, inaccessum; hocque modo elemento destinatius repellente, cessavit inceptum. Julian having a mind to propagate the memory of his Reign by the greatness of his Acts, purposed to rebuild with immense charges that once-stately Temple at Jerusalem (which with much ado after many a bloody Battel was taken, after Siege laid to it by Vespasian first, and then by Titus.) This business was committed to the care of one Alipius of Antioch, who had once been Deputy of Britain for the Governors. Wherefore when this same Alipius did stoutly urge on the work, and the Governor of the Province gave him his assistance; dreadful Balls of Fire breaking out near the Foundation with frequent Sallies, burning up sundry times the Workmen, made the place inaccessible. And thus the Enterprise ceased, the Element directed by a peremptory destiny beating them off from their Work.

CHAP.

CHAP. X.

1. Further Proofs that both Jews and Pagans acknowledge the Reality of the Person of Christ and his doing of Miracles. 2. The force of these Allegations added to the Prophecies of the Time of Christ's coming and the Characters of his Person. 3. That the Characters of his Person are still more exact, but not to be insisted upon till the proof of the Truth of the History of the Gospel. 4, 5. That the transcendent Eminency of Christ's Person is demonstrable from what has already been alledged and from his Resurrection, without recourse to the Gospels. From whence it necessarily follows, That his Life was writ. 6. That the Life of Christ was writ timely, while Eye-witnesses were alive, proved by a very forcible Demonstration. 7. That Eternal Happiness through Christ was the hope of the First Christians, proved out of Lucian and S. Paul ; and of a peculiar Self-Evidence of Truth in his Epistles. 8. That the first and most early meaning of Christianity is comprised in those Writings. 9. That Eternal Salvation depending upon the Knowledge of Christ, it was impossible but that the Apostles should take care betimes that the Miracles of Christ should be recorded. 10. That the Apostles could not fail to have the Life of Christ written, to prevent the erroneous attempts of the Pragmatical, to satisfy the Importunity of Believers, or in Obedience to Divine Instigation. 11. That it is as incredible that the Apostles neglected the writing of the Life of Christ, as that a wise Man in the Affairs of the World should neglect the writing of his Will when he had opportunity of doing it. 12. That, it being so incredible but that the Life of Christ should be writ, and there being found Writings that comprize the same, it naturally follows, That they are they.

1. THese Testimonies out of Heathen Writers may suffice to take off that fond and groundless suspicion of the whole History of Christ being a mere Allegory or Fiction. A thing that the greatest Enemies thereof had never the face to object to the Christians, neither Jews nor Pagans, nor our modern Atheists, especially the more nasute sort of them, such as Pomponatius and Vaninus, who do not only acknowledge Christ's Person, but his Miracles; only forsooth they refer them to the influence of the Stars and Celestial Intelligences, of which I shall speak in its proper place. The Jews also acknowledge his Miracles, but add that he was a Magician: And Julian himself and Celsus, who wrote against the Christians, never had the face to deny but that Jesus of Nazareth did once live in Judæa, and did strange things; tho' the one revolted from him, and the other never believed in him. And Hierocles, that highly-moral Pagan, does not deny the Miracles of Christ, nor the excellency of his Person, but contends that Apollonius Tyaneus may at least come into Competition with him. And to say nothing of Tiberius his purpose of having him entred into the Catalogue of the Roman Deities by a decree of the Senate, because the report thereof is from Parties, viz. From Eusebius out of Tertullian; we may more appositely adjoin that Adrianus Severus and Heliogabalus, tho' in vain, attempted afterward the same thing. And particularly of Severus, Lampridius an Heathen Historian writes, that this Emperor intending to erect a Temple to Christ, and to worship him amongst the rest of the Gods, was hindred by the Priests, qui consulentes sacra, repererant omnes Christianos futuros, si id optatò evenisset, & templa reliqua deserenda: Who by some way of divination or other had found out, that if the Emperor's mind was fulfilled all would turn Christians, and the other Temples would be left desolate. So that there was a very high and venerable Opinion of Christ, even with those that were not Christians.

2. Which evidences out of prophane Writers surely even alone, can have no small force to beget the belief of that which I now contend for, viz. That Christ did once live here on Earth, and that he was a Person very famous and remarkable for some things in him, done by him or hapning to him. To which Testimonies if you add those clear Prophecies that foretold that the Jews Messiah was to come about that time that Christ is said to have lived (in which both the Heathen and Christian Stories do agree) and those Characters that we know for a * certain do belong to him, such as I have already largely enough insisted upon; it is impossible, unless Scepticism be heightned unto a disease as perfect as either Madness or down-right Mopedness, but that any one should believe more of Christ than I contend for at this present. * See chap. 9. sect. 2.

3. And yet the Characters of his Person set out in the Prophecies are still more exact than what I have produced hitherto, to prove that he was indeed the expected Messiah. As that he should be of the Family of David, of the Tribe of Juda, born of a Virgin, and in Bethlehem; that he ſhould open the Eyes of the Blind, and make the Lame walk, and other ſuch like Miracles; that he ſhould be put to ſuch a Death as that his Hands and Feet ſhould be pierced, that they ſhould caſt Lots for his Garment, and give him Venegar to drink, and that he ſhould pray for thoſe that Crucified him.

But theſe Particularities having no force till we have proved that the Hiſtory of the Goſpel is true, we muſt defer making any uſe of them till we have cleared that point. In the purſuit whereof we muſt endeavour to prove theſe three things. 1. That the Life and Death of Chriſt was writ in a ſerious manner by ſome or other; not Romantically but Hiſtorically, as Plutarch, Tacitus and Suetonius are conceived to have writ the Lives of Illuſtrious Perſons and Emperors. 2. That it was maturely writ, while there were living Eye-witneſſes of the things related. 3. And that thoſe Goſpels we receive now-adays, are the true Copies of thoſe that were ſo maturely written.

4. The firſt part ſeems to me fully demonſtrable from what we have proved already, without any recourſe to the Hiſtory of the Goſpel, viz. That there was a very tranſcendent Eminency in the Perſon of Chriſt, as to whom both the Time and main Characters of the expected Meſſiah did ſo exactly agree: Whence he could not but attract the Eyes of the World after him, and gain very zealous and faithful Followers, that would at leaſt by Word of Mouth divulge the things they ſaw and obſerved ſo ſtrange and Miraculous in him. Whence he could not eſcape having his Life and Death written by ſome Pen or other, eſpecially it being ſo certain he * roſe from the Dead, as it is.

* See further ch. 16. ſect. 4, 5. and ch. 8. ſect. 2.

5. For the Jews having Crucified him, nothing could be more odious to them than that report of his Followers, That God had miraculouſly raiſed him from the Dead; whereby Chriſt was acquitted by a ſpecial Hand of Providence of all their wicked Aſperſions and falſe Accuſations, and themſelves condemned of the higheſt Crime they could imagine themſelves capable of, even the murdering of their Meſſiah. Wherefore the atteſtation of that which would make them ſo odious and execrable even in their own Eyes, if it were true, muſt needs make the Atteſtors thereof very hateful to them and unſupportable, and incite them to raiſe all the miſchief they poſſibly could againſt them. Whence it is impoſſible that the Diſciples of Chriſt ſhould maintain ſo Hainous a falſhood, no not if they had made no Conſcience of Lying; and yet ſtill more impoſſible, if we conſider their Simplicity and Innocency, a property in them of which I think it never came into the mind of any one to doubt. I conclude therefore, That a Perſon ſo plainly prefigured by ancient and ſacred Prophecies, ſo refulgent in miraculous Vertues, and render'd ſo remarkably illuſtrious by unheard of Providences, one who for the Wonders he did, by the unbelieving Jews was accounted a Magician, by the Heathen Philoſophers and Atheiſts acknowledged a Worker of Miracles, and by his own Followers proclaimed the expected Meſſiah, and the only begotten Son of God, whom he had miraculouſly raiſed from the Dead after the Jews had Crucified him; I ſay, That a Perſon thus wonderfully qualified above any that ever yet came into the World, ſhould fail of having his Life Hiſtorically recorded, is a thing far more incredible than the greateſt Miracle that ever was yet upon Record.

6. And now in the ſecond place, That this Hiſtory or Record of his Life and Death was timely enough written, viz. while the Eye-witneſſes of thoſe things which he did or hapned to him were yet living, is alſo very clear, if we conſider the great importance of compleating ſuch an Hiſtory in due time. For certainly it could not but ſeem a matter of very weighty moment, Chriſt being believed by his Diſciples to be ſo Holy and Divine a Perſon as he was, and that their faithful adherence to him was their only aſſurance of Everlaſting Life. Which great Truth of a bleſſed Immortality they were evidently taught by that ſucceſs their Meſſiah had upon Earth, which was as ill as could be, he being ſo ſpightfully abuſed and crucified in ſo ignominious a manner; whenas yet they might with the reſt of the Jews have expected that he ſhould have broke the Roman Yoke, and been a Glorious and Victorious Prince to their great Advantage in this World. But they ſaw that Providence waved this, and by an high Hand exalted him into another Kingdom, raiſing him from the Dead and taking him viſibly into Heaven. Which was ſo palpable a Demonſtration of the Soul's Immortality, and of a peculiar Advantage to the Followers of this great Favourite of the Almighty, when they were to enter into that other State; that the Power of Conſcience and the Senſe of their own good in the other Life would make them very careful and officious to preſerve the memory of their Divine Teacher, who both ſhewed them the way to and the certainty of Immortal Happineſs. Which piece of Gratitude they were ſtill more ſtrictly bound to perform, it being ſo obvious for them to look upon

Chriſt

Christ as a publick Gift of God to the World, not to be restrained to that Age then present, but to be transmitted to all Posterity; nor confined within that little handful of followers he left behind him, but to be made known to all Israel: Nor could they long be Ignorant but that the Gentiles also should have share in him, especially upon his Rejection by the Jews, and so he was to become the Light and Salvation of all Nations from Age to Age according to the Prophets.

7. That this was the early Sense of the Church concerning the Knowledge of Christ for eternal Salvation, the nature of the thing it self, as I have already intimated, doth plainly demonstrate. For what meaning could they possibly make of God's raising him from the Dead, and visibly assuming him into Heaven, but that he should be a palpable Pledge of that future Happiness which was to accrue to them that would be his faithful Adherents and Followers? This questionless was the belief of the Apostles and all succeeding Christians, as the * Heathens themselves witness of them, tho' in a jearing manner. Ἀλλὰ κατηχέμενοι πείθου παρ' ἐμοῦ, εἴπερ ζῆν χρήζεις εἰς τὸν ἀεῖωνα, But being Catechized and Instructed, be perswaded by me, if you desire to live for ever. This Theam is much insisted upon by the Apostle Paul every where in his Epistles. Which tho' I may seem too hasty in naming so soon, while I am but driving on a method to demonstrate, That there are very timely Records of Christianity within the Ages of Eye-witnesses of the things that are Recorded; yet I think I have not done preposterously, if we consider that there is a peculiar kind of Self-evidence in that Apostle's Writings that they are not supposititious or fictitious: It being, in my Judgment, out of the Power of Man to imitate that unaffected fervour, those natural and yet unexpected Schemes of high and serious Zeal, those parenthetical exundances of weighty Sense and Matter, swelling out, I had almost said, beyond the bounds of Logical Coherence, that vigorous passion and elevation of Spirit and yet all so unsuspectable of any humane Artifice, that we cannot but be assured that he that wrote these Epistles was throughly possessed and transported with the belief of the things he wrote. I am sure I cannot but be assured, and find my self in an utter incapacity of doubting thereof, who yet am naturally as Melancholy and Suspicious as other Mortals, as I could prove by but too too early Specimens of this kind, if modesty would permit me to parallel the Follies and Errors of my Childhood with the mature Conclusions of such as have affected the repute of being the great Wits of the World.

* See Lucian his Philopatr.

8. Wherefore being so fully perswaded in my self, and never meeting with any one that could have the Face to deny but the Epistles of St. Paul were the Writings of one that was in very good earnest, my appeal to them in this place for the sense and meaning of the first and Apostolick Faith I could not hold unseasonable. But it is evident in these Epistles that the Writer of them lived within the Age of the Eye-witnesses of the wonderful things that were either done by, or hapned to Christ. Whence it plainly appears also, That the Sense of the Gospel which Paul declares in these Epistles, was the first and most early meaning that the Apostles conceived concerning the Mystery of Christianity, viz. That Christ's Passion was an Expiation for Sin, and that we are purified by Faith in him, and that our Eternal Salvation depends on the Knowledge of him.

9. Now I appeal to the most Sceptical Man living, if a matter of so vast moment as this, that concerns the common Salvation of Mankind in that future and Eternal State, can be sluggishly and carefully Prosecuted by those that knew both the Truth and Importance of that Affair, and had a more than ordinary Engagement to look after it, and whose Consciences could not but threaten them with the loss of Everlasting Life, if they did not use all honest endeavours to set on Foot the most effectual way they could the true and certain knowledge of so concerning a Mystery. And whether it be possible to conceive the First Christians so sottish and devoid of Sense, as not to see how necessary it was timely to record the Circumstances of the Birth, Life, and Death of our Saviour, and all the Miracles that he did, while the Mouths of Unbelievers and Gainsayers might be stopt by recourse to Eye-witnesses of the things that were to be related of him.

10. And if we could imagine any such supine carelesness or backwardness in the Apostles themselves, who were the fittest to write these Records, or at least those that were throughly informed by them; yet the Forwardness and Pragmaticalness of others, who could not hold their Hands from writing of such strange matters as hapned in Judæa, tho' not sufficiently instructed in the truth of them, would even force them to write down the truth of the History of Christ so timely, for the prevention of Error, and to set their own Name to the Record. To say nothing of the Importunity of the newly-converted Chriſtians, who could not but be extremely deſirous very punctually to know all things concerning that Divine Perſon whoſe Name they now religiouſly profeſſed, and whom they acknowledged to be the only-begotten Son of God. Wherefore the Apoſtles themſelves, or elſe ſome throughly inſtructed by them, could not chuſe but draw up a Narration of the Birth, Life, and Death of Chriſt, and the many conſiderables therein, for the Comfort and Satisfaction of their Proſelytes, and that there might be a true Relation of theſe things to Poſterity for ever. To all which you may add, That if it were poſſible that all theſe ſhould fail, (which I think is incredible,) yet Providence would not fail, and ſupernatural Inſpiration, to drive them on to the ſeaſonable Accompliſhment of ſo important a Work.

11. In my Judgment theſe are an undeniable Demonſtration, that the Hiſtory of Chriſt has been ſo timely Recorded as we contend for, by either the Apoſtles or thoſe that were intimately acquainted with them. And that it is infinitely more improbable that this has not been done, than that one of a great Eſtate and many Children, and wiſe in the Affairs of the World, ſhould, when it was in his Power to write, neglect the writing of his Will. A thing that none would believe, unleſs this Will of his after his Deceaſe could not be found; nor then haply neither, but rather ſuſpect ſome body has burnt it. But if it be found, and appear ſuch as becomes a Man of his Wiſdom and Diſcretion to have made, it will not be in the Power of any Man to doubt of it that is not intereſſed in the matter: And if any do, he will be looked upon as a very fool or fraudulent Fellow, that ſought ſome Advantage by queſtioning the Will.

12. The caſe is very highly the ſame here, in theſe Records of Chriſtianity we ſpeak of. For according to plain Deduction of Reaſon we ſee it impoſſible but that they ſhould be writ ſo timely, and the outward Event anſwers punctually to theſe Demonſtrations of our own Mind. For there are two Records of the Life and Death of Chriſt written by two of his Apoſtles, viz. Matthew and John, a third by Mark who was much Converſant with the Apoſtle Peter, and a fourth by Luke who was a great Companion of St. Paul, whoſe Acts together with others of the Apoſtles he alſo Recorded, and ends the Narration before Paul's departure from Rome into Spain. Whence we may conclude that Luke wrote his Goſpel while Paul was yet alive, of whoſe tranſactions himſelf was an Eye-witneſs, as Matthew and John of all the things they wrote, or at leaſt moſt of them; and the reſt they had from other Apoſtles, who were by when they were not, or from the Mouth of our Saviour himſelf. This Concluſion is ſo plain, that it is as ridiculous to deny it, as for one to deny the above-mentioned Will, which none can do without being hooted at for a Fool. For when we ſee External Events ſuch as plain and undeniable Reaſon cannot but compute even neceſſary to come to paſs, it muſt be either Folly or Fraud that makes any doubt, or deny they are really come to paſs, when they are exhibited thus manifeſtly to their outward Senſes.

CHAP.

CHAP. XI.

1. A new Method of proving that the Life of Christ was writ in the times of the Apostles. 2. That Luke did accompany St. Paul in most part of his Travels, and was the Author of the Book of the Acts of the Apostles, and of that Gospel which bears his Name. 3. An Argument to prove that the Gospels of Luke and John were so timely written, taken from the Declaration of these two Evangelists that they were Coetaneous to Jesus of Nazareth. 4. The same made out, of the other two Gospels, from the Names of Matthew and Mark prefixt to them. 5. An Objection propos'd and answered. 6. The Author's Satisfaction to find, that what he had so strongly prov'd by a more extrinsick Method, is now clearly demonstrated by Reasons from the Nature of the thing.

1. TO prove that the Life of Christ was Recorded so early as we contend for, we have hitherto, for the most part, used Arguments from without: But there is yet another Method of Arguing tending towards the same End, which first was suggested to me by reading some miscellany Papers of Adamus Borelius, a Pious and Learned Man, and which is drawn from what is contain'd in the Gospels themselves, the true design of the Evangelists therein being first supposed or understood. To the first kind of Proof I was led by my own Inclination, and manag'd it accordingly; but this, which I had from another, shall be dispatched with what Brevity and Perspicuity I can. The Scope thereof is to make out by Arguments natural, i. e. intrinsick to the things we speak of, namely some Passages occurring in the four Gospels, (and you may add if you will the Acts of the Apostles) that all these Books were writ in the time of Christ, or at least before the Destruction of Jerusalem.

2. We shall begin with the Gospel which bears the Name of Luke in its Title; the Author whereof gives us plainly to understand that he lived in the time of Paul and the other Apostles. For in the sixteenth Chapter of the Book of the Acts of the Apostles, ver. 9, 10, 11. he thus relates. And a Vision appeared to Paul in the Night: There stood a Man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us. And after he had seen the Vision, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the Gospel unto them. Therefore loosing from Troas, we came, &c. And this same Author, in the 27 and 28 Chapters of the above-mention'd Book, intimates thirty or forty times that he accompany'd Paul in his Voyage from Cesarea to Rome. And entring into a Ship of Adramyttium, (says he) we lanched, meaning to Sail by the Coasts of Asia, ver. 2. And (in the following verse) the next Day we touched at Sidon, &c. And thus about thirty or forty times, in things that happened in common to all the Passengers, he reckons himself amongst them. Hence it is manifest, that the Writer of the Acts was present in the Ship-wrack related in these Chapters, which Paul with the others suffered. Now 'tis the same Person who wrote both the Acts of the Apostles and the Gospel according to Luke, as appears from the very Introduction to the Acts [The former Treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, &c.) compar'd with the Preface of the Gospel, viz. Forasmuch as many have taken in Hand to set forth in order a Declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us, Even as they delivered them unto us, which from the Beginning were Eye-witnesses and Ministers of the Word: It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in Order, most excellent Theophilus, That thou mightest know the Certainty of those things wherein thou hast been instructed. The Author of this Gospel and of the Acts could not write any thing, to testify more expresly that he lived in the Apostle's time, and so had an opportunity of coming to the certain Knowledge of the things he relates, than what we have here cited.

3. But as the Writer of the Acts, and of the Gospel according to Luke gives out, that he lived in the Age of Jesus of Nazareth, so also does the Author of the Gospel according to John, Chap. 19. ver. 34, 35. But one of the Souldiers with a Spear pierced his side, and forthwith there came out Blood and Water. And he that saw it bare record, and his record is true: And he knoweth that he sayeth true, that ye might believe. What can be more plain?

Now

Now ſeeing theſe two Evangeliſts do ſo openly vouch that they lived in the time of Chriſt, and ſeeing a deſign of ſincere Piety, and the higheſt Probity are conſpicuous through the whole Tenor of theſe Books, it ſeems altogether improbable that Men who were ſo much in earneſt in their endeavours after Piety, if they had not lived in theſe times, would have lyed ſo ſhamefully, and I may add, or have been ſo fooliſh as to deſtroy the Authority of their own Writings by atteſting ſo notorious a Fiction; For a Fraud of this nature could not lie hid, to wit, if theſe Books had firſt appear'd an Age or two after, and yet had teſtified that they were compos'd by Men contemporary to Jeſus of Nazareth. For who would not ſtraightway have concluded that the World was impos'd upon, foraſmuch as it ſeems altogether impoſſible, if they had been ſo timely written, that they ſhould not have come ſooner to Light, and been in the Hands of many Chriſtians, being but ſmall Volumes, tho' of the higheſt importance, which might with little Labour have been tranſcrib'd as often as was needful.

4. And the ſame things with but little variation may be applyed to the Goſpels according to Matthew and according to Luke, ſeeing they carry their Names Prefixt to 'em. For ſince the Name of Matthew is put down by it ſelf, without addition of any thing to diſtinguiſh him from others of the ſame Name, 'tis plain we muſt thereby underſtand that Matthew, who was numbered amongſt the Diſciples of Jeſus of Nazareth. The like may be ſaid of Mark, that by this Name without queſtion is ſignified the well known Kinſman of Barnabas (whom we find often mention'd in the Acts of the Apoſtles) ſeeing there is no diſtinction adjoyn'd to ſignify that any other is meant. Theſe Goſpels, I ſay, the one bearing the Name of Matthew, the other that of Mark, could not be ſent forth into the World with theſe Titles, but that their Credit would forthwith be call'd in queſtion on the foreſaid account. For there is no Body but would immediately ask, If Mark and Matthew were the Writers of theſe Goſpels, why were they not found among the Chriſtians before this, ſeeing they might ſo eaſily have been copied, and imparted to many? Wherefore they had never been received for the Goſpels of Matthew and Mark, unleſs they had been writ in the Apoſtles times. And if long after theſe Times, they had been compiled by ſome Church, or ſome pious Man diligent and curious in theſe Matters, to the end that the traditional Accounts might not in ſucceeding Ages be corrupted or altogether loſt, it had been undoubtedly more for the Churches Advantage, if they had openly avow'd, that the Book was newly compos'd by ſuch a Perſon, as had us'd all Fidelity and Diligence in collecting every where the Traditions of the Church, which alſo were commonly known to be ſuch, than by a feigned Name to bring in queſtion the Credit of the moſt famous Traditions, and occaſion the People to ſuſpect that the Church dealt not faithfully, but uſed Fraud and Impoſture towards 'em. Wherefore there is no imaginable Account can be given why the Names of Matthew and Mark are prefixt to theſe Goſpels but this, that theſe two Perſons were indeed the Authors of them.

5. What ſome think may be objected againſt theſe five Books in common, namely the four Goſpels and the Acts of the Apoſtles (all which ſo plainly ſignify that they were writ in the time of Jeſus of Nazareth, or of the Apoſtles) viz. That the Fraud was conceal'd from the People who were perſwaded by their Crafty Teachers, that the foreſaid Books, tho' writ in that Age, had lien hid for ſome Centuries of Years, and now at laſt were come to Light; in like manner as the Prieſts of Diana at Epheſus perſwaded the People, that a certain Image, really made by a Workman of the Wood of the Vine, fell out of Heaven from Jupiter, inſomuch that all Aſia and other Countries from thenceforth believed it moſt certainly to be ſo, tho' at firſt the more prudent might readily have ſuſpected the deceit; This verily ſeems to me no fit Subterfuge, but a very forc'd and abſurd Compariſon.

For by reaſon of the great antiquity of that Image, an opportunity was miniſtred to theſe ſubtle Prieſts of Diana of feigning almoſt whatever they pleas'd concerning its Original, that could not be manifeſtly confuted by reaſon, nor carried any inherent Abſurdity along with it, but was of ſuch a nature as requir'd rather to be diſprov'd by Witneſſes than dint of Argument. For that an Image, whether made of Gold or the Vine-Tree, ſhould have fallen down from Heaven ſeveral hundred Years ago, what Inconvenience or Abſurdity does it include, whereby it may be prov'd to be a feigned Story? Greater things than that may undoubtedly be effected by the Miniſtry of Spirits, whether Good or Evil. But that a Book of the Life and Miracles of Chriſt, faithfully written by an Eye-witneſs, or one that from Eye witneſſes had received an account of theſe Tranſactions, (ſeeing 'tis a thing of ſuch importance that our eternal Salvation depends on it) ſhould have remain'd hid for ſome hundred Years, yea or much much less time, and not have been Communicated to Christian People, is a thing so incredible, that he must be altogether stupid who can give Credit to such a palpable deceit. Wherefore it is evident that these five Books of the Gospel above-mention'd, which plainly testify that they were writ in the times of Christ and the Apostles, if they had not appear'd till many Years after, had never been received for such by the Church, as now they are; whence it plainly appears that they were also known in that early Age, and therefore so timely written.

6. This is one Part of the Method in Hand, whereby we endeavour to demonstrate that the Books of the Gospel were writ even in the time of Jesus of Nazareth and of his Apostles. And indeed it gives me no small satisfaction to find that again made out by this domestick Method, which by one more foreign I think I had so evidently proved before.

CHAP. XII.

1. The Principal Scope of the History of the Gospel. 2. That some things are therein recorded which cross the Design thereof, is an Argument that this History was faithfully and timely written. 3. If the Gospel-History were a Forgery of Man, the Character of Christ's Disciples had been much more Noble. 4. What marks of Disgrace are set upon them in the Gospel of Matthew. 5. In that of Mark. 6. In those of Luke and John. 7. From which a Conclusion is briefly drawn. 8. Things that appear absurd at first view occurring in the Gospels, and in the Acts of the Apostles. 9. The force of such Passages to prove that the Gospel History was written both with the greatest Fidelity and also timely. 10. Places in Matthew that, contrary to the chief Scope of the Gospels, seem to obscure the Glory of Jesus himself. 11. Such in Mark. 12. Such in Luke and John. 13. Application of these to establish the Credit of the History of the Gospel.

1. BUT the whole force of this Method, as I hinted above, is not yet exhausted. There is still another Part behind, which did we not study Brevity, might be drawn out to a much greater Length. But in what we are to say we shall keep our selves within the following Bounds; In the first place I shall mention such things as seem to reach no further than to prove that the History of Christ in the Gospels is not a Forgery of Humane Wit, but writ according as Matters were transacted: And afterwards such as evince more conspicuously that it was writ in the time of Christ, or before the Destruction of Jerusalem.

2. But that the full strength of what Passages we are to produce may be the better comprehended, it will be expedient to premise, That the Principal Scope of the History of the Gospel is, with utmost diligence and most amply to declare the Honour and Glory of Christ of Nazareth, as of the highest Prophet, and consequently the expected Messiah and true Son of God, declar'd to be such by a Voice from Heaven; as is most evident. If therefore such things almost every where occur as seem plainly to interfere with this design, 'tis a plain Evidence that the Compilers of the Gospel-History did not Forge things at their Pleasure, since they would doubtless then have omitted such, but faithfully related them altogether so, as they certainly knew they were transacted. Now they could not certainly know them, if they had not either been Eye-witnesses thereof themselves, or received them from those that were such. From hence it is manifest that even Places of this first kind serve in some measure to prove, that the History of Christ was so early written.

3. First of all therefore I say, that if the Gospel-History were an Invention of Human Contrivance, and not faithfully recorded according as things fell out, The Disciples of Christ, considering the natural Gayety and Loftiness of Man's Inclinations, had without doubt obtained therein a better and more advantageous Character; seeing according to Humane Judgment it was but fitting that a Person so Holy, so Wise, so great a Prophet, yea the very Son of God should have Disciples, if not more Learned, yet at least more tractable, better manner'd and faithful; and I add, of a more Honourable Descent and Employment.

4. Now

4. Now, not to mention the Fiſhers, Matthew relates himſelf to have been a Publican, Chap. 9. v. 9. He declares alſo in many Places, that the Diſciples were call'd by Chriſt ὀλιγόπιστος, i. e. of little Faith, Chap. 6. v. 30. and Chap. 8. v. 26. yea even Peter, Chap. 14. v. 31. He introduces alſo John the Baptiſt queſtioning if Jeſus was the Meſſias, Chap. 11. v. 3. He mentions Peter's being fearful, when walking on the Sea, tho' at the Command of Chriſt himſelf, Chap. 14. v. 30. Jeſus chiding his Diſciples as ἀσυνέτους, (i. e. void of Underſtanding,) for being ſo dull of Apprehenſion, Chap. 15. 16. alſo Chap. 16. again upbraiding them with Ignorance and Dulneſs; and ver. 23. Chriſt ſaying to Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan. That the Diſciples could not caſt out a Devil, Chap. 17. v. 16. nor had Faith as a grain of Muſtard Seed, ibid. That they forbad little Children to come to Chriſt, and were therefore reproved by him, Chap. 19. ver. 13. That they knew not what they ask'd, Chap. 20. ver. 22. That all the Diſciples leaving Jeſus fled, tho' they had promiſed they would never forſake him, albeit they were to dye for him, Chap. 26. ver. 35. That Peter afterwards not only deny'd Chriſt, but alſo affirm'd with an Oath and Imprecations that he knew not the Man, ver. 74. and that ſome of the Diſciples doubted Chriſt's Reſurrection, Chap. 24. 17. Theſe and many things more of that kind are related by Matthew.

5. Mark tells us, that the Diſciples Heart was hardened, πεπωρωμένην, Chap. 6. ver. 52. And again that Jeſus upbraided to his Diſciples that they did not underſtand, neither conſidered, but had their Heart yet darkened, Chap. 8. ver. 17. That having Eyes they ſaw not, and having Ears they heard not, nor remembered, ver. 18. That they queſtioned one with another what the Riſing from the Dead might mean, Chap. 9. ver. 10. and that they diſputed by the way which of them ſhould be greateſt, ver. 34. That they believed not them who had ſeen Jeſus after he was riſen, and that Jeſus himſelf upbraided them with this, Chap. 16. ver. 11, 13, 14.

6. Luke records, that Mary, tho' before ſaluted and told thereof by the Angel, marvelled at the Words of Simeon, Chap. 2. ver. 33. And that neither Joſeph nor Mary underſtood when Jeſus being twelve Years old told them, that he muſt be about his Father's Buſineſs, ver. 50. That Peter being upon the Mountain knew not what he ſaid, Chap. 9. ver. 33. And afterward that the Diſciples knew not what Spirit themſelves were of, ver. 55.

John alſo writes, that John the Baptiſt ſaid he was not Elias, Chap. 1. ver. 21. when yet Chriſt acknowledg'd him for ſuch, Matth. 17. 12.

And Luke again in the Acts of the Apoſtles informs us, that Barnabas and Paul, a ſharp Contention, παροξυσμὸς, ariſing between them, departed aſunder one from another, Chap. 15. v. 39. Alſo that Paul, and others with him, were forbidden of the Holy Ghoſt, to preach the Word in Aſia, Chap. 16. v. 6. And that ſome Diſciples had not ſo much as heard whether there were any Holy Ghoſt, Chap. 19. v. 2. And finally that Paul, after being chid for reviling the High-Prieſt, ſaid, I wiſt not, Brethren, that he was the High-Prieſt. Chap. 23. 4, 5.

7. Now would any Man, who had at his Pleaſure forg'd out of his own Brain and contriv'd the Goſpel-Hiſtory, have mention'd ſuch things of the chief Diſciples of the higheſt Prophet and true Meſſiah, and not rather omitted 'em; or if there had been the ſlighteſt Rumour of any ſuch thing, endeavour'd to ſtiffle it? From hence we ſee with what Faithfulneſs and Sincerity the Hiſtory of the Goſpel is written.

8. Which Faithfulneſs and Sincerity ſeem to me to be further illuſtrated by ſome things that occur in that Hiſtory, which at firſt view have ſome Reſemblance of Abſurdity and Falſhood; of which any fabulous and romantick Writer would take eſpecial Care; and with all Diligence and Caution contain himſelf intra τὸ πιθανὸν, within the Bounds of Probability. Of things of this ſort not a few might here be produc'd, were we but allowed to digreſs a little. However, we ſhall adventure to propoſe a few.

Such are theſe in the Goſpel of Matthew; That Jeſus ſaid the Daughter of Jairus was not dead but ſlept, Chap. 9. v. 24. That a Grain of Muſtard-Seed was the leaſt of all Seeds, Chap. 13. v. 32. That no Sign ſhould be given to the Jews but that of Jonas, Ch. 12. 39. That nothing ſhould be impoſſible to the Diſciples, if they had but Faith as a Grain of Muſtard-Seed, Ch. 17. 20. If only two of Jeſus's Diſciples ſhould agree in asking, all things ſhould be granted them, Ch. 18. v. 19. That there was none good but God only, Ch. 19. v. 17. That it was eaſier for a Camel to paſs through a Needle's Eye, than that a Rich Man ſhould enter the Kingdom of Heaven, v. 24. That whoever for Jeſus's ſake ſhould relinquiſh all things should receive an hundred Fold, (in this Life, Luke. 18. 30.) ibid v. 39. That whatsoever the Disciples should ask in Prayer, believing they should receive, Ch. 21. 22. That Jesus should drink that Fruit of the Vine, which he then drank with his Disciples, new with them in his Father's Kingdom, Ch. 26. v. 29. That all who take the Sword shall perish by it, v. 52. That the Jews of that time should ἀπ' ἄρτι, henceforth, (in our Translation hereafter) see Jesus sitting on the Right-Hand of Power, and coming in the Clouds of Heaven, v. 64. Jeremy cited for Zachary, Ch. 27. v, 9. That both the Thieves reviled Christ, v. 44.

ſhould

In the Gospel of Mark; That Christ after curing the Deaf Man charged those present that they should tell it to no Man, Chap. 7. ver. 36. That a certain young Man not named, that followed Christ at his Passion, fled away naked, Chap. 14. ver. 52. That who hath Faith in God, may with a word remove a Mountain into the Sea, Chap. 11. ver. 22. And (who) shall not doubt in his Heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass, he shall have whatsoever he saith, ibid. ver. 23. That at the Passion of Christ, when the 6th hour was come there was darkness over the whole Land till the ninth hour, Chap. 15. ver. 33.

In the Gospel of Luke; That God would give to Jesus the Throne of his Father David, and that he should Reign over the House of Jacob for ever, Chap. 1. ver. 32. 33. Zacharias upon the Birth of his Son John promises to the Children of Abraham all worldly Felicity, Peace and Security, ver. 68, 69, &c. That the whole World, (πᾶσα οἰκουμένη) was taxed at that time, Chap. 2. ver. 1. That good Tydings of great Joy were brought to all the People of the Jews because of the Birth of Jesus, ver. 10. That he was the Glory of the People of Israel, ver. 32. That at that time Redemption had appeared to Jerusalem, ver. 38. That in the time of Jesus and thenceforward Every Valley was filled, every Mountain and Hill was brought low, the crooked were made straight, and the rough Ways were made smooth, and all Flesh did see the Salvation of God, Chap. 3. ver. 5, 6. That the Devil shewed Jesus upon an high Mountain all the Kingdoms, τῆς οἰκουμένης, of the World (and their Glory, Mat. 4. 8.) and that in a moment of time, Chap. 4. ver. 5. That Jesus charged the Parents of the Maid he raised to Life, that they should tell no Man what was done, Chap. 8. 56. That to add one Cubit to the stature, is reckoned, ἐλάχιστον, a thing which is least, Chap. 12. ver. 25.

Also in the Acts of the Apostles; The Disciples say to Paul, through the Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem, Chap. 21. ver. 4. and afterward the Prophet Agabus openly declareth to Paul by the Spirit that he should go up to Jerusalem, and that the Jews there would bind him and deliver him into the Hands of the Gentiles, ver. 11. That the Men who were with Paul in the way to Damascus, heard not the Voice, but saw the Light, Chap. 22. ver. 9. And yet Chap. 9. ver. 7. that they heard indeed a Voice but saw no Man.

9. These few Places produc'd may suffice to shew that the History of the Gospel was writ by these Authors without any crafty design of imposing on the World; seeing no Man, but he who has the certain knowledge that what he writes is true, i. e. done or said as he relates, and is desirous to approve himself faithful, would adventure to put such things in a History as would render his Fidelity suspected; much less would they who compose a forg'd History, which yet they would have to pass for a true one, being at liberty to invent what they please, feign such things, as at first view appear to be manifestly false or absurd, whereby the whole History might become suspected. Wherefore there is no Account to be given, why such things occur in these Writings of the Gospel, as are to appearance false and absurd, tho' in reality true and solid, but that either the Authors themselves assuredly knew them to be true, or could appeal to Witnesses of their truth that were yet alive when they wrote them. And this I say is to be understood of all but the misciting of Jeremy for Zachary; which, if any, with Augustin, shall reckon a σφάλμα μνημονικὸν, i. e. Lapse of Memory, I see no Inconvenience therein. Those who have a design to deceive, must be cautious and circumspect in minuter things where the falshood may be easily detected. But he who is conscious to himself that his only endeavour is after Truth, and certainly knows that the things are true which he is to relate, 'tis not so strange, if he is less anxious about slighter Circumstances, so that a Lapse in these occasions a more firm Belief of what is writ, and is a certain evidence that the Author follows not after Frauds and Impostures, but as to the principal Matters dare attest his own Conscience and Witnesses that are yet alive. Thus by a Digression, that may possibly appear a little too wide, we come exactly to hit the mark we aim'd at.

10. But now we will return into the way, and keeping ſomewhat more cloſely to our propoſed Method, we will take notice of ſuch Paſſages, as ſeem directly to leſſen the Credit and Eſteem of Chriſt, tho' the Illuſtration of his Glory as the higheſt Prophet, and true Son of God manifeſted in the Fleſh, appears ſo evidently to be the principal Deſign of the Goſpel. Of this ſort are theſe that follow.

In Matthew's Goſpel. Here we will forbear to make mention of Thamar, of Rahab, of Ruth, of the Wife of Uriah, Chap. 1. ver. 3, 5, 6. and come ſtraight to theſe that more immediately relate to the Perſon of Chriſt himſelf: The Devils, then, are ſaid to have entered into the Swine at the command of Jeſus, and to have periſhed in the Waters, Chap. 8. ver. 32. Jeſus is ſaid to have marvelled, Verſe 10. 'Tis ſaid, That certain Scribes thought within themſelves, that he Blaſphemed, Chap. 9. ver. 3. That he choſe a Publican for his Diſciple, ver. 9. That it was the Opinion of the Phariſees, that he caſt out Devils through the Prince of the Devils, ver. 34. and Chap. 12. 24. That John the Baptiſt doubted if Jeſus was the Meſſias, Chap. 11. ver. 3. That Jeſus came Eating and Drinking, and was called a Man Gluttonous and given to Wine, and a frequenter of the Lewd Company of Publicans and Sinners, ver. 19. That Cities repented not at the Preaching and Miracles of Jeſus, ver. 20. He is call'd the Son of a Carpenter, Chap. 13. ver. 55. That Jeſus call'd the Gentiles κυνάρια, Catellos, Chap. 15. ver. 26. That he went away, when the Phariſees and Sadducees ask'd of him a Sign from Heaven, and left them, Chap. 16. 4. That he reproved the Man who call'd him Good Maſter, Chap. 19. ver. 17. He acknowledgeth that to ſit on his Right and on his Left Hand is not his to give, Chap. 20. ver. 23. That Jeſus, having taken along with him Peter and the Sons of Zebedee, he began to be ſorrowful and ἀδημονεῖν, to be in great Anguiſh, Chap. 26. ver. 37. And that he ſaid to theſe Diſciples, My Soul is exceeding ſorrowful even unto Death, tarry ye here and watch with me, ver. 38. That he ſaid alſo, If it is poſſible, let this Cup paſs from me; nevertheleſs not as I will but as thou, ver. 39. Finally that he cry'd out with a loud Voice upon the Croſs, My God, my God, why haſt thou forſaken me? Chap. 27. ver. 46.

In the Goſpel of Mark. Here 'tis ſaid, That Jeſus, εὐθέως, forthwith gave leave to the Devils to go into the Swine, which were about two thouſand, Chap. 5. ver. 13. That he ask'd who touched him, and turned about that he might ſee who had done it, ver. 30, 31. He is called a Carpenter, Chap. 6. ver. 3. And that he could do no mighty Work at Nazareth becauſe of their Incredulity, ſave that he healed a few Sick People, ver. 5. That Jeſus put his Fingers into the Ears of one that was Deaf and had an Impediment in his Speech, and having ſpit touched his Tongue, and looking up to Heaven ſighed, and after ſaid, be thou opened. Chap. 7. ver. 33, 34. That he ſighed deeply in his Spirit, when the Phariſees ſought of him a Sign from Heaven, and paſs'd over again unto the other ſide, Chap. 8. ver. 12, 13. That being about to cure a blind Man, he took him by the Hand, and led him out of the Town, ſpit on his Eyes, and put his Hands upon him, and ask'd him if he ſaw any thing; who anſwering that he ſaw Men as Trees walking, he again put his Hands upon his Eyes, and at laſt made him to ſee clearly and diſtinctly, ver. 24, 25. Alſo that he charg'd his Diſciples to tell no Man he was the Chriſt, ver. 30. That he ask'd the Father of the Boy poſſeſs'd, how long it was ſince that came unto him, Chap. 9. ver. 21. That he curs'd the Fig-Tree ſo as it was dried up, becauſe he found nothing but Leaves on it, tho' it was not yet the time of the Fruit, Chap. 11. ver. 13, 14. That Jeſus himſelf knew not the Laſt Day, Chap. 13. ver. 32.

In the Goſpel of Luke. That many Women followed Jeſus, and Miniſtred to him of their Subſtance, Chap. 8. ver. 3. That Moſes and Elias told Jeſus the Death he ſhould ſuffer at Jeruſalem, Ch. 9. ver. 30, 31. In the Parable of Lazarus, Moſes and the Prophets are mention'd without Chriſt, as if he were not greater than Moſes and the Prophets, Chap. 16. ver. 29. An Angel comforteth Jeſus, Ch. 22. ver. 43. That Cleophas and others hop'd Jeſus had been he who was to Redeem the Iſraelites, Chap. 24. ver. 21.

In the Goſpel of John. That Jeſus ſaid to his Mother τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοὶ γύναι; (in our Tranſlation; Woman, what have I to do with thee?) Chap. 2. ver. 4. That Jeſus would not remain in Judæa, becauſe the Jews ſought to kill him, Chap. 7. ver. 1. That he ask'd concerning Lazarus that was Buried, where they had laid him? Chap. 11. ver. 34. That the Jews laying wait for him he would no longer walk openly, but departed unto a Deſart Place, ver. 53, 54. That Jeſus ſaid, Now is my Soul troubled, and what ſhall I ſay! Father, ſave me from this Hour, Chap. 12. ver. 27. That after Chriſt had given a Sop to Judas Satan entered into him, and that Chriſt ſaid, What thou doeſt, do quickly, Chap. 13. ver. 27.

13. Theſe

13. These are for the most part the Places which are cited in those Papers of Borelius as tending to the diminishing of the Glory and Esteem of Jesus of Nazareth, Notwithstanding that the principal Design of these Evangelical Writers was to give unto him the highest Honour, and recommend him unto Men. And certainly this much at least they do most plainly demonstrate, That the History of the Gospel is Writ with the greatest Faithfulness and Simplicity, things being therein related as they were done, and not forg'd at pleasure out of any one's Imagination. For how far these things are from all Human Artifice and Deceit is manifest; and that nothing but the Truth it self certainly known to them could constrain these Writers any where to intermix things which so plainly seem to thwart their principal Design. Now they could not have the certain Knowledge of the Truth by Tradition, especially about three hundred Years after, at what time if ever, under colour of Traditions, such Histories might safely and conveniently be forged. For Time doubtless would have worn off all things that appear'd less agreeable to the principal Scope: Not to mention that 'tis altogether incredible that so many various Discourses of Christ, and these sometimes very long, could be conveyed down by Oral Tradition, or that the Memory of Things so diverse, so minute, and at first view so inconsistent, could be preserv'd, were they not put in Writing so soon as done. From whence again 'tis very reasonable to conclude, That the History of the Gospel, such as we now have it, must of necessity have been put in Writing immediately after the things were transacted. Which by this following and last Argument also we will yet more evidently demonstrate.

CHAP. XIII.

1. The last Argument, That there are many Predictions found in the Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles, which verily had never been Recorded, had not the Authors of these Books lived in the time of Christ. 2. Such in Matthew. 3. In Mark. 4. In Luke. 5. In John. 6. In the Acts of the Apostles. 7. A peculiar Remark concerning the Author of the Gospel according to Luke and the Acts of the Apostles. 8. The excelling force of this last Argument which can't be eluded by any Objections. 9. A Proof from the Writing of the Revelation that the Actions of Christ were timely written. 10. The happy Conjunction and Agreement of our Method with that of Borelius.

1. THIS then in few Words is the Sum of this last Argument; That if the Authors of these five Books (I mean the Gospels according to Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, with the Acts of the Apostles) lived not in the Age of Jesus of Nazareth, but some Centuries of Years after, (suppose about these times wherein the Roman Empire embraced Christianity, and the Canon of the Sacred Books was to be determined, this Age appearing the most convenient for that purpose) they had verily never been guilty of Writing, either in such a manner, or such things which, so soon as they appear'd in publick, would seem manifestly false; that is, they would have taken great care not to relate such Predictions either of Jesus of Nazareth, or the Apostles, as, by reason of the Inconsistency of Events therewith, should seem utterly unfit for Belief. But Predictions of this kind are to be found in each of these Books, at least if compared with these later times, wherein the Books are supposed to have been thus written; tho' some don't even want to be thus compared.

2. In the Gospel of Matthew: But when they shall Persecute you in this City, flee ye unto another. Verily I say unto you, ye shall not have gone over the Cities of Israel, till the Son of Man be come, Chap. 10. ver. 23. Seeing 'tis so obvious by the Coming of the Son of Man to understand the Day of the last Judgment, what false and suppositious Writer would have presum'd thus to write, three hundred Years to wit after the Apostles, when it was so well known that the Apostles had already gone over the Cities of Israel, and that the Son of Man was not yet come in this Sense?

Again, Chap. 24. ver. 29. Immediately after the Tribulation of those Days, shall the Sun be darkened, and the Moon shall not give her Light, and the Stars shall fall from Heaven, &c. Verily I say unto you, this Generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled. Heaven and Earth shall pass away, but my Words shall not pass away, ver. 34, 35.

What deceitful and falſifying Writer could ever have thought fit thus to write, three hundred Years ſuppoſe after the time of Jeſus of Nazareth, yea, or even ſhortly after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem; or could he have ſo expreſſed himſelf as to give occaſion to every one to think, that all thoſe things (namely the Darkening of the Sun and Moon, the Falling of the Stars, the Sounding of the Angelick Trumpets, the Coming of the Son of Man in the Clouds of Heaven, &c.) ought to have come to paſs within that very Age wherein Jeſus Propheſied? Theſe things therefore were not written by any Forger, but by ſome Apoſtle who had them from the Mouth of Chriſt himſelf, and as he receiv'd them committed them to Writing, knowing aſſuredly that they were ſpoken by Chriſt, and rightly underſtood could not but be true.

3. In the Goſpel of Mark: And Jeſus taught ſaying unto them, Is it not Written, My Houſe ſhall be called of all Nations the Houſe of Prayer? Chap. 11. ver. 17. In which words doubtleſs Chriſt did intimate that even then there was ſomething Prophetical, to be fulfill'd in due time. But what lying and deceitful Writer would forge out of his own Brain ſuch a Diſcourſe as ſpoke by Chriſt, after the Deſtruction of the Temple, and yet much leſs ſome Centuries of Years later?

Alſo Chap. 10. ver. 15. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, [the Apoſtles] Go ye into all the World, and Preach the Goſpel to every Creature. He that believeth, and is Baptized, ſhall be ſaved; but he that believeth not, ſhall be damned. And thoſe Signs ſhall follow them that believe: In my Name ſhall they caſt out Devils, they ſhall ſpeak with new Tongues, they ſhall take up Serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it ſhall not hurt them, they ſhall lay Hands on the Sick, and they ſhall recover. No Forger durſt have thus writ of the Signs following thoſe that believe after ſuch Miracles had ceas'd, becauſe the Event would have given a Check to his Boldneſs, and he would have been afraid leſt he ſhould immediately be found manifeſtly guilty of falſifying. Whence it is evident that this Author wrote when ſuch Miracles flouriſhed in the Church, that is, in the very Age of Jeſus of Nazareth and the Apoſtles.

4. In the Goſpel of Luke, Chap. 1. ver. 67. And his [John Baptiſt's] Father Zacharias, was filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and Propheſied, ſaying, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, for he hath viſited and redeemed his People. And hath raiſed up an Horn of Salvation for us, in the Houſe of his Servant David. As he ſpake by the Mouth of his Holy Prophets, which have been ſince the World began. That we ſhould be ſaved from our Enemies, and from the Hand of all that hate us. To perform the Mercy promiſed to our Fathers, and to remember his Holy Covenant. The Oath which he Sware to our Father Abraham. That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the Hand of our Enemies, might ſerve him without Fear. In Holineſs and Righteouſneſs before him all the Days of our Life. Without doubt this Prophecy of Zacharias in the obvious and literal Senſe promiſes to the Jews temporal Felicity and Security from Enemies, as if Jeſus had been one who was to deliver Iſrael from worldly Servitude, as alſo Cleophas and others imagined, Luke 24. 31. Now what falſe and ſuppoſititious Writer, after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem and Diſperſion of the Jews into all Nations, would have been ſo ſtupid, when he might have invented any thing at pleaſure, as to put ſuch a Prophecy in the Mouth of Zacharias, when the Event had fallen out quite contrary to what it ſeem'd to foretel? And yet the Prophecy rightly underſtood in a myſtical and prophetical Senſe is moſt true, which was the meaning intended by the Holy Ghoſt, whatever Apprehenſions the private Spirit of Zacharias might entertain thereof.

Again, Chap. 2. ver. 10. And the Angel ſaid unto the Shepherds, fear not. For behold, I bring you good Tidings of great Joy, which ſhall be to all People. For unto you is Born this Day, in the City of David, a Saviour, which is Chriſt the Lord. And ver. 32. Jeſus is called the Glory of the People of Iſrael. Which words verily in the obvious and more literal Senſe ſeem to promiſe ſome great Good to the whole Jewiſh Nation, as if Jeſus had been to be ſuch a Chriſt the Lord or Meſſias, as ſhould prove the Glory and Defence of all the People of Iſrael, whenas on the contrary he became an occaſion, to the far greateſt part of the Jews, of the higheſt Reproach and moſt fatal Misfortunes; ſince both the Deſtruction of their City, and all the Calamities that did either accompany or follow after it, are imputed to that moſt infamous Murther of their Meſſias. Whence it is manifeſt that no Falſifier after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem and Diſperſion of the Jews, would have framed ſuch a Speech of the Angel to the Shepherds, and conſequently that the Writer of this Goſpel liv'd before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, not ſeveral hundred Years after.

5. In

5. In the Gospel of John: In the last Day of the great Feast, Jesus stood, and cried, saying, If any Man Thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his Belly shall flow Rivers of living Water. But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believed on him should receive. For the Holy Ghost was not yet [given] because Jesus was not yet Glorified. Now here is principally to be understood that Spirit whereby, after the Ascension of Christ, those who believed in him perform'd various Miracles, Chap. 7. ver. 37.

But there is also another Place yet more considerable, Chap. 14. ver. 12. Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the Works that I do shall he do also, and greater Works than these shall he do, because I go unto my Father. What Man writing a suppositious History of Christ three hundred Years after, when Miracles were ceas'd, would insert things so disagreeing and repugnant to daily Experience? These therefore are Words recorded by a Writer, who both knew assuredly that Jesus spoke them, and also lived in an Age wherein Miracles were frequent, and these very eminent and manifest ones (such as those of Christ) done by Men living and not deceas'd Martyrs, which latter are obscure, and not to be reckoned amongst the former.

6. Finally in the Acts of the Apostles: Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their Heart, and said unto Peter, and to the rest of the Apostles, Men and Brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, Repent and be Baptized every one of you in the Name of Jesus Christ, for the Remission of Sins; and ye shall receive the Gift of the Holy Ghost. For the Promise is unto you and to your Children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call, Chap. 7. ver. 37, 38, 39. If the Writer of this had liv'd several hundred Years after the Age of Christ, and consequently were a Forger and a Counterfeit, he would never have writ that the Promise of the Holy Ghost was made to all that were afar off, seeing at that time the Promise was not answered by the Event.

A Passage like unto this and somewhat clearer, concerning the Gifts of the Spirit immediately following upon Baptism, is found, Chap. 19. ver. 2. where Paul speaking to certain Disciples at Ephesus, Have ye receiv'd the Holy Ghost, says he, since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. Unto what then were ye Baptized, said he? And they said unto John's Baptism. Then said Paul, John verily Baptized with the Baptism of Repentance, saying unto the People, That they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, Christ Jesus. When they heard this they were Baptized in the Name of the Lord Jesus. And when Paul had laid his Hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them, and they spake with Tongues and Propheſied. And all the Men were about twelve. We see it here again plainly asserted to be a proper and peculiar Effect of Baptism in the Name of Jesus, that the wonderful Gifts of the Holy Spirit immediately appear in the Baptized. Wherefore no Falsifier composing a fictitious History after the ceasing of these Gifts, much less some hundred Years after they had ceas'd, would insert such Relations into his Book, seeing the Experience of the present time would hinder them from being believ'd. This therefore is a manifest Proof that the Acts of the Apostles were writ by one, who, living in that Age wherein the Gifts of the Spirit flourished, certainly knew that such accompanied Baptism.

7. To all which may be added, That, seeing the Author of the Acts of the Apostles and of the Gospel according to Luke is the same, and since the Scope of both is to recommend to Men the most consummate Piety and Probity with all Honesty and Simplicity or Truth in Words and Actions, 'tis altogether incredible a Writer so pious and serious, as he seems, would be knowingly guilty of a Lye so elaborate and so often repeated, as almost an hundred times to have insinuated, that he was the Companion of the Apostle Paul in his Travels. To forge Books in the Name of another is a thing not so unusual. But for one to introduce himself as a Party in a Counterfeit History, is I believe without a Precedent. But this by the Bye. I return to the Matter.

8. This last is indeed a Noble kind of Argument, by which both the Truth and Antiquity of the foresaid five Books is demonstrated. From hence verily that such things are found in each, as in the Opinion of any Counterfeit Writer whatever, could not but obstruct their own Belief. Nor is there any way of avoiding the force of this Argument. For if it be objected, That they might feign as if they were sincere in this Matter, that thereby they might obtain Belief in a thing of far greater Moment, namely that by this means they might perswade Men they lived and wrote in the Age of Jesus of Nazareth, whereby they might hope to approve to Posterity the Predictions dictions and Miracles which they relate, the Anſwer is eaſy: For beſides that 'tis impoſſible they ſhould by this Simulation perſwade Men that their fictitious Books were written ſo timely, and lay hid for ſeveral hundred Years, or at leaſt a long time, Notwithſtanding the vaſt Advantage which would thence in all appearance have accru'd to the Church if they had been made publick ſo ſoon as written: Beſides, I ſay, that this Impoſſibility could not but be known to them, as being ſo groſs and conſpicuous; even themſelves moreover could not but fear, if they had ſo writ the above-mention'd Predictions of Chriſt in Matthew, Mark and John, as now we find 'em, leſt by this means they ſhould take away all Authority from Chriſt, and ſo render their Writings altogether uſeleſs, and hinder all Belief of other Prophecies and Miracles related by them; and bring to paſs, that if any Prophecy were anſwer'd by the Event, it ſhould be imputed to Chance rather than a Prophetick Spirit. 'Tis manifeſt, I ſay, ſeeing they muſt of neceſſity foreſee that by this way of Writing they would fruſtrate the very end they propoſed, that theſe Books were not writ by ſuch Falſifiers, but by ſome who lived in the Age of Jeſus of Nazareth, and certainly knew that what they wrote was true, to wit, that ſo Jeſus ſo Zacharias ſpoke, without being anxious either about the Event or Interpretation. Now ſo to Counterfeit a thing as to loſe the end thereby deſign'd, is moſt fooliſh, and is incident to none but who are ſuch in the ſuperlative degree.

9. As to the Prophecies of Chriſt recorded, Matth. 24. 'tis not to be wondred at if the Oracles are there ſo briefly and confuſedly deliver'd, and with ſo obſcure diſtinction of Times, ſithing that Spirit by which Chriſt ſpoke, knew how to improve that Confuſion, deſigning in due time to diſplay in their diſtinct Orders all Events that were to befal the Church, or the World in ſo far as the Church was concerned. This 'tis manifeſt he has perform'd in the Apocalypſe. Which Book is writ with an Artifice ſo divine, and approved and confirmed by ſo many and ſo notable Events, that it were verily the higheſt Madneſs to ſuſpect it could be the Contrivance of any Forger. Now that the Holy Ghoſt ſhould have taken care to have all the Affairs of the Church from the Times of Chriſt to the End of the World foretold Prophetically, and yet not to have thoſe of Chriſt and his Apoſtles done in that Age timely recorded, is moſt ridiculous to believe.

10. But that this alſo has been done we have in a twofold manner moſt firmly demonſtrated, both by that more Extrinſick Way of our own, and alſo by this of Borelius digg'd as it were out of the very Bowels of the Evangelical Writings themſelves. For by that more External Method of mine, I have made appear with undeniable Evidence, That it is impoſſible but that the Life of Jeſus of Nazareth was timely writ, even within the Age wherein he liv'd, by ſome Authors worthy of Belief, (namely either by Eye-witneſſes of the Tranſactions, or thoſe that receiv'd them from ſuch) and conſequently that the four well known Evangeliſts were of this ſort. But now for the further Confirmation of our Concluſion, by this more Intrinſick Method of Borelius 'tis moreover added, That thoſe four Goſpels, as alſo the Acts of the Apoſtles are Books writ in ſuch a manner, as Evidences manifeſt enough appear in them that they could not be written in another Age than that wherein Jeſus of Nazareth lived; and that it is not poſſible they can be ſuppoſititious, but were faithfully writ by ſuch Authors as is pretended.

The Sum of the whole matter comes to this; That it manifeſtly appears that ſome Books of the Life of Chriſt and Actions of the Apoſtles were writ even in their Age; and that theſe five which the Church receives as Canonical, have theſe Native Characters which plainly perſwade they could not be writ in any other time. Inſomuch, that whoſoever can entertain any doubt about a matter ſo certain muſt not only be Sceptical but Stupid.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIV.

1. Other Proofs, That the Life of Chriſt was writ by his Apoſtles or his Followers, out of Grotius. 2. An Anſwer to a fooliſh ſurmiſe that thoſe Records writ by the Apoſtles might be all burnt. 3. That the Copies have not been Corrupted by either Careleſsneſs or Fraud.

1. THis twofold Method of Demonſtration may abundantly ſuffice to prove that the Hiſtory of the Life of Chriſt was writ ſo timely as I affirm, and namely by ſome of his own Apoſtles, and thoſe that were Coetaneous to them, particularly by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, according as the Title of each Goſpel does import. But we will not neglect to mention what Grotius alſo makes uſe of in this place, viz. That theſe Goſpels are cited under theſe Names by Juſtin, Irenæus and Clemens, the firſt Fathers of the Church: That Tertullian affirms that in his time the Originals of ſome of them were extant, tho' betwixt an hundred and two hundred Years after they were written: That all the Churches acknowledged them as Authentick, before there was any calling of Councils about that matter: That neither Jew nor Pagan ever made any controverſy thereof: That Julian, tho' an Enemy to Chriſtianity, did expreſly confeſs that theſe Writings that are under the name of Peter, Paul, Matthew, Mark, Luke, were indeed their Writings: And laſtly, That it is as fond and abſurd a thing to doubt thereof, as to queſtion whether thoſe Poems that go under Homer and Virgil's Names be in very deed their Poems or no. Which Arguments certainly cannot but have their due weight with them that are not over-pervicacious: But, as I think, I had ſufficiently evinced the Concluſion before.

2. Againſt which I do not ſee what the moſt perverſe Wit can invent or object, unleſs he will ſay, That the firſt Records the Evangeliſts wrote, and the faithful Copies taken from them, were burnt, and that theſe that we have now-adays are an After-Forgery of the Church. Which is as bold and fooliſh an Allegation, as if a Son, who did not like his ſhare appointed him in his Father's Will, tho' the Will appear as Authentick as any can do, ſhould pretend that they had burnt the true Will, and forged this to his damage: Whenas yet he cannot prove the leaſt tittle of this Imputation. Nay I may ſay that Allegation is far more fooliſh than this. For this may be feaſable, to burn a ſingle Writing, and then make a new one in the ſtead. But it is altogether impoſſible for the Enemies of the Church ever to have ſuppreſſed or made away with thoſe Firſt true Copies of the Goſpel; which doubtleſs were in the Cuſtody of many thouſand Perſons in ſeveral parts of the World. For the Writings being ſo very little in bulk, and of ſo great concernment, what Chriſtian would not have a Copy of them that was but able to read? Beſides that there is not the leaſt hint in Hiſtory of any ſuch thing. Nor indeed can any Hiſtorian witneſs of matters of this kind. For who could aſſure him, if there had been any attempt of burning them, that they were all burnt? And if any were but left, they would multiply again in a moment: And that but few would be delivered up, we may be very well aſſured, when they bore ſuch Love to that Truth they contained, that they preferred it before their own Lives. Not to mention that it is ſufficiently evident from the Native Characters of theſe Writings, that they are the very ſame which were at firſt writ by the Apoſtles or their Diſciples.

3. It is therefore undoubtedly true, that the Copies that we have this Day of the Evangeliſts are Tranſcripts from their firſt Originals, without any Interruption. The only Scruple that remains now is concerning our third and laſt Concluſion, whether they may not be altered and depraved in ſome meaſure in ſo long Succeſſion of Time, either by Chance, or the pious Frauds of the Church. To which I anſwer in the firſt place, That it is incredible but that the Goſpels ſhould eſcape as well as the Writings of Plato, Ariſtotle, or Tully, if we look at only ſuch Alterations as may proceed from the heedleſneſs of the Tranſcribers; and yet no Man doubteth but that their Writings do now fully Communicate their Minds to the World concerning thoſe things they do declare, as fully ſurely and perfectly as they themſelves at firſt writ them. And as for any pious Frauds of the Church, I anſwer, That the Church was more ſimple and honeſt in the Apoſtolical Times and ſome Ages after, within which compaſs ſo many Copies of the Goſpel were extant, and ſo diſperſed throughout the World, that they could not adulterate thoſe Writings, tho' they ſhould have never ſo much deſired to do it. For it. For as I have ſaid already, thoſe Writings being of ſo little a bulk, and conſequently the Tranſcription of them ſo eaſy, the Copies would be multiplied almoſt equally to the number of Chriſtians, I mean of thoſe that could read; and being ſo Holy a Writ, the Tranſciption be made with all poſſible care and circumſpection. For certainly Chriſtians were very ſerious in their Religion in thoſe Days. Beſides it is very reaſonable to believe, that a ſpecial Providence would keep off both Chance and Fraud from wronging ſo Sacred Writings in any thing material; and if not material, what are they the worſe? Not to mention how Awe and Reverence to ſuch Holy Writings would naturally hold them off from mingling any thing by way of fraud or intermeddling with them: And the Effect makes good this preſage. For in peruſing of them we plainly diſcover that Harmony and Agreement of one part with another, and ſuch an uniform Order of things, that we may be well aſſured that there is nothing ſpurious or adulterate foiſted into the Text. The multitude of various Lections alſo further confirms our Concluſion; which is an argument of the multitudes of Copies I ſpoke of: And the collection of theſe various readings a Teſtimony even of the faithfulneſs of theſe later Ages of the Church, and of the high Reverence they had to theſe Records, in that they would not ſo much as embeſel the various Readings of them, but keep them ſtill on foot for the prudent to judge of. And laſtly, upon peruſal of thoſe various Readings, the clear diſcovery that nothing at all is loſt of the Truth of Chriſtian Religion by any of them (and conſequently no detriment or prejudice done to any but ſuch as are more for Factions and Opinions than the real Power of Godlineſs) this alſo ratifies the Truth we drive at, namely, That thoſe Copies of the Goſpel which we daily peruſe are incorrupted, and that therefore thoſe things contained in them are certainly true, as being writ by the Pens of thoſe who had ſufficient Knowledge of what they declare, being either Eye-witneſſes of the ſame, or conferring with them that were, and both of that unſuſpected Integrity, that the like is not to be found in any Witneſſes elſe in the World.

CHAP. XV.

1. More particular Characters of the Perſon of the Meſſiah in the Prophecies. 2. His being Born at Bethlehem. 3. And that of a Virgin. 4. His curing the Lame and the Blind. 5. The piercing of his Hands and Feet.

1. THus have we undeniably demonſtrated the Truth of the Goſpel and the things therein contained, and conſequently the Certainty and Reality of the Chriſtian Religion: Which being done, we can now more ſeaſonably add ſome few Characters more of the Perſon of the Meſſiah ſo particular and expreſs, that it may juſtly raviſh us with the admiration of ſo punctual a Providence as is diſcoverable therefrom in Predictions and Prophecies. I will not inſtance in many, becauſe we have already finiſhed our deſign; and thoſe that Love to abound more in matters of this nature, may conſult others that have handled them more fully and copiouſly. We ſhall only reſume what we above-mentioned, of his being Born at Bethlehem, of the Family of David, and that of a Virgin; his making the Blind to ſee and the Lame to walk; the piercing of his Hands and Feet; their caſting Lots for his veſture; and that he prayed for thoſe that Crucified him. That theſe things were true of him, the Goſpel plainly teſtifies: And that they were Propheſied of him, is as plain out of the Prophecies of the Old Teſtament, which we ſhall here recite.

Micah 5. 2. 2. And firſt that of Micah, But thou Bethlehem Ephratah, tho' thou be little among the thouſands of Judah, yet out of thee ſhall he come forth unto me that is to be Ruler in Iſrael, whoſe goings forth are from old, from the Days of Eternity. This is a very particular deſcription of the Perſon of the Meſſiah from the place of his Birth. And it was the confeſſed gloſs of the chief Prieſts and Scribes upon this Text, as appears, Matth. 2. 4, 5. To which Epiſcopius adds the ſuffrage of the Chaldee Paraphraſt and R. Solomon Jarchi. But that which makes this prediction and the Divine Providence more admirable are the Circumſtances of its completion. For Bethlehem was not the Town of abode of either Joſeph or Mary, nor went they thither at that time of their own accord, nor upon an ordinary occaſion: But Auguſtus, (ſurely not without ſome ſpecial ſpecial Incitation from above,) made a Decree that all the World, that is, all under the Roman Empire ſhould have their Names enrolled in publick Records. Wherefore all went to be enrolled, every one into his own City. Whence it was that Joſeph alſo went up from Galilee out of the City of Nazareth into Judæa, unto the City of David which is called Bethlehem, becauſe he was of the Houſe and Linage of David, to be enrolled with Mary his eſpouſed Wife, being great with Child. Whence, as Grotius would infer, it is evident that Mary was of the Houſe of David, as well as Joſeph, elſe ſhe would have reſorted to the City of her own Stock or Kindred, and not to Bethlehem. But the admirable Hand of Providence that all take notice of in this matter, is this, That from this Act it was ſo manifeſt to all the World, that Chriſt was of the Linage of David, and was, according to the Prophecy, born at Bethlehem. A thing, which if it had not been true, the Jews could have eaſily confuted. But the Chriſtians were able to make good what they aſſerted, by appealing to theſe Records kept in the Roman Archiva, and were to be ſeen, as Juſtin, Tertullian and Chryſoſtome do affirm, even in their Ages; which blows away all the fooliſh and fabulous Parachroniſms of the Jews concerning the time of Jeſus at one Blaſt.

3. The next Character of his Perſon is that he was to be born of a Virgin. Which the Evangeliſts affirm he was, and two Prophecies predict he ſhould be. The firſt, Geneſis 3. from God's own Mouth, That the Seed of the Woman ſhould break the Serpent's Head; which Seed certainly was Chriſt, who could not be properly called the Seed of the Woman more than the Seed of the Man, but that it was a Prefiguration that Chriſt ſhould be born of a Virgin without the Help of a Man.

The other Prophecy is that of Iſaiah, ch. 7. v. 14. therefore the Lord himſelf ſhall give you a Sign: Behold, a Virgin ſhall conceive, and bear a Son, and ſhall call his Name Immanuel.

This Phrophecy, I confeſs, is applicable, and that with much eaſe and perſpicuity, to ſome certain Maid or Virgin, ſuppoſe one that the Prophet Eſay was to take to Wife, at the time he ſpoke this Prophecy to King Ahaz. The firſt Senſe whereof is only this, That within ſuch a Compaſs of time that this Maid ſhould be married, bring forth, and educate her Infant, that is to ſay, within the time of his Infancy, the Syrian and Iſraelitical Forces ſhould unſucceſsfully leave Judæa, and in the interim there ſhould be no ſuch Scarcity as was feared by Ahaz, which is intimated in that Phraſe, Butter and Honey ſhall he eat, &c. The Name alſo of the Child was therefore called Immanuel, God with us, becauſe he was uſed as a Sign of God's ſpecial Aſſiſtance and Providence over Ahaz and his Kingdom.

Moreover I cannot affirm that any of the ancient or modern Jews ever interpreted this Prophecy of the Meſſiah. Of which notwithſtanding, there can be no worſe Conſequence than this, That the firſt meaning thereof being ſo eaſie and obvious, and made good by Event, and none of the Jews ever venturing to apply it to the Meſſiah, that nothing but the certain Knowledge of the Evangeliſt, that Chriſt was indeed thus born, could move him to make this Application of it to the manner of his Birth. But that being certainly known, as alſo that Principle of the Jewiſh מרש of giving a higher and fuller Senſe to the Hiſtorical or Prophetical Paſſages in the Old Teſtament (all things hapning to them in Types) it were impoſſible but that this Interpretation ſhould be made of this Prophecy; it belonging more perfectly and properly to Chriſt, than to Iſaiah's Son: whoſe Mother was only a Virgin before ſhe was his Mother, but Mary the Mother of Chriſt, was a Virgin both before and after; and the Prophet's Son was merely a nominal Immanuel, but Chriſt was truly God with us, in whom the fulneſs of the Godhead dwelt bodily: And laſtly, the Prophet bidding Ahaz ask a Sign of God, either in the Depth, or in the Height above, it is plain that by a Sign is meant ſome wonderful prodigious Sign out of the Courſe of Nature. And therefore when the Prophet ſaies, God himſelf will give a Sign, Behold, a Virgin ſhall conceive and bear a Son, &c. it is manifeſt, that this Sign is to be prodigious or preternatural; which was never fully, nor properly accompliſhed before the true Emmanuel was born of his ever-bleſſed Mother the Virgin Mary. For the Deliverance of Judæa from the two Kings within the ſpace of the Child's Infancy, was not a Sign, but the thing ſignified, and a Type of the great Deliverance to be wrought by Chriſt. What the Jews cavil concerning the Word עלמה, is very weak and frivolous. They that know any thing in the Hebrew Tongue, are well aſſured that עלמה ſignifies properly a Virgin, ſuch as never knew a Man. Which appears both from the Derivation, and the conſtant uſe of its Signification. To which you may add, That it is thus tranſlated in this very place by Onkelos, Jonathan and the Seventy: Inſomuch that this Prophecy ſeems to me more certainly to be applicable to Chriſt in the moſt proper ſenſe thereof than any Prophecy elſe (which has any other reference than to him alone) that was ever applied to the Meſſiah by the Jews themſelves.

4. That of the Lame, the Deaf and Blind, is in Iſaiah Ch. 35. v. 5. Then ſhall the Eyes of the Blind be opened, and the Ears of the Deaf ſhall be unſtopped. Then ſhall the lame Man leap as an Hart, and the Tongue of the Dumb ſing. Which Words, though they may have a Metaphorical Completion in the days of Hezekiah, yet there is no Queſtion but the proper and real fulfilling of them, was intended for the Meſſiah, as is very ſutable to what goes immediately before, verſ. 4. Behold, your God will come, he will come and ſave you. And certainly God could never be ſaid to come ſo properly at any time, as in the Perſon of our bleſſed Saviour, who is rightly ſtiled God bleſſed for ever, Rom. 9. 5.

5. My laſt inſtance ſhall be Pſalm 22. which the ancient Rabbins do freely and apertly confeſs to be a Prophecy concerning the Meſſiah. In which ſome particular Paſſages, however expreſs and preciſe, did never happen to any other that they can entitle to the Pſalm, but did punctually and literally happen to him: As that verſ 18. They parted my Garments among them, and caſt Lots upon my Veſture: which is verified exactly Matth. 27. v. 35. And then again verſe 16. The Aſſembly of the wicked have encloſed me, they pierced my Hands and my Feet. I know not whether I ſhould add alſo verſe 14. I am poured out like Water; and parallel it with John 19. v. 34. or mention here that of Eſaias, whilſt we treat of the Paſſion of Chriſt; And made Interceſſion for the Tranſgreſſors; comparing it in like manner with Luke 23. 34. Father forgive them, for they know not what they do. But the particular Prediction of that former Circumſtance, ſeems admirable, that the manner of his Death ſhould be ſo punctually ſet down by the Prophet. For this was very really and literally fulfilled in his Crucifixion; wherein the Hands and Feet of Malefactors were pierced with Nails whereby they were faſtned to the Croſs. Nor ought the various Readings of כארי and ירו weaken the Force and Perfectneſs of this Prediction: For when they have made the beſt they can of it, yet are they, whether they will or no, forced to acknowledge that there is ſome ſpecial Execution or Mangling done on the Hands and Feet, by the ſenſe of the Text. But that it is juſt ſo to be underſtood as we ordinarily interpret it, the Suffrage of the moſt Learned of the Jews themſelves, as Jacob ben Chaſim, Moſes Hadarſan, and the Seventy do ſufficiently confirm. To which alſo the Expoſition of the Chaldee Paraphraſt, Aquila, and the Maſora contribute ſomething. To which we may add, That כארי without another word, is not Senſe, and that there might by ſome neglect of the Tranſcribers firſt be a change of כרו into כארו, which ſound both alike; and then of כארו into כארי, which are writ almoſt alike, ו and י having no difference but of bigneſs, and that not much, and therefore are very often confounded. This is more likely than the leaving out a whole word, which they that read כארי do. The Allegation alſo of Grotius againſt this reading, does not want its weight, namely, that the Similitude of the Lion is uſed but three Verſes before, and therefore not likely to be uſed again ſo ſoon, eſpecially it being mentioned alſo ſome four Verſes after. Laſtly, the Event ought to make an end of this Critical Controverſie with thoſe that are not prejudiced. And tho' it will not ſtop the Mouths of the Contumacious, yet it will chear the Hearts of thoſe that are pious and rational with the Pleaſure of the Contemplation of ſo punctual a Providence over the Affairs of Men.

See Grotius on Pſal. 22. v. 18.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVI.

1 That if the Goſpel of Chriſt had been falſe and fabulous, it would not have had that Succeſs at Jeruſalem by the Preaching of the Apoſtles. 2. The Severity alſo of the Precepts, and other Hardſhips to be undergone, would have kept Men off from being Chriſtians. 3. As alſo the Incredibleneſs of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, and of our being rewarded at the Conflagration of the World. 4, 5. The Meanneſs alſo and Contemptibleneſs of the firſt Authors would have turned Men off, nor would they have been liſtned to by any one, if the Reſurrection of Chriſt had not been fully aſcertain'd by them. 6. Which the Apoſtles might be ſure of, being only matter of Fact; nor is it imaginable they would declare it without being certain of it, by reaſon of the great Hazards they underwent thereby.

1. I Might note other remarkable Particulars out of this Pſalm and other places that do contribute to the more punctual characterizing the Perſon of Chriſt; but I have already exceeded the limits of my own Deſign, which was to engage in theſe things only ſo far as might ſuffice to demonſtrate the Reality of the Myſtery we treat of: Which when we have confirmed by one Argument more, and anſwered an Objection or two, we ſhall then put an end to this Third Part of our Diſcourſe.

The laſt Argument therefore is briefly this: A Religion ſo unaſſiſted by Men, nay, ſo oppoſite to them, both their natural Belief and Intereſt, could never have ſpred it ſelf ſo in the World, if it had been falſe and fabulous, and not really true at the bottom. How mightily it ſpred it ſelf, appears out of the Hiſtory of the Goſpel and the Acts of the Apoſtles, as alſo out of the Epiſtles of St. Paul, even then when the greateſt Oppoſers of it, the Jews, were ready upon the ſpot to withſtand it, to whom it was neceſſary for them firſt to preach it, and who had opportunity of enquiring diligently, and ſeaching into the truth of matter of Fact, in every thing that was alledged by the Apoſtles after the Paſſion of Chriſt, as done by him, or hapning to him, or done by themſelves, after they had received the Gift of the Holy Ghoſt according to Promiſe, and wrought ſuch Miracles as he did. There were many thouſands of the Jews converted, whom it is impoſſible to imagine, at leaſt all of them [and the more inquiſitive and ſagacious might have undeceived the reſt] to have been ſo ſupine and careleſs, as not to enquire diligently into things in a matter of ſo great importance as their Eternal Salvation, and of ſo preſent Damage and Loſs to them, that they forfeited the Favour of all their Countrymen, and unavoidably charged them and their Rulers with the moſt impious Crime that ever Mortals could commit.

2. But the Succeſs reſted not here, but reached out of Judæa into all Parts of the Roman Empire, there being gained innumerable Companies of Believers every where, till at laſt whole Nations, Kingdoms and Scepters, and, in a word, the whole Roman Empire became Chriſtian. This is the Truth of the Story, which no Man can deny; and that this Story could not be true, unleſs the Chriſtian Religion be true alſo, I mean thoſe miraculous things which are recorded of Chriſt and his Apoſtles, is further demonſtrable, as well from the harſhneſs as the incredibility of the Doctrine of this Religion, as alſo from the weakneſs and contemptibleneſs of the firſt Founders and Diſſeminators of it. For whether we conſider the Precepts of Chriſtianity which muſt be obeyed, or Things to be believed; the Precepts verily are moſt ſtrict and ſevere, very unkind and unwelcome to Fleſh and Blood, ſuch as the Animal Life cannot at all reliſh or entertain, unleſs ſome extraordinary thing be adjoyned, that forces their admittance. Self-denial, Mortification, the putting a Man in a way of neceſſary or very probable Perſecutions and Afflictions from without, beſides the renouncing of thoſe Pleaſures that no external Power hinders him of, can be no acceptable News to the natural Man. Beſides the Scoffs and Reproaches of the World that would undoubtedly follow their change of Religion: Which change could not but ſeem ſtill more grievous and intolerable, in that it was to be whole and entire from the preſent Superſtition they were educated in, which they were utterly to renounce. Whence their Hazard and Infamy could not but be greater.

3. In the undergoing of which Hardſhips, they had nothing to ſuſtain themſelves but the Belief of ſuch things which a man would think might ſtartle them moſt of all; that is, their Reward after this Life, no other ways aſcertained to them, but by the riſing of one from the Dead after he had been three Days buried; which was exhibited to them as a Pledge of that bleſſed Reſurrection which thoſe that embraced the Chriſtian Doctrine ſhould enjoy at the burning of the World, and turning the Earth into Aſhes and Cinders. A thing ſo incredible to human Wit, that no man, unleſs he was really convinced by ſome infallible way that it was ſo indeed, could ever admit of, or abſtain from denying with an Addition of Scoffs and Deriſion, as it fell out with the Epicureans and Stoicks, Acts 17. 18. Wherefore without all Controverſie, the firſt Embracers of Chriſtianity entertained it upon no other Terms but manifeſt Proof of Eye-witneſſes, and the Evidence of ſuch Perſons as they ſaw very faithful and ſerious, and as had the Effect of this great Power of God, that raiſed Jeſus Chriſt from the Dead, manifeſtly reſiding upon themſelves, whereby they were able to do Miracles; as is alſo recorded in the Acts of the Apoſtles.

4. Now for the Firſt Authors and Founders of this Religion, how weak and contemptible they were, as to worldly Concernments, appears plainly from hence, that they were not recommended to the World either for their Nobility of Birth, or Skill in human Arts and Sciences, nor had they any ſecular Power to aſſiſt them, nor any Force of Arms to either overcome others, or defend themſelves, for all they were expoſed to ſo great and imminent Dangers perpetually. Our Saviour himſelf was but of mean Parentage, a Carpenter's Son, crucified betwixt two Thieves as a heinous Malefactor. What therefore can there be imaginable that ſhould move his Apoſtles and Diſciples to adhere to him ſo faithfully after his Death, and to expoſe themſelves with ſuch an undaunted Courage to all manner of Jeopardies, all manner of Sufferings, Whippings, Impriſonments, long Journies, Tortures unſufferable, and Death it ſelf? What ſhould cauſe them to diſturb their own Peace ſo, and the Peace of all Men, if there were not ſome very miraculous thing at the bottom, and ſuch as was worthy to alarm all the World? What Meſſage could they have brought to thoſe ſeveral Nations they travelled to, that themſelves would not be aſhamed of carrying, if it had been only ſo, That the Jews had crucified one Jeſus, the Son of Joſeph a Carpenter, betwixt two Thieves at Jeruſalem, who yet was a very good and juſt Man? It may be ſo, would the Gentiles ſay; more ſhame for them; what is that to us? But this Man was the promiſed Meſſiah, and did very ſtrange Miracles, caſt out Devils, healed all manner of Diſeaſes, and was declared the Son of God by an audible Voice from the Heavens. As for the Miracles you mention, would the Gentile reply, we have heard ſtrange Things done by thoſe that are called Magicians; and we had no Acquaintance with the Party you ſpeak of, to diſcern whether he was ſo good as you pretend. For Mens Judgments are ordinarily partial, and byaſs'd by Affection and Friendſhip: And it is ſtrange, that if he were ſo good as you make him, and declared from the Clouds to be the Son of God, that God would ſuffer him ſo ignominiouſly to die betwixt two Thieves on the Croſs. Which is a Sign that if he did any Miracles, they were but from ſuch Powers as are ſubject to the Magiſtrate, and through that faithful Providence that attends the Affairs of Men, can do nothing when the Magician is apprehended, impriſoned and condemned. Truly if there had been no more than this in the Story, it ſeems impoſſible that the Cauſe ſhould have had ſuch Succeſs, as by the Event it appears it has had.

5. Wherefore certainly the Firſt Preachers of the Goſpel added to all this, to the Admiration and Aſtoniſhment of the Hearers, That this Jeſus, whom the Jews had thus crucified, was by the miraculous Hand of God, raiſed out of the Grave the third Day; That after his Reſurrection he converſed with his Diſciples both apart and together; That he was ſeen of above Five hundred Brethren at once; That he ſtaid upon Earth for * Forty Days, and was ſeen viſibly afterward to aſcend into Heaven. Which things, as they were above all Expectation marvellous, and did, if they were true, fully argue not only the Innocency, but tranſcendent Divinity of the Perſon of Jeſus; ſo were they ſo incredible, that none could believe them, eſpecially to their preſent Peril, unleſs from ſuch as were Eye-witneſſes of the ſame, and could ſend them to many more that were Eye-witneſſes, and of unſuſpected Integrity of Life; or for the better Compendium, ſhewed that they were true Meſſengers ſent from God, by ſome Signs or Miracles they did upon the ſpot.

* Acts 1. v. 3.

6. This

6. This therefore was the main of their meſſage, which was nothing but matter of Fact, which themſelves knew certainly to be true, and ſeriouſly and earneſtly declared it to the World, not by any Art or Eloquence. For the Apoſtles were but poor illiterate Perſons, Fiſhermen, Publicans, and the like, had no other Weapons to win Men to the Faith, but by a ſimple, tho' earneſt and ſerious, narration of thoſe things they knew for certain, and did avouch with that confidence, that they gave up their Eaſe, Livelihood and Lives, for a pledge of the Truth thereof. Which Teſtimony could not poſſibly be falſe, it being (as I ſaid before) concerning matter of Fact, namely, the Reſurrection of Chriſt, wherein ſo many could not be deceived: Nor is it imaginable how they ſhould go about to deceive others againſt their own Conſciences, or without ſufficient Knowledge avouch a thing that gained them nothing but perpetual Hatred and ill Will, Impriſonments, Tortures and Death. In the mean time, by theſe poor contemptible Inſtruments, that had neither Political Power on their ſide (but were oppreſſed by it) nor had any Art nor Eloquence (excepting only Paul, who yet made uſe of neither) and by Succeſſion of ſuch as they had Converted, within a few Ages all the World in a manner ſwarmed with Chriſtians of all Qualities and Degrees, Noble and Ignoble, Learned and Unlearned, tho' invited thereto by no ſecular Advantage, but rather being perpetually expoſed to Miſery and Perſecution. All which things ſeriouſly conſidered together with the exactneſs and perſpicuity of Prophecies concerning the Meſſiah, cannot but ſeem to any indifferent Judge a Demonſtration for the Truth of Chriſtian Religion no leſs certain than Mathematical.

CHAP. XVII.

1. Objections of the Jews againſt their Meſſiah's being come, anſwered. 2. A pompous Evaſion of the Ariſtotelean Atheiſts ſuppoſing all Miracles and Apparitions to be the Effects of the Intelligences and Heavenly Bodies. 3. Vaninus his reſtraint of the Hypotheſis to one Anima Cœli. 4. His intolerable Pride and Conceitedneſs. 5. A Confutation of him and the Ariſtotelean Atheiſm from the Motion of the Earth. 6. That Vaninus his Subterfuge is but a Self-contradiction. 7. That Chriſtianity's ſucceeding Judaiſm is by the ſpecial Counſel of God, not by the Influence of the Stars. 8. Cardanus his high folly in calculating the Nativity of our Saviour, with a demonſtration of the groundleſneſs of Vaninus his exultation in his impious boldneſs of making Mahomet, Moſes and Chriſt ſidereal Law-givers of like Authority. 9. That the Impudence and Impiety of theſe two vain glorious Pretenders conſtrains the Author more fully to lay open the frivolouſneſs of the Principles of Aſtrology.

1. THE * Objections we were a mentioning are from two Hands; from the Jew, or from the Atheiſt. That from the Jew is chiefly this, That the Condition of the times under Chriſt is not conformable to what is Propheſied concerning the times of the Meſſiah. There is not that Peace and Concord, no not in Chriſtendom it ſelf, neither in the Church nor State; nor is Idolatry extirpated, nor the Iſraelites replanted and ſettled in their own Land: All which things notwithſtanding are foretold to come to paſs in the Days of the Meſſiah. Whence, ſay they, it is plain he is not yet come. But I briefly anſwer. 1. That the Prophetical Promiſes of the Coming of the Meſſiah were abſolute, as I have * already noted, the Extent of the Effect of his coming Conditional; Men being free Agents, and not fatal Actors, in all things, as the Jews themſelves cannot deny. 2. That the nature of the Goſpel tends altogether to the accompliſhing of thoſe Promiſes of Univerſal Peace and Righteouſneſs, and did begin fair in the firſt times of the Church as much as reſpects the Church it ſelf. 3. That whatever Relapſe or Stop there has been ſince, things are not ſo hopeleſs but in time they may be amended; and that they, in thoſe Days when they are true Converts to Chriſt, may, if they will then deſire it, return to their own Land. But after this ſerious Converſion and real Renovation of their Spirits into a true Chriſtian State, I cannot believe they will continue ſo childiſh as to value ſuch things; but will find themſelves in the Spiritual Canaan already, and on their march to that Jeruſalem which is above, the Mother of us all, and that it will not be in the Power of any but themſelves to turn them out of the way.

* Chap. 16. ſect. 1.

* See Book 7. chap. 1. ſect. 6.

2. The

2. The other Objection, or rather Evaſion of that wholeſome uſe that may be made of the Truth of the Hiſtory of Chriſt, is from that ſort of Atheiſts that love to be thought Ariſtoteleans: For there are two chief kinds of Atheiſm, Epicurean and Ariſtotelean. The former denies all Incorporeal Subſtance whatſoever, and all Apparitions, Miracles and Prophecies that imply the ſame. Who are ſufficiently confuted already by this undeniable declaration we have made. The other are not againſt all Subſtances Incorporeal, nor againſt Prophecies, Apparitions and Miracles, tho' of the higheſt nature; inſomuch that they will allow the Hiſtory of Chriſt, his Reſurrection, and Appearance after Death, the Prophecies concerning him, and what not? But they have forſooth this witty Subterfuge to ſave themſelves from receiving any good therefrom, in imagining that there is no ſuch Particular Providence as we would infer from hence, becauſe all this may be done by the Influence of the Celeſtial Bodies, actuated by the Intelligences appertaining to each Sphere, and deriving in a natural way from him that ſits on the higheſt of the Orbs ſuch influences as according to certain Periodical courſes of Nature will produce new Law-givers, induing them with a Power of working Miracles, aſſiſting them by Apparitions and Viſions of Angels, making them ſeem to be where they are not, and appear after they ceaſe to be, namely after their Death: When in the mean-time there be neither Angels, nor Souls ſeparate, but all theſe things are the tranſient Effects of the Power of the Heavens and Configuration of the Celeſtial Bodies, which ſlacks by degrees, and ſo the Influence of the Stars failing, one Religion decays and another gets up. Thus Judaiſm has given place to Chriſtianity, and Chriſtianity in a great part of the World to Mahometiſm, being all but Eſtabliſhments reſulting from the mutable courſe of Nature, not by the immediate Finger of God, who keeps his Throne in the Eighth ſphere, and intermeddles not with Humane Affairs in any particular way, but only aloof off hands down, by the help and mediation of the Celeſtial Intelligences and Power of the Stars, ſome general caſts of Providence upon the Generations of the Earth.

3. A goodly ſpeculation indeed, and well befitting ſuch two witty Fools in Philoſophy as Pomponatius and Vaninus: The latter of which ſeems not to give himſelf up to this fine figment altogether fully and conformably to the Ancient Doctrine of Ariſtotle, but having a great pique againſt Incorporeal Beings, is exceedingly deſirous to leſſen their number as much as he can, and ſeems pleaſed that he has found out, That one only Soul of the Heavens will ſerve as effectually to do all theſe things as the Ariſtotelean Intelligences; and therefore ever and anon doubts of thoſe, and eſtabliſheth this as the only Intellectual or Immaterial Principle and higheſt Deity; but ſuch as acts no otherwiſe than in a natural way by Periodical Influences of the Heavenly Bodies. Where you may obſerve the Craft and Subtility of the Man, what a care he has of his own ſafety, and how he has Impriſoned the Divinity in thoſe upper Rooms for fear of the worſt, that he may be as far out of his reach as the Earth is from the Moon. So cautious a Counſeller in theſe matters is an evil and degenerate Conſcience.

4. This is the chiefeſt Arcanum that the Amphitheatrum and famed Dialogues of this ſtupendious Wit will afford; who was ſo tickled and tranſported with a conceit of his own parts, that in that latter Book he cannot refrain from writing down himſelf a very God for Wiſdom and Knowledge. Whenas, aſſuredly, there was never any Man's Pride and Conceitedneſs exceeded the proportion of his Wit and Parts ſo much as his. For there is nothing conſiderable in him but what that odd and crooked Writer Hieronymus Cardanus had, tho' more modeſtly, vented to the World before: Only Vaninus added thereto a more rank taſte of bold Impiety and Prophaneneſs.

5. I have elſewhere intimated how the attributing ſuch noble Events to the Power of the Stars is nothing but a rotten relick of the ancient Pagan Superſtition; and have in my Book Of the * Immortality of the Soul plainly enough demonſtrated that there is no ſuch inherent Divinity in the Celeſtial Bodies as that ancient Superſtition has avouched or modern Philoſophaſters would imagine. And I ſhall here evidently prove againſt this great Pretender, That his removal of the Deity to that diſtance from the Earth is impoſſible. For there are ſcarce any now that have the Face to profeſs themſelves Philoſophers, but do as readily acknowledge the Motion of the Earth, as they do the reality of the Antipodes, or the Circulation of the Blood. I would ask then Vaninus but this one queſtion, Whether he will not admit that the Sun is in that Heaven where he imagins his Anima Cœli; and whether this Heaven be not ſpread far beyond the Sun, and be not alſo the Reſidence of this Celeſtial Goddeſs of his. There is none is none will ſtick to anſwer for him, that it is doubtleſly ſo. Wherefore I ſhall forthwith infer, that let his unskilful Phanſy conceit us at this moment in as low a part of the Univerſe as he will, within the ſpace of ſix Months we ſhall be as far above or beyond the Sun as we are beneath him now, and yet we ſhall then phanſy our ſelves as much beneath him as before. Which plainly implies that our Earth and Moon ſwim in the liquid Heavens, which being every where, this Deity of Vaninus muſt be every where, tho' his degenerate Spirit was afraid of ſo Holy a Neighbourhood, nor could abide the belief of ſo preſent a Numen. Thus has the Annual Courſe of the Earth daſhed off all that Superſtitious Power and Sanctity that ancient Paganiſm has given and the Ariſtotelean Atheiſt would now give to the Sun, Planets and Stars; and we are forced even by the Light of Nature and Humane Reaſon to acknowledge the true Principle from whence all miraculous things come, that is, a God, every where preſent, in whom we live and move and have our Being.

* See Pref. ſect. 4. and Book 2. chap. 14.

6. Beſides this, ſuppoſe that all Prodigies, Apparitions and Prophecies were from the intermediate Influence of the Celeſtial Bodies, theſe Intelligences or that Anima Cœli working thereby upon the Perſons of Men, to inſpire them, and turning the Air into Repreſentations and Viſions to converſe with them; This Covering is too ſcant to hide the folly of this ſorry Sophiſt, his Suppoſition plainly ruining it ſelf. For he does acknowledge that thoſe Inſpirations and Prophecies are true that are thus derived from thoſe ſidereal Powers. But it is evident that thoſe that have been the moſt Illuſtrious Prophets, have had Converſe with Angels, and talked with them, and have ſo recorded the matter to the World. As for Example, the Prophet Daniel who diſcourſed with the Angel Gabriel; Chriſt alſo diſcourſed with Moſes and Elias on Mount Tabor, and Moſes with the Angel of God on Mount Sinai. Beſides Chriſt, who was ſo highly inſpired and aſſiſted from Heaven, has over and over again pronounced that a future Happineſs remaineth for the Good after this Life. All which, allowing them for a while to be the Dictates or Repreſentations of the Aſtral Influences, I demand of Vaninus, how he comes to be wiſer than thoſe that were ſo miraculouſly aſſiſted, and to know That theſe Viſions of Angels ſhould not be ſo as they that ſaw them have related, That Moſes and Elias ſhould not be the Spirits of Moſes and Elias, but only tranſient Figurations of the Air raiſed by the Influence of the Heavens. Moreover I would ask of him if he think that that Heavenly aſſiſtance that can according to his own acknowledgment inform Men of things to come at a thouſand Years diſtance, (for ſuch was the Prediction of the Death of Julius Cæſar in the Senate, tho' a matter very contingent,) cannot certainly inform them whom it pleaſes ſo wonderfully to aſſiſt, whether the Souls of Men be mortal or immortal, which is far more Cognoſcible to thoſe Æthereal Powers than the other. Wherefore this wretched Figment of his to excuſe himſelf from the acknowledgment of the Exiſtence of Angels or Dæmons, and the Subſiſtence of the Soul after Death, from which he ſo much abhors, will ſtand him in no ſtead, but argues him more intoxicated, whiffling and giddy, in admitting the truth of ſuch Narrations, and yet denying the genuine conſequences of them, than they that give no credence to the Narrations themſelves.

7. That which was objected of Chriſtianity juſtling out Judaiſm, and of Mahometiſm in a great part of the World juſtling out Chriſtianity, is partly falſe and partly nothing to the purpoſe. That Chriſtianity has properly juſtled out Judaiſm, is very falſe. For Judaiſm has rather been ripened into the perfection of Chriſtianity, than been ſtifled and ſufflaminated by any Counter-blaſt of thoſe ſidereal Influences he dreams of. For we ſee how things have gone on in one continued deſign from * Abraham to Chriſt, as the Prophecies and the Predictions in Scripture plainly teſtifie. God promiſed to Abraham that in his Seed all the Nations of the Earth ſhould be Bleſſed. Jacob foretells on his Death-bed, that the Jewiſh Polity and Religion ſhould not fail till the Meſſiah, a Jew and Son of Abraham, was come, to whom the gathering of the Gentiles ſhould be: And ſo in other * Prophecies which we have already recited and applied. From whence it is manifeſt, that it is the Hand and Counſel of God who is conſtant to himſelf, and whoſe Wiſdom and Providence reaches from end to end, that has begun and carried on this matter according to his own will and purpoſe, and not any Buſtles or Counter-blaſts of various Aſpects of the Heavenly Bodies, that do and undo according to the Diverſities and Contrarieties of their Schematiſms and Configurations.

* See Book 5. chap. 17. ſect. 2.

* Book 7. ch. 5, 7, 8.

8. Nor could any thing but Levity of Mind and Vain-glory move Cardan to ſo raſh an attempt as to pretend the Calculating of our Saviour's Nativity, whenas the Year of his Birth is ſo uncertain amongſt the moſt accurate Chronologers, and Aſtrology it ſelf it ſelf a thing wholly groundleſs and frivolous, as I ſhall demonſtrate anon. Nor is it any ſpecimen of his Wit, but of his groſs Impiety, ſo boldly to equalize the Riſe of Mahometiſm to that of Judaiſm and Chriſtianity, as if Moſes, Chriſt and Mahomet were all Aſtral Law-givers, alike aſſiſted and inſpired from the Influence of the Stars. A Conceit that Vaninus is ſo tranſported with, that he cannot tell what Ground to ſtand upon when he cites the paſſage out of Cardan, he is ſo tickled and intoxicated with Joy. But that this Exultation of his is very childiſh and groundleſs, appears both in that he falſly attributes Prophecies, Divine Laws and Miracles to the Influence of the Stars (a ſuperſtitious Error that ariſes only out of the Ignorance of the right Syſteme of the World ;) and then again (if it were true) that he imagines Mahomet (who was a meer crafty Politician, and did neither Miracles, nor could propheſie) to be a Law-giver ſet up by the miraculous Power of the Heavens, ſuch as enables Divine Law-givers and Prophets to do real Miracles. To which you may add the ridiculous Obſtinacy of this perverſe Sophiſt, who the more we give him of what he contends for, (viz. that Mahomet alſo is a Star-inſpired Prophet; that is to ſay, illuminated from the Anima Cœli, which, according to his Opinion, is the higheſt and moſt infallible Principle of Miracles and Divine Wiſdom) the more ample Teſtimony we have againſt his own Folly, that ſo peremptorily denies the Exiſtence of Dæmons, and Subſiſtence of the Soul after Death. Which are openly avouched by this third Witneſs of his own introducing : And therefore he abhorring ſo from ſuch Truths as are certainly dictated from the Celeſtial Bodies, did not exceſs of Pride and Conceitedneſs blind his Judgment, and make him ſenſeleſs, he could not but have found himſelf ſtung with that Laſh of the Satyriſt,

O curvæ in terris animæ, & cœleſtium inanes.

But I have even tired my ſelf with running the Wild-gooſe Chaſe after theſe fickle and fugitive Wits, whoſe careleſs Flirts and ſubſultorious Fancies are as numerous, as ſlight and weak, againſt the firm and immoveable Foundations of ſolid Reaſon and Religion.

9. I ſhould now paſs to the fourth Part of my Diſcourſe, did not the Reflection upon the inſufferable Impudence of Cardan, in pretending to caſt our Saviour's Nativity, and that villainous inſulting of Vaninus thereupon (as if all Religion was but an Influence of Nature, and tranſient Blaſt of the Stars) invite me, nay indeed even compel and provoke me, to lay open the Vanity of their accurſed Art, wherein they have combined together to blaſpheme God, and to make Religion contemptible and uſeleſs to the World.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. The general Plauſibilites for the Art of Aſtrology propounded. 2. The firſt Rudiments of the ſaid Art. The Qualities of the Planets, and their Penetrancy through the Earth. 3. That the Earth is as pervious to them as the Air, and of their Diviſion of the Zodiack into Trigons, &c. 4. The eſſential Dignities of the Planets. 5. Their accidental Dignities. 6. Of the Twelve Celeſtial Houſes, and the five ways of erecting a Scheme. 7. The Requiſiteneſs of the exact Knowledge of the moment of Time, and of the true Longitude and Latitude of the Place. 8. Direction what it is, and which the chiefeſt Directors or Significators. 9. Of the Αφέτης and Αναιρέτης, or Apheta and Anæreta, and the time when the Anæreta gives the fatal Stroke.

1. I Shall therefore make this ſhort Digreſſion to expoſe to your View the extreme Folly and Frivolouſneſs of the pretended Art of Aſtrology, whoſe main general Reaſons and particular Principles are in brief as follows.

Firſt, They alledge, that it is a thing beyond all Belief, that ſuch an innumerable Company of Stars, whoſe Light is not conſiderable, nor their Poſition ſo exact for Ornament, ſhould be made for nothing elſe but to look upon. Therefore, ſay they, there is ſome other Myſtery in it, and that they are endued with certain hidden Influences, and have their ſeveral peculiar Virtues, as diſtinct as the Herbs and Flowers of of the Field, and it is their Art of Aſtrology that profeſſeth the Knowledge thereof.

Again, The Earth and Water being ſuch ſimple Bodies as they are, the various Productions in Nature could not be, were it not for that infinite Variety of thoſe celeſtial Bodies, the Stars, and their ſeveral Influences upon the Earth. This their great Champion Sir Chriſtopher Heydon urges as a principal Argument for them.

Thirdly, That it is plain that the Moon hath a moiſt Influence, and that at her Full the Brains of Beaſts generally, the Eyes of Cats, and the Meat of Shell-Fiſhes are ſwell'd to a greater bigneſs; and that they are leſſened in the Change.

Fourthly, That the Moon alſo, to our Wonderment, guides the Ebbing and Flowing of the Sea, whoſe Influence is equally ſeen when ſhe is under the Horizon as when above, when near our Nadir as when near our Zenith. Whence, ſay they, it is plain, that the Heavenly Bodies have not only a Power or Influence, beſides Light, but more ſearching and penetrating than Light it ſelf, as being able to make its way through the thickneſs of the Earth, and to reach its Effect on the further ſide thereof. Both which Wonders they further confirm from the Magnetical Needle that looks ſo conſtantly towards the Pole-ſtar, though on the other ſide of the Tropick of Capricorn; where the North-pole will be hidden twenty or thirty Degrees below the Horizon. Whence it is manifeſt, ſay they, that the Influence of the Pole-ſtar pierces through the Bowels of the Earth, and is a notorious Argument of that ſecret and irreſiſtible Virtue of the reſt of the Heavenly Bodies.

Fifthly, The Station, Direction and Repedation of the Planets is a thing ſo ſtrange and myſterious, that it is not likely they ſhould make thoſe odd Motions, unleſs thoſe Wagglings this way and that way, thoſe goings backward and forward, were a certain Reeling or Spinning the Fates and Fortunes of Things or Perſons here below.

Sixthly, and laſtly, Yearly Experience teaches us, that the Approach of the Sun renews the World, and makes an annual Reſurrection of Plants and Inſects, and ſuch living Creatures as are born of Putrefaction, and have no other Father than the Fiery-bearded Sun. If then this one Planet does ſuch rare Feats, certainly the reſt of the Planets and fixed Stars do not ſtand for Cyphers, but have their Virtues and Operations as well as he, whoſe Efficacy and Influence, ſay theſe Star-gazers, our Art does punctually and particularly define. You may add, if you will, out of Origanus, the Heat of the Dog-ſtar, and the moiſt Influence of Arcturus and the Hyades. Theſe are the general Plauſibilities that theſe Deceivers endeavour to countenance their Profeſſion by. But we ſhall now ſet down the main particular Principles, or fundamental Rudiments of their ſo-much-admired Science, as they would have it eſteemed, and then ſhall orderly anſwer to them both.

2. According therefore to Origanus, whom I ſhall chiefly follow in ſetting down theſe Aſtrological Principles, I do not ſay all, but what is ſufficient; nor will I ſet down any but what they acknowledge for Principles, nor omit any that are ſo conſiderable as theſe I ſet down.

Firſt, It is taught by them, That the Planets have the moſt Influence upon Terreſtrial Bodies, but that the fixt Stars alſo as well as they have Virtues ſo potent as to pierce the very Penetrals of the Earth: That of the Planets the Sun is hot and moiſt rather than drying: That Mars is hot and parchingly drying: That Saturn hinders the warm Influence of the other Stars, and is in an high degree frigefactive, as alſo exſiccative. From theſe two Qualities contrary to the Principles of Life, Saturn is termed Infortuna Major, Mars, Infortuna Minor; becauſe Heat is not contrary to Life, though Drineſs be. Jupiter is alſo deemed Fortuna major, becauſe he has ſufficient Moiſture well tempered with Heat. But Venus, Fortuna minor, becauſe her Moiſture exceeds her Warmth. From this Diſtinction of hot, cold, dry and moiſt, the Planets are alſo divided into Maſculine and Feminine, Diurnal and Nocturnal, &c. So that if theſe Conceits of drineſs, moiſtneſs, coldneſs and heat fail, all the reſt fail.

3. But I think that Principle more obſervable which is touched upon already, That the Influence of the Stars and Planets do paſs freely through the Earth: which is implied in that Aphoriſm of Ptolemy cited by Origanus, Maſculeſcere & efficaciores dici Planetas, qui ab Horizonte ortivo vel occiduo deducuntur ad Meridianum ſupra vel infra terram. Effœminari verò qui contrá. Which plainly implies, that their Influences paſs as eaſily through the Earth as through the Air: otherwiſe ſurely thoſe Planets that tended from the Weſtern Horizon towards the Meridian under the Earth, would have the Diſadvantage of it. That alſo goes upon the ſame Hypotheſis, that the Earth is no Impediment to the Influences of the Stars, namely, That Jupiter being Conſignificator in the ſecond Houſe, denotes Riches; and that by how many more Planets there be in the ſixth Houſe, by ſo much more ſubject to Diſeaſes the Child will be. That the fixt Stars and Planets do moſt potently act in the Cardines of the Celeſtial Theme, of which Imum Cœli is one. All which ſuppoſe the Earth as pervious as the very Air to the Celeſtial Influences.

To omit other Diviſions of the Signs into Mobilia, Fixa, and Bicorporea, into Maſculine and Feminine, &c. I ſhall only ſet down that more noiſed Diviſion of them into Trigons, viz. The Fiery Trigon, Aries, Leo, Sagittarius; the Earthly, Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn; Aereal, Gemini, Libra, Aquarius; Watery, Cancer, Scorpius, Piſces.

4. They teach us alſo fine things of the Dignities of the Planets: which are either eſſential or accidental. An eſſential Dignity is nothing elſe but the encreaſe of the innate Virtue of the Planet by being in ſuch a Sign of the Zodiack, as Origanus has defined.

The firſt eſſential Dignity is the Houſe of the Planet. As for Example, Leo is the Houſe of the Sun, Cancer of the Moon. And becauſe there are more Signs than Planets, it falls to the ſhare of the reſt to have two Houſes apiece, ſo aſpected to the Houſes of the Luminaries as becomes the Goodneſs or Malignity of their Natures. As for Example, Capricorn and Aquarius muſt be the Houſes of unfortunate Saturn, becauſe their Aſpect is oppoſite to the Houſes of the Luminaries. Sagittarius and Piſces the Houſes of Jupiter, becauſe their Aſpect to the foreſaid Houſes of the Sun and Moon, is a benign Aſpect, namely, Trine. But now Mars has Aries and Scorpius for his Houſes; becauſe he, forſooth, himſelf being a malignant Planet, may have his Houſes in a malignant Poſture to the Houſes of the Sun and Moon, namely, in a Quartile Aſpect, &c. And as to be in their own Houſes is a Dignity, ſo to be in the Sign oppoſite they call Exilium, and account it a great Detriment to the Planet,

The ſecond eſſential Dignity is Exaltation: as Aries is the Exaltation of the Sun, becauſe his Efficacy is ſo apparent in Spring, and therefore his Caſus muſt be in Libra; which muſt on the contrary be the Exaltation of Saturn, that Planet being of a cold temper contrary to the Sun. The Dragon's Head alſo is exalted in Gemini, as Albumaſar out of Hermes has given us to underſtand, and depreſſed in Sagittarius.

The third eſſential Dignity is Triangularity or Triplicity, whereby certain Planets are conſtituted the Τριγωνοκράτορες of their reſpective Trigons. Sol and Jupiter of the Fiery Trigon; the Moon and Venus of the Earthly Trigon; Saturn and Mercury of the Aereal: and becauſe there are not eight Planets, but ſeven only, Mars is the ſole Trigonocrator of the Watery Triplicity. I omit to ſay any thing of the ὁρικρατία, or Dignity of Terms, in which the two Luminaries are not concern'd.

Carpentum, which is the fifth Dignity, is but a Coacervation of the four precedent. Perſona or Almugea is when there is the ſame Configuration betwixt the Sun and Moon and another Planet, as there is betwixt their Houſes. Decanat is the Prefecture of the Planets over every ten Degrees of the Signs in the Zodiack. As of Mars over the firſt ten Degrees of Aries, of Sol over the ſecond, of Venus over the third; of Mercury over the firſt ten of Taurus, of the Moon over the ſecond, of Saturn over the third; and ſo on, according to the Order of the Planets, till all the ten Degrees of the Zodiack be gone through.

The laſt eſſential Dignity is Gaudium, which is competible only to thoſe Planets that have two Houſes, and is when a Planet is plac'd in that Houſe which is moſt agreeable to his Nature.

The chief of theſe Dignities are Houſe, Exaltation, and Triplicity. For the firſt has five Powers, the ſecond four, and the third three. But ὁρικρατία has but two, and Almugea and Gaudium but one apiece.

5. The accidental Dignities ariſe either from their poſture to the Sun, or from their Motion in their Orbs, or from their mutual Configuration.

In regard of their Poſition to the Sun, they are either in Cazimi, or Combuſt, or ὑπαυγοι, or free from Combuſtion, or Oriental or Occidental. To be in Cazimi is to be corporeally join'd with the Sun, and gives the Planet five Fortitudes. To be Combuſt or ὑπαυγ☉. is to be diſtant ſome ten or fifteen Degrees from the Sun, &c. This Poſition puts four or five Detriments on the Planet. To be free from Combuſtion adds five Fortitudes. Saturn, Jupiter and Mars from their Conjunction to their Oppoſition with with the Sun are Oriental, and gain two Fortitudes; but from their Oppoſition to their Conjunction are Occidental, and incur two Detriments.

In regard of their Motion, the Planets are either Direct, Retrograde, Swift, Slow or Stationary. Direction has four Fortitudes, Retrogradation five Debilities, Station two Debilities.

Configuration or Aſpect is either Sextile, Quartile, Trine, Oppoſition or Conjunction. The Conjunction of benign Planets adds five Fortitudes, of malign five Debilities. Sextile and Trine are benign Aſpects, Quartile and Oppoſition malign, &c.

6. But to climb nearer to the top of their Artifice, let us now ſet down their witty Contrivance of the Heavens into Twelve Houſes in their Erection of their Aſtrological Scheme. The firſt Houſe begins at the Eaſt Horizon, and is to be numbred according to the Series of the Signs Eaſtward, and is called Horoſcopus and Domus Vitæ. The ſecond ἀναφορὰ and Domus Lucri. The third θεὰ and Domus Fortunæ. The fourth ὑπόγειον, Imum Cœli and Domus Patrimonii. The fifth ἀγαθὴ τύχη and Domus Liberorum. The ſixth κακὴ τύχη and Domus Ægritudinum. The ſeventh δύσις and Domus Nuptiarum. The eighth ὀπισθαφορὰ and Domus Mortis. The ninth θεὸς and Domus Religionis. The tenth μεσουράνημα, Cor Cœli and Domus Honorum, The eleventh ἀγαθοδαίμων or Domus Amicorum. The twelfth κακοδαίμων or Domus Carceris. Every one of theſe Houſes has its Conſignificator. The firſt Houſe Saturn, the ſecond Jupiter, the third Mars, the fourth Sol, and ſo on, according to the Ptolemaical order of the Planets. According to which alſo they conſtitute their Χρονοκράτορες or Alfridarii, giving the Planets a Septennial Dominion in Succeſſion from the Nativity. The firſt Septennium to the Moon, the ſecond to Mercury, the third to Venus, &c.

Now this Erection of a Scheme, and Diſtribution of the Heavens into Twelve Houſes, is no leſs than five manner of Ways, as * Origanus has ſet down. The firſt of Julius Firmicus, who ſo draws his Circles through the Poles of the Zodiack, that beginning at the Eaſtern Interſection of the Ecliptick and Horizon, the whole Ecliptick is divided into twelve equal Parts. The ſecond of Aben Ezra, who divides the Æquator into twelve equal Parts, as the other did the Zodiack, by the drawing of ſix great Circles through the mutual Sections of the Horizon and Meridian, and through each thirtieth Degree of the Æquator, to be numbred from the Eaſtern Horizon. The third is that of Campanus, who divides the principal Vertical into twelve equal Parts by Arches drawn through the common Interſections of the Meridian and Horizon. Fourthly, Alcabitius draws the Circles through the Poles of the World and certain equidiſtant Points in the Semidiurnal and Seminocturnal Arches of the Aſcenſion of the Ecliptick. And laſtly, Porphyrius divides the two Oriental Parts of the Zodiack intercepted betwixt the Horizon and Meridian above and below into three equal Parts apiece. So many Ways are there of building Houſes or Caſtles in the Air.

* De Motibus part 2. cap. 11.

7. That the Erection of a Scheme may foretel right the Fate of the Infant, the time of the Birth is to be known exactly. For if you miſs a Degree in the time of the Birth, it will breed a year's Errour in the Prognoſtication; if but five Minutes, a Month, &c. For which purpoſe alſo it is neceſſary to know the Longitude and Latitude of the Place.

8. After the Erection of ſo accurate a Scheme, they pretend to be able to foretel the time of the main Accidents of a Man's Life, and that either by Profection annual and Tranſition, or by Direction: The laſt is the chief. And therefore not to fill your Ears overmuch with the wretched Gibberiſh of Gypſies, when I have intimated that the firſt of the two former run all upon Aſpects, and that Tranſition is nothing elſe but the paſſing of a Planet through the places of the Nativity, whether its own or of other Planets or of the Horoſcope, &c. I ſhall force my ſelf a little more fully to define to you, out of † Origanus, the Nature of Direction: Which is the Invention of the Arch of the Æquator which is intercepted betwixt two Circles of Poſition, drawn through two places of the Zodiack, the one whereof the Significator poſſeſſes, the other the Promiſſor, and aſcends or deſcends with the Arch of the Ecliptick in the Poſture of the Sphere given. The Term from whence the Computation is made is the Significator; the Term to which, the Promiſſor. As if Sol be directed to Mars, Sol ſignifies Dignities, and Mars the Nature of thoſe Dignities; and the diſtance of the time is computed by Direction. I ſhall omit to tell you that all the Planets and all the Houſes are capable of Direction, if we would accurately examine a Scheme. But the chiefeſt Directors or Significators are, 1. The Ἀφέτης, which the Arabians call Hylech from הלד, the Latines Emiſſor or Prorogator vitæ. 2. The Moon for the Affections of the Mind. 3. The Sun even then alſo when he is the Ἀφέτης, for the Condition of Life and Dignities. 4. The † De Motibus part 2. cap. 15.

Horoſcope for Health and Peregrinations. 5. The Medium Cœli for Marriage and Procreation of Children. 6. The κλῆρος τύχης or the Part of Fortune for increaſe or decreaſe of Riches.

9. But the chiefeſt of all is Ἀφέτης, as reſpecting Life it ſelf, which is directed to the ἀναιρέτης, or Interfector, or Slayer. Which is, ſuppoſe, either ſome Planet which is preſent in the eighth Houſe, as Saturn or Mars, or the Almuten of the eighth Houſe, or the Planet join'd to the Almuten, or the Almuten of the Planet, or the Almuten of the Lord of the eighth Houſe. But the huge Myſtery is, and that a ſad one, that when the Ἀφέτης comes to the place of the ἀναιρέτης, that is, the Emiſſor unto the place of the Interfector, then wo be to the Brat that ever he was born under ſo unlucky Stars; for there is no Remedy but he muſt die the Death. Nor will his * Alcochodon, or Almuten Hylegii avail him any thing, when his Hyleg or Emiſſor is once come into the Hands of the ἀναιρέτης, or that Celeſtial Butcher.

* Alcochodon eſt ſtella virtutis, ex qua de annis quibus natus ſecundum Naturæ curſum victurus eſt judicium ſumitur, niſi ratione directionis vel alterius violenti & ſubiti caſûs vita nati citiùs abrumpatur. See Origan. de effect. part. 13.

Theſe are the moſt fundamental and moſt ſolemn Trifles or Fooleries (for ſo I muſt call them) of their whole Art: and I ſhall now ſet my ſelf to demonſtrate them to be ſo, after I have anſwered thoſe more general Plauſibilities they would countenance themſelves by.

CHAP. XIX.

1. That the Stars and Planets are not uſeleſs, though there be no Truth in Aſtrology. 2. That the Stars are not the Cauſes of the Variety of Productions here below. 3. That the ſenſible moiſtening Power of the Moon is no Argument for the Influence of other Planets and Stars. 4. Nor yet the Flux and Reflux of the Sea, and Direction of the Needle to the North Pole. 5. That the Station and Repedation of the Planets is an Argument againſt the Aſtrologers. 6. That the Influence attributed to the Dog-ſtar, the Hyades and Orion is not theirs, but the Sun's, and that the Sun's Influence is only Heat. 7. The ſlight Occaſions of their inventing of thoſe Dignities of the Planets they call Exaltations and Houſes, as alſo that of Aſpects. 8. Their Folly in preferring the Planets before the fixt Stars of the ſame appearing magnitude, and of their Fiction of the firſt Qualities of the Planets, with thoſe that riſe therefrom. 9. Their Raſhneſs in allowing to the Influence of the Heavenly Bodies ſo free Paſſage through the Earth. 10. Their groundleſs Diviſion of the Signs into Moveable and Fixt, and the ridiculous Effects they attribute to the Trigons, together with a Demonſtration of the falſeneſs of the Figment. 11. A Confutation of their eſſential Dignities. 12. As alſo of their Accidental. 13. A Subverſion of their Erection of Themes, and diſtributing of the Heavens into Twelve Celeſtial Houſes. 14. Their fond Pretences to the Knowledge of the exact moment of the Infant's Birth. 15. A Confutation of their Animodar and Trutina Hermetis. 16. As alſo of their Method of rectifying a Nativity per Accidentia Nati. 17. His Appeal to the skilful, if he has not fundamentally confuted the whole pretended Art of Aſtrology.

1. WHerefore to their Firſt general Pretence, That the very Being of the Stars and Planets would be uſeleſs, if there be nothing in the Art of Aſtrology. I anſwer, That though there were certain Virtues and Influences in every one of them, yet it does not follow that they are diſcovered in their Art: And then again, That though there were none ſaving that of Light and Heat in the Fixt Stars, it will not follow that they are uſeleſs. Becauſe the later and wiſer Philoſophers have made them as ſo many *Suns: which Hypotheſis our Aſtrologers muſt confute before they can make good the force of their firſt Argument. And for the Planets, they have alſo ſuggeſted that they may have ſome ſuch like uſe as our Earth has, i. e. to be the Mother of living Creatures, though they have defined nothing concerning the Natures of them; whereby their Opinion becomes more harmleſs and unexceptionable, as it is in it ſelf highly probable: Foraſmuch as the Earth, as well as Saturn, Jupiter and the reſt, moves about the Sun, and is as much a Planet as any of them; as the beſt Aſtronomers do not at all ſtick now-adays to affirm. Which does utterly enervate the force of this firſt general Pretence of the Aſtrologians.

* See Book 3. ch. 1. Sect. 6. Alſo Immortal. Book 3. ch. 19. Sect. 4, 5, 6.

2 To

2. To the Second I anſwer, That the Stars are but Lights of much the ſame nature as our Sun is, only they are further removed, ſo that their contribution is much-what the ſame. And again, Nothing turns off their more ſubtil Influence, according to their own Conceſſion; and therefore tho' there were this Variety in them, yet becauſe all this Variety reaches every point of the Earth, the Product would be the ſame, unleſs the particles of the Earth were diverſified by ſome other cauſe, which aſſuredly they are. And thirdly, That neither their own Variety, nor the Influences of the Heavens, if they be merely material, are ſufficient cauſes of Productions here below. Fourthly, That the Celeſtial Matter is every where, and that the Earth ſwims in it, as Wood does in Water, ſo that we need not have recourſe to ſo remote unknown Activities. And laſtly, That that general λόγος σπερματίτης, or Spirit of Nature, is alſo every where ready to contrive the Matter into ſuch Shapes and Virtues as its diſpoſition makes toward. And this is enough and more than enough to take off the edge of the Knight's Argument.

3. I do acknowledge that the Moon in her full ſwells certain things with moiſture; which Effect is both ſenſible and palpable, and alſo reaſonable, by reaſon of her Proximity and of the reflexion of the Sun's Beams from her Body, which being but of a moderate Power, melt the Air and Vapours into an inſinuating liquidneſs, but do not diſſipate them, as his direct Beams do by Day. Which feat I do not doubt but that any other of the Planets would perform, if they were ſo plac'd that their diſcus would ſeem of equal bigneſs with the Moon's, and ſhe were removed into their place. But it is an inſufferable folly to argue from ſuch both reaſonable and palpable Effects of the Moon, that the other Planets alſo and Fixt Stars have as powerful Effects upon us; which yet we can deprehend by neither Reaſon nor Experience.

4. The like may be anſwered concerning the Flux and Reflux of the Sea; the ground whereof is rational from what Des Cartes has ſet down in his Princip. Philoſ. part 4. namely, That the Ellipſis of the Celeſtial Matter is ſtreightned by the Moon's Body, which makes the Æther flow more ſwift: Which is a plain and mechanical ſolution of the Phænomenon, and ſuch as rightly underſtood may be true. And then we find by certain experience that this Flux and Reflux depends on the courſe of the Moon, ſo that there can be no deceit in the buſineſs. But when there is no Reaſon nor ſufficient Experience that this is the Cauſe of that, to attribute the one to the other is no good Logick. And to that of the Loadſtone and Polar-Star I ſay again, as I have ſaid already, That it does not follow, becauſe there are ſome ſenſible Effects from the Heavens, certain and conſtant, that therefore we may imagine what Effects we pleaſe to proceed from this or that particular Star without due Experience or Reaſon for the ſame. And then in the next place, That it is not ſo much the influence of the Heaven, as the Magnetiſm of the Earth, in which this direction of the Needle toward the North conſiſts. For the Needle varies in certain Meridians, and ſome three Miles from Roſsburg, a Town near upon the very corner where the Finnick Seas and Sinus Finnicus are joyn'd, the Needle amidſt a many Sea-Rocks turns about, nor ceaſes ſo to do for the ſpace of a whole Mile. Which is a further demonſtration that the Direction of the Needle depends upon the Magnetiſm of the Earth. But truly if the Events that Aſtrologers take upon them to predict did as ſteadily point to the Cauſes they alledge, this Planet or that Configuration of Planets, Signs or Stars, as the Needle and Axis of the Earth to the North; tho' they could give no reaſons thereof, I could eaſily allow their Art. But there being ſuch demonſtrative Reaſons againſt their Grounds, and no certain Experience for them, theſe particular Allegations concerning the Moon and Pole-Star will ſtand them in no ſtead.

5. The Station and Retrogradation of the Planets is a very conſiderable Argument againſt them, and ſhews how fooliſh and imaginary their Art is that is upheld by ſuch groſs miſtakes. For they that underſtand the right Syſtem of the World, know very well that thoſe Phænomena are not real but ſeeming: Which is a ſcurvy ſlur to theſe Aſtrologers. But this I ſhall meet with again hereafter.

6. To the laſt I anſwer, That neither the Dog-Star, Arcturus, the Hyades nor Orion are conceived to have any ſuch Effects as are attributed to them, but then when the Sun is in ſuch places of the Zodiack in which himſelf without them would produce the ſame. And therefore they do fallaciouſly attribute to thoſe Stars what is really the virtue of the heat of the Sun approaching nearer us, or abiding longer upon us. And as for the wrath of the Dog, which is abated already in ſome conſiderable meaſure, how tame a Creature think you will he be, when the Anticipation of the Æquinoxes ſhall appoint him his Kennel as low as Capricorn, if the World ſhould ſo long continue? Theſe may ſerve ſerve for Poetical Expreſſions (ſuch as that of Virgil, who attributes that to the Signs which belongs to the Sun;

Candidus auratis aperit cum Cornibus annum
Taurus------
When the white Bull opens with Golden Horns
The early Year:)

but they will not endure the ſeverity of the Laws of an Art, which is, to ſpeak properly, not to entitle things circumſtantial and concomitant to real Cauſality. But as for the Sun's efficacy it ſelf, I will not deny it. nor yet acknowledge it any more than in the general influence of heat, which cheriſhes and excites the ſeminal Principles of things into act and perfection. Which is no more myſterious than the Ægyptians and Livia's Maids of Honour hatching of Eggs without the help of the Hen; the ſame which the Sun often does to thoſe of Oſtriches left upon the Sand. And I will alſo acknowledge that the reſt of the Stars do not ſtand for Cyphers, but that at a competent diſtance they will have their effect: which the Sun it ſelf has not when removed from us but to the other ſide of the Æquator, whereby his rays become more oblique. How inconſiderable then think you would he be, if he were removed as far as the fixt Stars, all whoſe influence put together cannot ſupply his abſence in the depth of Winter? Whence it is plain, that it is a very fond inference to argue that thoſe remote Bodies of the fixt Stars and Planets have an influence upon us, becauſe the Sun and Moon that are ſo near us have; whenas if they were as far removed, their influence would aſſuredly be as inſenſible as that of the five Planets and fixt Stars.

7. And yet notwithſtanding ſuch is the intolerable Impudence of the Inventors of Aſtrology, that they have at random attributed ſuch things to the other Planets and Stars as they have only ground for, if any at all, in the two Luminaries. As for Example, becauſe they might obſerve ſome more ſenſible mutation in the Air and Earth at the Sun's entring Aries, it would be the more tolerable to phanſy that Sign his Exaltation. But now from hence to appoint places of Exaltation to other Planets, as Taurus to the Moon, Libra to Saturn, is a mere running the Wildgooſe chaſe from one ſingle hint to matters where there is nothing of like reaſon or experience. So likewiſe becauſe they had ſome intimation to make Leo the Houſe of the Sun, his heat being then moſt ſenſible, and Cancer the Houſe of the Moon, becauſe then ſhe would be moſt vertical to us; they have without either fear or wit beſtowed Houſes two apiece upon the reſt of the Planets, tho' there be neither reaſon nor effect anſwerable.

And laſtly, for Aſpects, in all likelihood the ſenſible Varieties of the Phaſes of the Moon in Oppoſition, Trine and Quartil, gave them firſt occaſion to take notice of Aſpects: And then another thing happening, tho' Independent on the courſe of the Moon, namely, that every ſeventh Day, in an acute Diſeaſe, is Critical, and that there are uſually at thoſe returns the greateſt ſtirs and alterations in the Patient, and the Quartil Aſpect of the Moon happening alſo about ſeven Days from the Conjunction, and then about ſeven Days more ſhe being in Oppoſition; this natural circuit of Fermentations in acute Diſeaſes, has given them occaſion to ſlander the Moon in thoſe caſes, and for her ſake to reproach the Aſpects of Oppoſition and Quadrature in all the reſt of the Planets. Such ſmall hints as theſe are the ſolideſt Foundations of the phantaſtick ſtructure of Aſtrology. Which we ſhall now ſomething more nearly lay battery to, and ſo ſhatter and demoliſh it, that it ſhall not ſo much as find room in the Imaginations of Men.

8. To begin therefore with the Firſt of their Principles I have ſet down, That they prefer the Planets before the Fixt Stars (I mean thoſe ſo remote ones, that they ſeem but about the bigneſs of the greater Stars) is without all reaſon; the Planets being but heaps of dead matter much like that of the Earth, and having no Light but what they reflect from the Sun. For that which ſeems to be the innate Light of the Moon, is but the reflexion of the Sun's Beams from the Earth. Wherefore their activity and influence may juſtly ſeem leſs than that of the Fixt Stars which ſhine not with borrowed but innate Light. And for their powerful penetrating into the Bowels of the Earth, that is a miſtake ariſing from the ſuppoſed influence of the Moon on the Flux and Reflux of the Sea, even when ſhe is on the other ſide of the Earth; to which with the like fallacious inferences I have * anſwered already. But then, for the Qualities of the Planets, where they define the Sun to be hot and moiſt rather than drying, but Mars hot and parching dry, and Saturn dry and cold; what will not theſe impu-

* See ſect. 4.

dent

dent Impoſtors dare to obtrude upon us, when they will vent ſuch ſtuff as is liable to confutation by our very Senſes? For does not our very Senſe tell us that the Sun is the moſt hot and drying Planet that is? His heat it is, and not that of Mars, that withers the Graſs and Flowers, and parches the tops of Mountains, and even roſts the Inhabitants of the Earth when they expoſe their Bodies to his more direct Rays. But what Faculty could ever inform us that Mars was ſuch a parching and heating Planet, and Saturn ſo cold? Aſſuredly he that will expoſe his Head to their Acronychal Rays, which are moſt potent, and ſhall profeſs he feels more cold from one and heat from the other, than he does from the other parts of Heaven, will approve himſelf as mad as that old Dotard that pretended that he could as often as he liſtned plainly hear the Harmony of the Celeſtial Sphears. All the Planets are opake Bodies, and whatever their colour is, are as cold as Earth. For neither yellow nor red Clay caſt any more heat than white, nor has any ſoil any ſenſible influence but what is drawn in by the Noſe, which ſometimes proves wholeſome and ſavory and ſometimes offenſive. But how our Star-gazers Proboſcides ſhould be drawn out to that length as to ſmell out the different virtues of the Planets, I can no way underſtand. Wherefore the pronouncing of Mars hot and dry, and Saturn cold and dry, &c. is a ſhameleſs foolery, and a plain demonſtration of the vanity of the reſt of their allotments of the firſt Qualities to the Planets. And ſince from theſe they are reputed Benign or Malign, Maſculine or Feminine, and the like, all this part of their pretended Science is but a Rhapſody of Fooleries alſo.

9. To the Second, of the Earth's being ſo pervious to the influence of the Stars and Planets, I ſay, Firſt, That it is a Principle without proof, as I have already evinced: And then Secondly, If I give them it, they will be fain to Vomit it up again, it being deſtructive to their whole Art. For if the Rays and influence of the Stars and Planets have free paſſage through the Body of the Earth, the whole Ceremony of erecting a Scheme for ſuch a Longitude and Latitude is needleſs; nay, as to the Heavens, the Fates of all Men would be alike. For that hidden Influence which governs all would reach to all points from all parts of Heaven at once.

10. Thirdly, Concerning the Diviſion of their Signs into mobilia, and fixa, and bicorporea. The mobilia are the Equinoctial and Solſtitial Signs. The latter whereof may deſerve better the name of fixa than mobilia. And in my Apprehenſion the Seaſons of the Year might as well be ſaid to be begun, ſuppoſe the Cold in Sagittarius and fixed in Capricorn, and the Heat in Gemini and fixed in Cancer, as begun in Capricorn and fixed in Aquarius, &c. But we will wink at ſmall matters. That of the fiery, earthy, watery and airy Trigons is more notorious, and I cannot but ſmile when I read the Effects of them. As for Example, in Phyſick, as Dariot has ſet down, the Moon and Aſcendent in the Fiery Signs comfort the Virtue attractive, in the Earthy Signs the retentive, in the Airy the digeſtive, and in the Watery the expulſive. Would any Man dare to adminiſter Phyſick then without conſulting the Precepts of Aſtrology? Alſo in Husbandry that's a notable one of Sir Chriſtopher's, who tells us how we may cauſe a Plant to ſhoot deep into the Earth, or higher into the Air, by ſetting of it at ſuch an Aſpect of the Moon: Namely, if the Moon be in the Earthy Triplicity, the Root will ſhoot more downward into the Earth; if in the Airy, more upward into the Air: Which is a rare Secret. Now to omit the groundleſs and arbitrarious Diviſion of the Zodiack into theſe four Trigons, of which there is only this one hint, that I can imagine, namely, the fitneſs of Leo for one part of the fiery Trigon, the Sun being moſt hot in that Sign; (from which little Inlet all the four Elements flew up into Heaven, and took their places in their reſpective Triplicities in the Zodiack with great nimbleneſs and agility, playing at Leap-frog, and skipping over one anothers Backs in ſuch ſort, that dividing themſelves into three equal parts, every Oriental of an Element found it ſelf a Fellow-member of a trine Aſpect:) The beſt (beſt of all is, That there is no ſuch Zodiack in Heaven, or, if you will, no Heaven for ſuch a Zodiack as theſe Artiſts attribute theſe Triplicities to. For this Heaven and this Zodiack we ſpeak of, is only an old Error of Ptolomy's and his Followers, who not underſtanding the true Syſteme of the World, and the Motion of the Earth, in which is ſalv'd the anticipation of the Æquinoxes, have phanſied a Heaven above the Cœlum ſtellatum, and a Zodiack that did not recede from Weſt to Eaſt as the ſtarry Zodiack does. And this Figment, which later Ages have laughed off of the Stage, is the only ſubject of theſe renouned Trigons and Triplicities, which therefore are juſtly laughed off of the Stage with it. Which diſcovery is a demonſtration that the whole Art of Aſtrology is bottom'd upon frivolous and mere imaginary Principles, as we ſhall further ther make manifeſt. And therefore thoſe Phyſicians proclaim themſelves either Cheats or Fools, that would recommend their skill from ſuch vain obſervations.

See Sir Chriſtopher Heydon his Defence of Judicial Aſtrology, c. 7. p. 186.

11. Fourthly, Now for the Eſſential Dignities of the Planets, ſith they are nothing but the increaſe of their innate Virtue by being in ſuch or ſuch a Sign, and theſe being the Signs of that Zodiack which has no Heaven, nor is any thing; it is manifeſt that the whole Doctrine of Eſſential Dignities falls to the ground. But we will alſo caſt our Eye upon the diſtinct parts of this vain Figment. And therefore as to the firſt Eſſential Dignity, the Houſe of the Planet; There is no ſagacious Perſon but can eaſily ſmell out the meaning of making Leo the Houſe of the Sun; namely, not that that Sign has any Virtue to increaſe heat, but that the Sun then has been long near the Tropick of Cancer, and ſo has more than ordinarily heated the Earth by ſo long a ſtay in ſo advantageous a poſture. And this is it, not the being in his Houſe then, that makes the heat ſo great; for thoſe beyond the other Tropick ſure are cold enough. The ſame may be ſaid of Cancer, the Moon's Houſe, that it is poſture, not the nature of the place, that makes her Virtue more then to us, but leſs to our Antœci. From this ſmall hint from Senſe and Miſtakes of Reaſon, have they without all Reaſon and Senſe beſtowed Houſes on the reſt of the Planets, guiding themſelves by the concert of the Malignity and Benignity of Aſpects. Which to be a mere Figment I have * noted already, it having no ground but that raſh joining together of Critical Days with the Aſpects of the Moon.

* See Sect. 7.

What a ſmall preferment Aſtrological Exaltation is, you may underſtand from Albumazar's liberality, who amongſt the Planets has advanced the head and tail of the Dragon to the ſame Dignity, which yet are nothing but Interſections of the imaginary Circles of the courſe of the Moon and the Ecliptick. But of this Dignity I have * ſpoke enough already, and therefore I paſs to the next.

* See Sect. 7.

As for the Τειγωνοκρατορες or Lords of the Trigons, what great pity it was there were not juſt eight Planets, that each Trigon might have had its two Conſuls, and Mars not rule ſolitarily in his watery one? But the Foolery of the Trigons being already confuted, I need add nothing further concerning this Dignity. The Prerogative of the Ὁρικρατορες is deſtroyed by that firſt general Argument, the Parts of the Signs being as fictitious as the whole. And as for Carpentum or Royal Seat or Throne, it being a compound Dignity compacted of the former, the parts being but imaginary, it is evident that the whole is a meer Nothing.

And that Perſona Planetæ or Almugea is as little, appears from hence, in that Aſpect is an empty Conceit, raiſed upon no ſolid Ground, as I have more than once already intimated.

And that the Lords of the Decanats have but imaginary Provinces, is again plain, for that their whole Zodiack wherein all thoſe Fripperies are lodged is but imaginary, and their Order alſo of Aſſignation upon a falſe Hypotheſis, viz. according to that ranging of the Planets that is in Ptolemy's Syſteme.

And laſtly, Gaudium, the laſt of the Eſſential Dignities, ſuppoſes two Falſities; that there are Houſes in this fictitious Zodiack, and that Planets are Maſculine and Feminine: which Suppoſition has been confuted already. So that all theſe eſſential Dignities are devoid of all Subſtance and Reality, and the numbring of their particular Fortitudes is the telling out ſo many Nullities to no purpoſe.

12. Nor can you hope for a better account of their Accidental Dignities. Cazimi, Combuſtion, and Freeneſs from Combuſtion, how fond and inconſiſtent Conceits are they? For firſt it is unreaſonable, if they know the Nature of the Planets, of the Sun, and of the Celeſtial Vortex, to make a Planet in Cazimi to gain five Fortitudes. For beyond the Sun the Planet is at the fartheſt diſtance it can be from us: and Saturn, Jupiter and Mars a whole Diameter of the Sun's orbit more diſtant than when they are in Oppoſition to the Sun: and Venus and Mercury half of their own. Beſides, how can their Virtue paſs the Body of the Sun, or the bearing of the Vortex againſt the Planet and againſt us, and all the Attempts of Influence from the Planet not be eluded? Again, if Cazimi on this ſide the Sun be good, why ſhould not beyond the Sun be bad? And if Venus or Mercury in the Body of the Sun be ſo conſiderable, how much more are the Spots of the Sun that are far greater? which their Ignorance could never reckon in the Compute of their Dignities. Beſides, what wild and diſproportionable Jumps are theſe, That Cazimi ſhould be five Fortitudes, and yet Combuſtion, which is to be but a little diſtance from the Sun, ſhould be five Debilities; and yet to be free from Combuſtion, that is, further removed from the Body of the Sun, ſhould be again five Fortitudes? Things ſo arbitrarious and groundleſs, That that none but ſick-brain'd Perſons can ever believe them.

That alſo is notoriouſly fooliſh, That Saturn, Jupiter and Mars from their * Conjunction with the Sun to their Oppoſition ſhould have two Fortitudes, and from their Oppoſition to their Conjunction ſhould have two Debilities. For in a great part of that Semicircle that carries from Oppoſition to Conjunction, they are far nearer, and therefore much ſtronger than in the beginning of that Semicircle that leads from their Conjunction to Oppoſition. * See chap. 18. ſect. 5.

Moreover, thoſe Dignities and Debilities that are caſt upon Planets from Direction, Station and Retrogradation, the thing is mainly grounded upon a miſtake of the Syſteme of the World, and Ignorance of the Earth's annual Motion, and from an Idiotick Application of Accidents or Phraſes amongſt Men. And therefore becauſe when things ſucceed ill they are ſaid to go backwards, and when we are weary we go more ſlow, or ſtand ſtill to breath us, or when we are moſt vigorous we run ſwifteſt; therefore muſt Station be two Debilities, Retrogradation no leſs than five, but Direction muſt be five Fortitudes. Whereas in Reaſon Station ſhould rather ſeal on the Effect of the Planet more ſure. But the truth is, a Planet is neither ſtationary nor retrograde truly, but in appearance, and therefore theſe Debilities are no true ones, but imaginary.

The laſt Accidental Dignity is Configuration or Aſpect, the vain Grounds whereof have been * already taxed. To which I add, That it is utterly unreaſonable to conceive that Sextile and Trine ſhould be good, and yet Quartil that is betwixt both be ſtark nought. Nay, it were far more reaſonable to conceive, that if Conjunction and Sextil were good, that Quartil ſhould be better than Trine, as being further from Oppoſition, and becauſe the Planets thus aſpected are in better Capacity both of them to ſtrike with more direct Rays on the Earth, than if they were in a Trine Aſpect. And therefore I know no Reaſon imaginable that could move them to have ſo ill a Conceit of Quartil Aſpect, but becauſe of the great unquietneſs of acute Diſeaſes that happens about every ſeventh day, which is the time alſo of the Quartil Aſpect of the Moon: And therefore the whole Myſtery of Aſpects is to be reſolved into this raſh Miſapplication. * See Sect. 7.

You have ſeen now how little worth all the Aſtrological Dignities are, and yet out of theſe huge Nothings of their fictitious Art is the whole Fabrick built of whatever Predictions they pretend to: So that we may be aſſured that all is vain and ridiculous.

13. Concerning their Twelve Houſes of the Nativity, the Diviſion is arbitrarious, and their erecting of a Scheme ſo many ways, and that with like Succeſs, an Evidence that the Succeſs is not upon Art, but fortuitous. The Configuration alſo of the Houſes, and thoſe * Septennial Χρονοκράτορες or Alfridarii do intimate that the whole buſineſs is but a Figment, going upon that falſe Hypotheſis of Ptolemy, That the Planets and the Earth have not the Sun to their Center. But this is not all we have to ſay againſt theſe Celeſtial Tenements. For either the Earth is pervious to all the Rays of the Planets and Stars, as well beneath as above the Horizon, or only they above the Horizon ſhed their Virtue on the Child. If the former be true, all Nativities are alike. If the latter, why have they any more than ſix Houſes, and why any at all under the Horizon? And in good ſadneſs, what is the meaning that their Horoſcope and the ſixth Houſe, being Houſes of ſo great Concernment, ſhould be under the Horizon; eſpecially when they are pleaſed at other times to pronounce, That a Star or Planet that is vertical is moſt efficacious? And can it be thought any thing but a meer Fancy that led them to make the Horoſcope the Houſe of Life, namely, becauſe the Stars ariſe from thence, and are as it were born into the World? Whence (as I have ſhewed their Cuſtom to be in other things) they have feigned the reſt of the Houſes at random. And that you may ſtill be more ſure that there is nothing in theſe Houſes, (or rather that the Houſes themſelves are nothing) they are but the Diſtribution of that imaginary Zodiack and Heaven, which (I told you *before) the Error of Ptolemy brought into the World, into Twelve imaginary Sections, beginning at the Eaſt-point of this Zodiack: So that their Art is perpetually built upon Nothing. * See chap. 18. ſect. 6. * See ſect. 10.

14. Now for the exact time of the Nativity, That one ſhould know the very Moment when the Child was born, I ſay it is a Curioſity nothing to the purpoſe. For firſt, if the hard and thick Earth be pervious to the Rays of Heaven, how eaſily may thoſe thin Coverings of the Womb be penetrated continually by the Power of the Stars? And therefore even then is the Child as much expoſed to them, as when it is newly born. Or if it be not, why may not it ſome Moments after its being born, be ſtill as liable to their Influence as in the Moment when it was born? For cannot theſe Influences that penetrate the very metalline Bowels of the Earth pierce a Child's tender Skin without any reſiſtance? But ſuppoſing this Curioſity to be to the purpoſe, how hard and lubricous a matter is it to come to that exactneſs that they pretend to be requiſite? For firſt, they muſt know the exact Longitude of the Place, (which is a thing beyond Expreſſion difficult and uncertain) or elſe the Exactneſs of Time will do them no good. And yet again, their Affectation of Exactneſs ſeems ridiculous, when we cannot well determine the proper Time of his Birth. For he is born by degrees, and few or none come out, after firſt they appear, in a ſhorter ſpace than half a quarter of an hour. Wherefore their Head being expoſed to the ſtarry Influence, why ſhould not that Celeſtial Infection pervade their whole Body? But ſuppoſe that to be the Moment of their Birth, wherein their whole Body is firſt out, how ſhall this Moment be known? By an exact Minute-Watch, ſuch as Tycho had, and Sir Chriſtopher Heydon profeſſes himſelf to have had, which would exactly give him the Minute and ſecond Scruple of Time. But how few Nativity-caſters can boaſt of the ſame Priviledge? Or if they could, to what purpoſe is it, when it ſeldom happens that they are in the ſame Houſe, much leſs in the ſame Room where the Party is delivered? Wherefore the Report of the Midwife is the beſt Certainty they have: and how many Nativities have been caſt without ſo much as that? And yet they will confidently predict Fates and Deſtinies upon an uncertain time given them. For they can, ſay they, correct it, and reduce it to the right Moment of the Nativity, and that by no leſs than by three ſeveral Ways; by Trutina Hermetis, Animodar, and Accidentia Nati: which how bold and groundleſs a Boaſt it is, let us now ſee.

15. Trutina Hermetis goes upon this Ground, That that Degree of the Zodiack the Moon is in at the time of Conception, the ſame is the Horoſcope of the Nativity. But what a fooliſh Subterfuge is this, whenas the exact time of Conception is as hard to be known as that of the Nativity? And if it were known, there is yet no Certainty of the time of Birth, ſome coming ſooner, ſome later, as every Mother, Nurſe or Midwife knows full well; nor will any of them preſume to tell to a day when a Woman ſhall be brought to Bed.

In Animodar the Nativity is either Conjunctional or Preventional, that is, either after or before the Conjunction of the Sun and Moon. If the Interlunium precede the time of the Birth, the Degree is to be noted in which it happens; if the Plenilunium, that Degree in which that Luminary is that is above the Horizon in the time of Oppoſition, the Sun by day, the Moon by Night. The Degrees thus given, the Almuten Almuſteli is to be found out, which is the Planet that has moſt Dignities in that place of Oppoſition or Conjunction; which are Trigon, Houſe, Altitude, ὁμοιοτοεία and Aſpect. Then the Degree of the Sign is to be noted in which the Almuten was at the time of the eſtimated Birth, &c. For I need not hold on, enough has already been ſaid to demonſtrate the whole Proceſs a ceremonious Foolery. For the Computation being to be made from the place of the Almuten Almuſteli, and his Election by Dignities, and Dignities being nothing but empty Fancies and Vanities, as I have already proved, the Correction of the Nativity by Animodar, muſt needs be idle and vain. Beſides that, the Almuten being one and the ſame, as belonging to one and the ſame Conjunction or Oppoſition of the Luminaries, how can it be a Rule to Children born at the ſame times in divers Climates? For it is evident the Horoſcope alters with the Clime. And laſtly, not only Picus, a Foe to Aſtrology, profeſſes how falſe both this Method of Animodar, as alſo that Rule of Hermes is, and claſhing one with another; but Origanus himſelf, a Friend to the Art, adviſes us rather to liſten to the Relations of Mother-Midnight, than to give any Credit to either of theſe Ways.

See Origan. part. 2. cap. 13.

The moſt certain way of correcting a Scheme of Nativity in Origanus his Judgment, is per Accidentia Nati, whether good or bad, as Honours, Preferments, Gifts, Sickneſs, Impriſonment, Falls, Conflicts, &c. which way notwithſtanding at the firſt ſight is very lubricous. For it is at leaſt diſputable and uncertain, whether there be Liberty of Will in Man or no. But I will venture further, that for my own part, I think it demonſtrable from inward Senſe, Reaſon and Holy Writ, that there is Free-will in Men; whence it will neceſſarily follow, Quòd multa accidunt hominibus præter naturam præterque fatum. Diſeaſes therefore, Impriſonments, Diſgraces and Preferments may be brought upon us by the free Agency of our ſelves or others, and that ſooner or later according as Mens Virtues or Vices act: Which takes away all Certainty of Computation per Accidentia Nati.

16. Beſides

16. Beſides that the manner of it is very frivolous and ridiculous. For it being threefold, as Origanus has ſet down, Profection annual, Tranſition, and Direction; there is none of them that are any thing more than mere phanſies and figments. For what can be more vain and imaginary than their annual Profection, which makes the Horoſcope and the reſt of the Houſes move thirty Degrees a Year till the whole Period be finiſhed in twelve? Is this circuit of the Nativity-Scheme any where but in their own Brain? And then their Predictions or Corrections are by Aſpects of the Cuſpe of the Root with the Cuſpes of the preſent Scheme calculated for this or that Year. And how Aſpects themſelves are nothing, I have again and again taken notice.

And for Tranſition, what is more monſtrous than to think that a Planet by paſſing the ſame place in which it ſelf or other Planets were at the Nativity, ſhould cauſe ſome notable change in the party Born? As if the Planets walked their rounds with perfumed Socks, or that they ſmelt ſtronger at the Nativity than other times, and that another Planet come into the trace thereof ſhould exult in the Scent, or the ſame increaſe and renew the Smell: Or what is it that can adhere in theſe points of Heaven that the Planets were found in at the Nativity? Or why is not the whole Tract of the ſame ſcent? Or why not expunged by the paſſage of other Planets? But what will not Madneſs and Effaſcination make a Man phanſy to uphold his own Prejudices? And truly theſe two Origanus himſelf is willing to quit his Hands of, as leſs ſound and allowable: But Direction is a principal buſineſs with him.

Which yet in good truth will be found as frivolous as the reſt. For as in Tranſition, ſo alſo in Direction, the great Change muſt happen when a Planet, or Cuſpe, or Aſpect come to the place where ſuch a Planet or Cuſpe were at the Nativity. When the Significator comes to the place of the Promiſſor, then the Feat does not fail to be done. For the Promiſſor is conceived as immoveable, and ſuch as ſtands ſtill and expects the arrival of the Significator: Which is a demonſtration that this Promiſſor is either Imaginary ſpace or Nothing: And which of theſe two think you will keep promiſe beſt? Nay the Significator alſo, if it be the Horoſcope or any other Houſe, is imaginary too, as I have demonſtrated. And if it be a Planet, ſeeing yet the Planets move not as a Bird in the Air, or Fiſhes in the Waters, but as Cork carried down the ſtream; it is plain how this Planet never gets to that part of the Celeſtial Matter in which the Promiſſor was at the Nativity, the Promiſſor ever ſliding away with his own Matter in which he ſwims: And therefore if he hath left any Virtue behind him, it muſt again be depoſited in an Imaginary Space. Which is an undeniable Argument that the whole Myſtery of Direction is imaginary.

Wherefore if Profection annual, Tranſition and Direction are ſo vain that they ſignify nothing forward, how can we from Events (tho' they ſhould be judged and reaſoned from exactly according to theſe phantaſtick Laws) argue backward an exact indication of the time of the Nativity? If they could have pretended to ſome Rules of Nature or Aſtronomy to have rectified a Geniture by, they had ſaid ſomething; but this recourſe to their own phantaſtick and fictitious Principles proves nothing at all.

17. And thus have I run through the eighth and ninth Sections of the foregoing Chapter before I was aware. And he that has but moderate skill in the ſolid Principles of Natural Philoſophy and Aſtronomy, and but a competent patience to liſten to my cloſe reaſonings therefrom, cannot but acknowledge that I have fundamentally confuted the whole Art of Aſtrology, and that he has heard all their fine terms of Horoſcope, and Celeſtial Houſes, Exaltation, Triplicity, Trigons, Aſpects Benigne and Maligne, Station, Retrogradation, Combuſtion, Cazimi, Significator, Promiſſor, Apheta, Anæreta, Trigonocrator, Horecrator, Almugea, Almuten, Alcochodon, together with the reſt of their ſonorous Nothings, to have fallen down with a clatter like a Pile of dry Bones by the battery I have laid againſt them. And truly here I would not ſtick to pronounce that I have perfectly vanquiſhed the Enemy, did I not eſpy a little blind Fort to which theſe Fugitives uſually make their eſcape. And ſurely by the Title it ſhould be a very ſtrong one; they call it Experience or Obſervation of Events, which they boaſt to be accurately agreeable to their Predictions.

CHAP. XX.

1. The fallacious Allegation of Events anſwering to Predictions. 2. An Anſwer to that Evaſion of theirs, That the Error is in the Artiſt, not in the Art. 3. Further Confutations of their bold preſumption, that their Art always predicts true. 4. That the punctual Correſpondence of the Event to the Prediction of the Aſtrologer ſometimes, does not prove the certainty of the Art of Aſtrology. 5. The great Affinity of Aſtrology with Dæmonolatry, and of the ſecret Agency of Dæmons in bringing about Predictions. 6. That by reaſon of the ſecret Agency or familiar Converſe of Dæmons with pretended Aſtrologers, no Argument can be raiſed from Events for the Truth of this Art. 7. A Recapitulation of the whole matter argued. 8. The juſt occaſions of this Aſtrological Excurſion, and of his ſhewing the ridiculous condition of thoſe three high-flown Sticklers againſt Chriſtianity, Apollonius, Cardan and Vaninus.

1. BUT here their Hold is not ſo ſtrong as their Impudence great, that they will ſo boldly bear us in hand, that by Virtue of the Principles of their Art they have foretold any thing to come. There are many ludicrous ways of Divination wherein no Man is in good earneſt, and yet the Predictions and preſent Perſonal Deſcriptions of Men ſometimes fall right: But no ſober Man will impute this to Art but to Chance. It was but a fallacy of Neptune's Prieſt, when he would have carried the Spectator into admiration of that Deity from the many Donaries hung up in his Temple by Votaries. But he whom he would have thus impos'd upon was too cunning for him. For he demanded ſtraightway a Catalogue of thoſe Votaries that had ſuffered Shipwrack. And ſo do I of thoſe Predictions that have proved falſe. Cardan, a reputed Prince in this Faculty, complains that ſcarce ten in forty prove true: And Picus, a narrow ſearcher into the Art, profeſſes that he has found of his own Experience nineteen in twenty falſe; and that in the Prognoſtication of Weather, where no free Agents intermeddle to interrupt or turn off the natural Influence of the Stars.

2. But all the Aberrations that either themſelves or others may have obſerved will not bring off the more devoted Admirers of Aſtrology to acknowledge the vanity thereof. For their excuſe is, firſt, That by Hiſtory, private Information, and by their own Experience they are aſſured that the Predictions do ſometimes fall punctually true to a Year, nay, to a Day, and ſometimes to an Hour, and that the Circumſtances of things are ſo particularly ſet out, that it cannot be Chance but Art that arrives at that Accuracy. And then ſecondly, That the profeſſion of others, and alſo their own obſervation, does witneſs to them, that when there is any Miſtake, the Error is in the Artiſt, not in the Art. For when they have examined their Aſtrological Scheme, they find the Event was there ſignified, and that it was their own Overſight to miſs it. But to anſwer to the latter firſt, I ſay, they cannot pretend their Obſervation univerſal; and they that underſtand Aſtrology beſt, will acknowledge there is that Intanglement uſually and complication of things, that it requires a very long time to give due Judgment according to Art concerning a Nativity. And therefore, I ſay, the Repreſentation of the Event being ſo doubtful, if they chance to predict right at firſt, they eaſily perſwade themſelves that was the Meaning of the Celeſtial Theme. If they miſs, they will force on their way further, till they find out what is anſwerable to the Events; which then muſt needs be the meaning of the Art, tho' the Artiſt overſaw it: Nor will they urge themſelves to any further Accuracy of Inquiſition, for fear they ſhould find it diſagree again; or rather out of a ſtrong credulity that if it hit right, it is ſurely from the true meaning and principles of their beloved Science: Whenas in truth their Themes have no certainty in their repreſentation, but are as a piece of changeable Stuff or creaſed Pictures, look this way it is this colour, that way that, this way a Virgin, that way an Ape; or like the Oracles of Apollo, who was deſervedly called Loxias, whoſe crooked Anſwers winded ſo this way and that way, that nothing but the Event could tell whither they pointed.

3. I might add further, that the Pretence of the Schemes themſelves (be they never ſo exact) I ſay the Pretence of their always repreſenting the Events aright, is a moſt impudent and raſh Preſumption; becauſe (as I have intimated already) the Objects of their Predictions are ſo alterable by the interpoſal of free Agents, which interrupt ever and anon the ſeries of Cauſality in natural Inclinations. Whence in reaſon reaſon a Man can expect no certain Predictions at all from the ſignifications of the Stars, nor that any trial can be made whether there be any thing in the Art or no. And it cannot but ſeem to every one a very bold Surmiſe, to imagine that all that fall in one Fight by the edge of the Sword, or ſuffer Shipwrack in one Storm, or are ſwept away in one Peſtilence, had their Emiſſors and Interfectors in their Nativity anſwerable to the times of their Death. The Artiſts themſelves dare not avouch it, and therefore bring in an unobſerved Caution of having recourſe to Eclipſes, Comets, and Blazing-Stars, to calculate the general Fortune of the place, nay, of their Parents and Anceſtors, and of their familiar Friends, of which there is no news in the moſt famous Predictions of Aſtrologers: And therefore theſe and the like Conſiderations being left out, it is a ſign their Divinations fell true by Chance. Wherefore it is a ſhameleſs piece of Impoſture to impute the truth of Predictions to Art, where the Rules of Art are not obſerved; I may add where they are ſo palpably by Experience confuted. For ſo it is in Twins growing together, whoſe Natures ſhould be utterly the ſame according to their Art; and if they could be born at one moment, the moment of their Death ſhould be the ſame alſo. And yet thoſe undiſſevered Twins born in Scotland, who lived till twenty eight Years of their Age, prov'd very often Diſſenting Brethren, would wrangle and jangle; and one alſo died before the other. In anſwering to which Inſtance, in my Judgment, that Ingenious Knight Sir Chriſtopher Heydon is very ſhrewdly baffled. See his Defence of Judicial Aſtrology, cap. 11.

4. And now to the * Former, I ſay, The reaſoning is not right, to conclude the certainty of the Art from the punctual correſpondence of the Event to the Prediction. For it is alſo true that the Event has been punctually contrary thereto. And therefore this is as good a Demonſtration that it is no Art, as the other that it is: But it is eaſy to conceive that both may happen by Chance. Again, as for that exact Punctuality of time, it is moſt likely to be by Chance, becauſe (as I have proved above) there is no way of rectifying a Nativity to that Accuracy they pretend. And for particular Circumſtances in Horary Queſtions, why may they not be by under-hand information, or ſome tricks and juglings that are uſual amongſt Cheats? But if the Predictions of Aſtrologers be free from this, and yet be punctual in Time and other circumſtances, and ſo many that it may ſeem improbable to be imputed to Chance, (tho' Chance has ſuch a Latitude, that it is difficult to ſay any thing is not by Chance that happens, ſuppoſe but four times ſeldomer than the contrary) it will not yet follow that they are free from other things which are aſſuredly worſe, more horrid, and more execrable; ſuch as the conſulting of Ghoſts and Familiar Spirits: A wickedneſs that that zealous Patron of Aſtrology, Sir Chriſtopher Heydon, acknowledges to be too frequently palliated under the pretence of this Art. * Sect. 2.

5. And truly for my own part, I do not much doubt but that Aſtrology it ſelf is an Appendix of the old Pagans Superſtition, who were Worſhippers of the Hoſt of Heaven, and whoſe Prieſts were Confederates of the Devil; and therefore it is no wonder if Dæmonolatry creep in upon Aſtrology, and renew their old Acquaintance with one another. And aſſuredly it is a pleaſant Spectacle to thoſe Airy Goblins, thoſe Haters and Scorners of Mankind, to ſee the noble Faculties of Men debaſed and intangled in ſo vile and wretched a Myſtery, which will avail nothing to Divination unleſs theſe ἀπατεῶνες δαίμονες malicious Deceivers act their parts in the Scene. For it is not unconceivable how theſe inviſible Inſidiators may ſo apply themſelves to a Man's Curioſity that will be tampering and practiſing in this Superſtition, that (ſuppoſe) in Horary Queſtions, they may excite ſuch Perſons and at ſuch a time to make their Demands, that according to the foreknown Rules of Aſtrology the Theme of Heaven will decypher very circumſtantially the Perſon, his Relations, or his Condition, and give a true Solution of the Demand, whether about Decumbitures, Stollen Goods, or any ſuch Queſtions as are ſet down in Dariot's Introduction. Which needs muſt enraviſh the young Aſtrologer, and inflame him with the Love and Admiration of ſo ſtrange an Art. And as for Nativities and punctual Predictions of the time of one's Death, and it may be of the manner of it, (which either only, or moſt ordinarily happens in ſuch as are addicted to, or devoted Admirers of this Art) it is very ſuſpicable that the ſame Inviſible Powers put to their helping Hand to bring about the Effect; and ſo thoſe whoſe Misfortunes and Deaths are predicted, muſt to the pot, to credit the Art, and be made Sacrifices to the Luſt and Ambition of thoſe Rebellious Fiends, to whoſe ſecret Laſh and Dominion Men expoſe themſelves when they intermeddle with ſuch Superſtitious Curioſities as are Appendages to Ancient Paganiſm, and were in all likelihood invented or ſuggeſted, by thoſe proud and ludicrous Spirits, to entangle Man in, by way by way of ſport and ſcorn, and to ſubjugate him to the befoolments of their Tricks and Deluſions. For it is not unreaſonable to think that by certain Laws of the great Polity of the Inviſible World they gain a Right againſt a Man without explicit Contract, if he be but once ſo raſh as to tamper with the Myſteries of the Dark Kingdom, or to practiſe in them, or any way to make uſe of them. For why not here as well as in the Ceremonies of Witchcraft? (But I muſt not make too large Excurſions.) And therefore I think it the ſafeſt way for every one that has given his Name to God and Chriſt, not to meddle nor make with theſe Superſtitious Curioſities of Aſtrology, either by practiſing them himſelf, or conſulting them that do, that no ill trick be put upon him by being made obnoxious to the inviſible Scourge, or by making others ſo in whoſe behalf he conſults.

6. I ſay then, theſe vagrant Dæmons of the Air either ſecretly inſinuating themſelves into the Actions of Aſtrologers, or after more apparently offering themſelves to Familiarity and Converſe, for to grace their Profeſſion by oral Revelation of things paſt, preſent, or to come in ſuch a way as is above humane Power; I demand how it ſhall appear that Cardan's, for example, and * Aſcletarion's Deaths, and others more punctually, that I could name, predicted by themſelves or others, was not by the Familiarity of Dæmons, but the pure Principles of Aſtrology. And ſo of whatſoever Honour or other Events that have been found to fall out juſt according to Aſtrological Predictions, I demand how it can be proved that Aſtrology was not here only for a Vizard, and that a Magician or Wizzard was not underneath. By how much accurater their Predictions are, by ſo much the more cauſe of ſuſpicion.

* Sueton. in vitâ Domitiani, ſect. 15.

7. Now therefore to conclude, ſeeing that the Principles of Aſtrologers are ſo groundleſs, frivolous, nay contradictious one with another, and built upon falſe Hypotheſes and groſs Miſtakes concerning the Nature and Syſtem of the World; ſeeing it has no due Object by reaſon of the interpoſing of the free Agency of both Men and Angels to interrupt perpetually the imagined natural ſeries of both Cauſality and Events; ſeeing there is not ſufficient Experience to make good the Truth of the Art, they that have practiſed therein having not obſerved the pretended Laws thereof with due Accuracy, and therefore if any thing has hitherto hit true, it muſt be Chance, which quite takes away their Plea from Events; ſo that their Art is utterly to ſeek, not only for Principles, which I have demonſtrated to be falſe, but for Experience and Effects, which hitherto have been none; (And aſſuredly they make nothing of pronouncing loudly That ſuch or ſuch a Configuration will have ſuch an Event, tho' they never experienc'd it at all, or very ſeldom: As it muſt needs be in the Conjunction of Saturn, Jupiter and Mars, which returns not in ſeven hundred Years;) ſeeing alſo that thoſe Predictions that are pretended to have fallen right are ſo few, that they may juſtly be deemed to have fallen right by Chance, and that if any thing has been foretold very punctually and circumſtantially, it may as well, nay better, be ſuppoſed to proceed from the ſecret Inſinuations or viſible Converſe with the Airy Wanderers, than from the Indication of the Stars; and laſtly, ſeeing there is that Affinity and frequent Aſſociation of Aſtrology with Dæmonolatry and ancient Pagan Superſtition; that Perſon certainly muſt have a ſtrangely-impure and effaſcinable paſſivity of Phancy, that can be bound over to a belief or liking of a Foolery ſo utterly groundleſs as Aſtrology is, and ſo nearly verging toward the brinks of Apoſtaſy and Impiety.

8. I have now finiſhed my Aſtrological Excurſion, to which I was ſtrongly tempted, in a juſt Zeal and Reſentment of that unparallel'd Preſumption and wicked Saucineſs of the Vain-glorious Cardan, who either in a rampant fit of Pride and Thirſt after Admiration, or out of a malicious deſign to all true Piety, would make the World believe that the Divinity and Sacroſanctity of Chriſtian Religion was ſubjected to his imaginary Laws of the Stars, and that the Fate of Chriſt the Son of God, miraculouſly Born of the Holy Ghoſt, was writ in his Nativity, which forſooth he pretended to have calculated: As if all that Juſtice, Meekneſs and Power of Working of Miracles were deriv'd upon our Saviour from the Natural influence of the Configuration of the Heavens at his Birth; and as if he did not willingly lay down his Life for the World, * as he himſelf profeſſes, but were ſurprized by Fate, and lay ſubject to the ſtroke of an Aſtrological ἀναιρέτης or Sidereal Interfector. This Excurſion, I ſay, I made upon the account of Cardan: As alſo to meet with that enormous Boaſter and ſelf-conceited Wit, the prophane and giddy-headed Vaninus, a tranſported Applauder and Admirer of that wild and vain Suppoſition of Cardan, upon which he ſo much dotes, that it is the very Prop and Maſter-piece of his Impious Writings, the both Baſis and Finiſhing of all his villainous diſtorted Doctrines againſt the Truth and Sacredneſs of Chriſtian Religion.

* John 10. 18.

Religion. To which two you may add alſo Apollonius, though long before them, a high Pretender to divine Revelations, and hot Inſtaurator of decaying Paganiſm; but withal a very ſilly Affecter of * Aſtrological Predictions, by which it is eaſily diſcoverable at what a pitch he did either divine or philoſophize. And methinks it is a trim Sight to ſee theſe Three buſie Sticklers againſt Chriſtianity, like Three fine Fools ſo goodly gay in their Aſtromantick Diſguiſes, expoſed to the juſt Scorn and Deriſion of the World for their ſo high Pretenſions againſt what is ſo holy and ſolid as the Chriſtian Faith is, and that upon ſo fond and frivolous Grounds as this of Aſtrology.

* See Book 4. ch. 4. ſect. 2.

BOOK VIII.

CHAP. I.

1. The End and Uſefulneſs of Chriſtian Religion in general. 2. That Chriſt came into the World to deſtroy Sin out of it. 3. His earneſt Recommendation of Humility. 4. The ſame urged by the Apoſtle Paul.

1. WE have now finiſhed the Third Part of our Diſcourſe, and have ſufficiently proved, That Chriſtianity is not only a Reaſonable and Intelligible Idea of ſomething that may be worth Providence's ſetting on foot ſome time or other, or as a ſeminal Form lurking unactive in the Seed under ground; but that it has ſhot it ſelf into Real Exiſtence, and is as a grown Tree that ſpreads its Arms far and wide. It remains now that we conſider the Branches and Fruit thereof. And I dare boldly pronounce that this is the Tree whoſe Leaves were intended for the healing of the Nations, not for a Pretence and Palliation for Sin; and that the Fruit thereof to the true Believer is Life and Immortality. This is a brief Comprehenſion of the glorious End and great Uſefulneſs of the Goſpel. But we ſhall be ſomething more explicate in a matter of ſo mighty Importance. You may underſtand out of what has been ſaid in the firſt Part concerning the Nature of the Myſtery of Godlineſs, that the Goſpel is a kind of Engine to raiſe the Divine Life into thoſe Triumphs that are due to it, and are deſigned for it from everlaſting by the All-ſeeing Providence of God. Let us now conſider how fit the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel is for this purpoſe; that is to ſay, Thoſe things that are teſtified in it, or propheſied of it, or intimated by it, how all theſe things aim and conſpire to this End; partly by affording the moſt effectual means imaginable for the re-inſtalling the Soul into an higher State of Righteouſneſs here, than any other Diſpenſation that has yet appeared in the World, and thereby more certainly tranſplanting her hereafter into a bleſſed State of Immortal Life; and partly by exhibiting ſuch warrantable Grounds of doing Divine Homage to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in whom this Life we ſpeak of reſideth ſo plentifully, he being anointed therewith far above the meaſure of his Fellows. So that in this reſpect, though the other Deſign has taken ſo little Effect in the World, yet we cannot but acknowledge that the Divine Life has not been diſappointed of all her exteriour Pomps and Triumphs. We ſhall begin with the former kinds of the Powers of this Engine.

2. The firſt of which conſiſts in this, In that it is ſo plainly and clearly declared in the New Teſtament, That the great End of Chriſt's coming into the World was to remove Sin out of it, and to purifie Mens Souls from all Uncleanneſs and Wickedneſs; as is apparent from ſundry places. As 1 John Chap. 3. He that committeth Sin is of the Devil; for the Devil ſinneth from the beginning. For this purpoſe the Son of God was manifeſted, that he might deſtroy the Works of the Devil. Whoſoever is born of God, doth not commit ſin; for his Seed remaineth in him: and he cannot ſin, becauſe he is born of God. Again, Tit. Chap. 2. For the Grace of God that bringeth Salvation hath appeared to all Men; teaching us, that denying Ungodlineſs and worldly Luſts, we ſhould live ſoberly, righteouſly and godly in this preſent World; looking for that bleſſed hope and glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt; who gave himſelf for us, that he might redeem us from all Iniquity, and purifie to himſelf a peculiar People, zealous of good Works. Alſo Epheſ. Chap. 5. v. 25. Husbands, love your your Wives, even as Christ also loved the Church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctifie and cleanse it with the washing of Water, by the Word: That he might present it to himself a glorious Church, not having Spot or Wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without Blemish.

I might add several other places, but I shall content my self with but one Ratification more of this Truth from the Mouth of our Blessed Saviour, who professes he Matth. 5. 17. came not to destroy the Law, but to fulfill it; that is, to set it at an higer pitch, as appears by the whole Scope of his Sermon upon the Mount. The observance of which Precepts he does seriously require of his Disciples and Followers; as appears from that Similitude he closes his Discourse withal, where he pronounces that they that kept Matth. 7. 24. and practised his Sayings, should be safe as one that builds his House upon a Rock; but those that heard and practised not, should be as he that built on the Sand; that is, upon a false and deceitful Foundation. And a little above he does plainly protest even against such that may have propheſied, cast out Devils, and done Miracles in his Name, (which yet are greater matters than either the making or hearing of long Prayers or long Sermons) because they kept not this Law of Righteousness he there propounds, he does protest that in the Day of Judgment he will not know them, but bid them depart from him, as Workers of Iniquity.

This is sufficient to demonstrate, That the End of the Gospel is to renovate the Spirits of Men into true and real inherent Righteousness and Holiness, which in counter-distinction to the Animal Life (which had domineered in the World so long, * See Book 3. chap. 6 & 7. not only in the profane Actions, but also in the very * Religious Rites of the Heathens, as I have already shewn at large) I have denominated the Life Divine, and numbred out those Three Parts it most consists of, namely, Humility, Charity and Purity; and therefore it will not be unreasonable to shew how expresly and particularly urgent the Gospel is for the promoting these three Graces.

3. Our Saviour Christ, Matth. 11. makes a solemn Invitation to the first of these Virtues, propounding himself an Example; Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you Rest. Take my Yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in Heart, and you shall find rest unto your Souls. And Matth. 5. v. 5. Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the Earth. It is a Promise from the same Mouth. The meaning of both which Places is, That Humility and Meekness beget a great deal of Peace, and Tranquillity, and Enjoyment of a Man's self, even in this Life, whenas Pride exposes a Man to perpetual Discontent and Impatiency. Besides that the Proud Man is as it were the Butt that the Almighty shoots his Arrows against to gall, wound and vex; the very Hacstock of divine Vengeance, and the Sport and Pastime of Misfortune. James 4. 6. God resisteth the Proud, but giveth Grace to the Humble. But my purpose is not to interpret such easie Places as I alledge, but meerly to bring them into the Reader's View.

And there are many more yet that testifie of the Excellency of this Grace of Humility. For our Saviour again (Matth. 11.) entitles those Virtues especially to the Knowledge of the Mystery of the Kingdom of God. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto Babes. Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight. And Matth. 18. Christ being asked who is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven, called a little Child unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted and become as little Children, ye shall in no wise enter into the Kingdom of Heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little Child, the same is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. And Chap. 20. 25. Ye know that the Princes of the Gentiles exercise Dominion over them, and they that are great exercise Authority upon them. But it shall not be so among you; but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your Minister; and whosoever will be Chief among you, let him be your Servant. Even as the Son of Man came not to be ministred unto, but to minister, and to give his Life a Ransom for many. In which Passage is insinuated, That useless and pompous Honour is to have no place in the Church of Christ; but that if any Man's Office be more honourable than another, it must be also more serviceable, especially in matters appertaining to Religion.

For to the like purpose is that Matth. 23. where the Pride and Hyprcrisie of the Scribes and Pharisies is taxed. For they bind heavy Burdens, saith our Saviour, and grievous to be born, and lay them upon Mens Shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their Fingers. But all their Works they do to be seen of Men: they make broad their Philacteries, and enlarge the Borders of their Garments, and love the *the uppermoſt Rooms at Feaſts, and the chief Seats in the Synagogues, and Greetings in the Market-places, and to be called of Men, Rabbi, Rabbi. But be not you called, * Rabbi,* ſaith our Saviour; *for one is your Maſter, even Chriſt, and all you are Brethren. And call no Man your * Father upon Earth; for one is your Father which is in Heaven. Neither be you called * Maſters; for one is your Maſter, even Chriſt. But he that is greateſt among you, ſhall be your * Servant. And whoſoever ſhall exalt himſelf, ſhall be abaſed; and he that humbleth himſelf, ſhall be exalted.*

 Infallible Doctor, imperious Father or Maſter, obtruding upon his own Authority other Doctrines than Chriſt hath taught us.

* Quò quis inter vos majorem in Eccleſia dignitatem obtinebit, eò ſciat ſibi non plus imperii conceſſum, ſed plus oneris injunctum. Grot.

4. Hitherto our Saviour, and that very fully. In whoſe Foot-ſteps the Apoſtles alſo inſiſt, Rom. 12. 16. Be of the ſame mind one towards another. Mind not high things, but condeſcend to Men of low Degree. Be not wiſe in your own Conceits. And Eph. 4. I therefore the Priſoner of the Lord beſeech you, that ye walk worthy of the Vocation wherewith ye are called, in all lowlineſs, with long-ſuffering, forbearing one another in Love. And Titus 3. Put them in mind to be ſubject to Principalities and Powers, to obey Magiſtrates, to be ready to every good Work, to ſpeak evil of no Man, to be no Brawlers, ſhewing all Meekneſs to all Men. So that we ſee the Chriſtian Religion meets as well with the Saucineſs of the Inferiours, as with the affected Domination of Superiours. Thus expreſly does the Goſpel recommend Humility to the World.

CHAP. II.

1. Chriſt's Enforcement of Love and Charity upon his Church by Precept and his own Example. 2. The wretched Impoſture and falſe Pretenſions of the Family of Love to this Divine Grace. 3. The Unreaſonableneſs of the Familiſts in laying aſide the Perſon of Chriſt, to adhere to ſuch a carnal and inconſiderable Guide as Hen. Nicolas. 4. That this Whiffler never gave any true Specimens of real Love to Mankind, as Chriſt did and his Apoſtles. 5. His unjuſt Uſurpation of the Title of Love, 6. The unparallel'd Endearments of Chriſt's Sufferings in the behalf of Mankind.

1. THE next Branch of the Divine Life is Chriſtian Love or Charity, than which nothing is more inculcated in the New Teſtament. Chriſt has left it as his Motto, and the Motto of his Church, the Symbolum or Word whereby it may be known to whom they belong. John 13. 34. A new Commandement I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye love one another. By this ſhall all Men know that ye are my Diſciples, if ye love one another. As if he ſhould have ſaid, You may have heard ſomething indeed out of Moſes of loving one's Neighbour as himſelf; which Precept as it did not reach ſo far as I intend this of mine, and ſith that which it reached at is alſo utterly laid aſide and neglected, I now afreſh ſet it on foot, and upon ſuch Terms and in ſuch a degree and manner as never was yet. For I would have you love one another even as I have loved you; that is, ſo heartily and ſincerely, that you will be ready to lay your Lives down one for another, if need require. Which is more plainly expreſs'd, Chap. 15. 12. This is my Commandement, that ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love hath no Man than this, that a Man lay down his Life for his Friends. Which Chriſt doing for his Church, eſpecially in thoſe Circumſtances he did, is an unparallel'd Specimen of true Love indeed, and the higheſt Obligation that can be of our loving both him and one another.

2. Which things while I conſider, I cannot with patience think upon the groſs Impoſture of that bold Enthuſiaſt of Amſterdam, who giving no ſound Evidence of any ſuch Love as may be deemed rightly either Moral or Divine, only tumbling out a Rhapſody of ſwelling Words, diſtorted Allegories, and ſlight Alluſions to the Hiſtory of Scripture, intermingling them or ſtrinkling them ever and anon with the ſpecious Name of Love (though there be no Motive or Reaſon that urges the thing it ſelf all the while) would give out himſelf ſuch a Maſter of this Myſtery, as that Chriſtianity muſt be ſuper-annuated, and all the devotional Homage due to our Saviour laid aſide, all his Offices ſilenced, his Paſſion ſlighted, nay derided, his viſible Return to Judgment anticipated and eluded, his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion miſbelieved, and the Promiſe of Eternal Life ſwallowed up in the preſent glorious Enjoyments and Enrichments of them that will give up their Soundneſs of Judgment and Reaſon to be led about with the May-games and Morrice-dances of that ſweet Sect that have uſurped to themſelves the Title of the Family of Love. Whenas the Author of this Faction, as I am well enough informed, was more likely to prove a Pimp or ſecond Sardanapalus, than a true Inſtructor of the World in ſo Holy a Myſtery; being infamous for having ſuſpected Females in his Houſe, and living ſplendidly and deliciouſly above his rank, noted for his Crimſon-Satten doublet and other correſpondent Habiliments, as alſo for his large Looking-glaſs, wherein he often contemplated his whole begodded Humanity; and compoſing his long Beard, and ſtroaking down his Satten ſides, might ſtrut in admiration of himſelf, that he found the World ſo favourable to his falſe Impoſtures; and laſtly, ridiculous for his Women-Scribes, and other ſuch like ſoft Doings, not to ſay impure and obſcene. All which to any Man that has but a moderate Naſuteneſs cannot but import, that in the Title of this Sect that call themſelves the Family of Love, there muſt be ſignified no other Love than that which is merely Natural or Animal; tho' the Preacher of this Love-myſtery bears himſelf ſo aloft, and is ſo high upon the Wing, that he cannot phanſy himſelf any thing leſs than that Apocalyptical Angel flying in the midſt of Heaven, and Preaching the everlaſting Goſpel to the Inhabitants of the World. And truly this Goſpel of Henry of Amſterdam is likely to be as laſting as the Generations of Men, and, I may add, as univerſal as both Men and Brutes.

3. Hear, O Heavens, and hearken, O Earth, while I plead the cauſe of the juſt one
Iſa. 28. 16. and deſpiſed againſt the Rebellious Hypocrites. Thus ſaith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Sion for a Foundation a Stone, a tried Stone, a precious Corner-ſtone, a ſure Foundation; and he that believes thereon, ſhall not be aſhamed. Judgment alſo will I lay to the Line, and Righteouſneſs to the Plummet, and the Hail ſhall ſweep away the refuge of Lyes, and the Waters ſhall over-flow their hiding-places. That this Corner-ſtone and
* 1 Pet. 2. 6. ſure Foundation is * Chriſt that ſuffered at Jeruſalem, we are infallibly informed by
Rom. 9. 32, 33. thoſe that were truly inſpired, the bleſſed Apoſtles. That the refuge of lyes and hiding-place is moſt naturally applicable to this skulking Family, is apparent, in that the ſum of their Religion is nothing but a bundle of lying Allegories and Canting Terms, whereby they deal falſly with Men; and under the pretence of fine Myſtical Speeches, would thruſt out of the World the choiceſt and moſt beneficial Truth that ever was imparted to the Sons of Men; I mean the Truth of the Goſpel in the plain ſimplicity thereof, whereby we are ſo clearly taught what we are to be, to do, and to expect. And the Storm that ſhall overtake them, and the Deluge that ſhall fall in upon them in their hidden Dwellings, ſhall be thoſe Torrents of Reaſon and that irreſiſtible Conviction from the ſincere and true-hearted Followers of Chriſt.

Tell me therefore, O ye conceitedly-inſpired, whoſe phancies have blown you above Goſpel-diſpenſations, why do you run into the Error of the Jews, and refuſe this precious corner-ſtone, this ſure Foundation, and build upon diſunited Sand and Rotten Quagmires, that will bear no weight? Why do you lay aſide Chriſt in the Truth of his Hiſtory, the moſt palpable pledge of Divine Providence, of God's Reconciliation to Men and of future Happineſs, that ever was exhibited to the World, and chuſe for your Guide a mere Allegorical Whiffler, an Idol-Puppet dreſſed up in words and phraſes filched out of the Scripture, but perverting and eluding the main ſcope and moſt uſeful Meaning thereof?

Why have ye forſaken the only-begotten Son of God, and given your ſelves up to the deceivable Conduct of a mere Carnal Man, and wholly deſtitute not only of true Faith in God and Chriſt, but of all Subſtantial Knowledge and Reaſon? Why are you ſo raſh and giddy as to believe one that only teſtifies of himſelf, and is ſo impudent a Plagiary as to offer you no Wares but ſuch as he has ſtol'n from you, if you pretend to be of the Chriſtian Church; and thoſe ſo Poiſoned and Adulterated, that you cannot receive them without the danger of being ſtruck into a misbelief of the Truth of Chriſt's Goſpel, and of revolting from him to whom ſo many Illuſtrious Prophecies of old, ſo many Miracles done by himſelf, to whom his wonderful Reſurrection from the Dead, and audible Voices from Heaven while he was living, gave ample Teſtimony that he was indeed the true Son of God?

4. What indearing Evidence or Argument has this Mercer of Amſterdam given you of true Compaſſion and Love to Mankind, that you ſhould vaunt him ſo tranſcendent a Myſtagogus in ſo divine a Myſtery, that you equalize him to, nay, Exalt him above Chriſt and his Apoſtles? Did he not live a lazy, eaſy, ſoft Life, as other Rich Shop-keepers do; whenas not only our Saviour himſelf but alſo his Apoſtles lived an hard an hard Asketick Life, full of Dangers and Afflictions alſo from without? Let S. Paul ſpeak for the reſt, for they were in a manner all of them in the ſame caſe, and might juſtly expoſtulate with theſe high Fanatick Pretenders in the ſame Words: Are they Miniſters of Chriſt? (I ſpeak like a Fool) I am more; in Labours more abundant, in ſtripes above meaſure, in Priſons more frequent, in Deaths often. Of the Jews received I forty ſtripes ſave one, thrice was I beaten with Rods, once was I Stoned, thrice I ſuffered Shipwrack, a Night and a Day have I been in the Deep; in Journeyings often, in perils of Water, in perils of Robbers, in perils by mine own Countreymen, in perils by the Heathen, in perils in the City, in perils in the Wilderneſs, in perils at the Sea, in perils among falſe Brethren; in wearineſs and painfulneſs, in watchings often, in Hunger and Thirſt, in Faſtings often, in cold and nakedneſs, &c. To all which you may add very deſpightful and torturous Deaths which moſt of them underwent at laſt: And all this out of a faithful Love to their Lord and Maſter Jeſus Chriſt, and a dear regard to the good and Salvation of Mankind. But what was it wherewith this H. N. obliged the World ſo that all due Homage and Divine Reverence to the Perſon of Chriſt muſt be laid aſide, and this bold Impoſtor ſilence the conſtant Faith of Chriſtians, by his high pretenſions of being the Head and Father of ſuch a Family whoſe Inſcription muſt be Love, who with this Family of his, is God and Chriſt, and Cherubims and Seraphims, Angels and Arch-Angels already buſy in their office of judging the quick and the dead, and gathering the elect from all the corners of the Earth? 2 Cor. 11. 23, 24, &c.

5. But in my apprehenſion at the very firſt ſight this Judge of the quick and dead, ſhews himſelf very injudicious, if not malicious, in making a difference betwixt the true Houſhold of Faith and Family of Love; beſides his groſs and impudent injuſtice in uſurping that Badge of Honour to himſelf that was won by another in a Field of Blood. For, as I was going to ſay, what has this H. N. done to merit this Title more than in ſcribbling many Fanatical Rhapſodies of unſound Language, abuſively borrowed from the Sacred Scriptures, and in perverting the Senſe and ſupplanting the end by his wicked eluſions and vain Allegorical evaſions, and ſo under pretence of beginning an higher Diſpenſation of Righteouſneſs and Religion in the World than ever was yet, treacherouſly introducing in ſtead of true Religion nothing but Sadduciſm, Epicuriſm and Atheiſm? This voluminous Enthuſiaſm of his, together with the gracing of the Family with the ſplendor of his Crimſon Habiliments, is all I find that can pretend to any Conteſtation or Competition with the true Maſter of Divine Love, or to any Obligation of his Followers.

6. I muſt confeſs our Saviour compiled no Books, it being a piece of Pedantry below ſo Noble and Divine a Perſon. But that ſhort Sentence which he writ with his own Precious Blood, As I have Loved you, ſo Love you one another, is worth Millions of Volumes, tho' written with the trueſt and ſincereſt Eloquence that ever fell from the Pen of an Orator. Nor did he wear any gay Clothes, but when by force the abuſive Soldiers put a Scarlet Robe upon him in deſpight and mockery. Nor was he reſplendent in any Colours but what was the Die of his own Blood in his ſolemn and dreadful Paſſion, when he was ſo cruelly Scourged, when out of Agony of Mind he ſweat drops of Blood, when he was nailed to the Croſs, and the Lance let Blood and Water out of his Side. All which ineffable and unſupportable Torments this Innocent Lamb of God ſuffered for no demerit of his, (for what thank is it to ſuffer for a factious Impoſtor or open evil doer?) But out of mere compaſſion and hearty Love to Mankind, that he might by this bitter Paſſion of his, and the glorious Conſequences of it, his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion, gain us to God. And now let all Men judge if there can be poſſibly any Author or pretended Inſtructer of the World, in that Holy and Divine Love indeed, comparable to the Lord Jeſus, who has given this unparallel'd Demonſtration of his Love unto us.

CHAP. III.

1. The occaſion of the Familiſts uſurpation of the Title of Love. 2. Earneſt Precepts out of the Apoſtles to follow Love, and what kind of Love that is. 3. That we cannot Love God, unleſs we Love our Neighbour alſo. 4. An Expoſition of the 5 and 6 Verſes of the 1*ſt Chapter of the* 2*d Epiſt. of S.* Peter. 5. Saint Paul's rapturous Commendation of Charity. 6. His accurate Deſcription thereof. 7. That Love is the higheſt Participation of the Divinity, and that whereby we become the Sons of God. And how injurious theſe Fanaticks are that rob the Church of Chriſt of this Title to appropriate it to themſelves.

Iſa. 51. 1. 1. HEarken therefore to me, ye that would follow after Righteouſneſs, ye that ſeek the Lord: Look unto the Rock whence you were hewen, and to the hole of the Pit from whence you were digged. Look upon him whom ye have pierced, and whoſe Blood is the Seed of the Church, whoſe Spouſe was taken out of his Side as Eve out of the Side of Adam. Acknowledge your Original, and recount with your ſelves the price of your Redemption, even the ineſtimable Blood of that immaculate Lamb Chriſt Jeſus. The Senſe whereof is the ſtrongeſt cement imaginable to unite us to our Saviour and one unto another.

But when the Church hath for ſo long a time abandon'd her ſelf to bitter Factions and Perſecutions, to War and Bloodſhed, and all manner of Enmity and Hoſtility one againſt another; when thoſe who ſhould have faithfully miniſtred to the People the Myſtery of the Goſpel pure and ſincere, by their bold and prepoſterous Additions, their Corruptions, Subtletie and vain Gloſſes, have render'd it ſo intricate, that 'tis become nothing elſe but a Mint of Controverſies and a School of Contentions, where nothing is heard but endleſs Brawlings and Wrangling about uſeleſs Opinions, whence nothing proceeds but Hatred, Pride and Faction, yea moſt cruel Perſecutions and Barbarous Murders; when, in theſe very ſacred Places that were erected for the Preaching of the Goſpel of Peace, they have blown the Trumpet of War, and in an Antichriſtian Rage have ſounded an Alarm againſt thoſe who are reconcil'd to God through the Blood of Chriſt Jeſus, which ſhould be the common Bond and Cement of the whole Chriſtian World, to keep their Hearts in Unity and Concord indiſſolvable; when, I ſay, they have in this manner left deſolate the Tabernacle of David, is it ſo much to be wondred at, if an Alien has got ſecretly into it, and poſſeſt it in the Abſence of others? And when they have ſo ſhamefully ſlighted that moſt precious Legacy of their dying Lord, namely the Love of one another, is it any Injuſtice if ſome Stranger take it up from the Ground even in their view, diſplay and flouriſh it in his Hand to their eternal Diſgrace and Ignominy? That is, to expreſs it in one Word, if the pretended Family of Love has poſſeſt it ſelf of that lovely Title, which they may deſervedly be thought either to have rejected or loſt Right unto. As for my ſelf verily, I know not what Apology I ſhall make either for the fond Opinions or the foul Miſcarriages of the Wilderneſs of Chriſtendom. But ſure I am That the Banner over the true Spouſe of Chriſt is Love: That Love is the Badge and Cognoſcence of all his faithful Members, by which they are known to be His living Members indeed: That Love and Peace is the laſt Legacy which was left to the Diſciples by their dying Lord and Maſter; an Inheritance entailed upon all the true Sons of God for ever: That Love is the fulfilling of the Law, and has filled almoſt every page of the Goſpel and all the Writings of the Apoſtles; and when they ſpeak of Faith, it is none other Faith than that which worketh by Love.

2. Out of the many repetitions and inculcations of this Holy and Heavenly Vertue I was a gleaning out ſome to preſent you withal, for an evidence how ſerious the Goſpel of Chriſt is, and how ſufficient in the urging of this indiſpenſable duty. We go on therefore, and add to what we have already cited theſe following places, Galat. 5. 6. For in Jeſus Chriſt neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor uncircumciſion, but Faith which worketh by Love. And if Circumciſion be nothing without Faith working by Love, what can Baptizing or Rebaptizing or any external Ceremony be without this true Faith whoſe Life and Spirit is Love, which the Apoſtle directs us to? And after v. 13, 14. For, Brethren, ye have been called unto Liberty; only uſe not your Liberty for an occaſion to the Fleſh, but by Love ſerve one another. For all the Law is fulfilled in one Word, even even in this, Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf. Where this Law of Love is ſo carefully deſcribed, that the Abuſe of this Title to Luſt and Libertiniſm is plainly excluded, againſt ſuch as talk ſo much of Love, and are but Libertines at the bottom. Which Caution alſo is very ſoberly and prudently put in by St. John Ep. 1. Chap. 5. v. 2. By this we know that we love the Children of God, when we love God and keep his Commandments. Which is a plain Demonſtration that that Love which St. John exhorts to ſo copiouſly in his Epiſtle, is a Love purely divine, and ſuch as no Man can be aſſured he doth practiſe, unleſs he keep all the Commandments of God. For even a carnal Man may love the Children of God, becauſe he finds them harmleſs, peaceable, and beneficial, or becauſe himſelf is of a good ſanguine, benign Complexion: But this Love, in a Man that makes not Conſcience of the Commandments of God, is merely Animal and Natural; not proceeding from that Community of the Divine Spirit which all the Regenerate participate of, but out of Complexion and Self-love, which will adhere to any thing that it feels a natural Comfort from. But if this Child of God prove ſomething ſpinoſe and harſh in oppoſing, rebuking, or it may be not complying with ſome dearly-beloved Humours of this good-natured ſanguine; his corrupt Blood will then begin to boil againſt the Son of God, and return him hatred for his good Will.

3. And as this bleſſed Apoſtle and peculiarly-beloved of our Saviour has made ſo careful a Caution, that the Love he recommends to the World ſhould not ſlack ſo low as to draggle in the dirt; ſo has he wiſely provided againſt the Hypocriſie of high flown Religioniſts, who pretend to be ſo tranſported with Love to God and his Service, that they quite forget their Neighbour: and therefore at the end of the foregoing Chapter he does plainly pronounce, that if a Man ſay, I love God, and hateth his Brother, he is a Liar: For he that loveth not his Brother whom he hath ſeen, How can he love God whom he hath not ſeen? And this Commandment have we from him, that he that loveth God, love his Brother alſo. Which Duty of the Second Table being moſt hard, and moſt liable to be caſt off through the Hypocriſie of Mens Hearts, the Inculcation thereof is moſt frequent with the Apoſtles. Paul to the Epheſians, Chap. 4. ver. 31. Let all Bitterneſs, and Wrath, and Anger, and Clamour, and Evil-ſpeaking be put away from you, with all Malice: And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Chriſt's ſake has forgiven you. Be ye therefore Followers of God, as dear Children, and walk in Love, as Chriſt alſo hath loved us, and hath given himſelf for us an Offering and a Sacrifice to God for a ſweet ſmelling Savour. And Col. 3. 12. Put on therefore (as the elect of God, holy and beloved) bowels of Mercies, Kindneſs, Humbleneſs of Mind, Meekneſs, Long-ſuffering; forbearing one another, and forgiving one another; if any Man have a Quarrel againſt any; even as Chriſt forgave you, ſo alſo do ye. And above all things put on Charity, which is the bond of Perfectneſs: and let the Peace of God rule in your Hearts, &c. Peter alſo, in his firſt general Epiſtle, Seeing ye have purified your Souls in obeying the Truth through the Spirit, unto unfeigned Love of the Brethren, ſee that ye love one another with a pure Heart fervently. And in his ſecond Epiſtle, Chap. 1. And beſides this, giving all Diligence, add to your Faith, Vertue; and to Vertue, Knowledge; and to Knowledge, Temperance; and to Temperance, Patience; and to Patience, Godlineſs; and to Godlineſs, brotherly Kindneſs; and to brotherly Kindneſs, Charity.

1 John 4. 20.

1 Pet. 1. 22.

Ver. 5.

4. The Coherence of this golden Chain of Divine Graces is ſo admirable that I cannot paſs it by in ſilence, though it be beſide my preſent Purpoſe to ſpeak any thing of the Places I cite. But we ſhall not ſo well underſtand the fit Connexion of theſe Vertues with themſelves, nor of the whole Link of them with the precedent Text, without rectifying the Tranſlation in a Word or two. The Apoſtle in the foregoing Verſes intimates to them how God has provided for them *according to his divine Power all things appertaining to Life and Godlineſs, through the Knowledge of his Son Jeſus Chriſt, who hath called us in Glory and * Vertue, and given us exceeding great and precious Promiſes, that having eſcaped the Corruption that is in the World through Luſt,* we ſhould be Partakers of the Divine Nature: and then comes in what has been recited, Καὶ αὐτὸ τοῦτο δέ, which they have rendred, And beſides this. Which Tranſlation makes no Connexion of Senſe with the former Words, but is very abrupt, nor will the Phraſe, I think, bear that Meaning. It is better Senſe and more laudable Criticiſm to render it thus, And therefore forthwith, or without any more ado, add to your Faith Vertue, &c. Which latter Words are not well rendred neither. The Greek is ἐπιχορηγήσατε ἐν τῇ πίστει ὑμῶν τὴν ἀρετήν. Grotius would have ἐν to be redundant there; ſo that his Suffrage is for the Engliſh Tranſlation. But for my own part, I think that ἐν is ſo far from being redundant, that it is eſſential to the Sentence, and interpoſed that we might underſtand a greater Myſtery than the meer adding of ſo many Vertues one to another, ſo that none might be wanting; which would be all that could be expreſly ſignified if ἐν were left out. But the Prepoſition here ſignifying Cauſality, there is more than a mere Enumeration of thoſe Divine Graces. For there is alſo implied how naturally they riſe one out of anothet, and that throughout the whole Series they have a cauſal Dependence one upon another.

* Or, Power.

own

Therefore the Senſe is, That, God having on his Part fitted all things for their Salvation, and they having obtained like precious Faith with the Apoſtle himſelf, they ought without Delay to endeavour, that through the Efficacy of their Faith they may alſo acquire Vertue, that is, Strength aud Fortitude. For high and noble Promiſes excite Courage and Reſolution to ſet upon the Difficulties through which they muſt paſs that would obtain the Promiſes. And this encountring with the Difficulties that are in a Chriſtian Man's Way, while he is not a Talker of Chriſtianity but a real Actor and cordial Endeavourer to follow the Precepts and Example of Chriſt, will beget not verbal but true Knowledge in him, that is, holy Experience in the Ways of God. And in this Experience he is taught how thoſe fleſhly and worldly Luſts and Deſires have often deceived him, and led him out of the Way, blinding his Judgment by their importunate Suggeſtions, and extinguiſhing, or at leaſt dulling, thoſe more religious and divine Senſes of the Soul, when their Importunities are liſtened to and their Cravings ſatisfied. And therefore this Knowledge and Experience begets Temperance, that is, a more rigid Reſolution of curbing and keeping under of all worldly and carnal Deſires, and a peremptory refraining from giving any Anſwer to their impudent Beggings and Cravings.

Which things if a Man ſeriouſly attempt in its due Extent and Latitude, queſtionleſs he will find that he has put himſelf upon a very hard and intolerable Task, and that there will be no Remedy but Patience, which he will find ſo mightily out of his Power, that he will be forc'd to fall upon his Knees before the God of Heaven, and earneſtly to beg that he would comfort, aſſiſt, and ſtrengthen him in his Agony and Conflict, againſt his domeſtick Enemies, and to ſupport his Spirit in ſo great Anguiſh and Pain. Whence it is plain that we cannot keep cloſe to the Laws of Temperance, but that Patience will neceſſarily emerge therefrom; nor be kept in this Spirit of Patience without the Invocation and Acknowledgment of Divine Aſſiſtance, which is an unqueſtionable Fruit of Godlineſs properly ſo called.

Nor can we apply our Hearts ſeriouſly and ſincerely to this kind of Godlineſs long, but we ſhall find Anſwers to our Prayers and Breathings after God, beyond both our own Expectation and the Belief of others: and therefore enjoying the Victory through the Divine Grace that is ſufficient for us, and getting ſo glorious a Triumph over our Luſts, we finding our Souls tranſported with an high Senſe of Thankfulneſs to our Redeemer and Benefactor, who wants nothing of our Retributions himſelf, the Stream of our Affections is naturally driven downwards to his Church, to the Saints that dwell upon Earth, and thoſe that excel in Virtue, or at Pſal. 16. 2. 3. leaſt pretend unfeigned Endeavours after it. And this is properly brotherly Kindneſs, which carries our Affections to thoſe that profeſs the ſame Religion with our ſelves. Which brotherly Kindneſs ariſes not only out of this Conſideration of Thankfulneſs toward God, but out of the very Temper and Condition of the Soul thus purified: according to what St. Peter intimates, that having purified our Souls in obeying the Truth through the Spirit, the End and Reſult thereof is the loving our Brethren. Or elſe, What ſerves this Purification for?

Shall Envy, Shall Hatred, Shall Luſt, Shall Ambition, Shall Luxury, and other enormous Deſires and Affections be caſt out of the Soul by Sanctity and Purity, that ſhe may be but a tranſparent Piece of Ice or a Spotleſs Fleece of Snow? Shall ſhe become ſo pure, ſo pellucid, ſo cryſtalline, ſo devoid of all Stains and Tinctures, of all Soil and duller Colours, that nothing but ſtill Shadows and Night may poſſeſs that inward diaphanous Purity? Then would ſhe be no better than the nocturnal Air, no happier than a Statue of Alabaſter. All would be but a more cleanly Sepulchre of a dead ſtarved Soul. But there is no Fear of ſo poor an Event upon ſo great Preparations. For Love and Deſire are ſo eſſential to the Soul, that ſhe cannot put them off but change them. She is ἄϋλον καὶ ἀσώματον πῦρ, as Pſellus calls her, an immaterial and incorporeal Fire, an unextinguiſhable Activity, and will catch at ſome Object or other. And therefore if ſhe has ceaſed to love the World and the Luſts of her own Body, ſhe will certainly love the Body of Chriſt, the Church, and ſtudy how how to help them and advantage them. Nor can ſhe ſtop here, but this pure and quick Flame mounts upwards and is reflected again downwards, and vibrates every way, reaching at all Objects in Heaven and in Earth, as natural Fire enters all combuſtible Matter. And therefore in her pure and ardent Speculations of the Godhead and his unlimited Goodneſs, and alſo her Obſervations of the Capacity of the whole Creation of receiving Good both from him and one another, ſhe overflows thoſe narrow Bounds of brotherly Love, and ſpreads out into that ineffably-ample and tranſcendently-divine Grace and Virtue, univerſal Charity, which is the higheſt Accompliſhment the Soul of Man is capable of either in this Life or that which is to come: and thus at laſt ſhe becomes perfect, as her Father which is in Heaven is perfect.

5. This is that moſt excellent way which St. Paul ſpeaks ſo tranſportedly and triumphantly of, 1 Cor. Chap. 13. Where having firſt numbred out the manifold Gifts that God had beſtowed upon his Church, as Preaching, Propheſying, working of Miracles, Gifts of Healing, and Diverſity of Tongues, he immediately breaks out in the rapturous Commendations of Charity above all. Though I ſpeak with the Tongues of Men and of Angels, and have not Charity, I am become as a ſounding Braſs and a tinckling Cymbal. And though I have the Gift of Prophecy, and underſtand all Myſteries, and all Knowledge; and though I have all Faith, ſo that I could remove Mountains, and have no Charity, I am nothing. And though I beſtow all my Goods to feed the poor, and though I give my Body to be burned, and have not Charity, it profiteth me nothing.

And after he has raiſed our Expectation and Eſtimation of this heavenly Grace with theſe high Words of his, he does not, as the vain Enthuſiaſt does, heat our Fancies and leave our Judgment in the dark; but he does very diſtinctly and copiouſly deſcribe to us the Nature of this Divine Virtue; ſo that we may plainly know where to be, and what to ſeek after, and how to be ſatisfied whether we have attained to it or no.

6. Charity ſuffereth long, and is kind; Charity envies not; Charity vaunteth not it ſelf, is not puffed up, doth not behave her ſelf unſeemly, ſeeketh not her own, is not eaſily provoked, thinketh no Evil, complies not with Iniquity, but rejoiceth with the Truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. This is a very full and lively Deſcription of Love and Charity, and the Character of the ſweeteſt and heavenlieſt Perfection that is communicable to the Nature of Man; and ſo warmly poured out from the ſincere Heart of this rich Poſſeſſour of it, the holy Apoſtle, that it is to me more moving than all the canting Language of the higheſt fanatical Pretenders to the Profeſſion of this Myſtery.

7. This is the higheſt Participation of Divinity that humane Nature is capable of on this ſide that myſterious Conjunction of the Humanity of Chriſt with the Godhead; and therefore this is that whereby we become the Sons of God, as St. John has evidently declared in his 1 Epiſtle general, ch. 4, Beloved, let us love one another: for Love is of God; and every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God; for God is Love. And ver. 10. Herein is Love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and ſent his Son to be a propitiation for our Sins. Beloved, if God ſo loved us, we ought alſo to love one another. No Man hath ſeen God at any time: If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his Love is perfected in us. And again ver. 16. God is Love; and he that dwelleth in Love, dwelleth in God, and God in him. Several other Teſtimonies there are of the high Eſtimate the true Church of Chriſt has of this holy Virtue of Love: but what I have already cited is ſufficient to ſhew how urgent the Precepts of the Goſpel are for this excellent Branch of the Divine Life, which we call Charity; as alſo how inexcuſably injurious, impious, and blaſphemous to Chriſt thoſe fanatical Impoſtors are that revolt from the Church, ſuperannuate Chriſt's Offices, and antiquate the Chriſtian Religion, under a Pretence of an higher Diſpenſation and Revelation upon which they have ſet the Title or Superſcription of Love, adorning themſelves with the Churches Colours, that by this evil Stratagem they may the more ſafely fall upon her and deſtroy her, at leaſt ſeduce the moſt ſimple, and, many times, the beſt-meaning Members of the Church from their true Head, Chriſt Jeſus, who ranſom'd them with his own moſt precious Blood. Whoſe Soveraignty over his Church cannot ceaſe, himſelf not ceaſing to be; but he is a Prieſt and King for ever according to the Prophecies.

CHAP.

CHAP. IV.

1. Our Saviour's strict Injunction of Purity; from whence it is also plain that the Love he commends is not in any sort fleshly, but divine. 2. Several Places out of the Apostles urging the same Duty. 3. Two more places to the same purpose. 4. The groundless Presumption of those that abuse Christianity to a Liberty of Sinning. 5. That this Error attempted the Church betimes, and is too taking at this very Day. 6. Whence appears the Necessity of opposing it, which he promises to do, taking the Rise of his Discourse from 1 John 3. 7.

1. THE third Branch of the Divine Life is Purity. In the urging whereof both Christ and his Apostles being so earnest, it is plain, that that Love which they recommend to the World can be no suspected Affection, like that which the canting Language of the Enthusiasts may justly be thought to favour; but that it is that pure and holy Love indeed, which deservedly we have styled Divine. And how severely this Purity we speak of is required, I shall give you some few, but very sufficient Instances, Mat. 5. 27. Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit Adultery: But I say unto you, that whosoever looketh on a Woman to lust after her, hath committed Adultery already with her in his Heart. And if thy right Eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is better for thee that one of thy Members should perish, than that thy whole Body should be cast into Hell. And if thy right-Hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee, &c. What more serious and earnest Monition can there be made to Continence and Abstinence from sensual Pleasures than this of our Saviour, who upon no less Penalty than the Torments of Hell interdicts us all Looseness and Uncleanness; forbidding us all preludious Preparations to the foul Acts of Lust, and not permitting so much as an imaginary Scene of illicit Transactions, to which our Will could really assent if Opportunity were offered?

2. And we shall find the Apostles insisting in the Footsteps of their Master in this matter. 2 Cor. 6. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separated, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you: And I will be a Father to you, and ye shall be my Sons and Daughters, saith the Lord Almighty. Having therefore these Promises (dearly beloved) let us cleanse our selves from all Filthiness of Flesh and Spirit, perfecting Holiness in the Fear of God. And 1 Thes. 5. The God of Peace sanctifie you wholly; and I pray God your whole Spirit and Soul and Body be preserved blameless unto the Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. And in the former Chapter ver. 3. For this is the Will of God, even your Sanctification, that ye should abstain from Fornication: That every one of you should know how to possess his Vessel in Sanctification and Honour; not in the Lust of Concupiscence, as the Gentiles that know not God. And 1 Cor. 6. ver. 13. Now the Body is not for Fornication, but for the Lord; and the Lord for the Body: And God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also quicken us by his own Power. Know ye not that your Bodies are the Members of Christ? Shall I then take the Members of Christ, and make them the Members of an Harlot? God forbid. And a little farther, Flee Fornication. Every Sin that a Man doth, is without the Body; but he that committeth Fornication sinneth against his own Body. What? Know ye not that your Body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a Price; therefore glorifie God in your Body and in your Spirit, which are God's. Also Col. 3. 5. Mortifie therefore your Members which are upon the Earth, Fornication, Uncleanness, immoderate Affection, evil Concupiscence, and Covetousness, which is Idolatry. For which things sake the Wrath of God cometh upon the Children of Disobedience. Parallel to which is that Eph. 5. 3. Walk in Love, as Christ also hath loved us: but Fornication and all Uncleanness and Covetousness, let it not be so much as once named amongst you, as becomes Saints. Neither Filthiness, nor foolish Talking, nor Jesting, which are not convenient; but rather giving of Thanks. For this ye know, that no Whoremonger, nor unclean Person, nor covetous Man, who is an Idolater, hath any Inheritance in the Kingdom of Christ, and of God. Let no Man deceive you with vain Words; for because of these things cometh the Wrath of God upon the Children of Disobedience. Be not you therefore Partakers takers with them. And 1 Cor. 6. 9. Know ye not that the unrighteous ſhall not inherit the Kingdom of God? Be not deceived, neither Fornicators, nor Idolaters, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abuſers of themſelves with Mankind, nor Thieves, nor Covetous, nor Drunkards, nor Revilers, nor Extortioners, ſhall inherit the Kingdom of God.

3. I have made a more ample Collection of the Enforcements of this Duty of Purity and Sanctity than I intended; and yet I cannot abſtain from adding of two more: the one out of St. Peter, 1 Epiſt. ch. 2. Dearly Beloved, I beſeech you as Strangers and Pilgrims to abſtain from fleſhly Luſts which war againſt the Soul. The other out of him which I have already ſo often cited, Rom. 13. 12. The Night is far ſpent, and the Day is at hand; let us therefore caſt off the Works of Darkneſs, and put on the Armour of light. Let us walk honeſtly as in the Day, not in Rioting and Drunkenneſs, not in Chambering and Wantonneſs, not in ſtrife and envying: But put ye on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and make no Proviſion for the Fleſh, to fulfil the Luſts thereof.

4. I have now abundantly ſhewn how plainly and explicitly Chriſt and his Apoſtles urge all Men that are Hearers of the Goſpel to be careful and conſcionable Doers of the ſame, that they ſhould be holy even as Chriſt was holy in all manner of Converſation; that they are bound to endeavour and aſpire after the Participation of the Divine Life and all the Branches thereof, Humility, Love and Purity, hating even the Garment ſpotted by the Fleſh, as the Apoſtle Jude ſpeaks. And how this Holineſs and Righteouſneſs is required of them with no leſs ſeriouſneſs and earneſtneſs than upon the Forfeiture of their Eternal Salvation if they do not act according to thoſe Precepts. Inſomuch that I ſtand amazed while I conſider with my ſelf that helliſh and abominable Gloſs that ſome have put upon the Goſpel, as if it were a meer School of Looſeneſs, and that the end of Chriſt's coming into the World was but to bring down a Commiſſion to the Sons of Men whereby they might be enabled to ſin with Authority, I am ſure with all deſireable Security and Impunity; nothing being required on their part but to believe that Chriſt died for them, and upon no other Condition than bare Belief; as if Chriſt did not give himſelf to redeem us from Sin, but to aſſert our Liberty of ſinning; which is the moſt perverſe and miſchievous Miſconſtruction of the Grace of God revealed in Chriſt that poſſibly could be invented, and point-blank againſt the End and Deſign of his coming into the World. For he gave himſelf for us, that he might redeem us from all Iniquity, and purifie unto himſelf a peculiar People, zealous of good Works. Tit. 2. 14.

5. Yet as repugnant and irrational as this Error is, it had attempted the Churches betimes; as appears by ſundry Monitions of the Apoſtles, when exhorting their Charge to holineſs of Life and real Righteouſneſs, they often intimate their Proneneſs of being deceived in thinking they had leave to be remiſs in theſe matters. Some Inſtances you may have obſerved already; to which you may add that of St. James, Be ye doers of the Word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own Souls. But that of St. John is moſt expreſs and emphatical, Little Children, let no Man deceive you; he that doth Righteouſneſs, is righteous even as he is righteous; that is, even as Chriſt was righteous, who was not putatitiouſly and imaginarily righteous, but really ſo indeed: though it ſeems by this Caution there were that went about in thoſe times to perſwade it might be otherwiſe. And I could wiſh that this Error were not ſo taking in the Church as it is at this Day; than which notwithſtanding no greater, I think, can be committed, nor more dangerous, it rendring this admirable Engine (as I have termed it) which God has ſet up in the World for the Advancement of Life and Godlineſs, altogether invalid and uſeleſs. Jam. 1. 22. 1 John 3. 7.

6. Wherefore all the following Powers of this Inſtrument depending on this firſt, unleſs we can make good this, the reſt will have no Force nor Motion. Therefore that I may make all throughly glib and expedite, I find an Obligation upon me not to reſt in theſe, though never-ſo-evident Teſtimonies, That we are ſtrictly bound to inherent Sanctity and Holineſs; but to clear alſo to the Judicious the Unwarrantableneſs and Weakneſs of the Grounds of this Error, which they would obtrude upon the World as the chief Myſtery of the Goſpel, namely, That if one do but believe, though devoid of all Sanctification, yet he is approved as holy and righteous by the Imputation of Chriſt's Righteouſneſs, and ſo conſequently ſhall inherit everlaſting Life, let him live here as he will. I ſhall take the Riſe of my Diſcourſe from that grave and affectionate Counſel the holy Apoſtle has given to young and weak Chriſtians, and which I even now mentioned, Little Children, let no Man deceive you, &c.

CHAP. V.

1. The Apoſtle's Care for young Chriſtians to preſerve them from being tainted with that pernicious Error of thinking They may be righteous without doing righteouſly. 2. Their Obnoxiouſneſs to this Contagion, with the Cauſes thereof to be ſearched into. 3. The firſt ſort of Scriptures perverted to this ill end. 4. The ſecond ſort. 5. That the very State of Chriſtian Childhood makes them prone to this Error. 6. What is the Nature of that Faith Abraham is ſo much commended for, and what the meaning of λογίζεσθαι εἰς δικαιοσύνην. 7. A Search after the Meaning of the Term Juſtification. 8. Juſtification by Faith without the Deeds of the Law what may be the meaning of it. 9. Scriptures anſwered that ſeem to disjoin Real Righteouſneſs from Faith; 10. And to make us only righteous by Imputation. 11. Undeniable Teſtimonies of Scripture that prove the neceſſity of Real Righteouſneſs in us.

1. THAT which Plato ſo highly commends in Law-givers and Inſtitutors or Governors of Commonwealths, that they have a ſpecial and prime Care of Childhood and Youth; as the diligent in Husbandry make peculiar Fences for their young Plants to ſave them from the Dangers their Tenderneſs expoſes them to; that alſo is obſervable in the bleſſed Apoſtle, who amongſt many other Proviſions he has made in the behalf of all Younglings in Chriſtianity, has alſo armed them and fenced them with this Caution againſt being miſtaken ſo dangerouſly in Chriſtianity as to conceit they may by a bare profeſſing themſelves Chriſtians be righteous, though there were neither any real Righteouſneſs in their Hearts, nor any Fruits of it in their Hands. A wicked Error which ſeveral Seducers of old tempted Men to, ſuch as were Nicolaus, Marcio and Carpocrates, as Hiſtorians have taken notice of.

2. And becauſe there can be no better Antidote than that younger Chriſtians be convinced of their obnoxiouſneſs to this Contagion, I ſhall diligently ſearch out, and plainly ſet forth the Cauſes whereby they become thus obnoxious; that finding themſelves ſo, they may have the greater Care to keep themſelves from being ſmitten with this peſtilential Infection.

Where we ſhall find that come to paſs in Spiritual Things that often happens in Natural. For as weak Bodies contract Diſeaſes from Meats and Drinks, nay, from that which is ſo perpetual and palpable a Principle of Life that we can ſcarce live one moment without it, I mean, the refreſhing Air, which caſts many tender Bodies into Agues and Fevers and other Diſtempers: ſo tender and weak Souls often by ill Concoction turn the very Bread of Eternal Life, the Word of God, into morbifick Matter; and inſtead of getting Growth and Strength by feeding thereon, weaken the Divine Life in them, and ſink themſelves into moſt dangerous and deſperate Maladies.

3. The firſt Cauſe then of the Proneneſs of young Chſtriians to this preſent Error, is certain places of Scripture, the Meaning whereof they not rightly underſtanding, make bold to interpret them in favour to their own Carnality and fleſhly Deſires. It would be too voluminous a buſineſs to cull out all the places that are perverted to this ill purpoſe. We ſhall content our ſelves in producing the chiefeſt, in anſwering to which we ſhall naturally ſatisfie all the reſt.

And theſe I may caſt into two ſorts. For they are ſuch as either ſeem to import, That a bare Faith will juſtifie us, and ſo we may become righteous by an empty Belief; or elſe ſuch as ſeem to ſay, That the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt becomes ours, or, That we are righteous by that Righteouſneſs that is in him.

And of the firſt kind is that Rom. 4. Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for Righteouſneſs. Now to him that worketh, is the Reward not reckoned of Grace, but of Debt; but to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his Faith is counted for Righteouſneſs.

And Rom. 5. Therefore being juſtified by Faith, we have Peace with God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. And Rom. 10. 4. For Chriſt is the End of the Law for Righteouſneſs to every one that believeth. And at the Ninth Verſe of the ſame Chapter, If thou wilt confeſs with thy Mouth the Lord Jeſus, and ſhalt believe in thy Heart that God has raiſed him from the Dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved. Which Places ſeem to imply, That a meer Belief that Chriſt has done or ſuffered this or that, is our Juſtification cation and Salvation. I might add Gal. 2. ver. 16. but I ſhall defer it to its proper Place.

4. We come now to the ſecond ſort of Teſtimonies of Scripture, which ſeem to impute the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt to us, and to teach us that it is that by which we become righteous. 1 Cor. 1. 30. But of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, who of God is made unto us Wiſdom, and Righteouſneſs, and Sanctification and Redemption. And Rom. 5. Therefore as by the Offence of one Judgment came upon all Men to Condemnation; even ſo by the Righteouſneſs of one the free Gift came upon all Men to Juſtification of Life. For as by one Man's Diſobedience many were made Sinners, ſo by the Obedience of one ſhall many be made righteous. From theſe and ſuch like Places young and unskilful Chriſtians are prone to infer, That they may be righteous by the Obedience or Righteouſneſs of Chriſt applied or imputed to them, though they have no real Righteouſneſs in their own Souls, nor care to act righteouſly. And this is the firſt Cauſe of their Proclivity to this unwholſom Error. But there is another behind, without the Concurrence of which this former would be ineffectual. For all the Paſſages in Holy Scripture are certainly both ſound and true; but it is the Unſoundneſs and Corruptneſs of our own Minds that draws Poiſon out of theſe Herbs and Flowers of Paradiſe.

5. I ſay therefore in the ſecond place, That the main Cauſe of the Propenſion of Chriſtian Childhood to this groſs Error, is in the very Condition it ſelfe of thoſe that are but Children in Chriſtianity. For this Childiſh State I conceive to be this; When a Man makes indeed a free open Profeſſion of Chriſtianity, and with all poſſible Expreſſions of Thanks to God for his rich Mercy in the Blood of Chriſt for the Remiſſion of Sins, laies faſt hold (as he thinks) on this Grace by Faith; having alſo ſome more weak Inchoations of the Life of Righteouſneſs: But the old Man is ſtill very ſtrong, the Body of Sin very little ſubdued or impaired, ſo that whenſoever they are encountred, the Toil is very heavy, and a world of Work ſtill remains, and ſuch ungrateful Work and painful, that it is no Metaphor or Hyperbole to ſay, it is a perpetual Death, a continued Crucifixion. This being then the Condition of one that is but yet a Child and almoſt an Infant in Chriſtianity, I appeal to any one if there can chuſe but be a very conſiderable Proneneſs in ſuch Perſons to be delivered from this Toil and Torture of Mortification, whereby they are to enter into higher Degrees of Righteouſneſs and Life. And now we being very eaſily drawn to believe thoſe things which make for our own Intereſt and the Accompliſhment of our Deſires, it muſt needs be that if any thing ſound towards that Senſe, we ſhall eaſily make it up with a luſty Belief that it is ſo indeed, and (it may be) thank God to boot for this amabilis inſania, for theſe dear Miſtakes and Dreams of ours. Wherefore at length to aſſume; The Scripture therefore ſeeming at firſt ſight ſomething to favour this Opinion of being righteous without aay real Righteouſneſs in our ſelves, but by that which is at a wide diſtance removed from us and placed in another; to ſave the Pains of the great Anguiſh and Agony that the aſpiring to inward real Righteouſneſs will coſt in this weak Eſtate of Chriſtian Childhood, it cannot be but that he that has arrived to no higher Condition, ſhould very eaſily cloſe with this ſo welcome a Notion, and having once embraced it, be angry at the very heart at any one that would rouze him up from this ſo pleaſing Repoſe, or diſſettle him from this falſe Eaſe and Joy: The weak and fainting Heart of this tender Age chuſing rather (for avoiding of preſent Smart) an haſty Palliation than a ſound Cure.

But that I may not rather confirm than bring off theſe Younglings from this dangerous Error, by noting their moſt pregnant Places and ſaying nothing to them; I ſhall endeavour to make it plain that, if they pleaſe, they may underſtand thoſe Places otherwiſe than they do: and then, becauſe that their Gloſs is not ſo conſonant to Reaſon, nor the reſt of the Scripture, that they ought to relinquiſh this unwarrantable Senſe which they have harboured in favour to their own Vices and Wickedneſſes

6. And for our better Preparation for this Deſign, we will firſt ſettle the Notion of the Terms that ſo frequently occur in the Epiſtles of St. Paul, and which ſo nearly concern our preſent matter. Such as are Faith, Righteouſneſs, Juſtification, Imputation, and the like.

And firſt of Faith, which is ſo highly commended and ſo often inculcated by the Apoſtle, I ſay, it ſignifies nothing elſe but this in general, viz. An high Senſe of, and Confidence in the Power, Juſtice and Goodneſs of God, and a firm Belief that he will aſſuredly bring to paſs whatſoever he has promiſed, ſeem it never ſo unlikely and difficult to Fleſh and Blood. And this is that which was ſo commended in Abraham, as it is plain

Rom. 4. 18. in the fourth to the Romans, who againſt Hope believed in Hope, that he might become the Father of many Nations: according to that which was ſpoken, ſo ſhall thy Seed be. And being not weak in Faith, he conſidered not his own Body now dead, when he was about an hundred Years old, nor yet the deadneſs of Sara's Womb. He ſtaggered not at the Promiſe of God through Unbelief: but was ſtrong in Faith, giving Glory to God: And being fully perſwaded that what God had promiſed, he was able alſo to perform. And therefore (ſaies the Apoſtle) it was imputed to him for Righteouſneſs. That is to ſay, God approved of him for a good and pious Man, who not conſulting with the natural Improbability of the thing, but giving firm Credence to the Promiſe of God, did that which was due to the Goodneſs and Power of God, and becoming a good and righteous Man. So that λογίζεσθαι εἰς δικαιοσύνην, is nothing elſe but to be approved as a good Man, or a Doer of what is righteous and good, and that upon this account only, becauſe he does that which is good and righteous. As this Act of the Soul exerting her ſelf above the low and ſluggiſh Tenour of Nature, and winging her ſelf by lively Senſe of Divine Power and Goodneſs, to the aſſenting to and reſting in ſuch things as the preſent State of Nature can never bring about, certainly is, and is eſteemed and approved of God as a very righteous and good Act, and to proceed from a good and holy Temper of Mind, which is called δικαιοσύνη, which ſignifies any Virtue or Goodneſs in a Man whatſoever: So that Act of Phinehas, when he ſo zealouſly did vengeance on Zimri and Cosbi, it is ſaid in the 106 Pſalm, ἐλογίσθη αὐτῷ εἰς δικαιοσύνην, it was looked upon by all ſucceeding Generations as a very noble and eminent Act of Righteouſneſs, i. e. it was reputed according to what it was in its own Nature. But the meaning is not, That this was in ſtead of all other Righteouſneſs to him, and that he was reputed as righteous all over now, although he were not ſo at all in any other things.

7. Now for Juſtification, we ſhall beſt underſtand the Meaning of the Word from the Greek δικαῖν, δικαιοῦσθαι and δικαίωσις. Firſt therefore, beſides the forenſal Acception, which is ſufficiently known, δικαιοῦσθαι ſignifies to be juſt, Gen. 38. 26. δεδικαίωται Θάμαρ ἢ ἐγώ, Thamar is more righteous than I. So Eccleſ. 31. 5. ὁ ἀγαπῶν, χρυσίον, ὁ δικαιωθήτω, He that loves Gold, will not be juſt, in which ſenſe 'tis ſaid, Rev. 22. 11. ὁ δίκαιος δικαιωθήτω ἔτι. He that is righteous, let him be righteous ſtill. Secondly, it ſignifies to appear juſt, Pſal. 51. 4. ἵνα δικαιωθῇς, that is, that thou mayſt plainly appear or approve thy ſelf to be juſt. And Pſal. 143. 2. For in thy ſight no Man living δικαιωθήσεται ſhall appear juſt. But this Senſe I confeſs is more obſcure and uncertain. Thirdly and laſtly, δικαῖν ſignifies to make juſt and pure, to free from Vice and Sinfulneſs. Pſal. 73. v. 13. Ἄρα ματαίως ἐδικαίωσα τὴν καρδίαν μου, Therefore have I cleanſed my Heart in vain. And Eccl. 18. 22. Καὶ μὴ μείνῃς ἕως θανάτου δικαιωθῆναι, Nec tuam probitatem uſque ad mortem differas, ſays the Tranſlation. And Rom. 6. 7. Ὁ γὰρ ἀποθανὼν δεδικαίωται ἀπὸ τῆς ἁμαρτίας, He that is dead is freed from Sin. Alſo Act. 13. 39. And by him all they that believe are juſtified (δικαιοῦσθε), i. e. delivered, purified) from all things from which ye could not be juſtified by the Law of Moſes; i. e. Ye are more throughly cleanſed and purged from Sin and Wickedneſs than you could be ever under the Law of Moſes. Which is conſonant to other Paſſages in Scripture, as, That the Law makes nothing perfect; and again, If there had been a
Heb. 7. 19. Gal. 3. 21. Law that could have given Life, then verily Righteouſneſs might have been of the Law. And now we have found out a warrantable Senſe of theſe Words, we ſhall be able more expeditely to diſcover the Senſe of the foregoing places of Scripture alledged for this pernicious Conceit of a Chriſtian's being righteous without any real Righteouſneſs in him.

Sect. 3. 8. Wherefore, to that in the 4. to the Romans, whoſe Force will be the greater if we add that alſo which is written a little before in the 3 Chap. v. 28. Therefore we conclude, that a Man is juſtified by Faith without the Deeds of the Law; and what he infers alſo ver. 9. For we have before proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under Sin. Wherein the Meaning of the Apoſtle is to magnifie, as was moſt fit, the Miniſtration of the Goſpel; and ſo he ſignifies to the World, that whatſoever is diſcovered hitherto, is imperfect, lapſed and ruinous, all but weak and ſinful before the Coming in of Chriſt, even the Works of the Law themſelves, and that ſmooth external Righteouſneſs of mere Morality and Ceremony. So that all the World are found guilty before God, and by the Deeds of the Law, there ſhall be no Fleſh juſtified in his ſight. For by the Law is but the Knowledge of Sin, ver. 20. it gives no Strength to perform what is commanded.

Where-

Wherefore now reckoning nothing upon all theſe things, we are as it were to begin the World again, and with all our Might to endeavour after ſuch a Righteouſneſs as is by Faith in Chriſt Jeſus; and not to reſt in any thing that may be done by the ordinary Power of the Fleſh, but to aſpire after that Righteouſneſs which is communicable to us by that Spirit which raiſed Jeſus Chriſt from the dead. But neither Abraham nor any one elſe can be juſtified by any carnal Righteouſneſs of their own; but that highly-ſpiritual Act of Abraham reaching beyond the common Road of Nature, who againſt Hope believed in Hope, that was that which commended Abraham ſo much to God. And thus from the Example of Abraham would the Apoſtle commend the Chriſtian Faith to the World, and in particular to the Jews, the Offspring of Abraham. For at the end of the fourth Chapter he makes this uſe of Abraham's Faith being imputed to him for Righteouſneſs (that is, reputed by God as a very excellent good Act, as it indeed was) that we might alſo be brought to believe on him that raiſed up Jeſus our Lord from the dead, who was delivered for our Offences, and raiſed again for our Juſtification. In which Verſe are contained the two grand Priviledges of the Goſpel, that is, the Forgiveneſs of Sins upon the Satisfaction of Chriſt's Death, and the juſtifying of us, that is the making of us juſt and holy through a ſound Faith in him that raiſed Jeſus from the dead. Which Interpretation the 11 Verſe of the 8 Chapter doth ſufficiently countenance. But if the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead dwell in you, he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal Bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you, viz. to Righteouſneſs: as is plain out of the foregoing Verſe, And if Chriſt be in you, the Body is dead becauſe of Sin, but the Spirit is life becauſe of Righteouſneſs; that is, The Body of Death which we deſire to be delivered from, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, appears by the Preſence of Chriſt in us to be thus deadly a Body by reaſon of Sin, we feeling for the preſent nothing but an heavy Indiſpoſition to all Holineſs and Goodneſs in the Body and its Affections, and all Sinfulneſs and unclean atheiſtical Suggeſtions from the Fleſh, which is Death to the Soul. For to be carnally-minded is Death. So that by reaſon of the Sinfulneſs of our Body and the ſad Heavineſs thereof, it appears as deadly and ghaſtly a thing to us as Mezentius his tying the Living and the Dead together, when once Chriſt is in us: But our Life is then that Righteouſneſs which is of the Spirit, we finding a comfortable Warmth and Pleaſure in the grateful Arrivals of that holy and Divine Senſation. But he that raiſed Chriſt from the dead, will in due time even quicken theſe our mortal Bodies, or theſe dead Bodies of ours, and make them conſpire and come along with Eaſe and Chearfulneſs, and be ready and active complying Inſtruments in all things with the Spirit of Righteouſneſs.

Rom. 4. 24, 25.

Which Belief is a chief Point in the Chriſtian Faith, and moſt of all parallel to that of Abraham's, who believing in the Goodneſs and Power and Faithfulneſs of God, had, when both himſelf and his Wife Sara were dry and dead as to natural Generation, and ſo hopeleſs of ever ſeeing any Fruit of her Womb, who had, I ſay, Iſaac* born to him, who bears Joy and Laughter in the very Name of him, and was undoubtedly a Type of *Chriſt according to the Spirit. For Iſaac is the Wiſdom, Power, and Righteouſneſs of God flowing out and effectually branching it ſelf ſo through all the Faculties both of Man's Soul and Body, that the whole Man is carried away with Joy and Triumph to the acting all whatſoever is really and ſubſtantially good, even with as much Satisfaction and Pleaſure as he eats when he is hungry, and drinks when he is dry. And thus by our Entrance and Progreſs in ſo holy a Diſpenſation, are we well approved of by God, and being juſtified thus by Faith, we have Peace with him through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Rom. 5. 1.

 Γέλως γὰρ ψυχῆς ἡδὺ χάρμα καὶ εὐφροσύνη ἐρμηνεύεται ἕβρ. Philo in his Allegories. And in his περὶ φυλαργίας, Οὐχ ὁρᾷς ὅτι τὸν ἀυλητὴν καὶ ἀυλομαθῆ καὶ ἀυλῳδὸν τῆς ὅπτης μίμης ἀφυσήμενον, ἀ μιλίχονλα γλαῦξ, ἀλλ' ἀυλὸν ὄντα γιλωλά φησιν; ὅτοι δὲν Ἰσαάκ. See alſo in his περὶ ὀνείρων to the ſame purpoſe. And in his De Nominum mutatione, Οὐχ ὁ ἄνθρωπος Ἰσαάκ, ἀλλ' ὁ σωώνυμος τῆς ἀρίστης τῶν ὑπαθειῶν χαρᾶς, γέλως, ὁ ἀνδιάθετος ὑὸς θεῦ τῷ διδύντι ἄντὸν μείλιγμα καὶ ἐυθυμίαν εἰρηνικωτάταις ψυχαῖς.

So that this Juſtification is not a mere Belief that Chriſt died for us in particular, or that he was raiſed from the dead, whereby another's Righteouſneſs is imputed to us; but a Believing in God, that he has accepted the Blood of Chriſt as a Sacrifice for Sin, and that he is able through the Power of the Spirit to raiſe us alſo up to Newneſs of Life, whereby we are encouraged to breath and aſpire after this more inward and perfect Righteouſneſs. Which advantages God propounds to all the Hearers of the Goſpel, without any reſpect of Works or former Demureneſs of Life, if ſo be they will but now come in and cloſe with this high and rich Diſpenſation, tion of the Goſpel, and be carried on with couragious Reſolutions to fight and pull down the Man of Sin within themſelves, that this living and new way of real Divine Righteouſneſs may be ſet up and rule in their Hearts. I ſay, if they be encouraged to this holy Enterprize by Faith in Chriſt for the Remiſſion of Sins, and through the Power of his Spirit to utterly eradicate and extirpate all inward Corruption and Wickedneſs, this Faith is preſently imputed to them for Righteouſneſs; that is, they both are, and are approved by God as dear Children of his, and as good Men, and are of the Seed of the Promiſe. For they are born now not of the Will of Man, nor of the Will of the Fleſh, but of the Will of God; and their Will is wholly ſet upon Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs, which they hunger and thirſt after as ſincerely and eagerly as ever they did after their natural Meat and Drink: and God who feeds the young Ravens is not ſo cruel as to deny them his celeſtial Food; which Food they reach at and, as it were, wreſt out of his Hands by Faith in the Power of his Spirit, whereby they account themſelves able to do * all things.

*Phil. 4. 13.

9. And this is the only warrantable Notion that I can find, of being juſtified by Faith. Nor do thoſe places above recited prove any other than this. For that which ſeems to make moſt of all for another [viz. Rom. 4. 5. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his Faith is counted for Righteouſneſs,] may very well be interpreted according to that Tenour of Senſe I have already declared. For that is the great and comfortable Priviledge of the Goſpel, that without any reſpect of former Works, if ſo be we do but now believe Remiſſion of Sins in Chriſt, and place our Confidence in his Power that juſtifies the ungodly, (i. e. that makes juſt the ungodly, and purifies and purges them from all Sin and Iniquity, from which by their own natural Power they could not be purged, and reſtores them to inward real Righteouſneſs by the working of his Spirit) this Faith is imputed for Righteouſneſs, and he who has it, is alſo in a forenſal Senſe declar'd juſt before God. For they that do thus believe, are good and righteous Men for matter of Sincerity, ſo that they have Peace with God through the Blood of Chriſt, and by the Power of that Spirit that is now working in them, are renewed daily more and more into that glorious Image and deſirable Liberty which ariſes in the further Conqueſt of the Divine Life in them, and makes them righteous even as Chriſt was righteous.

Sect. 3.

And now the hardeſt is ſatisfied, the other places alledged will eaſily fall of themſelves by the Application of what has been ſaid concerning this Nature of Faith and Juſtification.

10. As for thoſe Places of Scripture that ſeem to attribute the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt to us, as where he is ſaid to be made unto us Wiſdom, Righteouſneſs, Sanctification, and Redemption, the Senſe is only this, that he works in us Wiſdom, Righteouſneſs, &c. Otherwiſe it might be inferred, That we ſhall have only an imputative Redemption, and that we ſhall not be really ſaved and redeemed. As for that other, As by the Diſobedience of one Man many were made Sinners, ſo by the Obedience of one Man many ſhall be made righteous, I ſay it is a place againſt themſelves: For by Adam we became really Sinners and ſinful, contracting Original Corruption from his Loins; therefore by Chriſt we are to be made really righteous. And this was the End of his Obedience that was obedient even to the Death of the Croſs, that we being buried with him by Baptiſm into Death, like as Chriſt was raiſed up from the Dead by the Glory of the Eather, even ſo we alſo ſhould walk in Newneſs of Life, Rom. 6.

Wherefore there really being no Ground in Scripture for this childiſh Miſtake, and it being as unreaſonable that one Soul ſhould be righteous for another, as that one Body ſhould be in Health for another; if I ſhew that the Scripture it ſelf does expreſly require of us that we be righteous and holy in our own Perſons, there is then nothing wanting to the full Diſcovery of this childiſh and ungrounded Conceit of being righteous without any Righteouſneſs reſiding in us.

11. And in my Apprehenſion this very Text of St. John is a clear Eviction of this Truth, it plainly declaring that they are miſtaken who ever conceit themſelves righteous without doing Righteouſneſs, or without being righteous in ſuch a Senſe as Chirſt himſelf was righteous. There are alſo ſeveral other Teſtimonies of the Apoſtles to the ſame purpoſe, ſome whereof I have noted already; as where he ſaith, That Chriſt was manifeſted to take away our Sins, and that he came to deſtroy the Works of the Devil; and that he that is born of God, ſinneth not, becauſe the Seed of God abideth in him, that is, a permanent Principle of Divine Life and Senſe, whereby he ſeeth and abhorreth whatſoever is wicked and unholy. And again, 1 Joh. 2. 3. Hereby

1 Joh. 3. 7.

Hereby we know that we know him, if we keep his Commandments. He that ſaith, I know him, and keepeth not his Commandments, is a Lyar, and the Truth is not in him: but whoſo keepeth his Word, in him verily is the Love of God perfected. Hereby know we that we are in him: He that ſaith he abideth in him, ought himſelf alſo to walk even as he walked. Like that 2 Tim. 2. 19. Let every one that nameth the Name of Chriſt depart from Iniquity.

CHAP. VI.

1. Their Alledgement of Gal. 2. 16. as alſo of the whole Driſt of that Epiſtle. 2. What the Righteouſneſs of Faith is according to the Apoſtle. 3. In what Senſe thoſe that are in Chriſt are ſaid not be under the Law. 4. That the Righteouſneſs of Faith is no Figment but a Reality in us. 5. That this Righteouſneſs is the New Creature, and what this New Creature is according to Scripture. 6. That the New Creature conſiſts in Wiſdom, Righteouſneſs, and true Holineſs. 7. The Righteouſneſs of the New Creature. 8. His Wiſdom and Holineſs. 9. That the Righteouſneſs of Faith excludes not good Works. The wicked Treachery of thoſe that teach the contrary.

1. AS for that Text which we deferred to ſpeak to, we ſhall now take it into Conſideration. It was Gal. 2. 16. Knowing that a Man is not juſtified by the Works of the Law, but by the Faith of Jeſus Chriſt, even we have believed in Jeſus Chriſt, that we might be juſtified by the Faith of Chriſt, and not by the Works of the Law: For by the Works of the Law ſhall no Fleſh be juſtified. From this place of Scripture alſo there are ſome that would infer a ſuperannuating and annulling of all moral Honeſty and real Righteouſneſs whatever, pretending that nothing but meer Faith is required to make us approvable before God. And indeed they fancy that this whole Epiſtle adminiſters invincible Arguments to maintain this miſchievous Concluſion, though there be not to any indifferent Judge any ſolid Reaſon of ſo full a Confidence. Which we ſhall eaſily underſtand, if we take notice that the Deſign of this Epiſtle is only to reduce thoſe Galatians again to the Truth of Chriſtianity, that were almoſt apoſtatizing to Judaiſm and the Ceremonial Law of Moſes. Ye obſerve Days, and Months, and Times, and Years; I am afraid of you, leſt I have beſtowed labour on you in vain, Chap. 4. 10, 11.

But the main Scope of the Apoſtle is againſt Circumciſion, as is plain upon the very firſt Peruſal of the Epiſtle; which he beating down together with the Law of Moſes, and extolling the Faith in Chriſt, ſeems ſometimes to excuſe a Man from walking according to the moral Law under the Pretence of Faith in Chriſt. But as St. Peter hath well obſerved, There be many things in St. Paul's Epiſtles hard to be underſtood, which they that are unlearned and unſtable wreſt, as they do alſo the other Scriptures, unto their own Deſtruction. But that we be not led into the ſame Error and Miſchief, it will be of no ſmall Concernment to trace the Footſteps of St. Paul, that ſo we may wind our ſelves out of this dangerous Maze or Labyrinth. 2 Pet. 3. 16.

2. Whereas then he ſeems to nullifie or vilifie at leaſt the Law in the advancing of that Righteouſneſs that is by Faith; let us ſee what this Righteouſneſs that is by Faith, and what that of the Law, is. Chap. 2. 19. For I through the Law am dead to the Law, that I might live unto God: I am crucified with Chriſt. Nevertheleſs I live, yet not I, but Chriſt liveth in me. I through the Law am dead unto the Law, What a Riddle is this! that the Law ſhould deprive it ſelf of its Diſciples. And yet it doth ſo: For it is a Schoolmaſter to Chriſt, or rather an Uſher, which when it hath well tutor'd us and caſtigated us, removes us up higher, to be made in Chriſt perfect, who is the Perfection of the Law. But the Law it ſelf makes nothing perfect; and this is the Reaſon that Righteouſneſs is not of the Law.

And to this purpoſe ſpeaks the Apoſtle in this very Epiſtle at the 21. Verſe of the 3 Chapter, Is the Law then againſt the Promiſes of God? God forbid. For if there had been a Law given which could have given life, verily Righteouſneſs ſhould have been by the Law; νόμος ὁ δυνάμενος ζωοποιῆσαι, a Law that could enliven and enquicken us. But that is beyond the Power of the Law: That's the Title and Perogative of Chriſt, who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. I am the Reſurrection and the Life: he that believeth lieveth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die, Joh. 11. 25. This therefore is the Righteousness of Faith or Belief, far above the Righteousness of the Law or killing Letter.

3. Wherefore when this Faith is come that worketh us up to a living Frame of Righteousness within us, we are no longer under the Servility of the Law of Moses, but are all the Children of God by Faith in Christ Jesus. Now none are the Children of God but those that are led by the Spirit of God, as the Apostle elsewhere witnesseth in his Epistle to the Romans. And those that have the Spirit of God, what Fruits they bring forth is amply set out by the Apostle in this to the Galatians, chap. 5. v. 22. The Fruit of the Spirit is Love, Joy, Peace, Long-suffering, Gentleness, Goodness, Faith, Meekness, Temperance: against such there is no Law. For indeed there is no need of it, they being a Law unto themselves. So we see how those that are in Christ are not under the Law, because that inward Fountain of Obedience or living Law in their Hearts is above it: They do really and truly fulfil it through the Spirit that is by Faith. For that Spirit is the begetter of Love, and Love is the fulfilling of the Law. For all the Law is fulfilled in one Word, even in this, Thou shalt love thy Neighbour as thy self, Gal. 5. 14. This I say then, walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the Lust of the Flesh. For the Flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the Flesh; and these are contrary one to another, that ye may not do the things ye would. Which certainly is the true and genuine Sense of ἵνα μὴ, ἃ ἂν θέλητε, ταῦτα ποιῆτε, as Grotius also has noted. And these are contrary, that is to say, oppose one the other, namely, the Spirit the Flesh, ἵνα μὴ, ἃ ἂν θέλητε, ταῦτα ποιῆτε, to the end you may not do those things that your own corrupt Will or carnal Mind inclines you to: which naturally coheres with what follows, But if you be led by the Spirit, you are not under the Law. For against such there is no Law, as was said before. Which implies, if they be not led by the Spirit, they are liable to the Curse of the Law, to Death, Hell, and Damnation. For so also speaks the Apostle, when he hath reckoned up the Works of the Flesh, That they that do such things, shall not inherit the Kingdom of God, ver. 21. And v. 25. he openly declares, That they that are Christ's, have crucified the Flesh with its Passions and Lusts.

4. So we see plainly that the Righteousness that is of Faith is not a mere Chimera or Fancy, but a more excellent Righteousness than that of the Law. For the Law is no quickening Spirit but a dead Letter: But Christ is the Resurrection and the Life. And he is God our Righteousness, mighty to save, and can with ease destroy the Powers of Death, Darkness, and the Devil out of the Soul of Man; but we must have the Patience to endure the Work wrought in us by him. I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. And if we will still cloak and cover our foul corrupt Hearts with forged Conceits of Hypocrisie's own making, and excuse our selves from being good one to another or to our selves, because God in Christ is so good to us; hear what the Apostle speaks in the sixth and last Chapter of this Epistle at the seventh Verse. Be not deceived, God is not mocked: For whatsoever a Man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his Flesh, shall of the Flesh reap Corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.

5. The Aim therefore of the Apostle is not to extenuate or discountenance real Vertue and Righteousness, but to point us to it, and shew us where it may be had: Not in Days or Years, not in New-Moons or Festivals, not in Circumcision nor in the dead Letter of the Law; but in Christ and the Spirit of God, in the renewed Image of God, in the New-birth, in the New-life, in the second Adam from Heaven, in the new Creature. Gal. 6. 14. But God forbid that I should glory save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the World is crucified unto me and I unto the World. For in Christ Jesus neither Circumcision availeth any thing nor Uncircumcision, but a new Creature. Eph. 4. 22. Which the Apostle elsewhere calls the new Man; That ye put off concerning the former Conversation the Old Man, that is corrupt according to the deceitful Lusts; and be renewed in the Spirit of your Mind: And that you put on the New Man which after God is created in Righteousness and true Holiness, that is, not in external Ceremonial Holiness, or outward Sanctimonious Shew, but in the Regeneration of the inward Spirit to a new Life from the very Heart. And again, Col. 3. ver. 9. Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the Old Man with his Deeds, and have put on the New Man, which is renewed in Knowledge, after the Image of him that created him; where there is neither Greek nor Jew, Circumcision nor Uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, Bond nor Free, but Christ is all and in all.

6. This

6. This New Creature then is nothing else but the Image of God in the Soul of Man. So witness both these Texts: The new Man which after God is created in Knowledge, Righteousness, and true Holiness. The very same that Plato speaks at once in his Theætetus, ὁμοίωσις δὲ δίκαιον καὶ ὅσιον μετὰ φρονήσεως, To be like God is to become Holy, Just, and Wise. But because most Men, even the old Adam in us, take themselves to be Holy, just, and Wise; it will be seasonable here to see what Justice, Holiness, and Wisdom this is that is in the new Creature.

7. And who can tell it so well as he that is it? Mat. 5. Ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill, shall be in danger of the Judgement: But I say unto you, that whosoever is angry with his Brother without a Cause, shall be in danger of the Judgment; and whosoever shall say unto his Brother, Racha, shall be in danger of the Council; but whosoever shall say, Thou Fool, shall be in danger of Hell-Fire. Ye have heard that it was said by them of old, Thou shalt not commit Adultery: But I say unto you, that whosoever looketh on a Woman to lust after her, hath committed Adultery with her already in his Heart. Again it was said of old, Forswear not thy self: But I say unto you, Swear not at all, but let your Communication be Yea, yea, and Nay, nay; for whatsoever is more than these, cometh of evil. Ye have heard it also said, An Eye for an Eye, and a Tooth for a Tooth: But I say unto you, Resist not evil. Ye have heard also, Thou shalt love thy Neighbour, but hate thine Enemy: But I say unto you, love your Enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despightfully use you and persecute you: That ye may be the Children of your Father which is in Heaven: for he maketh his Sun to rise on the Evil, and on the Good: and sendeth Rain on the Just, and on the Unjust. Behold the exact and unblameable Righteousness that is in the regenerate Soul far above the Doctrine or Thoughts of either the Legal Pharisee or meer Moralist. External Righteousness in the outward Man, or to be internally just as far as corrupt Reason suggests, is but filthy Rags in respect of this Righteousness Christ requires of us, and the new Creature doth bring unto us, once grown up to its due Stature in us. Let every Man examine himself by this Rule.

8. As this Justice is far above, yea, sometimes contrary to, the Justice of the natural Man (for with him to hate his Enemies, to recompense Evil with Evil, is just;) so the Holiness is far transcending the Holiness of either the ancient or modern Scribes and Pharisees and Zelotical Ceremonialists. For all outward Ceremonies of Time or Place, of Gesture or Vestments, Rites or Orders, they are all but Signs and Shews; but the Body is Christ. Lastly, That the natural Man fancy not himself wise, (as who is not of all precious things the most forward to appropriate that to himself?) that he fancy not himself wise before he be Holy and Just, let him examine his Wisdom by that Square in the third Chapter of St. James's Epistle. Who is a wise Man and endowed with Knowledge amongst you? Let him shew out of a good Conversation his Works with Meekness of Wisdom. But if you have bitter envying and strife in your Hearts, glory not and lye not against the Truth. This Wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual and devilish. For where envying and strife is, there is Confusion and every evil Work. But the Wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easie to be entreated, full of Mercy and good Fruits, without Partiality, without Hypocrisie. The Righteousness then of the new Creature is a Righteousness far above the Letter of Moses's Law, though exactly performed; it's Holiness more resplendent than the Robe of Aaron and all his priestly Attire, or whatsoever Ceremonies else God hath instituted or Man invented; it's Wisdom far above all the thin-beaten Subtilties of either the wrangling Sects or disputacious Schools, without Contention or bitter Contradiction.

9. So that it is plain from the constant Scope of the Apostle both in this Epistle and every where else, That he does not vilifie true Vertue and Morality, but drives at an higher Pitch and Perfection thereof; and that the Righteousness of Faith, which he prefers before the Righteousness of Works, is not by way of Exclusion of good Works out of the Righteousness of Faith, but of urging us to exacter and more perfect Works of Righteousness than could be perform'd under the Dispensation of the Law. How wicked a Treachery therefore is it against the Church of Christ, and how impudent a piece of boldness in those false Teachers that would bear Men in hand, That this Doctrine of the being approved in the Eyes of God by a dry and dead Faith, devoid and destitute of all real Sanctity and Holiness, is not only a Christian Truth, but the most choice and principal Doctrine in all Christianity; when there is not any Footstep of any such thing in all the Instructions and Informations of either Christ or his Apostles?

CHAP. VII.

1. That no ſmall Meaſure of Sanctity ſerves the turn in Chriſtianity: 2. As appears out of Scriptures already alledged. 3. Further Proofs thereof out of the Prophets; 4. As alſo out of the Goſpel, 5. And other places of the New Teſtament. 6. The ſtrong Armature of a Chriſtian Soldier. 7. His earneſt Endeavour after Perfection.

1. WHerefore having ſufficiently cleanſed and oiled the firſt Wheel of this mighty Engine we are ſhewing the Uſefulneſs of; we proceed now to the ſecond, where if we do not uſe our Diligence alſo, this Machina will not prove effectual for the purpoſe it was deſigned, viz. for the deſtroying of the Works of the Devil. Of whoſe Stratagems and Devices we being not ignorant, we will declare unto you what is moſt ſeaſonable in this place; namely, That where he cannot corrupt our Minds with this dangerous Error of the ſufficiency of an unſanctified and an unſanctifying Faith, he will in the ſecond place endeavour to perſwade us that a ſmall meaſure of Holineſs will ſerve our turn; conſidering the Paſſion of Chriſt is of ſo great Price in the Eyes of his Father, who accepts of his Death for an Atonement for our Sins, and that by his Blood we are reconciled to God, and therefore any remiſs Deſire, any lazy Inclination to Obedience will be enough; the Paſſion of Chriſt, and the Imputation of his Righteouſneſs will make out the reſt.

2. But that this is really the Suggeſtion of the Devil, not the meaning of the Goſpel, I ſhall make evident from many Teſtimonies of Scripture. I might ſay, That many of thoſe we have already alledged do clearly demonſtrate the ſame. For what means that of John, where he declares, That he that is born of God cannot ſin, becauſe the Seed of God remains in him? What that of Paul, where he ſaith, That Chriſt came to redeem us from all Iniquity, and purchaſe to himſelf a Church without Spot and Wrinkle, a Church holy and without Blemiſh? What means our Saviour Chriſt's ſetting the Rule of Righteouſneſs at that exquiſite Pitch of Perfection, accounting tacit Aſſents to Luſt no leſs than Adultery, raſh and cauſeleſs Anger a degree of Murder, who has not only condemned Retaliation, but has commanded us to do good for evil? I ſay, what is the Senſe of all this, but that we Chriſtians are called to a higher Degree of Perfection in Life and Sanctity than ever any Maſters of Morality and Religion in the World hitherto put men upon? And therefore the Diſpenſation of Chriſtianity is ſo far from allowing men in any immoral Vices or Defects, that it does not only cleanſe from theſe, but lifts us up a degree higher, and never leaves till it has reſtored our Souls into a Condition plainly Divine.

1 John 3. 9. Tit 2. Epheſ. 5.

3. That this is the State that every Chriſtian is called to, and ought to be unſatisfied unleſs his Conſcience tell him he is aiming at, and growing in ſome meaſure towards it, both the Prophetical Deſcriptions of the Kingdom of the Meſſiah upon Earth, and ſeveral other Teſtimonies in the Goſpel and Writings of the Apoſtles do ſtill more fully witneſs. For beſides thoſe Places that deſcribe the Reign of the Meſſiah from the abundance of Peace and Righteouſneſs which ſhould overſpread the Nations of the Earth, as the Waters cover the Sea; there are other particular Paſſages that do prefigure a very great meaſure of Holineſs that the Church of Chriſt ſhould be conſpicuous by, with clearer Knowledge and greater Activity to walk in the Ways of God. And I do not doubt but that which was fulfilled in a corporeal Senſe in Chriſt's time, had alſo a more ſpiritual and more permanent meaning; namely, that of Eſay, Chap. 35. 5, 6. where the Eyes of the Blind are ſaid to be opened, and the Ears of the Deaf unſtopped, the Lame to leap as an Hart, and the Tongue of the Dumb to ſing. Which lively does ſet out the Condition of the true Chriſtian Believer while he makes his faithful Progreſs in Chriſtianity, going on from Serength to Strength till he appear before God in Sion. Add to this Zech. 12. for that it is myſtically applicable to our preſent Purpoſe, appears from ver. 10. They ſhall look upon me whom they have pierced: but what we were going to recite was ver. 8. In that day ſhall the Lord defend the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem; and he that is feeble among them ſhall be as David, and the Houſe of David ſhall be as God, as the Angel of the Lord before them. As our Saviour ſaith of John the Baptiſt, That the leaſt in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he. I ſhall cloſe the Prophetick Predictions with that of Malachi Chap. 3. ſpeaking of the Angel of the Covenant, viz. Chriſt, and that Diſpenſation he was to ſet a-foot in the World; Behold, he ſhall come, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts: But who may abide the day of his his coming? And who ſhall ſtand when he appeareth? For he is like a Refiner's Fire, and like Fuller's Soap. And he ſhall ſit as a Refiner and Purifier of Silver; and he ſhall purifie the Sons of Levi and purge them as Gold and Silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an Offering in Righteouſneſs.

Matth. 11. 11.

4. The very ſame thing which John the Baptiſt witneſſes of Chriſt, Matth. 3. v. 11. I indeed baptize you with Water unto Repentance; but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whoſe Shoes I am not worthy to bear: he ſhall baptize you with the Holy Ghoſt and with Fire. Whoſe Fan is in his Hand, and he will thoroughly purge his Floor, and gather his Wheat into the Garner; but he will burn up the Chaff with unquenchable Fire. To which you may add ver. 10. And now is the Ax laid to the Root of the Trees: Therefore every Tree that bringeth not forth good Fruit is hewn down and caſt into the Fire. Like that Matth. 15. v. 13. Every Plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted, ſhall be rooted up. Which Scriptures do plainly declare to us, That the Deſign of Chriſt's coming was to conſume utterly, and to tear up by the very Roots all Error and Wickedneſs out of the Hearts of them that would receive him.

5. And this were ſufficient to diſcover what a high degree of Holineſs is expected of him that will be in good earneſt a Chriſtian. But I will not omit other places that ſound to the ſame Purpoſe. 1 Pet. 1. 13. Wherefore gird up the Loins of your Mind, be ſober and of a perfect Hope in the Grace that is brought to you through the Revelation of Jeſus Chriſt; as obedient Children, not faſhioning your ſelves according to former Luſts in your ignorance: But as he that has called you is holy, ſo be ye holy in all manner of Converſation; (ἐν πάσῃ ἀναστροφῇ, in your whole Converſation, in every thing you do) Becauſe it is written, Be ye holy, for I am holy. The ſame which our Saviour exhorts to in his Sermon on the Mount, Be ye perfect, as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect. Paul alſo to the Epheſians, Chap. 6. v. 10. Finally, my Brethren, be ſtrong in the Lord, and in the Power of his might. Put you on the whole Armour of God, that ye may be able to ſtand againſt the Wiles of the Devil. For we wreſtle not againſt Fleſh and Blood, but againſt Principalities, againſt Powers, againſt the Rulers of the Darkneſs of this World, even againſt the wicked Spirits of the Air. Wherefore take unto you the whole Armour of God, that ye may be able to ſtand in the evil day, and having vanquiſhed all, to ſtand. Stand therefore, having your Loins girt about with Truth, and having on the Breaſt-plate of Righteouſneſs, and your Feet ſhod with the Preparation of the Goſpel of Peace. Above all, taking the Shield of Faith, whereby you ſhall be able to quench the fiery Darts of the wicked: and take the Helmet of Salvation, and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. We ſhall add only a ſhort Speech to the Chriſtian Souldier thus harneſſed from the Captain of our Salvation, Jeſus Chriſt, Rev. 3: To him that overcometh will I give to ſit with me in my Throne; even as I alſo overcame, and am ſet down with my Father in his Throne. Which things thus put together and carefully conſidered, cannot but awaken us out of that drouzy and lazy Dream of unoperative Faith, and ſluggiſh ſordid Slavery to ſin under Pretence of invincible Infirmity, into a full Belief of the mighty Power of Chriſt and of his Armature and Ammunition, whereby we are able to overcome all our domeſtick Luſts, though abetted and incenſed by the fiery Stratagems of the Devil.

6. To him that overcomes. When, I beſeech you, is this overcoming? Is not Victory won in the ſame Field the Battel is fought? And is not our Warfare here upon this Earth? Wherefore it is plain our Victory muſt be here alſo. It is in this Life we are commanded to kill and ſlay the old Man in us with all his deceiveable Luſts, who, while he is alive, will be always plotting and inventing ſome evil Device or other to undermine and root the Kingdom of Chriſt out of our Hearts. And therefore we muſt be wholly the one or wholly the other. We cannot ſerve Chriſt and Belial, 2 Cor. 5. 16. Light and Darkneſs cannot abide together. And verily the Apoſtle has furniſhed us with ſo compleat an Armature, that we cannot but confeſs our ſelves ſtronger than the ſtrong Man that has hitherto kept the Houſe; ſo that if he be not diſpoſſeſſed, it is long of us. For the faithful Chriſtian Soldier is ſo well appointed (being girt with Truth, and his Heart fortified with Uprighneſs and Sincerity, his Mind with Repreſentations of Eternal Life, his Feet with Readineſs and unwearied Reſolution of walking as becomes the Goſpel of Chriſt, his Memory with the choiceſt and moſt uſeful and encouraging Precepts of the Scripture, and his whole Soul bearing it ſelf ſtrong in the Faith of the Power of God againſt all Aſſaults and Temptations of the Enemies of our Salvation) that he cannot but get the day and ſtand Conqueror in the Field, though his own domeſtick Luſts be aſſiſted by the Powers of the Prince of the Air that rules in the Children of Diſobedience. For this Shield of Faith is able to quench all the fiery Darts of the Devil. This is that Faith whereby the Ancients have ſubdued Kingdoms and wrought Righteouſneſs. And this is that whereby every Chriſtian ſhall advance his Conqueſts againſt the Kingdom of Darkneſs and Unrighteouſneſs as much as he pleaſes. For according to a Man's Faith, ſo ſhall it be unto him.

Heb. 11.

7. Wherefore thoſe that plead for a lazy Slackneſs and Remiſneſs in theſe Attempts, are not faithful Chriſtians, but falſe Brethren got in amongſt us. He that puts his Hand to the Plough, and looks back, is not fit for the Kingdom of God. Again, He that loveth Father or Mother more than me, is not worthy of me; and he that loveth Son or Daughter more than me, is not worthy of me. Nay, he that loveth his own Life more than Chriſt, is not worthy of him, nor can he be his Diſciple, as our Saviour himſelf has declared. How can then any be Chriſt's Diſciple that loves any Luſt whatſoever, though never ſo pleaſant, though never ſo profitable, more than the Son of God that redeemed him with his own Blood? Wherefore all true Chriſtians have been in this Point in good earneſt in both Practice, Profeſſion and Prayers, in breathing and contending after all Exquiſiteneſs of Purity and Integrity both of Fleſh and Spirit, perfecting Holineſs in the Fear of God, as the Apoſtle exhorts the Corinthians. According to which alſo S. James in his Epiſtle general, Chap. 1. v. 4. Let Patience have her perfect Work, that ye may be perfect and entire, being defective in nothing. Like that Prayer of Epaphras for the Coloſſians, Chap. 4. v. 12. who is ſaid there to labour fervently for them in Prayer, that they may ſtand perfect and complete in the whole Will of God. Which is the ſame with St. Peter's 1 Epiſt. the laſt Chapter, The God of all Grace, who hath called us to his Eternal Glory by Chriſt Jeſus, after that you have ſuffered a while, make you perfect, ſtabliſh, ſtrengthen, ſettle you. To which we will add that of the Author to the Hebrews, and ſo conclude. Now the God of Peace that brought again our Lord Jeſus, the great Shepherd of the Sheep, through the Blood of the everlaſting Covenant, make you perfect in every good Work, to do his Will, working in you that which is well-pleaſing in his ſight, through Jeſus Chriſt, to whom be Glory for ever and ever, Amen.

Luke 9. 62. Matth. 10. 37.

Heb. 13. 20.

CHAP. VIII.

1. That the Chriſtians Aſſiſtance is equal to his Task. 2. The two Goſpel-Powers that comprehend his Duty. 3. The firſt Goſpel-aid, The Promiſe of the Spirit, with Prophecies thereof out of Ezekiel and Eſay. 4. Some Hints of the myſtical Meaning of the laſt. 5. Another excellent Prediction thereof.

1. WE have made it very evident, That that Degree of Righteouſneſs that the Chriſtian is called unto, is no lazy, ſluggiſh Inclination to Holineſs, no maimed, halting, hypocritical following after Chriſt; but a ſound and chearful Endeavour, and at laſt a joyful Acquiſition of ſuch a Degree of Sanctity and Righteouſneſs as far ſurmounts the Pretenſions of all other Religions whatſoever; and is indeed ſo exquiſite and perfect, that nothing better can be deſired or imagined. So holy and heavenly a Calling is the Calling of a Chriſtian, And indeed the Expectation is ſo great, that if our Aids and Aſſiſtances were not proportionable, we could never arrive to the End of our Calling. But our Helps are in my Apprehenſion far greater than our Task, if we were not wanting to our ſelves.

2. We have hitherto ſeen how neceſſary inward Sanctification is to a Chriſtian, as alſo to how ample a meaſure he is called. Both theſe he is indiſpenſably obliged to endeavour and breath after perpetually; as is manifeſtly declared by Chriſt, his Apoſtles, and the Prophets before them. Wherefore theſe two, I mean The Evidence that we are to be inwardly and really righteous, and not only ſo, but in a moſt perfect and extraordinary manner, are the two Powers of the Goſpel that comprehend our great and ultimate Duty of being holy as he that has called us is holy, of becoming perfect as our Father which is in Heaven is perfect. The following Goſpel-Powers all of them are Aids and Helps to this Deſign. The firſt whereof is The Promiſe of the Spirit, through Chriſt's Interceſſion; the ſecond, The Example of Chriſt; the third, The Meditation on his Paſſion; the fourth, on his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion; and the laſt, on the laſt Judg-

Judgment. Theſe Powers are of ſuch admirable Efficacy, if rightly applied, that they are able to pull down every ſtrong hold, and to caſt out all evil Imaginations, and every high thing that exalts it ſelf againſt the Knowledge of God, and to bring into captivity every Thought to the Obedience of Chriſt, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks. No Strength of habituated Sin, no Violence of any Luſt ſhall be able to ſtand before them.

3. The firſt of theſe Powers is The Promiſe of the Spirit; I do not mean for the doing Miracles, (for that was but a tranſient Buſineſs, and accommodate only to the firſt Ages of the Church,) but for through-Sanctification and cleanſing us from all our Sins, and for our perfect Growth in Righteouſneſs and Holineſs. That this Power is a Concomitant to the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel in all true Believers, is apparent both from the Predictions of the Prophets, and from the Mouth of our Saviour and his bleſſed Apoſtles.

Iſaiah 44. Hear now, O Jacob my Servant, and Iſrael whom I have choſen. Thus ſaith the Lord that made thee, and framed thee from the Womb, and will help thee. Fear not, O Jacob my Servant, and thou Jeſurun whom I have choſen: For I will pour Water upon him that is thirſty, and Floods upon the dry Ground; I will pour my Spirit upon thy Seed, and my Bleſſing upon thy Off-ſpring. And they ſhall ſpring up as among the Graſs, and the Willows by the Water-Courſes. Which Prophecy is moſt properly applicable to the Church of Chriſt who is the true Seed of Jacob: thoſe Wreſtlers with God, and Strivers to get in at the *narrow Gate that leads to Life, they are the true Jeſurun, the * upright of Heart and ſincere Seekers after God, thoſe that truly hunger and thirſt after Righteouſneſs; and therefore God will ſatisfie them by the ſupernatural Aſſiſtance of his bleſſed Spirit.

*Luke 13. 24.

*From ישר, rectus.

Again, Ezekiel 36. ver. 25. prefiguring the bleſſed Diſpenſation of the Kingdom of Chriſt; Then will I ſprinkle clean Water upon you, and ye ſhall be clean: from all your Filthineſs and from all your Idols will I cleanſe you. A new Heart alſo will I give you, and a new Spirit will I put within you; And I will take the ſtony Heart out of your Fleſh, and I will give you an Heart of Fleſh. And I will put my Spirit within you, and cauſe you to walk in my Statutes, and ye ſhall keep my Judgments and do them.

Alſo Iſa. 41. v. 10. where certainly according to Analogie of Interpretations of Prophecy, (the Seed of Abraham being a Type of the Spiritual Church of Chriſt, and their Warfare not carnal but ſpiritual, nor the Waters promiſed by Chriſt ſuch Liquors as run in Brooks and Rivers, but Emanations of the purifying and refreſhing Powers of the Spirit of God) we may ſee with what cloſe and faithful Aſſiſtance God is pleaſed to adhere to his true Iſrael in whom there is no Guile, but they are ſincerely waging War and to the utmoſt reſiſting all the Temptations of the World, the Fleſh, and the Devil.

But thou, Iſrael, my Servant, Jacob, whom I have choſen, the Seed of Abraham my Friend; fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not diſmaied for I am thy God: I will ſtrengthen thee, yea I will help thee, yea I will uphold thee with the Right-hand of my Righteouſneſs. Behold, all they that were incenſed againſt thee, ſhall be aſhamed and confounded, they ſhall be as nothing; and they that ſtrive with thee ſhall periſh. Thou ſhalt ſeek them, and ſhalt not find them, even them that contended with thee; they that war againſt thee ſhall be as nothing and as a thing of nought. For I the Lord thy God will hold thy Right-hand, ſaying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee. Fear not thou Worm Jacob, and ye Men of Iſrael: I will help thee, ſaith the Lord, and thy Redeemer, the holy one of Iſrael. Behold I will make thee a new ſharp threſhing Inſtrument, having Teeth; thou ſhalt threſh the Mountains, and beat them ſmall, and ſhalt make the Hills as Chaff. Thou ſhalt fan them, and the Wind ſhall carry them away, and the Whirlwind ſhall ſcatter them; and thou ſhalt rejoice in the Lord, and ſhalt glory in the holy One of Iſrael. When the Poor and Needy ſeek Water, and there is none, and their Tongue faileth for Thirſt; I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Iſrael will not forſake them: I will open Rivers in high Places, and Fountains in the midſt of the Vallies. I will make the Wilderneſs a Pool of Water, and the dry Land Springs of Water. This Prophecy is an exquiſite Deſcription of thoſe full and compleat Victories the Church gets againſt Sin and Satan by the ſupernatural Aſſiſtance of the Spirit of God.

Which Promiſe is again repeated in the following Chapter, which though it be larger than the former, and part cited already to another purpoſe, yet I cannot refrain from tranſcribing the whole, it being ſo plain a Prophecy of Chriſt (as appears from the fore-part thereof) and of the Power of his Kingdom through the Spirit for the vanquiſhing of all Sin and Wickedneſs in them that do truly believe. Behold my Ser- Iſa. 42.

vant

vant whom I uphold, mine Elect in whom my Soul delighteth. I have put my Spirit upon him, he ſhall bring forth Judgment to the Gentiles. He ſhall not cry, nor lift up, nor cauſe his Voice to be heard in the Street. A bruiſed Reed ſhall he not break, and ſmoaking Flax ſhall he not quench; he ſhall bring forth Judgment unto Truth. He ſhall not fail nor be diſcouraged, till he hath ſet Judgment in the Earth: and the Iſles ſhall wait for his Law. Thus ſaith God the Lord, he that created the Heavens and ſtretched them out, he that ſpread forth the Earth and that which cometh out of it, he that giveth Breath to the People upon it, and Spirit to thoſe that dwell therein: I the Lord have called thee in Righteouſneſs, and will hold thine Hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a Covenant of the People, for a light of the Gentiles; to open the blind Eyes, to bring out the Priſoners from the Priſon, and them that ſit in Darkneſs out of the Priſon-houſe. I am the Lord, that is my Name; and my Glory will I not give to another, neither my Praiſe to graven Images. Behold, the former things are come to paſs, and new things do I declare: before they ſpring forth, I tell you of them. Sing unto the Lord a new Song, and his Praiſe from the End of the Earth; ye that go down to the Sea, and all that is therein; the Iſles and the Inhabitants thereof. Let the Wilderneſs and the Cities thereof lift up their Voice, the Villages that Kedar doth inhabit. Let the Inhabitants of the Rock ſing: let them ſhout from the Top of the Mountains: let them give Glory unto the Lord, and declare his Praiſe in the Iſlands. The Lord ſhall go forth as a mighty Man, he ſhall ſtir up Jealouſie like a Man of War; he ſhall cry, yea, roar; he ſhall prevail againſt his Enemies. I have long time holden my Peace, I have been ſtill and refrained my ſelf; now will I cry like a travailing Woman, I will deſtroy and devour at once. I will make waſte Mountains and Hills, and dry up all their Herbs; I will make the Rivers Iſlands, and I will dry up the Pools. And I will bring the Blind by a Way that they know not, I will lead them in Paths that they have not known: I will make Darkneſs Light before them, and crooked things ſtraight. Theſe things will I do unto them, and not forſake them.

4. It is a very high Repreſentation of that mighty Power of God from above that aſſiſts his Church, and how Chriſt by the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel does ſet us free from the Bondage of Sin; how he opens the Underſtandings of the Ignorant, and procures Liberty for thoſe that were ſhut up in the Dungeon of a dark Conſcience, and held in Captivity under Sin; how thoſe that are dry and barren like the Wilderneſs and Tops of Rocks ſhall be watered with Springs of Living Water, and how the Villages that * Kedar poſſeſſes, that is, thoſe that are overſhadowed with Sorrow and Darkneſs, a Light ſhall ſpring up unto them, and how they ſhall give Glory unto the Lord: for that he himſelf will be their Champion, he ſhall fight their Battels, and by the Power of his Spirit, and by that Fire wherewith he will plead with all Fleſh, wither the Top and Flower of their Pride, and dry up their reſtagnant Luſts, and lighten their Paths before them, and lead them forth into the Land of Righteouſneſs. Theſe are the true Warfares and Victories of the Church of Chriſt, as thoſe that have the Veil taken off from their Eyes and Hearts can eaſily diſcover. And ſurely with any other uſeful Senſe than this cannot we ordinarily read the like Deſcriptions of the Churches Triumphs by Chriſt over her Enemies, or by thoſe that have been Types of him, as David was an eniment one. And therefore if I would read the 18 Pſalm (I will love thee, O Lord my Strength, &c.) I ſhould hope for very ſmall edifying thereby but in ſuch a myſtical Senſe as this is, that is, by ſuppoſing that in me which partakes of Chriſt, that is, my inward Mind or Spirit, raiſing War againſt * Saul, which is the Power of the Fleſh, the craving Pit of Hell, that Sin that lodges in this mortal Body whoſe vain Deſires have no bottom nor End.

* From קדר Obtenebratus, atratus fuit.

* שאול Infernus. à שאל petiit.

5. I might abound with theſe Allegations out of the Prophets and Pſalms; but I have given a Key into the Hand of the judicious, and he may unlock thoſe Treaſures himſelf, if he deſires to have his Faith enriched and ſtrengthened by thoſe plentiful Promiſes of this Aſſiſtance we ſpeak of, made to them that are ſerious Profeſſors of the Goſpel. I ſhall only add one Teſtimony more, which in my Apprehenſion is very expreſs, and that is, Iſa. 35. Strengthen the weak Hands, and confirm the feeble Knees. Say to them that are of a fearful Heart, Be ſtrong, fear not; behold, your God will come with Vengeance, even God with a Recompence, he will come and ſave you. Then ſhall the Eyes of the Blind be opened, and the Ears of the Deaf ſhall be unſtopped; Then ſhall the lame Man leap as an Hart, and the Tongue of the Dumb ſhall ſing: For in the Wilderneſs ſhall Waters break out, and Streams in the Deſart. And the parched Ground ſhall become a Pool, and the thirſty Land Springs of Water: In the Habitations bitations of Dragons, in the Places where they lay ſhall be Graſs, with Reeds and Ruſhes. And an High-way ſhall be there, and a Way, and it ſhall be called a Way of Holineſs: the Unclean ſhall not paſs over it, but he ſhall walk in the Way with them, and the Simple ſhall not erre. No Lion ſhall be there, nor any ravenous Beaſt ſhall go up thereon, it ſhall not be found there; but the Redeemed ſhall walk there. And the ranſomed of the Lord ſhall return and come to Sion with Songs and everlaſting Joy upon their Heads: they ſhall obtain Joy and Gladneſs, and Sorrow and Sighing ſhall flee away.

CHAP. IX.

1. The great Uſe of the Belief of The Promiſe of the Spirit. 2. The Eating the Fleſh of Chriſt and Drinking his Blood, what it is. 3. Further Proof of the Promiſe of the Spirit. 4. That we cannot oblige God by way of Merit. 5. Other Teſtimonies of Scripture tending to the former purpoſe.

1. THESE Places which we have recited out of the Old Teſtament, cannot but warm and encourage him that reads them, by reaſon of the Loftineſs of their Prophetical Style, provided that he have in himſelf a Facility of myſtically applying of things to the great Purpoſe they drive at. But what we ſhall add out of the New, though they will not ſtrike the Fancy with ſo high Language, yet they will, it may be, reach ones Reaſon more ſurely, and extort Aſſent more powerfully even from them that are loath to find it true, That there is ſuch a mighty ſupernatural Aſſiſtance afforded from God, viz. the Co-operation of his holy Spirit in our Conflicts againſt Sin. Which Perſwaſion is of great Conſequence to make us reſolute in reſiſting all Temptations, and to gain the Victory in every Aſſault; and therefore we will produce ſufficient Evidences of the Truth thereof.

2. And the firſt that occurs to my Mind, is that of our bleſſed Saviour, Luke 11. 13. If ye, being evil, know how to give good Gifts to your Children, how much more ſhall your Heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to them that ask him? And that this Diſpenſation of the Spirit of Sanctification is a common Gift to all Chriſtians, appears out of what we have already recited out of St. Matthew, where John profeſſes himſelf only able to baptize with Water unto Repentance, but that the Baptiſm of Chriſt ſhould be with the Holy Ghoſt and with Fire, that is, with the Power of the Spirit that will melt and purifie us as Silver is purified in the Fire. Alſo from Joh. 6. where Ver. 35,51,54
Chriſt ſtyleth himſelf the Manna that came down from Heaven, and declareth, that he that eateth his Fleſh and drinketh his Blood, hath eternal Life; with other Expreſſions of the like Nature. Wherefore his Diſciples began to be ſcandalized at it: but Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, Does this offend you? What if you ſhall ſee the Son of Man Ver. 62.
aſcend up where he was before? That will be a very ſtrange and ſtupendious Spectacle to you, and ſuch as will aſſure you of my Divinity; but withal remove my Body ſo far from you, that you cannot then, if you would, miſtake ſo groſly as to think I ſpeak of this Body and Blood I carry now about with me. It is the Spirit that quick- Ver. 63.
neth, the Fleſh profiteth nothing. The Words that I ſpeak unto you, they are Spirit, and they are Life; that is to ſay, They are touching the ſpiritual Body, which is the inmoſt Temple of the Holy Ghoſt, and which you are in ſome meaſure to partake of here, and which will have its compleat Refinement when I ſhall crown you with the Perfection of Life eternal at the laſt Day. Or, they are ſimply concerning the Spirit, and that Life which I my ſelf am according to my Divinity, viz. The eternal Word in whom is the Life, and that Life is the light of Men. This is that which you are to feed on, and to drink into your Souls, when you have not my particular bodily Preſence with you. For this Word and Spirit is every where to be taken in by them that breath and thirſt after this Heavenly Suſtenance of their Souls; and ſo is that fulfilled which he declares v. 56. For the eating of the Fleſh is in ſome meaſure partaking of the ſpiritual Body, and the drinking of the Blood the imbibing that Life therewith that rayes out from the eternal Word into all purged and purified Hearts, whereby Chriſt dwelleth in them and they in him, and God in all.

3. Again, John 7. 37. In the laſt Day, that great Day of the Feaſt, Jeſus ſtood and cryed, ſaying, If any Man thirſt, let him come unto me and drink. He that believes on

*See Chap. 8. sect. 3, 4, 5.

on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his Belly shall flow Rivers of living Waters. Which he spake of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive*; as the Text it self expounds it. And therefore is a good Ratification of the mystical Sense of those Prophecies we rehearsed out of Isaiah.

But these things are spoken more plainly and without a Metaphor, Joh. 14. 15. If ye love me, keep my Commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; Even the Spirit of Truth, whom the World cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you. Which Precept and Promise is like that of Isa. chap. 58. which is, that (if we seriously compose our Minds to do due Acts of Obedience to God) he will pour out his Spirit upon us. Then Ver. 8. shall thy Light break forth like the Morning, and thy Health shall spring forth speedily; Ver. 11. and thy Righteousness shall go before thee, the Glory of the Lord shall be thy Rereward. And a little after, Then shall thy Light rise in Obscurity, and thy Darkness be as the Noon-Day. And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfie thy Soul in Drought, and make fat thy Bones: and thou shalt be like a watered Garden, and like a Spring of Water, whose Waters fail not. That is, (as any spiritual Christian would be apt to interpret the place) If thou thirst after Righteousness, and in the mean time, to thy utmost Power, do the outward Functions thereof in thy Duties to God and Man, at length this Spirit of Truth will break forth like the Morning Light within thee, and the Emanations of the Holy Ghost will so throughly refresh thee and strengthen thee, that with Ease and Pleasure thou shalt walk in all the Ways of God, which shall be like the flowry Alleys of a Paradise to thee, both to thine inward and outward Man.

4. Not that our Endeavours or Desires are any Obligation to God by way of Merit on our Part, but it is his Mercy to the Soul that does in good earnest pant after him. For till he has compleated his Work in us, all our Works are worth nothing; and whenever they are worth any thing, they are not ours but his. And to this Sense speaks Paul to Titus, Chap. 3. But after that the Kindness and Love of God our Saviour toward Man appeared, Not by Works of Righteousness which we have done, but according to his Mercy he saved us, by the Washing of Regeneration, and Renewing of the Holy Ghost, which he shed on us (or poured out upon us, as the Original has it) abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour. That being justified by his Grace, we should be made Heirs according to the Hope of eternal Life. Like that of the Prophet, Thou shalt be like a watered Garden.

5. Add to these Joh. 3. 5. Jesus answered, Verily, verily I say unto thee, Except a Man be born of Water and of the Spirit, he can in no wise enter into the Kingdom of God. That which is born of the Flesh, is Flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit. And Rom. 8. 9. But ye are not in the Flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any Man have not the Spirit of God, he is none of his. And ver. 26. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our Infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought; but the Spirit it self maketh Intercession for us with Groanings that cannot be uttered. And also 1 Cor. 3. 16. Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? And lastly, Eph. 3. 14. (For it were infinite to reckon up all Places of Scripture that tend to this purpose) For this Cause I bow my Knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole Family of Heaven and Earth is named, That he would grant you according to the Riches of his Glory, to be strengthened with Might by his Spirit in the inward Man; That Christ may dwell in your Hearts by Faith; that ye being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all Saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the Love of Christ which passeth Knowledge, that ye may be filled with all the Fulness of God, who is able to do abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the Power that worketh in us. To him therefore be Glory in the Church by Christ Jesus throughout all Ages, World without End. Amen.

CHAP.

CHAP. X.

1. A Recapitulation of what has been ſet down hitherto concerning the Uſefulneſs of the Goſpel, and the Neceſſity of undeceiving the World in thoſe Points that ſo nearly concern Chriſtian Life. 2. The ill Condition of thoſe that content themſelves with Imaginary Righteouſneſs, figured out in the Fighters againſt Ariel and Mount Sion. 3. A further Demonſtration of their fond Conceit. 4. That a true Chriſtian cannot ſin without Pain and Torture to himſelf.

1. WE have now abundantly proved out of Places of Scripture, The Neceſſity of inward Sanctification and real in-dwelling Righteouſneſs, and the high Pitch thereof, together with the mighty Aſſiſtance hereunto, The Promiſe of the Spirit of God moving and cooperating in the inward Man to the finiſhing and compleating all his Works in us, that we may be holy and blameleſs without Spot or Wrinkle or any ſuch thing.

We have alſo prevented all perverſe Gloſſes of falſe Teachers, whereby they would ſlacken and enervate the Strength and Efficacy of theſe three Powers of the Goſpel we have hitherto ſpoken of, by introducing a bare, fruitleſs and ſteril Faith, or the Imputation of an external Righteouſneſs, that, according to their Compute, is further removed from us than the higheſt Star. Which Error, were it as harmleſs as groundleſs, any peaceable good Chriſtian could be content to connive at it: but it being an old miſchievous Stratagem againſt the Church, and ſo noted by the Wiſdom of the Apoſtles, an evil Machination found out by the Prince of Darkneſs to undermine the Kingdom of Chriſt, no faithful Adherent to the Intereſt of the Lord Jeſus, and the Advancement of his Rule and Power in the World, can with a good Conſcience ſlightly paſs it over, but will uſe his beſt Endeavour to undeceive the World in ſo dangerous a Miſtake.

2. And though I be now haſting apace to the next Joint of the Evangelical Engine I am deſcribing, yet I cannot paſs on with Satisfaction to my ſelf, before I have alſo added to the Suffrages of the Apoſtles (who unanimouſly have voted this Opinion, of being righteous without doing Righteouſneſs, a very dangerous Impoſture and Deceit) ſome rational Conſiderations that may make us ſtill more ſenſible of the ill Conſequences thereof. For my own part, I muſt confeſs that it is to me a thing utterly inconceivable how a Man can be righteous here without Righteouſneſs, or happy hereafter without Righteouſneſs here ; or how any true Chriſtian can pleaſe himſelf in a Palliation more than a Cure, or can be ſatisfied with any thing but that Manna that came down from Heaven, the very Fleſh and Blood of Chriſt in that Senſe. I have interpreted it, or without feeding his Soul with that real Spirit of Righteouſneſs, or the Divine Nature, which is Meat indeed, and Drink indeed. For I do not underſtand how the Condition of theſe Oppoſers of ſo Eſſential and Fundamental a Truth can be any other than what the Prophet * Eſay has prefigured in thoſe that fight againſt Ariel, the Altar of Holocauſts, (where the whole beaſtly Nature is to be burned by the conſuming * Fire of God) and that lay ſiege againſt Mount * Sion, the Hill of that Dineſs and Thirſt which God has promiſed to irrigate with living Springs of Water. It ſhall be as when an hungry Man dreameth, and behold he eateth ; but he awaketh, and his Soul is empty : or as when a thirſty Man dreameth, and behold he drinketh ; but he awaketh, and behold he is faint. So ſhall the multitude of the Nations be that fight againſt Mount Sion. This is the Condition of all Sects whatſoever that are contrary to them that thirſt and hunger after Righteouſneſs : For theſe ſhall be really ſatisfied, the Dew of Divine Grace ſhall plentifully ſhower down upon this Sion, and they ſhall be filled with Spiritual Manna from Heaven ; whereas the other, their Hunger and Thirſt (that is, their Wants and Defects) being real, but not after real Righteouſneſs, are fed only by Imaginations and Dreams, and whenever they awake out of them, will find themſelves deſtitute of all Good.

* Eſay 28.

* From אוּר ignis and אֵל Deus.
* ציון from ציה Siccitas.

3. Nay, what is yet worſe, a Man may almoſt conclude that they are not ſo much as in a Capacity of dreaming of celeſtial Food. For that is a Function of Life, to dream of ſuch things as are agreeable to ſuch a Species of living Creatures ; and thoſe that dream of ſuch things as are congruous to their Nature, it is becauſe they have had an Enjoyment of them, and do ſometimes enjoy them according to the Order of Nature. And certainly he that is a true Chriſtian, is not a meer natural Man, but is that New Creature that is framed in Righteousness and true Holiness: and therefore he must be fed out of such Principles as he was generated from, not of the Will of Man, but the Spirit of God; and therefore he does not only dream of, but really feed of that Manna that is from Heaven, that inward essential Righteousness that is from God. And as it is impossible for one Man to eat, to drink, and to breath for another in a natural way; so also it is alike impossible for any one Person to eat and drink and breath in a spiritual way for another. And if we were wholly alive to that Life that is most certainly in every Christian rightly so called, we should think it as inconvenient that any one should be righteous for us, as that he should be in Health for us. For what Comfort would it be, while we are in a tedious Fever, a sharp Fit of the Stone or Gout, that some other Person should be sound and at ease for us?

4. And therefore it is too shrewd an Indication that Men in this imaginary Perswasion are in a manner past feeling, as the Apostle speaks, by reason of the Stupidity of their hardened Heart, as being devoid of all Divine Life and Sense; otherwise Sin and Immorality would be as harsh to their Souls as these Diseases are painful to their Bodies. And hence it is that St. John saith, That he that is born of God sinneth not, because the Seed of God remaineth in him; as I have noted above. For what Principle of Life sins against it self? What Beast wilfully wounds it self? What Tree blasts it self? What Life will so much as hurt it self any way? Will the Eagle swim in the Sea, or the Dolphin fly in the Air? Will not all Creatures keep them to their own Element and Original, and fly their contrary Element as that which brings Destruction, or at least a great deal of Diseasement to them? What regenerate Man then can endure to come near the Region of Sin? It can be no more pleasant to him than the Smoke to his Eyes, or the Noise of a Saw to his Hearing. How can I do this Wickedness, and sin against God? Nay how can I cut and launce and scorch my self, my better self, even Christ which lives in me, with whom I suffer as often as his Image suffers?

And this may serve for a more general Taste of the Unreasonableness of this wicked and mischievous Imposture that has ever more or less attempted the Church of Christ. But I shall bring you in a more punctual Bill of the Losses and Damages done thereby.

CHAP. XI.

1. That the want of real Righteousness deprives us of the Divine Wisdom, proved out of Scripture. 2. As also from the nature of the thing it self. 3. That it disadvantages the Soul also in Natural Speculations. 4. That it stifles all noble and laudable Actions. 5. And exposes the imaginary Religionist to open Reproach. 6. That meer imaginary Righteousness robs the Soul of her Peace of Conscience, 7. And of all Divine Joy; 8. Of Health and Safety, 9. And of Eternal Salvation. 10. That God also hereby is deprived of his Glory, and the Church frustrated of publick Peace and Happiness.

1. THis sad Reckoning may be comprized under these two general Heads, The Good of Man and The Glory of God. Those Particulars in which The Good of Man chiefly doth consist, be these:

1. True Wisdom and a sound Judgment in things.
2. Noble and profitable Actions.
3. Honourable Repute.
4. Peace and Tranquillity of Mind.
5. Divine Joy and Triumph of Spirit.
6. Health and Safety here in this Life.
7. Eternal Happiness hereafter.

And now first that we are deceived and cheated of true Wisdom and a sound Mind by this fond Supposal, That we may be righteous, though we be not righteous as Christ was righteous, that is, in doing of Righteousness, will sufficiently appear from this, That Righteousness and Holiness is the only true Way to Divine Wisdom and a sound Judgment in things. Which may be made good both by manifold Testimonies of Scripture, and from the Nature of the thing it self. If any one will do the Will of God,

God, he ſhall know of my Doctrine, ſaith Chriſt, whether it be from God, or whether I ſpeak of my ſelf, John 7. And in the Pſalms, The Fear of the Lord (by which is underſtood Righteouſneſs, the eſchewing Evil and doing Good, as the Pſalmiſt himſelf explains it) is the beginning of Wiſdom; a ſound Judgment have they that do thereafter, &c. And elſewhere, The Secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he is mindful of his Covenant to make them know it, as the Hebrew will be well rendred. And Job 32. I ſaid Days ſhould ſpeak, and multitude of Years ſhould teach Wiſdom: But there is a Spirit in a Man, and the Inſpiration of the Almighty gives them Underſtanding. But how this Inſpiration and Spirit of Wiſdom has for its Abode an Heart really righteous, the Wiſdom of Solomon will tell us; inſomuch that he that is contented to forgo Righteouſneſs, muſt alſo of neceſſity fall ſhort of Wiſdom. Wiſdom cannot enter into a wicked Heart, ſaith he, nor dwell in a Body that is ſubject unto ſin. For the holy Spirit of Diſcipline fleeth from Deceit, and withdraweth her ſelf from Thoughts that are without Underſtanding, and is rebuked when wickedneſs cometh in. Wiſdom therefore and Unrighteouſneſs cannot abide under the ſame Roof. Our Bodies cannot be both the Temples of the living God and of a deceitful Idol.

Pſalm 25. 14.

And if it were needful to add any thing Allegorical and Myſterious to theſe plain Teſtimonies of Scripture, we might alſo urge that this precious Truth, That Wiſdom riſes out of Righteouſneſs, was alſo ſhadowed out in the fourth Day's Creation, wherein the Lights of Heaven were made. For that myſterious Jew on the place records this obſervable Priviledge of the Number Four, Ὅτι πρῶτος ἀρτιάκις ἄρτιος τετράγωνός ἐστιν, ἰσάκις ἴσος, μέτρον δικαιοσύνης ἢ ἰσότης, That the Quaternary Number is the firſt Quadrate, pariter par, or equally equal, the Meaſure of Juſtice and Equity. Wherefore the Number here of the Day being a Symbol of Righteouſneſs, that which was created in that Day, viz. the Lights of Heaven, may very well be the Symbols of Divine Knowledge and Wiſdom, viz. the Son of Righteouſneſs, as Chriſt is called; intimating that the Divine Wiſdom is conceived and brought forth, or, if you will, created in Righteouſneſs. So that this intellectual Sun does not ariſe and ſhine upon our Minds till this fourth Day, the Day of Righteouſneſs. But then that in the Proverbs is made good, That the Path of the Juſt is as the ſhining Light, הולך ואור that goes on and ſhines עד נכון היום till the Firmitude or Stability of the Day; and that's at Noon, which is the Solſtice of the Day, where his Altitude does not ſo ſenſibly vary. So that the Senſe is, the Path of the Righteous is like the Courſe of the Sun, who ſtill climbs up, till he fully reach his Meridian: But the way of the wicked is Darkneſs, (as it is in the following Verſe) they know not at what they ſtumble.

Prov. 4. 18.

2. And thus it is plain from Teſtimonies of Scripture, That Divine Wiſdom and a ſound Mind is not to be attained unto but through Righteouſneſs: And that conſequently he that forgoes real Righteouſneſs, muſt of neceſſity loſe true Wiſdom.

But beſide this there are alſo innate Arguments taken from the things themſelves, whereby the ſame Truth may be proved. For it is apparent that Corruption of the Will, like Ruſt, eats away the Strength, defaces the Beauty, and obſcures the Brightneſs of the Underſtanding, and dulls the Edge of the natural Wit. But to point out more at large ſome Reaſons why the unrighteous muſt be alſo unwiſe. The firſt is, From the falſeneſs of the wicked Heart; the ſecond, From the Aſymmetry or Incongruity the vitious Mind has with Divine Truth. And for the former, it is a manifeſt Reaſon why God does not commit the Treaſures of Wiſdom to the unrighteous. For he will not put it into the Cuſtody of falſe Men. How careful the Divine Wiſdom is in this Point, Siracides has very fitly deſcribed, Chap. 4. For firſt ſhe will walk with a Man by crooked ways, and bring him unto Fear and Dread, and torment him with her Diſcipline, until ſhe have tried his Soul, and proved him with her Judgments: Then will ſhe return the ſtraight way unto him, and comfort him, and ſhew him her Secrets, and heap upon him the Treaſures of Knowledge. But why ſhe will not commit this great and precious Treaſure to polluted and unholy Minds, is, as I have ſaid, becauſe of their faithleſneſs, they being ſo likely to abuſe it: that is, they will either contemn it, as a Swine does a Pearl, preferring either the ſenſual Pleaſures or the Riches or the Honours of the World before it, and ſo quenching the good Grace of God by their baſe Luſts and evil Deſires, are caſt off by God in a deſerved Scorn; (for the Divine Wiſdom is not ſo vile and cheap a thing as to intrude her ſelf like an impudent Woman into the familiarities of Men, but is rebuked and checked and goes her way at the Entrance and Appearance of her bold Corrivals, if they be entertained, viz. The Luſt of the Fleſh, the Luſt of the Eyes, and the Pride of Life: and many ſuch Affronts will quite chaſe her away, ſo that whereas ſhe ſought after us before, ſhe now ſought after by us will be hard to be found:) or elſe if we do not ſeem to contemn her and ſlight her, yet we may ſhew our ſelves faithleſs and treacherous in betraying her to other Uſes than God intended her. As if ſo be we ſhould thence endeavour to exalt our own Name, and pleaſe our ſelves in our own Arrogancy, ſetting our ſelves above others; or uſe the Quickneſs and Sagacity of our Underſtandings to Deceit, or the patronizing of Evil in our ſelves or others; I ſay, becauſe the unrighteous Man would be ſubject to abuſe thus treacherouſly the great Gift of God, therefore the Divine Wiſdom may not lodge in his falſe Heart: but in ſtead of that any fortuitous Opinions which his own Natural Inclinations, Practices, Education, or Confuſion of his own Mind and Conſcience ſhall heap together in him hand over head; which he taking for Truth, ſhall notwithſtanding abuſe, and ſhew the Divine Wiſdom how he would alſo uſe her if he could come at her, 'tis likely worſe, or rather he would abuſe himſelf worſe with her than with thoſe; that Meat being worſt for the ſick which is beſt for them that are well.

But beſide that the Counſel of God is ſuch that he will not give the Gift of Wiſdom to the wicked Heart, there is alſo an Incongruity, if not an Impoſſibility, in the thing it ſelf. The wicked Man is altogether uncapable of it. The natural Man perceiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are Fooliſhneſs to him: neither can he know them, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned. Οὐ γὰρ ἂν πώποτε εἶδεν ὀφθαλμὸς ἥλιον ἡλιοειδὴς μὴ γεγενημένος, The Sun cannot be ſeen by the Eye, unleſs the Eye receive the likeneſs of the Sun, as Plotinus ſpeaks. Wherefore we do very fooliſhly in that we beſtow ſo much time in the Exerciſe of our κεντήριον, and ſo little in the preparing and fitting of it, that afterward the Uſe of it may be with good effect. If the Eyes be weak, muddy and dim, even almoſt to Blindneſs, we are not ſo fooliſh as to think to perfect our ſight by looking long, or often, or on many Objects; this would make our Sight rather worſe; but the Diſeaſe of the Eye is firſt to be taken away, and then with eaſe and in a moment we may ſee more than before we could in many Years by weariſom poaring with our ſhort Sight; or rather (which is more to the purpoſe) we ſhould be able to diſcern ſuch things as in our former Condition we ſhould never have been able at all to diſcern.

So the Soul of Man, in its unrighteous and polluted Condition, does very unadviſedly with ſo much Curioſity and anxious Labour to endeavour the Diſcoveries of Divine Truths; for there is as yet Læſum organum, and ſhe ought to commit her ſelf firſt to the Skill of a faithful Phyſician, to Chriſt, who is the Healer of the Souls of Men as well as he was of their Bodies, and ſo to be re-eſtated again into that State of Health and Soundneſs, (and Righteouſneſs is this Soundneſs of Soul) and then to uſe her Faculty when it is able to receive that whereby the Object is diſcovered. In lumine tuo videbimus lucem, In thy Light we ſhall ſee Light. But if the Eye receive no Light, it diſcovers no Object: So if the Soul receive no Impreſs from God, it diſcovers nothing of God. For it is moſt certainly true, That Like is known by Like; and therefore unleſs the Image of God be in us, which is Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs, we know nothing of the Nature of God, and ſo conſequently can conclude nothing concerning him to any purpoſe. For we have no meaſure to apply to him, becauſe we are not poſſeſſed of any thing homogeneal or of a like Nature with him, and this only can be a meaſure; for Πᾶν τὸ μέτρον συγγενὲς, as the Philoſopher ſpeaks. But when we are arrived to that Righteouſneſs or Rectitude of Spirit or Uprightneſs of Mind, by this, as by the Geometrical Quadrate, we alſo comprehend with all Saints what is that Spiritual Breadth and Length and Depth and Height, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks. What the Rectitude of an Angle does in Mathematical Meaſurings, the ſame will this Uprightneſs of Spirit do in Theological Concluſions.

3. And not to make this Loſs of Wiſdom a jot leſs than it is, I further add, That Unrighteouſneſs is encumbred with many Diſtempers and Impediments whereby even Natural Knowledge, as well as Divine Wiſdom, is much hindred in a Man. Such are Anger, Impatience, Self-admiration or Self-conceitedneſs, Admiration of Perſons, or a puſillanimous Over-eſtimation of them; Deſire of Victory more than of Truth; Too cloſe Attention to the things of the World, as Riches, Power and Dignities; Immerſion of the Mind into the Body, and the ſlaking of that Noble and Divine Fire of the Soul by Intemperance and Luxury, with ſuch like. All which certainly are very great Enemies to all manner of Knowledge, as well Natural as Divine. And as for Anger, which appears in Diſputes, that it blinds the Judgment, is an acknowledged Truth, as thoſe Proverbial Sayings witneſs, Impedit ira animum, &c. and Ira furor brevis; and Madneſs

Madneſs and Wiſdom do not conſiſt together. This Paſſion placed upon religious Objects is called Zeal, and the Apoſtle, that there may be no Miſtake, calls it Ζῆλον πικρὸν, bitter Zeal. But this inordinate Anger, be it in things Humane or Religious, it is really a Whirlwind in our Soul, and carries up with it Dirt and Straws and Duſt and all into the Underſtanding, and does always, more or leſs, blind the Judgment. And how great an Enemy Impatience is to that choice Piece of Natural Knowledge which lies in Mathematicks, is evident from hence, That thoſe Sciences either find or make the Studiers of them of calm and quiet Spirits, as Petiſcus truly obſerves. But whether the Admiration of our ſelves, or of other Perſons, be more miſchievous to the Truth, is not eaſie to define. For though we be more prone to admire our ſelves, yet we may with leſs checking admire another; it looking ſomething like Friendſhip or Modeſty: though commonly, if not always, we have ſome lurking Intereſt involved in the ſame, and ſo admire our ſelves in another with leſs Envy and Suſpectedneſs. Wherefore the next way not baſely to admire another is not conceitedly to admire ones ſelf, or more favourably to look on a Man's own Conceits than on a Strangers. For it will be very hard for one whom Self-Love does not impoſe upon, to be impoſed upon by any other Perſon, whom he cannot love better than himſelf.

And as for Deſire of Victory, the Senſe of that Folly is, That a Man had rather ſeem wiſe, than be ſo, or have the Glory and Fame than the Poſſeſſion of Wiſdom. And he that is thus affected, muſt of neceſſity follow ſuch things as are moſt obvious, plauſible, and popular; and ſo become a Fool amongſt wiſe Men as well as ſeem a wiſe Man amongſt Fools.

And as for cloſe Attention to the World, that Man ought to hold there be more Souls than One in a Man's Body, that will hold that ambitious and covetous Men have any Leiſure to be much ſeen either in Divine or Natural things. For their Plottings after Wealth and Honour, and the putting of their Plots in Execution, will take up the Animadverſion of the Soul ſo much, that one Animadverſive will not ſuffice for both theſe Provinces. So that it is poſſible that Men that have not addicted themſelves to any ſuch Projects, but have been ever imployed in the ſingle Search after Wiſdom, may underſtand more in Divinity and Nature than they who by long Diligence and Induſtry have at laſt ſcrambled up to the Top of Honour and Riches; a Poſition never allowed of either by the Jewiſh Prelates of old, or the preſent Cardinals. Which has made the one bold Perſecutors of Chriſt, the other of the chief Chriſtian Philoſophers. As is manifeſt in the Story of Galileo.

Laſtly, Immerſion of the Mind into the Body, Senſuality and Intemperance, that theſe be main Impediments to Knowledge, is moſt plain. For ſeeing that the Soul in this State does depend on the Brain for Fancy and Memory (without which there can be no Underſtanding) as well as on the Eye and Ear for Seeing and Hearing; it will follow that the Brain being altered and diſtempered by frequent Exceſs, the Faculty of Underſtanding will alſo go to wrack. For if the very Clime or Temper of the Air, wherein Men are bred and born, does avail ſo much for Wit or Dulneſs, as has been always acknowledged that it does, whence is that Bye-Word of a Bœotian Wit; certainly diſtemper in Diet will as much, if not much more. And it is known by too frequent and woful Experience, how many Men of good natural Parts have either buried them in Gluttony, or drowned them in Drunkenneſs, or conſumed them by Luſt. This Ttuth indeed is more eaſie to be underſtood than worthily to be deplored.

4. I have now ſufficiently proved, That we are aſſuredly cheated of true Wiſdom and a ſound Mind by that miſchievous Conceit, That a Man may be righteous, though he be not righteous as Chriſt was righteous, that is, really righteous.

And that we are alſo cheated of all noble and profitable Actions is as plain. For from whence ſhould they ariſe, but from theſe two Fountains, Righteouſneſs and Wiſdom? And the former is here ſuppoſed to be wanting, from whence has been clearly proved the Want alſo of the other. Wherefore the Good and Happineſs of Mankind does here moſt miſerably go to wrack.

5. And therefore thirdly, There is no Ground of deſerved Reputation amongſt Men. But their Mouths will be cloſed in Silence, if not opened in Reproach. For the unrighteous Nature will work in thoſe that be really unrighteous; and the Actions of Unrighteouſneſs, in thoſe that will however be reckoned in the Number of the Righteous for ſome other Cauſe than for being ſo indeed, will be more laviſhly ſpoken againſt for their numbring of themſelves amongſt thoſe that are godly. For the Miſcarriages of those that make no Shew of Religion, nor pretend to Holiness, are noted only by them that are holy, and they only take Offence at it; but when they that are reckoned amongst the Religious do transgress, even the Wicked themselves, that are willing to wink at one another, will take great Offence at these, and talk very loud against them. For their wicked Acts breaking through that external covering and outside of Religion, they are deservedly laught at; as the Ass by the Beasts of the Forrest, when his unsutable Ears appeared through the Lion's Skin, and his rude Braying betrayed his Nature.

carriages

6. This imaginary Righteousness does rob us also of Tranquillity and Peace of Mind. For he that acts unrighteously, is in actual Rebellion against right Reason and the Spirit of God; and he that is only imaginarily righteous, will not fail to act unrighteously; for real Unrighteousness will have its real Effects, as well as poisonous Plants their Fruit, and Serpents their Spawn. Wherefore he that has no more than imaginary Righteousness, carries a Kingdom of Rebellion in himself; and unless he be given up to a reprobate Sense, the Peace and Tranquillity of his Mind cannot but be shaken. For verily the rational Soul of Man is not so utterly enstranged from all Vertue and Goodness, nay indeed there is that Congruity and Connaturality betwixt them, that it will be a hard Task utterly to break off that ancient League. For Vertue is natural to the Soul, Vice and Immorality extraneous and adventitious; else why do they call the Cleansing of the Soul from Vice, the Purging of her? For Purgation is ἀφαίρεσις ἀλλοτείε παντὸς, as the Platonists well define it, the taking away of what is unnatural and improper. Wherefore seeing that Vertue is natural to the Soul, it is reasonable to conceive it is better rooted than to be expunged quite of a sudden by any one Fancy or Opinion, and that the Sense thereof will not easily be washed out. And therefore it remaining there, and yet a Man acting according to some unnatural or irrational Conceit that he has taken up he knows not how unawares, he acting, I say, against this noble and innate Sense of the Soul, he must needs be wounded and disquieted.

7. Divine Joy and Triumph of the Soul is taken away. For what is Joy and Triumph but the more fully and easie acting of any Nature according to its own Principle? As the Flame when it has broke through the Smoke and raw Smotherings of the Fewel into more free Activity and more uncurb'd Vibrations of its own Splendour and Light. And verily the Soul has found its own Freedom and Force and easie Activity and natural Complacency in the Spirit of Righteousness, when once it has from many Incumbrances of the Flesh and of the World broke out into that Divine Flame, and so felt what is most perfective of her self and of her own Happiness, and what suits her better than any thing that ever she had a Sense of before. Which is a Sign again that this is most natural to the Soul, her Sense being most satisfied therewith. And in the high Enjoyment of so enravishing a Good, what can she do less than breath out her Pleasure in such like Ejaculations as these, Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say, rejoice; and with the Psalmist, Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous, for it becometh the Just to be thankful?

Prov. 3. 8. 8. That Health and Safety is taken away by this substituting of Imagination for real Righteousness, is plain. For if the keeping of the Law is Health to the Navel and Marrow to the Bones, as the Wise-Man speaks, What must Unrighteousness be but a Canker in the Flesh and Rottenness to the Bones? And if that of the 1 Pet 3. 13. Apostle be true, Who is he that will harm you, if you be Followers of that which is good? then, What Harm may you not fall into, if you adhere to what is Evil?

9. As we are deprived of Health and Safety here, so also shall we be defrauded of our Eternal Happiness hereafter by this Imposture wherewith we are imposed upon by our own selves. For to say nothing by way of Argument from the Reason of the thing, how incompetible and incongruous Heaven is to an unrighteous Soul, the Testimony of Scripture is plain in this Matter; For no unclean thing may enter into the Holy City. And 1 Cor. 6. 9. Know ye not that the Unrighteous shall not inherit the Kingdom of God? Be not deceived, neither Fornicators, nor Idolaters, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abusers of themselves with Mankind, nor Thieves, nor Covetous, nor Drunkards, nor Revilers, nor Extortioners, shall inherit the Kingdom of God. And Heb. 12. 14. Follow Peace with all Men, and Holiness, without Which no Man shall see the Lord. And thus we see that all the Happiness of Man and his real Good is utterly subverted and destroyed by this mischievous Imagination of being righteous otherwise than by true and living Righteousness.

10. And its is plain that this Imposture will rob God of his Glory, as well as defeat Man of his Happiness. For whether we understand by the Glory of God the Image of God

God communicable to Men; as the Image, that is, the Light of the Sun, is the Glory of the Sun: or, whether we understand the Acknowledgment of that Excellency and Perfection that is in God, first deeply conceived in our Hearts, and then fully and freely professed by our Mouths: both these are assuredly taken away by this false Conceit. And of the former there is no doubt, being that the Spirit of Righteousness is that very Glory of God or Image of Christ. Wherefore whatever does intercept this, does really eclipse the Glory of God. And it is as true also of the other. For seeing that the most rich and precious Excellencies of the Divine Nature, cannot be discovered by the Soul as they ought to be, but by becoming Divine, εἰ γένοιο τοῦτο, καὶ ἴδοις αὐτό, If thou beest it, thou seest it, as Plotinus speaks; it must needs be that they cannot be worthily admired and extolled by any Soul but such as is Divine, that is, such a Soul as God has poured the Spirit of Righteousness and true Holiness on, without which it is impossible to see God.

To all which Particulars that concern every private Man you may add that great Sum of an incomputable Damage that respects the Publick. For what Peace or Faithfulness can there be amongst Men where the professed Mystery of their Religion is the Explosion of real Righteousness? Or what can possibly take place in stead thereof but Fraud and Falshood, foul Lusts, phrantick Factions, rude Tumults, and bloody Rebellions? To which you may cast in the Loss of our very Hopes that the World should ever grow better, or that the holy Promises of God should take effect. For there is not a more cruel or butcherly Weapon for slaying of the Witnesses, nor a more impregnable Fort against the approaching Kingdom of Christ, and that millennial Happiness which many good and faithful Christians expect, than this Hell-hatch'd Doctrine of Antinomianism.

CHAP. XII.

1. Of the Attending to the Light within us, of which some Spiritualists so much boast. 2. That they must mean the Light of Reason and Conscience thereby, if they be not Fanaticks, Mad-men, or Cheats. And that this Conscience necessarily takes Information from without. 3. And particularly from the Holy Scriptures. 4. That these Spiritualists acknowledge the Fondness of their Opinion by their contrary Practice. 5. An Appeal to the Light within them, if the Christian Religion according to the literal Sense be not true. 6. That the Operation of the Divine Spirit is not absolute, but restrained to certain Laws and Conditions, as it is in the Spirit of Nature. 7. The fourth Gospel-power, The Example of Christ. 8. His Purpose of vindicating the Example of Christ from Aspersions, with the Reasons thereof.

1. WE have now gone through the three first Powers of the Gospel; of which three the last, namely, The Promise of the Spirit, may seem so sufficient of it self to some, without any thing further, and I am sure does so to others, that professedly they take up here, and exclude, or at least neglect, all that advantage that accrues from the History of Christ, and hereby do antiquate the Christian Religion. These are those great Spiritualists that talk so much of The Light within them, and the Power within them; and boast that they want nothing without to be their Guide and Support, but that they can go of themselves without any external Help. For keeping to the Light within them, the Power of God and the Spirit will assist them, and will lead them into all Truth. And truly I cannot but say Amen to what they declare. For I know assuredly that it is most true, if they would leave off their canting Language, and say in down-right Terms, That keeping sincerely to the Dictates of Reason and Conscience, and the perpetually denying themselves in such things as they know or suspect to be evil, with devout Addresses to the Throne of Grace for the Assistance and Illumination of the holy Spirit, to discover and overcome all Error, Falseness, Pride, and Hypocrisie that may lurk in their Hearts; I say, I am well assured that this Dispensation, faithfully kept to, will in due time lead unto all saving Truth; and that such a one at the last cannot fail to become a Christian in the soundest and the fullest Sense, such as firmly adhered to Christ in the first and most unspotted Ages of the Church. But if they will call any hot, wild Imagination, or forcible and unaccountable Suggestion, the

Light

Light within them, and follow that; this is not to keep to Reaſon and Conſcience, but to be delivered up to a reprobate Senſe, and to expoſe a Man's ſelf to all the Temptations that either the Devil or a Man's own Luſt or a ſordid Melancholy can entangle him in.

2. Wherefore by the Light within them they muſt underſtand an accountable and rational Conſcience within them, unleſs they be perfect Fanaticks or Mad-men, or, what is worſe, mere Impoſtors and Cheats, who would pretend to a Conſcience, but yet irrational and unaccountable to any Law, and hereby have the Liberty of doing what they pleaſe, being given up at length to nothing but Fury and Luſt.

And then laſtly, This Conſcience within them is not a thing ſo abſolutely within them, that it can take no Information from what is without. For it is manifeſt that this Lamp of God that burneth in us, is fed and nouriſhed from external Objects.

Rom. 1. 19, 20. For the inviſible things of him from the Creation of the World are clearly ſeen, being underſtood by things that are made; for by theſe from without are we advertiſed of his Eternal Power and Godhead. And as we are thus taught by the outward Book of Nature concerning the Exiſtence of God and his general Providence in the World as to the Neceſſities of Life both of Men and Beaſts; ſo may we alſo by external Writings or Records be more fully informed of a more ſpecial Providence of his to the Sons of Men, concerning the State in the other World, and of that Eternal Life manifeſted by Chriſt. But I grant that it is ſtill this Light within us, that judges and concludes after the Peruſal of either the Volumes of Nature or of Divine Revelation.

3. But as he that gives his Mind to Mathematicks, Architecture, Husbandry, Gardening, and the like, if he out of a fooliſh Conceit of Light and Reaſon being only within one, and not without, (as certainly neither Ink nor Paper, nor both put together, are any more Partakers of the Light of Reaſon than of Senſe and Life) would make no Uſe of the Writings of Euclid, ſuppoſe for Mathematicks, nor any other Author that has writ of ſuch Matters, and ſo of the reſt of the Faculties I named, nor converſe with any Man by Word of Mouth, nor caſt his Eyes upon what they have done, but only think with himſelf and ſit ſtill by the Light of his own Lamp within doors; will be a very ſorry Mathematician, Architect, Husbandman or Gardener: So certainly for Moral and Divine Truth, he that will be ſo taught by himſelf, that he will not uſe outward Advantages, ſuch as the Holy Scriptures eſpecially afford, will be found at laſt to have been the Scholar of a very fooliſh and imperfect Maſter.

4. Beſides that, theſe Men contradict themſelves in their own Practices. For they vilifie that by which they have been taught, and retain the very Phraſes of what they have learned out of Scripture, and know not how to ſpeak without Scripture-Terms, nor can make any Show without Scriptural Alluſions; and that grand Document of keeping to the Light within us they borrowed out of St. John's Goſpel: and yet they are ſo phrantick and peeviſh that they would fling away the Staff without which they are not able to make one Step in Religion. Moreover if this Light within us is ſo preciſely within us, that it wants no Information from without us, Why do they themſelves ſcribble ſuch abundance of Pamphlets, make Catechiſms, ſet out Prophecies? Why do they exhort, rebuke, nay reproach and rail againſt Men to convert them, if what is without cannot reach that which is within? Or, Why do they meet together to hear ſome one of their Aſſembly (after he has fallen down as in a Trance, and got up again) dictate Oracles out of his diſturbed Breaſt? For his Words which they hear are without, and beat upon the Ear; they are not the Light within. Wherefore it is plain, that the Light within may be informed by ſomething which is without, whether by Voice or Writings: And if ſo, there is an Obligation upon this Light within to be ſo conſiderate, as to ſeek the moſt punctual Information it can from what is moſt likely to inform it from without.

5. And therefore they are with all Diligence to examine the moſt venerable Records of Religion, and eſpecially of that Religion under which they were not only born, but which is abſolutely of it ſelf the moſt renowned Religion that ever was in the World. Which therefore none but ſuch as are utterly averſe from all Religion, as being wholly given up to Luſt and Prophaneneſs, cannot without Examination dare to relinquiſh; and if they will examine it, I mean the Chriſtian Religion, (as it refers to the Perſon of Chriſt, that died betwixt two Thieves at Jeruſalem, but roſe again the third Day, that aſcended viſibly into Heaven, and ſhall again return in a viſible manner to judge the Quick and the Dead) I appeal to this Light within them, to their Reaſon and Conſcience, and that of the moſt cunning Impoſtors amongſt them all; or of whoever will join with them, if the Evidence for this Religion from Prophecy, Hiſtory, and from the Nature of the Religion it ſelf, is not ſuch, as that nothing but Ignorance of the true meaning thereof, and of its right Deſign can hinder it from being acknowledged as a moſt certain Truth by any, but thoſe that are afraid that any Religion that leads to Holineſs, or promiſes any thing after this Life, ſhould be found true.

dence

6. As for that Objection taken from the mighty Power of the Spirit of God, as if that were ſo ſufficient of it ſelf, that Belief therein and Aſſiſtance therefrom would anticipate the Mention and Uſe of any other Power whatſoever that may ſeem to confer to the End of the Goſpel, the Sanctification of our Souls; I anſwer to this, That they that do after this manner argue, do erre not knowing the Scriptures. For this Power of the Spirit communicable to Believers, is not an abſolute and omnipotent Power, not to be reſiſted, not to be fruſtrated, if there be not due Means and wiſe Accommodations concurring with its Workings or Attempts to work. But I may in ſome manner illuſtrate the Condition thereof from what is obſervable in the Spirit of Nature, the Principle of all natural Generations, Growths and Perfections; in which there is a kind of Hypothetical Omnipotency as to the Work of Nature; that is, That this Spirit will not fail to aſſiſt and compleat, provided that ſuch and ſuch Circumſtances in Corporeal Agents be not wanting. So it is alſo in this Divine Spirit, or the Holy Ghoſt, as it is communicable to us; it will certainly aſſiſt and finiſh its Work, if there be no Impediment on our ſide, which it behoves us to remove out of the way, nor any thing wanting which we can apply our ſelves to for the Advance of our Faith and perfecting of the holy Life; ſuch as Meditating on the Scriptures, Conferring with Holy Men, experienced Chriſtians, and uſing with Devotion and Reverence all the Ordinances of Chriſt. For though this Aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit be unſpeakably powerful to the ſincere and diligent; yet in the negligent and perverſe, as I ſaid, his Attempts are fruſtrated. And therefore Stephen expoſtulates with the Jews in this Senſe, Ye ſtiff-necked and uncircumciſed in Heart and Ears, ye do always reſiſt the Holy Ghoſt: And elſewhere we are exhorted *not to *grieve the Spirit, nor quench the Spirit. Which Expreſſions do plainly demonſtrate that the Communication of the Spirit is not abſolute and omnipotent, but received according to certain Laws and Ways of God's own appointing; who of his infinite Wiſdom has traced out ſuch a Method in Chriſtian Religion as is moſt accommodate to gain Souls to himſelf; of which we have heard part already, and ſhall now proceed to the four laſt Powers of the Goſpel, which are mainly inſtrumental to the Work of the Spirit upon the Hearts of all true Believers.

Acts 7. 51.

* Epheſ. 4. 30.
* Theſ. 5. 19.

7. And the firſt of theſe is the Example of our ever-bleſſed Saviour, who has given us no other Precepts than what himſelf was the exacteſt Pattern of; and himſelf ſuch a Pattern of Life, that is, of Faith in God, of Humility, Love and Purity, that we cannot doubt in following his Footſteps that we are in a wrong way, he being by Voices from Heaven and by his Miracles upon Earth proved and declared to be the only-begotten Son of God. Wherefore the nearer we keep to his Path, the ſurer we are that we walk upon ſound Ground. Beſides that he is our Lord and Sovereign, and therefore natural Ingenuity will urge us forward to compoſe our Lives ſo as is moſt agreeable to his Faſhion. And he does expreſly require this as a Teſtimony of our Love and Loyalty to him; If you love me, keep my Commandments: Of which a principal one is, That as I have loved you, ye love alſo one another. So he gives his Diſciples an Example of being humble one to another, in that he waſhed their Feet. If then, your Lord and Maſter, have waſhed your Feet, ye ought alſo to waſh one anothers Feet. For I have given you an Example, that ye ſhould do as I have done to you, John 13. And Matth. 11. Take my Yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye ſhall find reſt unto your Souls.

John 14. 15.

John 13. 34.

8. But I need not inſiſt much upon this Subject, I having amply enough ſhewn in the ſecond Part of my Diſcourſe, how the whole Hiſtory of Chriſt, all his Actions and Deportments of himſelf, tend to the moſt effectual recommending of the Divine Life unto us. We ſhall only take the opportunity here to wipe off ſuch Stains as the foul and unſound Breath of ſome blaſphemous Mouths have of old or of late endeavoured to ſtain this bright Mirrour of Divine Perfection withal. Which will be not only a piece of indiſpenſable Duty and Loyalty to the Perſon of our Saviour, but alſo the better Encouragement to his ſincere Followers; eſpecially when I have added the Parallel of ſuch Imputations and Accuſations againſt them as bear very cloſe Analogy with thoſe of our Saviour's himſelf. For he has foretold of old what would come of it, That the Diſciple ſhould not be above his Maſter, nor the Servant above his Lord. And if they have called the Master of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of the houshold? But how unjust the Calumnies are that were brought either against our Saviour himself, or against his Followers, we shall now see.

CHAP. XIII.

1. That Christ was no Blasphemer in declaring himself to be the Son of God. 2. Nor Conjurer in casting out Devils. 3. That he was unjustly accused of Profaneness. 4. That there was nothing detestable in his Neutrality toward Political Factions. 5. Nor any Injustice nor Partiality found in him. 6. Nor could his sharp Rebukes of the Pharisees be rightly termed Railing. 7. Nor his whipping the Buyers and Sellers out of the Temple tumultuary Zeal. 8. Nor his crying out so dreadfully in his Passion be imputed to Impatience or Despair. 9. The Suspicion of Distractedness and Madness cleared. 10. His Vindication from their Aspersions of Looseness and Prodigality. 11. The crooked and perverse Nature of the Pharisees noted; with our Saviour's own Apology for his frequenting all Companies. 12. That Christ was no Self-seeker in undergoing the Death of the Cross for that Joy that was set before him.

1. THE former Part of which Task, though it may seem needless, if not ridiculous, amongst Christians, who cannot entertain any evil Thoughts of that Person whom they deservedly worship; yet because all that live in Christian Commonwealths are not cordially such in any manner at all; for the convincing of them, if it were possible, of the Excellency of Christ, or at least for the better stopping of vain Mouths from rash and unskilful Censures, I hold it not improper to recite to you a Charge or Bill of Indictment exhibited against that innocent and immaculate Lamb Christ Jesus, by malicious and ignorant Men; to the intent that he whom they have so unworthily charged, may be as honourably dismissed and acquitted, That his Righteousness may be brought forth as the Morning, and his Judgment as the Noon-day. Psal. 37. 6.

And here that they may fly high enough at first, and strike deep enough even to a deserved taking away of Life, Blasphemy must stand in the Front, to give Countenance and Strength to the rest of their following Accusations.

2. Then Conjuring and dealing with the Devil.
3. Profanation of the Sabbath.
4. Neutrality, or cold Indifferency in publick Controversies.
5. Injustice.
6. Railings.
7. Tumultuary and injurious Zeal.
8. Impatience and Despair.
9. Phrensy or Madness.
10. Debauchery and Looseness of Life.
11. Lavishment and Prodigality.
12. And lastly, Ambition and Self-interest.

These are the several Dung-hills from whence wicked and perverse Men would industriously dig out Dirt to cast in the Face of him who was the perfect Pattern of Divine Purity and Righteousness. But let them ply themselves as fast as they can in these several foul Pits, it will not be hard to find wherewith to wipe it off as fast as their impious Diligence shall be able to cast it on.

And first let us consider what Work they make in the first place as concerning Blasphemy. John 10. For declaring God his Father, and that He and his Father was one, he is there furiously accused of Blasphemy, and ready to be stoned. And John 8. They are also there ready to stone him for saying He was before Abraham. And Matth. 9. 3. He is there also accused of Blasphemy for saying, Son, be of good cheer, thy Sins, are forgiven thee.

And here in this first Accusation de facto constat; Christ confesses, That he is one with God, That he is the Son of God, and that he has Power to forgive Sins, That he was before Abraham: but it is utterly denied, that in any of all this Christ did blasspheme.

For

For firſt, conſider the very Words of Chriſt, I and my Father are one. How unreaſonably and inconſequently did theſe dull and peeviſh Perverters of the Words of him whom they ſo entirely hated for his good Life and Doctrine, deduce from that Saying, I and my Father are one, that he, being a Man, made himſelf God? For it is as childiſhly and ineptly inferred from thence by them, That he made himſelf God; as if they ſhould conclude, That the Body is the very Soul, becauſe the Body and the Soul are one, that is, one Man. And it is no more Falſhood, much leſs Blaſphemy, for the Humanity of Chriſt (who was ſo really and lively actuated, informed, and united with God, as the Body is with the Soul) to pronounce himſelf as if he were very God, than it is for the Tongue to ſay, I underſtand, I believe, I perceive, when neither the Body nor it believes, perceives, or underſtands any thing, but only the Soul with which it is ſo intimately united, and of which that which the Tongue ſpeaks in ſuch Caſes is to be underſtood.

And if this be duely conſidered and taken in, Chriſt's ſaying alſo, That he was before Abraham, will not prove any Blaſphemy. For Chriſt by reaſon of his ſo near Union and eſſential Conjunction with God, which Athanaſius well reſembles to that of the Body and Soul, may as properly and naturally profeſs himſelf to be before Abraham, yea, to have been before the World was made, as the Tongue of Man may utter, I ſhall ſurvive after the Death of this my Body; in which there is no ill Senſe nor Incongruity in the Judgment of moſt ſober Men. But beſides this, that which the blind Jews underſtood not, being hoodwinked with the thickneſs of their own particular Religion and unregenerate Nature, ſometimes Chriſt ſpeaks of himſelf under the Notion of a Divine Life and Unction communicable to the Sons of Men in all Ages and Places. Wherefore the Senſe is this, That whereas the Jews Religion and Topical and Temporary Holineſs began but as high as from Abraham; that of Chriſt's, which he exhibited in that fulneſs to the World, was truly Univerſal both for Time as well as Place; a Light that enlighteneth every Man that cometh into the World; the Eternal Wiſdom of God, that in all Ages makes thoſe that receive it Friends of God and Prophets, as the Wiſe Man ſpeaks. Wiſd. 7. 27.

And it is no wonder that Divine Men according to their higher or more intimate Union with the Divinity loſe their Senſe and Remembrance of their Particularities, and pronounce of themſelves rather according to the things they are ſo livingly united with, than according to their own vaniſhing circumſcribed corporeal Perſons.

And now it being no Blaſphemy, as is plain, to admit that one may be thus lively actuated by and united to God, in whom, if any where, the Mind of God muſt dwell; who can more reaſonably remit Sins than ſuch an one and ſo manifeſt a Prophet as our Saviour declared himſelf by his Signs and Miracles done among the People? But our Saviour has ſo excellently anſwered for himſelf, and ſo appoſitely, as to the Condition of his Oppoſers, that when I have rehearſed it, this firſt Accuſation will be more than ſatisfied. Is it not written in your Law, I ſaid, Ye are Gods? If he called them Gods unto whom the Word of God came, and the Scripture cannot be broken; Say you of him whom the Father has ſanctified, and ſent into the World, Thou blaſphemeſt; becauſe I ſaid, I am the Son of God? If I do not the Works of my Father, believe me not. But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the Works; that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me and I in him. And ſurely at the very firſt ſight this is a fair and honourable Plea to any unprejudiced Judge, that our Saviour was ſo far from a Blaſphemer, that for his Life he was a Saint, or rather the Pattern and Original of all Saintſhip, for his Miracles the Power of God, and for his Nature and Relation Filius Dei, the Son of God, in a very ſafe Scriptural and Judaical Senſe; to trouble their low Apprehenſions with no higher nor harder Conceptions. Which Conceptions are notwithſtanding not ſo hard as true: and the Writings of the Apoſtles and the Evangeliſts being Judge (to whom every Chriſtian is bound to appeal) I conceive it will eaſily appear to indifferent Men, That the Godhead belongs to Chriſt really and eſſentially, not titularly, being as neceſſarily included in the formalis ratio of his Nature, as three Angles in the Notion of a Triangle. And in my own Judgment, I cannot acquit thoſe Men who are ſo buſie againſt the Divinity of Chriſt (whenas yet they would be called and eſteemed Chriſtians) from being guilty not only of high Indiſcretion and Temerity, but of a very grand Error in Chriſtianity. Joh. 10. 34, 35.

But the Jews, to whom this great Myſtery of the Coalition of God and Man into one Perſon, was not then revealed, did very perverſly to interpret Chriſt's Words into ſuch a Senſe as they might with Confidence call Blaſphemy; whenas they might have interpreted them according to what was more compliable with the Tenour of their own Faith. In this, I say, was their Malice very remarkable, that they would not afford his saying an ordinary benign Interpretation, whose Works and Actions were so miraculous and divine, and his Life so full of Goodness and Innocency.

2. But such was the Perverseness of this stupid Nation, that even those things that should have wrought an Acknowledgment of their Messias, made them more obstinate; and they must be less his Friend, because he was a Foe to the Devil, and deem him a Conspirator against God, when it was his business to dislodge Satan wherever he found him.

Christ in the second Accusation must by all means be represented to the World as a Conjurer, and a Dealer with the Devil, Matth. 12. 22. Where the People being much amazed at the great Miracle that Jesus did in healing the possessed that was blind and dumb, insomuch that they began to bethink themselves that this Man might very well be the Messias; the wicked and envious Pharisees most impudently calumniate him, saying, This Man doth not cast out Devils, but by Beelzebub the Prince of the Devils. But Christ's Reply to this so hainous Calumny is as solid as mild.

Every Kingdom divided against it self is brought to desolation; and every City or House divided against it self cannot stand. And if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his Kingdom stand? And if I by Beelzebub cast out Devils, by whom do your Children cast them out? Therefore they shall be your Judges. But if I cast out Devils by the Spirit of God, &c. And here he clears himself by two excellent Arguments. The first supposes the Devils to be so wise and to love themselves so well, that they knew how to conserve, and would endeavour to conserve their own Commonwealth and Power; but if they should enable Christ to cast out their Fellow-Devils, it were a plain beginning of Sedition and Dissension, and a portending of Ruin to their State. Nor could it be reasonably suspected that Christ was so deep a Complotter with the Rulers of Darkness, and that he was of so much Intimacy or Interest with them, that this was done by way of Collusion betwixt the Devils and him, that in something else he might subvert the Kingdom of God with greater Ease and Effect. For there can be nothing conceived more contrary to the Devil's Nature and Interest, than that Life which Christ both taught and practised; besides his recommending of
* Joh. 4. 23, 24. *spiritual Worship, which destroys Paganism and the Worship of Dæmons. Wherefore it was the more perversly done of the Pharisees to impute this Miracle to the Power of the Devil rather than the Spirit of God; whenas also their own Sons and Disciples were conceived by them to cast out Devils by no evil Art, but merely by the Power of God; as divers Writers testifie, that both Jews and Egyptians were known to cast out unclean Spirits by conjuring them in the Name of the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and sometimes in the Nomen τετραγράμματον, ϰ᾽ ὃ ὀνόματ☉ τὸ ὄντ☉ θεῦ, that is, In the Name of JEHOVA, as * Theophilus writes.

* Ad Autolycum, lib. 2.

3. The third Charge is Profaneness and Sabbath-breaking, Luke 6. where Jesus with his Disciples going through the Corn-fields, they pluck the Ears of Corn, rubbing them with their Hands, and eating them, and that on the Sabbath-day. But here Christ apologizes for them by the Example of David who ate the Shew-bread. And at the 11. Verse, the Scribes and Pharisees are filled with Madness, because he healed a Man on the Sabbath-day; insomuch that they consult to do the utmost of Despite unto him: for all one might have thought that Apologetical Reason for the Business might have prevented their Choler, or asswaged it, Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath-day or to do evil, to save Life or destroy it? But methinks there cannot be imagined any Answer so smart, and hit more home than that in the second of Mark, ver. 27. The Sabbath was made for Man, not Man for the Sabbath; therefore the Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath. Where the well-prepared Christian is taught in a short Sentence worthy to be writ in Letters of Gold, or rather in the Heart of every holy and understanding Man, not only what concerns the Sabbath, but even the whole Business of Religion, That it is rather Hominis gratiâ quam Dei; and that though God's Honour be mainly pretended in it, yet it is Man's Happiness that is really intended by it, even of God himself. Which wretched Men of ignorant and dark Minds, and deeply leavened with the sour Pharisaical Leaven, understanding not, create much Trouble to themselves and all the World besides, in their peevish and inept Prosecution of matters of Religion; they being no meet Judges of their Apprehensions or Actions, whom the Divine Freedom and Benignity has transformed into a contrary Nature to themselves.

4. Now

4. Now for Neutrality, that ſeems ſo intolerable and deteſtable to thoſe whoſe uncurbed Deſire of worldly Advantage or humorous Projects make them even hate all that may be and yet are not inſtrumental to their precipitate Deſigns; it is ſo far from being a Fault in our Saviour, that in my Opinion it was a very graceful Ornament in the Demeanour of ſo Divine and Pious a Perſonage as he was, who was ſet apart for better Purpoſes than to attend Political Squabbles and Diſſenſions, which ſeldom fail of being begun and continued from any better Principles than Envy, Ambition, and Covetouſneſs.

Our Saviour being very craftily tempted to declare himſelf to be of Judgement either for or againſt Cæſar (Mat. 22.) by this Queſtion, Is it lawful to pay Tribute to Cæſar, or no? he as warily avoids giving his Sentence, for the Juſtneſs of this or that Cauſe, as may be; returning only this well-attempered Anſwer, Give unto Cæſar the things that are Cæſar's, and unto God the things that are God's. Ita Chriſtus ſapientiſſimo reſponſo & ſeditionis motæ & violatæ Religionis calumniam in quæſtione inſidioſiſſima effugit, i. e. So Chriſt, by his moſt wiſe Anſwer to a moſt enſnaring Queſtion, eſcap'd the Calumny of being either Seditious or Irreligious, as that excellent Interpreter obſerves: and ſo he quits himſelf from appearing either Herodian, Gaulonite, or Cæſarean.

5. What Semblances they can feign of Injuſtice or Partiality, will be picked out of ſuch Paſſages as theſe; His unſeaſonable curſing the Fig-tree for not bearing Fruit, whenas the Time of the Year was not for Fruit; His blaming the Phariſees for long Prayers, when himſelf is recorded to have prayed a Night together; and laſtly, His quitting the Woman that was taken in the very Act of Adultery.

But as for the firſt; As the Fig-tree felt no Hurt, ſo no Hurt was done in withering it: But this was merely a Symbolical Paſſage, whereby the Judgment of God was prefigured againſt the unfruitful Religion of the Jews, as I have above noted. See Book 4. c. 8. ſect. 5, 6, 7.

For long Prayers; Whereas our Saviour is ſaid (Luke 6.) to have gone out into a Mountain to pray, and continued all Night in Prayer to God; the Greek has it ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ τοῦ Θεοῦ, not πρὸς Θεόν· which is more likely to ſignifie in proſeucha Dei, or Divine Oratory, or Place of Prayer to God; as is plain from that of the Satyriſt, Ede ubi conſiſtas, in qua te quæro proſeucha.

However it is to be conceived our Saviour condemned rather the Hypocriſie and Affectedneſs of long Prayers than the mere Length of them; it being impoſſible for any of ſo accompliſhed a Spirit as our Saviour to blame either the Shortneſs or Length of Mens Devotions ariſing out of a ſoberly-guided Affection, not a vain Affectation.

For the acquitting the Adultereſs, it cannot be interpreted as a Countenancing of any ſuch foul Miſcarriage, but as an Exprobration to the Jews of their own Wickedneſſes, which whenas they ought to have been conſcious to themſelves of, they ſhould not have been over-forward to do Execution upon thoſe that were but Sinners as themſelves, eſpecially that Power of Condemning and Puniſhing being then in a manner taken out of their Hands by the Romans. And here Chriſt did alſo worthily of that divine and benign Nature which dwelt in him, of which this Fruit was but as an handful to that full Harveſt the Sons of Adam afterward reaped from his Doings and Sufferings.

6. As for the Imputation of Railing; One of the worſt Speeches that ever fell from his Lips was when he called the Scribes and Phariſees Hypocrites; which, according to the Propriety of the Word, is as much as Hiſtriones or Stage-Players: and indeed the Scribes and Phariſees of old, and their Poſterity ever ſince, have ſo dreſſed up themſelves and their Religion to, that that Title might deſervedly have been entailed on them and their Seed for ever. But Chriſt elſewhere ſeems more bitter, where he ſpeaks out in plain Words, Ye are of your Father the Devil. But it was a Title that fell out ſo fittingly for them upon their vain boaſt of their Father Abraham, whoſe Sonſhip they had forfeited by being quite of a contrary Nature to him, that it had been a Piece of inexcuſable Forgetfulneſs not to have reminded them of their true Deſcent and Pedigree, he having ſo full Authority thereto. John 8.

7. That ſeeming injurious and tumultary Zeal, where he whips the Tradeſmen out of the Temple, and overthrows the Tables of the Money-changers, the very manner of the doing of it does juſtifie the Act; it being plainly miraculous, that a private Man, deſtitute both of Arms and Authority from Men, ſhould drive ſo many both from their Station and Gain. Nor would this Zeal, ſeem it never ſo tumultuous, look misbecomingly, if we did consider from whence it sprung. Our Saviour certainly conceived high Indignation and Sorrow in his Heart, while he observed that Scorn and Contempt those blind Superstitionists, the Jews, bore against the poor despised Gentiles, in thus prophaning their Place of Worship. But I may not stay here, especially having touched upon this * Objection already. I will only cursorily note this, That there was nothing could more effectually attempt to move that mild Spirit of our Saviour to Ire and Impatiency, than the scornful Pride and smooth Hypocrisie of great Pretenders to Religion.

mif-

*Book 4. c. 8. sect. 3.

8. What is alledged against him of Despair and Distrust in God, is from those last dreadful and tragical Words, Eli, Eli, lama sabacthani: which being uttered in the very Pangs of Death and insufferable Torture, if they had been more harsh and unreasonable than they seem, there had been little Reason to accuse Christ for them; Christ then, according to his humane Nature, being at the same Disadvantage that those that lye in the highest Paroxysms of Sickness, the Actions of whom are rather to be deemed Actiones Hominis than Humanæ, and so they to be acquitted of them. But those Words are so sober, that they want no such Apology: especially if it be free to interpret them according to the Latitude of the Hebrew Text, from whence they are taken. For lama will signifie how as well as why; and then it is nothing but a Speech of one bemoaning himself in the present Sense of his insupportable Desertion.

9. What others gather of Distractedness in our Saviour and broken Forgetfulness, that he should pronounce himself forsaken of him who himself was, (for he was God,) and so complain of an Impossibility; that Allegation argues more Shortness of Understanding in themselves. For the Humanity of Christ was not God; for so he had not been ἀνθρωπος God and Man, but θεος, twice God: but he being only God by Union, even that Union holding, there may be this Desertion of the Humanity. As the Sun, at Christ's Passion, tho' not disjoined from the World, yet for the time deserted the World by withdrawing its Light from it. But if this will not do, there is another way to make good this Imputation of Madness against Him who was deservedly styled the Wisdom of God. And this they will confirm even by the Verdict of his own Friends, Mark 3. 21. And when his Friends heard of it, they went out to lay Hands on him; for they said, He is beside himself. But indeed this is the Fate of all almost that are more than ordinarily wise, to be accounted little better than mad. For they having either higher or contrary Apprehensions to the vulgar, and consequently acting many times contrary to them, they can hardly escape the Suspicion of Madness; the Multitude of their Judges, even the meanest of them having not so mean a Conceit of himself, but that he deems himself even infallible in those things which he has for so long a time together held as true, without any Controul in himself or of others. And I remember a Passage somewhere in Trismegist, where the Instructer in high Mysteries, when he had enlightned his Son Tatius, forewarns him of the Reproach he would undergo from the Vulgar, that he would certainly seem to them as a Man distracted. And this also was the Condition of Democritus, whom the People out of over-much Pity and Officiousness desired Hippocrates to use his best Skill to cure, as troubled with the Phrensy: which he intending to set to the next Day, was over-night advertized by a divine Vision or Dream, that it was not Democritus that was mad, but the People. And to return again to the Text alledged, if we follow the not-unprobable Conjectures of some, the People will also be here found to be the mad-Men, and not Christ. For ἔξεστι will agree as well with ὄχλος as with Christ, and the Actions of the Multitude are more suitable with Madness than any thing recorded there of him. For the People did tumultuously flock together, and were so troublesome, it seems, that Men could not eat their Meat quietly for them: wherefore there being that Fervour and Heat in the Multitude, Christ's Friends went out κρατῆσαι αὐτὸν to take Christ by the Hand, and lead him out of the Croud or ὄχλος, the Multitude; ἔλεγον γὰρ ὅτι ἐξέστη, For it was said, the Multitude or People are mad or beside themselves. Which is a thing too often credible, whether this Text prove it or no.

10. As for the tenth and eleventh Accusations of Debauchery and Looseness of Life, Prodigality and needless Lavishments, which are a near Strain to the Height of the worst kind of Madness; they are expressly set down in Scripture, And our Saviour himself knew what a Fame went of him. Luke 7. 33, 34. John the Baptist came neither eating Bread nor drinking Wine; and ye say, He hath a Devil. The Son of Man is come Eating and Drinking; and ye say, Behold, a gluttonous Man and a Winebibber, bibber, a Friend of Publicans and Sinners, ἁμαρτωλῶν. For in the following Verſes that Woman in the City, which is ſaid to be a Sinner, which beſtowed ſo much Coſt and Affection upon our Saviour, was ſuch an one, proſtitutæ pudicitiæ mulier, as Beza interprets it: But what her Demeanour was toward our Saviour Chriſt is there ſet down, She ſtood behind him weeping, and began to waſh his Feet with Tears, and wiped them with the Hairs of her Head, and kiſſed his Feet, and anointed them with the Ointment. Which Ointment in the other Goſpel is ſaid to be a Box of Spikenard very precious. Which familiar and affectionate Officiouſneſs and ſumptuous Coſt, together with that ſiniſter Fame that Woman was noted with, could not but give much Scandal to the Phariſees there preſent. For that Diſpenſation of the Law under which they lived, making nothing perfect, but only curbing the outward Actions of Men; it might very well be, that they being conſcious to themſelves of no better Motions within than of either Bitterneſs or Luſt, how fair ſoever they carried without, could not deem Chriſt's Acceptance of ſo familiar and affectionate Service from a Woman of that Fame to proceed from any thing better than ſome looſe and vain Principle; and that therefore the Prophet was grown idly-minded, or that he was no Prophet at all. But he was both a Prophet, and conſtantly ſober-minded, and unblamable even in this Matter. For he knew that ſhe had been ſome time a Convert, as well as heretofore a Sinner, whoſe Converſion our Saviour, he having ſeveral times converſed with her, either begun or confirmed by that his Converſation. For he balk'd no Company, as a good Phyſician declines no Patient nor Diſeaſe. And certainly that great Miracle which Jeſus wrought upon her Brother (for this was Mary the Siſter of Martha and Lazarus whom Chriſt raiſed from the Dead) could not but fully ſettle her in a firm Faith and Love of God and Jeſus Chriſt whom he had ſent. Whereby her Heart at that time being full of the joyful Remembrances of the Mercy and Goodneſs of God every way exhibited to her by this Man Chriſt, (as Remiſſion of Sins, true Inſtructions in Righteouſneſs, Newneſs of Life, and the regaining of her dear Brother Lazarus from the Grave;) out of a deep Senſe of the Love of God, and thankful Regard to him through whom all that was manifeſted and made good to her, ſhe did overflow with Kindneſs and Thankfulneſs: the Expreſſions whereof moving no Senſe of Evil to our Saviour, (his ſanctified Body being as pure and immovable as conſecrated Marble, the golden Wings of the Cherubims in the Temple, or that very Alabaſter that bore in it the precious Ointment,) it had been not only Incivility but even Impiety to have given any Check or Diſcountenance to this devout Convert in this her full Carreer of ſincere Love and thankful Affection. Which certainly, whatever it ſeemed to thoſe pitiful Spectators, thoſe ſtrait-laced Phariſees, was an Odour of ſweet Savour unto God, and as holy Incenſe filled the Court of Heaven, as well as the opening of the Box of Ointment filled the Houſe with an acceptable Sent to all but Judas (whoſe Covetouſneſs made him with a handſom Pretence to the Poor, exclaim of the Act as profuſe and prodigal;) and to the aboveſaid Phariſees, who doubtleſs thought all the Perfume loſt, ſaving that Fee thereof they felt in their own Noſtrils.

11. But it is obſervable that ſuch was the perverſe and wicked Ingenie of thoſe crooked Superſtitioniſts, that true Goodneſs in no kind of Dreſs would pleaſe them. In John the Baptiſt there was that eminent Severity and Auſterity of Life, accompanying an unreprovable Integrity and Purity of Heart, that he might, one would think, have commanded them to that which was good; but he muſt have a melancholy Devil in him. Our Saviour came in a more pleaſant and careleſs Garb, laying aſide that awful and rough Severity that was in the other, intermingling himſelf with all Companies, taking not at all upon him, being as other Men are in every thing, Sin only excepted; (which manner of Life as it is of more Perfection than the other, as ſuppoſing more Benignity of Nature, and more firm Radication in Goodneſs, ſo fewer Men are capable of it, much leſs unſteddy and unreſolved Youth, who are to fly from ſuſpected Company as from the devouring Plague;) yet, I ſay, theſe wretched Phariſees, as true Deteſters and ſworn Enemies of real Holineſs and Godlineſs, whatever they pretend in the Shadow thereof, cannot give our Saviour a good Word, but interpret his good-Nature Good-fellowſhip, or debauched Company-keeping, and his ſerviceable intermingling himſelf with all ſorts of Men (Publicans and Sinners not excepted) for their Good, Friendſhip and Countenance to what is Evil. But our Saviour Chriſt has ſufficiently apologized for himſelf in this matter in theſe few Words; The Whole have no need of the Phyſician, but thoſe that are Sick. And in another Similitude he fitly repreſents their croſs Nature by what is ſaid of thoſe in the Song

Song of the Little Children sung in the Market-Place; We have piped to you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, and ye have not lamented: that is, These inept and unwieldy-spirited Fellows, the Pharisees, could not be moved to what was truly Good, neither by the sad and austere Deportment of John, nor by the more free and unaffected Carriage of our Saviour.

12. And therefore let us leave them at last as remediless, and examine the last Allegation, which is taken out of one of his own Followers and Friends, Heb. 12. v. 2. Looking unto Jesus the Author and Finisher of our Faith; who for the Joy set before him, endured the Cross, despising the Shame, and is set down at the Right-hand of the Throne of God. Here Cavillers will insinuate to the Derogation of that perfect Righteousness in Christ, that he was a Self-Seeker in all that Toil and Sorrow he underwent for the Sons of Men, nay an ambitious Kingdom-seeker, (For that Joy which sustained him was this Throne mentioned in this Text; as I confess cannot be denied by any:) and that therefore all these Acts and Sufferings of our Saviour, that seemed so Heroical, do proceed but from a Mercenary Principle. But this Allegation is very easily answered. For whether we understand by this Throne or Kingdom a more undisturbed Enjoyment of the Divinity and fuller Possession of God, which speaks a more powerful and high Exaltation of the Humane Nature of Christ, and his more free Fruition of the Divine; and this respects our Saviour Christ's own Good; or whether we understand that Power he should be endued with, whereby he led Captivity captive, and procured Gifts for Men, trampling down the Powers of Hell and Darkness for the Rescue of the Sons of Adam from their long Bondage; This Throne, This Kingdom, This Power aimed at, implied in our Saviour neither Ambition nor Mercenariness. For the Desire of a fuller Fruition of God was not Ambition, but Divine Love; which he not affecting in that luciferian way, Similis ero Altissimo, but through an humble Enravishment of Spirit in the Remembrance of that Divine Beauty, was so far from committing any Sin, that he did that which is Weakness or Sin not to commit. And as Jacob could not properly be said to be either a Self-Seeker or Mercenary in respect of Rachel for whom he served so many Years, and whom he so entirely loved, but in respect of Laban and his Sheep-keeping he might be said to be Mercenary, and a Self-Seeker; (for he served him for Rachel's sake:) so Christ being enamoured of the Divine Nature, for Love whereof he went through so much Drudgery and Misery upon Earth, could not in respect of that glorious and Soul-ravishing Beauty which he sought to enjoy, be said to be either Self-seeking or Mercenary; when it was the very Presence of God that he was so taken with, as a Friend is with the lovely Person of his Friend.

But now for that Power he foresaw he should be invested withal, of leading Captivity captive, and procuring Gifts for Men; being that it was for the Universal Good of others, Why might he not please and solace himself in it in the midst of his many tedious Encumbrances, without the least Suspicion of Ambition or Blame?

Wherefore maugre all that has been hitherto objected or can be devised against that accomplished Pattern of all Righteousness, that immaculare Lamb Christ Jesus, we still conclude with that Song of Praise sung in the Apocalypse by the Elders before the Throne of the Lamb.

Rev. 5. 12, 13. Worthy is the Lamb, that was slain, to receive Power, and Riches, and Wisdom, and Strength, and Honour, and Glory, and Blessing. And let every Creature which is in Heaven, and on the Earth, and under the Earth, and such as are in the Sea, and all that are in them, help to fill up the heavenly Quire and say, Blessing, and Honour, and Glory, and Power be unto him that sitteth on the Throne, and unto the Lamb, for ever and ever.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIV.

1. The Reaſon of his having inſiſted ſo long on the vindicating of the Life of Chriſt from the Aſperſions of the Malevolent. 2. The true Character of a real Chriſtian. 3. The true Character of a falſe or Phariſaical Chriſtian. 4. How eaſily the true Members of Chriſt are accuſed of Blaſphemy by the Phariſaical Chriſtians. 5. And the working of their Graces imputed to ſome vicious Principle. 6. Their cenſuring them as profane that are not ſuperſtitious. 7. The Phariſees great diſlike of Coldneſs in fruitleſs Controverſies of Religion. 8. Their Ignorance of the Law of Equity and Love. 9. How prone it is for the ſincere Chriſtian to be accounted a Railer, for ſpeaking the Truth. 10. That the leaſt Oppoſition againſt Phariſaical Rottenneſs will eaſily be interpreted bitter and tumultuous Zeal. 11. How the ſolid Knowledge of the perfecteſt Chriſtians may be accounted Madneſs by the formal Phariſee. 12. His Proneneſs to judge the true Chriſtian according to the Motions of his own untamed Corruptions. 13. His prudent and crafty Choice of the Vice of Covetouſneſs. 14. The Unreaſonableneſs of his Cenſure of thoſe that endeavour after Perfection. 15. His ignorant Surmiſe that no Man liveth virtuouſly for the Love of Virtue it ſelf. 16. The Uſefulneſs of this Paralleliſm betwixt the Reproach of Chriſt and his true Members. 17. What immenſe a Priviledge the Example of Chriſt is to pious Souls.

1. AND thus you have ſeen Chriſt vindicated from all thoſe ſeveral Suſpicions and Aſperſions laid upon him by malicious and ignorant Men, whereby they would repreſent him as not poſſeſſed of, nor acting from ſo Noble and Divine a Principle of Righteouſneſs as he himſelf profeſt, and his Followers have ever witneſſed of him. In which I confeſs I have been ſomething more large than might have been expected in pleading the Cauſe of a Perſon ſo perfectly pure and innocent. But I conſidering our Saviour Chriſt not ſo much in himſelf, as in his Members, I mean, his true Members, who have one common Spirit with him; and how they are liable to the ſame Accuſations and Miſconſtructions of ſpiteful and inconſiderate men that himſelf was in the Fleſh: I thought it fit more fully to inſiſt upon the clearing and well and rightly interpreting of all the Carriages of Chriſt; that thereby thoſe that call themſelves his Members, may know better how to interpret one another; or if they be not ſo themſelves, that they may however learn not to judge raſhly and inconſiderately of them that are, and walk indeed as he walked.

And that my foregoing Pains may be the more effectual to this purpoſe, I ſhall not ſtick to ſecond them, ſo far as to ſhew how men ordinarily caſt the ſame or the like Soil and Dirt upon the trueſt Members of Chriſt, that they did upon Chriſt himſelf.

2. And that you may take in this with the more Evidence, give me leave to prefix in your Mind the right Image of a true Chriſtian, or living Member of Chriſt. And ſuch an one is he, who is a Branch of the ſame Vine, has derived into him the ſame Sap and Life, partakes of one and the ſame Divine Spirit with Chriſt; the Fruit whereof is to love God with all a Man's Heart and with all his Soul, Mark 12. 33. and his Neighbour as himſelf; and to do ſo to others as he himſelf would be done to. Matth. 7. 12. And that I may not name that only which ſeems nothing in too many mens Eyes, I add alſo, To know and acknowledge the only true God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom he hath ſent. John 17. 3. And ſurely whoſoever has this in its due meaſure and vigour of Life, is conſcious to himſelf, and finds the ſweet of ſo great and glorious an Accompliſhment of Mind, that whatever the Wit or Humour of man can add to it, will ſeem of little more Value than Duſt and Straws we tread under our Feet.

3. And now I have told you what a true and living Member of Chriſt is, let me alſo tell you what a falſe or titular or Phariſaical Chriſtian is. And he is this, One that has not the Divine Sap or Spirit derived to him, as not being and growing in, and becoming one with the true Vine Chriſt Jeſus; and is not poſſeſs'd nor is ſenſible of that Sufficiency, Joy and Satisfaction that is in the inward Life of Chriſt, and the Spirit of Righteouſneſs and eternal and undiſpenſable Truth of God: But being dead to what is moſt neceſſary, precious and ſaving in Chriſtianity, and only alive, or mainly to the Spirit of the World, loves himſelf with all his Heart and all his Soul, and

God and his Neighbour only for his own ſake: or rather uſes and rides his Neighbour, having haltred him or obliged him with ſome prudentially and judiciouſly beſtowed Courteſies; and worſhips God rather than loves him, ne noceat, beſeeching him that upon a ſpecial Diſpenſation, though he be no better than others, nor ever intends nor hopes to be better, yet that it may be better with him in the end
Num. 23. 10. than with other Folk. Let me die the Death of the Righteous, and let my latter End be like his. Or it may be, what is little better than that, inſtead of the living Righteouſneſs of Chriſt, he will magnifie himſelf in ſome humorous Pieces of Holineſs of his own. For he imagines there is a God, and that it is ſafe to make a Friend of him one way or other; and therefore, that his Conſcience may be the better excuſed from thoſe things that are more weighty and ſubſtantial, he will take up things according to his own Humour and Fancy, as faſting twice in the Week, making long Prayers, hearing long Sermons, ſticking curiouſly to ſome unneceſſary, uncertain and fruitleſs Opinions concerning God and Religion, ſuch as are warrantable neither out of Scripture nor Reaſon, and growing very hot and zealous in the Agitation of theſe things (though to the Diſturbance of the Church of God and Injury of his Neighbour) yet theſe Trinkets and Trumperies of his own Humour and Complexion, this Heat, this Noiſe, this Zeal, theſe are the Altar, Fire and Holocauſt wherewith he ſacrifices to God, and preſents himſelf an Oblationer before the Almighty. And all this to be excuſed from that which is the very End of all Religion and Worſhip, that is, the ſacrificing of our own corrupt Life, and acquiring that Prize that is ſet before us, the holy Spirit of Righteouſneſs, Equity and Purity; whoſe Moderation and Guidance is the Light of the World and the Life of man.

4. And having thus, though but looſely and rudely, ſcattered the Delineaments of theſe two oppoſite Profeſſors of Chriſtianity (the true Chriſtian and Phariſaical Humouriſt,) I ſhall from hence, as from the Cauſe and Original, derive Evidence and Light to what I ſhall now propoſe to you by way of Paralleliſm betwixt what our Saviour in his own Perſon ſuffered of falſe Accuſations and Aſperſions, and what his true and living Members are obnoxious to from that Spirit of Phariſaiſm that has ever and does to this very day rule ſtill in the World.

And firſt of the firſt Accuſation that was laid to our Saviour's Charge, viz. Blaſphemy, He hath ſpoken Blaſphemy, Matth. 26. It is apparent, the Phariſaical Nature being deſirous to be excuſed from deſtroying and bringing to nothing in one's ſelf all haughty and ambitious Deſigns, Self-ſeeking, Covetouſneſs and Intemperance, doth eaſily endeavour to make amends for this, and to pacifie the Conſcience and approve ones ſelf to God, by laying out all our Parts in ſpinning excellent high Subtilties and amazing Myſteries from any Hints taken in Scripture, and in adorning the Nature of God and Religion according to the Gariſhneſs of a Man's own natural Fancy and Nicety of Wit. Whence it may come to paſs that theſe Traditionary Phariſees having made it their buſineſs to rack their natural unregenerate Minds to find ſome magnificent Conceptions (as they imagine them) to beſtow upon the Deity; that one freed by Chriſt (who is the Truth that makes one free indeed) by not admitting or gainſaying theſe high and divine Inventions of theirs concerning God and Chriſt, wherewith they have wrapped him and clothed him (though they do but what Dionyſius did to the golden Veſtments of Jupiter, take them off and put on a Linſy-woolſy one) may well be ſuſpected and accuſed of Blaſphemy and Injury to God, when it is nothing but a Refuſal of the groundleſs Concluſions of raſh and inconſiderate Men, or, which is worſe, of thoſe that of Purpoſe clothe God and Chriſt and repreſent him to the People in ſuch a Dreſs as will make moſt for the countenancing their own Hypocriſie, Profit and Intereſt. I will only name one Inſtance of many. How has the Roman Clergy forced and rack'd their Wits to make good the grand Myſtery of Tranſubſtantiation, whoſe ordinary Prieſts muſt have greater Power of working Miracles than the Devil could invent to puzzle our Saviour withal? For what is the turning a Stone into Bread in compariſon of turning Bread into God incarnate? And yet a Maſs-prieſt after the uttering of a few formal Words of Conſecration, has brought about the Prodigy. And he that will be ſo bold as to call Bread but Bread, and not Chriſt or God, how can he chuſe but be thought to blaſpheme? But yet this Blaſphemy is not againſt the Nature of God or Chriſt, but againſt the Forgery and Fictitions of men, and ſo indeed is no more Blaſphemy than Bread is Chriſt or Man's Fancy the Deity. The Rule therefore that Chriſtians are to take notice of here is this; There being ſo much Humour and Intereſt and Stupour of Education that may begin or continue falſe Conceptions of God; if any one profeſs himſelf that he cannot conceive ſuch things as ſome ſo peremptorily emptorily and imperiously obtrude upon his Belief, that he is not straightway to be accounted a Blasphemer of God, it haply being but a Dissent only from the Conceits of men.

5. The second Aspersion cast on our Saviour was, That that miraculous Good that he did, was from the Power of Satan, not of God. And methinks it is not hard to find something parallel to this in some Aspersions cast upon his true Members by rash Pharisaical Censure. Which is this; The eximious and exemplary Life of good and holy men is many times (by those that are more addicted to such a Dress or outward Platform of Religion consisting of certain Ceremonies and Opinions, than to the Truth and Essence of Religion it self) imputed to corrupt natural Principles, such as Vain-glory and the Esteem of the World, Political Advantage, and the like; which answers to the Pharisees giving out that Christ cast out Devils by Beelzebub the Prince of the Devils. So say our modern Pharisees of such as are not of their Sect; if those men live never so holily and unblamably in this present evil World, exercising Virtue and avoiding Vice, that it is not from any Divine Principle in them, but from the Instigation of Pride the Prince of Vices.

6. So in the third place, They that affect even more than a Judaical Strictness in the Observation of the Sabbath, (though God knows it is too many times that their Consciences may be the more free to work Unrighteousness all the Week after) yet they will take upon them to censure them of no less Crime than Profaneness that observe neither the same measure of Superstition nor Hypocrisie with themselves.

7. Fourthly, Neutrality and cold Indifferency in publick Controversies, how can it possibly chuse but seem very abominable to the Pharisee or formal Professor? For they knowing no other Religion than what consists in certain dispensable and unnecessary Opinions and Performances; when they are shaken and hazarded, he that will not engage to the utmost then, as if God and true Religion it self were at stake, cannot but be deemed very unworthy and detestable. Whenas to be but coldly and indifferently affected in things indifferent, is in all Reason to be esteemed just and good.

8. Nor is it a whit strange to hear the Pharisaical Tribe complain of the true regenerate Christian as unjust; whenas the one acts according to an outward Rule or Tradition which was made for the meeting with their own wicked and untamed Corruptions, (malo nodo malus cuneus) and which notwithstanding they craftily and perversly make use of by leguleious Cavils to the injuring of one another or them that are better than themselves; but the true Christian acts and judges according to the living Law of Equity, and the Eternal Love of God springing up in his Heart.

9. Sixthly, As for the Accusation of Railings and Revilings, even a sober and well carriaged Christian may well be subject to that Calumny. For the Pharisee bearing himself very high in the Opinion of his own either Formal or Fantastical Righteousness, making a shift rather any way to perswade himself he is righteous and religious than by partaking of true Religion and Righteousness indeed; he acting therefore according to the Nature he really has, not according to what he fancies himself to be; it cannot but happen that the true Christian, endued with the Divine Nature and Spirit of Righteousness, not intending at all to rail or revile, but using the most easie and unaffected Propriety of Words, calling a Spade a Spade, as the Proverb is, doing but so as Adam did in Innocency, giving the Creatures Names according to their Natures, it cannot but happen, I say, that the Actions and Persons being foully bad of such as notwithstanding be in their own Conceit as good as any, when they be called by what Names expres the Truth of their Natures and no more, that yet they will presently judge the ὀνομαζόμενος a Railer and Reviler.

10. Now for tumultuary Zeal, I must confess that Pharisaical Hypocrisie is such an abominable provoking thing in the sight of all the Sons of God, that it can scarce fail scorching and heating their tender and lively Spirits, no more than a natural Flame can fail to singe and pain our natural Flesh; which none of us can suffer with such Patience, but we are ready to testifie our sensibleness both by Gestures, Actions and Words. Besides that in a moderate and well guided Zeal against the Pharisaical Interest, all being so rotten there, so sore and patched over with pitiful Plaisters; the least Action or Opposition will make them cry out, even afore they be hurt, being conscious to themselves how unsound and unable they are to abide the least measure of rough handling. So that the least Vigour of Opposition in good earnest against their hypocritical and unwarrantable Ways will by them be deemed but bitter and tumultuous Zeal.

Eighthly, The juſt and ſeaſonable Bemoanings of the dear Servants of God and Fellow-members of Chriſt, when Nature is very much oppreſſed with Adverſity or Torment, are not to be judged raſhly the Symptoms of Impatience or Deſpair. For the expreſſing the Senſe of one's Miſery is no Vice, ſince the ſuppreſſing thereof may be no Vertue, but rather a Symptom of Pride, or Affectation of Spartaniſm.

11. And now in the ninth place, as for that Aſperſion of Madneſs and Phrenſy the true Chriſtian has often caſt upon him by the Phariſaical Religioniſt, the Cauſe of it is plain from either of their Natures, or from the Nature of Madneſs it ſelf. For as Sottiſhneſs and Dotage is the extinguiſhing of Reaſon in Phlegm or Cold; ſo Madneſs is the diſordering diſcompoſing and diſſipating the Fancy and Reaſon in the Diſtemper of Heat. Wherefore, where-ever the Heat exceeds the Senſe and Reaſon of him that ſpeaks or acts, there comes in ſo much of Madneſs as there is of that Exceſs. But as concerning Senſe and Reaſon, ſith it is all one to be abſent as not to appear, therefore it muſt needs follow, that thoſe that ſpeak with much Zeal and Vigour things very true in themſelves, yet to others very incredible or unintelligible, muſt be by them reputed no better than Mad-men. And hence it was that Feſtus the Governour told Paul, that too much Learning made him mad. And hence probably may be the ground of that ordinary Saying, Nullum magnum ingenium ſine admixtura inſaniæ. Partly becauſe no great Wit can well be but with ſome good meaſure of natural Heat and Activity of Spirit; and partly, or rather mainly, becauſe the Improvement of theſe Parts and Wit by ſubtil Search into things have produced ſuch Concluſions, ſo Paradoxical and oppoſite to the vulgar Conceits of Men, and yet of ſuch Evidence of Reaſon to the Inventors of them, that they aſſerting with Heat and Confidence the Concluſions to be true, to ſuch Men as were not capable of the Subtilty of the Reaſons which infer them, could not chuſe but get to themſelves the Reputation of Men whoſe Brains were ſeaſoned with ſome Strinklings at leaſt of Madneſs and Phrenſy. And according to this Analogy may it very well be ſaid, Nullus inſignis Chriſtianus, &c. That there is no notable Chriſtian that will not ſeem to have ſome ſpice of Madneſs in him, eſpecially if he be judged by the formal ſtiff Phariſee, whoſe Poſtures and Actions are always kept as it were in an outward wooden Frame, as a Child in a Standing-ſtool; his Traditions and accuſtomary Opinions being as deeply ſcored and carved in his Memory, as the outward and obvious ſhows of things at the firſt ſight in the World are ſcralled out in the rude Furrows of an Idiot's Brain. And as the unskilful Ruſtick would ſuſpect him ſcarce ſound in his Senſes, that ſhould confidently ſpeak any thing that ſhould palpably croſs or cancel thoſe groſs Scrallings the ſenſible ſhew of this World has writ in his Imagination: ſo certainly the formal Phariſee would not ſtick to judge him mad, that ſhould with Zeal and Boldneſs pronounce ſuch things as were not parallel nor agreeable to the Preconceptions and Prefigurations of his prejudiced Mind; but moſt of all if ſuch things as he could get no Conception at all of, they being not upon the ſame Level oppoſite, but ſo high removed, that they would be out of his Reach of Apprehenſion. Surely the more earneſt a true Member of Chriſt ſhould be in ſuch Points, the more mad he would appear in the Eyes of the cool prudential Phariſee.

12. As for the three laſt Aſperſions that were caſt on our Saviour, and his true Members are accordingly liable unto, the mere formal Chriſtian being Judge, viz. Debauchery and Looſeneſs of Life, Laviſhments and Prodigality, Ambition and Self-intereſt; I ſhall briefly diſpath them all. And to the firſt this general Conſideration appertains. By how much every one is himſelf more weak and obnoxious to Temptations, by ſo much more ſuſpicious he is that others tranſgreſs, when there is any thing that may tempt out the Corruptions of a Man; or where there are any Signs or Effects of that which in ſome Perſons is naught, though thoſe Signs or Effects in themſelves are neither good nor bad. Here the formal Chriſtian conſulting with what is alive and operative in himſelf, viz. his inward Corruption, judges the beſt of Men after his meaſure; and concludes that how he ſhould be affected, what he ſhould do or ſuffer in ſuch or ſuch Caſes, that any one placed in the ſame Caſes and Conditions doth ſuffer or act the like. And the more ſcandalous and offenſive muſt the Converſation of the moſt perfect and purified be, foraſmuch as their Invulnerableneſs and Inſenſibleneſs in the midſt of ſuch Vanities as others are moved with that are alive unto ſin, cannot but make them more innocently free and careleſs in things that of themſelves are not really evil.

13. As for the matter of Prodigality, it is obvious to conceive that Covetouſneſs ſitting Judge, even Frugality it ſelf ſhall be branded with that Name; and that Covetouſneſs being ſo clean and dry and creditable a Sin, (as being ſo perfectly oppoſite to the mad roaring Garb of the Spend-Thriſt) there will ſcarce be found a

Phariſee

Phariſee that will be ſo imprudent as not to retain ſo profitable a Vice. Wherefore the Phariſee being covetous, the true Chriſtian, whom that Noble and Divine Nature according to which he is regenerate has made more liberal, muſt needs by him be ſentenced as Improvident and Prodigal.

14. Laſtly, for the Imputation of Ambition and Self-Intereſt. It is no Ambition or Pride earneſtly to endeavour as much as in us lies to be renewed into that glorious and Divine Image of Chriſt, and to contend to the utmoſt for the Accompliſhment of the ſame. For in this Image is very eminently contained that moſt healthful and comely Diſpoſition of the Mind, unaffected Humility. For whereas the Image of Chriſt grows not up but from the Deſtruction and (if it were poſſible) perfect Annihilation of our own ſtubborn and ſtout Will, that eagerly and peremptorily ever ſeeks its own Satisfaction, and whenever it finds it glories and arrogates to it ſelf the Succeſs; it muſt needs be, by how much more perfectly the true Image of Chriſt is recovered in us, that by ſo much the more fully we are freed from all Pride and Arrogancy. So that as it cannot be the Puff of Pride that ſhould drive us on to endeavour after ſo high a Pitch of Perfection, but the divine Breath of God in the Soul; no more can that pitch of Perfection, once attained to, be any Cauſe of Pride, ſith that Humility is of the very Eſſence thereof. For it is as contradictious and unreaſonable, as if we ſhould ſay, that we become proud by becoming humble.

15. As for Self-Intereſt, the Accuſation is of that Nature of the Devil's againſt Job, Doth Job ſerve God for nought? Men devoid of the Spirit of Righteouſneſs and unacquainted with the Power and Pleaſure of Divine Worth and Grace, can fancy nothing there deſirable but the external Fruits thereof, ſuch as Honour and Eſteem among Men, or a future Reward from God. Wherefore it muſt needs be that the Phariſee or outward Formaliſt, perceiving nothing of Pleaſure and Sweetneſs in Holineſs and Vertue in himſelf, if he obſerve others much devoted thereunto, that he muſt judge them to make uſe of thoſe things for ſome other more pleaſant Enjoyment, as Praiſe and Applauſe, or ſome future Reward after this Life; and that they are not delighted with the things themſelves. Whenas certainly a true Member of Chriſt and one really regenerate into his Image, could no more ceaſe from pleaſing himſelf and enjoying himſelf in the Senſe and Conſcience of this Divine Life, and the Reſults thereof, all holy and becoming Actions, than the Natural Man can ceaſe from the Enjoyments of the Body, though he knows ere long his Body ſhall afford him no more Enjoyments. And yet I muſt alſo add, That it is the next Door to an Impoſſibility, that one that is become thus Divine, ſhould not have his Heart fully fraught with the moſt precious Hopes of future Immortaliry and Glory: He asked Life of thee, and thou gaveſt him even a long Life for ever and ever.

16. I have now finiſhed my Paralleliſm betwixt the Revilements caſt upon our Saviour, and thoſe that his trueſt Members may be obnoxious to. Which Pains I think I have not at all miſplaced, they tending only to the ſtopping of the Mouths of carnal Cenſurers, and the animating ſincere Chriſtians, that they may not be diſcouraged from following ſo excellent an Example by the Affronts and Reproaches of the World, but that they may know their own Innocency, Safety, and Freedom, while they keep in the true way, that is in Chriſt the Son of God, who making us free, we become free indeed; that is, free from the Deceits of our own Luſts, and free from the Awe and Terrour of imperious and ſuperſtitious Men, that would obtrude their own Errors upon us with as much Zeal and Importunity, and make them as indiſpenſable as the infallible Oracles of God.

17. And verily, ſo great a Priviledge is this Example of Chriſt, to thoſe that are ſincerely Religious, that tho' we kept the Eye of our Contemplation perpetually fixt thereon, we ſhould ſcarcely come to comprehend the immenſe Advantages of it; namely, to have ſo ſure, ſo Divine, ſo infallible a Guide, by his own Example to direct us in our Encounters with all the lethargick Paroxyſms of the Animal Life, and the Sophiſms of the crafty and ſerpentine Carnal Wiſdom; ſo manifeſtly to know what the Eternal Incarnate Wiſdom, what the very Son of God himſelf, who was declared to be ſuch by a Voice from Heaven, either did or would have done in ſuch and ſuch particular Circumſtances; whence alſo we come without any Difficulty to underſtand, how we ſhould demean our ſelves, in bearing Affronts and Reproaches, in contemning worldly Honours, in reſigning our Wills entirely to our heavenly Father in all things, in ſuffering Pains, yea and undergoing, if occaſion requires, even the moſt cruel Death, for the Glory of God and a Teſtimony to the Truth; to wit, That laying aſide every Weight, and the Sin which doth ſo eaſily beſet us, we ſhould run with Patience the Race that is ſet before us, looking unto Jeſus the Author and Fi- niſher of our Faith, who for the Joy that was ſet before him, endured the Croſs, deſpiſing the Shame, and is ſet down at the Right-hand of the Throne of God. From hence we may percieve, laying aſide all other Conſiderations, how highly a Demonſtration of the Certainty of the Hiſtory of Chriſt, upon which we have already beſtow'd ſo much Pains, ought to be valued by pious and ſincere Souls. And thus much concerning The Example of Chriſt. Of which having ſpoken what things we thought moſt requiſite, we proceed now to his Paſſion, which is the fifth Power of the Goſpel.

niſher

CHAP. XV.

1. The Paſſion of Chriſt the fifth Goſpel-Power, the Vertue whereof is in a ſpecial manner noted by our Saviour himſelf. 2. That the Brazen Serpent in the Wilderneſs was a prophetick Type of Chriſt, and cured not by Art but by Divine Power. 3. That Teleſmatical Preparations are ſuperſtitious, manifeſt out of their Collections that write of them. 4. Particularly out of Gaffarel and Gregory. 5. That the Effects of Teleſmes are beyond the Laws of Nature. 6. That if there be any natural Power in Teleſmes, it is from Similitude; with a Confutation of this Ground alſo. 7. A further Confutation of that Ground. 8. In what Senſe the Brazen Serpent was a Teleſme, and that it muſt needs be a Typical Prophecy of Chriſt. 9. The accurate and punctual Prefiguration of Chriſt therein. 10. The wicked Pride and Conceitedneſs of thoſe that are not touched with this admirable Contrivance of Divine Providence. 11. The inſufferable Blaſphemy of them that reproach the Son of God for crying out in his dreadful Agony on the Croſs; wherein is diſcovered the Unlovelineſs of the Family of Love.

1. AND truly this fifth Goſpel-Power, the Paſſion of Chriſt, is of ſo great Efficacy and Concernment, that our Saviour ſeems with more than ordinary Delight to have ruminated on the wonderful Effects that it would have in the World. John 12. 32, And I, if I be lifted up from the Earth, will draw all Men unto me; ſignifying thereby what Death he ſhould die, as the Text witneſſes. This ſhews what a powerful Engine our Saviour himſelf thought his Death would prove to draw all the World after him. Which is a Demonſtration that the Mind of a Chriſtian ought to dwell very much in the Meditation of the Death and Paſſion of Chriſt. The Uſe whereof appears in another Intimation of our Saviour's, though more Typical, yet the Analogy is ſo plain, that no Man can miſs it. John 3. And as Moſes lifted up the Serpent in the Wilderneſs, ſo ſhall the Son of Man be lifted up; That whoſoever believeth on him ſhould not periſh, but have eternal Life. This is ſo perfect a Repreſentation of our Saviour's Paſſion, that I cannot but blame my ſelf for not entring it amongſt other Prophecies that I alledged for the Meſſiah's ſuffering.

2. And it will ſtill appear more plainly, that it was intended a Prefiguration or Typical Prophecy of Chriſt, if we conſider that Moſes was not put upon it by any natural Skill, as if the Effigies of this Brazen Serpent did by any Power of Art or Nature heal the Iſraelities of their Bitings of the fiery flying Serpent. But it was an immediate Direction of God, by whoſe ſupernatural Power the Cure was wrought: As the Author of the Book of *Wiſdom expreſly has noted, namely, *That he that turned towards that σύμβολον σωτηρίας, as he ſtyles it, the Sign of Salvation, was not ſaved by the thing that he ſaw, but by him that is the Saviour of all. For beſide that the whole Myſtery of Teleſmes is but a ſuperſtitious Foolery, much akin to and dependent of that groundleſs Pretence of ſuch wonderful Influences as the antient Pagan Ignorance attributed to the Stars; the very matter of this Serpent was inconvenient and improper for this Effect, as Interpreters on the place have obſerved. To which I might add that there is not any Example of any Teleſmes that were ever known to cure the Diſeaſement after this ſort, that is, by only looking thereunto. And that thoſe that have been made againſt Scorpions, or other hurtful Creatures, they have chaced them out of the place or killed them upon the Spot; but if any one were ſtung by theſe venomous Serpents, there was a tactual Application of the Remedy to him that was hurt.

*Chap. 16. 6.

3. And

3. And yet I will not ſo much ſtand upon this, as that the whole Buſineſs of Teleſmatical Preparations is ſuperſtitious, and that they have no Effect by any natural Virtue or Influence. This, methinks, I plainly diſcover out of their Collections that ſeem moſt pleaſed in the repreſenting of theſe Curioſities to the Eye of the World in their Writings; Gaffarel eſpecially, who does with Plenty of Words, but no Reaſon at all, endeavour to make us believe that the Power of Teleſmes is natural: but I never knew any Cauſe managed with more ſlight, more looſe, and more frivolous Arguments in my Days. But out of his own Mouth I ſhall be able to condemn him, and upon theſe two Accounts. Firſt, in that according to his own Conjectures and Relations, the erecting and preparing of theſe Teleſmes is, as we contend, ſuperſtitious or paganically Religious: and then ſecondly, That the Effects of them, where they have any, are plainly beyond the Power of any natural Cauſe.

4. As for the firſt, himſelf does profeſs that he is of Opinion that the firſt Gods of the Latines, which they called Averrunci or Dii Tutelares, were no other than theſe Teleſmatical Images. And his Reaſon is, that they made ſome of theſe Tutelar Gods under certain Conſtellations: which is no wonder ſay I, the Hoſt of Heaven being the Deities of the Pagans, and Teleſmes and Aſtrology both Rags of that ancient Superſtition. And Apollonius Tyaneus, who trotted and trudged about the World ſo much to reſtore the Heathen Religion, had an excellent Gift (if Hiſtorians do not belie him) of conſecrating Teleſmes againſt Storks, Gnats, Inundations of Rivers, Winds and Storms, and other noxious Things: Which notwithſtanding that naſute Sophiſt Philoſtratus was willing to omit in his Legend of him, as being very ſolicitous to ſave him harmleſs from the Imputation of being a Magician, as a Man may obſerve by ſeveral Paſſages in him. So that either way the natural Efficacy of Teleſmes is diſcovered to be but a Figment.

But that their Formation is but a Paganical Superſtition, thoſe more exact Collections and Tranſcriptions of Gregory will further clear, if a Man do but peruſe them. For there he may ſee how in the Building of Cities they did not only conſult the Rules of Aſtrology for a fit Configuration of the Heavens, but alſo ſacrificed, and that ſometime with Man's Blood, to the Genius of the place, erecting a Figure of Braſs whereinto, as they thought, they Teleſmatically conveyed the Tutelar Deity of the City. Which Statue was therefore placed in ſome ſafe Receſs, or elſe in ſome eminent Place: but where-ever it was, there they conceived was contained the Fate or Fortune of all. Of this ſort doubtleſs was the Trojan Palladium, and the Lame and the Blind that the Soul of David ſo hated, 2 Sam. 5. as Gregory has with very good Reaſon, I think, concluded.

5. This is enough to intimate from what Principle theſe Teleſmatical Fooleries ſprung, let them be of what kind they will. And the Effects of them, ſuch as are recorded, are plainly ſuch as cannot be imputed to the Power of the Heavens, if we carefully conſider the Circumſtances of things. As for Example, What Influence from Heaven can be derived upon a City for having the firſt Stone of it, or any one Stone of it, laid under ſuch an Aſpect? What is this to the whole City that ſhall be ſo many Months, it may be Years, in building afterwards? Beſides that I have already demonſtrated the whole Artifice of * Aſtrology to be but a Foppery. So that certainly it isnothing but the Conſecration of the City and the Recommendation of it to the Tutelage of a Dæmon. And though we ſhould admit that the Teleſmatical Figure of a Stork (ſuppoſe) or a Scorpion may drive away Storks or Scorpions, How ſhould the Teleſmatical Statue of a Man drive away Men, and keep a Fort or Country impregnable from the Incurſions of the Enemy? as the Silver-Statues did buried in the Confines of Thracia and Illyria, that Valerius commanded to be digged up and taken away: upon which thoſe Countries within a few Days after were over-run with the Goths and Hunns. Beſides, it is much that the humane Statues ſhould make ſuch a Difference as to take part with ſome Men and be againſt others, when the Teleſmatical Figures of other Creatures drive away promiſcuouſly all Creatures of the ſame Species. Which are things utterly inexplicable from the Laws of Nature.

*Book 7. ch. 15, 16, 17.

6. If there be any Natural Power in theſe things, it muſt be from Similitude: but it is moſt ridiculous to think that this Similitude has any thing to do with the Stars. For though there be the Name there (ſuppoſe) of a Scorpion, yet there is no Scorpion there, nor the Image of one. But if there were any Antiſcorpionical Power in that Conſtellation; that Matter or Metal that will receive it at all, will receive it in any other Figure as well as in the Figure of a Scorpion, and in ſome, it's likely, better. But this Influence, being nothing but ſome thin Particles that muſt pervade the Pores of this Brazen Serpent, can as eaſily go out as come in, and will give place to the next Influence, and ſo never be the ſame. It is ſimply therefore the Similitude of a brazen Scorpion that muſt drive away the Scorpions: which no Man can imagine any Reaſon for, if the Experience be true, but the Community of the Spirit of Nature, and that Inſtance of one Chord trembling while that which is uniſone to it is ſtruck, and of Sympathy in Perſons by reaſon of Similitude and Cognation; as in thoſe two young Children, Brothers, and extreamly like one another, born at Riez in France, who if one were ſick, ſad, ſleepy, the other would be ſo alſo. Which are the moſt plauſible Reaſons that Gaffarel alledges for his ſo dearly beloved Concluſion. If therefore Scorpions and Gnats fled from the place upon the making of ſuch a Figure of a Gnat or Scorpion (ſuppoſe) in Braſs or in any other Metal, I ſhould think the Reaſon was, becauſe the Spirit of Nature being harſhly affected in the Body of that which has ſo compleat a Similitude with ſuch a Creature, may in ſome meaſure raiſe an harſh Senſe in thoſe Creatures, and therefore finding themſelves in ſuch a place in an unpleaſing Temper, they will be ſure to keep far enough from it. But if this be a right Cauſe, ſuch a Teleſme may be made without any regard to the Configuration of the Heavens. Whence again all theſe Aſtrological Ceremonies will be demonſtrated to be but Fooleries.

pervade

But I ſhall demonſtrate further that this alſo is a moſt trifling Foolery, and that there is no natural Efficacy at all in Teleſmes, and that from their own Hiſtory. For either Gregory or Gaffarel tells us, that if part of a Teleſme be broken off, the Effect ceaſes. (Which we might have alledged as an Argument that the Virtue is in the Figure merely.) And they inſtance in a Teleſmatical Crocodile whoſe Chap was broken off; For then the Crocodiles returned. Which to me is an Indication that the Effect is not from the Spirit of Nature, but from ſome ludicrous and deceitful Dæmons that love to befool Mankind. For if Teleſmatical Emerods and the Phallus work upon thoſe Parts, Why ſhould not the above-named Crocodile that wanted but a Chap work upon all the Parts of the Crocodiles but their Chaps; which would be Diſeaſement enough to keep them away? And the Phallus Gregory mentions, (which he rightly, I think, reckons amongſt theſe Teleſmes) cured or diſeaſed the Privy Parts of the Athenians, according as they received the Deity to which they were conſecrated. From whence a Man may Conjecture concerning the reſt of theſe Trumperies.

7. Again, theſe Teleſmes are made againſt ſuch things as have no Life nor Senſe in them, as againſt Fire and Water. Of which the Engravements can have no ſuch Similitudes, one would think, as to engage the Spirit of Nature to act any way; and yet Gaffarel tells us a very reverend Story of a Teleſme againſt Fire found under a Bridge at Paris. Which certainly if it had any natural Power to preſerve the City from great Fires, ſuch as would deſtroy the Houſes, it would alſo have hindred them from lighting their Candles at a tinder-Box, and warming their Fingers in a froſty Morning. And yet this curious Philoſopher ſeems to lament the Loſs of that Teleſme, they having thereby, as he ſays, expoſed the City to frequent Scale-Fires ever ſince. But let the Teleſmatical Sculpture of Fire and Water be never ſo like theſe Elements, inſomuch that we may hope that it may ſomewhat affect the Spirit of Nature; there being no Sagacity nor Senſe in the River Lycus (ſuppoſe) which Apollonius curb'd with ſuch a Device, nor in Fire now exiſtent, (much leſs that which is to come) how can they withdraw themſelves from ſuch places where Teleſmes are laid up, they having not, as Animals have, the Power of ſpontaneous Motion?

Laſtly, there are Teleſmes that have no Similitude at all with the things they are to keep off: as that Man on Horſeback in Braſs ſet up at Conſtantinople againſt peſtilential Infection, which (ſay they) being once demoliſhed, the City has been extraordinarily ſubject to Plagues and fearful Mortalities. That Ship alſo of Braſs there Teleſmatically conſecrated againſt the Dangers of that tempeſtuous Sea, it had no Similitude at all of either the Water or Wind: but yet of ſuch force it was, that a Piece of it being broke off and loſt, the Sea returned to its former Unrulineſs; but being found and put together, the Sea became quiet again. They took it therefore apieces again, for Experience ſake, and the Winds and Sea were ſuddenly rough and boiſtrous, ſo that a Ship could not come up into Harbour; but the brazen Ship being again handſomly compacted, the Winds and Sea were again peaceful and calm.

Wherefore if a Man do but caſt an indifferent Eye upon the whole matter, it will be very difficult for him not to pronounce, That he that can believe that the Power of Teleſmes is natural, is more irrationally credulous than the moſt ſimple Superſtitioniſt in the World.

8 Out.

8. Out of what has been ſaid it is evident that the Brazen Serpent erected by Moſes in the Wilderneſs was not a Teleſme in that Senſe Gaffarel would underſtand the Word, that is, a Sculpture, Statue or Similitude of ſomething made ſo by Aſtrological Art, that what Effects it has for the keeping off Evil or remedying what has already befallen, is merely from the concurrence of natural Cauſes, though the Application of them was artificial; the chief whereof is the Influence of the Heavens and the Figure of the Teleſme. For it is apparent there can be no ſuch thing. But, if they mean by a Teleſme, ſuch a Figure of ſome Creature conſecrated in a way of Religion for the Services above-named, nothing hinders but that the Brazen Serpent may be a Teleſme, whether from the Hebrew צלם which ſignifies an Image, or from τέλεσμα which denotes Conſecration. And this of Moſes was both a warrantable and effectual Teleſme. For it was by the Preſcription of God himſelf, and throughly did the Effect it was ſet up for. But the Cures that it did being ſupernatural, and neither the Figure nor the Matter of the Serpent contributing any thing to the healing of them that were bitten by thoſe fiery flying Serpents, it is plain that Moſes had been left free from making any ſuch Teleſme of the Figure of a Serpent, (there being nothing in the thing it ſelf to invite him to it) had not God moved him thereto. Nor can we imagine any other Cauſe why Divine Revelation ſhould ſuggeſt ſuch a thing unto him, unleſs there were ſome Myſtery in it. Something therefore that did notably concern the Church of God was denoted thereby; and what I was a going to ſay at firſt, having removed all Obſtacles, I now again reſume and dare pronounce, That it was a plain, though Typical, Prophecy of the Meſſias his Paſſion, and of the Uſe of it, and ſo clear, that no Words could have more punctually prefigured it to us. For the Analogy and Reſemblance is moſt exquiſite, if we caſt our Eye upon the whole Scene of things.

9. For how naturally do the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs repreſent the Church of Chriſt in the World; and their being bitten with fiery flying Serpents, our being poiſoned and pained with vexatious Luſts, and tormented with Remorſe of Conſcience when Sin has entred into our Souls? What could more lively repreſent our Saviour upon the Croſs, who knowing no Sin, yet was made * Sin for us, than this Brazen Serpent ſet upon a Pole in the Camp of Iſrael? Which indeed had the outward Shape of a fiery flying Serpent, but was ſo far from being a Serpent, that it had nothing of a Serpent but the external Form thereof, and healed all them that were bit with thoſe poiſonous and deadly Serpents. So our bleſſed Saviour devoid of Sin himſelf, yet being in the moſt ugly outward Appearance of Sinfulneſs that could be put upon him (he ſuffering betwixt two Criminal Malefactors, as it was propheſied him, That he ſhould be numbred amongſt the Tranſgreſſors) he is in this Poſture (where he looks ſo like Sinfulneſs it ſelf) unto the whole Church of God, when they are ſmitten with the fiery Excitements of Sin, or the deadly Pangs or Remorſe of Conſcience, thoſe rancorous Wounds that Sin leaves in the Soul when ſhe has been once bitten therewith, he is, I ſay, thus hanging upon the Croſs, if they look upon him with the Eye of Faith, the moſt Sovereign Remedy and the moſt preſentaneous Aſſwagement of their Pain and Malady that can be offered to the Thoughts of Men, I am ſure, of any humble and well-meaning Man.

* 2 Cor. 5. 21.

Iſa. 53. 12.

10. But for thoſe that are ſelf-conceited, of a perverſe Reaſon, and of an high-flown Luciferian Temper, that prefer the Subtilty of their own opinionated Wit and curious Search into all Secrets, and magnifie their own natural Worth before the Friendſhip of him that loved us even to the Death; theſe Men are not fitted to reliſh and eſteem the Sweetneſs of that abundant Goodneſs and kind Condeſcenſion of Divine Providence in his Manifeſtation of Jeſus Chriſt to the World: as neither the fiery Enthuſiaſt, filled with the Senſe of his own fooliſh Revelations and Divine Viſitations (as he fancies them) ſo ſtout, ſo ſtiff, and ſo perfect (as the vain Flatteries of his own Imagination would bear him in hand) that he finds nothing but God and himſelf worth thinking of, and will be an immediate Retainer to the Almighty, without any Interpoſal whatſoever, To that height and hardneſs of Heart is he ſwollen in his own Conceit. But the true Character of him is that which the Apoſtle Jude has given him, that he is but a Mouth filled with great ſwelling Words, puffed up, ſenſual, knowing not the Spirit. Such as theſe are thoſe alſo in too great a meaſure that wholly neglect the Meditation on Chriſt's Paſſion, though it be of ſo great Efficacy for the quenching and ſuppreſſing of all the reſtleſs and fiery Motions of Sin in them. But execrable Blaſphemers are they beyond expreſſion, whoſe Pride and Conceitedneſs has made them reproach the Perſon of Chriſt in his higheſt Agonies on the Croſs, and impute that to a ſinful Weakneſs and Imperfection, that was but the due effect of the Weight of his Sufferings, who bore the Sins of the whole World, and made an Atonement with God for them. Yet becauſe he cried out in the Words of that Pſalm, Pſal. 22. which is a lively Prophecy of his Sufferings, My God, my God, why haſt thou forſaken me? Therefore muſt that Fanatick Fool of Amſterdam, and his illuminated Elders, that boaſt ſo much of Perfection, be more perfect than the Son of God himſelf, whoſe certain Appearance in the World is ſo clearly demonſtrated out of the ancient Prophecies of the Old Teſtament, and ſo manifeſtly ratified by the Miracles recorded in the New.

11. I appeal to all Men if Satan himſelf could vent any thing more deſpightful and ſcornful againſt the endearing Sufferings of our ever-bleſſed Saviour, who out of tender Love to Mankind underwent thoſe dreadful Agonies of Death, and waded through the heavy Wrath of God for Sinners, than theſe Wretches have, that would recommend themſelves to the World under the falſe Flouriſh and Hypocritical Title of the Family of Love; whereas by antiquating the Uſe of the Paſſion of Chriſt, and thus villainouſly reproaching Chriſt upon the Croſs, they demonſtrate to all the World, that they have not the leaſt Senſe or Skill in ſo Divine a Myſtery, but are wicked Apoſtates from God, who is that pure and Divine Love, and Underminers of the Kingdom of his Son Jeſus Chriſt: In which neither ſuch high-flown Enthuſiaſts, nor any dry churliſh Reaſoners and Diſputers ſhall have either Part or Portion, till they lay down thoſe Gigantick Humours, and become (as our Saviour Chriſt, who is Matth. 19. 14. that unerring Truth, has preſcribed) like little Children; for of ſuch as theſe only is the Kingdom of Heaven, as the Prince of that Kingdom has declared. Theſe therefore he embraced and bleſſed when he was alive; theſe he dying on the Croſs ſtretched out his Arms to receive; to theſe he wept Drops of Blood, that they being wounded with Love, might in return ſhed Tears; for theſe he was ſcourged, that they might chaſtiſe the Exorbitancy of their own Luſts and evil Concupiſcences; for theſe he ſhed his moſt precious Blood, that they might die to Sin, and live to Righteouſneſs, by that Power which raiſed Jeſus Chriſt from the Dead. This is the Fooliſhneſs of the Croſs, a Scandal not only to ſuch as are Unbelievers, but even to many of them alſo that would be accounted zealous and knowing Chriſtians.

CHAP. XVI.

1. The End of Chriſt's Sufferings not only to paciſie Conſcience, but to root out Sin; witneſſed out of the Scripture. 2. Further Teſtimonies to the ſame purpoſe. 3. The Faintneſs and Uſeleſneſs of the Allegory of Chriſt's Paſſion in compariſon of the Application of the Hiſtory thereof. 4. The Application of Chriſt's Sufferings againſt Pride and Covetouſneſs, 5. As alſo againſt Envy, Hatred, Revenge, vain Mirth, the Pangs of Death, and unwarrantable Love. 6. A general Application of the Death of Chriſt to the mortifying of all Sin whatſoever. 7. The celebrating the Lord's Supper, the Uſe and Meaning thereof.

1. BUT that this is the Meaning of Chriſt's Sufferings, that is, That we ſhould alſo ſuffer in the Fleſh, and mortifie our ſinful Members, beſides what our Saviour himſelf has intimated in comparing himſelf to the Brazen Serpent in the Wilderneſs, the ſight whereof did not only aſſwage the Pain of them that were bitten, but alſo take away the Poiſon, (whence we may reaſonably conclude, that the looking on Chriſt on the Croſs is not only to heal the Stings of Conſcience upon Sin committed, but to deſtroy the Poiſon and Corruption of Sin out of us, that we may not ſin any more) is plain, in that the Apoſtles themſelves alſo do urge the Uſe of Chriſt crucified to both thoſe Ends and Purpoſes. St. John 1 Epiſt. Chap. 2. My little Children, theſe things write I unto you that ye ſin not, But if any Man ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the Righteous, and he is the Propitiation for our Sins. But this Uſe of the Croſs, namely, Propitiation and the Peace of Conſcience, all Men catch at. There is more need of producing ſuch places as ſhew the other Uſe thereof, for the Mortification of our Sins. That of Saint Peter, 1 Epiſt. Chap. 4. is very expreſs. Foraſmuch therefore as Chriſt has ſuffered for us in the Fleſh, arm your ſelves likewiſe with the ſame mind: for he that hath ſuffered in the Fleſh, hath ceaſed from Sin; that he he no longer should live the rest of his time in the Flesh, to the Lusts of men, but to the Will of God. For the time past of our Lives may suffice to have wrought the Will of the Gentiles, when we walked in Lasciviousness, Lust, Excess of Wine, Revelling, Banquettings and abominable Idolatries. To which Sense he speaks at least as fully, Chap. 2. ver. 19. For this is thank-worthy, if a man for Conscience towards God endure Grief, suffering wrongfully. For even hereunto were ye called; because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an Example, that we should follow his steps; Who did no Sin, neither was Guile found in his mouth; who when he was reviled, reviled not again, when he suffered, threatned not, but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously; who his own self bare our Sins in his own Body on the Tree, that we being dead to Sin, should live unto Righteousness; by whose Stripes we are healed. For ye were as Sheep going astray, but are now returned to the Shepherd and Bishop of your Souls. What can warrant the Use of the Cross for the Cure of Sins more plainly than this?

2. But we will hear also what Saint Paul saith, 2 Tim. Chap. 2. ver. 11. This is a faithful Saying, If we be dead with Christ, then shall we also live with him; if we suffer, we shall also reign with him; if we deny him, he will also deny us. This is most certainly true as well of inward Mortification as of outward Trouble; and the mention of the Death of Christ is to support our Spirits in the enduring of both. And Phil. 3. ver. 10. That I may know Christ, and the Power of his Resurrection, and the Fellowship of his Sufferings, being made conformable to his Death, viz. That as Christ died upon the Cross, so he might be crucified to the World and all the vain Lusts thereof; and those that walk otherwise, he cannot but proclaim them Enemies to the Cross of Christ, whose God is their Belly, and whose Glory is their Shame, who mind earthly things, ver. 19. And Gal. 6. 14. But God forbid that I should glory save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which the World is crucified to me, and I unto the World; that is, the World is but a dead Spectacle to me, my Affections being dead to it. I will close all with that excellent Place, Rom. 6. 3. Know ye not that as many of us as were baptized into the Lord Jesus Christ, were baptized into his Death? Therefore we are buried with him by Baptism into Death, that like as Christ was raised up from the Dead by the Glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of Life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his Death, we shall be also in the likeness of his Resurrection. Knowing this, that our old Man is crucified with him, that the Body of Sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we might not serve Sin. For he that is dead, is freed from Sin.

3. You see how the most urgent Exhortations of the Apostles to kill and overcome our Lusts are back'd and edg'd, if you will, with a Reflexion upon the Crucifixion of our Saviour. Which Allusion, if it were no more than that odd perverse Sect (which I have so often named) would make it (who desire to allegorize away the whole History of Christ to a meer Fable, as if it were nothing but a meer fictitious Representation of things to be morally transacted in us) truly the Argument were nothing. For the Death of a Ram or Goat would serve to represent the sacrificing of our sensual Lusts, rather better than the Death of Christ, who was so innocent a Person. But the stress of the Argument lies in this, That a Person not only so immaculate and innocent, but so holy and sacred, so honourable and divine; that the Son of the living God, declared so from Heaven, foretold evidently by the Mouths of the most infallible Prophets, and that at the distance of so many Ages, and undeniably demonstrated to be such by his own Miracles, and by that Miracle of Miracles, his Resurrection from the Dead, and his visible Ascension into Heaven in the Eyes of his Disciples; that this so noble and divine a Person, that this Son of God should in dear Compassion and Love to Mankind give himself up, not only to a poor despicable beggarly Life, but be contented to be whipped and scourged, and put to a Death both painful and shameful with Thieves and Malefactors, and this meerly to attone the Wrath of God, and open the Gates of Heaven to bewildred Mankind that were wandring further and further from their Primeval Happiness; This is such an Argument as would melt the hardest Heart, and awake the dullest Understanding into a quick and cheerful Apprehension of that Duty that so nearly concerns him, viz. to be, if it were possible, more resolvedly willing to die to all his Sins and worldly Vanities, than Christ was to lay down his life to redeem him from them.

4. This mighty Power of the Death of Christ is of such invincible Efficacy to them that will but seriously dwell upon the Meditation thereof, that no Strong-hold of Sin will be able to resist it; no evil and inordinate Affection, but the consideration of this Passion will calm, keep under, and utterly subdue. The very counting the Circum- ſtances of his Sufferings will put us out of conceit even with thoſe Vices that we have moſt familiarly entertained, and ſtill all thoſe Perturbations and Diſquietneſſes of Mind that the croſſeſt Accidents of the World and our own Weakneſs can expoſe us to. Art thou a Lover of Money? How canſt thou abſtain from bluſhing, whilſt thou remembreſt that Covetouſneſs betrayed and ſold thy Saviour for thirty Pieces of Silver? Or refrain from communicating thy Goods to the Poor, when Chriſt has been ſo prodigal of his Blood for thee? Art thou proud? How canſt thou but be aſhamed to exalt thy ſelf, when

1 Pet. 4. 1. the only begotten Son of God took upon him the Form of a Man, yea of the loweſt ſort of Men, and humbled himſelf, and became obedient unto Death, even the re-
Phil. 2. 5. proachful Death of the Croſs, that he might teach us Humility, that the ſame mind might be in us that was in him, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks? Art thou neglected, ſcorned or reviled? Thy Saviour was buffetted, mocked and ſpit upon. Are thy Inferiours preferred before thee? Barabbas was held a more worthy Perſon than Jeſus. Are thy Friends falſe to thee? Chriſt was betrayed by Judas with a Kiſs. Doſt thou fall from attained, or ſhort of thy expected Honours? Jeſus wore no earthly Crown but that of Thorns, nor Scepter but a Reed, nor any Robe but ſuch as the abuſive Soldiers put on him to make Legs to him and mock him. Art thou traduced for one as not found in thy Religion? Thy Saviour was accuſed as a Blaſphemer. What Motion therefore or Diſturbance of Pride ſhall be able to diſquiet thy Mind, if thou do but reflect on thy Saviour's Sufferings?

5. And for Envy, Hatred and Revenge, how canſt thou harbour the leaſt Touch or Senſe of them, while thou lookeſt upon him who out of love laid down his Life for us, even when we were Enemies to him, yea, for thoſe very Perſons that crucified him, Luke 23. 34. praying unto God for them, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do? And if thou be tranſportable into vain Mirth, what can better calm that light and giddy Tem-
Matth. 26. 38. per than the Remembrance of his Sadneſs, whoſe Soul was ſorrowful even unto Death? And if the higheſt and moſt ſearching Afflictions attempt thee, what can more ſtrongly arm thy Patience, than if thou ruminate on that bitter Cup, the Conſideration whereof put thy Saviour into ſuch an Agony, that he ſweat Drops of Blood that fell down to the Ground? And laſtly, if Luſt and Wantonneſs do aſſault thy Soul, the moſt preſent Remedy is the Contemplation of thy dying Lord and Maſter, who with his out-ſtretched Arms on the Croſs to embrace thee, preſents himſelf a Corrival in thy ſtrongeſt Affections. Look upon his inclined Head, not crowned with Roſes but wounded with Thorns; view his half-cloſed Eyes, heretofore filled and beautified with lucid Spirits, whoſe mild Motions were the perpetual Interpreters of his Kindneſs and Compaſſion to the Sons of Men, but now overcaſt with the heavy Cloud of Death. Kiſs his cold and pale Lips, and receive his laſt Breath, and tell me if thou didſt not hear this Whiſper in it, Canſt thou love any thing better than me, who out of love do undergo this painful and reproachful Death for thee?

6. But what I have appropriated to this fooliſh Paſſion of Wantonneſs, may equally take place in any inordinate Affection; and our Saviour may juſtly expoſtulate and complain how unkindly, how ungratefully he is dealt with, when his pretended Diſciples refuſe to mortifie any Luſt whatſoever for him, who gave up himſelf to the moſt ignominious Death for them. This Conſideration is ſo urgent and convictive, that none that have the leaſt ſpark of Ingenuity can be able to reſiſt it. And therefore whatever conceited high-flown Fools may imagine of the Croſs of Chriſt and the Meditation of his Crucifixion, as a thing that may rather fit Children in Chriſtianity than grown Men; I ſay, it is the great Power of God to Salvation: and ſo long as a Man finds any Sin in him, he is to have Recourſe to it for his Cure, as the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs as often as they were bit with the fiery flying Serpents, were to look up to the Brazen Serpent which Moſes had erected in their Camp. And thoſe that make no uſe of the Benefit thereof, I ſhould ſuſpect them to be no Iſraelites, but a Generation of Vipers or Serpents themſelves, to whom the Poiſon of ſin is ſo congenerous, that it is their Nature and Pleaſure, no Pain at all to them; ſo that they deſire no Cure, but flee from the Croſs, as Scorpions do quit the Place where a Teleſme is erected againſt them.

7. But our Saviour Chriſt knew the Power and Efficacy of his Paſſion ſo well, that he made a ſpecial Proviſion for the Commemoration of that often which it was fit he ſhould ſuffer but once. This we uſually call the Euchariſt or the holy Communion. A Solemnity never to be antiquated, till our Saviour return again to Judgment viſibly in the Clouds of Heaven, as St. Paul intimateth, 1 Cor. 11. 26. For as often as you eat this Bread, or drink this Cup, you do ſhew the Lord's Death till he come. For the ſolid Uſe of it cannot ceaſe till then when all is accompliſhed. For ſo long as Men are to have any Growth in Godlineſs, or to animate themſelves to any holy Deſigns, or Sin is to be be encountred with or Thanks to be given for the Victories of the Croſs, the holy Euchariſt cannot poſſibly ceaſe.

For the moſt proper Preparation for the receiving of the Sacrament is a ſerious Meditation on the Paſſion of Chriſt, which is commemorated therein. The Conſideration whereof, what mighty Power and Efficacy it has for the vanquiſhing and ſubduing of all manner of Sins and Corruptions, I have given ſufficient Intimation. So that every Celebration of the Communion ſhould be as it were a repeated Reſolution and corroborated Conſpiracy in the Blood of the New Covenant, to do our utmoſt againſt all the Powers of Sin, of Darkneſs, and of the Devil; and this upon the Senſe of that great Love and Loyalty we owe to our dear Saviour and Sovereign Jeſus Chriſt, who died for us, and poured out his own Blood to glue and cement us to himſelf and to one another. So that the Myſtery of Chriſtian Religion is a Myſtery of the deepeſt and deareſt Friendſhip, and of the moſt indiſſoluble Union of Affection that can poſſibly be excogitated. Wherein neither Diſtance of Place nor Time can make any Diviſion, but it holds together Heaven and Earth, and binds what is paſt to what is preſent, and actuates and invigorates what is preſent, to a proſperous and ſucceſsful bringing on that which is to come. Thus it is with all thoſe that are true Chriſtians, and do really communicate in the Blood of Chriſt; They have one Mind and one Heart, they have one Vote and one Intereſt, which is the Advancement of the Kingdom of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in the World in Truth and Holineſs, and that Chriſtian Peace, Faith, and Love, may flouriſh even to the Ends of the Earth.

CHAP. XVII.

1. The ſixth Goſpel-Power is the Reſurrection and Aſcenſion of Chriſt. The Privilege of this Demonſtration of the Soul's Immortality above that from the Subtilty of Reaſon and Philoſophy. 2. The great Power this Conſideration of the Soul's Immortality has to urge Men to a godly Life: 3. To wean themſelves from worldly Pleaſures, and learn to delight in thoſe that are everlaſting. 4. To have our Converſation in Heaven. 5. The Conditions of the everlaſting Inheritance. 6. Further Enforcements of Duty from the Soul's Immortality.

1. THE ſixth Goſpel Power is the Contemplation of the Reſurrection and Aſcenſion of Chriſt; in reſpect of which ſtupendious Event, the Apoſtle has declared how it is Chriſt Jeſus that has aboliſhed Death, and brought Life and Immortality to light through the Goſpel. For truly whatſoever Traditions there were amongſt the Jewiſh Rabbins, whatever Diſquiſitions or Concluſions amongſt the Philoſophers, whether Platoniſts or Ariſtoteleans, concerning the Soul's Immortality, they were either ſo uncertain and fallacious in themſelves, or ſo ſubtile and unintelligible to the People, that they could not ſatisfie the World concerning this ſo important a matter. And if a Man ſhould write never ſo accurately and apodictically of this point, the Uſe thereof would reach but to a few, namely ſuch as are of a very patient and comprehenſive Spirit, that have leiſure and take delight in peruſing of ſubtile and cloſe-wrought Contextures of Reaſon; which to moſt Men is a toilſome and tedious thing. And when a Man has writ and read all he can of this Subject, and has met with the very beſt and moſt demonſtrative Arguments for the Concluſion; yet for Uſe and Service, the Recollection of them is voluminous and cumberſome, as well as the Collections from them doubtful and fallible, at leaſt to them that are not fully Maſters of their Reaſon. But on the other hand, as the Reſurrection and Aſcenſion of our Saviour is certain, as known to be de facto, and confirmed by abundance of Witneſſes; ſo is the Remembrance and Repreſentation of it to our Minds at once, and ſtrikes ſtrong upon our Fancy, and reaches our Reaſon with that powerful Conviction, that believing this, we cannot any longer doubt of either the Exiſtence of God, or our own Immortality. And if we once be but well aſſured of the Exiſtence of God and of our own Immortal State after this Life, methinks this alone ſhould be able to lift us above all the Snares that Satan has laid in this World to entangle us. 2 Tim. 1. 10.

2. Mor-

2. Mortality, one would think, if well conſidered, might give us ſome Check from too eager Purſuit of Honours and Riches, from worldly Plots and Deſigns, as alſo (for fear of Diſeaſes that accelerate Death) from over-laviſh Indulgence to Senſuality and Intemperance. But the Certainty of a Life to come, the Condition whereof ſhall be ſuch as our Demeanour here lays the Seeds of, whether for Happineſs or Miſery, and that in a meaſure unſpeakably above what happens, or can happen in this Life; this Conſideration muſt have ſuch Vertue in it, if we duly meditate upon it, that it ſhould win us with all Willingneſs to forſake all the unlawful Pleaſures and Projects of this tranſient World, to get ſome ſure Intereſt in that which is to come, and not to truſt all in one bottom, if any thing at all, I mean in the leaking Veſſel of this mortal Body, which is ever and anon ready to ſink or topple over, and ſo to drown all the Hopes we placed in it. Wherefore, as ye heard out of St. Peter,

1 Pet. 2. 11. we are like Strangers and Pilgrims in this Life, to abſtain from fleſhly Luſts which war againſt the Soul; that our Minds going out impolluted and pure from the Foulneſs and Contagion of this defiled Earth they ſojourn in, may be received into the hap-

Heb. 12. 23. py Society of the Spirits of juſt Men made perfect, as the Author to the Hebrews ſpeaks. Whenas if they go out foul and impure, their Reception muſt be accordingly, they being given up into the Power of thoſe deformed Fiends of Hell, the very Thoughts of whoſe Sight and Company might be enough to affright any Man that is not atheiſtically fortiſh from aſſimilating himſelf to thoſe naſty Goal-Birds by repeated Acts of Vice and Wickedneſs. Beſides what ſmart of Puniſhment ſhall reach both their outward Senſes and guilty Conſciences by the inevitable Rod of God's Juſtice upon them.

3. Wherefore it is moſt indiſpenſably rational, to uſe this World as if we uſed it not, and to addict our ſelves to ſuch Pleaſures as are moſt proper to the other State; ſuch as are thoſe moſt delicious Touches and Senſes of the Divine Love, or that pure and intellectual Affection which St. Paul calls Charity: Whereby we delight in the Good of another, as if it were our own; whereby we rejoice in the Wiſdom and Goodneſs of God diſplaied in his Creatures; whereby we ardently deſire the Advancement of the Kingdom of Chriſt infinitely before any private Advantage whatſoever, and do faithfully aſſiſt and earneſtly expect the joyful Accompliſhment and finiſhing of the great Myſtery of Godlineſs in the fulleſt Period thereof, to a final Triumph over Sin and Satan, and a perfect Redemption of the Church of Chriſt into the glorious Liberty of the Sons of God.

4. Theſe are the warrantable Pleaſures of the Soul that has a Deſign upon the Life to come, of a Soul that is riſen with Chriſt, and therefore ſeeks thoſe things

Col. 3. 1. that are above, where Chriſt ſitteth on the Right hand of God. And upon this very Conſideration the Apoſtle enforceth his Exhortation, Col. 3. Mortifie therefore your Members which are upon Earth, Fornication, Uncleanneſs, inordinate Affection, evil Concupiſcence, and Covetouſneſs which is Idolatry. And our Saviour in his Sermon on

Mat. 6. 19. the Mount, Lay not up for your ſelves Treaſures upon Earth, where Moth and Ruſt doth corrupt, and where Thieves break through and ſteal: But lay up for your ſelves Treaſures in Heaven, where neither Moth nor Ruſt doth corrupt, nor Thieves break through and ſteal. For where your Treaſure is, there will your Heart be alſo. And therefore St. Paul profeſſes of himſelf (and exhorts others to imitate him) that his Mind is wholly taken up with thoſe things which are above, Phil. 3. 17. Brethren, be Followers of me, and mark them that walk ſo as ye have us for an Example. For our Converſation, τὸ πολίτευμα ἡμῶν, our municipal Affairs, our Negotiations of greateſt Concernment are in Heaven, of which City we are, and from whence we look for our Saviour the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who ſhall change our vile Bodies, that they may be faſhioned like to his glorious Body, according to the working whereby he is able even to ſubdue all things unto himſelf.

5. And verily he that through Faith is once poſſeſt of theſe things, it is a Wonder to me how he can think of any thing elſe: As the Priſoner could not abſtain from the Pleaſure of thinking of the known Day of his Liberty, or a poor Man of an Inheritance that would certainly fall to him within the Term of a few Years. And if it were Conditional, as this of the Kingdom of Heaven is, we may eaſily conceive how much he were concerned to have a Care punctually to obſerve the Conditions propounded, or earneſtly to endeavour to get ſuch Qualifications as that he may not forfeit the Enjoyment of that Fortune which otherwiſe would naturally fall to his Share. And how they are of neceſſity to be qualified that are to be Heirs of that everlaſting Inheritance, the Scripture doth plainly ſet out; there muſt no unclean thing enter into the Holy City. None can be Heirs of this Kingdom but the Revel. 21. 27.

Sons

Sons of God, nor any be the Sons of God but thoſe that are led by the Spirit of God, Rom. 8. And what are the Fruits and Effects of that domeſtick Guide, the Apoſtle has plainly told us already, Gal. 5. That the Fruits of the Spirit are Love, Joy, Peace, Long-ſuffering, Gentleneſs, Goodneſs, Faith, Meekneſs, Temperance. And they that are Chriſt's (in whoſe Title alone it is that we can lay claim to Heaven) have crucified the Fleſh with the Affections and Luſts thereof. And again, Rom. 8. 13. If ye live after the Fleſh, ye ſhall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortifie the Deeds of the Body, ye ſhall live: that is to ſay, ye ſhall live the Life of Peace and Joy and Righteouſneſs here, and of Eternal Glory hereafter.

6. Wherefore we ſee what an urgent Power the Meditation of future Happineſs is to the Believer, to make him endeavour to the utmoſt to be Partaker of the Divine Nature, and to aſpire to a due meaſure of Holineſs, without which we ſhall neceſſarily be fruſtrate of our expected Happineſs. The Conſideration whereof cannot but wean him from all the exorbitant Deſires of the Pleaſures, Profits, or Honours of this World. Which though they had not intermingled with them many Vexations and Diſtaſtes, much Care and Solicitude, but were certain for this Life and entire; yet Life being uncertain, and the longeſt Term thereof but like a Dream, or a Poſt that goes by, in compariſon of our future Abode elſewhere, I dare leave it to the Worldly Man's own Computation, what a pitiful Bargain he has made in forgoing what is to come for theſe temporary Enjoyments: worſe far than he that ſold his Birth-right for a Meſs of Pottage. But I ſhall not dilate any further on ſo plain a Matter. Verily all the Wit and Rhetorick of Man cannot move him whom thoſe known, but weighty Words of our Saviour will not; What will it profit a Man to gain the whole World, and to loſe his own Soul? Or what ſhall a Man give in exchange for his Soul? Mark 8. 36.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. The Day of Judgment, the ſeventh and laſt Goſpel-Power, fit as well for the Regenerate as the Unregenerate to think upon. 2. The Uncertainty of that Day, and that it will ſurprize the Wicked unawares. 3. That thoſe that wilfully reject the Offers of Grace here, ſhall be in no other Condition after Death than the Devils themſelves are. 4. A Deſcription of the ſad Evening-cloſe of that terrible Day of the Lord. 5. The Affrightment of the Morning-appearance thereof to the Wicked. 6. A further Deſcription thereof. 7. The Tranſlation of the Church of Chriſt to their Æthereal Manſions, with a brief Deſcription of their Heavenly Happineſs.

1. WE come now to the Seventh and Laſt Power of the Goſpel, which is The Conſideration of the dreadful Solemnity of the Day of Judgment; the very Mention whereof from the Mouth of Paul made Felix the Governour to tremble. And I muſt confeſs it is ſo hard an Engine, that it is more fit to beat upon the obdurate Hearts of the Unbeliever and Unregenerate, that are cruſted over with Iron and Flint, than for Battery againſt the truly regenerate and ſincere Believers; for thoſe other Powers of the Goſpel are more proper and abundantly ſufficient for carrying them on with Courage and Conſtancy in the Ways of God. But there is in the Day of Judgment an Object not misbeſeeming their moſt ſerious Thoughts; which is the perfecting and finiſhing of the Redemption of the Godly. We ſhall not all ſleep, but we ſhall all be changed, and that for the better. For whatever is mortal, then ſhall put on Immortality; and none of the Saints ſhall be worſe clothed than in a Body of an Heavenly and Æthereal Conſiſtence. This is that incorruptible Crown of Glory, of Life and of Righteouſneſs, which the Apoſtles mention, and St. Paul expreſly declares to be laid up for him againſt that Day, namely, the Day of Judgment; Henceforth there is laid up for me a Crown of Righteouſneſs, which the Lord the righteous Judge ſhall give me at that Day, and not me alone, but to all thoſe that Love his appearing: that is to ſay, Whoſe Affections and Conſciences are ſo ſincere, that they longingly expect when he will conſummate and finiſh the Happineſs of his Church; and ſhould be ſo far from Fear, that their Hearts would exult for Joy, to hear the Sound of the Trump, and ſee the Sky grow bright by the over-ſpreading of his heavenly Camp in the Air. 1 Cor. 15. 51. 2 Tim. 4. 8.

2. This

2. This Meditation therefore reaching as well the Unconverted as the Converted, it had been ill omitted of us. And that it may take the better Effect, we are to ſuggeſt what will be able to break down or prevent ſuch falſe and fooliſh Fortifications as the Mind of Man may rear up againſt it, to bear off the powerful Aſſaults it makes upon his Soul and Conſcience. Theſe are chiefly two. The one, The long Interval of time from hence to that Day, which makes the Terrour thereof little, as things ſeem leſs the farther they are removed from our Eyes. The ſecond is, The Hope that within ſo long a Space they may have time to repent and be converted, though they live as they liſt in this Life: For they may prepare themſelves for that Day in the other Life which is to come. But to the firſt I anſwer, That the Approach of this Day is very uncertain, (by reaſon of the Obſcurity of Prophecies and of the very Completions of them) and is left ſo, for the preſent Exerciſe of the good, and the perpetual Vexation of the Wicked both in this State of things and that which is to come. His Appearance therefore will be ſudden like a Comet or Blazing-Star, which no Man could tell when it would firſt appear; but more terrible and minacious by far, not threatning the Death of this or that Prince, or the Change of this or that State, but the overturning of all States and Kingdoms, and the burning up the Earth with all the Works and Inhabitants thereof with unquenchable Fire. And ſurely that Evil which a Man does not know but may begin to morrow, if duely thought upon, cannot ſeem at a great Diſtance, but near at hand, and ready to ſurprize him.

3. To the other I anſwer, That he that wilfully rejects the Offers of Grace and Opportunities of becoming holy and good in This Life, he ſhall have no more Priviledge in the other, than the Devils themſelves have, who as St. Jude expreſly tells us, are reſerved in everlaſting Chains of Darkneſs unto the Judgment of the great Day; who ſhall then inevitably undergo the Fate of Sodom and Gommorrha, who are ſet forth for an Example, ſuffering the Vengeance of eternal Fire. And what manner of Perſons theſe are, Jude and Peter have both very graphically deſcribed: ſuch as had totally evaded all Obligation to true Holineſs and Righteouſneſs, and were of an impure and ſoul Converſation, Filthy Dreamers, defiling the Fleſh, deſpiſing Dominion, and ſpeaking evil of Dignities; Followers of Balaam, perverting the Truth for a Reward; Spots in the Chriſtian Societies, feeding themſelves without fear; Clouds without Water, blown about with every Wind of falſe Doctrine; fruitleſs Trees; raging Waves of the Sea foaming out their Shame; Wandring Stars to whom is reſerved the Blackneſs of Darkneſs for ever. No more hope of them therefore than of Lucifer and his accurſed Accomplices. And St. Peter pronounces the ſame Sentence of them, for they are plainly the ſame Perſons, namely, bold and daring Spirits, arrogant and ſelf-conceited, deſpiſing Government and reproaching Authority; ſuch as ſpeaking great ſwelling Words of Vanity, allure through the Luſts of the Fleſh, in much Wantonneſs, thoſe that were clean eſcaped from them that live in Errour; Day-Rioters, having their Eyes full of Adultery, that cannot ceaſe from Sin, or forbear the recommending of the Liberty thereof to others, but beguile unſtable Souls; Having their Hearts exerciſed with crafty and covetous Practices; Wells without Water; Clouds carried about with Tempeſts, adjudged to utter Darkneſs for ever. For with the Devils they are caſt down into Hell, and delivered up even as they to Chains of Darkneſs, to be reſerved to the Day of Judgement, 2 Pet. 2. So that there is no more Hope of ſuch impenitent Sinners that have laid waſte their Conſciences, and wilfully neglected or reſiſted the manifold Convictions, clear Illuminations, and frequent Offers of Grace and Aſſiſtance from the Diſpenſations of the Goſpel, after this Life, than there is of thoſe old Apoſtates, the wicked Spirits that are kept as Priſoners in Hell, till that fearful and terrible Day of the Lord.

2 Pet. 2. 10, 14, 17.

4. That Day of the Lord wherein all unbelieving Fleſh ſhall tremble, and every Face gather Blackneſs. For this will prove a Day of Wrath indeed, a Day of Anguiſh and Diſtreſs, a Day of Devaſtation and Deſolateneſs, a Day of Darkneſs and of Gloominеſs, a Day of Clouds and of thick Darkneſs; a Day of the Trumpet and Alarm againſt the fenced Cities and the High-Towers, not of Judah only, but againſt all the Nations of the Earth. For the Lord himſelf will deſcend from Heaven to revenge him of his Enemies. He ſhall take to him his Jealouſie for compleat Armour, and turn the whole Creation into Weapons of his Diſpleaſure. He will take the invincible Shield of his Holineſs, and his ſevere Wrath ſhall be ſharpened for a Sword, and the World ſhall fight with him againſt the unwiſe. Then ſhall the right-aiming Thunderbolts go abroad, and from the Clouds as from a well-drawn Bow ſhall they fly to the Mark. And Hail-ſtones of Wrath ſhall be caſt as out of a Stone-Bow, and the Waters of the Sea ſhall boil and rage againſt againſt them, and hot ſcalding Flouds ſhall over-flow them and drown them: and they ſhall be blown about with fiery Winds, and wearied out with the Whirlwind, and they ſhall have no Peace nor Solace for ever. The Moon and Stars ſhall withdraw their ſhining, and the Sun ſhall be turned into Blood. For nothing but Miſts and Fogs and Stench, nothing but ſulphureous Vapours, ſmoring Heat, dark Clouds charged with horrid Thunder and Lightning, immenſe Earthquakes and innumerable Eruptions of ſubterraneous Flames, crackling Volcanoes, ſmoaking Mountains, high Flakes and tortuous Streams of Fire from burning Forreſts and Woods, loud Shreeks and Howlings of affrighted Men and Beaſts, grim and griſly Apparitions, deep and dreadful Groans of tormented Ghoſts; nothing but ſuch uncomfortable Objects as theſe ſhall fill up the Scene of the Earth and Air, when once that Final Vengeance has ſeiſed upon the Wicked.

Zeph. 1. 15.

Wiſd. 5. 17.

5. This is the ſad Evening-cloſe of that terrible Day of the Lord; and the Morning-Appearance thereof will not be much more chearful to either the Hypocrite or profane Perſon. For the Hopes of the Hypocrite cannot but fail, and his Heart ſink like a Stone, while he ſees the righteous Judge that tries the Heart and Reins coming in the Clouds of Heaven to execute Vengeance on the wicked, and to deliver the godly from that imminent Fate that attends the Earth. And the proud ſcoffing Epicurean that laugh'd at Religion as a piece of Weakneſs and Foolery, and impudently denied there was either God or Providence in the World, he will then to his utter Shame and Confuſion acknowledge his own Philoſophy, which he thought ſuch an high piece of Wit before, the moſt unhappy Folly and Madneſs he could have light upon. For he ſhall be confuted to his very outward Senſes, when he ſhall ſee Chriſt himſelf appear with all his heavenly Hoſt attending him; when he ſhall hear the ſound of the Trump, and ſee forthwith the whole Air filled with his glittering Legions conſiſting of Saints and Angels. For the Trump ſhall ſound, ſaith the Apoſtle, and then thoſe that have already departed this Life ſhall immediately appear in their celeſtial Harneſs, in their glorified Bodies. For thoſe that are alive ſhall not prevent thoſe that are dead, but rather the contrary. For thoſe that ſleep in Jeſus will God bring with him, and harneſs them with the bright Armour of Life and Immortality, whereby they become part of that glorious Angelical Hoſt wherewith our dread Sovereign and bleſſed Saviour Jeſus Chriſt will face the Earth a while, to the exceeding great Aſtoniſhment and Terrour of the wicked World.

6. Out of which by the Miniſtry of his Angelical Troops will he gather his Saints that are found alive in the Fleſh from all the Corners of the Earth, as the Angels plucked Lot out of Sodom, when the City was to be deſtroyed with Fire and Brimſtone from Heaven; a Type queſtionleſs of this final Judgment. And whether it be by the quick Deſcent of fiery Chariots, like that of Elias, who was ſafely thereby conveyed to Heaven, and about a thouſand years after converſed with our Saviour on the Mount; or bright ſhining Clouds, gliſtering with the Glory and Luſter of their celeſtial Guides, be made Foot-ſtools for them to get up on (for there is no fear that the weight of their Bodies ſhould break through, their Earth and Fleſh being of a ſudden changed into pure Æther) or whatever other Pomp and Solemnity there may be in their Tranſportation from the reſt of the World unto that glorious Company that ſtrikes all Mens Eyes with Amazement, while they look up into the Sky; This viſible Selection of the Good from the Bad muſt needs fill the Hearts of the Wicked with unſpeakable Dread and Horrour.

And that partly by reaſon of the preſent Wonders of this unexpected ſupernatural Viſitation, which thus ſuddenly has ſurpriſed them through Unbelief; and partly from the ſad Preſage of what will follow, even that horrid and diſmal Tempeſt which we have already deſcribed, that endleſs Night of Thunders and Lightnings and Earthquakes, of Roarings and Howlings and utter Confuſion and Deſtruction for ever.

7. Which direful Vengeance having once entred upon that execrable Crue, forſaken of God and given up to the mercileſs Rage of the incenſed Elements, the victorious Church of Chriſt retreats with the reſt of the Angelical Hoſts, marching up the Ethereal Regions in goodly Order and lovely Equipage, filling as they go along the re-echoing Sky with Songs of Joy and Triumph. For this is the greateſt Day of Solemnity, the higheſt Feſtival that can be celebrated in the Heavens; whoſe Inhabitants if they rejoice at the Converſion of one Sinner, what Joy and Rejoicing muſt they expreſs at the complete Redemption of the whole Church? When Jeſus Chriſt the Prince of our Salvation, who is able to ſave to the utmoſt*, has perfectly redeemed us Body and Soul, and leading Captivity captive, reſcuing us from the Power of Hell, Death and the Devil, does reſettle us again in our own Land, and re-eſtabliſh us into the ancient Liberties of the Sons of God, making us Fellow-citizens with the pure and unpolluted Angels, and free Partakers of all the Rights and Immunities of the celeſtial Kingdom; even of that Kingdom where there is Order and Government without Envy and Oppreſſion, Devotion without Superſtition, Beauty without Blemiſh, Love without Luſt, Sweetneſs without Satiety; where there is outward Splendidneſs without Pride, Muſick without Harſhneſs, Friendſhip without Deſign, Wiſdom without Wrinkles, and Wit without Vain-glory; where there is Kindneſs without Craft, Activity without Wearineſs, Health without Sickneſs, and Pleaſure without Pain; and laſtly, where there is the Viſion of God, the Society of Chriſt, the Familiarity of Angels, and Communion of Saints; where there is Love and Joy and Peace and Life for evermore.

* Heb. 7. 25.

Upon the Conſideration of which ineffable Happineſs, what Inference can be more 1 Cor. 15. 58. genuine than what St. Paul has made already on the ſame Subject? Wherefore, my beloved Brethren, be ſtedfaſt, unmoveable, always abounding in the Work of the Lord; foraſmuch as ye know that your Labour is not in vain in the Lord.

CHAP. XIX.

1. That there can be no Religion more powerful for the promoting of the Divine Life than Chriſtianity is. 2. The external Triumph of the Divine Life in the perſon of Chriſt how throughly warranted and how fully performed. 3. The Religious Splendour of Chriſtendom. 4. The Spirit of Religion Stifled with the load of Formalities. 5. The ſatisfaction that the faithfully-devoted Servants of Chriſt have from that Divine Homage done to his Perſon, though by the wicked.

1. I Have now ſufficiently expoſed to your view the Nature and Uſe of this ſevenfold Engine, theſe Seven Powers of the Goſpel, how potent they are to beat down every ſtrong hold of ſin, and to raiſe up the divine Life and Spirit of Righteouſneſs in us. That they have done ſo little execution in Chriſtendom hitherto, that diſquiſition I ſhall defer till its due place. In the mean time I appeal to all the World if there can be invented a Religion more powerful for this purpoſe than the Chriſtian Religion is.

2. But for the external Triumphs of the Divine Life in reference to the Perſon of Chriſt, the Uſefulneſs of our Religion in that Point is demonſtrable not only from the Frame thereof in it ſelf, but from the long and conſtant Effects it has had in the Chriſtian World. For as for the Frame of our Religion, we have therein a full Warrant to do the higheſt Divine Homage to Chriſt that we can expreſs; he being ſo clearly therein declared The true Son of God, not only by ſeveral Teſtimonies from Heaven, but alſo by that ſupernatural manner of his Generation in the Womb of the Virgin by the overſhadowing of the Holy Ghoſt, by his myſterious Union with the Eternal Word, by his miraculous Reſurrection from the Dead, and by his viſible Aſcenſion into Heaven, and Seſſion now at the right Hand of his Father. This is warrant enough to do all Divine Homage to our bleſſed Saviour, as to the only-begotten Son of God. And truly the Church, to give them their due, has not been ſparing; the very Conſtitution of our Religion being ſo effectual for this Purpoſe. For ſo Divine a Perſon as Chriſt was, namely, The very Son of God, and yet condeſcending to undergo ſo horrid a Death for the World; how could engaged Mankind ſtint themſelves from ſhewing all manner of Expreſſions of Love and Devotion toward him?

3. Wherefore they erected innumerable magnificent Structures of Temples, Chapels, and other religious Edifices, and conſecrated them to his Name: They endowed the Chriſtian Prieſthood with ample Riches and Dignities; ſet up Church-muſick, ſung Divine Anthems in Honour of our Saviour, adorned their Churches, celebrated his Paſſion with unexpreſſible Reverence and Devotion, inſtituted Feſtivals, and filled both Time and Place with ſuch Variety of Ornaments, that a Man might obſerve that the greateſt part of the Splendour and Pomp of Chriſtendom was in reference to their Religion. Which certainly would have been a very goodly and lovely Spectacle, if Superſtition, Hypocriſie, and Eccleſiaſtick Tyranny could have been kept out.

4. But

4. But this External Worſhip and the Ceremonies thereof, things equally performable by the Evil and the Good, by the Regenerate and meer natural Man, theſe took Growth enormouſly, and like rank Weeds choaked the Corn: Or, what happens in full and over-fed Bodies, in which natural Heat and Activity is very much loſt, the huge Load and Bulk of viſible Formalities extinguiſhed the Life and Spirit of Religion.

5. But, however, this outward Homage to our Saviour continued and does continue in a great meaſure over the Face of Chriſtendom to this very day, though their Expreſſions are not alike ſplendid and courtly every where. Which Continuation of Divine Honour done unto him cannot but gratifie his faithfully devoted Servants, they having a deep Reſentment of the ſhameful Sufferings their Lord and Maſter underwent out of his dear Love to them; and therefore do naturally rejoice at this Tribute of divine Adoration the World gives to ſo holy and ſacred a Perſon, it being ſo ſutable a Part of Compenſation of his Humiliation and Reproach. Beſides that they receive ſome ſatisfaction, that divine Providence has ſo brought it about touching the true Members of Chriſt, whoſe Principles are ſo oppoſite to the Guiſe of the World, and their Perſons ſo hated and contemptible, that yet the World are fain with the loweſt Proſtrations to adore that in Chriſt, which they kick about and trample upon ſo in his deſpiſed Members.

But I will inſiſt no longer on this Theme, having ſpoke enough of it elſewhere. We have now ſhewn the Uſefulneſs of the Myſtery of Godlineſs in all holy and religious Reſpects: I ſhall add only a Word or two in reference to things of this Life, and ſo conclude the fourth Part of my Diſcourſe.

CHAP. XX.

1. The Uſefulneſs of Chriſtianity for the good of this Life, witneſſed by our Savoiur and S. Paul. 2. The Proof thereof from the Nature of the thing it ſelf. 3. Objections againſt Chriſtianity, as if it were an unfit Religion for States Politick. 4. A Conceſſion that the primary Intention of the Goſpel was not Government Political, with the Advantage of that Conceſſion. 5. That there is nothing in Chriſtianity but what is highly advantageous to a State-Politick. 6. That thoſe very things they object againſt it are ſuch as do moſt effectually reach the chief End of Political Government, as doth Charity for Example. 7. Humility, Patience, and Mortification of inordinate Deſires. 8. The invincible Valour that the Love of Chriſt and their Fellow-members inſpires the Chriſtian Soldiery withal.

1. THat Chriſtianity contributes alſo to the Happineſs of this preſent World, is evident both from the Teſtimony of Chriſt and his Apoſtles, and alſo from the nature of the thing it ſelf, Matth. 6. Where our Saviour having exhorted us not to be over-ſollicitous for the things of this Life, Food and Raiment; ſetting before our Eyes the Care of Divine Providence in Creatures of far leſs Price than our ſelves; how the Fowls of the Air are provided for, that neither ſow nor reap, nor gather into Barns; how glorioufly the Lillies of the Field are arraied, that neither weave nor ſpin: he concludes, That we ſhould not ſo eagerly and carefully ſeek after thoſe things as worldly-minded Men do; But ſeeke ye firſt the Kingdom of God (ſaith he) and his Righteouſneſs, and all theſe things ſhall be added unto you. For your heavenly Father knows that ye have need of all theſe things. And Paul to Timothy, Godlineſs is profitable for all things, having the Promiſe of this Life and that which is to come. 1 Tim. 4. 8.

2. And if we conſider the Nature of the thing it ſelf, there is an accruement of preſent Happineſs from true Chriſtianity, not only by virtue of Promiſe, but even by natural Dependance of Cauſes and Events; eſpecially when that Chriſtian Frame of Spirit has arrived to any conſiderable degree of Perfection and Maturity. For there is no ſuch obliging Perſon in the World as a mature and ripe Chriſtian, nor any truer Policy than to be obliging. Which Temper of Mind the more ſincere it is, the more taking it is, and the more ſure Fortreſs againſt adverſe Fortune. Wherefore what Advantage Humanity has, he has it in the greateſt meaſure. Beſides that his calm and caſtigate Spirit makes him ſenſible and diſcreet above all expreſſion, and of a Sagacity beyond all Conceit of the unregenerate Man. His Faithfulneſs alſo and honeſt and chearful Induſtry have their proper Blessing attending them. And his moderate Desires of Riches and Honours and his laudable Use of them, unblemished with any Blot of either sordid Covetousness or vain Ostentation, prevents or beats back the ill-aimed Darts of secret Malice and Envy. And if but a meaner Share of the things of this World be allotted to him, yet his Contentments are not the less, he finding that true which both David and Solomon have pronounced, That better is a little that the Righteous has than great Possessions of the ungodly. And when more unsupportable Pressures and Afflictions fall upon him, such as great Fits of Sickness, Imprisonment, and the Approaches of Death, his Advantages even in this Condition are unspeakably above what any other Mortal is capable of. For the more these urge his outward Man, the more his inward is inflamed and excited to the Exercise of those Powers that are most holy and precious; and needing no Admonition, (though so fit and opposite as that of Epictetus, Νῦν ἔξεστιν ὁ ἀγὼν, νῦν πάρεστι τὰ Ολύμπια) the Circumstances of things themselves will assuredly awaken this Christian Champion to the Exertion of all the Strength of his Soul, and to the successful Use of his spiritual Weapons wherewith he is armed against the Day of Battel. For Faith and Devotion and invigorated Meditations of the other State will so fortifie his Spirits and strengthen his Mind, that in all this Affliction he will become more than Conqueror through the Power of Christ that enables him to all things. And by how much the Enjoyments of this present Life are diminished, the more his Thoughts are cast upon those that are to come.

Psal. 37. 16. Prov. 16. 8.

3. This brief Intimation shall suffice to shew how serviceable Christianity is for Comfort and Solace in this present Life to every true Christian in his private Capacities. But I must not omit to discover also that Advantage which a Communialty has by becoming truly Christian. Which I am forced to the rather, because some have not stuck to pronounce of Christianity as of a Religion never intended for Bodies Politick, and very disadvantageous for Publick Concerns: As if Christian Humility, Mortification of the Flesh, and Patience of Injuries, would so cow and soften a Nation, that it would make them as helpless as innocent, and thus betray them to the victorious Fierceness of their invading Neighbours; and the Precepts of Charity so indispensably urged but slacken the Hands of those that are able to work, and fill the whole Land with lazy Beggars. Such like Cavils as these have some ill-willers, not only to Christian Religion, but (as I suspect) to any Religion that would curb their inordinate Affections, invented and cast abroad; but more to the Detection of their own Ignorance, than of any Imperfection or Unfitness in Christianity, whereby it may not be the Religion of the most flourishing States and Kingdoms that can be constituted.

4. In answer therefore to the proposed Objections, I will in the first place acknowledge with them, That the Gospel was not intended primarily for the Advantages of this Life, nor bore in it any politick Design for the Administration of publick Affairs of State; but for making Men in their private Capacities good and happy, and for working their Spirits into such a Frame of Life and Holiness as would most certainly assure them of that Joy and Glory that is laid up for Believers in the other World. But withal I cannot but take notice, By how much it is plain that there is no political or Worldly Design in the Gospel, by so much the more evident it is that there is no Deceit nor Falshood therein; and that it is not the cunning Contrivance of some crafty Law-giver, but an holy, sincere and infallible Testimony of the Will of God concerning the true Way of Salvation, and of the everlasting Happiness of the Souls of Men.

5. But though I have been so liberal as to allow them thus much, yet I deny, That there is any thing in Christian Religion but what is not only not inconsistent with, but highly advantageous to a State or Kingdom that becomes truly Christian. For empty Noises and Names of things do nothing. Wherefore I shall affirm, That whatever Advantages other Religions may be thought to have for conscientious Obedience to the Supreme Powers and faithful Dealing betwixt Man and Man, (which is the Universal Scope of all Religions as they are made serviceable to Bodies Politick) Christianity has these, and upon more evident and unquestionable Grounds than any Religion else whatsoever. For what Religion is there in the World that can give that Demonstration of a Life to come, that Christianity doth in the Resurrection of our blessed Saviour, that infallible Pledge of immortal Happiness to all his Followers? The Truth therefore of Christian Religion rightly represented, being so irrefutably convincing to both the Learned and the Unlearned, the Heart and Conscience not only of the People but also of the Magistrate will be the more irresistibly bound to the Performance of their mutual Duties one to another. The Result whereof is an unviounviolable Peace, and with that, all ſuch Comforts of Life as the beſt Laws and Governments pretend to aim at for making a Nation happy.

6. Nay I add further, that thoſe things that they object againſt Chriſtianity are ſuch as, if a Nation become truly Chriſtian, do moſt effectually reach the chiefeſt Ends of Political Government. Of which one main one is mutual Succour in time of need. And what is more proper for this than Charity? Nor is there any fear that this Proneneſs to help one another ſhall relaxate the Endeavours of the Generality of the Body Politick, but it only ſweetens their Care and Induſtry, and takes off that torturous Solicitude that muſt naturally attend thoſe that know too well, that if they cannot hold up themſelves, they muſt certainly periſh. Which deſperate Conſideration forces them to all poſſible Tricks and Frauds for Self-preſervation. Which Uncomfortableneſs of Life and the evil Temptations thereof are prevented in a Common-Wealth that is truly Chriſtian, and conſequently ſincerely Charitable. Neither will Lazineſs thereby be nouriſhed or encreaſed; this ſame Chriſtian Frame of Spirit making them all more ambitious of doing than receiving good; according to that noble Saying of our Saviour, It is a more bleſſed thing to give then to receive. Act. 20. 35.

7. And it is without Controverſie that Humility, the patient ſuffering of Injuries, and the mortifying the exorbitant Deſires of the Fleſh, do tend moſt certainly, in a Polity that is become thus Chriſtian, to a conſtant Peaceableneſs and a faithful and impartial Adminiſtration of Juſtice in all things, (For from whence is War and Diſſenſion, Violence and Injuſtice, but from the inordinate Luſts of the Fleſh, from Pride and Deſire of diſproportionable Revenge?) ſo is it as true alſo that they make us not a Whit more liable to the Invaſion of our Enemies, as becoming thereby more cow'd or ſoft in Spirit. For a due Caſtigation of the Luſts of the Fleſh rendreth the Body more healthful and hardy; whenas Luxury will certainly make it rotten and effeminate, and expoſe it to all manner of Diſeaſes. And it is a very unskilful, yea maniſeſtly ridiculous Conceit, to think that Humility will make them ſuch tame things, that the Enemy may take them up and carry them away at his Pleaſure: For Chriſtian Humility does not conſiſt in being content to be brought under Bondage by Men, but in not deſpiſing others, and not arrogating any thing to our ſelves, nor ſeeking unjuſt Dominion over others for our own Pleaſure and Satisfaction.

8. Nor does Patience toward particular Injuries inure the Chriſtian at all to be remiſs in making Reſiſtance againſt an unjuſt Invader of his Country and Liberties. For the very ſame Principle, namely the Divine Love, that prompted him to bear private Wrong, the Damages whereof he could better reckon up, will as forcibly urge him to reſiſt ſuch publick Violence done againſt the Body of Chriſt, who are more dear unto him than the Apple of his Eye, and their Concerns as much beyond his private Intereſt as their Number exceeds his ſingle Perſon. His Love therefore to Chriſt who died for him, and whoſe Cauſe then ſhall really lie at the Stake; his ſincere Affection to his Fellow-Members, to whom their dying Lord left that ſacred Legacy of mutual Love, ſealing it on their Minds with his own ſtupendious Example, who being ſo high above them, yet ſtooped to the ſhameful and bitter Death of the Croſs, that they might love one another ſo ardently and entirely, that if need required they ſhould not ſtick to lay down their Lives one for another; His firm Belief in the Providence of God and his ſpecial Aſſiſtance to them that fight his Battels; His moderate Love of this preſent World, and certain Expectation of the immediate Enjoyments of the Happineſs of the other Life upon the quitting of this; The Conſideration, I ſay, of all theſe things will arm our Chriſtian Soldiery (let them be in their private demeanour as mild and humble, as tame and Lamb-like as you pleaſe) with ſuch miraculous Valour and Courage, that I cannot but preſage that that Benediction of Moſes will not fail to attend their Enterprizes, Five of them ſhall chaſe an hundred, and an hundred of them ſhall put ten thouſand to flight: For the Lord will go before them, and the God of Iſrael will be their Rereward. Levit. 26. 8. Iſai. 52. 12. What Nation therefore can grapple with ſuch a People as this? For there is neither Strength nor Counſel againſt the Almighty.

BOOK

BOOK IX.

CHAP. I.

1. The four Derivative Properties of the Mystery of Godliness. 2. That a Measure of Obscurity begets Veneration, suggested from our very Senses. 3. Confirmed also by the common Suffrage of all Religions, and the Nature of Reservedness amongst Men. 4. The Rudeness and Ignorance of those that expect that every Divine Truth of Scripture should be a comprehensible Object of their Understanding, even in the very Modes and Circumstances thereof. 5. That Contradictions notwithstanding are to be excluded out of Religion. 6. And that the Divinity of Christ and the Triunity of the Godhead have nothing contradictious in them.

1. WE have now finished the four primary Properties of the Mystery of Godliness, having treated of the Obscurity, Intelligibleness, of the Truth, and Usefulness thereof: and have already intimated that there arise from these four other Properties (which if you please you may call Derivative;) as, for instance, from the Obscurity of this Mystery arises Venerability; from the Intelligibleness, Communicability; from Truth, a Power of gaining Assent; and lastly, from Usefulness, an affectionate prizing of it, and a Zeal or Desire of promoting the Knowledge and Virtue of it in the World as much as we can. It remains therefore that we speak something of these, but with all Brevity possible.

2. That a due measure of Obscurity makes a Mystery the more venerable, is a Truth suggested to us by several Observations. How Shades and Silence affect our very Senses, every one can witness who is not of so course a Contexture of Body that only gross and fierce Objects can move him. But he whose Senses are more passive and delicate, can with Pleasure relate how he is affected when he enters into some shady and invious Wood or Grove, the Thickness of whose Trees and redoubled Shadows stops his Sight and hopes of ever passing through all that grows on that sacred Ground; but what he sees, he approves of as delightful, and conceives a peculiar Pleasure in that confused Divination or obscure Representation of things there, where his Eyes cannot reach, nor his Feet approach. The Silence also of the Place encreases the Solemness thereof, in which (as Plutarch says well) there is something profound and mysterious. And for this very Reason the Shadiness and Stilness of the Night ordinarily seems a very venerable Object to those whose Senses are so quick and fine, that they can feel and relish all manner of Mutations in Nature: which Impress enriched the Poet's Fancy with that Expression, Noxque tenebrarum specie reverenda tuarum.

3. The common Suffrage also of all Religions gives with us, who have always affected something not easily intelligible at first Sight: And their Temples were so built as to have their Adyta, some more sacred and inaccessible places in them. And we may further observe, that Sparingness of Speech and Reservedness in Men does naturally conciliate reverence to them. For there is still something behind in them impervious and inaccessible, which if they would impart, they might lessen their respect and become more contemptible. For it is very obvious to humane Nature to brood some strange over-weening Conceit of those things they know not, and to neglect and slight that which they know. These are Thieves that willingly leave the House when they have carried away all the Treasure. But perpetual Expectation continues Respect. And what matter is it tho' the Bottom of the Well be fathomless, if the Water we reach be but pure and useful? Wherefore those that contend for such an absolute Plainness and Clearness in all Points of Religion, shew more of Clownishness and Indiscretion than of Wit and Judgment; and their Zeal is not so much for Truth, as out of Pride and Vain-glory; they taking it very ill that any thing in the Mystery of Godliness should be so mysterious, as that their conceited Reason should not be able to comprehend it.

4. But

4. But I demand of those great Pretenders to Reason, who would usurp or monopolize that Title to themselves in matters of Religion, By what Faculty can they demonstrate, that the Divine Oracles should mention nothing to us but what is the adequate Object of our Understandings, and that we shall not be puzzled in our endeavouring to comprehend the Modes and Circumstances of that general Truth which they propose to us? For the General Proposal may be useful to us, whenas the Curiosity of Circumstances may serve for nothing but the feeding of our foolish Desire of devouring all Truth we can meet with and priding our selves in the booty. I speak this in reference to the most obscure Articles of our Religion, touching the Triunity of the Godhead and the Divinity of Christ. For that the Holy Scripture does affirm both, I have already sufficiently shown. And being that they come to us with the same Authority that the whole New Testament does, we cannot with any Face deny the Assertions, and yet profess our selves Christians. For the adverse Party have no Plea but the Incomprehensibleness of the manner of the thing: which Allegation is most unjust and ridiculous.

Book 1. c. 4. sect. 8, 9, 10. and c. 5. sect. 1, 2, 3, &c.

For that which comes to us by Divine Revelation is as certain as our Senses. But our Senses do assure us of such things as no Faculty can conceive how they are such as our Senses warrant them to be. As for example, The immediate Union of Matter with Matter, and The Power we have by Will and Thought to move any Member of our Body; These things we know to be, but they are as incomprehensible as any thing that the Scripture has declared of the Triunity of the Godhead or Christ's Divinity. And therefore all their Arguments against these two Articles are weak and vain. For it is sufficient that for those useful Purposes I have often mentioned they be proposed in the Scripture; but in a more shady, obscure and general way; that being enough to serve the End they are proposed for. And if any one be at a loss how to conceive the Mystery, let him make it up with devout Admiration and humble Veneration: Affections better becoming every holy Man, than a fierce and peremptory Pursuit of his own conceited Reason, and bold Attempt to pry into those things that God has thought fit to hide from him. Which is as saucy and clownish as forcibly to unveil or unmask some noble Matron or modest Virgin whether they will or no.

5. But that no Fraud be done to Truth, nor Mankind left liable to all the incredible Forgeries and Fables of covetous Priests and Impostors, we shall more carefully limit this our Exaction of Reverence only to such Articles of Religion as are recommended to us not only upon account of Divine Revelation and Serviceableness to some laudable End, but are also clear from Contradiction and Impossibility. For, for my own part, I am well assured, That God, who made our Faculties, will never offer any thing to us to believe, that upon close Debate does plainly contradict them. Else all Religions were alike credible, and the Moon's coming out of Mahomet's Sleeve as passable as the History of Jonas his being three Days and three Nights in the Whale's Belly, and afterwards coming out alive. Which, though it be miraculous, is not at all impossible.

6. And therefore I do with all Confidence imaginable assert, That the Divinity of Christ, and the Triunity, so far forth as the Scripture has declared it self in these Points, have nothing of Contradiction nor Impossibility in them. Nay, I will go one Step further. Athanasius his Creed, which one would think is express enough concerning this Mystery, if certain Words in it be but varied in that Latitude of Sense which they are capable of, and not only so, but must of Necessity have in the Creed, there may be such an Interpretation made of it as the most captious Reason can find no Cavil against.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

1. That there is a Latitude of Sense in the Words of Athanasius his Creed, and that One and Unity has not the same Signification every where. 2. The like in the Terms God and Omnipotent. 3. Of the Word Equal, and to what purpose so distinct a Knowledge of the Deity was communicated to the Church. 4. In what Sense the Son and Holy Ghost are God. That divine Adoration is their unquestionable Right. And that there is an intelligible Sense of Athanasius his Creed, and such as supposes neither Polytheism, Idolatry nor Impossibility. 5. That there is no Intricacy in the Divinity of Christ but what the Schools have brought in by their false Notions of Suppositum and Union Hypostatical. 6. That the Union of Christ with the Eternal Word implies no Contradiction, and how warrantable an Object he is of Divine Worship. 7. The Application thereof to the Jews. 8. The Union of Christ with God compared with that of the Angels that bore the Name Jehovah in the Old Testament. 9. The Reasonableness of our Saviour's being united with the Eternal Word, and how with that Hypostasis distinct from the others.

1. NOW that there is necessarily understood this Latitude of Variety in the Sense of several of the Words of the Creed, is apparent from the Consent of those that do subtilize this Mystery to the utmost Curiosity. For it is impossible for them or any else to think that the Godhead of the whole Trinity is One in the same Sense that the Father considered alone is One, or the Son, or Holy Ghost so considered. For then there being no more Unity in the single Hypostases than in the whole Trinity, every Hypostasis will be Triune; which no Man will assert. Wherefore it plainly follows there is a Latitude of Sense in the Word One or Unity allowable in the Creed.

2. So when the Father is said to be Omnipotent, the Son Omnipotent, and the Holy Ghost Omnipotent, it is evident that Omnipotent has not the same Sense in all. For the Father has the Power of Eternal Generation of the Son, and both Son and Father of an Eternal Emission of the Spirit; but the Son does not proceed from the Spirit, neither is the Father generated of the Son. Yet the Spirit and the Son which are both from the Father, How infinitely do they exceed the Creation of the World? And the like may be said of the Term God; by which if you understand, That which is first of all in such a Sense as that all else is from him, and he from none, the Son and the Spirit cannot be said to be God in this Signification, because the Father is not from them, but they from the Father.

3. And therefore it is further manifest that the Word Equal is not to be understood mathematically and absolutely, but in an useful Reference to us. Which is a Key that will easily open the whole Mystery of the Creed, which God did not communicate to the World to spin and weave unprofitable Cobwebs out of; but did thus explicitly impart the Knowledge of his divine Glory, that understanding the Distinctness of his Godhead in the Triunity thereof, the Divinity of Christ might the better be conceived, and how warrantable an Object he is of our Worship and Divine Adoration. For it passing through the Titles of the Humanity to the Eternal Son of God, there cannot be the least Scruple or Show of Idolatry in such Divine Worship.

4. For the Son is God, and the Holy Ghost is God, as well as the Father, that is to say, they are all Eternal, Omnipresent, Omniscient, Omnicreant; and therefore Divine Adoration is due without question to the whole Trinity from the Creatures. And not upon this account only, but because they are so perfectly One, and have the same indivisible Omnipresency, and therefore are One entire Godhead, One Coequal Glory and Majesty coeternal. I say then that this latitude of Sense being once admitted, which is necessarily implied, the Meaning of Athanasius his Creed may prove such as no Imputation of either Polytheism, Idolatry, or unconceivable Impossibility can be alledged against it; and the End of this Mystery fully served in such an intelligible Interpretation. But I shall not undertake any such Paraphrase in this Place. And what I have already ventured at, is rather by way of Essay or Invitation to others to make trial, than peremptory Assertion in so profound a Point, that deserves rather our humble Admiration than curious Disquisition. It is sufficient that so far as Scripture has determined of this Article, it is without all Exception or Contradiction.

5. The

5. The Divinity of Chriſt in my Apprehenſion is a more eaſie Object of Belief, being as intelligible as the Union of our Soul and Body. For as they two make up one Man, ſo God and Man make one Chriſt, as Athanaſius himſelf has expreſſed it. This the Schools call Hypoſtatical Union, which has no Intricacy in it but what they themſelves have beſtowed upon it. For every Subſtance is of it ſelf an Individual Subſtance, and Univerſals but a Logical Notion ariſing from our comparing of Subſtances of like Nature together. Neither is there any Subſtance but by due preparatory Modifications may be capable of being united with ſome other Individual Subſtance, and theſe Two Individual Subſtances become One whole Subſtance. Which yet are not ſo One as that they ceaſe to be Two Numerical Subſtances; becauſe they are no otherwiſe ſaid to be One, I am ſure are no otherwiſe One, than by the apt Union of one with another. Which yet hinders not but that they are ſtill; and if they are, they are Two: namely, my Soul and my Body are ſtill this Individual Soul and this Individual Body, though they be, as they term it, Hypoſtatically united. For it only implies Conjunction, not Confuſion of Subſtances, nor any loſs of the Individuality of Subſtances thus conjoined. For there is no Subſtance conjoinable with another, but remains this Individual Subſtance, even for that very Reaſon becauſe it is a Subſtance, every Subſtance being of it ſelf Individual, as I have already ſaid, and yet conjoinable with another Subſtance: whence it is plain that the Scholaſtick Notion of Suppoſitum is a mere Foolery.

6. Out of which we may eaſily underſtand how that the Humanity of Chriſt and the Eternal Word may be Hypoſtatically united without any Contradiction to human Reaſon unſophiſticated with the Fopperies of the Schools, and both their Hypoſtaſes or Individual Natures remain ſtill entire. Of which I will exhibit this as a more ſenſible Repreſentation. Suppoſe a vaſt Globe made all of ſolid Gold, ſaving one very ſmall Section which we will ſuppoſe of Silver. This individual Gold and this individual Silver, remaining ſtill this individual Gold and Silver, make up one entire Globe, which is not an entire Globe without either. So in Chriſt, made up (as I may ſo ſpeak) of the Second Hypoſtaſis of the Trinity and of that Human Perſon (or individual Nature, if you pleaſe) that converſed at Jeruſalem; this individual human Nature is that individual Silver, and the other that individual Gold, and both theſe together One Chriſt, the Sphere of whoſe Divinity filling all things, and being every where at hand, cannot but be a warrantable Object of our Prayers and Invocations, as the paſſive Humanity of Chriſt the Prop of our Faith and Confidence by his bitter Paſſion and continual Interceſſion with God.

7. What Superſtition therefore can there be, or leaſt Suſpicion of Idolatry, when we pray unto Chriſt, if we do but think of him to whom we pray? For the Eternal Godhead does ſo out-ſhine every thing in this Object of Devotion, that our Mind is in a manner wholly tranſported into God, tho' with a due Reflexion of Honour upon the Perſon of our Saviour, in Virtue of whoſe Death and Interceſſion we make our Addreſſes to God. Which Truth might alſo paſs with the Jew, without any ſcruple at all, if he do but call to mind with what devout Humility their Fore-fathers have * adored the Preſence of Angels. To whom in their Law * Jehovah, the moſt holy Name of God, is alſo attributed. And if an Angel, that ſuſtains the Perſon of God only by way of Embaſſy, has this Divine Honour; how much more then is it due to Chriſt, who is Jehovah not only by Title and external Function, but by real Union with the Eternal Son of God? Which the Platoniſts in their Triad alſo call τὸ ὄν, the ſame in Greek that Jehovah is in Hebrew.

* Exod. 34. 8.
* Gen. c. 18, & 19. Exod. c. 3. 14, 32, & 34.

8. Or if they could imagine that there was ſo extraordinary a kind of Union of theſe Angels with God, where ſo high a Name is attributed to them, as being in ſuch an univerſalizing Rapture that they had loſt the ſenſe of their own Perſonalities, and were wholly actuated by God, who uſed them as fully and commandingly as our Soul does our Bodies; yet this may fall ſhort in a two-fold reſpect of that Union which is betwixt the Humanity of Chriſt and the Eternal Word. For firſt, it may not be of the ſame kind, but differs as much, it may be, as the Union of a Spirit with a dead Corps does from the Union of the Soul of Man in an healthful Body. Or if it could be admitted that there was ſome Principle excited and awaked, or ſome way inſerted into the Eſſence of an Angel, whereby he might have real and vital Union with God, yet it being but temporary, it is not to be compared with this laſting and durable Union in the Meſſias. Nor does the viſible Preſence of the Angel warrant Divine Worſhip more to him than to Chriſt. For Chriſt according to his higher and more adorable Nature is every where preſent. He that will, may conſult Caſtalio on the Third Chapter of Exodus, from whence perhaps this Controverſie may more rightly and ſafely be decided.

9. I conclude therefore that the Divinity of Chriſt is not at all repugnant to human Reaſon, I mean his Real and Phyſical Union, as I may ſo call it, with the Eternal Word. For being that it was this Word or Eternal Wiſdom whereby God made all things, it is very decorous and congruous that that great Inſtrument of the reſtoring ſo choice a piece of his Creation as Man is, ſhould be united particularly to the Λόγος or Eternal Word. Nor is it unconceivable how he may be united particularly and immediately to this Hypoſtaſis, and not the other two, from what we obſerve in Nature. For even the Faculties of the Soul reſiding in the ſame part of the Soul, according as the part of the Body is tempered or modified, one Faculty may exert it ſelf in the part, and another be ſilent and take no hold thereon. And further it is evident, that though the Holy Spirit of God and the Spirit of Nature be every where preſent in the World, and lie in the very ſame Points of Space; yet their Actions, Applications or Engagings with things are very diſtinct. For the Spirit of Nature takes hold only of Matter, remanding groſs Bodies towards the Center of the Earth, ſhaping Vegetables into all that various Beauty we find in them; but does not act at all on our Souls or Spirits with Divine Illumination, no more than the Holy Spirit meddles with remanding of Stones downwards, or tumbling broken Tiles off from an Houſe. Which things rightly conſidered and improved make this Myſtery intelligible enough for thoſe that are fit for ſuch Speculations. So that I need add nothing more, having already proceeded further than I intended, in Zeal againſt the Fraud of ſome, and Indiſcretion of others, who ſo confidently maintain, That ſome main Points in Chriſtian Religion are not only obſcure (which I willingly acknowledge, and that thereby our Religion is the more venerable,) but alſo repugnant to Reaſon, which I utterly deny, and ſhall in its due place ſhew the ſad Inconvenience of ſo raſh an Aſſertion.

CHAP. III.

1. That the Communicableneſs of Chriſtian Religion implies its Reaſonableneſs. 2. The right Method of communicating the Chriſtian Myſtery. 3, 4. A brief Example of that Method. 5. A further Continuation thereof. 6. How the Myſtagogus is to behave himſelf towards the more dull or illiterate. 7. The Danger of debaſing the Goſpel to the Dulneſs or ſhallowneſs of every weak Apprehenſion.

1. THE ſecond Derivative Property of the Myſtery of Godlineſs is Communicability. For in that it is Intelligible, it becomes hereby Communicable. Whence it appears what Communication I mean: not ſuch as is competible alſo to Magpies and Parots, that is, a Sound of Words or Phraſes, which thoſe Birds are able to repeat after us; but a rational Impartment of the Matter, whereby a Man's Underſtanding is ſatisfied of the real Grounds of our Belief. This Duty the ancient Chriſtians were charg'd with, as appears 1 Pet. Chap. 3. v. 15. Be ready always to give an anſwer to every Man that asketh a Reaſon of that Hope that is in you, with Meekneſs and Reverence, Ἕτοιμοι πρὸς ἀπολογίαν παντὶ αἰτοῦντι ὑμᾶς λόγον. Now if we be ask'd a Reaſon of our Belief, and the Apoſtle requires us to anſwer, aſſuredly he was not conſcious of any Unreaſonableneſs of the Chriſtian Faith in his time. That of that witty Father of the Church, Credo quia impoſſibile, that is, I believe becauſe 'tis impoſſible, however it might pleaſe the Anſwerer, it could never ſatisfie the Oppoſer. This would not prove ἀπολογία καὶ βεβαίωσις τοῦ Εὐαγγελίου, as St. Paul ſpeaks, a Defence and Confirmation of the Goſpel, but rather an expoſing it to Deriſion and Contempt. For he that will acknowledge Impoſſibilities in Religion, gives up the Cauſe without Blows, and yields at once all that his Adverſary deſired, namely, that his Religion is nothing but a Forgery or Foolery.

Phil. 1. 7.

2. Intelligibleneſs therefore muſt precede Communication in him that communicates the Myſtery to another, ſo far as he does venture to communicate it. Otherwiſe if he once give his Tongue leave to out-run his Underſtanding, what hopes has he of ſeeming intelligible to another when himſelf underſtands not what he ſaith? Whence unleſs he meet with a Fool, he himſelf will be ſure to be found one, or accounted an Impoſtor or Mad-man. So little Edification can there be in ſuch Diſcourſes.

But

But if a Man would be a prudent Imparter of Chriſtian Religion indeed, he is not only to take care that what he pronounces of the Myſtery is intelligible to himſelf; but alſo to be very circumſpect how he ſpeaks any thing to any one before they be capable of receiving it. And therefore if he would uſe a right Method, he muſt begin with ſuch things as are the moſt eaſie to conceive and the moſt capable of Demonſtration, and alſo are the moſt certain Pledges of the Happineſs which they may expect who deſire to be real and cordial Embracers of Chriſtianity.

3. As for Example, They are to declare how Chriſt is the Meſſias expected of old of the Jews, though rejected by them when he came: That he is the Son of God, miraculouſly born of a Virgin: That he was a Sacrifice for Sin, and underwent the ſhameful Death of the Croſs out of Love to us: That he was raiſed from the Dead the third Day, and aſcended viſibly into Heaven, and thence is to be expected as Judge of the Quick and of the Dead; and that then thoſe that believe on him ſhall be crowned with the higheſt Glory and Immortality, their vile Bodies being changed into the Similitude of his heavenly Body: And that the Reſurrection of Chriſt is a palpable Earneſt of the Purpoſe of God to reward us thus with Eeverlaſting Life. Such like Things as theſe are to be communicated firſt by way of Propoſal, they neither vexing nor wearying the Apprehenſion or Imagination of Man by any Difficulty of Conception, but are ſo ſtrange that they may well call out the cloſeſt Attention, and put a Man upon the moſt eager Inquiſition to be ſatisfied whether they be true.

4. The Terms of the Queſtion therefore being thus eaſily intelligible, in the next place it will be expected that they evidence the Truth of the Narration: which is to be done from thoſe clear Prophecies of the coming of the Meſſias, in the Old Teſtament, and of what he was to do and ſuffer; and by a rational Eviction of the Incorruptedneſs and Authentickneſs of the Hiſtory of Chriſt in the Goſpels and the reſt of the Writings of the New. And after this, orderly and by degrees, they are to be led on to thoſe things that are more obſcure and myſterious, and yet to the patient and well-prepared Mind both true and intelligible. For though ſome few Points in Chriſtianity may be obſcure; yet ſo far forth as the Scripture defines any thing of them, they are both intelligible and true. So that Truth and Intelligibility is in every warrantable part of Chriſtianity, at leaſt to thoſe that have their Underſtandings exerciſed in rational Speculations. But for others whoſe Parts and Imployments have rendred them leſs fit for any Meditation that is ſubtile and obſcure, they may content themſelves with the ſafe Adheſion to the Form of ſound Words delivered in the Scriptures.

5. Out of which they are very intelligibly inſtructed of the Divinity of Chriſt's Perſon, in that they read there how he was declared the Son of God by Voices from Heaven: That he was begotten not by Man, but by the overſhadowing of the Holy Ghoſt: That he did ſuch Miracles alſo as became the Son of God to do, being utterly above the Power of Nature: That in him dwells the fulneſs of the Godhead bodily, whenas it dwelt in the Temple of the Jews only Typically. And therefore there is far greater Reaſon that the Devotions of Chriſtians ſhould be directed * towards Chriſt, than thoſe of the Jews towards the holy Temple; towards which they always worſhipped, when they put up their Supplications to God, though they were far diſtant from it. That the Word alſo is ſaid to be made Fleſh, to wit, the Word that was in the beginning with God, when all things were made; and that this Word alſo was God; and that God was manifeſted in the Fleſh by the appearing of Chriſt in the World.

* Rev. 21.22

John 1. 14.

1 Tim. 3. 16.

6. That theſe things are thus really and in Truth, the Authentickneſs of the Scriptures makes good. But for ſuch as are unexerciſed in Metaphyſical Speculations, that have not ſo much as conſidered the Union of their own Soul with their Body, nor once heard of Diſtinction Real and Formal, and other ſettled Notions requiſite for the more expreſs Apprehenſion of ſuch high Points as the Conjunction of the Divinity and Humanity in Chriſt, and the Triunity of the Godhead; the beſt Inſtruction can be given to them by the Myſtagogus is, That they would make that up in humble Adoration that they want in Knowledge: and that God of his Mercy imparted theſe Myſteries to the World for Uſe, and not for curious and vexatious Speculation: and that they ſhould be ſo modeſt as not to think that utterly unintelligible that themſelves for the preſent cannot apprehend.

7. That the Truth of the Goſpel is a ſtanding and immutable thing, not to be altered and changed according to the Capacities of Men; and that if nothing ſhould be exhibited to their Belief but what they will all affirm they have a ſatisfactory Conception of, they will at laſt tread down Religion to nothing. For they will not ſtint themſelves there, I mean in the Rejection of the Divinity of Chriſt, and of a Triune Deity; but the Notion of Angels and Spirits, and of an Immaterial Soul, and laſtly of any Being whatſoever that is truly Spiritual, will appear ſo inconceivable to ſome, that at laſt Religion will be tumbled down as low as mere Body and Matter, and will find no Object but the viſible World, and the Sun and Stars muſt be the greateſt Deities. And ſo either the ancient Pagan Superſtition or elſe down right Atheiſm muſt take place.

CHAP. IV.

1. The due Demeanour of a Chriſtian Myſtagogus in communicating the Truth of the Goſpel. 2. That the chiefeſt Care of all is that he ſpeak nothing but what is profitable for Life and Godlineſs. 3. A juſt Reprehenſion of the ſcopeleſs Zeal of certain vain Boanerges of theſe times. 4. That the Abuſe of the Miniſtry to the undermining the main Ends of the Goſpel may hazard the Continuance thereof, 5. That any Heat and Zeal does not conſtitute a living Miniſtry.

1. SOME ſuch Account as this will the prudent Communicator of the Myſtery of Chriſtianity give to him that asks a Reaſon of his Faith, declaring his Senſe
1 Pet. 3. 15. of things, μετὰ πραΰτητος καὶ φόβου, with Meekneſs and Fear, as St. Peter ſpeaks, that is to ſay, with Patience and Mildneſs towards him whom he informs, and with holy Reſpect and Reverence towards God whoſe Meſſenger in ſome ſort he is; and therefore ought to be careful that he miſtake not his Errand in any thing, nor mingle of his own what he has no Commiſſion to ſpeak, nor diſtort the Truth out of Fear or Favour, nor make himſelf ſuſpected by any Levity or affected Vanity in Style or Words, that are misbecoming a matter of ſo great Importance. For Quaintneſs of Wit and ſtudied Eloquence may tickle the Ear for a time, like a Muſical Air the while it is playing: but a faithful and ſerious Declaration of the moſt weighty Parts of our Religion will wound the very Heart, and captivate the Soul to the Obedience of Chriſt.

2. And above all things, he that either of himſelf adventures, or has any better Call to this Office, let him ever have in his Eye the Uſefulneſs of the Myſtery he indeavours to communicate, remembring that that is an Univerſal Property thereof; and that, if either his Inadvertency or Curioſity has carried him into any Uſeleſs Speculations or Theories, he is moſt certainly led out of his Way, and that he is now imparting human Inventions which are nothing at all appertaining to the Goſpel of Chriſt; that he is now feeding his Charge not with the ſincere Milk of the Word, but the brackiſh Sweat of ſome over-heated Brain. This is the moſt common and the moſt dangerous Miſtake that is to be obſerved in this Function; as if their very Art and Faculty were nothing elſe but to let fly Words for whole Hours together, whereof not one is directed or intended towards the Mark and Scope of the Goſpel, which is the rooting out of Sin, and deſtroying the Kingdom of the Devil.

3. And yet it is a Wonder to ſee the Zeal and Heat, and hear the Noiſe of theſe Boanerges, theſe Sons of Thunder, as if every Sentence were Fire and Lightning from Heaven againſt the Strong-holds of Sin and Satan, and that they would humble every Thought to the Obedience of Chriſt, who came into the World to redeem us from all Iniquity, and to purchaſe to himſelf a Church pure, holy and undefiled, without either Spot or Blemiſh. Which End notwithſtanding is for the moſt part not only not aimed at, but too often croſſed and ſupplanted by Hypocritical Inſinuations of either the Needleſneſs or Impoſſibility of theſe things. To be ſhort, For the moſt part the Diſcourſe is ſo off and on, that a Man knows not what they would have: but it is as if one ſhould bring Greyhounds into the Field, and let them ſlip and cry Allooe, when yet there is no Game before them. Which Noiſe though it may make them skip up and look about a while, yet they will preſently find themſelves unconcerned, there being nothing in ſight for them to purſue.

4. But if they would exhort to follow Peace and Holineſs, without which no Man ſhall ſee the Lord, this were worth our Purſuance indeed, as being the known and certain end of the Preaching of the Goſpel. But if we ſee no ſuch Deſign therein, and therefore act act oppoſite to it, and vilifie the Dawnings of that Day of Righteouſneſs that is to riſe upon the World, and to make the Habitations of Chriſtendom a Land of Joy and Peace, and diſcourage the People of God by telling them dreadful Stories of the Sons of Anak, thoſe invincible Giants, whenas there is nothing too hard nor invincible to the true Joſhua, our Lord Jeſus, the Wiſdom and Power of God; verily it is to be feared that this Function, which was intended by God a Fortreſs againſt Sin, if it prove by unskilful Zeal ſuch a Bulwark of Unrighteouſneſs, that He may dig it down and remove it as a ruinous Wall of a Garden, whoſe dead Rubbiſh and Stones ever falling on the innocent Herbs and Flowers do ſmother and ſtifle them, or as an old decayed Hedge which is to be pull'd up and carried away, the Quick-ſet being grown.

5. But if we will work the Works of the Lord in Faithfulneſs and according to the Deſign of the Goſpel, we our ſelves ſhall become part of that Quick-ſet, and be made living Stones to hold up one another in the Temple of God. And that thoſe that are not thus enlivened may not take themſelves to be ſo, by reaſon of their extraordinary Promptitude and Vivacity; I muſt not forbear to declare that this Life we ſpeak of is no natural Heat, nor the external Effects of it. Nor is that a living Miniſtry according to this Senſe, that makes Shew of the greateſt Zeal. For verily it is well known that cooling Phyſick may be adminiſtred in very hot Broth, And it is too too poſſible that ſuch things may be delivered with the greateſt Heat and Fervency imaginable, which once received into the Minds of the Hearers are ſo far from warming them afterwards and ſpiriting them to true Holineſs and Righteouſneſs, that they even ſlake and extinguiſh the Deſire thereof; which yet is no leſs a Crime than ſtifling the Life of God in the World as much as in us lies, and undermining the Kingdom of Chriſt upon Earth. Theſe things I could not but take notice of concerning the Communication of the Goſpel, as being of very great Uſe as well to the Hearer as the Teacher, that neither the one might miſtake himſelf, nor the other be deceived by him.

CHAP. V.

1. The Nature of Hiſtorical Faith. 2. That true Saving Faith is properly Covenant, and of the various Significations of Διαθήκη. 3. In what Law and Covenant agree. 4. In what Law and Teſtament. 5. In what Covenant and Teſtament agree. 6. That the Church might have called the Doctrine of Chriſt either the New Law or the New Covenant. 7. Why they have ſtyled it rather Διαθήκη than Νόμος. The firſt Reaſon. 8. Other Reaſons thereof. 9. The occaſion of tranſlating ἡ καινὴ Διαθήκη, The New Teſtament.

1. THE Third Derivative Property of this Myſtery is a Power of winning Aſſent, which ariſes from the convincing Clearneſs of the Truth of the Goſpel. This Aſſent, which is general to all convincing Truths of what Nature ſoever, appropriated thus to this Divine Myſtery, is called Faith: And this Faith in Perſons unconcerned, ſuppoſe Angels or Devils (whom the Goſpel may not be meant for, and yet believe the Truth of it, at leaſt the good Angels) or elſe in ſuch Perſons as may be concern'd in the Goſpel, and yet will not cloſe therewith, though they believe it, (if there be any ſuch that can do ſo) is vulgarly called an Hiſtorical Faith. As if a Man ſhould throughly underſtand how ſuch a one has purchaſed a Lordſhip upon ſuch and ſuch Terms, this is an Hiſtorical Knowledge in him; and he can tell the whole Tranſaction of the Buſineſs, and does believe it; but in the mean time, has no Share there, he profeſſing himſelf either unable or unwilling to meddle upon theſe Terms. Such is Hiſtorical Faith, which alone ſtands us in no ſtead to Salvation, and gives no Share or Portion in the Kingdom of Heaven.

2. But if out of this Belief and Knowledge we ſeriouſly cloſe with the Terms of the Goſpel, this will prove a Saving Faith, and is not mere Hiſtorical Knowledge and Belief, but Covenant. The Conditions and Promiſes whereof are clearly comprehended in the New Teſtament, as we ordinarily call it from the Latin Tranſlation. But the Greek Inſcription is, Ἡ Καινὴ Διαθήκη, which might be better rendred the New Covenant; but is capable alſo of being interpreted the New Law. For of ſo large large an extent is the Signification of Διαθήκη, it denoting both Law, Covenant, and Teſtament, as Hugo Grotius has obſerved out of Plato, Ariſtophanes. and Iſocrates.

3. And well may theſe *three kinds of Rights paſs under one common Notion and Name of Διαθήκη, if we conſider what Agreement and Affinity they have one with another. For firſt, Law and Covenant agree in Sanction; eſpecially publick Leagues and Covenants, which of old were made by the Mactation of ſome Beaſt, from whence Sanction is à Sanguine, from the Blood of the Sacrifice. For which Cauſe alſo the Hebrew Doctors willingly deduce ברית from ברא ſuccidere, as the Latins fœdus à feriendo. Whence the Phraſe of ſtriking a Covenant is ſo obvious both in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin Authors. And that there is Sanction in Laws as well as in publick Contracts and Covenants is plain, for that the Blood of him that tranſgreſſes is to ſatisfie the Law. In legibus Sanctio dicitur ea pars (ſays Grotius) quæ Sanguinem delinquentis legi conſecrat; In Laws that Part is called Sanction which conſecrates the Blood of the Delinquent to the Law.

* See Grotius upon the Inſcription of the New Teſtament.

4. Again, Law and Teſtament have this common to them both, that neither are without covenanting or contracting. Nam & hæres, eo ipſo quòd hæres eſt, præſtare debet factum defuncti; & ſubjectus alterius imperio, eo ipſo quòd ſubjectus eſt, ejuſdem legibus parere debet: For an Heir or Executor, as ſuch, is hereby bound to perform the Deed of the Deceaſed; and he that is a Subject, is, as ſuch, bound thereby to obey the Laws of him whoſe Subject he is, as the ſame Author tells us.

5. Laſtly, Covenant and Teſtament agree in this, that at firſt it is free to a Man whether he will contract or no, and ſo whether he will take Adminiſtration or no, or be ſuch a Man's Heir. But it is not always free whether a Man will be ſuch an one's Subject or no, whenas Subjection may unavoidably deſcend on one as born of ſuch Parents and in ſuch an one's Juriſdiction.

6. Out of this diſtinct Apprehenſion of theſe ſeveral Significations of Διαθήκη, we may the more eaſily judge which is the moſt competible to the Nature of the Goſpel; and obſerve the Wiſdom of the Ancients in making this Inſcription rather than any other. For they might have intitled it Ὁ καινὸς Νόμος, having a double Invitation thereto. For firſt, the Jews called their Pentateuch, as alſo the reſt of their Books of Holy Writ, תורה, that is Νόμος· and the Chriſtian Doctrine is ſo termed alſo both by Paul and James, Gal. 6. Bear ye one another's Burdens, and ſo fulfil the Law of Chriſt: And Jam. 2. If you fulfil the royal Law, according as it is written, Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf, ye do well. They might alſo have inſcribed it Ἡ καινὴ Διαθήκη, whoſe determinate Senſe had been then, The New Covenant. But then it would have hid that ſpecial Senſe of Διαθήκη which the Author to the Hebrews alludes to, chap. 9. 17.

7. But they have made Choice of Διαθήκη rather than Νόμος, firſt becauſe they ſeem to have an Intimation from Chriſt himſelf thus to ſtyle the Goſpel, Mat. 26. 28. Τοῦτο γάρ ἐστι τὸ αἷμά μου τὸ τῆς καινῆς διαθήκης, This is my Blood of the new Covenant. The ſame alſo you may read in Mark and Luke. So that here being mention of Blood, Sanction properly ſo called, and which is moſt conſpicuous in the Nature of a Covenant, is herein manifeſted. The Author to the Hebrews does more accurately and fully proſecute this Matter, chap. 7, 8, and 9. where ver 19. he plainly parallels the Blood of Chriſt to the Blood of the Covenant made by God with the Jews. For when Moſes had ſpoken every Precept to all the People according to the Law, he took the Blood of Calves and Goates, and Scarlet Wool, and Hyſſop, and ſprinkled both the Book and all the People, ſaying, This is the Blood of the Covenant which God hath enjoined unto you. To which Blood of the Jewiſh Covenant all along to the end of the Chapter, he compares the Sacrifice of Chriſt and the ſhedding his moſt precious Blood, when he did Fœdus ferire, make a Covenant of Peace with God for Remiſſion of Sins to all Mankind.

See Exod. 24. 8.

8. The other Reaſon why they have ſtyled it Διαθήκη, Covenant, rather than Νόμος, is becauſe this Inſcription more plainly inſinuates unto us the ſweet Condeſcenſion of God Almighty and his ſingular Goodneſs in the Goſpel, who in ſending of Chriſt hath not dealt with us ſummo jure, nor imperiouſly and minaciouſly, as ſevere Lawgivers uſe to do; but mildly and kindly, as thoſe that contract and covenant in a familiar and kind way one with another. And the holy Writers are ſo far from giving any conſiderable occaſion to title the Goſpel by the Name of Νόμος, that they frequently ſet it in oppoſition thereunto. And if at any time they attribute that Term to it, it is ordinarily not without ſome ſoftning or mitigating Qualification; as the Law of Faith, not of Works, and the Law of Liberty, Jam. 1. 25. So that that we ſee that there is a very ſufficient ground why, notwithſtanding the Jews call'd their Pentateuch and other holy Writings תורה, the Law, that the primitive Chriſtians ſhould call the Evangelical Writings Διαθήκη, Covenant; it uſually alſo ſignifying Teſtament, to which the Author to the Hebrews alludes, chap. 9. 17. which comes exceeding near to the Nature of a Covenant, where one is conſtituted Heir upon Condition.

9. The very Title therefore of that Authentical Volume of our Religion gives ſome general Knowledge of the Nature of it, if it had been fitly tranſlated out of the Greek. But the Latin Chriſtians as well in the old as in the New Teſtament ever tranſlating Διαθήκη, Teſtamentum, (etiam ubi Διαθήκη Θεοῦ nominatur, as Grotius takes notice, whenas God yet cannot die, and therefore will never have occaſion to make his laſt Will and Teſtament) have given occaſion to our Engliſh Tranſlatours to follow them in the Title of this Book, and to render it Teſtament, rather then Covenant. Otherwiſe if you underſtand a laſt Will and Teſtament, what Senſe will the Old Teſtament bear?

CHAP. VI.

1. That there were more Old Covenants than one. 2. What Old Covenant that was to which this New one is eſpecially counterdiſtinguiſhed: with a brief Intimation of the difference of them. 3, 4. An Objection againſt the Difference delivered; with the Anſwer thereto. 5. The Reaſon why the ſecond Covenant is not eaſily broken. 6. That the Importance of the Myſtery of the Second Covenant engages him to make a larger Deduction of the whole matter out of St. Paul.

1. IN general therefore our Chriſtian Religion is a Covenant, the Terms and Conditions whereof are comprehended in thoſe Books which we ordinarily call The New Teſtament, which were better and more ſignificantly rendred The New Covenant. The Nature whereof we cannot ſo well underſtand, unleſs we reflect back upon the Old Covenants mentioned in the Scripture, which preceded this; and there being more than one, take notice which of them eſpecially this New one is ſet oppoſite to. That there is Mention of more Covenants than one, is manifeſt from Eph. 2. 12. And particularly Circumciſion in the Book of Moſes and the Prophets is called ברית κατ' ἐξοχήν, and Διαθήκη in the New Teſtament, Acts 7. 8. Καὶ ἔδωκεν αὐτῷ διαθήκην περιτομῆς, And God gave unto Abraham the Covenant of Circumciſion.

2. But queſtionleſs that One moſt eminent, moſt ſolemn and moſt formal Covenant which God made with the Children of Iſrael, beginning it at their going out of Ægypt, but perfecting it on Mount Sinai in Arabia, this is that Old Covenant chiefly glanced at by them that ſtyled our Religion The New Covenant: and they had a very good Warrant for it out of the Prophet Jeremy, ch. 31. v. 31, 32. Behold the Days come, ſaith the Lord, that I will make a New Covenant with the Houſe of Iſrael, and with the Houſe of Judah: Not according to the Covenant that I made with their Fathers in the Day that I took them by the Hand, to bring them out of the Land of Ægypt (which my Covenant they brake, although I was an Husband unto them, ſaith the Lord.) But this ſhall be the Covenant that I will make with the Houſe of Iſrael: After thoſe Days, ſaith the Lord, I will put my Law in their inward Parts, and write it in their Hearts, and will be their God, and they ſhall be my People.

Which Promiſe alſo is recorded in the 54 of Iſaiah, And all thy Children ſhall be taught of the Lord, and great ſhall be the Peace of thy Children.

So that there is found an Old and a New Covenant ſet oppoſite the one againſt the other by the Prophets own ordering. The Difference of whoſe Natures conſiſts mainly in this, That the Old Covenant is an external Covenant, ſomething without a Man, the other an inwardly ingrafted Principle of Life. This is that Word which is in our Heart as well as in our Mouth, of which Paul profeſſes himſelf a Preacher, and therefore muſt be the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt.

3. But you'l ſay, the Evangeliſts and the Apoſtles Writings are without too as well as the Letter of Moſes. I, but yet for all that it is very manifeſt and plain that they have not reached the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel, that have not attained to an inward inward Principle of Life. Which being the great diſtinguiſhing Deſign of the Goſpel, we are to look upon it in this Deſign and End, and that it has not done its Work, and is in a manner nothing to us till this be done. He that believes in me, John. 7. 38. out of his Belly ſhall flow Rivers of Water. And John 6. He that eateth my Fleſh, and drinketh my Blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him. As the living Father has ſent me, and I live by the Father; ſo he that eateth me, even he ſhall live by me. Which Paſſages plainly enough import the moſt intimate Principles of Life that may be; the divine Nature being turned as it were in ſuccum & ſanguinem within us, being converted into the Juice and Nouriſhment of our Souls.

4. But our Converſation under the Moſaical Covenant, and our Frame of Spirit there is but an ordinary accuſtomary Temper or Habit of doing or not doing ſuch and ſuch things; and conſequently all that Righteouſneſs but a fleſhly rational Fabrick of Mind, which Fear and Cuſtom have carved out in the Surface as it were of our Souls; which Characters by the ſame Inſtruments are ſo preſerved legible. But under the Covenant of Chriſt, nor Fear nor Cuſtom, but an inward Spirit of Life works us into everlaſting Holineſs and a permanent Renovation of Nature and Regeneration of the hidden Man.

5. From whence the Reaſon is to be underſtood of that Difference the Prophet Jeremiah intimates betwixt the Old Covenant and the New. That the Old Covenant was broken by his People, but the new one ſhould not be broken. For the one being an external Yoke, and the other the inward Pleaſure of Life and radicate Deſire of the Soul; it is no wonder that what is forced laſts not long, but that upon the firſt Opportunity and provoking Occaſion, like unmanaged Horſes, we caſt off the Burden that ſo pinches us and galls us, in lying ſo heavy upon us, and being no part of us. But the perfect Law of Liberty becoming as it were our own Life and Nature, our greateſt Burden would be not to act according to it, and to act contrary thereto intolerable. For it were the wounding and tormenting a Principle of Life in us, or the Spirit of Chriſt in us, whereby we are not only aided and aſſiſted to every good Work, but take a natural Delight therein: whereas under the Moſaical Law we have no Conformity of Spirit to either the purer Moral Precepts, or any Complacency in the Luggage of a Company of inſipid and burdenſome Ceremonies; and yet the Moſaical Diſpenſation, though it give no Strength to perform what it requires, like Pharoah's hard Task-maſters requires the ſame Tale of Brick, though they withhold the Straw.

6. And this gives us ſome Light into the Nature of the Two Covenants in reference to the Prophecie of Jeremiah. But it being an Argument of very great Conſideration, I will not content my ſelf with ſo ſcant an Account thereof, but make a more copious Deduction of the whole Matter out of Paul, Gal. 4. that we may the more fully underſtand ſo important a Myſtery: and when I have from thence diſcovered the Excellency of the State of the Second Covenant, I ſhall add ſuch things as tend to the more uſeful Knowledge of the Entrance into it and Advance in it.

CHAP VII.

1. The different States of the Two Covenants ſet out Gal. 4. by a double Similitude. 2. The Nature of the Old Covenant adumbrated in Agar. 3. As alſo further in her Son Iſhmael. 4. The Nature of the New Covenant adumbrated in Sarah. 5. As alſo in Iſaac her Son and in Iſrael his Off-Spring. 6. The Neceſſity of imitating Abraham's Faith, that the Spiritual Iſaac or Chriſt may be born in us. 7. The grand Difference betwixt the Firſt and Second Covenant, wherein it doth conſiſt. With a Direction, by the Bye, to the moſt eminent Object of our Faith. 8. The ſecond main Point wherein this Difference conſiſts, namely Liberty, and that, Firſt from Ceremonies and Opinions; 9. Secondly from all kind of Sins and diſallowable Paſſions. 10. Laſtly, to all manner of Righteouſneſs and Holineſs.

Gal. 4. 21, 22, 23, &c. 1. TELL me, ye that deſire to be under the Law, Do ye not hear the Law? For it is written, that Abraham had two Sons; the one by a Bond-maid, and the other by a Free-woman. But he who was of the Bond-Woman was born after the Fleſh; but he of the Free-Woman was by Promiſe. Which things are an Allegory; for theſe are are the Two Covenants, the one from the Mount Sinai, which gendreth to Bondage, which is Agar. For this Agar is Mount Sinai in Arabia, and answereth to Jerusalem which now is, and is in Bondage with her Children. But Jerusalem which is above is free, which is the Mother of us all.

*

Here the Story of Agar and Sarah, Ishmael and Isaac, is made to set out, and that very appositely and lively, the two different Conditions of those that are under the Law and those that are under the Gospel: that thereby the Advantage and Excellency of one above the other being laid open before the Eyes of the Galatians, they migth not hereafter be any more in a tottering and fluctuating Condition, or sophisticate and adulterate the precious Purity of the Gospel with Judaical Superfluities and useless, if not now hurtful Ceremonies; but stick fast to Christ alone, not going back from him to Moses, nor yet mingling Mosaical Rites and Ceremonies with the Plainness and Sincerity of Christ.

In the Words we have recited, there is a double Similitude. We will in each, first lay out the Particulars of the Protases, and then pass on to the Apodoses. The Particulars of the First are Agar Abraham's Bond-Woman, Ishmael the Son of the Bond-Woman, and the Manner of the Birth of this Son of the Bond-Woman, he was born after the Flesh, that is, according to the ordinary Course of Nature. Now in the Apodosis, Jerusalem that now is, that is, the Church of the Jews, answers to Agar Abraham's Bond-Woman, and those of that Church to Ishmael the Son of the Bond-Woman, and to the being born after the Flesh, the being born out of the outward Letter of the Law.

The Particulars in the Second Protasis are Sarah the Free-Woman, and Isaac the Son of Abraham which he had of this Free-Woman, and lastly the Manner of his Birth, it was not κατὰ σάρκα, but διὰ τῆς ἐπαγγελίας, it was not after the ordinary Course of Nature, but the extraordinary Power of God signified in his Promise. And now in the Apodosis, Jerusalem that is from above, that is, the Church of true Christians, answers to Sarah the Free-Woman, and those of that Church to Isaac the Son of the Free-Woman, and their being born of the Spirit, not of the Letter, to the being born by Promise, not according to the Flesh.

And now if we compare the particulars of these two Protases one with another in their due Order, we shall find a main Difference or rather Contrariety in them. For Agar and Sarah differ as Bondage and Freedom, and Ishmael and Isaac as bond and free, and the Condition of their Births as Nature and God. And consequently there must arise a real Difference or Contrariety in the Particulars of the Apodoses, viz. betwixt the old terrestrial Jerusalem and the new one from above, betwixt the Jew, Pharisee or outward Legalist, and the true and real Christian: and lastly, betwixt the Flesh and the Spirit. And so to speak compendiously, This Text of the Apostle is nothing else but a Description of the different Conditions of the two Covenants, set out in an historical Allegory, taken from Agar and Sarah, and their two Sons, &c. I shall therefore now fall upon them in that Order as I have laid them out.

2. And First therefore of Agar, the Bond-Woman, which signifies the Covenant of the Law given upon Mount Sinai. For this Agar is Mount Sinai in Arabia. Which is spoken Synecdochically from a Town there called Agra by Plinie, and by Dion, Agara, and the People Ἀγρεῖοι and Ἀγραῖοι in Greek Geographers, as Grotius has pertinently observed. This Allusion therefore to Agar on Mount Sinai where the Law was given, does commend to us more handsomely and facilitate the Allegory taken from the Story of Agar and Sarah. But if there were not this Geographical Advantage, the Application will be found very sutable and apposite even without it. And much of the Nature of the Old and New Covenant is hinted at even in the Names themselves: and in this of Agar, which they ordinarily interpret Peregrina. What the Relation or Habitude is betwixt the Soul of Man and the things of the Old Covenant, is very fitly set down in the Meaning of this Name Agar. For verily as for those things that were Positive and Ceremonial in the Law of Moses, they are but ἀλλότρια, things strange and of no Affinity with the Soul; and as for those things that are most precious and most indispensably good in the Law of Moses, the Soul in no better a Dispensation than under the Law is plainly a Stranger to them. For the Law conveys no Life; but all Congruity, Sympathy, and vital Affinity must arise out of a Principle of Life. And hence it is that the Law makes nothing perfect, and that Righteousness cannot be of the Law, as I have above intimated out of the Apostle. The Law therefore giving no Life, a mere Legalist is even a Stranger to those things he practises and imitates under the Law, and acts so as the Parrot speaks, by external Imitation, not from a due inward Faculty.

Book 8. c. 6. sect. 2.

Secondly, This Agar her Condition was a Bond-Woman: And what I pray you is it to be in Bondage or not ſui juris but to be conſtrained to act ad nutum alterius? And in this Condition are all thoſe that are under the Law. For they do not act according to a free inward and living Principle in them, but are fain to be curb'd and fettered by an outward Impoſition, which is perfect and proper Bondage. Nor is there any other Bondage but to do or ſuffer otherwiſe than a Man would himſelf.

3. Thirdly, Of this Agar is begot Iſhmael. What's that? Iſhmael may ſignify theſe two things: viz. either one that has only a Knowledge of God by Hearſay*, from שמע audire and אל Deus, or ſo far as ſome external Letter conveys it to him, reſolving all his Faith in things concerning God into an outward Scripture only; and haply is ſo earthly and carnal that he would ſcarce believe there were a God, unleſs it were for the Scripture. Or elſe one that obeyeth God from שמע obedire, and that properly, namely in a ſervile and external forc'd way. For Obedience implies ſome kind of Reluctancy, or that the thing wherein we obey goes ſomething againſt the Hair with us; but yet in Obedience to the Commander we do it nevertheleſs, as being bound by the Law to obey him. And this is moſt of all proper to them under the firſt Covenant. For that Law not giving Life, there is no Principle of the Life and natural and genuine Compliance of the Soul of Man with the Spirituality of the Law under the Firſt Covenant; and therefore that of the Law which he endeavours to perform muſt needs go croſs to him; and it will be merely the Obedience to the Precept, not the Love of the thing, that will make him endeavour the Performance. And this is the true Condition of Agar's Son Iſhmael. And it would not be unſeaſonable to add alſo, that he is a great and fierce Diſputer* upon the Letter, a notable Polemical Divine, and his Ignorance and Untamedneſs of his carnal Heart makes him very bold and troubleſome: an Enemy to every one, as every one is an Enemy to him: His Hand is againſt every Man, and every Man's Hand againſt him*, as the Scripture witneſſes of him. But I will not inſiſt upon theſe things.

* Philo περὶ φυγάδων. Ἐμμανέστατα γὰρ Ἰσμαὴλ, ἀκοὴ θεοῦ. ἀκοὴ δ' ἀφίστατο τὰ δ' ἀλόγητα φίσεσθαι· ἔφασαν δὲ ὁ γνήσιος υἱὸς ἡ ἀφωδίνων Ἰσραὴλ κεκλῆσθαι, μεταληφθεὶς γὰρ ἐστιν ὁρᾷν θεόν.

* Philo περὶ φυγάδων. Αἱ χεῖρες αὐτοῦ κατὰ πάντας, καὶ αἱ χεῖρες πάντων ἐπ' αὐτόν. Σοφιστοῦ γὰρ βέλημα τοῦτο, τὸ λίαν ἐκπλῆκτον ἀπομορφάζοντι καὶ λόγοις χαίρουσι ἐριστικοῖς.

Fourthly and laſtly, This Iſhmael the Son of Agar, κατὰ σάρκα γεγέννηται, he was begotten and born after the Fleſh, or according to the ordinary and accuſtomary Power of Nature. And ſuch an one is he that is merely under the Firſt Covenant: He is not born of the Spirit, or regenerated by the extraordinary Power and Aſſiſtance of God, which he that is under the Second Covenant takes hold of by Faith in the Promiſe; but toils and tuggs with that Underſtanding and ordinary natural Power is in him of externally conforming himſelf to the propoſed Rule: and under this poor and beggarly Diſpenſation, when he is come to the beſt of this his either Birth or Growth, he is but κατὰ σάρκα γεννητὸς, he is but Fleſh, and not Spirit. For that which is born of the Fleſh, that is, of our own natural Abilities, is but Fleſh; but that which is born of the Spirit, that is, of God and his Divine Seed in us, that is Spirit, the true Spiritual Man, the Lord from Heaven, Heavenly, in a myſtical Senſe. But this under the Law is but the Son of the Fleſh or the Earth; is not a Son of that Jeruſalem that is from Above, the Heavenly Jeruſalem, which is the Mother of as many as are real and true Chriſtians.

For this is Sarah the Free-Woman; but the old Jeruſalem is in Bondage with her Children, as the Apoſtle plainly tells us.

4. And thus far have I deſcribed the Condition or Nature of the Old Moſaical Covenant, ſo far forth as is intimated in the Text. I proceed now to the Second or New Covenant under Chriſt. And the firſt Particular in the Protaſis here is Sarah, Domina, a Free-Woman, libera à vitiis ac ritibus, as the Interpreter ſpeaks very well, one that is not commanded into Obedience by others, but is ſui juris, does what ſhe pleaſes; and ſo ſhe may very well, for nothing pleaſes her but what is Good, and therefore fit to be done. For Sarah, or the New Jeruſalem from Above, is of one Spirit and one Mind with Chriſt. And this is the true Church of Chriſtians, in whom the Body of Sin being dead, they are free from it, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks to the Romans, and being quit thereof, they walk freely and ſafely, etiam cuſtode remoto, that ſurly Pædagogue, the Law, no longer dogging them at the Heels. For whatever it can ſuggeſt from without, the Spirit of God whiſpers to them from within, or indeed that living Form of all Holineſs and Righteouſneſs, the Image of Chriſt recovered in them, guides them as eaſily and as naturally to, as our external Senſes guide our natural Man in this outward and viſible World. This therefore is the Condition of the Church of Chriſt and every true Member of it, at leaſt arrived to its due Maturity and Perfection, that every Soul there is as Sarah, Domina, as a Queen Regent in her little World, her ſelf acting nothing forcedly but freely, as from a living Principle, and keeping thoſe under her in due order and Subjection. Which Condition undoubtedly the Scripture does point at in ſuch Phraſes as theſe, He hath made us Kings and Prieſts to God; and elſewhere, You are a Kingly Prieſthood; and the like.

World

5. Secondly, Of this Sarah was born Iſaac, which ſignifies * Laughter, and is a Sign of Chearfulneſs and Joy. Becauſe he that is a true Chriſtian acts and walks with Joy and Chearfulneſs in the Ways of Holineſs and Righteousneſs. And herein is he mainly diſtinguiſhed from Iſhmael, who acts merely out of Obedience to an external Form, and ſo forces himſelf againſt the Hair to do or omit that which, were it not that he was bound in Obedience to do or omit, he would take the Boldneſs to neglect; his inward Principle being contrary to it. As for Example, he would take Revenge of his Enemy for doing him an Injury, did not the Law forbid him; he would immerſe himſelf into all manner of ſenſual Pleaſures, were he not aw'd as an hungry Dog by the Laſh and Penalty of the Law; and ſo in other things. But the Soul of a true Chriſtian, in whom Iſaac is born, does not act what is good or omit what is evil, out of any Force or Fear of any external Inconvenience, but naturally, as I may ſo ſpeak, that is from a Divine Nature and Power in him, and therefore with as much Chearfulneſs and Willingneſs as the natural Man does eat and drink. And of this Iſaac was born Jacob, who was called Iſrael, which Philo the Jew interprets, one that * ſees God, ὁρῶσαν Θεὸν μηνύει τὸ ὄνομα· but you may be remembred that Iſhmael in the firſt Signification of his Name noted one that did onely know God by Hearſay, which is quite contrary to the ſeeing of God. For that Priviledge is proper to the true Chriſtian to whom Iſaac is born, and from him Iſrael: but he is quite out of the Line of Iſhmael, having now nothing to do with Hear-ſays and Conjectures, and fruitleſs Diſputacity upon the miſtaken Letter, and Polemical Divinity, and vain and ridiculous Altercations and Janglings; for he is now a Citizen of that New Jeruſalem from above, and the only true Jeruſalem, according to the Notation of the Name, which they will have to ſignifie The Viſion of Peace. He is a living Stone of the Temple of Him that is greater than Solomon, where there is not heard the Noiſe of any Ax or Hammer.

* See Book 8. chap. 5. ſect. 8.

* Philo ὁ μὲν Θεὸς. Ἰακὼβ μὲν οὖν μαθήσεως ἢ προκοπῆς ὄνομα, ἀκτὶς ἢ ἐξηκριβωμένων, δοκιμάσεων, Ἰσραὴλ δὲ τελειότητος· ὁρᾶσιν γὰρ θεὸν μηνύει τὸ ὄνομα. τελεώτερον δ' ἴσως τι ἂν εἴη τῶν ἐν ἀρεταῖς ἢ τὸ ὄντως ἰδεῖν. As if Iſrael were alſo to be deduced from שור ſignifying videre, and אל Deus.

Thirdly and laſtly, This Iſaac was not born according to the Fleſh, but διὰ τῆς ἐπαγγελίας, i. e. Per eam vim extraordinariam quam Deus promiſerat, by that extraordinary Power which God promiſed: for it is a Metonymy, as the Interpreter rightly has noted. Iſaac was not born according to the Power of Nature (for that natural Power of begetting and bearing Children was extinct in Abraham and Sarah, by reaſon of Old age, as the Text tells us;) but was born by the Power of God working extraordinarily in Nature: which Power Abraham having a Faith in, and believing the Promiſe, he at the appointed time ſaw and enjoyed the Effect of it. And this is the precious Chriſtian Faith ſo mainly neceſſary, and yet ſo little taken notice of by them that have treated at length of Matters of Divinity. For without this Faith in the Power of God, Iſaac will never be born in us; and if he be not born in us, I know no Warrant we have to conclude our ſelves Chriſtians or Men under the ſecond Covenant. Wherefore it is a Point mainly neceſſary to be inſiſted upon, that we may at length be really that which we pretend to be, that is, Sons of the Free-Woman, and not of the Bond-Woman; that the true Iſaac may be in us, which is Chriſt according to the Spirit, the Wiſdom and Power of God, a Divine Vigor and Life whereby we are inabled with the greateſt Joy and Chearfulneſs to walk in the Ways of God.

6. And verily it was this ſo neceſſary and uſeful Faith that was ſo commended in Abraham, that it was imputed to him for Righteouſneſs, as I have above-noted, viz. his believing the Promiſe of God in things above the ordinary Power of Nature. For it is for the moſt part the Nature even of Men that make large Profeſſions of God and Divine Providence, yet never to believe him further than in natural Cauſes and humane Probabilities. But this is not ſo much to believe God as Nature, nor to depend on him, but on our own cold and ineffectual Reaſon concluding from accuſtomary Probabilities. Which if Abraham had done, it might well have forfeited the Birth of his Son Iſaac. And it will be very reaſonable to examine our ſelves, if we do not now hinder the Birth of the ſpiritual Iſaac, by reaſon of our Unbelief. For we finding the Generality of Men ſo evil as they are, and being conſcious to our ſelves of abundance of Corruption and all manner of Weakneſs and Proclivity to what is bad, and finding it ſo common a thing for Men to continue in their evil Ways, and not to put off their wonted Habits, and that in our own Attempts and Reſolutions we have been often baffled and caſt back again; we are likely, through a Spirit of Infidelity, to conclude, That that which is ſo hard to Fleſh and Blood, and is ſo ſeldom ſeen in the Courſe of the World, will not be at all effected in us, and therefore either live as it happens, or at leaſt make very ſmall Progreſs in Matters of true Religion and Piety, I am ſure fall ſhort of that high Calling whereunto we are called, viz. that glorious Liberty of the Sons of God, from the ſlaviſh Inveiglements of all uſeleſs Ceremonies and real Sins. And this is for want of Abraham's Faith, who believed contrary to all Probability of Nature, that for all his decayed Body, and Sarah's barren Womb, yet God would raiſe up Seed to him, and that they ſhould have a Son in their Old-age. We are therefore to imitate Abraham the Father of the Faithful; and what we find our ſelves weak in, not to diſtruſt but that God in his good time can make it out to us; and therefore with Patience and Perſeverance to preſs forward, and by Faith in the Power of God, who raiſed Chriſt from the Dead, to expect that after we have been made conformable to his Death, we ſhall alſo partake of the Reſurrection from the Dead. For Chriſt in our Souls wading through the Death with us, that is, ſupporting and ſtrengthening us in our greateſt Agonies, brings up himſelf and us into a glorious Reſurrection from the Dead: which you may call a Birth, if you pleaſe, as well as a Reſurrection, uſing but the ſame Liberty that is already in the Scripture; where ſpeaking of his Reſurrection, the Apoſtle cites that in the ſecond Pſalm, Thou art my Son, this Day have I begotten thee. And this is the Son who, as he profeſſes of himſelf, if he make us free, we are then free indeed. For he is the Son of Sarah the Free-Woman, and we being of one Spirit with him do ipſo facto become free.

7. And if we would compendiouſly declare the grand Difference betwixt the Firſt and Second Covenant, it does conſiſt mainly in theſe two Points we are upon. Firſt, That a true Chriſtian, or one attained to the End and Scope of the Second Covenant, is what he is by Faith in a ſupernatural Power working him to it. Secondly, That that Condition he has attained to is a Condition of true and perfect Freedom properly ſo called. But he that is under the Firſt Covenant, is what he is by the Power of Nature only, and by applying himſelf as well as he can to the external Rule he has ſet before him. And verily he that does no more than thus in Chriſtianity it ſelf, that is, outwardly apply himſelf to the Letter of the Goſpel, has not arrived to the End of the Goſpel, nor is Iſaac yet born in him, but he is under an outward legal Form, inſtead of the Law of the Spirit of Life. And he cannot be born of the Free-Woman, foraſmuch as the Law of the Spirit of Life is wanting in him, which does really free us from the Law of Sin and Death.

But now by reaſon that a true Chriſtian arrives to that happy Condition he is in by a ſupernatural Power, (which Condition is to be freely and naturally Righteous and Good, that is, θείᾳ φύσει by a Divine Nature; which when we have attained to, we may be properly ſaid naturally and without ſtraining to do that which is Good and Righteous) we diſcover here a very eminent Object of our Faith, viz. this Divine Power, by the Help whereof we are to be wrought up into this happy Condition of a living inward Righteouſneſs, that is as near to us as our own Souls, and is the Life and Spirit of our Soul, as our Soul is of our Body. And thus are we made juſt by Faith, as I have elſewhere intimated, viz. by Faith in the Power of God, whereby he is able to raiſe Jeſus Chriſt from the Dead in us, or what is all one, whereby he is able to make the Spiritual Iſaac grow in our withered and barren Wombs, and to bring to paſs in us that by his aſſiſting Grace which would never have come to paſs by the mere Strength of Nature. This I ſay, is a very eminent and highly-conſiderable Object of our Chriſtian Faith. And the Want of this Faith the Prophet may ſeem to complain of in a myſtical Senſe, when he ſays, Who has believed our Report? Or to whom is the Arm of the Lord revealed? that is, Men are very ſlow to believe that the Power of God in Chriſt is ſo efficacious as it is to caſt down every Strong-hold of Satan, and to kill and ſlay the Body of Sin in us, that the Spirit of Righteouſneſs may be revived and reſtored in us. And thus much briefly of the Firſt Point wherein the Second Covenant differs from the Firſt. The Second Point is this, That the State of the Second Covenant is a State of Liberty, as that under the Firſt of Bondage.

Iſa. 53. 1.

8. And this Liberty conſiſts in theſe three things eſpecially. Firſt, In that we are freed from the tedious and voluminous luggage of Ceremonies, nor are any longer ſuperſtitiouſly hoppled in the Toils and Nets of ſuperfluous Opinions, which tend not at all of their own Nature to the Advancement of the Divine Life and the Kingdom of Chriſt in in the World. And verily it cannot ſink into my Mind how Zeal about unneceſſary Knowledge can be any better than the boiling of the natural Heat in the Behalf of that which is alike dear, nay more dear to Devils and natural Men than to the true Children of God, in whom the curious Deſire of Speculative Knowledge is very much extinguiſhed through their ardent Thirſt after Divine Life and Senſe: which will moſt vividly poſſeſs them upon a due Meaſure of Regeneration, or the Reſurrection from the Dead, when we have riſen with Chriſt as well as died with him. In the mean time while we are paſſing through the painful Agony of Mortification, all fine Opinions and Curioſities of Religion will lie ſcatterred and neglected about us, as Toys and Gew-gawes by a Child that is deadly ſick.

9. Secondly, the Second Part of our Liberty conſiſts in this, That we are free from Sin. They are the very Words of the Apoſtle, For if we have been planted together in the Likeneſs of his Death, we ſhall be alſo in the Likeneſs of his Reſurrection: Knowing this, that our Old Man is crucified with him, that the Body of Sin might be deſtroyed, that henceforth we ſhould not ſerve Sin. For he that is dead, is freed from Sin. And hence I think it is very plain that a Man that has had his due Progreſs under the Second Covenant, I mean the Goſpel of Chriſt, is freed from the Rebelion and Tumult of the Body of Sin. And that we may not ſhuffle off ſo general a Notion and elude the Force thereof, I will particularize; He is freed from Pride, from Envy, from Hatred, from Wrath, from Grief, from Covetouſneſs, and from ſenſual Luſt. And ſome of theſe are ſo incompetible with the Nature of a Chriſtian, as Pride and Envy, that they are like the rankeſt Poviſon, not in the leaſt Degree conſiſtent with the Condition we ſpeak of. And though ſomething in Reaſon may be ſaid for Hatred, yet I believe it will lie very croſly and unevenly in the Heart of a good Chriſtian; and I ſee no Need of it, whenas Anger and Sorrow, that is Pity, will ſupply the Place of it. And we may obſerve our Saviour Chriſt ſurprized with Anger, and melted in Grief and Pity; but there is not the leaſt Intimation of Hatred in any Paſſage of our Saviour's Life. So that it is the ſafeſt and moſt warrantable to be angry at, or pity wicked Men, not to hate them; leſt we become in ſome Meaſure hateful our ſelves by putting on that ſo deformed Vizard. As for ſenſual Luſt and all Voluptuoſneſs, it is ſo conſpicuous an Object of Mortification, that he that does not hit the Mark there, and ſtrike dead, kills Nothing at all. For it is the moſt craſs and groſs Enormity of them all, and the moſt ſcandalous, and the moſt importunate diſturber of Men that make towards God, and the greateſt Extinguiſher of true Faith and Senſe in Divine Things; and ſo beſmears the Wings of the Soul, as it were with Bird-lime, that ſhe cannot move upward, nor at all releaſe her ſelf from the Impediments of the Body, nor have any Phanſie nor Conceit of what is Heavenly and Divine. Rom. 6. 5, 6, 7.

But now Pride and Voluptuouſneſs being exterminated, it is plain that Covetouſneſs will be ſet packing; for it is ordinarily only a Purveyor for thoſe two Vices. And thoſe that are the moſt ſordidly covetous, are well aware that Money being able to do all Things, (let Men talk what they will) they really are not, nor can be deſpicable.

10. The Third and laſt is his Freedom to Righteouſneſs. And that this is true, is very plain from what has been ſaid before. For he being free from that load of unneceſſary Ceremonies, and from the Intanglements of fruitleſs and ſuperſtitious Opinions, and from the Body of Sin; what can now hinder that Divine principle of Regeneration from acting chearfully, freely and comfortably? For every Mountain is caſt down, and every Valley is exalted, and all is made plain and even before him, that with Pleaſure, Eaſe and Joy he may walk in the Ways of that Everlaſting Righteouſneſs that Chriſt brings into the World. For the Eternal Seed of the Word that is engrafted in him, or that living Law of Righteouſneſs planted in his Heart, does as naturally guide and actuate him as the Soul does move an unſhackled Body; and it is no more conſtraint or Bondage in him to do what is truly Good and Holy, than it is to the unregenerate to do that which is natural or vitious.

And thus have I plainly and truely ſet before you the Idea of a well-grown Chriſtian, that has made his due Proficiency under the mighty Advantages of the New Covenant, the Goſpel of Chriſt; that we may know what to aſpire to and breath after, and that we may never be quiet till we be poſſeſſed of this Bleſſed and Happy Condition. Which Deſign is of ſo high Conſequence, that I ſhall hold my ſelf very defective in my treating thereof, unleſs I add alſo what would be ſerviceable for Direction touching the Entrance into this New Covenant we have deſcribed, and for our Advance and Progreſs in the ſame. Which we ſhall doe by ſhewing the adequate Object thereof, the true Principle that moves us to covenant, and the moſt effectual Means to make us faithful Purſuers of what we firſt purpoſed and agreed to.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

1. The Adequate Object of ſaving Faith or Chriſtian Covenant. 2. That there is an Obligation on our parts, plain from the very Inſcription of the New Teſtament. 3. What the meaning of Blood in Covenant is. 4. And anſwerably what of the Blood of Chriſt in the Chriſtian Covenant. 5. The dangerous Error and damnable Hypocriſie of thoſe that would perſwade themſelves and others that no Performance is required on their Side in this Covenant. 6. That the heavenly Inheritance is promiſed to us only upon Condition, evinced out of ſeveral Places of Scripture.

1. THE Adequate Object of ſaving Faith or Chriſtian Covenant (For I mean by Covenant our faithful and ſincere cloſing with the Terms of the Goſpel) is that which we ordinarily call The New Teſtament; that is to ſay, thoſe concerning Truths that are there upon record, as well Precepts as Promiſes: all theſe are to be believed and aſſented to. Or, to ſpeak yet more comprehenſively, All that Chriſt is ſaid there to have done or ſuffered, to have acted or procured for us, whatever Good He has done for us already or promiſed for the future on his Part, this is to be believed without any evil Suſpoſition or Wavering: And what on our Part is required to be done, is alſo with a free and plenary Purpoſe of Mind to be accepted and promiſed, and with all Sedfaſtneſs and Sincerity to the utmoſt of our Power to be endeavoured after, without any Fraud or Tergiverſation, without any eluſive Tricks or perverſe Miſconſtructions of the Holy Precepts of the Goſpel.

2. For the very Inſcription of this Record we call the New Teſtament, ἡ καινὴ Διαθήκη, bears before it the Notion of a Covenant, that is of mutual Obligation: though it may alſo ſignifie a New Law; which Title would more roughly confute thoſe Hypocritical Flatterers both of themſelves and their Followers, who by their deceitful and juggling Interpretations would make them believe that Nothing is expected at our hand in this Goſpel-Diſpenſation. And beſides, a Law is not for Nothing defined in Ariſtotle by συνθήκη, Covenant, it being ἐγγυητὴς ἀλλήλοις τῶν δικαίων, as Lycophron has defined it, The Law being our common Sponſor or Undertaker that there ſhall be juſt Dealing betwixt Party and Party. Nor can they decline the Truth we aim at by pretending that ἡ καινὴ διαθήκη is only the New Teſtament in ſuch a Sence as relates to dying Men, and therefore may ſignifie a right conveyed to another without any mutual Obligation, For in this Sence it cannot be called a New Teſtament, becauſe there was no old one anſwering to it. For the Law of God, or Covenant by Moſes, could not be called a Teſtament in this Sence: For God the Father did not die, nor is Moſes his Law any Legacy or laſt Will and Teſtament in Reference to Moſes his Death.

3. It remains therefore that Chriſtianity is an obligatory Covenant, whereby Party is tyed to Party, that is, God to Man, and Man to God; and that the Mediator of this Covenant is Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe Blood ſhed upon the Croſs is the Blood of this Covenant; as your moſt Sacred and Solemn Covenants amongſt the Nations, and with the Jews too, were (as I have above intimated) with the ſprinkling of Blood. Which Ceremony of Sacrificing and Effuſion of Blood was Nothing but an Inſinuation of a mutual Imprecation or Commination of the higheſt Evil to one another, if they dealt treacherouſly in the Covenant. Grotius produces an ancient Form of the Pagan Religion, which is expreſs to this Purpoſe; Qui prior defexit, tu illum, Jupiter, ſic Ferito, ut ego hunc Porcum hodie feriam, tantòque magis quanto magis potes polléſque. And ſo the Trojans and Grecians making a ſolemn Covenant, and religiouſly obliging one another to ſtand to the Terms thereof, upon the Sacrificing of Lambs and pouring out a Drink-Offering to the Gods, one uttered this Imprecation or Commination indifferently to either Party that ſhould prove falſe.

Ζεῦ κύδιστε, μέγιστε, καὶ ἀθάνατοι θεοὶ ἄλλοι,
Ὁππότεροι πρότεροι ὑπὲρ ὅρκια πημήνειαν,
Ὧδε σφ' ἐγκέφαλος χαμάδις ῥέοι ὡς ὅδε οἶνος.

Thrice great and Glorious Jove, and ye the Gods
His Heavenly Senators, which of theſe twain
Firſt break this ſolemn League and fall at odds;
As doth this Wine, ſo may their ſcattered Brain
Paſh'd from their curſed Sculls the Pavement ſtain.

4. From

4. From this general Notion and Meaning of the Blood in the Sanction of Covenants, we may the better underſtand what is the Meaning thereof in that Covenant which God has made with us through the Blood of Chriſt. For at his laſt Paſſion he called the Wine his Blood of the New Covenant to be ſhed for many for the Remiſſion of Sins, that is, for Peace and Reconciliation betwixt God and Man. But in theſe ſolemn Leagues, Pacifications and Covenants, which were made with Blood, though it were a Ceremony of Benevolence and Agreement, yet the Effuſion of Blood did not ceaſe to be of a comminatoty Signification for thoſe that were faithleſs in their Covenant. So it is alſo much more with the Blood of the Son of God. As the Peace is of higher Concernment, ſo is the Breach of Covenant of the greater Danger. This the Authour to the Hebrews does expreſly take Notice of, and ſhews that upon wilful Miſdemeanours and perverſe Revoltings from God, the Expiatory and Pacificatory Virtue of the Blood of Chriſt then ceaſes, and the comminatory Part takes Place; Hebr. 10. 26. For if we ſin wilfully after we have received the Knowledge of the Truth, there remaineth no more Sacrifice for Sins: but a Certain fearful Looking for of Judgment, and fiery Indignation which ſhall devour the Adverſaries. He that deſpiſed Moſes Law died without Mercy, under two or three Witneſſes. Of how much ſeverer Puniſhment, think ye, ſhall he be thought worthy who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the Blood of the Covenant, wherewith he was ſanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done Deſpight unto the Spirt of Grace? And therefore, as St. Peter ſpeaks 2 Epiſt. 2. It had been better for them not to have known the Way of Righteouſneſs, than after they have known it, to turn from the Holy Commandment delivered to them. Which Perſons he decyphers in the foregoing Verſe, That they were ſuch as had eſcaped the Pollutions of the World through the Knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, but were again entangled therein and overcome, being brought into the Bondage of Sin by giving Place to the deceitful Doctrines of Libertiniſm; as you may ſee more at large in that Chapter.

5. Wherefore it plainly appears out of what already has been ſaid, That there are Terms to be performed on our Part in this New Covenant as well as there are Promiſes on God's Part, and that Chriſtianity is no ſuch looſe, remiſs and inert Religion as ſome Deceivers would make it: which we ſhall make ſtill more plain from ſeveral other Teſtimonies of Scripture. Matth. 11. The Kingdom of Heaven ſuffereth Violence, and the violent take it by Force. Whence is plainly intimated that no lazy or careleſs Endeavours will carry us on to the Enjoyment of the Promiſes of the Covenant. As elſewhere, He that lays his Hand to the Plough and looks back, is not fit for the Kingdom of God. And Luke 13. 24. Strive to enter in at the ſtreight Gate: For I ſay unto you, many ſhall ſeek to enter in, and ſhall not be able. Becauſe ſtreight is the Gate and narrow is the Way that leadeth unto Life; but wide is the Gate and broad is the Way that leadeth to Deſtruction, and many there be that go in thereat. As it is in the Parallel Place of St. Matthew. Which plain Places of Scripture one would think ſhould awake thoſe filthy Dreamers out of their miſchievous Conceits and Opinions, whereby they would make us believe the Evangelical Diſpenſation is ſo ſoft and delicate a thing, that rhere is no laying of the Hand to the Plough, no crouding or ſtriving, but that we ſhall be carryed to Heaven on that Eaſie Featherbed of unactive Faith or fanatick Libertiniſm, Whenas the Evangelical Oracles tell us, that we are to work out our Salvation with Fear and Trembling; that we are to run and to wreſtle, to fight and to reſiſt even unto Blood. 1 Cor. 9. 24. Know ye not that they that run in a Race, run all, but one receiveth the Prize? So run that ye may obtain. And every one that ſtrives for the Victory, is temperate in all things. Now they doe it to obtain a corruptible Crown, but we an incorruptible. I therefore ſo run, not as uncertainly: ſo fight I not as one that beateth the Air. But I keep under my Body, and bring it into Subjection: leſt by any Means when I have preached to others, I my ſelf ſhould become a Caſt-away. And yet St. Paul was as choſen a Veſſel as the choiceſt of theſe Pieces that befool themſelves ſo with Self-flattery, that they think they have found an eaſier Way to Salvation than Paul himſelf knew, that think they ſhall get the Victory and the Crown by not fighting againſt their own Corruptions, but by beating the Air with knackiſh forms of gracious Speeches and vain Grandiloquence that tends to nothing but the masking of there own Hypocriſie and Unfaithfulneſs in the Covenant, and to the Seduction and Ruin of others.

Phil. 2. 12. Epheſ. 6. 12. Hebr. 12. 4

6. But St. Paul, however they would abuſe ſome Paſſages in him to the favouring of there ill Cauſe, is an utter Diſclaimer of ſuch falſe Doctrine, and does yet more expreſly tell us That the Promiſes of the Goſpel are conditional. This is a faithful Saying (ſaith he to Timothy, 2 Epiſt. Chap. 2.) If we be dead with Him, we ſhall alſo live with Him: If we ſuffer, we ſhall alſo reign with Him: If we deny Him, He will alſo deny us. If we deal unfaithfully in the Covenant, yet He is faithful and cannot de- ny

ny himſelf: He will ſtand to his Covenant in all the Intents and Purpoſes thereof, whether to Puniſhment or Reward. And Rom. 8. There is therefore now no Condemnation to thoſe that are in Chriſt Jeſus; but their Qualification preſently follows, that walk not after the Fleſh, but after the Spirit: and ver. 8. They that are in the Fleſh, cannot pleaſe God. But ye are not in the Fleſh, but in the Spirit, if ſo be the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any Man have not the Spirit of Chriſt, he is none of his. And if Chriſt be in you, the Body is dead becauſe of Sin: but the Spirit is Life becauſe of Righteouſneſs. And again, If ye live after the Fleſh, ye ſhall die; but if through the Spirit ye mortifie the Deeds of the Body, ye ſhall live. And ver. 16. The Spirit it ſelf bears Witneſs with our Spirits, that we are the Children of God. And if Children, then Heirs, Heirs of God and joint Heirs with Chriſt; if ſo be we ſuffer with Him, that we may be alſo glorified with Him. Which plainly implies that the Inheritance of Heaven, or Kingdom of Glory, is a conditional Kingdom or Inheritance. And not to ſpeak of Kingdoms, we ſhall not ſo much as have Remiſſion of Sins but upon Condition. Matth. 6. 14, 15. For if we forgive Men their Trepaſſes, your heavenly Father will alſo forgive you. But if you forgive not Men their Treſpaſſes, neither will your Father forgive you your Treſpaſſes. What can be more evident than this?

CHAP. IX.

1. What it is really to enter into this New Covenant. 2. That the Entring into this Covenant ſuppoſes actual Repentance. 3. That this New Covenanter is born of Water and the Spirit, 4. The Neceſſity of the skilful Uſage of theſe new-born Babes in Chriſt. 5. That ſome Teachers are mere Witches and Child-Suckers.

I. WE have therefore undeniably demonſtrated That this New Goſpel-Covenant is a conditional Covenant: and but that Hypocriſie and Impiety has made Mens Souls ſo degenerate, that Sence and Non-ſence is alike to them, thay would from the very Sound and Signification of the Word perceive that there are mutual Terms and Conditions implied, or elſe it would be no Covenant. This therefore being premiſed, we ſhall the better underſtand what is that due Affection and Qualification of Mind that is required of him that would enter into this Covenant, or what it is whereby he has really entred into it. For it is not a meer Hiſtorical Faith or Belief of thoſe things that are in the New Teſtament, and an Acknowledgement that they all tend to the Peace and Salvation of Man, and that he is obliged to live up to the utmoſt of his Power to thoſe Holy Precepts that are there contained; but further there is a Love and Liking of the ſaid Precepts as well as a Deſire of the Enjoyment of the Promiſe of Eternal Life, and a ſincere Reſolution of endeavouring to live as near as he can according to thoſe Evangelical Rules, and a chearful Expectation of Divine Aſſiſtance, that God will enable him by the Co-operation of His holy Spirit to make ſuch due progreſſes in Life and Godlineſs as ſhall become an unfeigned Profeſſor of Faith in Chriſt Jeſus.

2. He that upon the Peruſal of the Records of the Goſpel, as they are found in the New Teſtament, or by what other Way ſoever the Subſtance thereof is communicated to him, and ſo upon Information of his Errours and Miſtakes, whether in Opinion or Practice, is thus affected as we have declared; it is manifeſt that he has already repented him of his Sins and Errours, and is in a real Miſlike of his former Converſation, ſo far forth as it was uncomformable to the Mind of Chriſt. So that the State above deſcribed does plainly imply Repentance, which comprehends in it a Rejection of ſuch Apprehenſions as we now have diſcovered to be falſe, and an Abhorrence from and ſorrow for all our Miſdeeds, with a Willingneſs to make Satisfaction where we have done Wrong, if it lie in our Power, and a Proneneſs to take Revenge of our ſelves in curbing our ſelves and cutting our ſelves ſhort of the ordinary Enjoyment of ſuch things as are in themſelves lawful, they being for the preſent not ſo expedient for us, but rather hurtful and dangerous.

3. He

3. He that is thus affected as we have deſcribed, and can thus willingly and ſincerely cloſe with Chriſt, and receive Him as King as well as Prieſt and Prophet, and holds Himſelf bound in Duty to live in the World as he lived, following His Example in all things, and has (as I have already ſaid) a Love and Liking of thoſe Graces He has recommended to the World, is a fit New-Covenanter. For Fleſh and Blood has not revealed theſe things unto him, but the Spirit of God that remains in him; he being born again not of corruptible Seed, but incorruptible, the Word of God that lives and abides for ever. Of this State may be underſtood that of St. John, Whoſoever confeſſes that Jeſus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him and he in God: and Chap. 5. Whoſoever believeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt, is born of God. And this is that new Birth without which there is no Entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven, namely, unleſs a Man be born of Water and of the Spirit; that is to ſay, born of the Spirit which is figured out in Baptiſmal Water; which is the outward Sign of this inward Regeneration, whereby a Man is in a Capacity of thus covenanting with God, obtains Remiſſion of Sins in Chriſt, and becomes a real and viſible Member of His Church.

4. And when he is thus born into the Church, he is not then taken into the Arms of abſolute Omnipotency to ſupport him, defend him, and nouriſh him: but there is much what the ſame Reaſon that there is of a young Plant newly ſprung out of the Earth, or a young Child newly born into the World; unleſs they meet, the one with a careful and skilful Gardener, the other with good Nurſes, they are both in hazard of being ſpoiled with one ſad Accident or other; their Growth may be hindred, if not Life extinguiſhed, by Neglect or untoward Handling. For the Influence of Grace is not always irreſiſtible, nor the Purpoſe of it undefeatable, but is much-what as the Power of Nature and her Offerings and Attempts towards the Perfection of thoſe Species of things ſhe produces, as I have alſo above-noted. She works always towards the beſt, but may be checked or ſtopped; and the Spirit (the Apoſtle ſays) may be quenched as well as natural Fire. And though Nature freely offers that comfortable Principle of Life, the freſh Air, yet the Lungs of the Child may be ſo ſtuffed by the unwholſome Milk of a wretched and unfaithful Nurſe, that he cannot receive it, to continue Life and Health, but the poor Infant muſt be forc'd to yield ro the Importunity of the Diſeaſe, and to die by their Hands who profeſſed to adminiſter Life and Nouriſhment to him. Book 8. ch. 12. ſect. 2.

5. There is the ſame Reaſon in thoſe that are as yet Infants in Chriſtianity, that have really a Life and Senſe and Deſire to what is truly Good, but are not yet come to that Growth but that they are to ſuck from others. If they that pretend to nurſe them up impart Poyſon inſtead of the ſincere Milk of the Word, there is no queſtion but they are in very great Danger of loſing that Life they are newly begotten into, and of falling from this New-Covenant. That there were of old ſuch Nurſes or rather Witches that, inſtead of feeding theſe Infants, ſuck'd the very Blood and Life of Religion out of them, ſeveral Paſſages in the Epiſtles of the Apoſtles do intimate, as I have already taken notice, namely, That they were little Children whom thoſe Impoſtours would make believe that they might be righteous, though they were not righteous as Chriſt was righteous. Which verily is to ſqueeze cold or ſtupifying Poyſon into their Mouths, not to ſuckle them with the ſaving Milk of the Word. St. Paul was a more faithful Nurſe, and taught Titus to be ſo too, chap. 3. where after the Mention of the Entrance into this new Covenant by the waſhing of Regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghoſt, he preſently adds, This is a faithful Saying, and theſe things I will that thou affirm conſtantly, that they which have believed in God ſhould be careful to maintain good Works. Book 8. ch. 5.

CHAP. X.

1. The Firſt Principle the New-Covenanter is cloſely to keep to. 2. The Second Principle to be kept to. 3. The Third and laſt Principle.

1. WHerefore that there be no Recidivation nor ſtanding ſtill, but that there may be a due Advance and Growth in the Chriſtian Life, the Firſt Principle that the New-Covenanter is to adhere to ſtedfaſt and unſhaken, is this. That there is an indiſpenſable Obligation in this New-Covenant of living up ſo near as we poſſibly can to thoſe Precepts of the Goſpel that are delivered either by the Mouth of our Saviour himſelf or the holy Apoſtles; and that we are not to allow our ſelves in any thing that our own Conſciences tell us is a Sin; nor be diſcouraged as Men out of Hope, if we find our ſelves, againſt our own Meaning and Purpoſe, at any time miſtaken; but with Chearfulneſs and Confidence in the Mediation of our Saviour to add more reſolute Endeavours and the greater Circumſpection for the future, making even an Advantage of our Lapſes, that ſudden Surpriſal or any Errour or Frailty brought us into, for an higher and more ſpeedy Advance in the Divine Life. Theſe two Conſiderations of our indiſpenſable Obligation to Duty, and Chriſt's Interceſſion and Propitiation for us, St. John has prudently bound up together, 1 Epiſt. 2. My little Children, theſe things I write unto you, that you ſin not. But if any Man ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the righteous; and he is a Propitiation for our Sins, and not for ours only, but for the Sins of the whole World. Hereby we know that we know him, if we keep his Commandments. He that ſaith I know him, and keepeth not his Commandments, is a Liar, and the Truth is not in him. But whoſo keepeth his Word, in him verily is the Love of God perfected. As this Point is exceeding clear, as I have more largely proved elſewhere: ſo is it moſt neceſſary to be believed and to be remembred perpetually, that we may keep our ſelves ſafe from taſting, touching, or coming any thing near the Sight or Sent of that luſhious Poyſon of Libertiniſm (let it be coloured, ſuggared over, or perfumed with the moſt gracious Terms or glorious Expreſſions that the deceivable Eloquence of Man can put upon it;) and that we may ſhun the Breath of ſuch a Seducer, as of one that is infected with the Peſtilence, and whoſe Converſe is Death and the eternal Ruin of our very Souls.

Book 8. ch. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11.

2. The Second Principle that he is cloſely to keep to is, That (I had almoſt ſaid) Omnipotent Faith in God through Chriſt: I mean, the Belief of the Aſſiſtance of his holy Spirit to overcome all manner of Sin in us. For if we keep up duly to this, nothing will be able to withſtand us, but by Patience and Perſeverance we ſhall be able to beat out Satan out of his ſtrongeſt Holds. According to thy Faith ſo be it unto thee, is true as well in Chriſt's healing our Souls as in his curing the Bodies of the ſick when he was upon earth. This is a prime Branch of that ſaving Faith, and the greateſt Strength and Suſtentation we have to keep us from ſinking back into Sin, and from being drown'd and carried away with the Floods of Ungodlineſs. If we let this Hold go, all is gone: For they that do not believe that they have Power to reſiſt Sin, muſt of Neceſſity give up themſelves Captives to it. And this is that which makes St. Paul ſo affectionately devout in the Behalf of the Epheſians, that God would be pleaſed to give them this ſpecial Gift of Faith for their Strength and Corroboration of the inward Man; Chap. 3. For this Cauſe I bow my Knees unto the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, That he would grant you according to the Riches of his Glory, to be ſtrengthened with Might by his Spirit in the Inner-man; That Chriſt may dwell in your Hearts by Faith; that ye being rooted and grounded in Love, &c. according as I have elſewhere rehearſed. And in the Doxology immediately following this Prayer, of what unconceivable Efficacy the Operations of the Spirit are in us, the Apoſtle again does intimate in a very high Strain, Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above what we ask or think, according to the Power that worketh in us, unto him be Glory in the Church by Chriſt Jeſus throughout all Ages World without end. Which Words plainly imply that ſuch is the inexhauſtible Richneſs of Grace and Aſſiſtance from the Spirit of God, that the Effect of its inward Working in us is for the preſent not imaginable, much leſs expreſſible. Wherefore our Faith cannot be too great in this ſupernatural Principle; and the greater it is, the greater Courage and the more ſpeedy and more abſolute Victory.

Book 8. ch. 9.

3. And

3. And yet there is ſtill another Principle that will further actuate our Faith, and make us ſtill more lively, reſolute and invincible; and that is The Love of Chriſt which every young Chriſtian is to warm himſelf with, and Inflame his Courage more and more: which he will beſt do by frequent Meditations upon Chriſt's Paſſion, what Shame, what Sorrow, and Pain he underwent to gain the Love of Souls, and ſo to tie them to himſelf in thoſe ſweet and inviolable Bands of ſincere Love and Friendſhip, that by this golden Chain he may pull them up after him from Earth to Heaven. Let therefore our New-Covenanter as often as he reflects upon the exceeding great Love of his Saviour, and finds his Heart begin to grow hot, being touched with a Ray from that celeſtial Flame, that bright Sun of Righteouſneſs that now ſhines at the Right-hand of God, let him be ſure to remember what Compenſation he requires for all that dear Affection he has ſhewn to us. The Leſſon is but ſhort, and therefore muſt not be forgotten, If you love me, keep my Commandments. John 14. 15.

CHAP XI.

1. The diligent Search this New-Covenanter ought to make to find out whatſoever is corrupt and ſinful. 2. That the truly Regenerate cannot be quiet till all Corruption be wrought out. 3. The moſt importunate Devotions of a living Chriſtian. 4. The Difference betwixt a Son of the Second Covenant and a Slave of the Firſt. 5. The Myſtical Completion of a Prophecy of Iſaiah touching this State.

1. THE young Chriſtian being thus armed with Faith and Love, and an unwavering Senſe of his Duty in becoming holy even as he that called him is holy, he will be then both willing and ready to look his Enemies in the Face, and to ſeek them out if he cannot at firſt ſight find them, and to pull them out of every hiding-place of Hypocriſie, and bring them into the open Light and ſlay them. And if after diligent Search, he can find none, yet he will be ſo modeſt as to diſtruſt the Meaſure of his Skill, and will be earneſt in Prayer to God to diſcover what inward hidden Wickedneſs there may lurk yet in him, to the end that the old Leaven may be utterly caſt out, and that there may be nothing left that is contrary to the Scepter of Chriſt and the Kingdom of God in his Heart.

2. For indeed it is impoſſible that one that is truly regenerate and has the Seed of God and the Life of his Spirit actually in him, ſhould be quiet till all that which is unholy and corrupt be wrought out. But the Caſe is much-what as in the natural Body that is ſick, either Death or Health will in a competent Time poſſeſs the Body. If the morbifick Matter be not carried away by Sweating, Purging, or ſome Evacuation or other, Life it ſelf will be carried away: but if that which is contrary to Life be remov'd, Health muſt certainly take place.

3. And ſo it is in the Divine Life it ſelf, when it has taken Root and Growth, whatever is contrary to it, is burdenſome to it, like that * tyrannick Project of tying the Living and the Dead together. Wherefore the true Chriſtian can never be at Eaſe and Reſt till he has caſt off that heavy Load, the Body of Sin, the Old man that ſtinks earthly and unſavourly, if he be perceived at all, and indeed ſo unſufferably, that the Divine Life and Senſe in a Man cannot endure it. Nor can endure to be in a Condition ſo ſenſeleſs that there ſhould be any of that ſoure Leaven left, and yet there be no Perception of it. And therefore the moſt importunate Addreſs to the Throne of Grace in a true and living Chriſtian is, That God would be pleaſed to diſcover whatever Uglineſs or Deformity there is in him in either Practice or Principle. Which God of his Mercy does by degrees, not all at once, that there may not ariſe overmuch Diſtraction and Confuſion of Mind. But if we be not wanting to our ſelves, the Work will be accompliſh'd in due time, and the Kingdom of Heaven, as well within as without, will be as a Grain of Muſtard-Seed. The Criſis of the Diſeaſe will be in a competent Time, as I ſaid before, and our whole Man re-enlivened with the Spirit of God, and reſtored to the State of Righteouſneſs, Peace, and Joy in the Holy Ghoſt. *Book 8. ch. 5 ſect. 8. Mat. 13. 31.

4. For verily to be quiet upon any other Terms but theſe, is not to be a Son of the Second Covenant, but a careleſs Slave under the Firſt, that acts not out of a Principle of Love and inward Life and Liking, but out of ſome external Reſpect, and cares not how little he does, or what is the Frame of his Mind, ſo he may but ſcape being well cudgelled for the preſent, and receive at laſt the promiſed Wages of his Maſter.

But under the Second Covenant the Caſe is quite otherwiſe. For the true Chriſtian there is impatient of Sin, merely becauſe it is Sin, and bears the ſame Analogy to the Senſe of his Soul, that a wearisome or torturous Diſeaſe does to the Senſe of his Body; and therefore it is intolerable till he be freed from it; and that the more, by how much the more aſſured he is that it is contrary to the Will and Mind of Chriſt, who came into the World to heal us of our Iniquities and to free us from all Sin.

Book. 8 c. 6, 7.

5. And therefore laſtly, we are never to reſt contented till we find our ſelves through the Power of God arrived to this State and Frame of Spirit, (and that in ſuch an height as is competible to humane Nature,) that there may be nothing undeſtroyed that is contrary and oppoſite to the Life of God in us. That that may be fulfilled which is propheſied in Iſaiah, That they that fight againſt Iſrael ſhall be as nothing; and they that ſtrive with him ſhall periſh. Thou ſhalt ſeek them, and ſhalt not find them, even them that contended with thee; they that war againſt thee ſhall be as nothing and as a thing of nought.

Iſa. 41.11, 12.

CHAP. XII.

1. That the deſtroying of Sin is not without ſome time of Conflict. The moſt infallible Method for that Diſpatch. 2. The conſtant ordering of our external Actions. 3. The hypocritical Complaint of thoſe for want of Power that will not do thoſe good things that are already in their Power. 4. The Danger of making this New Covenant a Covenant of Works, and our Love to Chriſt a mercenary Friendſhip. 5. Earneſt Prayers to God for the perfecting of the Image of Chriſt in us. 6. Continual Circumſpection and Watchfulneſs. 7. That the vilifying of outward Ordinances is no Sign of a New-Covenanter, but of a proud and carnal Mind. 8. Caution to the New-Covenanter concerning his Converſe with Men. 9. That the Branches of the Divine Life without Faith in God and Chriſt, degenerate into mere Morality. The examining all the Motions and Excurſions of our Spirit how agreeable they are with Humility, Charity, and Purity. 10. Cautions concerning the Exerciſe of our Humility. 11. As alſo of our Purity. 12. And of our Love or Charity. The ſafe Conduct of the Faithful by their inward Guide.

1. AND this may ſerve for a more general Direction and Encouragement; but we ſhall annex alſo what is of more particular Conſideration. For we have expreſs'd our ſelves hitherto, as if ſo ſoon as a Man were under the Second Covenant, there needed nothing but the finding out of his Sins: for then armed with Faith and Love, he could ſuddenly deſtroy them. But, that I may be rightly underſtood, it cannot be without ſome time of Conflict. But the ſtronger he is in theſe Divine Virtues, the Victory will be the eaſier and the ſpeedier. But in the mean time the Fleſh will be working againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the Fleſh; and Patience and Faithfulneſs is required on our ſide that we do what God already has put into our Power. And aſſuredly it is in the Power of the New-Covenanter to mortifie all manner of Corruptions and immoderate Deſires in due time by this ſhort and infallible Method, viz. By a conſtant Denial of their Cravings. Give a Beggar nothing at thy Door, and he will never viſit thee. Deſire is ſtarved by being unfulfilled. A Man you know often loſes his Appetite by ſtaying over long for his Dinner.

2. Inordinate Deſire will haunt a Man like an Ague, if we pamper and ſatisfie it. The Devil and the Sop will both down into our Bellies at once. But thou mayeſt pine out both Deſire and the Devil that lurks in it by a pertinacious Temperance or ſtopping thy ſelf in thy outward Actions. Affect not Vain-glory and Applauſe in they outward Actions or Speeches, but modeſtly decline it, and Pride will fall in thy Soul. In good Time thou ſhall find Humility riſe in thy Heart, and ſweetly ſhine in thee with her mild Light. Give not thy Anger vent, and it will be extinct like ſmothered Fire. Anſwer not thy Luſt or Laſciviouſneſs, and it will ceaſe to call unto thee, but die as a Weed trod down into the Ground. Dare to doe Good, though thy baſe Heart gainſay it; and pleaſure thy very Enemies, thoſe that hate thee or envy thee. For Covetouſneſs and and Hatred being thus oft croſſed, will out of Anger and Diſcontent at laſt quite leave thee.

3. But if thou be falſe to God and thine own Soul in thoſe things which He hath put in thy Power, (and He hath put the outward Man plainly in thy Power,) and neglecteſt the Performance of them, and yet doſt complain of Want of Strength; thou art in plain Engliſh an Hypocrite, and dealeſt treacherouſly with Chriſt in the Covenant, and the Devil and thine own falſe Heart have deceived thee. Thou collogueſt and flattereſt with thy Lips, and telleſt fair Stories of the loving Kindneſs and free Grace of God in Chriſt; but thy Heart is far from Him: For whoſoever names the Name of Chriſt, is to depart from Iniquity, as has been already noted out of the Apoſtle.

4. But now in the ſecond Place, as we are faithfully to perſiſt in a conſtant Abſtinence from outward evil Actions, and in a perpetual Exerciſe of ſuch as are Good; ſo we muſt by all Means have a ſpecial Care that we take not up our Reſt in theſe, and ſo make this new Covenant a mere Covenant of Works, as if by theſe external Performances we did ſo oblige Chriſt as that he were bound to give us Heaven by Way of Gratitude or of bargain and Purchaſe: we dealing craftily herein, as poor Men doe ſometimes with great Perſons, preſenting them with ſomething of ſmall Value, to get from them a Reward of far greater Worth; they having in the mean Time no cordial Affection to thoſe they preſent with their Gifts, but only baiting the Hook to catch a Fiſh. Nay I add further, That perſonal Love and Affection merely upon this Account of being externally beneficial to us in dying for us and delivering us from Eternal Deſtruction, even this does not fill up the End and Purpoſe of the ſecond Covenant. For this were little better than a kind of mercenary Friendſhip, and ſuch as is competible to the mere Natural Man: For he can love him that does him ſuch a good as his very Animal Frame or Temper is ſenſible of. But our Love and Friendſhip with Chriſt muſt be ſtill more inward and more intimate, we being tied to Him not only by the Senſe of External Benefits, but by Unity of Spirit; there being the ſame Life and Spirit in us that was in Him here on Earth. And therefore there will be in our very Souls an high Sympathy and ineffable Pleaſure and Liking of that Nature and Spirit that breaths in all the Actions and Speeches recorded of our Saviour, and a tranſporting Delight in all the Precepts of the Goſpel, whether delivered by Himſelf or His holy Apoſtles; they will be ſweeter than the Honey and the Honey-Comb, and more deſirable than thouſands of Gold and Silver, as the Prophet David ſpeaks.

5. Wherefore we are never to be quiet till we find our ſelves fully enamoured on the very Character and Genius, as I may ſo ſpeak, of our Bleſſed Saviour, and find our ſelves ſo affected as He was affected in the World. And therefore we are to add to our External Profeſſion fervent Prayer to God, not only to reſiſt Temptations, or to doe outward good Works; but that he would alſo wholly renew our Nature in us, that our Regeneration may be perfected, and that we may be entirely tranſformed into the lively Image of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. And this not only at ſet Times, but continually as we have Opportunity and Vacancy from the Throng and Urgency of worldly Affairs. For then ſhould we commune with our Hearts, and meditate on that Divine Image and Character, The Life of Chriſt, and obſerve wherein we are moſt wanting, and to what Part thereof our Affections are the moſt cool; and ſo with ſerious and earneſt Ejaculations to God implore the Help and Aſſiſtance of his Spirit to compleat the good Work that He has begun in us: and ſo we ſhall fulfil that Precept of the Apoſtle, Pray continually, that is, whether upon the Emergency of ſome Temptation, or upon ſelf Examinations and devout Meditations. 1 Theſſ. 5. 17.

6. And as we are to pray continually, ſo we are to watch continually, that is, to paſs from one Tranſaction to another with due Circumſpection; making our very Converſe with Men and Affairs in the World an Advantage to our main Deſign of Improvement in the Divine Life. For coming thus out into Company and Employment, we have thereby a preſent Exerciſe of that Grace that is in us, and can find thereby the better our own Inabilities and Defects, as alſo what Strength we are of, and what Proficiency we have made in the way we have choſen. And ſo what we have, will be thereby more corroborated; and what we want, being diſcovered to our ſelves, we know the better to ask it from the Hands of God.

7. Thus

7. Thus will the Work aſſuredly go ſucceſsfully on by perpetual Meditations, Prayer and Watchfulneſs. And while thou art thus taken up with thy ſelf, take heed how thou meddleſt with other Men. And particularly beware of deſpiſing the publick Ordinances of thy Church. For thou mayeſt hear the ſame Advice given thee in the open Congregations that thou haſt aſſented to as true in thine own Conſcience, from the Mouth of a faithful and knowing Miniſtry. Which, if thou beeſt what thou pretendeſt to, will delight thy Heart, both in that it is a Teſtimony of the Truth, and that it may take Effect in others by God's Bleſſing as well as in thee. Wherefore it is no Sign of a New-Covenanter, but of a proud and carnal Mind and of a wicked Deſigner, to vilifie theſe things.

8. Moreover thou art to take this Advertiſement along with thee concerning thy converſe with Men, That firſt thou cenſure not any Man for external Matters of an indifferent Interpretation, in Diet, Apparel, or Civil Behaviour, whether he be more courtly or Plain in Carriage, whether more cheerful or more ſad, whether he drink Wine or refrain from drinking, whether he wear good Clothes or go in a meaner Dreſs; and ſo of other things of like Nature. Thou oughteſt I ſay to paſs no Cenſure, no not ſo much as in thy tacit Thoughts about theſe things, but eſteem every Man from what is truly Chriſtian or Unchriſtian in him. And then ſecondly, Thou art carefully to take Head that the juſt Liberty of another lead thee not into any Inconvenience, by tempting thee to imitate him. But thou art ſtrictly to keep to what thou knoweſt in thine own Conſcience to be moſt for thine own Safety; that the good Work may goe on in thee, and that Righteouſneſs may have its firm rooting and full Growth. But in the mean Time thou art to look after thy ſelf as a tender Child or ſick Perſon, who are rightly forbidden ſuch things as grown Men and in Health take their Liberty to make Uſe of. Theſe two Cautions will prevent all Scandal whereby thou mayeſt either harm thy ſelf or be injurious to others.

9. Laſtly, I ſhall more particularly and expreſly recommend to thee the frequent Meditation of theſe three Branches of the Divine Life, Humility, Charity, and Purity, together with their deepeſt Root Faith in God through Jeſus Chriſt. For if this be not taken in, thy Progreſs in the ſecond Covenant may degenerate into a mere accuſtomary or complexional Frame of Morality, and have nothing in it, that is really Divine. I am ſure it will not be of that Nature as to fit thee for that Eternal Salvation that is promiſed to thoſe that are true Believers. And as concerning thoſe three Branches of the Divine Root, I would have thee to place them ever in thine Eye, and examine all the Motions and Excurſions of thy Spirit into outward Actions, how ſutable they are to theſe, and cloſely obſerve when thou thinkeſt thy ſelf ſo zealouſly carried out by the moving of one of theſe Principles, if thou doſt not run counter to another. Nay, it may be thy Enthuſiaſtick Heat may carry thee ſo far as to ſin againſt that very Principle that thou thinkeſt thy ſelf to be moved by.

10. Thus whilſt thou affecteſt too extravagant Expreſſions of thy Humility, the diſcreet and knowing in Religion will thereby find out thy Pride. As if thou ſhouldeſt not be content to entertain the Poor at thy Table, but thou wilt alſo wait upon them with a Trencher in thy Hand, bare-headed, and doe all the Offices of a Servitour to them; as if thou wert celebrating the old Saturnalia. Look to thy ſelf that there be no Touch of Vain-glory in it, and that thou doſt not hunt after Fame and deſire to be talk'd of. Conſider alſo if it be not an Offence againſt Charity, and a ſcandalizing thoſe that are without; who, if they can phanſie thee ſincere, will be forcibly invited to deem thee very fanatical and melancholick, and that all Religion is nothing elſe. But true Charity doth nothing unſeemly.

11. When the Deſire of Purity alſo puts thee upon the Chaſtiſement and ſubduing of thy Body, doe it ſo hiddenly that thou mayeſt not offend againſt Humility by thy Phariſaical Oſtentation. Wherefore if thou doſt in earneſt give thy Mind to the Mortification of the Fleſh, ſhew it not to Men in thy ſordid Clothes, nor in thy ſour Face and hard Looks; but keep it to thy ſelf as ſecret as thou canſt, that He that ſeeth in Secret may reward thee openly.

12. Art thou warmed with the Senſe of Charity, which thou hadſt rather call Love? Take Heed that thou trangreſs not againſt Purity by declining into unclean fanatick Luſt, that foul Ditch that many of our high-talking Enthuſiaſts have tumbled into, and have been ſo blinded with the Mire thereof, that they have made it a principal

Principal Fruit of their Illumination, to doe thoſe Acts without Shame or Meaſure that both the Light of Nature and the Goſpel of Chriſt has taught us to bluſh at. Such Circumſpections as theſe thou art to uſe, if thou wouldeſt ſteer thy Courſe ſafely; and if thou wilt be faithful to thine inward Guide, and deal uprightly in the Holy Covenant, thou wilt want no Monitor; thy Way ſhall be made ſo plain before thee, that thou ſhall not err nor ſtumble, but arrive at laſt to the deſired Scope of all thy Travels and Endeavours, to a firm Peace and unfailing Righteouſneſs, and ſhalt be filled with all the Fulneſs of God.

BOOK X.

CHAP. I.

1. That the Affection and Eſteem we ought to have for our Religion does not conſiſt in damning all to the Pit of Hell that are not of it. 2. The unſeaſonable Inculcation of this Principle to Chriſtians. 3. That it is better becoming the Spirit of a Chriſtian to allow what is Good and commendable in other Religions, than ſo foully to reproach them. 4. What are the due Demonſtrations of our Affection to the Goſpel of Chriſt. 5. How ſmall a Part of the World is ſtyled Chriſtians, and how few real Chriſtians in that Part that is ſo ſtyled. 6. That there has been ſome unskilful or treacherous Tampering with the powerful Engine of the Goſpel, that it has done ſo little Execution hitherto againſt the Kingdom of the Devil. 7. The Author's purpoſe of bringing into View the main Impediments of the due Effects thereof.

1. THE Fourth and laſt Derivative Property of the Myſtery of Godlineſs, which ariſes from the Uſefulneſs thereof, and that great Concernment it is of in Relation not only to this preſent and tranſitory, but that future and everlaſting Happineſs of Mankind, is that Appretiation and high Value it deſervedly wins or ſhould win from us. Which is not to he expreſſed, as uſually is done, by vilifying and reproaching all other Religions, in damning the very beſt and moſt conſciencious Turks, Jews, and Pagans to the Pit of Hell, and then to double lock the Door upon them, or to ſtand there to watch with long Poles to beat them down again, if any of them ſhould offer to emerge and endeavour to crawl out. This Fervour is but a falſe Zeal and of no Service to the Goſpel, To make it impoſſible to all Men to eſcape Hell, that are not born under or viſibly converted to Chriſtianity, when they never had the Opportunity to hear the true ſound thereof. For if Providence be repreſented ſo ſevere and arbitrarious, it will rather beget a Misbelief of all Religions than advance our own, eſpecially with all free and intelligent Spirits.

2. And what need they tell ſuch ſad Stories to them that hear the Goſpel concerning them that hear it not, nor ever were in a Capacity of hearing it? It touches not them, but diſturbes theſe that hear it, and makes Divine Providence more unintelligible than before. Were it not ſufficient for their Auditors to underſtand, That they that do hear the Goſpel and yet refuſe it, that they are indeed in a damnable Condition, the Belief thereof being the very Touchſtone of Salvation to them that it is offered to; But if they will be curious, (which is no commendable Quality,) they can only add, That none ſhall be ſaved but by Virtue of that Truth which is comprehended in the Goſpel, that is, before they come under that one Head of the Church, which is Chriſt Jeſus; there being no other Name under the Heavens whereby we can be ſaved, as the Apoſtle has declared. But how the conſcientious Jews, Pagans and Turks, that ſeemed not to die Chriſtians, may be gathered to this Head, it will be a becoming Piece of Modeſty in us to profeſs our Ignorance.

3. Certainly it were far better and more becoming the Spirit of the Goſpel, to admit and commend what is laudable and Praiſe-worthy in either Judaiſm, Turciſm

Turciſm or Paganiſm, and with Kindneſs and Compaſſion to tell them wherein they are miſtaken, and wherein they fall Short; than to fly in their Faces and to exprobrate to them the moſt conſummate Wickedneſs that humane Nature is lapſable into in Matters of Religion, and thus from an immoderate Depreſſion of all other Religions to magnifie a Man's own. Which is as ridiculous a Scheme of Rhetorick, in my Apprehenſion, as if one ſhould compare Solomon with all the natural Fools in the World, and then vaunt how exceeding much he out-ſtripped them all in Wiſdom; or Helena with all the ugly deformed Females that ever were, and ſo argue the Excellency of her Beauty, becauſe ſhe ſo far ſurpaſſed theſe miſhapen Wretches: which in my Judgment is but a very ſmall and frigid Commendation.

4. But ſuch Demonſtrations of our Affections towards the Goſpel as theſe are very ſorry and injudicious. He that profeſſes he believes the Truth of the Goſpel, and has entred into this New Covenant, if he will give a ſolid Teſtimony of his ſincere Affection to it indeed, he muſt do it by his Life and Converſation. For if he like it and believe it, he muſt needs follow the Counſel contained in it; which if he do cloſely and faithfully, he will find it of that unſpeakable Excellency and important Concernment, that he cannot reſt quiet in reaping the Fruit thereof himſelf, but will be truly deſirous that the ſame Good may be communicated, if it were poſſible, to all the World.

5 And truly for my own Part, when I ſeriouſly conſider with my ſelf the undeniable Clearneſs and Evidence of Truth in the Goſpel of Chriſt above all the Religions in the World, and the mighty and almoſt irreſiſtible Power and Efficacy that lies in it for the making of Men holy and virtuous; I cannot but with much Fervency of Deſire wiſh it were further ſpread in the World, and am much amazed that it has made no further Progreſs than it has. For as Brerewood has probably collected in his Enquiries, Pagan Idolatry ſtill poſſeſſes two thirds of the known World, Mahometiſm one fifth Part, and Chriſtianiſm but a ſixth. And (which is a thing more deplorable) a very great Part of the Chriſtian Church has been over-run with the Turk, and does lie at this very Day in miſerable Bondage under him. And that there may be nothing wanting to encreaſe Wonderment, even thoſe Parts of the World that are purely Chriſtian, as to Title, ſo great Share of them, whether they go under the Name of Reform'd or Catholicks, are tainted with ſo groſs Hypocriſy, ſuch open Prophaneneſs and profeſſed Atheiſm amongſt their own Crews and looſe Conventicles, that it is ſomething hard to find a Cordial Chriſtian in the moſt pretending Churches of Chriſtendom, that is, ſuch as does not deny his Profeſſion either in Heart or Practice or in both.

6. Which ſad Scene of things cannot but move any thoughtful Chriſtian, that does in good earneſt wiſh well to his Religion, to ſift out, if it be poſſible, the true Cauſes of this lamentable Condition of Chriſtendom, and what are the Impediments that hinder the Goſpel (which of it ſelf is ſo powerful an Inſtrument of Salvation) from taking Effect with our ſelves, or from having freer Paſſage into other Countries that are yet Pagan. That it is our Sins, every well meaning Man will be ready to reply. But the Queſtion ſtill remains, there being amongſt us the moſt effectual Engine that the Wiſdom of God could contrive for the deſtroying of Sin out of the World, why there is no more Execution done thereby againſt the Power of Sin and the Kingdom of Darkneſs than there is. The Enquiry therefore muſt be what tampering there has been with this Engine, what adding or taking from it, to ſpoil its Efficacy, what miſtakes of the Uſe thereof; and the like. For that there is ſomething moſt wretchedly amiſs in the Uſe of the Goſpel thoughout all Chriſtendom, is very plain, in that the Purpoſe of it is almoſt totally fruſtrated every where; and Prophaneneſs, Infidelity, and Atheiſm have in a Manner ſeized the Hearts of all. Which moſt Men are ready to confeſs, ſome with a true Chriſtian Sorrow or hearty Indignation, others with a tacit Joy or exteriour Flearing, as being glad their corrupt Thoughts and Practices have the Countenance of ſo many Suffrages.

7. To omit therefore ſuch Principles as are unintelligible and are for ever ſeal'd up out of our Sight; let us look upon what is intelligible and viſible. Let us produce ſuch Cauſes into View, which no Man can deny but that they are as general as theſe horrid Diſeaſes, and are extremely inclining, if not abſolutely ſolutely effectual and neceſſarily precipitating the Chriſtian World into this abominable Condition it is found in at this Day, and many Ages before.

CHAP. II.

1. The moſt fundamental Miſtake and Root of all the Corruptions in the Church of Chriſt. 2. That there may be a Superſtition alſo in oppoſing of Ceremonies, and in long Prayers and Preachments. 3. That ſelf-choſen Religion extinguiſhes true Godlineſs every where. 4. The unwholeſome and windy Food of affected Orthodoxality; with the miſchievous Conſequences thereof. 5. That Hypocriſie of Profeſſours fills the World with Atheiſts. 6. That the authoritative Obtruſion of groſs Falſities upon Men, begets a Misbelief of the whole Myſtery of Piety. 7. That all the Churches of Chriſtendom ſtand guilty of this miſchieveous Miſcarriage. 8. The infinite Inconvenience of the Superlapſarian Doctrine.

1. WHerefore freely to profeſs what I think in my own Conſcience to be a certain Truth; The moſt univerſal and moſt fundamental Miſtake in Chriſtendom, and that from whence all the Corruption of the Church began and is ſtill continued and increaſed, is that conceited Eſtimation of orthodox Opinions and external Ceremony, before the indiſpenſable Practice of the Precepts of Chriſt, and a faithful Endeavour to attain to the due Degrees of the real Renovation of our inward Man into true and living Holineſs and Righteouſneſs: inſtead whereof there is generally ſubſtituted Curioſity of Opinion in Points imperſcrutable as well as unprofitable, Obtruſion of Ceremonies, numerous, cumberſome, and not only needleſs, but much unbeſeeming the unſuſpected Modeſty of the Spouſe of Chriſt, who ſhould take heed of ſymbolizing any way with Idolatry, which is ſpiritual Adultery or Fornication. For while the Heart goes a whoring after thoſe outward Shows, and an Over-value is put upon them, the inward Life of Godlineſs is eaſily extinguiſhed, and Love to the indiſpenſable Law of Chriſt grows cold and dead. Nay they that have the greateſt Zeal and Fierceneſs, as I may ſo ſpeak, towards Religion, there is invented ſuch an Heap and cumberſome Load of external Performances, even ſuch Zelots as theſe, I ſay, may ſpend all their Strength upon the mere Outworks of Piety, before they can come near to take the Fort-Royal, or enter the Law of perfect Liberty, the Divine Life, which conſiſts in true Humility, perfect Purity, and ſincere Charity. For all ſuch Ceremonies make but a Show in the Fleſh, nor can reach to the Regeneration of our Minds into the unfeigned Love of our Brethren. Whence the moſt ſeemingly religious this way may be the moſt accurſedly cruel and unjuſt, the moſt implacable and uncharitable that can be. And yet according to that falſe Model of Religion that humane Invention has ſet out to the World, he may both take himſelf, and others alſo may take him to be ſeraphically pious; though in the Judgment of Chriſt and of his true Church, he lie deeply tinged in the Gall of Bitterneſs and ſtrongly fetter'd in the Bonds of Iniquity.

2. And in other Parts of Chriſtendom where the Pomp of Ceremonies and exteriour Superſtition is not ſo much urged, though a Man at firſt ſight might hope that things would be much better, yet Experience will teach him that there is little Amendment, and that the Cauſes of Degeneracy, of groſs Hypocriſie and Wickedneſs, are even as operative and as well appointed to work their Effect there as in other Places. For this alſo is Superſtition, to place our Religion in oppoſing external Ceremonies, and to think every Man the more pious by how much the more zealous he is againſt them. Wherefore the Affections of our Soul being exhauſted and ſpent upon this hot Antipathy, our Hearts grow cold to the indiſpenſable Duties of the Goſpel, which are Love, Patience, Meekneſs, and Brotherly-Kindneſs, with the reſt of thoſe Fruits that demonſtrate that the Tree of Life, that the Life of Chriſt is planted in us, and that the Spirit of God abideth in us. Beſides that we are to remember that we may idolize long Prayers and frequent Preachments, and that they may make up an external Religion to us inſtead of that Godlineſs that is indiſpenſable and internal, and an ever flowing Fountain of all comely and profitable Actions and upright Deportments towards God and towards Men.

3, I say therefore that this Self-chosen Religion in all the parts of Christendom, (though it be but such as a wicked Man may perform as dexterously and plausibly as the most truly Righteous and Regenerate) being so highly extolled and recommended to the People, is almost an irrisistible Temptation to make them really and morally wicked. For that natural Inclination and Appetite in Mankind to Religion being satisfied or eluded by this unwholesome Food, they can have no Desire to that which is true Religion indeed; and will be very glad to be excus'd from it, it being more hard at first to embrace or practise, whence it is in a manner necessary for them to let it alone.

4. And they will the more easily abstain from it, there being another poysonous Viand that swells them so that they are ready to burst again, which is that highly-esteemed Knowledge called Orthodoxness or Rightness of Opinion. Of which the A-
1 Cor. 8. 1. postle, Knowledge puffeth up, but Charity edifieth. This seems so glorious in their Eyes, that they fancy themselves Angels of Light, and fit to enter into the Presence of God, if they be but neatly and elegantly trimm'd up in these fine Ornaments of Orthodoxality. Besotted Fools! blind and carnal! that think to recommend themselves to the Majesty of Heaven by being array'd in these motly Coats, this strip'd Stuff of their own spinning. While they thus affect the Favour of God by opiniona-tive Knowledge, how do they betray their gross Ignorance! For how can that which is more pleasing to the natural Man, nay, I may say, to the Devil himself, than to a regenerate Soul, How can that render any one acceptable to God? And yet in all the Divisions of the Churches they lay the greatest Stress upon this, bear the greatest Zeal toward it, recommend it the most vehemently to the People, who following the Example of their Pastours, if they be but busie and hot in these rending Points, they think themselves fully possest of the Life of Christ, and that they are very choicely religious, though in the mean time Charity to their Neighbour be cold, and they have attain'd to no measure of true Righteousness and Holiness. Herein chiefly lies the Mystery of Hypocrisie in all the Churches of Christendom, counting all pious that are but zealous for the Ways and Opinions of their Sect; and those that are not for it, be they never so unblameable and cordial Christians, they are either hated as Hereticks, or at best pitied for poor Moralists, mere Natural Men.

5. These are the most general and very potent Impediments for the hindring the Gospel from taking that Effect which it would otherwise have in the Christian World, and for making most of the Professors of Christianity Hypocrites, that is, such as make a great Show of Godliness, but deny the Power thereof, which should mainly appear in our Duty to our Neighbour and in a sober and just Conversation, doing all things as in the Sight of God. Now this Hypocrisy in Professors begets Prophaneness, Atheism, aud Unbelief in such Persons as naturally have not so strong Propension to Matters of Religion, that is to say, that have not so superstitious a Complexion as to be tied to Religion upon any Terms in any Dress and from any kind of Recommenders of it. For their natural Nasuteness suggests, that if there be any Religion at all, most certainly it is not to be divided from sound Morality, to which truly both the Prophets, Apostles, and Precepts of Christ do plentifully witness. But they observing that they that make the greatest Noise about Religion, and are the most zealous therein, do neglect the Laws of Honesty and Common-Humanity, that they can easily invade other Mens Rights, that they can juggle, dissemble, and lie for Advantage, that they are proud and conceited, and love the Applause of the People, that they are envious, fierce, and implacable, that they are unclean and sensual, that they are mercileſs and cruel, and care not to have Kingdoms to flow in Blood for the maintaining of their Tyranny over the Consciences of poor deluded Souls; (when yet the Contest is nothing but about Hay and Stubble, the combustible Superstructures of Humane Invention: of which every vain-glorious Superstitionist, that would make a Show in the Flesh, has cast on his Handful, if not his Armful, for the hiding and smothering of the indispensable Truths of the Gospel, and to put Men into Perplexities and Labours for that which is not Bread, to rack their Heads with Nonsense, Contradictions, and Impossibilities, to weary out their Bodies with the thankless Toil of endless and needless Ceremonies, and to carry out their Heart to Toys and Trifles, and so make them neglect the holy and weighty Commands of our Saviour, which are intelligible to all Men, and in some measure approved by all; such as are, To deal as we would be dealt with, To love our Neighbours as our selves, and the like) I say, those that are not of so religious a Complexion naturally, but have Wit and Sagacity enough to smell out the Corruptions and discern the Incoherences of of the Actions of Profeſſors, making Obſervation of theſe things, are by this Scandal exceedingly tempted (and very hardly eſcape the being quite overcome by ſo perverſe a Scene of pretended Piety) to think that the whole Buſineſs of Religion is nothing but Humour and Madneſs, or, at the beſt, but a Plot to enrich the Prieſt and keep the People in awe.

6. This is one great Scandal and effectual Counterplot againſt the Power of the Goſpel, the vilifying and deſpiſing of moral Honeſty by thoſe that are great Zealots and high Pretenders to Religion. This does advance Atheiſm and Prophaneneſs very much. But there is another Miſcarriage which I have hinted at already as epidemical and univerſal, and at leaſt as effectual to this evil Purpoſe as the former. There is ſcarce any Church in Chriſtendom at this Day that does not obtrude not only Falſhoods, but ſuch Falſhoods that will appear to any free Spirit pure Contradictions and Impoſſibilities, and that with the ſame Gravity, Authority, and Importunity that they do the holy Oracles of God. Now the Conſequence of this muſt needs be ſad. For what knowing and conſcientious Man but will be driven off, if he cannot profeſs the Truth without open aſſerting of a groſs Lie? If he ſees good Wine poured out of one Bottle, but rank Poiſon out of another into the ſame Cup, Who can perſwade him to drink thereof? This is a heavy Sight to the truly-Religious, but the Joy and Triumph of the Prophane, who willingly take this Advantage againſt the whole Myſtery of Piety, as if there were no Truth at all in it, becauſe that ſo groſs Falſhoods are urg'd upon them with the ſame Indiſpenſableneſs, with the ſame Solemneſs and Devoutneſs, as thoſe things that (were it not for the ſerious Impudence of the Prieſt in other open Falſities) might paſs with them for true. But they being not at leiſure to perpend things to the Bottom, but it may be not altogether indiſpoſed to believe a faithful Report from an honeſt Man, they finding the Relater foully tripping in ſome things that he ſo earneſtly urges, diſcredit the whole Narration, and ſo become perfect Atheiſts and Unbelievers; though, for their own Security, they juggle with the Jugglers, that is, comply and do outward Reverence and Devotion, though they cannot but laugh in their Sleeves at either the Ignorance or cunning Deceitfulneſs of their ghoſtly Leaders,

7. And that I may not ſeem to ſlander the State of Chriſtendom, I mean of the whole viſible Church in what Nation ſoever under Heaven; if we may believe Hiſtorians, there is none, neither Greek nor Roman, neither Lutheran nor Calviniſt, but will be found guilty of this Fault. I ſhall particularize in ſome one thing in all. The Greek as well as the Roman hold Tranſubſtantiation, the Lutheran Conſubſtantiation; things that have no Ground in Scripture, and are a palpable Contradiction to Reaſon. And yet not more contradictious than Abſolute Reprobation according as our rigid Reprobationers have defined it: namely, That God has irreſiſtibly decreed from all Eternity to bring into Being innumerable Myriads of Souls of Men exceeding far the Number of them that ſhall be ſaved; who as without their own Conſent they were thus thruſt into the World, ſo let them do what they will, are certainly determined to unſpeakable Torment ſo ſoon as they go out of it, and at the laſt Day ſhall be adjudged to an higher Degree of Miſery, ſo great and ſo exceeding, that all the Racks and Tortures that the Wit or Cruelty of the moſt enraged Tyrants could ever invent or execute, would be Eaſe and Pleaſure in compariſon of it, and that theſe Pangs and Torments ſhall remain freſh upon them for ever.

8. This is the Repreſentation of that four Dogma. Which to Reaſon is as contradictious as if one ſhould name a ſquare Circle or black Light; and as harſh and horrid to the Ears of the truly-Regenerate into the Nature of God, who is Love it ſelf, as the higheſt Blaſphemy that can be uttered. Nor is the Nature of thoſe that are irreligious enough ſo much eſtranged from the Knowledge of God, but that they think, if there be any at all, he cannot be ſuch a one that laid ſuch dark Plots from all Eternity for the everlaſting Miſery of his poor, impotent, and unreſiſting Creature, that never did any thing but what the Divine Decrees determined he ſhould do, and therefore was always the Almighty's obedient Servant: For which at laſt he muſt be condemned to eternal Puniſhment by him whom he did ever obey. The ſerious and imperious Obtruſion of ſuch a diſmal Conceit as this for one of the greateſt Arcanums of Religion, will make the free-Spirit and over-inclinable to Prophaneneſs confidently to conclude, That the whole Frame of Religion is nothing but a mere Scare-Crow to affright Fools, and that there is no Hell at all, ſince ſuch innocent Perſons and conſtant Obeyers of the Divine Decrees muſt be the Inhabiters of it.

CHAP. III.

1. The true Measure of Opinions to be taken from the Design of the Gospel, which in general is, The setting out the exceeding great Mercy and Goodness of God towards Mankind. 2. And then Secondly, The Triumph of the Divine Life in the Person of Christ, in the Warrantableness of doing Divine Honour to him. 3. Thirdly, The Advancement of the Divine Life in his Members upon Earth. 4. The Fourth and last Rule to try Opinions by, The Recommendableness of our Religion to Strangers or those that are without.

1. I Might add several other Opinions in several Parts of Christendom, that tend very much to the defeating and eluding the serious End and Purpose of Religion: but before I go any further, I shall set down the main Designs of the Gospel of Christ, that we may have a more plain and sure Rule and Measure to try all O-
The first Rule. pinions by. The Design therefore of the Gospel in general is The magnifying of the Goodness and Loving-kindness of God, that he has afforded Mankind so glorious a Light to walk by, so effectual Means to redeem them from the Love of the perishing Vanities of this present World, and to recall them back again to himself and to John 3. 16, 17. the Participation of the ineffable Joys and Pleasures of his celestial Kingdom. For God so loved the World, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting Life. For God sent not his Son into the World to condemn the World, but that the World through him should be saved. And Titus 3. For we our selves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers Lusts and Pleasures, living in Malice and Envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the Kindness and Love of God our Saviour toward Man appeared, not by Works of Righteousness which we have done, but according to his Mercy he saved us by the washing of Regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost, which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour. That being justified by his Grace, we should be made Heirs, according to the Hope of Eternal Life. To which Sense also the Apostle speaks, Ephes. Chap. 2. And you who were dead in Trespasses and Sins, wherein in Times past ye walked according to the Course of this World, according to the Prince of the Power of the Air, the Spirit that now worketh in the Children of Disobedience; Among whom also we all had our Conversation in Times past, in the Lusts of our Flesh, fulfilling the Desires of our fleshly Mind, and were by Nature the Children of Wrath even as others. But God who is rich in Mercy, for his great Love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in Sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by Grace ye are saved) and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus; That in the Ages to come he might shew the exceeding Riches of his Grace, in his Kindness towards us, through Jesus Christ. To which lastly you may add, Tit. 2. 11. For the Grace of God that bringeth Salvation, hath appeared to all Men; Teaching us, that denying Ungodliness and worldly Lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present World, &c. These Scriptures give plain Testimony of this more general Design of the Gospel.

The second Rule. 2. The next Design is An external Exaltation of the Divine Life that did so mightily and conspicuously appear in the Person of our Saviour Christ; as I have already abundantly declared, How the Mystery of Christianity comprehends in it chiefly this Design of exalting into Triumph the Divine Life above the Animal and Natural: and that either externally, in the Religious Worship we doe our Saviour, and is done even by Hypocrites and wicked Persons; or else internally, in the advancing of true Faith and Holiness in his living Members and sincere Followers of his Doctrine. Philip. 2. Let the same Mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus, Who being in the Form of God, thought it no Robbery to be equal with God; but emptied Himself and took upon Him the Form of a Servant, and was made in Likeness of Men; and being found in Fashion as a Man, he humbled Himself and became obedient to the Death, even the Death of the Cross. Wherefore God hath also exalted Him, and given Him a Name above every Name; that at the Name of Jesus every Knee should bow, of Things in Heaven and things in Earth and things under the Earth, and that every Tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the Glory of God the Father. And Hebr. 1. Thy Throne, O God, is for ever and ever; a Scepter of Righteousness is the Scepter of thy Kingdom

dom. Thou haſt loved Righteouſneſs, and hated Iniquity; therefore God even thy God hath anointed thee with the Oyl of Gladneſs above thy Fellows, that is to ſay, hath exalted thee to this due Honour and Rule, having put all things under his Feet, Angels themſelves not excepted, as St. Peter tells us, 1 Epiſt. 3. 22. Who is gone into Heaven, and is on the Right Hand of God, Angels and Authorities and Powers being made ſubject unto Him. There is a further Enumeration of the Angelical Claſſes, Coloſ. 1. where the Apoſtle ſpeaking of this high Exaltation of the Perſon of Chriſt, he intimates not only the Subjection of the Orders of Angels to Him, but their Reconciliation to God by Him, and, as ſome would have it a fuller Confirmation of them in his Favour, verſ. 15. Who is the Image of the inviſible God, the firſt born of every Creature. For by Him were all things created that are in Heaven, and that are in Earth, viſible and inviſible; whether they be Thrones, or Dominions, or Principalities, or Powers: all things were created by Him and for Him; and He is before all things. and by Him all things conſiſt. And he is the Head of the Body the Church. He is the Beginning, the firſt born from the Dead; that in all things he might have the Pre-eminence. For it pleaſed the Father that in him ſhould all Falneſs dwell: And making Peace through the Blood of his Croſs, to reconcile all things by him unto himſelf, whether they be things in Earth or things in Heaven. So mighty and wonderful was the Reſult of the Humiliation of our Saviour; and ſo clear and warrantable an Object is he of Divine Adoration.

3. Thus is the Divine Life Triumphant in the Perſon of Chriſt the Head of his Church. But another main Deſign of the Goſpel is, That the Divine Life may be advanced in us, that is, that Faith in God through Chriſt, that Humility, Love and Purity may have their due Growth in us here; that thereby we may be fitted to receive that immortal Crown of Glory which He will beſtow upon all true Believers at the laſt Day, when He ſhall carry his whole Church with Songs of Joy and Triumph into His celeſtial Kingdom. That this is the main Purpoſe of the Goſpel I have already ſufficiently proved, and therefore need add nothing in this Place. The third Rule.

4. The Fourth and laſt Rule or Meaſure of Opinions is, The Recommendableneſs of our Religion to thoſe which are without; that is to ſay, We muſt have a ſpecial Care of affixing thereto any of our own Inventions or Interpretations of Scripture for Chriſtian Truths, Which may ſeem uncouth and irrational to Strangers and ſuch as are as yet diſengaged. For though thoſe that by Reaſon of their Education have had full Acquaintance with Chriſtianity will adhere to their Religion, though it may be corrupted with many falſe Gloſſes and fond Opinions of Men as indiſpenſably obtruded as the undoubted Scripture it ſelf: yet Strangers that are free and unaccuſtomed to them, will not fail to boggle at them; and being offered to them alſo with equal Authority with the very Word of God, they will be neceſſitated to fly back, and to relinquiſh the Holy Truth by Reaſon of the indiſſoluble Intertexture of the groſs Falſhoods they find interwoven with it. A thing that is ſeriouſly to be conſidered by all thoſe that bear any Love to the Goſpel, and deſire that it may be propagated and promoted in the World. For certainly it was intended for a more general Good and larger Diffuſion than has been hitherto by Reaſon of its having fallen into faithleſs and treacherous Hands, who make it only an Inſtrument of gaining Wealth and Power to themſelves and of riding the People, and not of gaining Souls to God. The fourth Rule.

CHAP.

CHAP. IV.

1. The general Uſe of the foregoing Rules. 2. A ſpecial Uſe of them in Favour of one anothers Perſons in Matters af Opinion. 3. The Examination of Election and Reprobation according to theſe Rules. And how well they agree with that Branch of the Divine Life which we call Humility. 4. The Diſagreement of abſolute Reprobation with the Firſt Rule. 5. As alſo with the Third. 6. And with the Second and Fourth.

1. THeſe are the four main Rules which I conceive very uſeful to examine either other Mens Opinions or our own. And if the Heat of our Spirits or the Confidence of others would urge upon us pretended Truths (for to admit of open Falſities or Forgeries for what Advantage ſoever is intolerable,) that are not ſubſervient to theſe Deſigns above named, we may well look upon them as idle Curioſities; and if they pretend alſo to Revelation or Inſpiration, that it is nothing but Madneſs and fanatick Deluſion. But if they do not only not promote but countermine thoſe Deſigns above mentioned, they are to be looked upon then not as frivolous, but dangerous and impious, and ſo to be declined by all Means poſſible. And laſtly, though they appear ſuch as may contribute ſomething to thoſe Deſigns if followed and embraced, yet I muſt add alſo this Caution, that they are not to be forc'd ſo as that unleſs a Man will profeſs them, he muſt be accounted no good Chriſtian. For they coming from a fallible and doubtful Hand, they ought not in Reaſon to infringe that undoubted Right of Chriſtian Liberty; the Scripture alone being full enough to perfect a Chriſtian both in Life and Doctrine.

2. There is alſo a further Uſe to be made of theſe Rules in Favour of one anothers Perſons though of different Opinions, that is, by taking Notice what Good thy drive at, as well as what Evil they tend to: which makes much for Peace and brotherly Kindneſs, and may blunt the Edge of eager and bitter Zeal, that makes the over-fervid Zelot think that he that is of a contrary Opinion to him intends nothing but Miſchief by his oppoſite Doctrine. In examining therefore every Opinion, we are to obſerve what Deſign of the Goſpel it agrees with, as well as what it croſſes. And that the Uſe of our Rules may the better appear, I ſhall now ſhew the Practice of them by trying ſome few Opinions of no ſmall note by this Touchſtone: For it were an endleſs Buſineſs to examine all, and needleſs, becauſe by theſe Examples he that liſts may examine the reſt, indeed any that either has been or ever will offer it ſelf to the World in Matters of Religion.

3. The firſt that occurs is Such an Election and Reprobation that wholly excludes free Will. The Controverſie is ſo well known that I need not ſtate it. Applying this Doctrine to the four Rules I have ſet down, I find in the Third that it has ſome Compliance with that choice Branch of the Divine Life, namely, Humility, and a Submiſſion of a Mans ſelf and all the World to the Will of God. It is the Lord. let him doe what he pleaſes. And that therefore a ſerious and humble Soul being much taken up and tranſported with this Conſideration, may think of nothing elſe, but take this Doctrine to be very Truth, nay live and die in it, and go to Heaven when he has done. Whence it were a Piece of Satanical Fury to perſecute any ſuch Opinioniſt; and want of Charity, theſe living as well as other Chriſtians, not to bear as good Affection to them as to others; nay to advance our Affection with the ſuperaddition of Pity, they living in ſomething a more dark Manſion than others; which will plainly appear if we apply their Opinion to the reſt of the Rules and the Particulars of them, which we have ſet down.

1 Sam. 3. 18.

4. For if we make application to the Firſt, that tells us that the Deſign of the Goſpel is the Manifeſtation of the exceeding ſuperabundant Loving-Kindneſs of God to the World, who would not any ſhould periſh, but that all ſhould come to Repentance, as St. Peter ſpeaks. This ſad Opinion of the Predeſtinatours does confront this Deſign at the very firſt Sight, making the Goodneſs of God ſuch an half-faced thing, nay I may ſay of a more thin and ſparing Aſpect than the ſharpeſt new Moon, nay an infinitely leſs Propertion, if their doleful Stories be true. For to to ſpeak ſummarily of the Buſineſs; Some very exceeding ſmall Number ſhall neceſſarily, by the free Grace of God, be eternally ſaved, but the reſt neceſſarily damned to ineffable, eternal and unſupportable Torture. This is that glorious redundant Grace of the Goſpel according to them. Which free Spirits will think the worſt News and moſt miſchievous that was ever communicated to the World. The worſt, becauſe ſo extreme few ſhall be ſaved. The moſt miſchievous, becauſe it will hazard all men to be damned according to the ordinary Courſe of Reaſon. For whenas things are determined already, who need ſtir a Foot unleſs to pleaſe himſelf and reap the preſent Joys of this Life?

2 Pet. 3. 9.

5. For it is very irrational for us to be ſolicitous and trouble our ſelves to bring that to paſs which will every Jot as ſoon come to paſs without our Trouble. So that unleſs a Man be, beyond all Conceit, fooliſh and ſottiſh, and cannot Reaſon concerning things, he will be neceſſitated almoſt, I am ſure, very ſtrongly invited, to be as looſe and wicked as his own Heart or the Temptations of the World can ſuggeſt to him. Whence it is plain that this Doctrine in it ſelf, though it may impoſe upon ſome by the Shew of Humility, is a Supplanter and Deſtroyer of the whole Divine Life Root and Branch, that is, It weakens Mens Faith alſo in the Goſpel, if this be peremptorily obtruded upon them to be all the Deſign of it; it ſlakes all Endeavour of good Practice, takes them off from the aſpiring to that bleſſed Regeneration and Renovation of their Minds into Purity, Love, and Humility it ſelf, which they moſt pretend to. And therefore moſt generally, though they ſeem to crouch to God, yet are they very prone to be too-too rigid, ſour, and even cruel to Men, full of Pride, Diſſenſion and Confuſion. So that the Unworthineſs of this Opinion is diſcernible alſo by the Third Rule.

6. And does entrench ſomething alſo upon the Second. For whereas, according to their own Conceſſion, the Value of the Blood of the Son of God was ſuch that it might 'have been a Ranſom for ten Thouſand Worlds; what a Check would this be to a Man's more affectionate Veneration of Him upon the Croſs, when he thinks he has reſtrained the Purpoſe of his ſuffering to ſo exceeding few? Nothing but ſelf-love and Self-flattery can well bear up a Man's Devotion. What an adorable thing have they made the tender Compaſſion of God in Jeſus Chriſt, whenas He is repreſented to us, according to their Explication of the Myſtery, at the ſame Time to have found out a full Satisfaction to his Juſtice for the Sins of the whole World, and yet at that very Moment to have decreed in a Manner all the World to eternal Damnation; and this forſooth to make manifeſt his Juſtice, which is ſufficiently manifeſted by the Death of his Son? Is not that freer Grace that is intended for all, and they put in a Capacity of Receiving it, if they be not wanting to themſelves, than that which is only neceſſitated on ſome very few, and for want of which the reſt muſt neceſſarily periſh? Wherefore upon theſe Terms a Man cannot conciliate that venerable Affection which is due to our Saviour, nor indeed beget a Belief of the Narration in more Naſute and ſagacious Men. Which is an Entrenchment againſt the Fourth Rule alſo, which ſhould awe us from peremptorily affixing any thing to our Religion that will make it leſs recommendable to them that are without, as certainly this Opinion does to all indifferent Men. Which makes me amaz'd at the ſedulous Obtruſion of it by ſome Men, whom I can charitably conclude to be, as well as they are accounted, in their Way religious and godly. For it is a Piece of unſufferable Pride and Conceitedneſs to think themſelves infallible in a Point where Free men, at leaſt as pious and religious, if not more, have ſeriouſly and induſtriouſly concluded the contrary; eſpecially when ſuch groſs Inconveniences are diſcernible therein.

CHAP.

CHAP. V.

1. That Election and Reprobation confers ſomething to Humility. 2. That ſome Men are ſaved irreſiſtibly by Virtue of Diſcriminative Grace. 3. That the reſt of Mankind have Grace ſufficient, and that many of them are ſaved. 4. The excellent Uſe of this middle Way betwixt Calviniſm and Arminianiſm. 5, 6. The exceeding great Danger and Miſchief of the former Extremes.

1. THere is nothing makes this Opinion pardonable, but that Shew, as I ſaid, that it bears of Humility; and haply it is in ſome Regard really ſerviceable thereto. And I ſhould take it to be very inſtrumental to take away all Pride and Arrogance, or attributing any thing to our ſelves, or contemning our Neighbours, if the Profeſſours of it were generally of ſo meek, ſo humble and ſo lowly a Spirit; whenas they are too often over-harſh, fierce, and contemptuous of others. But this may not be the Fault of the Opinion, but of the Opinioniſt, though that ſad Severity of God tied up in this ſame pretended Myſtery is no enforcing Example of Kindneſs and Humanity.

2. But to the End that choice and lovely Virtue of Chriſtian Humility may want no Motives nor Encouragement, and that that Pleaſure that ſome Souls may juſtly take in the free Acknowledgment of God's irreſiſtible Grace and over-powering Operations upon their Spirits may not be ſuffocated nor extinguiſhed; we ſhall make ſuch an Accommodation betwixt both Parties, that unleſs Envy and Repining at the Goodneſs of God towards Mankind make them ſtill diſſatisfied, I queſtion not but that they will reſt contented. I profeſs therefore and do verily think, That there is ſuch a Thing as Diſcriminative Grace, as they call it, in the World, and that to ſuch a Differerence for Good, that ſome few of Mankind by Virtue thereof will be irreſiſtibly ſaved, but that the reſt of the World are Probationers, that is, have free Will and are in a Capacity of being ſaved, ſome greater, ſome leſs; and that whoſoever is damn'd, it is long of himſelf. For (as Eccleſ. 15. 12. Siracides ſaith) God has no Need of the wicked Man.

3. And that this may not ſeem to be a mere Subterfuge, like that of ſome others, I further add, touching all this Reſt of Mankind which I ſpeak of, That there is Grace ſufficient offered to them ſome Way or other, ſome time or other, and that many of them, according to their Faithfulneſs to that Light and Power which God has given them, ſhall be actually ſaved. At which Sentence neither the Arminian ought to repine nor the Calviniſt. For whatever Good Arminianiſm pretends concerning all Mankind, is exhibited to this Part not abſolutely elected, and to the other Part the Goodneſs of God is greater than is allotted by Arminius. And whatever Good there is pretended in Calviniſm to that Part that is abſolutely elected, the ſame Goodneſs is here exhibited, and beſides that direful Vizard pull'd off that Ignorance and Melancholy had put upon Divine Providence and on the lovely Face of the Goſpel.

4. I may add to this, That he that finds himſelf in an extraordinary powerful Manner carried to that which is Good, may as fully aſcribe it to God's free grace, as in the Calviniſtical Hypotheſis; and he that has no Mind to Goodneſs cannot lay the Fault on God but himſelf. Nor can Satan tempt by that forcible Stratagem to either Deſpair or Diſſoluteneſs, ſuggeſting that if a Man ſhall be ſaved, he ſhall be ſaved, or if damned, he ſhall be damned, and that he can neither help on the one nor hinder the other. For unleſs a man be very deeply radicated in Faith and ſincere Obedience, I ſhould hold it a Piece of fond ſelf Flattery to take himſelf for one of the Elect, whenas he may hold of a more ſeaſonable Tenure, and act accordingly as a Probationer: and when he has got to that irrelapſable Condition of thoſe whoſe Souls are after a manner perfected in Faith and Holineſs, it will better become him than to entitle God alone to all thoſe Tranſactions wrought in him, Gen. 28. 19. and to take up that Saying of Jacob, Verily God was in this Place and I knew it not, and name the Place he ſlept in Bethel, The Temple of God: For ſuch is the Body of every Regenerate Chriſtian, and eſpecially of the Elect.

5. This Conceſſion of ours thus far, as it is moſt true, and certainly not unſerviceable for the promoting that thankful and humble Frame of Spirit that would attri-attribute all to the Irreſiſtibleneſs of free Grace and to the Force of their particular and irrevocable Predeſtination and Election; ſo is it alſo a mighty Safe-guard from thoſe dangerous Miſcarriages that too often happen the other way. Wherein there being no mean, but one muſt be either Elect or Reprobate, how prone is it out of Self-love to take up a ſtout and peremptory Conceit that a Man is the Child of God deſtinated thereto before the Foundation of the World, and that he can no more miſs to be ſaved than he did to be born? But as for others, poor Offals and Out-caſts of the Creation, that they can never find out the way to Heaven and Salvation, do what they can, let them importune God and vex and weary Nature never ſo much; but are like Sampſon, with his Eyes put out, brought upon the Stage of this World only to make the Philiſtines merry, or at beſt to be mere Foils and Blacks to ſet off the Beauty and Luſter of the ſecure Saints: who being unavoidably caught as it were in a Nooſe or faſt Snare of Salvation laid for them from all Eternity, ſo ſoon as they once fancy themſelves taken by the Leg, do ſo bounce and dance in the String with that Enormity and Violence, as if they tryed by their wild Tugs and Jerks, whether the Force of their Corruption or the Decretal Thread be the ſtronger.

6. Nay do grow up to ſuch a Pitch of Fool-hardineſs, as to think themſelves not poſſibly able to run themſelves out of Breath by the moſt wild and diſſolute Courſes imaginable, nor remove themſelves one Hair's Breadth out of God's Favour for all this. In fine, do proceed ſo far as to acknowledge no Law but their own Luſt and the fulfilling their own maſterleſs Will, and conſequently do conclude that they cannot ſin. Thus imitating a falſe Pattern, and making themſelves compendious Puppets or Pocket-Medals of that great Idol of theirs (for it is no God) that wills, as they ſay, merely becauſe he wills. And ſo they dance and ſport about the Imagination of their own Heart, as the Children of Iſrael, in the Law-Giver's Abſence, did about the molten Calf. Thus has this dark Conceit, which ſome raſh Spirits have endeavoured to make Eſſential to Chriſtianity, led many one into ſecure Libertiniſm firſt, and after into moſt deſperate Atheiſm.

CHAP. VI.

1. The Scholaſtick Opinions concerning the Divinity of Chriſt applied to the foregoing Rules. 2. As alſo concerning the Trinity. 3. The Application of the Antitrinitarian Doctrine to the ſaid Rules. Its Diſagreement with the Third. 4. As alſo with the Second. 5. The Antitrinitarians Plea. 6. An Anſwer to their Plea. 7. How groſly the denying the Divinity of Chriſt diſagrees with the third Rule.

1. THE next Opinions that occur are thoſe concerning the Divinity of Chriſt and the holy Trinity. And firſt, thoſe of the Schools, of which I ſhall only ſay in general, That though their Induſtry and the Sincerity of their Deſign may be commendable, which was to unite the Humanity of Chriſt ſo Hypoſtatically to the Divinity, that there ſhould be no Suſpicion of Idolatry in doing the higheſt divine Honour to him we call the Son of God, and that therefore what they drive at is very agreeable to the ſecond Rule we have ſet down; yet for my own part, I think they have made ſo little Proficiency to the main End, that that one plain Expreſſion in Athanaſius, As the Body and Soul is one Man, ſo God and Man is one Chriſt, is better than all their curious Definitions of things, which reach to no greater Hypoſtatical Union than that of the Body and Soul; whenas I dare ſay, if it were ſearched to the bottom, the Union betwixt the Divinity and Humanity in Chriſt is more one and more exact than that of Soul and Body, which they call Hypoſtatical. But they have defined things ſo unskilfully and perplexedly, that though their Deſign be agreeable to our ſecond Rule, yet their Performance does claſh much with the Third and Fourth: Such Contradictions or unintelligible Spinoſities weakening Faith, and hindring the Paſſage of the Goſpel to them that are without.

2. Which may be rightly ſaid alſo concerning their ſubtile and inconſiſtent Diſquiſitions and Concluſions touching the Trinity. Wherein though their Deſign be in the ſame Reſpect commendable as before, yet they have made the Myſtery ſo intricate and contradictious, that they weaken the Christian Faith to those that are within, and make it less passable and recommendable to Strangers; and have given occasion thereby to some bold Spirits, it being so disadvantagiously represented to them, to deny the whole Mystery, whereby they have purchas'd to themselves the Title of Antitrinitarians.

3. Whose Opinion I look upon as fundamentally repugnant to Christianity it self, if the New Testament be the Foundation of Christianity. For I know nothing more express than that in those Writings. And therefore the denying of the Trinity is the denying of the Authority of the New Testament. Or if they will pretend they can interpret things there so as to evade this Doctrine, by the same Reason I think they may evade any, and so still the sacred Writ shall stand for a Cypher, and signifie nothing; which tends mainly to the enervating of our Faith, and is a gross Entrenchment upon the third Rule.

4. And truly I think it may be made to appear that it is also particularly against the Second. For the Divinity of Christ does not fall in so handsomely and kindly Book 1. c 4,5. without the Spposition of a Trinity, as I have elsewhere intimated; and therefore I look upon it as a special Piece of Providence, that so explicite a Knowledge of the Godhead in the Triunity thereof was so generally made known to the World together with Christianity, that the Eternal Son of God might be worshipped through Christ, and the whole Deity, as I may so say, distinctly honour'd and adored.

5. But they will reply, That though they deny the Trinity and Divinity of Christ, namely that the Eternal Word was made Flesh, yet they assert that Divine Honour is due unto him, and therefore do not transgress against the second Rule. For they acknowledge, That though Christ be but Man, yet God has given him all Power in Heaven and in Earth, and that he shall return visibly to judge the Quick
John 5. 26. and the Dead, and that as the Father has Life in himself, so has he given him to have Life in himself, that is, the Power of enlivening us and quickening us at the last Day, and of changing these vile Bodies of ours into the Similitude of his glorious Body. And therefore that their Opinion serves the End of Christianity as well as the other in reference to Divine Worship due to Christ, and is more sutable to the fourth Rule; these Perplexities of Christ's Divinity and the Triunity of the Godhead making our Religion less passable and recommendable to those that are without.

6. But to this I answer, First, as before, That to take away the Trinity and Divinity of Christ is to take away the Authority of the New-Testament, or to take such a Liberty of forcing and distorting the Sense of things, as will make it contemptible and useless; than which What can be of more dangerous Consequence? It will be a Trespass not only against one, but against all the Rules I have set down, and make the Gospel pass very ill not only with Strangers, but our selves too, and turn Christendom back to Infidelity and Paganism.

But Secondly, I deny that the Scripture declares any thing concerning the Divinity of Christ, or the holy Trinity, that is impossible, contradictious, or more unintelligible than things that Men do ordinarily assent to, that are free Philosophers, and admit nothing upon Force or Superstition, but upon Reason; and That the Union of the Eternal Word with the Humane Nature of Christ is as conceivable for the Modus as the Union of the Soul and Body: That the Intricacies of the Schools are Fooleries, and not to be taken into our Religion: That the Scripture only sets forth a Triunity in the Godhead in general, not obscured by any Term that can entangle any one of a tolerable Wit and Understanding, unless he will be so blockish as to think, because the second Hypostasis in this Trinity is called Son, that the Father was married and had a Wife, as the Turks fondly object; whenas nothing else is signified but that the Son is from the Father, and the Holy Ghost from both.

Thirdly, That the first Author and Beginner, or at least the most eminent Renewer of this Sect that so boldly and stoutly denies the Trinity, was one, though of a leguleious Wit, yet so inept and averse from Divine Matters, that he flatly denies that the Existence of God is discoverable by the Light of Nature and Reason. And after he has found him by Help of Scripture, as he thinks, yet he has missed him. For that which is not Infinite in Essence, cannot be God. And therefore it is no wonder if he hangs off so heavily from the Admission of that more distinct and full Knowledge of him manifested in the holy Oracles, and that those that symbolize so much with his Genius in other things follow him also in this.

Fourthly, The noblest Spirits and best Philosophers that ever appear'd in the World for the Knowledge of Nature and of God, and that some Ages before Christ, of their own own Choice without Force or Obtruſion held the Triunity of the Godhead, which tho' I will not avouch to be perfectly right in all things, (they being even over accurate in the deſcribing of it, and therefore well may trip) yet for the main is ſuch that there is Reaſon for it, but none at all againſt it, and it is very ſutable in the general to thoſe general Intimations in the Scripture. Nor do I believe any Chriſtian bound to hold the Theory in the ſet Forms of Humane Invention, though he may peruſe them and believe them as much as he thinks good, and do think it a decent thing, that his Reaſon cannot perfectly reach nor exhauſt ſo profound a Myſtery, and that therefore he is to make up the reſt in humble Adoration.

Fifthly and laſtly, By denying the Triunity of the Godhead and Divinity of Chriſt, other Articles of our Faith are made incredible, and that Divine Adoration we give to Chriſt ſuſpected of Idolatry. For it will not ſeem credible to Strangers, eſpecially that abhor ſuch Superſtitions, that God ever exalted any mere Man to ſuch a pitch as the Socinians themſelves acknowledge Chriſt is exalted; but that it is ſome cunning Plot to lapſe the World or retain it in idolatrous Worſhip. It will alſo ſeem to them incredible, if Chriſt be mere Man, that he ſhould * by a Power in himſelf, as he profeſſes, be able to perform his Promiſe at the laſt Day, that is, to raiſe us all to a glorious and immortal Life, changing theſe Bodies of Fleſh into a pure celeſtial Subſtance; which is an Act for none but the Deity to do. And therefore if it be done by any thing in himſelf, it is by the Deity reſiding in him, by the Eternal Word by whom all things were created: Who was ſaid to be the Son of God before the Incarnation; and after the Incarnation both he that was born in time and this Eternal Word is look'd upon as one Son of God by real and phyſical Union. From whence that is eaſily underſtood which we alluded to before, As the Father has Life in himſelf, ſo has he given to the Son to have Life in himſelf. But our Adverſary's Way is very unconceivable and unintelligible, and therefore doth plainly tranſgreſs againſt the Rule he pretends it moſt agrees with, the making Chriſtian Religion recommendable to them that are without.

*John 5. 26.

7. As alſo he does herein againſt the Third Rule in no ſmall Meaſure. For by ſpoiling Chriſt of his Divinity and of being acknowledged in very Truth the Son of God, all thoſe Condeſcenſions of his which he ſtooped to for our Good, the Eſteem of them is much ſlackned and relaxed, and they will not ſtick the Mark ſo ſtrongly as upon this ancient and univerſal Hypotheſis of the Church of Chriſt, who did acknowledge that he was really the Son of God; which muſt needs enhance the Eſteem of his Sufferings exceedingly, and therefore more effectually melt our Affections into the greater Remorſe for Sin, and ſtouter Reſolutions to mortifie and kill all inordinate Motions and Deſires, all perverſe and corrupt Suggeſtions of our Natures, be it never ſo harſh to us, and bring them under the Scepter of the crucified Jeſus. Which this Sect ſo little conſiders, that they very hardly are drawn to acknowledge Chriſt's Death a Sacrifice for Sin; and ſo by their dry, harſh, and raſh Reaſonings expunge one of the chiefeſt Powers and choiceſt Artifices of the Goſpel for the making Men good.

CHAP. VIII.

1. Imputative Righteouſneſs, Invincible Infirmity, and Solifidianiſm, in what Senſe they ſeem to comply with the ſecond and laſt Rule, and how diſagreeing with the Third. 2. The Groundleſneſs of Mens Zeal for Imputative Righteouſneſs. 3. And for Solifidianiſm. 4. The Conſpiracy of Imputative Righteouſneſs, Solifidianiſm, and Invincible Infirmity to exclude all Holineſs out of the Converſation of Chriſtians. 5. That large Confeſſions of Sins and Infirmities without any Purpoſe of amending our Lives is a mere mocking of God to his very Face. With the great Danger of that Affront.

1. THE laſt Examples of applying and examining of Opinions according to the Rules we have ſet down ſhall be in Imputative Righteouſneſs, in Perfection and Infirmity, in Juſtification by Faith alone, and in the Reign of Chriſt upon Earth. And as for Imputative Righteouſneſs, Infirmity, and the Opinion of the Solifidians, I muſt confeſs, they ſeem to pretend much to the Exaltation of the Perſon of Chriſt, and to make Men ſenſible of their great Need of him; and ſeeming to promiſe Eaſe and Security to careleſs Sinners, may alſo make the Goſpel more paſſable to thoſe that are without, that have a Mind to enjoy this World as well as that which is to come, and is as plauſible to ſuch kind of People as Roman Indulgencies and Pardons, Abſolution upon ſlight Penances, and the like. To which kind of Etrours and Miſcarriages I cannot but impute a great Part of the Degeneracy of Chriſtendom at this Day. Nor can I imagin how the more perfectly-reformed Churches could have failed of proving generally excellent Chriſtians indeed, if theſe Opinions of Imaginary Righteouſneſs, Empty Faith, and the Invincibleneſs of Sin, had not ſtep'd into the Room of thoſe Follies and Errours they had fled from. Whence it is apparent how highly they tranſgreſs againſt the Third Rule, and conſequently how cautious Men ſhould be of either Receiving them or Communicating them to others.

2. For as for Imputative Righteouſneſs it is very ſuſpicious, ſeeing the Scripture is ſilent therein, that it is the Suggeſtion of Hypocriſie and Deceit to undermine that due Meaſure of Sanctification whereunto we are called. For otherwiſe this Invention is utterly needleſs, the Sacrifice of Chriſt's Paſſion being ſufficient to expiate whatever Sins we fall into from any pardonable Principle. Which Sacrifice were utterly needleſs, if the Perfect Righteouſneſs of Chriſt were ſo imputed to us as that we might reckon it our own. For then were we as righteous as Chriſt, for he has no greater Righteouſneſs than his own whereby he is righteous. And this Righteouſneſs conſiſting as well of abſtaining from Sins as doing Acts of Righteouſneſs, it is plain that all this is imputed to us, and that therefore hereby we are to be accounted of God as never to have ſinned, and therefore there wanted no Expiation for Sin; and ſo Chriſt died in vain. For the Imputation of his Righteouſneſs will ſerve for all. Wherefore an Opinion ſo abſurd one cannot imagin why any ſhould be ſo well pleaſed with, unleſs they intended it a Shelter for Sin, and to excuſe themſelves from real Holineſs and Righteouſneſs.

3. Neither do I know to what end but this Men ſhould ſo zealouſly preſs the Opinion of being ſaved by Faith alone, in ſuch a perverſe Senſe as ſome do, not meaning thereby a living Faith working by Love, but affirming that we muſt be juſtified by Faith preſcinding from Charity, Obedience, and whatever is accounted Holy and Juſt. But it is plain, that unleſs a Man will ſay he is juſtified by a dead Faith, which is no more true Faith than a dead-Corps is a Man, that real Sanctity will as ſurely accompany Faith as Light does the Sun; and that the Controverſie is as ridiculouſly raiſed of Faith, whether it alone juſtifie, as if one ſhould move a Queſtion whether the Sun alone makes it Day. For if they mean the Sun without the Rays, it is evidenly falſe; but if they mean the Sun alone without the Moon or Stars, it is as evidently true. But the preſcinding Life from Faith, and contending that it juſtifies, is as incongruous as to aſſert that the Sun without Light makes Day, and as miſchievous as to inſinuate that inward Sanctity is not neceſſary to Salvation. And therefore when they talk of Faith alone, they ought to explain themſelves ſo as that they may not be underſtood to exclude Chriſtian Holineſs, but Judaical, and what other needleſs, imperfect and ſuperſtitious Principles of Juſtification men have ſtood upon in the World, and withal to urge an Operative Chriſtian Love, which is the fulfilling of the Law.

4. To this Imputative Righteouſneſs and Juſtifying Faith, from which they would fain disjoin real Sanctity, they alſo add Chriſtian Infirmity, whereby they would inſinuate the Invincibleneſs of Sin. So that two of theſe Opinions ſuggeſting That that due Degree of Righteouſneſs we have ſpoken of (nay indeed any Degree thereof) is needleſs, and this other, That it is impoſſible, what can this tend to but an utter Neglect of all Holineſs in a Chriſtian Converſation? The Profeſſion of which Frame of Religion, though ſome take it to be a great Piece of Service of God, yet that Apoſtle whoſe Expreſſions they too often abuſe, declares that it is a mere mocking of Him, as if they did naſo ſuſpendere adunco; Μὴ πλανᾶσθε, Θεὸς οὐ μυκτηρίζεται, Be not deceived, God is not mocked; as a Man ſows, ſo ſhall he alſo reap. For this Abuſe and perverſe Application of the Myſtery of Chriſtianity to Lewdneſs and ſecure Wickedneſs is a mere deluding and mocking of the Benign Counſel of God in Chriſt. It is to ſhear in the Face of Heaven, and under pretence of extolling Chriſt, really to ſubvert his Kingdom upon Earth.

Gal. 6. 7.

5. Is not this a mere mocking and confronting of the Divine Majeſty, whenas he has ſent Chriſt into the World on Purpoſe to redeem the World from their vain Converſation

1 Pet. 1. 18.

verſation, and to aboliſh or deſtroy the Works of the Fleſh and the Devil, to tell God in our Devotions a long Story of our own Fleſhlineſs and Deviliſhneſs, and to intimate to Him to his Face, that however his free Graciouſneſs is content it ſhould be ſo, and that in the Application of Chriſt's Righteouſneſs God cannot nor will not ſee any Unrighteouſneſs of ours; and therefore, which is worſt of all, after many long and tedious Narrations, of which the greateſt Part is a very foul and black Catalogue of our Faults, to depart out of his Preſence without either Hope, Reſolution or Endeavour of amending our Lives or becoming any thing better than we are: Is not this, I ſay, to pervert and make ridiculous the good Counſel of God even in his own hearing, and to jeer Him to his Face? But however he may connive for a while at theſe Follies or Affronts, yet he will not always keep Silence and hold his Hands:

Non ſemper ſtolidam præbebit vellere barbam
Jupiter.

He will not always be put off with ſolemn Whimperings, Hypocritical Confeſſions, rueful Faces, ſore Arms and Legs tied up and ſet on wooden Stumps, with doleful Acknowledgments of but wilful Miſery and Poverty, of feigned and counterfeited Maimedneſs and Inability. If his Indignation be kindled, yea but a little, it will burn off our Wood, and force us to find our Legs, yea, and uſe our Arms too, to fly or ſend off, if it were poſſible, the Strokes of Divine Vengeance that will juſtly find us out.

CHAP. VIII.

1. The flaunting Hypocriſie of the Perfectioniſts. and from whence it comes. 2, The eaſie Laws whereby they meaſure their Perfection. And the ſad reſult of their Apoſtaſie from the Perſon of Chriſt. 3. That there is far more Perfection in many thouſands of thoſe that abhor the Name of Perfection than in thoſe Boaſters of it. 4. In what conſiſts that Sound and comely Frame of a true Chriſtian Spirit.

1. AND thus much of that creeping Hypocriſie that walks with a ſtill and demure Pace in theſe Opinions of Imputative Righteouſneſs, Empty Faith and Invincible Infirmity: Contrary to which is that flaunting Hypocriſie of the high-flown Perfectioniſts, whoſe Conſtitutions yet are ordinarily as unſound as the former, and far more oppoſite and repugnant to the very Frame and Spirit of the Goſpel; nay, I dare add that it is an Opinion ſlily and cunningly urg'd by the Envy of the Devil himſelf and imprinted upon hot, fierce, eager and melancholy Spirits, that fly high and are exceeding ſubject to Self-Pride and Arrogance, to obliterate in them the Remembrance of the Paſſion of Chriſt, and to elude the Uſe of that precious Sacrifice, to ſlake the Affections of Men to him, and to draw them off from Dependence any Way on his Perſon. Which we may be the better aſſured of, if we conſider what eaſie Laws they meaſure their Perfection by and their Freedom from Sin.

2. For any ill motions, though never ſo ſtrong, if not aſſented to, they have no Shame nor Conſcience of; and if they be carryed by the Strength of Temptation to commit the act, then they lay the Blame on the Impetuoſity of the Aſſault, conceit themſelves to be only as raviſhed Virgins (according to the ſoftneſs of their Phanſie and favourable Opinion of their own Sincerity) deflowred againſt their own Will, and ſtill ſtand upon Self-Juſtification. And what is yet more execrable, when they are come to the Height of their begodded Condition, and arrived to the State of full Perfection, then like the Indian Abduti or Spaniſh Illuminati, they cannot ſin, do what they will; let them commit what Foulneſs they will, what Injuſtice or Cruelty ſoever is ſuggeſted to them, theſe unclean and proud Fanaticks take it all to be Inſpiration; or elſe are emboldened at laſt (by the upſhot of their Luciferian Apoſtaſie from the Simplicity of the Truth of the Goſpel) to hold that there is no Difference of Good and Evil, and that Sin is but a Conceit, no real Miſcarriage, but to thoſe that know not their own Liberty. Which final Reſult of things does plainly indigitate, who moved at the Bottom of the Buſineſs in their firſt alienation from the Perſon of our Saviour. And the Juſtice ſtice of God is very obſervable in ſuch Apoſtates, how they are ſtrucken with Blindneſs, how ſilly and weak they are in their Reaſon and Imagination, and their Lives and Actions odious and abominable.

3. But that the Religion of theſe Perfectioniſts is not merely a Surpriſal by the Slights of Satan, but a ſtudied and premeditated Revolt from their Allegiance to our Bleſſed Saviour, though firſt ſuggeſted by the Envy of Lucifer againſt the Son of God, is too too plain in this; That even then when they ſeem moſt tolerable and to have ſome Conſcience of their Ways, yet what Chriſtians are troubled at and aſham'd of, they will not acknowledge to be Sin, leſt they ſhould ſeem to want the Sacrifice of Chriſt or be beholden to him for his Sufferings. Which is a Sign, as I have already ſaid, that Familiſm was invented by the Malice of the Devil to lay aſide the Office and Perſon of Chriſt: let them talk as highly and glorioufly of their begodded Eſtate as they will; which their infernal Teacher has taught them to boaſt of ſo much, that Chriſt may thereby ſeem leſs God than he is. But I dare pronounce, that thouſands of poor modeſt Chriſtians that abhor the Name of Perfection, and ſpeak much of Juſtification by Faith alone, of the Imputation of Chriſt's Righteouſneſs, and complain of their own Infirmity very ſadly and ſeriouſly, have yet arriv'd to a far greater Degree of Perfection than theſe Self-Magnifiers and rude Inſulters over theſe humble and contrite Spirits: who having no ill meaning by thoſe Forms of Speech that are taught them, are affectionate Adherers to their Saviour, and out of their due Reverence to God, and hearty Abhorrence from all ſhew of or leaſt Approach toward Sin and Wickedneſs, take Sanctuary in Chriſt, and eaſe their Souls by their Reliance on his Atonement and Interceſſion for ſuch Infirmities as theſe bold and fanatick Boaſters would bear Men in Hand and perſwade themſelves not to be at all ſinful.

And now whether theſe rampant Enthuſiaſts or the humble and orthodox Chriſtian be of the ſounder Complexion, let any Man that is not wilfully blind give Sentence, and how allowable the Doctrine of theſe Perfectioniſts is, whenas it traiterouſly ſtrikes at the Perſon of our Saviour and at the antiquating the Office of his Royal Prieſthood, and is croſs to that lovely and decorous Frame of Spirit which is required of all Men, and moſt of all of Chriſtians, that they be humble and lowly of Mind, which the Death of Chriſt, and our Reliance upon his Interceſſion and Sufferings for Favour at the Hands of God, does naturally nouriſh, and keep off that ſwollen unwholſome Diſtemper of Arrogance and Self-weening.

4. In which, that no Man may miſtake me to his own Prejudice, I ſay that the ſound and comely Frame of a Chriſtian Spirit is this; Unfeignedly to endeavour the perfecting of all Holineſs both in Heart and Actions, and not to allow a Man's ſelf in any thing that he thinks is a Sin; and when he is arrived at that Height of Sanctity, that he is not conſcious to himſelf that he does any thing that is unlawful, to give the whole Praiſe to God, and to His Merits and interceſſion that has procured him the Aſſiſtance of his holy Spirit, and by Virtue of his Death has ſo powerfully engaged him to war againſt his Luſts and to mortifie all his immoderate Paſſions; and withal to remember, that though he know nothing by himſelf, yet he is not thereby juſtified, and that a man cannot be ſure but that he may miſtake himſelf in ſome thing or other, though he never ſin againſt his own Light; and to impute it rather to the Mercy of God, that he has not led him into ſuch violent Temptations as ſome have been, that he finds himſelf not to have ſubmitted to evil Motions, than to oſtentate his own Strength, and contemn the Protection of ſo kind a Saviour, who being acquainted with humane Infirmity, may juſtly be thought to have kept off thoſe tempeſtuous Aſſaults that otherwiſe might have invaded us. Beſides that, let us never be ſo perfect now, yet it cannot pay the old Score, becauſe we ought to have been always without Sin; and therefore our Recourſe to ſo compaſſionate a Saviour is never out of Date. Which is a Truth indiſpenſable both for the maintaining of the Honour of Chriſt, and keeping our ſelves in a ſubmiſs and humble Frame of Spirit towards God and towards Men. So that the Opinion of theſe Enthuſiaſtick Perfectioniſts does plainly tranſgreſs againſt both the ſecond and third Rule we have ſet down.

1 Cor. 4. 4.

CHAP.

*

CHAP. IX.

1. Sincerity the Middle Way betwixt pretended Infirmity and the Boaſt of Perfection: with the Deſcription thereof. 2. A more full Character of the Sincere Chriſtian. 3. That they that endeavour not after that State are Hypocrites, and they that pretend to be above it, Conſpiratours againſt the everlaſting Prieſthood of Chriſt. 4. The Perſonal Reign of Chriſt upon Earth, and the Millennium in the more ſober meaning thereof applyed to the above-nam'd Rules.

1. TO ſtear our Courſe right betwixt thoſe Hypocritical Pretenders of Invincible Infirmity and theſe High-flown Boaſters of abſolute Perfection, we muſt keep in that ſafe middle Path of Unfeigned Sincerity. Which therefore will neither charge the Condition of Nature, as being utterly uncorrigible, that cannot be reduc'd to Obedience, no not by the Power of the Spirit of God; nor caſt the Blame upon God himſelf, as being unwilling or not caring that Nature ſhould be thus reduc'd and brought under to the Obedience of Chriſt: But a man will charge himſelf in all his Miſcarriages, and hold it his Duty (and ſuch as by God's Aſſiſtance he may perform, if he be not wanting on his Part) to yield his Members as Inſtruments of Righteouſneſs to God, as well as he did before yield them as Inſtruments of Unrighteouſneſs to Sin. For Sincerity implying a faithful Purpoſe and Will of doing what is right, Chriſt has thereby won the Caſtle or Fort of his Enemy; and all the Ammunition and Engines therein will certainly then be uſed for right Deſigns. Rom. 6. 13.

The Eyes that before ſuck'd in rotten corruptive Thoughts from falſe alluring Objects, and ſo ſet the Heart on Fire with filthy Luſts, are now made Inlets of the Light and Brightneſs of the unſpotted Wiſdom of God, fairly pourtraied in the viſible Creature. Thoſe Ears that could before drink in with Delight the ſmooth tales of Detraction and Calumny, ſtand now open only to the Sighs of the Poor or honeſt Reports of our Neighbour. Thoſe Feet that before were ſwift to ſhed Blood, are now much more ready to reſcue the Innocent from Violence. Thoſe Hands that before were only exerciſed in griping and pulling from others, are now ever open for Alms-deeds and bountiful Diſtribution to the needy. That Tongue that in Secret would not ſpare to ſtrike his Friend, will now in a juſt Cauſe defend his Enemy.

In brief, there is no external Action of true Sanctity and Righteouſneſs but the ſincere Chriſtian both believes and finds he has a Power to perform it, and therefore does conſtantly the Good and refuſes the Evil, that his Conſcience tells him is ſo indeed, and is in his Power to do and refrain: that is to ſay, He will be ſure to refrain from whatſoever is unjuſt, He will never deal with another otherwiſe than himſelf would be dealt with, he will moſt certainly abſtain from Extortion, Adultery, Fornication, he will never do any envious or revengeful Actions. And not only ſo, but he does believe that through the Grace of God he may be quite devoid of all Envy and Malice, and not ſo much as bear any ill Will againſt any Man, no not againſt his Enemies; and the ſame of all other inordinate Affections, which though they move ſtrongly and rebelliouſly, yet he never aſſents ſo far to them as to be willing to do them, though he had a ſecure Opportunity thereof.

2. And yet he does not think himſelf perfect, though he thus aſſents to no Sin while he thinks it ſo, nor at all doubts of his Salvation, though he be imperfect. And if by the Boiſterouſneſs and Importunity of a Temptation or ſome unavoidable Inadvertency he falls into any evil Action, the Pleaſure he finds from it will be like that which a Child gets by falling with his Forehead againſt ſharp Stones or with his Hands into the Fire. Wherefore his ſincere Love to Righteouſneſs and hearty Abhorrence from Sin will make him always Circumſpect. For he holds himſelf bound not only not to commit Sin when it appears to be ſo, which he thinks then impoſſible for him to do; but charges himſelf with a perpetual Watchfulneſs, that he may not commit it when it would inſinuate it ſelf under ſome more ſpecious Shape.

And though by Divine Aſſiſtance and faithful Adheſion thereto, he finds himſelf arriv'd to that Pitch that he has conquered all Corruptions, ſo that he cannot charge himſelf with either Pride, or Luſt, or Envy, or Covetouſneſs, or any ſuch like Vice, or that he does misbelieve the Promiſes of God, or does not depend upon his Providence, or is not willing to ſubmit to his Will in all things to whatever Condition he ſhall call him: yet he knowing himſelf withal not infallible, nor unconquerable, eſpecially without the Aſiſtance of Chriſt, as alſo actually beſet with many Inconveniences of humane Nature (ſuch as are ſtraying of Thoughts, Unevenneſs in Devotion, Indiſpoſedneſs of Mind by Reaſon of this Tabernacle of Earth we live in) and reflecting on the old reckoning of the Follies of our Life paſt, which nothing but Ignorance can conceit to have been without Sin, and how all theſe things (though ordinary Philoſophy pronounces them to be no Faults, but mere Infirmities of Nature) they having been contracted by our Lapſe, may juſtly by Religion be ſet on our Score; This ſincere Chriſtian, whoſe Character I have given, will be ſo far from ſetting the Perſon of Chriſt at Defiance, and vilifying his Paſſion, Interceſſion, and holy Prieſthood, that he will with the greateſt Reverence of Devotion that can be imagined love him and adore him, and will not quit that ſweet Repoſe and Joy of Mind he finds in the recounting with himſelf what an inеſtimable Friend he has with God, for all the Pleaſures and greateſt Intereſts of this preſent Life; nor preſume to be juſtified by his own Life or Works, but by Faith in Chriſt, whom he rejoices to think that he ſhall ſee his Judge at the laſt Day.

3. This is the true and ſound Complexion of a ſincere Chriſtian; and he that does not faithfully endeavour to arrive at this State, diſcovers himſelf to be an halting Hypocrite, and one that is no Lover of the Divine Life, nor has taſted the Sweetneſs of Sanctity, and of the Holy Spirit of God, nor known the Power of his Operations. He that pretends to be above it, he is ſelf-condemned, and betrays himſelf of what Kingdom he is, that he is inacted by the Envy of Satan againſt the Kingdom of Chriſt, to antiquate his Offices and to lay aſide his Perſon: which he perſwades ſundry fanatical Souls to do, puffing them up with the Conceit of Self-Perfection, on purpoſe to exclude our Saviour. The Danger of which Error is no leſs than the utter Forfeiture of their Eternal Salvation. For no Man ſhall Inherit Eternal Life but by the Donation of the crucified Jeſus, whom God has appointed Judge at the laſt Day. Beſides that the very Life and moral Temper in theſe Revolters from the Son of God, if we compare it with that of the Sincere Chriſtian, there is as much difference, to them that can taſte, as betwixt the wild Grape and the ſweet. So hard a thing is it for either Nature or the Devil to imitate the true Tincture of the Spirit of Chriſt. Their Vine is the Vine of Sodom, and their Fruit as the Cluſters of Gomorrah, and their Churches as a Field which the Lord hath blaſted, there is the Smell of the ſulphurous Lake and of the Pit of Hell amongſt them.

4. The laſt thing I propounded was the Perſonal Reign of Chriſt upon Earth. Of which Opinion as the Reaſons are ſlender or none at all, ſo the Uſefulneſs thereof is to me inviſible, not knowing that it promotes any End of the Goſpel which I can take Notice of.

But that there may be a Millennium, as they uſually call it, or a long Period of time wherein a more excellent Reign of Chriſt than has manifeſted it ſelf yet to the World may take place, truly it ſeems ſo reaſonable in it ſelf, and there are ſuch ſhrewd Places of Scripture ſeem to ſpeak that way, that it is hard for an indifferent Man to gain-ſay it. But I conceive then that the Renovation of the State of things will be, as St. Peter ſpeaks, into new Heavens and new Earth wherein Righteouſneſs ſhall dwell; wherein real Sanctity and univerſal Peacefulneſs ſhall bear Sway; wherein the crucified Jeſus ſhall not be only complemented aloof off, and ſaluted in Statues and Pictures, both himſelf and his Mother and all his Apoſtles and moſt eminent Adherents (whenas in the mean time Mars, Venus, and Pluto, and other Idols of the Heathen are cordially lov'd and ſerv'd, all Chriſtendom giving themſelves enormouſly to War and Bloodſhed, to Luſt and Luxury, to Wealth and Covetouſneſs, worſhipping theſe Deities in Spirit and in Truth:) but as the Divine Honour done to our Saviour's Perſon ſhall not then ceaſe, ſo the Power of his Spirit ſhall be more potently felt for the unpaganizing of the World, and for the deſtroying of this ſpiritual Idolatry, which is the inordinate Affections and fierce Endeavours of the Animal Life; and ſhall implant ſuch a Love and Liking of the Life of Chriſt, that Peace and Righteouſneſs ſhall overflow all.

Contentions about Opinions ſhall then ceaſe, they being priz'd only by the Pride and Curioſity of the Natural Man, and all the goodly Inventions of nice Theologers ſhall then ceaſe, and all the fooliſh and perplexing Arguments of the diſputacious cious Schools ſhall be laid aſide, and the Goſpel ſhall be exalted in that Day. And truly the Millennium being in ſuch a Senſe as this ſtated, it is both probable and very deſirable; and an Opinion that agrees with, nay ſuch as may very well further all the Deſigns of the Goſpel, as any one may diſcern by making Application to the Rules I have ſet down.

Of which Rules theſe few Examples may ſerve to ſhew the Uſe, and to teach a Man how to extricate himſelf from that mighty Cumberſomeneſs of the Numeroſity of Opinions, whether they be ſuggeſted from his own Thoughts or offer'd by other Men. For if he applies them to theſe Rules, he will find moſt of them either ſo little to the Deſigns of the Goſpel, or ſo much againſt them, that he will account ſome not worth the ſifting, others not worthy the naming, much leſs the entertaining by a ſober Chriſtian.

Which Practices and Conſiderations cannot but tend much to the Advancement of the Goſpel of Chriſt, if diligently obſerv'd though but by private Chriſtians. I ſhall only give ſome brief Touch what is proper for the Magiſtrate to contribute for the Advancement of Chriſtianity, and then we ſhall conclude.

CHAP. X.

1. That a Right of Liberty of Conſcience belongs not to thoſe who deny there is a God and a Life to come. 2. A Deſcription of a ſerious Profeſſor of Religion in general to whom this Right of Liberty of Conſcience pertains. 3. The Deſcription of a ſerious Profeſſor of Chriſtianity to whom the foreſaid Right belongs. 4. That the Conceſſion of ſuch a Right of Liberty of Conſcience would not be prejudicial to the Intereſt of any Church but that of Rome. 5. Liberty of Conſcience, taken even in a larger Senſe, confirm'd by the Authority of the Ancient Fathers. 6. Arguments for Liberty of Conſcience drawn from the Nature of the thing. 7. A further Demonſtration of this Truth from the groſs Abſurdities that follow the contrary Poſition.

1. BEfore we can well underſtand the Power of the Magiſtrate in Matters of Religion, we muſt firſt conſider the Common Right of Mankind in this Point, provided they be not degenerated into Atheiſm and Prophaneneſs. For he that believes there is no God, nor Reward, nor Puniſhment after this Life, what Pretence can he have of claiming a Right to Liberty of Conſcience? Or how unproper is it to talk of his Right in Matters of Religion, who profeſſedly has no Religion at all, nor any Tie of Conſcience upon him to make that wicked Profeſſion? For Atheiſm as it is very courſely and palpably falſe in it ſelf to any Man that has the clear Exerciſe of his Reaſon, ſo is it intolerably miſchievous and deſtructive even to the preſent Happineſs of States and Kingdoms, and therefore to be ſhunned and repreſſed as the very Plague and Peſt of Humane Polities.

2. But for thoſe that ſeriouſly make Profeſſion of the Exiſtence of God Creator of all things, and of his Providence, and acknowledge that there is a Life to come wherein the Wicked ſhall be puniſhed, and the Good and Virtuous rewarded, who are altogether upright and ſincere, maintaining no religious Opinion or Practice that is contrary to, or inconſiſtent with ſound and genuin Morality; Who are ſo thorowly poſſeſt with an awful Regard and reverential Fear of the Divine Majeſty, that they cannot but preſerve a good Conſcience in all things, acting always as in the Sight of God; Who are of an unſhaken Loyalty towards their Prince, and ready and deſirous to obey their Spiritual Rulers in any thing their Conſcience will permit, the Integrity and Soundneſs whereof is ſuch that it finds it ſelf obliged to obey them in all things indifferent, and not contrary to the Commands of God; Who have ſo great a Regard of Decency and Order, and of the Publick Good of Religion, that they are willing to ſubmit themſelves to any reaſonable Puniſhment, rather than their Right of Freedom ſhould miniſter Occaſion to others of abuſing this Liberty of Conſcience to the Neglect and Contempt of all Religion; Thoſe, I ſay, who are thus diſpos'd, ſeem verily to me to have naturally obtain'd ſuch a Right of Liberty in Matters of Religion as is altogether inviolable, and which the Power of the Magiſtrate cannot lawfully invade, unleſs ſomething ſo untoward ſhould chance to be mingled therewith, as might cauſe them juſtly to forfeit this their, otherwiſe, undoubted Right.

In the mean time, ſuppoſing there be nothing but ſimple Miſtake, which they of the contrary Religion will call Superſtition, yet the Conſcience of the other Party being bound up to this, it is his natural Right to have his Freedom therein; becauſe his Conſcience is naturally ſubjected thereby to a greater Power than any is on Earth: and therefore not to give him the Liberty of his Religion is both a Piece of Inhumanity and Injuſtice towards him, and a kind of Rebellion againſt God whoſe liege Subject he is.

3. And certainly if this is true of a Sincere Profeſſor of Religion in general, it is manifeſt that 'tis no leſs true of a ſincere Chriſtian. A Chriſtian Man I mean of an upright Heart, a true Nathaniel in whom there is no Guile. Whoſe Character it will not be difficult to draw, partly from that general Deſcription of a Sincere Profeſſor of Religion, and partly from his particular Nature. He is then a Man of a Converſation unblameable, ſtedfaſtly believing whatever is Eſſential to the Chriſtian Religion, of a Conſcience unſtained, being one who manages all his Affairs as in the Sight and Preſence of God, of an invincible Loyalty toward his Prince, and obeying the Church to the utmoſt of what his Conſcience will allow him, that is, in all things that are indifferent, or truly dubious and diſputable; And whoſe Conſcience is ſo well ordered, that he judges it his Duty thus to do; And laſtly, who is affected with ſo great and ſo profound a Regard for the Order and Unity of the Church, and hath upon him ſuch a Care and Fear leſt the Common Good of Chriſtianity truly Apoſtolical ſhould in any manner be impair'd or injur'd by unprofitable and pernicious Diviſions, that tho' it ſhould fall to his own ſhare to ſuffer (as being unable himſelf to comply with every Inſtitution of the Church becauſe of ſome Scruples he cannot get over) yet he would moſt willingly undergo any tolerable Puniſhments, rather than his Immunity ſhould afford an Occaſion to inſolent or malicious Men of abuſing this Privilege of Liberty to ſubvert and deſtroy the Peace and Security of the truly Chriſtian and Catholick Church. This is He, who, beyond all others, ought freely to enjoy this Natural Right of Liberty of Conſcience.

4. Which were it indeed reſerv'd intire for him, would not ſurely endamage the Intereſt almoſt of any Church but that of Rome, which is ſo exceedingly corrupted, and yet with ſo much Aſſurance lays claim to Infallibility, that I freely acknowledge, That nothing is more to be dreaded by her than this Right of Liberty of Conſcience how much ſoever guarded and limited by theſe harmleſs Circumſtances. But as for the Reformed Churches, whoſe Religion is, the truly infallible Oracles of God contain'd in the Holy Scriptures, there is no Reaſon why they ſhould at all entertain any Apprehenſions of ſuch a Liberty, nor would it verily be hurtful or indecent for them to uſe an Indulgence ſo skilfully caution'd towards their genuin Children and ſincere Members, who are Chriſtians ſo perfectly formed that they heartily believe all the eſſential Parts of our Religion, being only at a loſs as to ſome Opinions and Difficulties pretereſſential; But in the mean time they are under the true and ſubſtantial Diſpenſation of the Life and Spirit, of which their skilful Guides being ſufficiently convinc'd, 'tis verily no more unbecoming for them to allow unto ſuch ſome peculiar Privilege, than for a tender Mother to make much of her Infant that is about Teeth, or otherwiſe weak or indiſpos'd, or for the Maſter of a Family to permit at leaſt, if not to provide ſome proper Accommodations apart, to thoſe of the Houſhold, whoſe Infirmities or bodily Sickneſſes render them unfit to dine or ſup at the common Table. For this is no leſſening of his Authority, but a more prudent and commendable Exerciſe thereof. Where all things are as lifeleſs Statues and Pictures, each may be ordered according to the Will or Pleaſure of the Painter or Statuary; and Virgins who are idle and barren may with leſs Danger lace up their Bodies to that meaſure of Slenderneſs as beſt agrees with the Curioſity of their fooliſh Fancy. But every Church of Chriſt wherein is found the Diſpenſation of Life, (and that this ought indeed to be her Condition, is ſurely never to be forgotten) is like a Woman big with Child, who ſhould therefore take a ſpecial Care that ſhe be not girded or laced too tight, for fear of miſerably miſcarrying. Theſe things are indeed ſo juſt and almoſt neceſſary, that none can be ignorant thereof to whom the Life of God hath been manifeſted.

5. And verily the Ancient Fathers of the Church have ſpoken of this Matter more freely and without ſuch Cautions and Limitations. Hereof Grotius in his Book de Jure Belli & Pacis produceth many Examples. He quotes a Canon of the Council of Toledo, which runs thus; It is ordained by the Holy Synod, That henceforth no Violence be uſed to any Man; For God hath Mercy on whom he will, and whom he will he hardeneth. To this purpoſe alſo he cites the Clementine Conſtitutions, as likewiſe Athanaſius and and Chryſoſtom, who expreſly exclude Violence and Compulſion in bringing over Men to Chriſtianity. That alſo is worthy to be remark'd which is cited by Jewel out of Chryſoſtom in his 19*th* Homily upon St. Matthew. Was it ever ſeen that a Sheep did perſecute the Wolf? No, but contrariwiſe. So alſo Cain perſecuted Abel, but not Abel Cain. So Iſhmael perſecuted Iſaac, not Iſaac Iſhmael. So the Jews did Chriſt, not Chriſt the Jews. The Hereticks Chriſtians, not Chriſtians Hereticks. Wherefore by their Fruits you ſhall know them. Whereby he plainly intimates that Perſecution upon the Account of Conſcience is a manifeſt Evidence of Antichriſtianiſm. And again preciſely in the ſame Homily, He whom thou perceiveſt to take Delight in Perſecution and Bloodſhed, is a ravenous Wolf. And laſtly, that Intimation of the Apoſtle is very appoſite; He that was born after the Fleſh, perſecuted him that was born after the Spirit. So great an Antipathy is there found to be between the Carnal and the truly Regenerate Chriſtian. Which thing ought to ſtrike Terror into a Man as often as he perceives any Motions to Perſecution ariſing in his Mind, ſuch being manifeſt Indications of the Cainitiſh, Iſhmaelitiſh, and Woolfiſh Nature, and a certain Sign that he belongs not to the Sheep-Fold of Chriſt. Gal. 4. 29.

Book 2. ch. 20.

6. And ſo much, by the Bye, for the Opinion of the ancient Fathers in this Matter. But there yet remain Arguments deduc'd from the Nature of the thing it ſelf, whereby it may be demonſtrated how great an Injuſtice it is towards Men, and Rebellion againſt God himſelf, not to allow, to ſuch a ſerious Profeſſor of Religion as I have above deſcribed, this his Right of Liberty of Conſcience. For firſt, that he ſpeaks and acts according to the unavoidable Perſwaſions of his Mind is not a Sin, it ariſing according to our Hypotheſis out of invincible Ignorance; nor is he ſuppoſed to act any thing againſt the known Laws of Nature; and therefore no juſt Right of any one is impaired or endamaged: but in the mean time the Soveraignty of the Godhead is fully acknowledged, and the Loyalty and Integrity of the Sincere Profeſſor of Religion is exerted as well as exerciſed therein.

Wherefore what Reaſon can there be that any one for ſo good an Action, that is not exceptionable for any thing that is properly ſinful, ſhould be rudely treated, puniſhed, or in any violent Way diſturbed or hindred? For whoſoever endeavours his Forcible Hindrance, does not only ſuppreſs an innocent and laudable Action, but he does himſelf neceſſarily perpetrate a foul and ſinful one. For ſuch is the Solicitation of others to the Omiſſion of that Duty of Loyalty which in their own Conſcience they are perſwaded they owe to God. Wherefore he that hinders the ſincere Religioniſt from the Profeſſion of his Religion, conſtrains and neceſſitates him to ſin againſt God: which no Powers in the World have a right to do, but are ipſo facto guilty of Rebellion againſt their Maker, by thus corrupting his liege Subjects, and urging them to Faithleſneſs and Neglect of their Duty. How exceeding culpable then are they in forcing them and haling them to ſuch Actions as they are perſwaded God has ſeverely forbid them? Verily if this be not unjuſtly to command him who is under the Power of another, I cannot imagin what is; nor what can be deemed a Sin againſt God, if urging others to ſin againſt Him be not. So that it is plain the Soveraign Power of God ſets the ſincere Religioniſt free in matters of Religion from any external Force or Power whatſoever.

7. Now as this Poſition recommends it ſelf ſufficiently from its own native Concinnity and Solidity; ſo will it alſo appear ſtill more ſolid and more conſonous to Reaſon, if we conſider the Abſurdity of the contrary Poſition, namely, That Liberty of Conſcience is by no Means to be granted in Religion. For from hence it follows that every Religion may, nay ought to prohibit and ſuppreſs all other Religions with all Care and Diligence poſſible. For every Man's Conſcience tells him his own Religion is the beſt, or elſe he would not be of it; nay, that there is none true and ſaving but his own. For if they will ſay they may be ſaved in others, then is our former Argument a perfect Demonſtration againſt them, that they are not only injurious to Men but abſolute Rebels againſt God indeed, in treating thoſe ſo ill that are his liege People, and whom he loves ſo well that he intends to ſave them, and in perſecuting them even for thoſe very Actions wherein they do moſt ſeriouſly expreſs their Obedience to him, and ſeek their own Salvation.

But if there be but one true and ſaving Religion at once in the World, this is the greateſt Diſintereſt to it that can be imagined. For upon this Poſition it will be as carefully kept out and as forcibly as any of the reſt; which in my Apprehenſion is very foul Play, and therefore this is another Evidence of the Truth of our Theſis, viz. That the contrary is the greateſt Injury and Diſintereſt to the True Religion that can be ſuppoſed, which nothing but External Force hinders from ſpreading over all. For Magna eſt Veritas, & prævalebit, I mean in the Minds and Conſciences of thoſe Men where ſhe may have free Audience, not in the Noiſe and Terrour of tyrannical Impoſitions and Obtruſions. Beſides the frequent Miſery and Calamity this Poſition brings upon Nations and Kingdoms, viz. Wars, Blood-ſhed, Subverſion of Families, depoſing, Stabbing or poiſoning of Princes, perpetual Enmity and Hatred, and all the Works and Actions of the Kingdom of Darkneſs. Of ſo miſchievous Conſequence is this Opinion we do oppoſe. Whenas if it were acknowledged univerſally That Liberty of Religion is the natural Right of Mankind, all theſe Miſchiefs would be prevented; The Prince could not pretend any Quarrel againſt the People, nor the People againſt the Prince or againſt one another, but in Civil Rights that are more plain and intelligible.

CHAP. XI.

1. That there is a Right in every Nation and Perſon to examine their Religion, to hear the Religion of Strangers, and to change their own, if they be convinc'd. 2. That thoſe Nations that acknowledge this Right and act accordingly, have naturally a Right to ſend out Agents into other Nations. Their Demeanour there, and the Right of revenging their Injuries. And how this Method had juſtified the Spaniards Invaſion of the Indians. 3. The Unpracticableneſs of the preſent Theory by reaſon of the general Perverſneſs of the World. The Advantagiouſneſs of it to Chriſtendom, and Sutableneſs of it to the Spirit of a Chriſtian. 4. That a Religion corruptive of Manners is coercible by the Magiſtrate. 5. And that which would plainly deſtroy the Defence of the Country. 6. As alſo whatever Religion is inſeparably interwoven with Principles of Perſecution. 7. An Anſwer to that Objection, That all Sects are perſecutive, and that therefore there can be no Liberty of Conſcience given.

1. IT is manifeſt therefore That Liberty of Religion is the common and natural Right of all Nations and Perſons, that is to ſay, That they have a Power, as they are Men and indued with Reaſon, and believe there is a God and a Life to come, and ſincerely lead their Life according to this Faith, to examine what is the beſt Way to ſerve God, for their own Advantage in another Life; and not to be tied up ſo to that Religion is firſt propoſed to them, but that they have a Right to ſuſpect, eſpecially if they do not like it, that there is ſome better, and therefore that they may confer with thoſe of other Religions, ſend for them out of one Nation into another, and entertain them when they are arrived, hear them diligently, and, if they be convinc'd, openly profeſs their Religion. Or if they come of their own Accord, they are to be entertained with the ſame Security that an Agent of State is, and may freely converſe with them of the Nation that have a mind to hear them. For this is a Piece of their Right of Liberty, to ſpeak as well as the other to hear. Which Tranſactions would breed no Diſturbance at all, if this Right of Liberty of Religion was univerſally underſtood and acknowledged by all the Nations of the World: as certainly it is their Right.

2. And it being ſo, it ſeems plainly to follow, That any Nation or People that do heartily acknowledge the Reaſonableneſs of this Right, and their Practice is accordingly, that their accrues to them this Part of the Right alſo, that they may ſend of thoſe of the Religion themſelves are into their Neighbouring Nations to communicate their Religion to them, and to try if they can convince them of that which they are perſwaded is true, and to ſhew them the Errours of their own; but at ſeaſonable times, and without Reproach or Tumult, or any Way confronting them in the Exerciſe of their Religion; a thing very barbarous and inſufferable at home, much more abroad in Countries where they are Strangers.

For the avoiding of which wild Enormities, it ſeems reaſonable in it ſelf, and a thing fit to be agreed upon, that there ſhall be no Security to any Stranger that takes upon him to gather the People together under Pretence of inſtructing them in a more perfect Religion, unleſs he be an Agent from his own Nation for that Purpoſe. Nor is he to begin with the rude People privately and by underhand Ways, but to act above-board, and to make his Applications to the Governours of the the Places where he arrives; and not to pretend to the Jugglings of Inſpirations, and the irreſiſtible Bluſters and Impetuoſities of an unaccountable Conſcience: but firſt with a diſcreet Candour to allow and commend what is good and Praiſe worthy in the Religion of the Place; and then, after an unaffected Profeſſion of the Love and Kindneſs of them that ſent him, towards the Nation, with all prudent Inſinuations poſſible to lay before them the Groundleſneſs or groſs Falſities which are in their Religion; and after that to ſhew the moſt demonſtrative Reaſons he has for the recommending of his own, namely, ſuch as are agreed upon by the mature Deliberation and Counſel of them that ſent him upon this Errand, to which it ſhould be criminal to add, upon their Authority, any fooliſh Inventions of his own.

And if theſe Agents for Religion neither injuring nor defrauding any one of their Civil Rights, ſhall be evilly entreated by thoſe they offer to inſtruct, if they abuſe them by Impriſonment or any other hard dealing, or finally put them to Death; that State or Kingdom to which they belong may lawfully revenge their Death, and require their Blood at the Hands of that People, as having groſly and barbarouſly tranſgreſſed againſt the Law of Nations, and the common Right of all Mankind that have not forfeited it ſome way or other: As theſe have not, they allowing this Liberty among themſelves, and to all others that have a Senſe and Conſcience of the ſame Right, and being firmly reſolved, if it ſhould come to a War, and they be Conquerours of their ill Neighbours, to uſe no other Means to turn their New Subjects from their old Religion, but by peaceably and patiently ſhewing them the Vanity thereof, and the Excellency and Solidity of their own. Which therefore cannot by any Means be called the Propagation of Religion by the Sword, when there ſhall not be ſo much Force put upon them to change their former Religion, if they be found conſcientious, as to compel them to be preſent at the Solemnities of the New tho' but as Hearers and Spectatours. Only they ſhall Swear fealty to their Conquerours, and be well indoctrinated in that common Right of Mankind, That no Man is to be perſecuted for Religion, if he have not forfeited that Right by taking upon him the Liberty of perſecuting others or committing ſomething elſe of a like Nature And therefore they may enjoy their Religion if they can ſtill like it, upon equal Terms with the Conquerours, as to their private Capacities. If the Spaniard had made himſelf Maſter of the Indies upon theſe Conditious, and had abſtained from his execrable Cruelties, he might have juſtified himſelf to all the World. For this had not been to propagate Religion by the Sword, but to maintain a Man's natural Right.

3. This Theory I think is very ſound at the Bottom, and that it is very clear what ought to be; but hugely unpracticable by reaſon of that general Perverſneſs and Corruption of Men. Yet I thought it worth the while to expoſe it to View, the Acknowledgement thereof being the greateſt Advantage to Chriſtian Religion that can poſſibly be conceived, there being nothing ſo effectual for the eaſie Fall of Turciſm and Paganiſm into the Profeſſion of Chriſt as this Principle we have explained; our Religion being not only ſolid in it ſelf, but incomparably more demonſtrable to all Rational Spirits than any Religion ever extant in the World. Beſides, though its Uſe will not extend ſo far at firſt, yet it may be ſomething ſerviceable to theſe Parts of the World whoſe Eyes are more open to the Truth than others are. And verily in my Judgment, this Principle I do thus recommend, as it ſeems to me to deſerve the Reception of all Men as true, ſo of all Chriſtians eſpecially, not only upon Point of Policy, but as more ſutable to that Spirit they are of, abhorring from Force and Cruelty; who are therefore to permit full Liberty of Conſcience to all thoſe that do not forfeit it by mixing with their Religion ſuch Principles as are contrary to good Manners and civil Right, or repugnant to this very Principle of Liberty we ſpeak of.

4. Wherefore thoſe that under Pretence of Religion would corrupt the People with ſuch Doctrines as plainly countenance Vice and tend to the rooting out of the Senſe of true Honour and Virtue out of a Nation, have loſt this common Right we contend for, as being notorious Infecters and Poiſoners of the People amongſt whom they live; and therefore the publick Magiſtrate of what Nation or Religion ſoever has a Power to reſtrain them, their Doctrine being ſo dangerous and deſtructive to the Welfare of a State, and contrary to the Light of Nature and Suffrage of the wiſeſt Men in all Places of the World and in all Ages. No Religion fraught with ſuch rotten Ware as this is to be received in any Coaſt where they would put in, but to be kept out by Strangers and ſuppreſſed at home. 5. Again,

5. Again, thoſe alſo would forfeit this Right of Liberty, whoſe Religion ſhould contain any thing in it that would deſtroy or impair the Strength and Safety of the State which received it. As if there were ſome ſuch abſurd Superſtition therein, as upon Pretence of an high Eſteem of Virginity and extreme Abhorrence from War ſhould urge the Emaſculation of every third Male-Child, or the Luxation or cutting off their Fore-Finger or Thumb, whereby the Country would be deprived of many of its People, and ſuch as remained be made unſerviceable for the Defence thereof: there is no queſtion but the Magiſtrate might inhibit ſuch a Religion as this.

6. As he might alſo in the laſt place all ſuch Religions as have intermixed with them that wolviſh and ferine Humour of perſecuting others for their Religion, that would live quietly by them, and would not force any one to their own Faith, nor diſturb the publick Exerciſe of Religion in others. For theſe have no Right to be ſuffered further than at the Diſcretion of the Magiſtrate; nor can more reaſonably plead for Liberty than the Wolf or Fox crave leave to have their Kennels or Holes in the midſt of a Sheepfold, or the Owl or Night-Raven to put in their Note amidſt a Quire of Nightingales.

7. But you'll ſay, all Religions and Sects are ſuch Foxes and Wolves, and therefore there is no Liberty of Religion at all to be given. Thoſe that are ſo, I confeſs, are at the Mercy of the Magiſtrate, as having juſtly loſt or forfeited their Right of Liberty. Which Forfeiture he may exact more or leſs ſeverely accordingly as he has more or leſs Security that theſe crafty and wild Creatures may do no Miſchief. But I do not believe that all Men that do profeſs Religion are of this partial Nature; nay on the contrary, I do verily believe That they that are the moſt truly Religious, are the moſt abhorrent from Perſecution for Conſcience ſake. Wherefore as many as are ready to profeſs, and that upon Oath, if it be required, That it is their Judgment (and their Practice does not contradict it) that no Man is to be incommodated in his Civil Rights, in his Liberty, Eſtate, or Life, for the Cauſe of ſuch a Religion as whoſe Principles teach not to incommodate others, and do avow that theirs is ſuch, and that they will be as faithful to the Prince or State in which they live as thoſe of his own Religion; theſe having in no wiſe forfeited their Right of Liberty, neither this way nor any other, by intermingling Practices or Principles againſt the Light of Nature and laudable Morality; it were the higheſt Piece of Injuſtice that can be committed to abridge them of the ſafe Profeſſion thereof.

CHAP. XII.

1. To what Perſons and with what Circumſtances the Chriſtian Magiſtrate is to give Liberty of Conſcience. And the great Advantage thereof to the Truth of Chriſtianity. 2. That thoſe that are not Chriſtians, are not to be admitted into Places of Truſt by the Chriſtian Magiſtrate, if he can ſupply himſelf with thoſe that are. 3. That the Chriſtian Magiſtrate is to lay aſide the fallible Opinions of Men, and promote every one in Church and State, according to his Merit in the Chriſtian Life, and his Ability of promoting the Intereſt of the Church of Chriſt and the Nation he ſerves. 4. That he is to continue or provide an honourable and competent Allowance for them that labour in the Word and Doctrine. 5. That the Vigilancy of the Chriſtian Magiſtrate is to keep under ſuch Sects as pretend to immediate Inſpiration unaccountable and unintelligible to ſober Reaſon, and why? 6. That the Endeavour of impoveriſhing the Clergy ſmells rank of Prophaneneſs, Atheiſm, and Infidelity. 7. That the Chriſtian Magiſtrate is either to erect or keep up Schools of Humane Learning, with the weighty Grounds thereof. 8. A further Enforcement of thoſe Grounds upon the fanatick Perfectioniſts. 9. The hideous Danger of caſting away the Hiſtory of the Goſpel upon Pretence of keeping to the Light within us.

1. TO come to a Concluſion therefore, and at length to touch the Point we have aimed at all this time, What a Chriſtian Prince or the Supreme Magiſtracy may contribute to the Advancement of the Goſpel of Chriſt: From theſe general Principles we may infer, Firſt, that he is to give Liberty of Conſcience to all ſuch as have not forfeited it, namely ſuch as I have laſt of all deſcribed, eſpeciall if they be Natives of the place, were it poſſible for them to be of any other Religion than the Chriſtian. But

But withal to require a publick and ſolemn Account of their Change of Religion; wherein it may appear whether it be Conſcience or ſome evil Deſign or Weakneſs and Inconſtancy of Mind that has made them thus to apoſtatize from Chriſtianity. Which either Fraud or Giddineſs ſhall make the Party obnoxious to ſuch Rebuke and Penalty as may probably deter the People from the like cauſeleſs Revolts. But if the Perſon be of a ſerious Life, and ſhall be found to have changed his Opinion upon ſuch grounds of Reaſon as, though falſe, yet may poſſibly miſlead a well-meaning Man; yet for Sureneſs he ſhall be put upon his Oath: Which Teſt, though it be abuſed to over-petty Matters, yet certainly muſt not loſe its due Uſe in Cauſes of ſo ſolemn Importance.

In which kind of Caſes if any refuſe upon a pretended Scrupuloſity of Swearing at all, and in an Affectation of ſeeming more preciſely holy than others, without queſtion it is not Religion but ſome fathomleſs Depth of Knavery that lies at the bottom; and they may juſtly be ſuſpected of ſome treaſonable and treacherous Deſign againſt the Religion and Government under which they live. Wherefore before they ſhould have Liberty to profeſs themſelves of another Religion, they ſhould be required to take a ſolemn Oath, with a deep Imprecation of Divine Vengeance upon Soul and Body, that nothing moves them thereto but mere Conviction of Conſcience, and that they have no ſecular Deſign at all in their Change, nor deſire any more Liberty than what they think themſelves bound in Conſcience to allow to others. Which publick Examination and Oath is very uſeful alſo and juſtifiable upon Mens relinquiſhing of the Publick Worſhip of God in the Churches, though they do not profeſſedly declare themſelves to be no Chriſtians. For not to join with them in Publick Worſhip, is the next Door to that Apoſtaſie.

This Practice would be of infinite Advantage for the Truth of Chriſtianity. For hereby the Prieſthood will be more cautious how they clog the Goſpel with unwarrantable Trumperies; and thoſe that would revolt, by this calling them to an Account firſt, ſhall be forced to feel the Strength and Solidity of that Religion they would bid adieu to, and their ſecret Deſigns prevented by the Solemnity of an Oath. And laſtly, the Chriſtian Magiſtrate by giving this Liberty after theſe due Circumſtances (which aſſuredly he will have very ſeldom Occaſion for by reaſon of the Evidence of our Religion) will avoid the juſtifying the Iniquity of other Religions, which not by Power of Reaſon and Conſcience, but by outward Force, hinder their Natives from turning Chriſtians.

2. But Secondly, Though theſe ſerious People ſhall not be deprived of their Liberty, Lives, or Eſtates, nor any way impaired in their private Fortunes; yet they ſhall be diſabled from bearing any Office of Truſt in the Commonwealth, eſpecially if there be of the Chriſtian Religion that will manage them with equal Skill and Fidelity. For it is plainly unnatural, if not impoſſible, that a Man that is ſerious in his Religion ſhould not prefer one of his own Faith before a Stranger, if in other things they be equal. Beſides that the Laws of Caution and Prudence cannot fail to ſuggeſt ſo reaſonable a Choice; which are very much to be liſtned to in things of this Nature. For preſent Poſſeſſion of Power is better Aſſurance than the Oath of well-meaning but withal of temptable and lapſable Mortals.

3. Thirdly, The Chriſtian Magiſtrate is to give no Aſſiſtance of his Power nor Countenance any further than Chriſtianity it ſelf is concerned: that is to ſay, He is to give that Aſſiſtance which is due from a Magiſtrate for the defending and promoting of our Religion, ſo far forth as it is truly Chriſtian and is plainly diſcoverable ſo to be by the written Word of God in the Literal and Hiſtorical Meaning thereof: For to cant only in Allegories, is to deny the Faith of Chriſt. And as for Opinions, though ſome may be better than otherſome, yet none ſhould exclude from the fulleſt Enjoyment of either private or publick Rights, ſuppoſe there be no Venome of the perſecutive Spirit mingled with them. But every one that profeſſes the Faith of Chriſt and believeth the Scripture in the Hiſtorical Senſe thereof, let his Opinions be otherwiſe what they will, he is according to his Life, Worth, and Ability every where to be preferred in either Church or State. Which is abſolutely the moſt advantagious way for the advancing of the Goſpel and making the World good that the Wit of Man can find out.

And External Force being ſo unfitting in it ſelf, and moſt of all unbecoming the Chriſtian Magiſtrate, in Matters of Religion, what one might fancy loſt in laying aſide Perſecution, would in as great a meaſure be regained by contenancing this free and naked Repreſentation of the Beauty and Perfection of the Goſpel quite rid of all

all pretended Traditions and whatever Obfuscations and Entanglements of humane Invention. For then the Truth of God would be like an unsheathed Sword, bright and glittering, sharp and cutting, and irresistibly convincing the rational Spirit of a Man. Whenas now our Religion is wrapt up in so many Wreaths of Hay and Straw, that no Man can see nor feel the Edge of it,

4. Fourthly, Being Compulsion is not to be used nor Prudence excluded, (For it is the same fanatick Madness to exile Prudence out of Affairs of Church and State as to exclude Reason out of the Mathematicks and Philosophy) it is very plain that the Christian Magistrate is engaged to add to Liberty of Conscience the Advantage of an honourable and comfortable Subsistence for those that labour in the Word and Doctrine; that is to say, he is obliged in all Reason and Conscience to continue it where it is, and to raise it where-ever it is wanting. And I am very confident it is either gross fanatical Ignorance, or the hidden Malice of Satan against the Kingdom of Christ, acting either in profane and Atheistical Persons, or such as are not cordially Christians, that suggests any thing to the contrary. For the less any Religion is underpropped by External Force, the more able ought their Heads and Tongues to be that are only by their Learning, Eloquence and Innocency of Life to support it: And the present Ages having so much Wit and so little Sense of Piety, he that will undertake to give a good Account of his Religion and to answer all Opposers, though the Scruples and Controversies be but concerning that which is plainly in the Scripture, he ought to have Leisure and Vacancy from the Affairs of the World to prepare himself, and continue his Dexterity in this Kind.

For that tedious Buz and Noise of the Spirit has now, I think, made it self so ridiculous and contemptible, that no prudent Man will listen to such lazy Impostures. Every one is to give a Reason of his Faith; but Priests or Ministers more punctually than any; their Province being to make good every Sentence of the Bible to a rational Enquirer into the Truth of those Oracles. Who therefore can sufficiently attend these things, and be to seek for Bread for himself and his Family? How unjust and sordid a Temper therefore are those Persons of, that could be content to leave the Clergy to work for their Living? Any inferiour Fellow may talk and prate Phrases and make Faces, but when a sober Man would be satisfied of the Grounds from whence they speak, he shall not have one Syllable or the least Tittle of an Answer, only they will talk big of the Spirit, and inveigh against Reason with bitter Reproaches, calling it carnal though it be indeed no soft Flesh but hard and penetrant Steel, and such as pierces them to the very Heart, for all their Contempt and slighting of it.

5. And verily while I consider the Unreasonableness and ill Consequence of this Kind of Enthusiasm, I cannot but think the Vigilancy of the Christian Magistrate should extend to this also amongst other things, namely, to suppress and keep under all Sects and Religions that hold of so fanatick a Tenour, that is to say, that profess they believe against the Christian Faith from the Illumination of such a Spirit as they can give no Account of, viz. such as does not illuminate their Reason, whereby their Doctrine may be accountable and intelligible to others, but only heat them and make them furious against the Christian Church. For besides the hazarding of making a whole Nation mad (for seriously it is an infectious Disease, if not the very Possession of the Devil) there may some damnable Plot lie under it against Christianity and the State. For it is a more easie thing to heat the Fancies of the Vulgar, than to inform their Judgments; though this tends to sober Edification, that to Confusion and Destruction. In brief, there are these two very bad things in this resolving of Matters into the immediate Suggestion of the Spirit not acting upon our Understandings. First, it defaces and makes useless that Part of the Image of God in us which we call Reason: and secondly, it takes away that special Advantage that Christianity has above all other Religions, that she dare appeal to so solid a Faculty. And therefore he that takes away the Use of Reason in Religion, treacherously undermines Christianity, and laies it as low as the basest Superstition that ever appeared in the World.

6. Now therefore to return, I say, To talk at the rate of these blind Illuminati, that do not so much as pretend to give any solid Satisfaction in what they say, requires no Study, nothing but Heat and Impudency, and a careless Inadvertency of what they are immediately to utter, or whether one thing will hold with another: But he that so speaks as ready to give a Reason of what he delivers, and indeed of all things that are already delivered in the Scriptures so plainly as that it appears what the meaning is, (for it is no Prejudice that there be ſome Depths beyond the preſent Reach of Men) this Man certainly ought not to be tied up to the Cares of the World by being put to labour for his Bread; but ought to have a liberal, certain, and honourable Allowance. But to contemn the Chriſtian Clergy, or to endeavour to make them contemptible by impoveriſhing them and forcing them to baſe Terms of living, ſmells exceeding rank of Prophaneneſs, Atheiſm, and Infidelity: and the raiſing at them and calling them Mercenary, becauſe they have a juſt Maintenance allowed them, is aſſuredly the Voice of that envious Accuſer of the Brethren, who by thoſe villainous Reproaches and Calumnies would undermine and pull down the Kingdom of Chriſt in the World, by ſtriking at the neceſſary Props and Supporters of it, the Miniſtry of the Goſpel; whoſe Subſiſtence ought to be independent of the People, that they may reprove the more freely, and that there may be no Temptation to either unworthy Connivances, or to the ſophiſticating the Doctrine of Chriſt by ſweet Poiſon, to inveigle the Rich, and to untie their Purſe-Strings; what they thus pay, being the Price of their own Souls, betrayed into the Hands of ſuch canting Mountebanks. Rev. 12. 10.

7. Fifthly, The Chriſtian Magiſtrate ought alſo to continue, and erect where there wants, Publick Schools of Learning. For the more knowing his Subjects are, the more certainly will they keep to Chriſtianity, and the more eaſily will others come off to the ſame Faith. Nothing comparable to this for the preventing all Deluſions and Impoſtures in Religion. Mahometiſm could never have been ſet on foot but in a rude and illiterate Nation. But Chriſtianity got its firſt Foot-hold in the moſt civilized Parts of the World, though much perſecuted and oppoſed. Beſides that it is a piece of unſpeakable Madneſs to think that any Man can be a fit Interpreter of Scripture without that, which ſome, in Contempt, call Humane Learning, as Logick or the known Principles of Reaſoning; I will add Mathematicks and Philoſophy, and Skill in Tongues and Hiſtory: No Man without the Knowledge of theſe can make good the Truth of thoſe Holy Oracles to knowing and underſtanding Men. And therefore they that decry theſe Helps, are either very ignorant, or out of their Wits, or have a treacherous Plot againſt the flouriſhing of Chriſtianity, and would bring in ſome Fanatick Religion, or elſe are Enemies to all Religion whatſoever.

2d. Cordova Granada. continued it could not be.

8. For tell me, O ye high-flown Perfectioniſts, and ye great Boaſters of the Light within you, Could the higheſt Perfection of your inward Light ever ſhew to you the Hiſtories of paſt Ages, the univerſal State of the World at preſent, the Knowledge of Arts and Tongues, without any external Helps of either Books or Teachers? How then can you underſtand the Providence of God, the Purpoſe of Prophecies and the Authority of that Religion which God has peculiarly appointed us to walk in, without external Aſſiſtances; How can you make a due Judgment of the Truth of Chriſtianity, without a rational Explication of the Prophecies that foretold the Coming of Chriſt, without weighing what may be ſaid concerning the Authenticknes and Uncorruptedneſs of his Hiſtory in the Goſpels, and without conſidering the Reaſonableneſs of all thoſe miraculous Matters there recorded concerning him, and of what is behind for him to perform at his viſible Return to judge the quick and the dead? No Light within you, unaſſiſted of Helps without, and of the knowledge of Hiſtory, Tongues, and Sciences, and careful Exerciſe of Reaſon, that excellent Gift of God to Mankind, can ever make you competent Judges of this Matter.

9. And as you do thus forfeit the Knowledge of the Truth by this ſullen Self-Sufficiency of yours within, ſo do you alſo endanger your eternal Salvation. For you cannot juſtly excuſe your ſelves by the cloſe following the Light within you, if you do it in ſuch a contemptuous Manner that you will liſten to nothing offered you from without, though never ſo accommodate and agreeable to thoſe rational Faculties God has given you. Wherefore it being no neceſſitated Ignorance, but your own wilful Perverſeneſs, that has made you Apoſtates from the Law of Chriſt, your Unbelief is no Abrogation of that Law to you; but, ſtop your Ears as hard againſt it as you can, yet you ſhall be judged by it at the laſt Day; when, you having not ſerved God as he would be ſerved, he will aſſuredly reward you as you would not be rewarded. For there is no other Name under Heaven whereby we muſt be ſaved but that of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth, whom the Jews crucified and God raiſed from the Dead. Wherefore you who make it the chiefeſt Point of your Religion to crucifie him again by celebrating that execrable Paſcha or Phaſe, which is your deteſtable killing of Chriſt according to the Fleſh, that is to ſay, according to the Letter or Hiſtory, which is to put Chriſt out of all his Offices aſſigned to him by his Father, and to Acts 4. 12.

turn mere Pagans and Infidels, think as ſmoothly and favourably of your ſelves as you will, that Doom muſt paſs upon you at laſt (not according to your Self-flattering Myſteries, but according to the Truth of the Letter) which ſhall adjudge all the Wicked to that everlaſting Fire which is prepared for the Devil and his Angels.

CHAP. XIII.

1. The Author's Application to the better-minded Quakers. 2. He deſires them of that Sect to ſearch the Grounds and compute the Gains of their Revolt from Chriſt. 3. That there are no peculiar Effects of the Spirit of God in the Sect of the Quakers, but rather of Pythoniſm. 4. That their Inſpirations are not divine but diabolical. 5. The Vanity of their boaſting of the Knowledge of their myſterious Allegories. 6. The Grounds of their inſufferable Bitterneſs againſt the Miniſters of Chriſt. 7. That he was urged by the Light within him to give Witneſs to the Truth of the Hiſtory of the Goſpel, and to admoniſh the Quakers. His Caution to the ſimple-minded among them how they turn into Familiſm. 8. His Eaſe and Satisfaction of Mind from disburdening himſelf of this Duty. 9. The Compaſſionableneſs of the Condition of the more ſincere ſort of Quakers. 10. And Hope of their Return to Chriſt.

1. KNowing therefore the Terrour of the Lord, we were earneſtly moved in Mind to forewarn you and exhort you, I mean, as many of you as are curable and reducible to the Truth. For ſome have celebrated that accurſed Paſcha ſo fully and obdurately, that they are become paſt feeling, having not any Senſe or Hope left of the Concerns of another Life, God having juſtly given them up to a reprobate Senſe for the denying of the Lord that bought them. But for you whoſe Defection is not compleated, nor your Eyes ſealed up to perfect Infidelity, let me deſire you to make a ſtand a-while, to lay your Hands upon your own Hearts, and impartially examine your ſelves, and ſearch diligently what you would have, where you would be, and what good thing you would ſeek, that is not plainly expoſed to your View in the Goſpel of Chriſt. You had begun well: Who has hindred you? What has tempted you out of the Way? Do you now ſincerely ſeek the Kingdom of Heaven, or gape after a Booty upon Earth? Examin your own Conſciences, and anſwer to your ſelves. I deſire not to broach your Shame. But I hope you will not account me injurious, if I take notice of ſuch things as your ſelves think fit to conceal from none.

2. Search therefore your own Hearts, and try your ſelves, what Manner of Spirit has taken hold upon you, ſince you have been ſo imbittered againſt the School of Chriſt. There is no Virtue you can pretend to that is not comprehended in his Life and Doctrine in the higheſt Perfection and Clearneſs. How can you then take a new Guide, unleſs it be to be led into ſome pleaſing Error? And truly it is no ſmall Pleaſure to the Proud to have ſomething ſeparate and peculiar of their own, whereby they may ſeem wiſer and holier than other Men. And I deſire you to appeal to your own Conſciences, how great a Stroke this Vice has had in furthering on your Apoſtacy; and beſeech you to compute, if you be ſtill ſerious in Religion, what you have gained by your Revolt. Is your Reaſon any thing more improved? Nay certainly, that ye have cut off and caſt from you as carnal and unholy. Are you more humble and more charitable? If you be, you do ill ſo carefully to conceal your Virtues, who would have the World believe ſo highly of you. You affect indeed to be very homely and ſordid in your Habits; but you do not perceive how ſour your affected Sordidneſs ſmels of the Leaven of the Phariſees, who loved to be ſeen and praiſed of Men; and how you have but licked up what Diogenes that Pagan Sophiſt left in his Tub, and have choſen rather to be proud Cynicks than civil Chriſtians.

And if your Humility have ſo ſtrong a Sent of Pride, how noiſomely does your Pride it ſelf ſtink in the Noſtrils of all Men, your Diſreſpect to your Betters, your Sawcineſs, your Cenſoriouſneſs, quite contrary to the Precepts and Practice of all holy Men in all Ages? Your Humility therefore being ſo little, your Charity certainly cannot be great. For indeed you count all beſides your ſelves a rude unſanctified Maſs, the noxious and ſpreading Weeds of the World, fit for nothing but the Fire of your Fanatick Wrath to burn up.

I but

I but you will ſay, though you have forgone your Reaſon and good Manners, yet you have the Spirit of God amongſt you, which is worth all. If you have, ſhew me the Fruit thereof. For Phariſaical Sourneſs, Conteſt with the Magiſtrate, Affronting the Miniſter in his publick Function, theſe are no Fruits of the Spirit of God; but theſe alone with certain clowniſh Forms of calling Thou for You, and keeping on the Hat when others in civil Reſpect put it off, are the main Effects of that Spirit that diſtinguiſheth you from all other Men.

3. Is this therefore the great Purchaſe you have obtained by turning your Back on Chriſt and contemning of his Perſon, to grow rude and clowniſh to all the World beſide? But methinks I hear you anſwer again, As for this Man, we know not what is become of him; but behold the Spirit is ſenſibly preſent amongſt us even at this Day. But I demand by what Signs? O! we ſhiver and quake every Joint of us. But that is no certain Sign of the Spirit of God. Was not the Wind ſuddenly turned into the North, or had you not an Ephemera, or was not your over-excited Choler entangled or turned out of the Way by Phlegm or Melancholy? What miraculous Power is there in all this? O! but there are alſo amongſt us that have fallen down into a Trance, that have foamed and ſwelled till their Buttons break off. Wherefore of a Truth theſe Men could not but be full of the Spirit, and this be a Miracle indeed. If your Religion oweth not its Growth to the Tricks of Jugglers and Tumblers, or to artificial Epilepſies, I do confeſs it is a wonderful thing if not a Miracle from theſe Symptomes, if Satan himſelf drives not on the Deſign. For theſe are plainly the Paſſions of Pythonicks, ſuch a kind of Poſſeſſion as ſeized the Pagan-Prophets and Prieſts of old, who were no better than the Worſhippers of Devils, whoſe Oracles Chriſt has ſilenced long ſince. Wherefore examine your ſelves if you glory not in your Shame: See how you tread: look behind you, or rather ſearch within you, and conſider who is the Prompter or firſt Mover in this new Scene of things.

4. For tell me (I beſeech you) what did your foaming Prophets, when they vented themſelves, diſcharge into your Ears, whereby they may be deemed more holy and Divine than thoſe fanatick Pagans? Was not their continual Song, ſo ſoon as they got upon their Feet, the burning up of all Ordinances? From whence therefore could this Voice come but out of the Flames of Hell? Or what could ſwell the Bodies of your inſpired, but the Venome and Poiſon of the Devil, which at laſt working up to their Mouths he ſpit out enviouſly againſt the external Worſhip of Chriſt's Perſon and all his Offices? Which is another Evidence againſt you that your pretended Inſpirations are not Divine but plainly diabolical, and that the Myſtery of Satan worketh amongſt you, who would fain pull down Him whom of a Truth God hath ſet up to be a King and Prieſt to the Nations for ever,

5. But the ſweeteſt Satisfaction of all is, that you are ſo extraordinarily illuminated, that you underſtand all the Myſteries of Chriſt's Kingdom beyond Meaſure better than any one elſe, and can in a ſupercilious Pity bemoan the Ignorance of the World, or with an imperious Bitterneſs fly in their Faces and reproach them for it, eſpecially the Teachers of the People, that they have not taken up your Allegorical Knacks, nor know how to give a myſtical Meaning of the Goſpel from the preaching of John the Baptiſt to the coming of Chriſt to Judgment.

But in the mean time, you are indeed ſo devoid of all true Illumination, as not to underſtand that ſuch Devices as theſe how wiſe ſoever you may ſeem to your ſelves, are merely Alluſions of humane Wit, and help very little to the enforcing of that they are made to ſignifie, namely, Repentance and Mortification of every evil Luſt and Concupiſcence, and a Renovation of our Minds into the perfect Image of Chriſt, that his Spirit may rule in us, and that the Works of Death and Darkneſs may be utterly deſtroyed. For this Truth is plainly and literally contained in the Scripture; ſo that if your Minds were not more ſet upon Fancies than wholeſom and ſavoury Inſtruction, you needed not with ſuch Speed to run a gadding after any new Guide for the attainment of this Light. And, God be thanked, many honeſt plain-hearted Chriſtians, that do not ſwagger and make ſuch a Noiſe with Myſtical Phraſes as you, both hear and live according to theſe Goſpel Precepts, uſing a Secret and ſilent Severity upon themſelves, not acting the rough and hairy Baptiſt upon others as you do, who love to oſtentate your ſelf-choſen Auſteries to the Eyes of the World, like the Phariſees, who made ſour Faces for Fear the People ſhould not take Notice that they afflicted their Bodies with Faſting.

What Purchaſe therefore have you got by your Allegorical Myſteries? unleſs that you have been emboldned thereby to let go the Hiſtorical Truth of the Goſpel, and have found your selves much at Ease, that your Belief is not charged with such miraculous things as are written of Christ, partly done already and partly to be done at the End of the World. For hereby you do proclaim your selves Infidels, and that for all your Boasting, your Spirits are so foul and impure, that they are no fit Receptacles of the holy Christian Faith, but that you have levelled your selves as low as Epicures and Atheists, who are no more capable of the Belief of these things than the Beasts of the Field.

6. If it be thus with you, I dare appeal unto your own Consciences whether you keep so precisely to the Light within you, but that you have consulted with that blind Guide H. Nicolas, and tasted of the treacherous Sops of his abhorred Passover, whose fanatick Boldness has led the Dance to this mad Apostasy. Have you not celebrated his detestable Phase, who has gone about to perswade the World that the greatest and truest Arcanum of the Lords Supper is Judas-like to betray their Master, to kill Christ according to the Flesh, that is, to lay aside and misbelieve the Truth of his History? Ask your own Hearts, if the Warmth of this Sop has not so encouraged you, nay inflamed you with insufferable Bitterness against the Ministers of Christ as teaching nothing but Lies, because they have not ceased to believe the Truth. Has not this with him that entred in with it so intoxicated you with Rage, that you have trampled the holy Bible under your Feet? Is it not this that hath made you so often roar against and revile the Preacher in the Pulpit, and disturb the publick Assemblies by your rude and frantick Interpellations? Which Extravagancies demonstrate by what Spirit you are led, and that you are plainly Rebels against Christ, and are revolted to the Powers of the dark Kingdom.

7. These things I could not forbear to write, as being very much pressed in Spirit thereunto. For the Light within me, that is, my Reason and Conscience, does assure me that the Ancient and Apostolick Faith according to the Historical Meaning thereof is very solid and true; and that the Offices of Christ are never to be antiquated till his visible Return to Judgment according to the literal Sense of the Creed; and that Familism is a mere Flam of the Devil, a smooth Tale to seduce the Simple from their Allegeance to Christ.

And therefore I beseech every Man in these Days of Liberty to take Heed how they turn in thither, especially those that are of an Enthusiastick Temper, such as are most of the honester and beter-meaning Quakers. For if in their bewildred Wandrings they take up their Inn here, let them look to it that they be not robbed of all the Articles of the Christian Faith, and be stripped into naked Infidelity and Paganism, and (which is worst of all) be so intoxicated with the Cup of this Inchantress, as to think this Injury their Gain, and to prefer false Liberty before their Christian Simplicity, and those gaudy and phantastick Titles of being Deified and begodded before the real Possession of Christian Truth and Godliness.

8. These things both here and elsewhere I have been forced to utter to the World; for it was as Fire within me, and this discharging of my Conscience as it is mine own Ease and Satisfaction, so I do not despair but if there be that sincere Zeal to Truth and Holiness that is pretended, that it will redound to the Safety of these melancholy Wanderers that look up and down for Truth with that Candle of the Lord, the Spirit that he has lighted in them. But however, where what I have said shall not take Effect, I shall nevertheless be excused, and their Blood will be upon themselves and their accursed Seducers.

9. I know the haughty and covetous, that relish nothing but the tearing to themselves undeserved Respect from men, and clawing of Money to them any Way with their crooked Talons, will hardly abstain even from open Derision of my Zeal and Solicitude for so contemned a People, and look upon me as a man of very mean and abject Designs, that would any Way intermeddle with these poor despised Pilgrims. But these worldly Sophists consider not that the gaining of the meanest Soul to Eternal Salvation is really a greater Prize than purchasing whole Kingdoms upon Earth, and infinitely above all the Pains of any Man's Applications thereto,

And besides, for mine own Part, I have ever had so right a Sense and touch upon my Spirit of their Condition, that I think none more worthy of a Man's best Directions than they; the most imperious Sects having put such unhandsom Vizards upon Christianity, that they have frighted and driven away these Babes that seem to me very desirous of the sincere Milk of the Word. Which having been every where so sophisticated by the Humours and Inventions of Men, it has driven these anxious Melancholists to seek for a Teacher within, and to cast themselves upon him who they know will not deceive them, the Voice of the Eternal Word within them;

to

But what a lesson of experience does not this Chap. 13 of so great and grand a Man as H. More afford to us, who know what the Quakers really are? Had H. Followers of G. Fox, or any number of them collectively, acknowleged the mad actions of this H. Nicolas? Yet to which if they be faithful, they aſſure themſelves he will be faithful to them again. Which is no groundleſs Preſumption of theirs, it ſuppoſing nothing but what is very cloſely conſiſtent with the Nature of God and his Providence. And truly as many of them as do perſiſt in that ſerious and impartial Deſire of ſuch Knowledge as tends to Life and Godlineſs, I do not queſtion but that God will in his due time lead them into the Truth, and that they will be more confirmed Chriſtians than ever.

10. Which Succeſs of theirs will be more ſpeedy and ſure, if (as they ſet themſelves againſt other Vices, ſo) they mainly bend their Force againſt Spiritual Pride and Affectation of Peculiarity in Religion, and of finding themſelves wiſer in the Myſteries thereof than the beſt of Chriſtians have pretended to. And above all things if they beware of Enthuſiaſm either in themſelves or others, or of thinking that the Gift of the Spirit can be any Revelation that is contrary to Reaſon or the acknowledged Hiſtory of Chriſt, the Truth thereof being ſo rationally evincible to all ſuch as apply themſelves without Prejudice to examine it to the Bottom. If in Purſuance of their ſincere Intentions they keep off from theſe Rocks, I doubt not but they will at length return ſafe again to Jeſus Chriſt the great Paſtor and Biſhop of their Souls.

CHAP. XIV.

1. That Publick Worſhip is eſſential to Religion, and inſeparable when free from Perſecution. The right Meaſure of the Circumſtances thereof. 2. Of the Fabrick and Beauty of Churches according to that Meaſure. 3. The main things he intends to touch upon concerning Publick Worſhip. 4. That the Churches of Chriſtians are not Temples, the Excellency of our Religion being incompliable with that Notion. 5. The Vanity of the Sectarians Exceptions againſt the Word Church applied to the appointed Places of publick Worſhip. 6. That though the Church be no Temple, yet it is in ſome Senſe holy, and what Reſpect there is to be had of it, and what Reverence to be uſed there. 7. Of Catechizing, Expounding, and Preaching. 8. Of Prayer, and what is the true praying by the Spirit. 9. The Excellency of publick Liturgies. 10. What is the right End of the Miniſtry. 11. Certain ſpecial Uſes of Sermons, and of the Excellency of our Saviour Chriſt's Sermon on the Mount. 12. The beſt Way for one to magnifie his Miniſtry. 13. Of the holy Communion, who are to be excluded; of the Poſture of receiving it, and of the Advantages thereof. 14. Of the time of Baptiſm, and the Sign of the Croſs. 15. Of Songs and Hymns to be compoſed by the Church, and of Holy-days. 16. Of the celebrating the Paſſion-day and the holy Communion. 17. Of Images and Pictures in Places of publick Worſhip. 18. A ſummary Advertiſement concerning Ceremonies and Opinions.

1. AFter this charitable Digreſſion to meet with the Quakers, let us reſume our Buſineſs in Hand, and make an End. * The ſixth and laſt thing that concerns the Care of the Chriſtian Magiſtrate is Publick Worſhip. Which ſeems to me ſo natural and eſſential to Religion, that it cannot fail to appear, unleſs ſome Force hinder it; in which Caſe they will venter to meet in private Conventicles; that is, they will exerciſe their Acts of Religion as publickly as they dare, and will not be content to be confined to their Cloſets at home. Joint-Exerciſe therefore of Religion is confeſſed on all Sides, which therefore muſt neceſſarily be external and viſible. Now no viſible Actions can be done without viſible Circumſtances, and amongſt theſe Circumſtances ſome are more fit and decorous, ſome leſs; as is manifeſt at the firſt Sight. Nor will it be hard to Judge of the fitneſs or decorum of theſe Circumſtances, if we can find out a Meaſure of them; which certainly is the End and Meaning of them: Which is, the Expreſſion of our Honour and Reverence to God and to his Son Jeſus Chriſt, and the Edification of our Neighbour.

* See Chap. 12. ſect. 7.

2. By which Rule we ſhall diſcover concerning the Meeting-Houſe, as ſome had rather call it than the Church, that it ought to be of a comely Structure, proportionably magnificent to the Number of the People that are to have Recourſe to it in the common Exerciſe of their Devotions. For though Men of equal Condition may make bold with themſelves and meet in what Place they pleaſe, yet it would be thought a Piece of groſs unmannerlineſs to expect a Prince to give an an inferiour Peaſant the meeting in a Barn or Cow-ſtable. Would it not look then like a Piece of irreligious Rudeneſs, which is truly a kind of Prophaneneſs, to expect that Almighty God and his Son Jeſus Chriſt ſhould give us the Meeting in ſqualid and ſordid Places, even then when we pretend moſt to ſhew our Reverence and Devotion to Him? For though we may make bold one with another to meet where we pleaſe; yet we making our Approaches to God in thoſe places, and he thereby making his ſpecial Approaches to us (for in a Philoſophical Senſe he is every where alike) queſtionleſs it cannot but be an Expreſſion of our Reverence unto Him to have the Structure of the Place proportionably capacious, well and fairly built, and handſomly adorned, and as properly and ſignificantly of our Religion and devotional Homages we owe to our crucified Saviour, as can be without Suſpicion of Idolatry or any ſcandalous Superſtition. For it is true from the very Light of Nature, which the Knowledge of Chriſt does not extinguiſh, but direct and perfect, That Houſes of publick Worſhip ought to have ſome Statelineſs and Splendour in them expreſſive of the Reverence we bear to the Godhead we do adore. And therefore the Chriſtian Magiſtrate, for the Honour of his Saviour who ſuffered ſo much Shame for him, as alſo for making Chriſtian Religion more recommendable to them that are without, (for Religion will not ſeem Religion to any without publick Worſhip, nor a deſirable Religion unleſs this publick Worſhip be performed with inoffenſive Splendour and Decency) ought to aſſiſt and abett ſuch good Practices as theſe.

3. It is beyond the Limits of my preſent Diſcourſe to make any curious Inquiſition or Determination concerning the Particularities of this publick Worſhip; though I cannot abſtain from giving ſome general Hints concerning the due Managements of the chief Matters thereof, ſuch as are moſt obvious to think of and moſt uſeful to conſider. And ſuch are the Enquiries into the Nature of the Place of this publick Worſhip, and the Holineſs thereof, and our Demeanour therein, and eſpecially of thoſe chief Performances of Preaching, Praying, Receiving the Sacrament, of Baptiſm alſo and of Holy-days: To which we may add thoſe acceſſory Helps of Devotion, as ſome account them, Muſick and Pictures. Concerning which I ſhall rather ſimply declare my Senſe of things, than ſolicitouſly endeavour to demonſtrate my Concluſions by over-operoſe Reaſonings; which will but raiſe a Duſt and provoke the Polemical Rabble.

4. Concerning therefore this Houſe of publick Worſhip the Chriſtians meet in, I conceive there is no need to fanſy it a Temple; nay rather it ſeems fit to look upon it as no Temple, the Uſe of that Ceremony being antiquated by the Excellency and Supereminency of our Religion. For the Famed Jehovah is not now a Topical Deity, nor Chriſt confined to this or that City or People, but is the declared Worſhip of the whole Earth, and is not contained within the narrow Walls of any Temple, but has his perſonal Reſidence in Heaven, whither our Devotions are to be directed, and our Minds ſuſpended and lifted up thitherward, not debaſed nor defixed to the Corners of any earthly Edifice, into which when a Man looks he finds nothing worthy of Adoration. To which Truth both Stephen and Paul give their Suffrage, the one declaring to the Jews, the other to the Areopagites, That the moſt High, who is Lord of Heaven and Earth, dwelleth not in Temples made with Hands. And our Saviour himſelf to the Samaritan Woman who was ſolicitous which of thoſe Temples, that of Samaria or that of Jeruſalem, was the right Place of Worſhip, He tells her plainly that ſuch Topical or Figurative Worſhipping of God was ſhortly to ceaſe; That the Hour was coming, and then was, when the true Worſhippers ſhall worſhip the Father in Spirit and in Truth. For the Father ſeeketh ſuch to worſhip Him. God is a Spirit, and they that worſhip Him muſt worſhip Him in Spirit and in Truth, that is, by the inward Sanctity and Purity of their Souls, and with the true Service of Prayers and Praiſes and Alms-deeds, of which Incenſe and Sacrifices were but the Figures and Shadows. Let my Prayer be ſet forth before thee as Incenſe, and the lifting up of my Hands as the evening Sacrifice. To do good and to communicate, forget not; for with ſuch Sacrifices God is well pleaſed. And laſtly St. John in his Apocalyps deſcribing the Condition of the New-Jeruſalem, which is the Church of Chriſt in her beſt State, I ſaw, ſaith he, no Temple there, for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the Temple of it: That is, their Worſhip is directed immediately towards God and Chriſt, not to any Place, as the Jews ever worſhipped toward the Temple of Jeruſalem.

Act. 7. 48. Act. 17. 24. Joh. 4. 23. 24. Pſal. 141. 2. Heb. 13. 16. Rev. 21. 22.

5. But though the Nature and Name of a Temple does not belong to this Houſe of Publick Worſhip according to the Senſe of Scripture (which made alſo the Primitive Chriſtians carefully abſtain from that Nomination) yet I do not ſee any Ground at all why ſome of our phanciful Sects ſhould take Offence at the Name of Church applyed thereto. For the Church being an Houſe wherein we meet to ſerve the Lord, whether God the Father or Chriſt his Son, both which are called κύριος, this Houſe is naturally therefrom denominated κυριακὸν in Greek, whence is our Engliſh Word Church, as every trivial Grammarian can tell them.

6. But now it being thus plain, that it is an Houſe for Divine Worſhip, and therefore has a ſpecial Relation to God, though it be not dedicated in ſuch a ſolemn Manner as Solomon's Temple was of old, yet it does neceſſarily contract a Kind of Holineſs hereby, and by this Holineſs ſome Meaſure of Reſpect, namely, that it ſhould be kept in handſome Repair, and be carefully defended from all Foulneſs and Naſtineſs both within and without. And becauſe Cuſtom has appropriated it to the Service of God, unleſs very great Neceſſity urge, it is not to be made uſe of to any other inferiour Purpoſes. Thoſe that are otherwiſe affected in this Matter, may juſtly ſeem guilty of a Kind of Incivility againſt God, as I may ſo call it, and hazard the being accounted Clowns in the Sight of the Court of Heaven and all the holy Angels: As that alſo might be reputed a Piece of Unskilfulneſs and obſolete Courtſhip, to complement any one Part of this Houſe, as if there were the ναὸς there, and the Ark of the Covenant. For this would be to turn the Church of Chriſt into a Temple. Wherefore thoſe that at their Entrance into the Congregation either kneel down, or ſtanding do their private Devotion, and continue bare-headed before Divine Service begin, they mean not this Devotion to the Edifice, but teſtifie only with what Fear and Reverence they make their Approaches to God; and their Hearts being in Preparation to a nearer Approach, ſhew their Senſe of his coming nearer to them by this reverential Obſervance. For Veneration is done at the coming of great Perſons at great Diſtances off; nor doth ceaſe till a due Diſtance after the Congreſs.

7. Concerning Preaching, that which is moſt remarkable is this, That whereas there are three chief kinds thereof, namely, Catechizing, Expounding a Chapter, and Preaching uſually ſo called, whereof the firſt is the beſt, and the laſt the leaſt conſiderable of them all; this worſt and laſt is the very Idol of ſome Men, and the other rejected as things of little worth. But aſſuredly they are of moſt Virtue for the effectual implanting the Goſpel of Chriſt in the Minds of Men, and of the two, as I ſaid, Catechizing is the better; becauſe it enforces the catechized to take Notice of what is taught him, and what is thus taught him is not ſo voluminous but that he can carry it away and remember it for ever: and withal the moſt Uſeful, as being the very Fundamentals comprized in the Chriſtian Creed, or the firſt and moſt natural Reſults from them tending to indiſpenſable Duties of Life; and therefore will alone, if ſincerely believed and faithfully practiſed, carry a Man to Heaven.

But the next profitable Way of Preaching is Expounding of a Chapter, provided that he that does ſo, makes it his only Buſineſs (without any vain Excurſions to ſhew his Reading) to render thoſe Places of the Chapter that are obſcure, eaſie and intelligible to the Capacity of the Auditors, with ſome brief, but earneſt, urging of their Duties from ſuch Paſſages as moſt neceſſarily tend thereto. This will make the private Reading of Scripture pleaſant to his Charge: And it will prove the more effectual for their Good, if he contain himſelf within the new Teſtament, and fetch only ſo much out of the Old as will be ſubſervient for the full Underſtanding of the New. There is nothing ſo likely to convince the Conſcience as this, when Men are able to read and underſtand the Text of Scripture it ſelf, and are ſenſibly beat upon by the Power of that Spirit that is found in thoſe Writings, and thereby mov'd in a wonderful manner far beyond all the fine Speeches and moſt elaborate Phraſes of humane Eloquence. Which yet is the greateſt Matter in this Third Way of Preaching, and the trueſt Uſe that can be made of it, namely, not to fill the Peoples Head with unprofitable or hurtful Opinions, but by the Artifice of a more florid and flowing Style, to raiſe the Affections of the Auditors to the Love and Purſuit of ſuch things as are commanded us by the Precepts of the Goſpel.

I confeſs therefore, This Exerciſe may be of laudable Uſe in ſuch a Congregation where all the People are througly grounded in the Fundamentals of Chriſtianity, and are well skilled in the Knowledge of the Bible: otherwiſe if the other two neceſſary Ways of Preaching be ſilenced by this more overly and plauſible Way, it is to the unſpeakable Detriment of the Flock of Chriſt. Which will happen even then when it is performed after the very beſt manner. How great then is the Evil, vil, think you, When the Exerciſe of their popular Eloquence is nothing but a Stage of Oſtentation and Vain-glory to the Speaker, and begets nothing but an unſound Blotedneſs and Ventoſity of Spirit in his Hearers and Admirers, they being intoxicated with luſhious and poiſonous Opinions, which tend to nothing but the extinguiſhing of the Love and Endeavour after true Righteouſneſs and Holineſs, and the begetting in them a falſe Security of Mind and abhorred Libertiniſm? Had it not been far better that they had reſted in the Fundamentals of their Faith compriſed in the Apoſtles Creed, with an Obligation on their Conſcience to live according to the Laws of Chriſt and his holy Precepts, than to be led about and infatuated by the Heat and Noiſe of ſuch falſe Guides?

8. Concerning Prayer, it is an Epidemical Miſtake, That Men think extemporary Prayers are by the Spirit, and that the Spirit is not in a ſet Form: Whenas in Truth the Spirit may be abſent in the higheſt extemporary Heats, and preſent in the Uſe of ſet Forms, where there may appear greater Calmneſs and Coolneſs. For the Spirit of Prayer does not conſiſt in the Invention of Words and Phraſes (which is rather a Gift of Nature, as the Faculty of extemporary ſpeaking in other Caſes is, proceeding from Heat and Fancy and Copiouſneſs of the * Animal Spirits) but in a firm Belief in God through Chriſt, and in an hearty liking and ſincere Deſire of having thoſe holy things communicated to us that we pray for. And therefore he that reads, or hears a publick Liturgy read, in ſuch a Frame of Mind as I have deſcribed, does as truly pray by the Spirit as he that invents Words and Phraſes of his own. For there is nothing Divine but this holy Faith and Deſire, the reſt is mere Nature. And it is a Demonſtration how ignorant theſe Men are that talk ſo loud of the Spirit, whenas they cannot ſo much as diſcern what is truly Spiritual from what is but Animal and Natural. To which you may add, that if none pray by the Spirit but thoſe that invent their own Words, the whole Congregation verily will be but pitiful Petitioners and altogether deſtitute of the Spirit of God, they all hanging upon the Lips of the Miniſter, who alone will be acknowledged to pray by the Spirit: Whoſe pretended Aſſiſtance is not yet always ſo powerful as to protect him from the incurring of the Danger of Non-Senſe and Lifeleſneſs, and of making the publick Worſhip of God inſipid or elſe diſtaſteful and loathſome, or, which is even as ill, contemptible and ridiculous.

* See Book 2. Chap. 11. Sect. 5.

9. Wherefore it is far more ſafe, as it is undoubtedly more ſolemn, to uſe a publick Liturgy that bears the Authority of the whole Church, than to venture ſo holy and devotional a Performance upon the uncertainty of any Man's private Spirit, who will be but tempted to oſtentate his own conceited Eloquence, or forced to diſcover his own Weakneſs and Folly. Whenas a ſet Form will prevent all Pride and Knackiſhneſs, and preſerve the publick Worſhip in its due Reverence and Honour, eſpecially where it is contrived with that Cautiouſneſs, that Nothing is expreſſed therein that engages the Mind in controverted Opinions, but ſpeaks through all the Parts thereof according to the known Tenour of Scripture undepraved by humane Gloſſes.

10. But you will ſay, if a Miniſter be cut ſo ſhort in theſe Performances of extemporary Prayer and expatiating Preachments, how ſhall he be able to give any eximious Teſtimony of his Abilities in his Calling? How ſhall he have the Opportunity of ſhewing his Gifts? To which I anſwer, That the End of the Miniſtry is not the Oſtentation of any Man's particular Gifts, but the Edification of the People; which are better edified by diligent catechizing and faithful and judicious expounding of the Scripture, than by looſe and ranging Diſcourſes out of the Pulpit, where he that ſpeaks having taken Leave of his ſhort Text, may, as is uſual with ſuch, fill the Ears of his Auditors with nothing but the Noiſe of his own Conceits and Inventions: whenas in the Expoſition of a whole Chapter (ſuppoſe) at a time, the Peoples Minds will be kept cloſer to thoſe infallible Oracles, and will more eaſily diſcern the Aberrations and Prevarications of their Teacher. But for the greater Aſſurance againſt any foul play of this Kind, his Miſinterpretations of theſe Holy Writings to Looſneſs and Libertiniſm ſhould be the Forfeiture of the Exerciſe of his Function.

11. Beſides, I do not ſpeak ſo much to exclude Preaching, as to bring Catechizing and Expounding into more Requeſt, which are abundantly more uſeful and edifying. Nay, I think that ſome well-tuned Strains of unaffected Eloquence at the chief Feſtivals of the Year, and in occaſional Exhortations to the People upon Obſervation of what is moſt amiſs amongſt them, done with a great deal of Seriouſneſs and Gravity,

vity, as alſo at publick Faſts and Thankſgivings, were a thing of excellent Uſe, and of the more Efficacy, it being the more ſeldom. But for other Days, If our Saviour Chriſt's Sermon on the Mount were read with much Reverence and Emphatick Diſtinctneſs; it being the Adviſe of ſo ſacred and infallible a Perſon, in whoſe Mouth there was neither Error nor Guile, who was the Son of God clothed with the Formalities of our Fleſh, on Purpoſe to take the Chair awhile amongſt us, and to read us ſound and warrantable Lectures of Divinity; in whoſe behalf God the Father condeſcended to do the Office of a Præco, and commanded Silence out of the Clouds, ſaying, This is my beloved Son, hear him; who was ſo faithful and compaſſionate a Paſtor to his Flock, that he laid down his Life for his Sheep, and ſo beloved of his Father, that he was miraculouſly raiſed from the Dead, and taken up into Heaven; and laſtly, who ſhall viſibly deſcend thence, and judge every Man according to his Works; If this Sermon, I ſay, of wholſome Advice and holy Precepts, were read diſtinctly and reverently to the People, how can it but be more edifying and work more upon their Spirits for their Good, than the ſophiſticated and affected Rhetorick of a fallible Mortal? Beſides the keeping out the Danger of being either choaked with the crooked and ſpinoſe Controverſies of Polemical Divinity, or of being poiſoned or intoxicated with the unwholſome Sugar-ſops of Antinomianiſm and Libertiniſm.

12. And laſtly, to anſwer ſtill more home to the Point, If thou haſt a Deſire to magnifie thy Miniſtry in an eximious Manner, inſtead of Oſtentating thy Gifts, exerciſe and improve thy Graces to the higheſt thou canſt. Endeavour to the utmoſt to be an unblemiſhed Example to thy Flock of Humility, of Brotherly Kindneſs, of Obedience to the Magiſtrate, of Temperance, of exact Juſtneſs in thy Dealing, of Compaſſion to the Poor and Needy. Uſe thy beſt Diligence and Prudence to keep Peace and Love amongſt thy Charge, as it becomes Chriſtians, and to invite the more able to a charitable Relief and Help of thoſe that are in Want and Neceſſity, that no unſupportable Diſtreſs may make the Lives of our Fellow-members miſerable and comfortleſs: as alſo privately to reprove thoſe that are guilty of any ſcandalous Miſcarriages, but with the wiſeſt and diſcreeteſt Applications that may be; that thy Reprehenſions, as they ought, ſo they may appear to proceed from nothing but from Love, and from Care and Conſcience of thy Duty. In which if thou wouldeſt not loſe thine Authority and Confidence, thou muſt live exactly in the indiſpenſable Laws of Chriſt thy ſelf, nor make theſe ſolemn Reproofs but for the Breach of ſuch. But if thou be really vicious thy ſelf in theſe, or, to make thy ſelf ſeem more holy, rebuke for the Neglect of ſome petty Mock-virtues of thine own chuſing, thou ſhalt not fail to be either odious or ridiculous.

But here the great Hypocriſie is this, That to compenſate their Neglect in theſe indiſpenſable and highly-concerning Duties of the Miniſtry, they abound in empty Lip-Labour, and endeavour to conciliate Authority to themſelves by their pretended Spiritual Gifts of extemporary Praying and Preaching, inſtead of that unblemiſhed Sanctity of Life, of uſeful Prudence in behalf of their Charge, and of Chriſtian Goodneſs and Charity. And that they may keep up their Credit more certainly with the People, they cunningly and skilfully lay their Foundation, namely, by giving them to underſtand that there is no Hope of living as we ſhould do, nor any need thereof; and ſo making their whole Flock as rotten as themſelves both in Principles and Practice, there being none left to reprove the falſe Prophet by either Example of Life or Contrariety of Doctrine, he thus ſecures to himſelf his Authority entire by his admired Clack of the Tongue, which ſome call The Knack of Preaching and Praying. Which yet, where better intended, is of as little Efficacy as a Tar-bottle hung out on a Thorn-buſh, if compared with perſonal Application and private Information and Reproof. For that is like the Adfriction of the paſtoral Medicine to a diſeaſed Sheep, without which the Formality of the Bottle on the Buſh will do no Cure, let the Flock be gathered about it never ſo ſolemnly.

13. Touching the Communion, None are to be excluded thereſrom that profeſs their Belief of the Holy Scriptures and of the Apoſtles Creed in the plain literal and Hiſtorical Senſe thereof; unleſs they ſtand guilty of ſome groſs and ſcandalous Sins (which are to be nominated in ſome known Law concerning this Matter, and not to be left to the uncertainty of any private Miniſter's Judgment) and do perſiſt therein impenitent and unreclaimed. For it were the greateſt Treachery to the Party that could be, by admitting him to this Holy Communion, to make him more ſecure in ſuch Sins as will be ſure, while they are unrepented of, to exclude him from that Heavenly Communion of Saints for ever. Beſides the Scandal and Offence to the reſt of the ſerious and ſincere-hearted Communicants, to whom the Sight will appear as ugly as if one having fallen over head and Ears into the Dirt, ſhould in that black miry Hue, droppingly dirty, place himſelf at Table amongſt Perſons of Quality, whom the Maſter of the Feaſt had invited upon ſome ſpecial Entertainment.

And as for the Poſture of the Communicant, as there are none that are ſo curious as to reduce it to that in which Chriſt and his Diſciples celebrated his laſt Supper, ſo none ought to be ſo captious as to take Offence if one receive the Communion Kneeling, in Devotion to God and humble Thankfulneſs for that great Benefit that is ſignified thereby, namely, the Death of Chriſt with the Reſults thereof, and the Participation of his Body and Blood in that Senſe I have ſpoken of * elſewhere; nor if another take it ſitting, as it is a Celebration of a Supper, or that he may clear himſelf of the Suſpicion of Idolizing the outward Elements of Bread and Wine. For it is as well unjuſt as uncharitable to be at all ſcandalized at Actions that have ſuch innocent and allowable Grounds, and the moſt unſufferable at the celebrating of ſuch a Myſtery as is wholly made up of Love and Affection to Chriſt and to one another. I confeſs an Uniformity would look better in outward Shew, but is not worth the leaſt Stir or Violence in Diverſities of Actions or rather Circumſtances interpretable to ſo good a Meaning. And the real Exerciſe of our Charity in leaving every one free, is every Whit as ſuitable to this ſolemn Performance as the moſt exquiſite Uniformity, if devoid of the Spirit of Meekneſs and mutual Forbearance.

* Book 8. c. 9. ſect. 2. alſo c. 10. ſect. 2, 3.

Finally, as to the Advantages that accrew from this holy Communion; Beſides the ſtrengthening of our Union with God and Chriſt by the Spirit of Grace, which is more plentifully infuſed through the worthy Participation of the Body and Blood of Chriſt, there is moreover added the Remiſſion of Sins, and that not of ours only who are there preſent, but of all other ſincere Chriſtians, in whatever Part of the World, united by this Holy Communion ſo called, as is inſinuated to us by St. John, 1 Epiſt. Ch. 1. v. 7. But if we walk in the Light, as he is in the Light, κοινωνίαν ἔχομεν μετ' ἀλλήλων, we have Fellowſhip one with another, and the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt his Son cleanſeth us from all Sin, and we certainly obtain the Remiſſion of Sins. To which alſo amongſt other things, the ἡ κοινωνία ἁγίων, mention'd in the Apoſtles Creed, ſeems chiefly to allude. Upon this Account all good Chriſtians need not much trouble themſelves about Prieſtly Abſolution, ſeeing Remiſſion of Sins is ſo often repeated to all that are Sincere by the Holy Communion, and to the Unſincere the Abſolution of the Prieſt will not avail.

14. Concerning Baptiſm; The more ſeriouſly a Man looks into it, the more certain he will find it, That the Scripture has defined nothing concerning the Time of Baptizing thoſe that are born of believing Parents. Some adventure further, and affirm there is no Precept for baptizing them at all, and that they are Members already of the Church by being born of them that are. To the latter of which I anſwer, That if they be capable of Memberſhip, How can they be uncapable of the Sign thereof? But to thoſe that acknowledge that they muſt be Baptized, it being plain that no time is ſet down in Scripture, I ſay, it is naturally left to the Power of the Church to appoint that time which ſhe thinks to be moſt convenient. For tho' it may ſeem more excuſable to call the Church's Authority into queſtion, of appointing new Ceremonies or ſuch Circumſtances of the old as are not neceſſary; yet it cannot but be judged an unſufferable Piece of Temerity to queſtion it here concerning ſuch a Circumſtance as the Subſtance cannot be performed without it. For if any one be baptized, he muſt be baptized ſome time or other. And verily, tho' the Arguments of our Adverſaries carry a high and bold Pretence, yet ſo far as I can underſtand, that is the ſafeſt time which the Church her ſelf has pitch'd upon. For I am very inclinable to believe, though I think I am as little ſuperſtitious as another, that there does ſome real Good accrew to an Infant from thus early being dedicated to Chriſt by the ſincere Devotion of his Parents. Which Dedication he himſelf is more fully to ratifie and compleat publickly in the Church, when he comes to Years of Diſcretion, when he will be able to make diſtinct Anſwers to ſuch Queſtions as it is over-obvious to imagin were unſeaſonably asked him when he could not ſpeak.

But for the Croſs in Baptiſm, it was ſo ſeaſonable at the firſt Inſtitution thereof, while profeſſed Pagans were mingled among the Chriſtians, and ſo ſignificant always, that if the Church cannot make ſuch an Additional as this, ſhe cannot make any at all. But Unity of Hearts being better than Uniformity in Actions indifferent, there ought to be no Breach nor Quarrel about theſe things. But whether the Parents conſcientiouſly defer the Child's Baptiſm till Years of Diſcretion, or deſire it ſhould be baptized baptized in its Infancy, whether they like the Signing of it with the Sign of the Croſs, or rather the Omiſſion of it, the Miniſter will conciliate more Authority to himſelf by profeſſing his Equality of Temper and Indifferency in theſe things, and his high Value of the Indiſpenſables of Chriſtianity and tender Regard to the Conſciences of Men, (which is a thing more ſacred than any Ceremony that is not of God's own Inſtitution,) than if he drew too hard to an uniform Compliance in things where Chriſt has left us free. For the viſible Exerciſe of profeſſed Charity and kind Forbearance is a more comely Ornament of the Church than conſtrained Uniformity. Nay I will add, That a conſtant Profeſſion of an Indifferency may ſooner make the Church uniform, than the placing Religion in theſe things. For Conteſtation ceaſeth when the Object is judged of little value.

15. Touching Muſick, it is evident that Hymns and Songs were the timelieſt piece of Publick Worſhip that was offered to Chriſt. And truly I think the Church having Authority to frame a publick Liturgy in Proſe, they ſhould do well not to confine their Singing to David's Pſalms, but alſo to compoſe Songs of their own, in an eaſie and unaffected Style, but in warrantable both Language and Meeter; and get Tunes ſet to them, not over-operoſe and artificial, nor over-plain and languid; which need not be many in Number, and might be taught Children betimes, ſo that there might be no need of the unſanctified Throats of mere Mercenaries to fill up the Quire, but that all Muſical Devotions might be performed by the whole Congregation, every Chriſtian making it a Piece of the Education of his Children to learn the Tunes of the Church, who therefore would be near-upon as ſoon fit to ſing as to pray with the reſt of the Aſſembly.

Theſe Hymns compoſed by the Church ſhould be chiefly for the main Holy-days thereof, appointed for the celebrating (ſuppoſe) of the Nativity, of the Paſſion, of the Reſurrection and Aſcenſion of our Saviour, and of the Miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt. For it ſeems to me a thing almoſt beyond Belief, That a Nation ſhould believe the Hiſtory of Chriſt, that he was God incarnate at ſuch a time, and that the ſame incarnate Deity ſuffered, &c. and yet not be ſo much tranſported with the Conſideration, as to celebrate ſuch ſtupendious Paſſages by Anniverſary Solemnities; ſince that to adorn the Year with Feſtivals and Holy-days is according to the very Dictate of Nature and Practice of all Nations. Wherefore thoſe that pretend to ſo much Spirituality as to caſt out all Obſervation of Days, I wiſh it be not a Symptom of Infidelity in them, and of a ſecret Quarrel they have to the Truth of Chriſtianity it ſelf. For thoſe that are moſt perfect in Divine Accompliſhments, cannot enjoy the actual Enraviſhments that may ariſe from this Perfection without Vacancy from ſecular Employments, for which theſe Holy-days therefore are moſt fit: and thoſe that are leſs perfect, by their Vacation from worldly Drudgery have the Opportunity of ſearching more cloſely into the State and Condition of their Souls, and of more ſerious Meditations and Reſolutions of compoſing their Life to the moſt perfect Patterns of Truth and Sanctity.

And for this very purpoſe The Obſervation of every Seventh Day ſhould be inviolable, not to be prophaned by either ſecular Employments or fooliſh Paſtimes; but ſpent in religious Exerciſes either Publick or Private; not as placing any Sanctity in Days, but in laying hold of ſo good an Opportunity for the compleating of the Work of Godlineſs in us, and meditating upon the infinite Goodneſs of God in the Myſtery of the Creation and Redemption of Mankind.

16. The Knowledge of the latter of which being ſo appropriate to us Chriſtians, that we are acquainted with the main Stroaks of the Proceſs thereof, it is more worthy and becoming us not to huddle up all in one Day, but diſtinctly to celebrate the main Particularities of ſo concerning a Myſtery, ſuch as are, the Nativity of Chriſt, his Paſſion, Reſurrection, and the reſt; amongſt which the Celebration of his Paſſion being moſt uſeful and edifying, the Solemnity thereof ought to be at leaſt as ſacred and as frequented and as religiouſly celebrated with Preaching, Praying, and Singing, as any other Day, and that in a way appropriate to that Solemnity with Hymns and Songs alſo proper for the Paſſion of Chriſt, and mournful and melting Tunes proper to theſe Songs compoſed by the Church.

Which Paſſion-Songs would be alſo uſeful upon Communion-Days, they containing in them Devotional Deſires and Reſolutions of crucifying our Affections and Luſts, and of faithful Love to Chriſt and to one another; which are the great Things that the Paſſion of Chriſt points us to and would enforce upon us. Wherefore the Morning-Singings on a Communion-day may very well be ſupplied by theſe Paſſion-ſongs. But at the Receiving of the Communion, while the Bread and Cup paſs about, ſome Pſalms of David that appear moſt proper, and that declare the great Goodneſs and Mercies of God, or ſome Songs of the Church's compoſing appropriate to the Purpoſe, full of thankful Acknowledgments and holy Reſolutions, may be ſung all the time in more chearful Tunes, ſuch as the Aſcenſion ſongs and Reſurrection-ſongs are ſung in. All which Songs of the Church are to urge Duty upon Men and preſs on Holineſs, upon Conſiderations naturally flowing from the Belief of the things we do ſolemnize.

If to the ſinging of theſe skilfully-compoſed Songs and choice Pſalms, there were added alſo the Help of an Organ, for the more certain regulating of this ſinging part of Devotion and the more affectionate Performance thereof; it will not be eaſie to imagin what is wanting to a due and unexceptionable filling up of all comely Circumſtances of that Publick Worſhip that is fit to be practiſed by profeſſed Chriſtians, unleſs you would bring in alſo Images and Pictures.

17. But to ſpeak my Senſe and Judgment of things freely; The mere placing of Images or Statues in a Church is a very bold and daring Spectacle: but the Bowing towards them, or Praying with bended Knees and Eyes devoutly lift up to them, is intolerable, if Pagan Idolatry be ſo; nay in ſome regard worſe, that is, more irrational and ridiculous, foraſmuch as theſe Statues are not ſuppoſed to be the Receptacle of the Spirit of him they pray to: So that their way of Devotion is utterly groundleſs, ſenſeleſs and ſottiſh, as well as impious and idolatrous.

Pictures I muſt confeſs are a more modeſt Repreſentation; and the Conſideration of the vile Reproaches ſome foul Mouths have heretofore, and do ſometimes ſtill caſt upon the crucified Jeſus, may tempt the devotional Lovers of his Perſon to a Conceit that if there were a Repreſentation of his Crucifixion in Picture, and that they bowed to it at their coming into the Church, it were but an innocent Satisfaction to themſelves ſo publickly to do their Homage to their Saviour in that Repreſentation that he is moſt ſcorned and reproached in, and but a juſt Compenſation to him for the Reproaches that vile and wicked Perſons caſt out againſt him.

But to this I anſwer, firſt, That the determining our Worſhip to any Part of the Church would look like the turning of our Chriſtian Meeting-Houſes into Temples, contrary to what is written, I ſaw no Temple there. And then in the ſecond Place, Though the Fetches of Man's Wit are very fine and ſubtil in theſe Caſes, yet it is expreſly ſaid, that God is a jealous God, and there are many ſcrupulous and jealous Men, as well in Chriſtendom as out of Chriſtendom; and therefore a Practice that is not right in it ſelf, and ſo exceeding ſcandalous to others, ought by no Means to obtain in the publick Worſhip of Chriſtians.

Rev. 21. 22.

If there be any Permiſſion of Pictures therefore in the Church, it muſt not be for Worſhip but for Ornament, which they will ſcarce be without conſiderable Coſt; nor that Coſt again well placed, unleſs there be ſome Edification by them. And therefore I do not conceive how they will be tolerable at all without ſome proper Inſcriptions alſo adjoined: As upon the Picture of the Reſurrection and Aſcenſion of Chriſt ſome ſuch Inſcription as that of St Paul, If you be riſen with Chriſt, ſeek thoſe things which are above. Upon the Picture of the Paſſion of Chriſt ſome ſuch as theſe, When I am lifted up, I ſhall draw all Men unto me. Thoſe that are of Chriſt, have crucified the Fleſh with the Affections and Luſts. Greater Love hath no Man than this, that he lay down his Life for his Friends. This is my Commandment, that as I have loved you, ſo you would likewiſe love one another.

Coloſs. 3. 1.

John 12. 32.
Gal. 5. 24.
John. 15 13.
John 13. 34.

And thus every Piece, which are not to be many, ſhould have their proper Inſcriptions, without which they ſhould not be permitted in the Church, as being fit for nothing but to arreſt and detain the idle Eyes of Men longer than is convenient. But now they are no ſooner ſeen, but they ſet a Man's Mind awork, and cauſe him to think of the moſt important Meaning of the chief Paſſages of the Hiſtory of Chriſt. Of which none is more effectual than that of his Paſſion; which repreſented to the Life together with the Paſſion-Songs and Tunes and Organs may wound the Heart of a Man, and let out more corrupt Blood at one Touch, than the faint Hackings of a dry Diſcourſe of an Hour or two long. Which Helps and Ornaments of publick Worſhip will fill up all the Numbers of all warrantable Splendour and Comelineſs, and keep out, if preciſely kept to, all Shadow and Suſpicion of either Superſtition or Idolatry.

But if any ſhould be ſo weak or ſcrupulous as to take Offence at ſo unexceptionable Uſe of Pictures in the Church, and particularly, if our Religion ſhould be the leſs recommendable thereby to either Jews or Turks, whoſe Converſion we are not only

only to desire, but with Seriousness and Faithfulness to apply our selves to, at least to remove all Scandals and stumbling Blocks out of their Way; rather than any such dispensable Punctilio's should hinder the Enlargement of Christ's Kingdom in the essential Soveraignity thereof comprehended in the express Precepts of the written Word, a full Pencil of white directed by Charity's own Hand should wipe out all these well meant Delineations and Inscriptions, and to compensate the Loss, that one of St. Paul should succeed, If any Man seem to be contentious, we have no such Custom, neither the Churches of God. 1 Cor. 11. 16

18. To conclude, Such is the Truth and Simplicity of Christian Religion, that if the Authority of the Church think good to recommend any Additional Circumstances of Divine Worship, they must not be for ineffectual Pomp and Show, but for real Use and Edification; affecting such a Beauty and Comelineſs as Nature does in living Creatures, whose Pulchritude is the Result of such a Symmetry of Parts and Tenour of Spirits as implies Vigour and Ability to all the Functions of Life. And truly there should be no more Ceremony in the Church, than the Use thereof may be obvious to understand, and the Life and Power of Holiness may throughly actuate; that our Minds may not be amused, lost, sunk in, or fixed upon any Outward things here, but be carried from all visible Pomps to the Love and Admiration of our blessed Saviour in Heaven, and of that Heavenly and Divine Life that he came into the World to beget in the Hearts of all true Believers.

And what we have said of Additional Ceremonies, there is the same Reason of deductional Opinions, they are to have their Recommendation only from their Use and Efficacy in promoting Life and Godliness in the Souls of Men. But their Obtrusion is as unwarrantable as of the other, if not more. Forasmuch as Ceremonies are most-what indifferent, Opinions never, but determinately true or false, or to be held so by them that either doubt or think the contrary: Which therefore is a greater Violence to ingenuous Natures. As also the Usurpation greater to intrude into either the Prophetick or Legislative Office of Christ, than to affect to be only the Master of the Ceremonies; and the Superstition alike, since Superstition is nothing else but a Fear and Scrupulosity about such things as bear no estimate in the Eyes of God: as certainly neither of these do one way or other, neither Opinions that concern not Life and Godliness, nor Ceremonies that are of an indifferent Nature, and may of themselves be either practised or omitted. And therefore for Men to be affected timorously and meticulously in these things, it is a Sign they yet understand not the Royal Law of Christian Liberty, in the mean Time are guilty of that which is the main Vice included in Δεισιδαιμονία or Superstition, in that they fancy to themselves a pettish and captious Deity.

Whence it is manifest that the over careful using or scrupulously omitting of indifferent Ceremonies, as also over-much Solicitude in the rejecting or embracing of useless and uncertain Opinions, is no commendable Worship or Service, but rather an implicit Reproach of the Holy God-Head they profess to adore.

THE END.

THE END.

A MODEST ENQUIRY INTO THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY.

THE FIRST PART

CONTAINING

A Careful and Impartial Delineation

Of the TRUE IDEA

OF

Antichriſtianiſm

IN THE

Real and Genuin Members thereof, ſuch as are indeed oppoſite to the indiſpenſable Purpoſes of the Goſpel of Chriſt, and to the Intereſt of his Kingdom.

By H. MORE, D. D.

Sext. Empiric.

Παντὸς τοῦ ζητουμένου προλήψιν καὶ ἔννοιαν δεῖ προηγεῖσθαι. Πῶς γάρ τις καὶ ζητῆσαι δυνάται ἔννοιαν μὴ ἔχων τοῦ ζητουμένου πράγματος; ἔστε γὰρ ὅπου χὼν ἔσεται ὅτι ἐπέτυχεν, ἔστε ἀσταχήσας ὅτι ἠσόχησεν.

LONDON,

Printed by Joſeph Downing in Bartholomew-Cloſe 1705.

A

MODEST ENQUIRY

INTO THE

MYSTERY

OF

INIQUITY.

THE FIRST PART

CONTAINING

A Careful and Impartial Delineation

OF the TRUE IDEA

OF

Antichristianism

IN THE

Real and Certain Members thereof, such as are indeed opposite to the indispensable Purposes of the Gospel of Christ, and to the Interest of his Kingdom.

A MODEST ENQUIRY INTO THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY.

BOOK I.

CHAP. I.

1. That the Mystery of Iniquity or Antichristianism implies the secret Undermining of the Ends of Christianity by such a Power as pretends to be Christian 2. The Inconvenience of describing Antichrist from Circumstantial Characters, and leaving out the essential Parts of the Description. 3. The two general Principles of which Antichristianism does consist. 4. The right Artifice of drawing the true Idea of Antichristianism, with a Distribution of the Draught into the two most general Strokes thereof.

1. THAT the Iniquity of that Mystery we are about to speak of is not open Prophaneness or plainly confessed Wickedness, is evident from the very Title; in that it is said to be Mysterious, covering it self under some Shadow or Show of Equity or Godliness. Which kind of Mystery, tho' it may in some way or measure work in, or undermine any Religion at large that was instituted for the real Worship of God, and for a Fence against Atheism and Prophaneness; yet it cannot be doubted but that by that Mystery of Iniquity, that Christians so often have in their Mouths, is meant such a Mystery as is directed to the defeating the Purpose, and enervating the Power and Efficacy, and to the hiddenly-undermining the very Foundations of that Religion which is called Christian. For which Reason they also call this Mystery of Iniquity Antichristianism, and style the chief Author and Underpropper thereof (be it one single Person or a Body of Men) by the Name of Antichrist: whether you understand thereby one that opposes Christ, or one that puts himself in the Place of Christ, pretending to act for, but indeed acting against the true Interest of his Kingdom.

2. The Noise of these Words and Phrases hath filled Christendom with their Echo for some Ages together. But I do not remember that the hotest Pursuers after this strange Beast, no not they that had thought they had found him and taken him, have left so perfect and essential a Description of his Nature prescinded from external Circumstances, that a Man may have a due and full Apprehension wherein this Mystery of Antichristianity does really consist; and therefore have left the World liable to think those things essential to this Mystery which are not, and those not to appertain to it that do: As if in the Description of a Bear they should be careful not to omit his Collar and Ring at his Noise, and yet leave out some integral Parts of the Body.

But such imperfect and indistinct Representations as these tend to nothing but the raising Mens Passions against things that are in themselves innocent, and making them to connive at those that are truly vicious and hurtful. As if, for Example, a Man should declare in gross that the Turk is Antichrist, or the Pope; not expressing what it was that did really conſtitute them ſuch: The Effect thereof would only be this, namely, without any further Examination to congratulate our ſelves that we are neither Turks nor Papiſts, (though we may really have no ſmall Meaſure of the Myſtery of Iniquity in us for all that) and to take offence at the Sight of a Turbant, a Croſier, or a Miter (or other things that have as little, or leſs Hurt, if it be poſſible, than theſe) becauſe they are found amongſt the Turks or Papiſts. And yet methinks the moſt furious Reformers ſhould not have ſo little Wit in their Wrath, as to think the Reformation will never be compleat, till with Mattocks and Spades they have dug down the ſeven Hills of Rome, and flung the Earth with Shovels towards the four Winds of Heaven; tho' indeed that ſeems the moſt manifeſt and obvious circumſtantial Characteriſtick of the Whore of Babylon (be that Whore who ſhe will) that is to be found in the Scripture.

3. We ſee it therefore very requiſite, that we may not quarrel with Shadows, to ſeek out and propoſe ſuch a Delineation of Antichriſtianiſm, as may let go innocuous Circumſtances, and take in what is truly and eſſentially Antichriſtian; nor make any thing a part of the Myſtery of Iniquity that has not any Iniquity in it; as we cannot in reaſon any confeſſed Wickedneſs, but as it is the Effect of ſome pretended Holineſs. In theſe two things therefore in general does this Myſtery of Iniquity or Antichriſtianiſm conſiſt. Firſt, In the Inſtituting of ſuch Laws, or authoritatively teaching ſuch Doctrines, and promoting or commanding ſuch Cuſtoms and Practices, as naturally defeat and fruſtrate the true Scope and Purpoſe of the Goſpel of Chriſt. And then Secondly, In the doing this with ſuch Artifice and ſo fair Pretences, that they bear the World in hand in the mean time that they are doing the Work of God, and promoting the Intereſt of the Kingdom of his Son Jeſus.

This, I ſay, in general is the very Nature and Eſſence of Antichriſtianiſm: And where this Poiſon is imbibed into publick Authority; that either one Perſon, or a Body politick, or jointly both of them together, if they be the firſt Beginners or Continuers of this Myſtery of Iniquity, in a due latitude thereof, are aſſuredly that Antichriſt there is ſuch a Noiſe of in the Chriſtian World. And for others that have it not in ſuch a meaſure, yet ſo far forth as they are Teachers, Abetters, or Obtruders of ſuch Practices or Principles upon Pretence of Religion, as naturally fruſtrate the End of the Coming of Chriſt, they are ſo far alſo Antichriſtian.

4. Wherefore he that has duly conſidered, and ſatisfied himſelf, what is the great Scope of the Goſpel of Chriſt, and finds but out (which he cannot eaſily miſs) what things are contrary thereto; if he but colour them over with plauſible Pretences of promoting the Intereſt of Chriſt, he has ipſo facto drawn the true Image or Idea of Antichriſt, whereby he may ſurely know him wherever he is. Now that great Scope and thoſe main Concernments that the Goſpel of Chriſt aims at are plainly theſe; namely, The Extirpation of Idolatry out of the World, as alſo A Releaſement of God's People from the improfitable Burthen of Judaical Ceremonies, (which we may call the Privative End of the Goſpel:) and The Exaltation of the Divine Life; whoſe Root is Faith in God and of a World to come; and the Branches, Humility, Charity, and Purity; as I have more at large diſcourſed in my Explanation of the Myſtery of Godlineſs. And in this is comprized the Poſitive End of Chriſt's coming into the World.

CHAP. II.

1. The Rooting out of Idolatry by the Meſſias propheſied of by Jeremy, That all the Gods that made not Heaven and Earth, ſhould periſh from the Earth and from under the Heavens. 2. An Explication of that Prophecy, and an Aſſertion of our Saviour's Right of being worſhipped for ever as the Eternal Logos who made Heaven and Earth. 3. Proofs out of the Pſalms, that the Meſſias was to root out Idolatry. 4. Several Places in the New Teſtament witneſſing againſt Idolatry and Image-worſhip. 5. That the Spirituality of Chriſtian Religion indigitated by our Saviour does abundantly evidence the unlawfulneſs of Image-worſhip, or of what Idolatry elſe ſoever.

1. THAT God intended the rooting out of Idolatry by ſending Chriſt into the World, appears as well by thoſe Prophecies of the old Teſtament, that foretell that all Idolatry ſhall be rooted out (for by whom ſhould it be done but by the Meſſi- as, in whom all the Nations of the Earth ſhould be Bleſſed?) as by ſeveral Paſſages in the New.

Of the firſt Sort is that in Jeremy Chap. 10. where the Prophet puts this Prophecy in the Mouths of the Jews that were carried captive into Babylon: Thus ſhall ye ſay unto them, (ſaith he) The Gods that made not the Heavens and the Earth, they ſhall periſh from the Earth and from under the Heavens. But the preceeding Context is ſo lively and magnificent, and ſo cloſe to our Purpoſe, that it ought not to have been omitted. We will begin at the ſeventh Verſe therefore, Who would not fear thee, O King of Nations? For to thee doth it appertain: Foraſmuch as among all the wiſe Men of the Nations, and in all their Kingdoms, there is none like unto thee. But they are altogether brutiſh and fooliſh; the Stock is a Doctrine of Vanities. Silver ſpread into Plates is brought from Tarſhiſh, and Gold from Uphas, the Work of the Workman, and of the Hands of the Founder; Blue and purple is their Cloathing, they are all the Work of cunning Men. But the Lord is the true God, he is the living God and an everlaſting King: At his Wrath the Earth ſhall tremble, and the Nations ſhall not be able to abide his Indignation. And then follows this prophetick Denunciation againſt every undue Object of Divine Worſhip; Thus ſhall ye ſay unto them, The Gods that made not the Heavens and the Earth, they ſhall periſh from the Earth, and from under theſe Heavens.

2. All things are exceeding clear in this Prophecy, ſaving in that Compariſon of the King of Nations with the wiſe Men of the Nations, betwixt whom there is that infinite Diſparity, that the Collation ſeems hugely improper if the pure Deity be here conceived to be compared with any wiſe Men whatever. Grotius therefore ingeniouſly hinteth, that it is meant of ſome of the wiſe Men of the Nations that had been tranſlated into the Number of their Gods, as Taautes for Example: which a little helps out one Term of the Compariſon, theſe wiſe men being ſuppoſed to have been advanced to Divine Honours after their Death, and to have been reckoned amongſt the Gods.

But I muſt confeſs even that in the 86 Pſalm, Among the Gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; there is none that can do as thou doeſt, has often puzzl'd me, that the Prophet ſhould vouchſafe to compare the Gods of the Nations, which were but deified Mortals, or at beſt but particular Angels, or Dæmons in that higher Senſe, with the pure, infinite, and omnipotent Deity: which has made me often ſuſpect that ſuch Paſſages as theſe are to be underſtood of the Meſſias, who was alſo to be incarnated and to become the true ἀνθρωπος, and thereupon, after his Sufferings, to be declared King of Nations and the Worſhip of the whole Earth; according as it follows in that Pſalm. All Nations whom thou haſt made ſhall come and worſhip before thee, O Lord, and ſhall glorifie thy Name. And you know he was the Logos or Word which was in the Beginning, without which nothing was made that was made. As the Author to the Hebrews alſo witneſſeth, Thou, Lord, in the Beginning layedſt the Foundations of the Earth, and the Heavens are the Work of thy Hands. Which is ſpoke of the Meſſias, his time being there ſo plainly deciphered, as appears in the 22 Verſe, When the People are gathered together, and the Kingdoms to ſerve the Lord. Whence that is alſo plain, that Chriſt ſhall be ever the ſame, and that his Years ſhall have no End; and that this Prophetick Denunciation, The Gods that made not Heaven and Earth, ſhall periſh from the Earth and from under theſe Heavens, cannot reach him. But the Worſhip of any thing elſe that is not the pure Deity, is to be caſt away according to the Meaning of that Prophecy.

Rev. 15. 3, 4.

Pſal. 102. 25.

Verſe 27.

3. That alſo in the 97 Pſalm plainly ſhews that Idolatry is to go down at the coming of Chriſt. Confounded be all they that ſerve graven Images, that boaſt themſelves of Idols; worſhip him all ye Gods: which the Author to the Hebrews does expreſly interpret of Chriſt, whereby he proves his Divinity, and doth therewith diſapprove of giving any religious Worſhip to any but that which is truly the Deity; as I have noted in its due Place.

4. As for the Places in the New Teſtament, they are more copious, and not leſs expreſs. The firſt is that in the Acts, where when the Prieſt of Jupiter would have ſacrificed to Paul and Barnabas at Lyſtra, by Reaſon of the great Miracles he ſaw done by them; they rent their Cloaths and ran in amongſt the People, crying out and ſaying, Sirs, why do you theſe things? we alſo are Men of like Paſſions with you, and preach unto you that ye ſhould turn from theſe Vanities, unto the living God which made Heaven and Earth, and the Sea, and all things that are therein. And what Vanities are thoſe from which they muſt turn, but from the giving of Divine Honour to mere Creatures? The ſame Apoſtle alſo at Athens, in his Speech he made to them on Mars-hill, reads them a very round Leſſon againſt Idolatry. Foraſmuch then as we

Chap. 14. v. 14, 15.

Acts 17. 29, 30, 31.

we are the Off-ſpring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto Gold, or Silver, or Stone graven by Art and Mans Device. And the times of this Ignorance God winked at, but now commandeth all Men every where to repent. Becauſe he hath appointed a Day in the which he will Judge the World in Righteouſneſs, &c. Which Exhortation certainly Paul made with the greateſt Earneſtneſs that could be, it being ſaid Verſe 16, ἐν παῳξύνετο τὸ πνεῦμα αὐτοῦ ἐν αὐτῷ, that his Spirit was in a very ſharp Fit, in a Paroxyſm of Zeal, when he ſaw the City of Athens ſo given to Idolatry.

Chap. 12. v. 2. Again in his firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians, he makes Idolatry the very Character of Gentiliſm, which Chriſt came to reclaim the World from. Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away to dumb Idols, even as ye were led. And elſewhere in the ſame Epiſtle he exhorts them more copiouſly and vehemently: Wherefore my dearly beloved flee from Idolatry. The things which the Gentiles ſacrifice, they ſacrifice to the Dæmonia, and not to God. Ye cannot partake of the Lord's Table and of the Table of the Dæmonia. Do we provoke the Lord to Jealouſie? Are we ſtronger than he? And this was only about the Meat Sacrificed to theſe Dæmons; what had it then been to bow to their Idols? He ſpeaks alſo very ſmartly on this ſubject in his ſecond Epiſtle to theſe Corinthians. What Fellowſhip hath Righteouſneſs with Unrighteouſneſs? What Communion hath Light with Darkneſs? And what Agreement hath the Temple of God with Idols? And in his Epiſtle to the Galatians, he plainly reckons up Idolatry amongſt the groſſeſt Works of the Fleſh, Murther, Sorcery, and Adultery. And therefore accordingly in the Apocalypſe Idolaters together with Murtherers and Sorcerers are threatned with the Lake that burns with Fire and Brimſtone, and are ſhut with obſcene Dogs out of the holy City. And therefore aſſuredly St. John is in very good earneſt in his Dehortation from Idolatry in the Cloſe of his general Epiſtle. And we know that the Son of God is come, and has given us an Underſtanding, that we may know him that is true; and we are in Him that is true, through his Son Jeſus Chriſt: This is the true God and eternal Life. Little Children, keep your ſelves from Idols. Amen. From theſe Places, I think it is abundantly manifeſt, That the divulging of the Goſpel aimed at the taking away of Idolatry (that ſottiſh Depravation of Religion) out of the World.

Cha. 6. v. 14, 16.

Cha. 5. v. 20

Cha. 21. v. 8.

Ch. 22. v. 15.

1 John 5. 20.

5. And we may be ſtill the more aſſured of it by thoſe Words from our Saviour's own Mouth; The Hour cometh, and now is, when the true Worſhippers ſhall worſhip the Father in Spirit and in Truth; for the Father ſeeketh ſuch to worſhip Him. God is a Spirit, and they that worſhip him, muſt worſhip him in Spirit and in Truth. Where Grotius, and I think very truly, interprets ἐν πνεύματι καὶ ἀληθείᾳ προσκυνεῖν, ſublatis ut ritibus, ita Locorum Diſcrimine. That is, as well Ceremonies, as all Difference of Places being removed. And ſurely the Chriſtian Worſhip being ſo pure as to abhor from the Voluminouſneſs of Judaizing Ceremonies, and the affixing of the Reſidence of God to a conſecrated Place, as in the Temple of the Jews; Imagery and Idolatry muſt be abhorred infinitely more, as infinitely more inconſiſtent therewith. And if God may not be worſhipped with an Image, much leſs any thing that is not God either with an Image or without it.

John 4. v. 23, 24.

CHAP. III.

1. What is meant by Grace and Truth coming by Chriſt. 2. Further Teſtimonies of Scripture to evince that Chriſt came to eaſe Men of the Judaical Burthen of Ceremonies. The meaning of χαλεπόγερον τοῖς δόγμασιν, and of δογματίζεσθαι. 3. That the Death of Chriſt upon the Croſs was the Solution of the Ceremonial Law of Moſes. 4. Further Proofs to the ſame Purpoſe.

1. BUT now That the Groſſneſs and Carnality of the Judaical Ceremonies and the unprofitable Burthen of them was to be done away by the Coming of Chriſt, (which is the other Point to be proved) is very apparent out of ſeveral Places of Scripture. For the Law was given by Moſes, but Grace and Truth came by Jeſus Chriſt: that is to ſay, The Law, both Moral and Ceremonial, was given by Moſes: but even that Moral Law was but ſuch an one as could not give Life, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks; but the gracious Aſſiſtance of the Spirit of God promiſed in the Goſpel, that does give Life and Strength to walk according to the Will of God. And then for the Ceremonial Law; both it, and indeed all things elſe happening to the Jews, were were but Types and Shadows; but in Chriſt is the Truth. They were not what they made a Show to be, and therefore in that Senſe may be ſaid to be falſe: ſo as he that ſays that the Image or Picture of a Man or Horſe is a Man or Horſe indeed, pronounces falſe. And therefore our Saviour ſpeaks true when He ſaith, Moſes gave you not that Bread from Heaven, but my Father giveth you the true Bread from Heaven. John 6. 32. Whenas yet it is ſaid of the Manna, Pſalm 78. He gave them Bread from Heaven to eat. Ver. 25. But it being but a Shadow and Type of the true Bread from Heaven, which is Chriſt, it is ſaid not to be the Bread from Heaven. As in the Epiſtle to the Hebrews it is ſaid to have a Shadow of things to come: and Paul to the Coloſſians, Let no Man judge you in Meat or in Drink, or in Reſpect of an holy-day, or of the new Moon, or of the Sabbath; which are a Shadow of things to come; but the Body is Chriſt. Heb. 10. 1. Col. 2. 16, 17. So plain is it what is meant by Grace and Truth coming by Jeſus Chriſt. For he is that Truth which was ſignified by the Shadows of the Law; and by him is that Grace which was not afforded by the Law, namely the Quickning Spirit of God, which is the peculiar Promiſe of the Goſpel. Wherefore the Truth it ſelf, the Body of the Sun of Righteouſneſs, being now riſen with Healing in his Wings, it is time for obſcure Shadows and dark Types to fly away.

John 1. 17. Gal. 3. 11.

2. And hence it is that St. Paul ſo ſtoutly exhorts the Galatians not to be held in Bondage any longer within theſe ſhady Coverts. Nevertheleſs what ſaith the Scripture? Caſt out the Bond-woman and her Son: For the Son of the Bond-woman ſhall not be Heir with the Son of the Free-woman. So then, Brethren, we are not Children of the Bond-woman, but of the Free. Stand faſt therefore in the Liberty wherewith Chriſt has made us Free, and be not entangled again with the Yoak of Bondage: that is to ſay, neither with Circumciſion nor any other uſeleſs and burthenſome Ceremony. Gal. 4. 30.

And again upon the ſame Subject he ſpeaks very triumphantly in the above-mentioned Epiſtle to the Coloſſians, in the ſame Chapter, from the 8 Verſe to the Verſe before recited. In which Paragraph χειρόγραφον τοῖς δόγμασιν, the Hand-writing of Ordinances, ſeems moſt naturally to be underſtood of Ceremonial Ordinances, that theſe were nailed to his Croſs, and nulled by his Death: But for that Law which is purely Moral and Eternal, and the Obſervation whereof is the Perfection of Humane Nature, he came not to deſtroy it, but to reſcue it, and perfect it by clearer Gloſſes. Which Interpretation agrees the beſt both with the Matter in hand (which are Ceremonial Ordinances, which the Apoſtle ſpeaks of, Traditions of Men, and Rudiments of the World;) and alſo with the Signification of the Word δογματίζεσθαι in Verſe 20. If you then be dead with Chriſt from the Rudiments of the World, τί ὡς ζῶντες ἐν κόσμῳ δογματίζεσθε; Why, as living in the World, are ye ſubjected to Ordinances, to the Decrees and ceremonial Impoſitions of Men? As it follows immediately, Taſt not, touch not, handle not; which he calls the Commandments and Doctrines of Men: and not unlike thoſe he mentions in his firſt Epiſtle to Timothy, Forbidding firſt to marry, and commanding to abſtain from Meats; which in one ſenſe of the Text he ſeems to term the ſeducing Doctrines of Devils, as ſuggeſted by them; over whom Chriſt is ſaid to triumph here under the Name of Principalities and Powers, by virtue of his Croſs; and ſo treading them down, is ſuppoſed to trample upon their Ordinances, thoſe Doctrines of Devils, which they enviouſly and inſultingly entangled poor Mankind withal. And little better than ſuch would the Judaical Ceremonies themſelves be accounted, when having been once abrogated by God through Chriſt, they are again re-inforced by new Impoſers. Col. 2. Chap. 4. v. 3.

For that Zeal that is inſpired into Men for the driving on ſuperſtitious Ordinances and Practices, contrary to the Command of Chriſt and the Honour of the Goſpel, may be rationally conceived to come from Satan, the active Enemy of the Church of Chriſt.

3. Like to this of the Coloſſians, is that of the Epheſians. For he is our Peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle Wall of Partition between us; having aboliſhed in his Fleſh (that is, by his Fleſh crucified on the Croſs, as before) the Law of Commandments contained in Ordinances; which anſwers to χειρόγραφον τοῖς δόγμασι, the Hand-writing of Ordinances in the former. And by both theſe places it is evident, That the Sacrifice of Chriſt upon the Croſs was the Solution of all the Ceremonies of Moſes Law, according as the Prophet Daniel had predicted; and that the Everlaſting Righteouſneſs ſhould take place, a Religion that would inſtruct us to worſhip God in Spirit and in Truth; and therefore ſhould ſtand for ever, there being none more Perfect to ſucceed. Chap. 2. 14. Dan. 9.

4. And

4. And according to this Tenour of the Gospel St. Peter, as well as St. Paul, is very earnest upon the Point in that Debate at Jerusalem, whether the converted Gentiles should be Circumcised; where he concludes his Speech in this manner: Act. 15. 10. Now therefore, saith he, Why tempt ye God, to put a Yoak upon the Neck of the Disciples, which neither our Fathers nor we were able to bear? Namely, ob ingentem illum numerum præceptorum ritualium, that is, because of that great Number of ceremonial Precepts, as Grotius has noted and superadded. And St. Paul is so zealous for the casting out the Bond-woman and her Child, that he tells the Galatians roundly, Behold, I Paul say unto you, that if you be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing. So industriously did the Apostles of Christ fling off from the Church that wearisom Burthen of the Rites and Ordinances of the Mosaical Law.

And thus we are sufficiently assured of the Privative End of the Gospel, namely, That it was to eradicate Idolatry from amongst the Nations, and to null the Law of Moses in all the Ritual or Ceremonial Ordinances thereof, as a troublesom and useless Incumberment upon Christianity and the Churches of God.

CHAP. IV.

1. The Positive End of the Gospel summarily proposed. 2. The several Grounds of Honour due to Christ, and particularly of his Paternal Title. 3. Both God the Father and Christ the Authors of our Regeneration; and how the first Hypostasis being called Father does not exclude the second from that Title in respect of his Church. 4. The other Titles of Christ plain of themselves. 5. The Divine Life with its Root and Branches, the second part of the Positive Scope of the Gospel. 6. That such a Mystery as upon religious Pretences does really supplant all the grand Ends of the Gospel, whether Privative or Positive, is mathematically manifest to be that notorious Mystery of Iniquity. 7. The Method of pursuing the Particulars of this Mystery more largely. 8. The Falseness, Fraud, and Mischief of every Member of Antichristianism to be enquired into. 9. The Author's serious Desire that the Truth of the Description may be perused without Prejudice, and acknowledged without Tergiversation by them that are convinced.

1. THE Positive Scope of the Gospel, as I said, and have elsewhere proved, is The Exaltation of the Divine Life: which is either by giving all due Honour and Obedience to Christ in whom this Life did so eminently reside; or by promoting the Increase thereof, both intensively and extensively in his Members, that it may rise to a due height where it is, and get footing amongst those where it is not; that the whole Mass of Mankind, if it were possible, might be leavened, not with the Leaven of Hypocrisie, but with the sincere Doctrine and enlivening Spirit of the Gospel of Christ.

2. That Honour and Homage we owe to the Person of Christ is to be considered chiefly in these five Respects: As he is our King, As he is our Priest, As he is our Prophet, As he is God blessed for ever, and As he is in a particular manner Πατὴρ τοῦ μέλλοντος αἰῶνος, as * Isaiah describes him, that is to say, the Father of his Church. As it is written concerning the Logos or Eternal Word, That, as many as received him, Power is given unto them to become the Sons of God: which are born, not of Blood, nor of the Will of the Flesh, nor of the Will of Man, but of God: According as our Saviour speaks to Nicodemus, That which is born of the Flesh, is Flesh; but that which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit. It is therefore the Spirit of Christ whereby we are begotten into a New Creature. If any Man has not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his.

*Chap. 9. John 1. 12. John 3. 6.

3. But this Spirit of Christ is also the Spirit of God the Father, and therefore our new Creation, or Regeneration, is also attributed to him. For we are his Workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to good Works. And St. Peter in his first Epistle, Blessed be God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath begotten us again, or regenerated us, &c. But after in the same Chapter he again brings the Eternal Word as a Sharer in this Action of Paternity; Being born not of corruptible Seed, but incorruptible, διὰ λόγου ζῶντος θεοῦ καὶ μένοντος εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, per sermonem viventem Dei & in aternum permanentem: though it may be also rendred, per sermonem Dei viventis & in aternum permanentis; and thus may refer either to God the Father, or to the eternal Logos:

Eph. 2. 10. Ch. 1. v. 3. Ver. 23.

*

Logos: As I conceive that may alſo in St. John, He that is born of God, doth not commit Sin; for his Seed (that is, the Spirit of Truth, which is from the Father and the Son) remaineth in him; and he cannot ſin, becauſe he is born of God. 1 Ep. 3. 9.

Wherefore as Chriſt is ſaid to be Head of all Principalities and Powers, though God the Father be alſo rightly ſo ſtyled; and Chriſt is likewiſe ſaid to be the Head of the Church, though no Man can deny but that God is ſo alſo; for he that is an Husband to his Church, is alſo ipſo facto the Head of her: So Chriſt in like manner may rightly be termed the Father of his Church, although that be the ordinary Appellation of the firſt Hypoſtaſis of the holy Trinity. And therefore there being ſuch a real Reſpect of Paternity betwixt Chriſt and his Church laid in this ſo remarkable Ground of Regeneration by his Spirit into a new Creature; I thought it both allowable and uſeful to take Notice thereof, and add this fifth Title to the reſt, there being moſt hainous Sins committable againſt Chriſt in this reſpect alſo.

4. That Chriſt is our King, Prieſt, Prophet, and our God, are Truths ſo generally acknowledged, and ſo exceeding plain, that I need produce no Proof either of the things themſelves, or of the Fitneſs of the Phraſe.

5. The other general Branch of the Poſitive Scope of the Goſpel is, The ſpreading and propagating, the exciting and nouriſhing the Divine Life in the Members of Chriſt, to the beſt of their Capacities. In which Divine Life is comprized Faith in God, and a Belief of a Reward of Righteouſneſs in the other World, as alſo thoſe three excellent Evangelical Graces, Humility, Charity, and Purity. That theſe make up the grand Scope of the Goſpel, I think any one will be ſufficiently ſatisfied by what I have written in my Explanation of the Myſtery of Godlineſs.

6. Now from hence it will follow with Evidence and Certitude plainly Mathmatical, "That ſuch a Myſtery as in effect is a real Counterplot and Undermining as "well of the Privative as Poſitive Scope of the Goſpel of Chriſt, in the above-named "Particulars; that is to ſay, That Myſtery that, inſtead of ridding the World of I-"dols, pollutes the Church with multifarious Idolatry; inſtead of eaſing of the "Church of the Burthen of Judaical Ceremonies, fills it with a Number of ſuperflu-"ous Rites, either Judaical, Pagan, or pretendedly Chriſtian; That Myſtery that "makes Chriſt a King without Power and Laws, a Prophet without Prediction or "Inſtruction, that ſets up Corrivals with him in Heaven and on Earth, for both his "High-Prieſthood and Divinity, and eludes or prevents the Inchoation or Growth "of the New birth by miſchievous Devices and Practices; That Myſtery that natu-"rally tends to the ſuperinducing upon the World Atheiſm and Infidelity, by magi-"ſterially obtruding upon Mens Belief the Acknowledgment of ſuch things as "are not only uſeleſs to be believed, but impoſſible to be; and laſtly, That My-"ſtery that is the Mother of Pride, the Nurſe of Uncleanneſs, the School of barba-"rous Injuſtice and bloody Cruelty: This Myſtery, I ſay, that is ſo horrid, and dia-"bolical, and ſo Antipodal to both the Perſon and Spirit of Chriſt, and to all the "Chriſtian Graces, (provided there be but found a Colour for theſe groſs Wicked-"neſſes and Enormities, as if they tended to the Honour of Chriſt and the Good "of his Church) muſt needs be that famed Myſtery of Iniquity, and the very Body "of Antichriſtianiſm, with the diſtinct Limbs and Articulations thereof.

7. Whoſe Image I having exhibited to your Sight in this contracted Draught, I ſhall now endeavour more fully and amply to ſet it before your Eyes; purſuing the Parts I have enumerated in a more particular Manner, and in ſuch a Method as will carry along with it a Reflexion upon the univerſal Nature of the Myſtery of Iniquity, as it is oppoſite in a general Reſpect to the Myſtery of Godlineſs: that is to ſay, As thoſe more comprehenſive Members of the Myſtery of Godlineſs were a venerable Obſcurity, A communicable Intelligibleneſs, Demonſtrable Truth, and deſirable Uſefulneſs; ſo I ſhall trace along as I go in every one of the above-mentioned Particulars of the Myſtery of Iniquity theſe three general Depravations or Malignities; as namely, in oppoſition to the Truth in the Myſtery of Godlineſs, groſs and palpable Falſeneſs; inſtead of Uſefulneſs, intolerable Miſchievouſneſs; and inſtead of that venerable Obſcurity joyned with Intelligibleneſs, the unwholſome and abhorred Fogs of a worſe than Ægyptian Darkneſs, wherein harbours nothing but deceitful Sophiſtry and ſelf-ſeeking-Fraud.

8. In brief therefore the Falſeneſs, the Fraud, and the Miſchief, ſhall be the Points of Inquiſition upon every particular Member of this Myſtery of Antichriſtianiſm: whoſe Idea when we have fully ſet out, and demonſtrated to be ſuch, we ſhall then proceed further to enquire Where it is actually to be found; and by virtue of the ſaid Idea to clear our own Church, that is guiltleſs, from the unjuſt Suſpicions and Aſperſions of malicious or inconſiderate Spirits, that either miſrepreſent, or miſapprehend things, and ſo paſs unrightful Cenſures upon what is at leaſt allowable, if not Praiſe-worthy.

9. He that is the Searcher of Hearts and the Enlightner of our Eyes, ſo purge all our Hearts from Partiality and Hypocriſie, and ſo clear our Underſtandings, that what ſhall be penned down with Truth and Sincerity, may be peruſed without Prejudice, may be diſcerned with Facility, and be acknowledged by them that are inwardly convinced without any Slights or Tergiverſations; to the Glory of God's Name, the Peace of his Church, and the Advancement of the Kingdom of his Son Jeſus, Amen.

CHAP. V.

1. Inſtances of ſeveral ſpecious Pieces of Idolatry introducible into Chriſtian Religion. 2. The overmuch ſtreightening, or widening the Notion of Idolatry, taxed. 3. The Uſefulneſs of giving a true Notion thereof. 4, 5. That it is not reſtrained to the Worſhipping of Idols properly ſo called. 6. That any thing religiouſly worſhipped that is not God, becomes ipſo facto an Idol; and of the Seventy's rendring אלילים εἴδωλα and χειροποίητα, as well as θεοὶ, δαιμόνια, and μεγιστᾶνες. 7. That they likewiſe render אלהים ſometimes εἴδωλα, as they do alſo Baalim, and עצבים; which further argues that more general Senſe of the Word Idol. That an Idol and לא-אל, i. e. Non-Deus, is all one in the Eſtimate of God.

1. LET us begin then with the Delineation of the firſt Member of this hideous Myſtery, oppoſite to the firſt Branch of the Scope of the Goſpel of Chriſt, which was The ridding of the World of the impure Worſhip of Idolatry. I ſay therefore, if inſtead of thoſe manifold Idolatrous Worſhips in Paganiſm there were introduced (upon Pretence of the greater Honour to God and Chriſt, and the better Inſtruction of the People) the Religious Worſhip of the Croſs, as alſo the Image of God the Father, Son, or Holy Ghoſt; the devotional Invocation of the bleſſed Virgin, or any other Saints, or Angels; the Worſhipping of their Pictures, or Images; and the doing Divine Honours (accordingly as it was practiſed toward the Roman Emperours) to a mere Man upon Account of his being the Vicar General of Chriſt and Oecumenical Head of his Church upon Earth; and laſtly, the Adoration of the conſecrated Bread in the Euchariſt upon the Imagination that it is tranſſubſtantiated into the very Body of Chriſt: I ſay, where theſe things are brought into the Church as true Doctrine and laudable Practice, they will not fail to make up one Limb of Antichriſtianiſm, and that a principal one too.

For the Doctrine is not true nor the Practice allowable, but groſs and palpable Idolatry, (one of the moſt abhorred Sins the Scripture takes Notice of;) as you ſhall eaſily underſtand after I have with all poſſible Caution ſearch'd out the true Notion and definitive Nature thereof.

2. This Term Idolatry, tho' nothing is more frequent in the Mouths and Writings of Men, yet there is nothing of ſo unſettled and fugitive a Signification. For ſome, to excuſe or palliate their groſly-diſallowable Rites and Practices in Chriſtian Religion, have reſtrained the Senſe of the Word to ſuch narrow Limits, that according to their nice Diſtinctions and Reſtrictions the fouleſt Paganiſm will ſcarce be found guilty of Idolatry. Others, whether out of a Fright and Abhorrency of ſo deteſtable a Crime, or out of an over-factious Diſguſt and Deteſtation of the contrary Party, have ſo ſtretched the Signification of the Word beyond the natural and uſual meaning thereof, that not only harmleſs, but even laudable Circumſtances of Divine Worſhip appointed by the Authority of the Church will not fail to be ſtigmatized by them with that odious and reproachful Name: whoſe Zeal and paſſionate Unskilfulneſs in amoving this grand Error out of the Church has had an anſwerable ill Succeſs, in that they have not ſo much wrought a Cure, as changed the Diſeaſe, and bartered away one great Evil for ſeveral others of ſomething a lower Form; ſuch as Scandal, raſh and unjuſt Cenſure, and Superſtition; which are very evil and undeſirable Diſtempers in the Church of Chriſt, and the neceſſary Authors and Fomenters of unneceſſary Schiſms. And indeed if I had ſaid only, that they had changed Idolatry into Superſtition, it had been enough, and all, it including the reſt. For Superſtition being properly a Fear of diſpleaſing God in ſuch things as neither do oblige him nor offend him, ariſing out of an Opinion of the good or evil of thoſe things that are in themſelves indifferent; Thoſe that either out of Ignorance, or ſome worſe Principle, ingender in the Minds of Men a ſuperſtitious Averſation from ſuch harmleſs and allowable Actions, muſt needs make them obnoxious to Scandal, and tempt them to raſh and unjuſt Cenſures.

ed

3. Wherefore as well to excuſe the Innocent, as to diſcover the Guilty, I ſhall endeavour exactly to ſet out the Bounds of this great Sin of Idolatry; that thereby we may know when it is committed, and when not; when it may be called by that ſo hateful Name, and when again it is Injuſtice and Uncharitableneſs ſo to term this or that Action of religious Worſhip.

4. That the Name or Guilt of Idolatry is not to be reſtrained to the Worſhip of an Idol only, is plain out of ordinary conſent of Speech, when we diſcourſe of Idolatrous Nations that worſhip the Sun, Moon, and Stars; not conſidering whether they make any Images to them or no. For theſe ἐμφανεῖς καὶ αἰσθητοὶ θεοὶ, theſe conſpicuous and ſenſible Deities, as they are termed by the Greeks, may eaſily be conceived to have allured the rude People to adore them, before they had either Art or Leiſure to build Temples and erect Statues to them. From whence that Caveat is given by God to his own People in Deuteronomy; Take ye therefore good Heed unto your ſelves, (for you ſaw no manner of Similitude on the Day that the Lord ſpake unto you in Horeb out of the Midſt of the Fire) leſt you corrupt your ſelves, and make you a graven Image, &c. And leſt you lift up your Eyes to Heaven; and when you ſee the Sun, and the Moon, and the Stars, even all the Hoſt of Heaven, ſhould be driven to worſhip them and ſerve them. So ſtrongly enticing have they been to Mankind to beſtow Religious Worſhip on them. Theſe were the firſt Objects that gain'd the Title of θεοὶ, as being in perpetual Motion, as Philo has obſerved; which Appellation was afterwards derived upon all other Deities whatſoever. And Maimonides alſo laies the firſt Foundation of Idolatry in theſe.

Origen. contr. Celſ. Lib. 5.

Ch. 4. v. 15, 19.

5. But Nations ſufficiently civilized, as namely the Perſians, made ſhift to be Idolaters without carved Images or Idols. For they ſacrificed on the Tops of Mountains to the viſible Heaven under the Name of Jupiter, as alſo to the Sun, Moon, and Earth, to the Fire, Water, and Winds; all ſenſible Objects, but worſhipped without any ſenſible Figure or Repreſentation. And yet I think no Man learned, or Idiot, will ſtick to ſtyle this Nation Idolatrous: As neither the ancient Romans, who worſhipped their many Gods without the Uſe of any Idol or Image, for near two hundred Years together; as both Varro and Plutarch affirm.

Herodot. Lib. 1. c. 131.

6. Wherefore Idolatry is not only there where an Idol is worſhipped, but where any thing is worſhipped which is not God, whether that thing be viſible or no. In which Senſe * Gregory Nazianzene defines Idolatry to be Μετάθεσιν τῆς προσκυνήσεως ἀπὸ τοῦ ποιητικοῦ ἐπὶ τὰ κτίσματα. And * Tertullian pronounces that whatſoever is exalted ultra humani Honoris Modum, with more than civil Worſhip, does ipſo facto become an Idol. When they are not truly אלהים they become by being worſhipped אלילים that is to ſay אל־אלים non-Dii (as ſome would have the Notation of the Word) not Gods but Εἴδωλα, Idols, as it is often rendred by the Seventy, and alſo χειροποίητα. And in the firſt of the * Chronicles, Πάντες οἱ θεοὶ, τῶν ἐθνῶν εἴδωλα, ſhews plainly that Εἴδωλον is to be referred alſo to thoſe things that are not carved Images. For the Nations worſhipped the Sun and Moon, and the Souls of Men departed, which are not Imagery, but natural things. And therefore ſometimes they render אלילים θεοὶ, δαιμόνια, or μεγιστᾶνες: the latter whereof muſt refer to thoſe inviſible Dæmons themſelves, who being but אלילים in Scripture-Account, their Worſhip muſt alſo be Idolatry, and will without any Scruple be acknowledged ſo by any one that either the Senſe of things or the Force of Words has left any Impreſs upon.

* In Orat, Panegyr. in Natal Chriſti.
* De Idololatria cap. 15.
* Chap. 16. 26.

7. This might alſo make the Seventy careleſs of tranſlating אלהים always θεοὶ, when ſpoke of the Heathen Gods, but ſometimes εἴδωλα: thoſe Deities themſelves to whom Idols were conſecrated being but Idols in this Senſe. And whereas they underſtood by Baalim thoſe falſe Deities diſtinct from their Images (as appears from the ſecond of the * Chronicles, where they tranſlate מסכות עשה לבעלים γλυπτὰ ἐποίησε τοῖς Βααλὶμ, Ahaz made Statues, or Images, for Baalim; yet for the ſame Reaſon they ſeveral times tranſlate it εἴδωλα: the Baalim themſelves, whether the Sun, or the Souls of Men deceaſed, being but Idols in this Senſe we ſpeak of.

* Chap 28. Verſ. 2.

For which Reaſon, laſtly, I conceive they alſo tranſlate עצבים εἴδωλα above a dozen times, and θεοὶ but once; whenas a learned Doctor of our Church conceives the Word according to its original Meaning (it ſignifying any Cauſe of Anxiety, Grief, or frightful Paſſion) to note δαίμονες themſelves chiefly, whoſe hard Uſages, and affrightful Appearances to diſmaied Mankind, brought in that kind of Puſillanimity which the Greeks call properly δεισιδαιμονία, the Superſtitious Fear and Diſquieting Dread of Dæmons; which is ſo far from being ſuppoſed to proceed from the Images themſelves, that Grotius has noted it as the Complaint of Varro againſt thoſe that had corrupted that purer Kind of Worſhip inſtituted by Numa, by their bringing in of Images, Eos utique Civitatibus ſuis & Metum dempſiſſe, & Errorem addidiſſe. But every thing that has religious Worſhip done to it that is not God, becoming thereby an Idol, the Seventy may very well be excuſed for their Proneneſs of rendring theſe Words by εἴδωλα, which had been more properly and expreſly in ſuch and ſuch Circumſtances rendred δαιμόνια. As their Proneneſs in ſo doing is alſo an Argument, as I have already intimated, of the Warrantableneſs of their both Notion and Expreſſion, who call the Worſhipping of any thing that is not God, Idolatry.

Grot. in Decalog.

8. To which God himſelf alſo witneſſes that it is ſuch, by declaring himſelf ſo affected at worſhipping that which is not God; as he does at the bowing towards Images, which he forbids, giving this Reaſon, For I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, Exod. 20. The original is אל קנא. And Deuteronomy the 32. he ſaies, הם קנאוני They have moved me to Jealouſy בלא־אל in non Deo, by that which is not God. Whereby we ſeem to be admoniſhed wherein the Nature of Idolatry does immediately conſiſt; and that the worſhipping of an Image is not Idolatry as it is an Image, but as that Image is not God; no Image being God, but that true and living Image of the Father, Jeſus Chriſt. That therefore is the true and general Notion of Idolatry, To worſhip any thing that is not God; whereby we forſake God himſelf, and devotionally proſtitute our ſelves to every evanid Repreſentation or far-caſt Shadow of Him, ſuch as are but εἴδωλα εἰδώλων, Shadows of Shadows in infinite Myriads of Degenerations (if we may ſo ſpeak) from Him; and ſo provoke his Jealouſy by theſe multiplied Baalim, whenas He alone is to be our Lord and Husband. But this is a Truth ſo plain and acknowledged, that I need not have ſpent ſo much time in the verbal Alluſions to add any Countenance thereto.

CHAP. VI.

1. That the Iſraelites worſhipped Jehovah in the Golden Calf, proved out of Exodus. 2. That Elohim, though joyned with a Verb of the plural Number, is underſtood of the true God; with further Teſtimony out of the 106 Pſalm, that God was worſhipped in that Calf, and what כבוד there ſignifies. 3. That the Golden Calf was no Figure of the Ægyptian Apis, but a Cherub. 4. Aaron's Caſe of making the Golden Calf compendiouſly opened, as alſo the Ground of Tacitus his ridiculous Error diſcovered. 5. That the Golden Calves in Dan and Bethel were two Cherubims ſet up for the Worſhip of the God of Iſrael, proved from Jeroboam's Politicks. 6. Alſo from Jehu, and Elias his Zeal, and the Inſtruction of the Aſſyrian Colonies by an Iſraelitiſh Prieſt. 7. That Micah's Ephod and Teraphim were alſo meant to the true God. 8. And yet both he and the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs Idolaters, in their Uſe of the Teraphim and Cherub in Divine Worſhip. 9. That Jeroboam was alſo an Idolater in ſetting up the Calves in Dan and Bethel, proved out of Scripture. 10. Other Teſtimonies to the ſame Purpoſe; and of the Idolatry committed in the Brazen Serpent.

1. THat which ſeems more ſeaſonable to inquire into is this, Whether as there is Idolatry without the worſhipping of Images; ſo there may not be the Worſhipping of Images without Idolatry, the Images being worſhipped in Reference to the true God.

That to worſhip the true God by an Image, is Idolatry, I conceive is very plain from the Children of Iſrael's Worſhipping Him by the Golden Calf which Aaron made. For firſt, that they worſhipped God by this Calf, is evident from what is written Exod. 32. 4. where it is proclaimed. Theſe be thy Gods, O Iſrael, which brought thee up out of the Land of Ægypt: And Verſe 8. God there telling Moſes what was done, They

They have (ſaith he) made them a molten Calf, and have worſhipped it, and have ſacrificed thereunto, and ſaid, Theſe be thy Gods, O Iſrael, which brought thee up out of the Land of Ægypt. But it is manifeſt that this Calf did not bring them out of the Land of Ægypt, but they brought it, I mean the Materials of it: and that therefore they underſtood it only as a viſible Image and Repreſentation of the Preſence of Him that did bring them out thence, namely of Jehovah the true God.

2. Nor is there any Scruple to be made from the pronouncing thereof in the plural Number, as if that One true God could not be meant there: For Elohim is not only as fitly ſaid of one ſingle Deity as of one ſingle Image, but is really, and that frequently, ſaid of this one God Jehovah. And Nehemiah reciting this Paſſage, ſhews plainly that the Senſe is to be underſtood of one; he reading, not, Theſe are thy Gods, but, This is thy God, that brought thee up out of Ægypt. Nor does the Verb, being in the plural Number, make any Infringement to this Truth. For אלהים joined with a Verb of the plural Number is notwithſtanding underſtood of this one true God, as appears from * ſundry Places of Scripture: And to make all ſure, Aaron, after he had made the Calf, is ſaid to build an Altar before it, and to make Proclamation, ſaying, To Morrow is a Feaſt unto the Lord, that is, to Jehovah the known God of the Iſraelites. And the Pſalmiſt taxing this Tranſgreſſion of theirs, They made, ſaith he, a Calf in Horeb, and worſhipped the molten Image. Thus they changed their Glory into the Similitude of an Ox that eateth Graſs. Which Glory whether you refer to God himſelf, or to the conſpicuous Symbols of his Reſidence, which later Ages did more expreſly call כבוד the Glory (and indeed I think may be fetched higher than thoſe times, the Ark of the Covenant being ſo called in the firſt of Samuel, and it may be Pſalm 85. and according to Munſter in the 63. and in Jeremy 2. if the ancient reading was כבורי as Grotius would have it; and laſtly in this very Pſalm, if the ancient Hebrews read not כבורם but כבודו not their Glory, but his Glory, as Grotius alſo ſuggeſts) I ſay, whether it be referred to God himſelf, or to his Symbolical Preſence in the Ark of the Covenant, it is manifeſt that the Worſhip was intended to God, when they adored this graven Image.

Ch. 9. v. 18.

* See Gen. ch. 20. v. 13. ch. 35. v. 7.

Pſal. 106. 19, 20.

1 Sam. 4. 22. Pſal. 85. 9. and 63. 2. Jer. 2. 11.

3. Which as it is moſt certain from theſe Texts of Scripture, ſo it will ſeem leſs ſtrange, if we do but conſider that the Golden Calf which Aaron made was in all Likelihood nothing elſe but the Figure of a Cherub, ſuch as was made by Moſes himſelf, and placed in the Ark. For Cherub ſignifies properly μόσχος a Calf or Ox, from כרב to plow, and is one of thoſe four Animals which are in the Chariot of God, in the Viſion of both Ezekiel and St. John. And it is remarkable in Ezekiel, that when he had reckoned thoſe four ſeveral Forms, of a Man, Lion, Ox, and Eagle, in the firſt Chapter, he repeating the ſame in the tenth, inſtead of Ox puts the Name of Cherub: And every one had four Faces; the firſt Face was the Face of a Cherub, and the ſecond Face was the Face of a Man, and the Third the Face of a Lion, and the fourth the Face of an Eagle. The firſt of theſe therefore muſt needs anſwer to the Face of an Ox ſpecified in the former Chapter. But in the firſt Chapter he obſerves generally of them all, that their Feet were as the Feet of Calves: which is no obſcure Intimation that Aaron's Act was not ſo extravagant as it ſeems at firſt Sight, he erecting ſuch a Symbol of the Divine Preſence as was to be afterward repoſited in the Ark, namely, the Figure of a Cherub, or Golden Calf: But to conceit that ſo holy a Man as Aaron poſed to them the Worſhip of the Ægyptian Apis, and made them an Idol of an Idol, to celebrate a Feſtival to Jehovah by it, is a thing ſo impious, incoherent and exorbitant, that it ſeems utterly incredible.

Ezek. 1. 10. Ezek. 10. 14.

4. Wherefore in brief the Caſe ſeems to ſtand thus. God having by Moſes promiſed to his People his viſible Preſence to conduct them into the Land of Canaan; which Symbolical Preſence was to be in the Ark, and eſpecially in the Cherubim, on which he was ſeen to ſit by Aaron when he was admitted into the Sight of God in the Mount: He being therefore privy to the Deſign of this Manner of repreſenting the Preſence of God by Cherubims or Golden Calves, and Moſes having ſtaid ſo long in the Mount, that both Aaron himſelf and the People took it for granted that he was dead; they requiring of him that he ſhould make good that Promiſe of the ſenſible Preſence of God, and make Gods to conduct them to Canaan, or at leaſt back again to Ægypt, that they might not be loſt and periſh in a barren Wilderneſs, he thought fit in this Exigency of Affairs to erect that Symbol of the Divine Preſence which was intended by Moſes, and ſo made this Cherub in the Form of a Calf, both out of Skill and Integrity. But it was the Vainneſs and Exod. 24. 10.

Wickedneſs of the People to turn it into an Idol by worſhipping it, and ſo to Ægyptianize in the Adoration of the God of Iſrael.

Which he endeavoured as wiſely as he could to prevent, in chuſing this Form rather than that of an Eagle, Lion, or Man; as being the leaſt alluring to religious Worſhip: which was the Reaſon of Moſes his Choice alſo, who is thought to have made both the Cherubims in this Shape. And that idle Miſtake of Tacitus and others, of the Jews worſhipping the Head of an Aſs, may probably be grounded upon the ſeeming Vility of theſe Figures; as being little ſuperiour to thoſe ſlow Creatures: And therefore the more unlikely, ſay I, of ever being intended for Objects of Worſhip, as certainly they were not, but only for Symbolical Repreſentations of the Chariot of God and of his viſible Appearance to the Prophets. Which Viſions themſelves I do not doubt but were a Figure or Symbol of ſome very Noble and ſubſtantial Truths, which would be too long here to dive into.

To this Purpoſe Moncæus argues in his Treatiſe of the Subject, where he purſues the Matter more copiouſly: which if a Man duly conſider, he cannot imagin but the Worſhip given to the Golden Calf was not intended for the Ægyptian Apis or any other Foreign Deity, but for Jehovah himſelf the Lord of Iſrael.

5. And there is the ſame Reaſon aſſuredly of the Golden Calves in Dan and Bethel which Jeroboam ſet up, which will both give Light to and receive Light from this of Aaron, and joyntly prove that they were both ſuch Cherubims as were in the Ark of the Covenant, and that the Sacrifices and Solemnities of the People were intended
V. 26, 27, 28. to Jehovah: As it appears in the firſt of Kings Chap. 12. where it is plain that it was a Fetch of Policy in Jeroboam to ſet up thoſe Cherubims or Golden Calves in Dan and Bethel, for to keep the ten Tribes from revolting to Rehoboam King of Juda, by their going up to do Sacrifice in the Houſe of the Lord at Jeruſalem. Whereupon the King
V. 28. took Counſel, and made two Calves of Gold, and ſaid unto the People, It is too much for you to go up to Jeruſalem: Behold thy Gods, O Iſrael, which brought thee up out of the Land of Ægypt. Which had been falſe and ridiculous to avouch of any ſtrange God; and it had been the moſt unpolitick Action that could be, and contrary to his Deſign, to offer them any ſtrange God to worſhip. For could he hope ſo in a Moment to take off their Devotion from the God of Iſrael, whom they had ſo long ſerved, even from their Childhood; and ſo ſtop their going to Jeruſalem at their ſet times of Solemnities? Surely no: But his Meaning was, that they might ſerve the ſame God here at home, and ſave themſelves the Labour of ſuch tedious Journies; and to this Purpoſe he had ſet up two Golden Cherubs, the acknowledged Symbols of his Preſence, the one in Dan, the other in Bethel, before which they might meet, and ſacrifice, and perform their anniverſary Solemnities to the God of Iſrael as well as if they went to Jeruſalem.

6. And hence it is that when the Worſhip of Baal and that of theſe Golden
2 King 10. 23. Calves came into Competition, theſe latter Worſhippers are called the Servants of the Lord. And Jehu profeſſes his Zeal againſt Baal's Prieſts to be in the Behalf of Jehovah, though he never ceaſed to worſhip the Golden Calves. Elias alſo abets the Tribes of Iſrael againſt ſuch of them as were turned Worſhippers of Baal, as allowing them to be Worſhippers of the true God, though the Iſraelitiſh Mode of 1 King 16. 21 worſhipping Him at that time was in thoſe Golden Calves. If the Lord be God follow Him; if Baal be God, follow him.

2 Kings 17. 26, 27. And when the Aſſyrian Colonies were worried with Lions in Samaria, it is imputed to their Ignorance of the Worſhip of the God of the Place, who was known to be Jehovah; and it was an Iſraelitiſh Prieſt that was ſent back to teach them, that dwelt in Bethel, and taught them certainly after the Manner of Iſrael to worſhip Him in thoſe Golden Cherubims, as they did from Jeroboam's time to that very Day. So little doubt is there but that Jehovah was worſhipped in thoſe Calves of Gold.

7. A like Inſtance to which I conceive is diſcoverable in more early times. As
Jud. 17. in that of Micah's Ephod and Teraphim, and his conſecrated Son, and devout Mother that had dedicated ſuch a Sum of Silver to the Lord, of which an Image was
V. 13. made by the Founder: His eager Entertaining a Levite alſo, in ſtead of his Son whom he had conſecrated to the Lord, and his Bleſſing himſelf for his good Hap in lighting on this Levite, ſaying, Now know I that the Lord will do me good, ſeeing I have a Levite to my Prieſt. All this ſhews plainly that theſe Teraphim were conſulted as the Oracle of the God of Iſrael, I mean as the Oracle of Jehovah: And the Mention of the Ephod would eaſily induce one to believe that the Teraphim were, as St. Jerom conceits ceits of them, in the Form of the Cherubims. And this therefore was the Worſhipping of Jehovah by a bare Image, and is a ſecond undeniable Inſtance of this Kind of unlawful Worſhip.

8. For that this Religion of Micah was unlawful, is intimated in that Epiphonema immediately ſubjoyned to the Mention of his Houſe of Gods, and Ephod, and Teraphim. In thoſe Days there was no King in Iſrael, but every one did that which was right in his own Eyes. Judg. 17. 6. But to make ſhort Work. Either theſe Teraphim and Images were like the Cherubims which Moſes made, or they were other prophane Idols: If the ſecond, the Idolatry is ſo conſpicuous we need purſue the Proof thereof no further: If the firſt, we ſhall yet prove that to be down-right Idolatry, and thereby evince the ſecond to be much more.

That the Worſhipping the Golden Calf in Horeb was Idolatry, though the Worſhip was intended to Jehovah, is plain, both from that Height of Wrath and Diſpleaſure that God conceived againſt them for worſhipping and ſacrificing to the molten Image; Let me alone, ſaith God, that my Wrath may wax hot againſt them, and that I may conſume them: Exod. 32. 10. and alſo from Moſes his being ſo tranſported into Paſſion at the Sight of the thing, that out of the Heat of his Anger he caſt the two Tables of Teſtimony, written with the Finger of God, out of his Hands, and brake them beneath the Mount. V. 19. To which you may add the ſevere Puniſhment, the ſlaying of the Tranſgreſſors, which Moſes commanded, and the Form of his Confeſſion of their Sins to God: Oh this People have ſinned a great Sin, and have made them Gods of Gold. V. 31.

Qui fingit ſacros Auro vel marmore Vultus,
Non facit ille Deos; qui colit, ille facit.

And this was the Sin of the People, even that great Sin of Idolatry, who by worſhipping the Golden Calf that Aaron made, though they intended the Honour to Jehovah, made an Idol thereof: As St. Stephen alſo gives Sentence, They made a Calf, Acts 7. 41. ſaith he, in thoſe Days, and ἀνήγαγον θυσίαν τῷ εἰδώλῳ, offered Sacrifice to the Idol.

9. And Divine Writ gives the ſame Cenſure of the Golden Calves of Jeroboam, in whoſe Days, and till Ahab was ſeduced by his Wife Jezebel, the Worſhip neither of Baal nor any ſtrange God was admitted in Iſrael. 1 Kings 16. 31. Yet Jeroboam, though he worſhipped Jehovah in thoſe Golden Calves, is ſaid to have ordained Prieſts for the high Places and * for Devils. The Original has it לשעירים Faunis or Satyris, for the hairy Dæmons of the Woods or Mountains. * 2 Chron. 11. 15. The Monticulæ Sylvani I ſuppoſe are alluded to, and that in Reproach to his Idolatrous Worſhip of the true God on the high Places; though the Seventy tranſlate it only τοῖς μοσχοις which yet tends to the ſame Senſe; for they alſo tranſlate הבלים (Vanities) εἰδώλοις, in ſeveral Places. Again in the ſecond Book of the Chronicles, there Abijah King of Juda ſpeaking to Iſrael, upbraids to them their Confidence in their Multitude, and in their Golden Calves which Jeroboam made them for Gods; twitting them thereby aſſuredly for their Idolatry; אלהים here anſwering to שעירים in the forecited Place, Dii to Dæmons or Dæmonia. Ch. 13. v. 8.

10. I ſhall only inſtance in one Place more, in the firſt Book of the Kings, where Ahijah the Prophet inſtructed by God ſends this ſmart Meſſage to Jeroboam: Thou haſt done Evil above all that were before thee: For thou haſt gone and made thee other Gods, even molten Images, to provoke me to Anger, and haſt caſt me behind thy Back. Ch. 14. v. 9. Which is the very ſame Cenſure that the Pſalmiſt gives of the worſhipping of the Calf in Horeb; They forgot God their Saviour, that had done great things for them in Ægypt. Pſalm 106. 21. And yet Jeroboam's and the Iſraelites Fault was only the worſhipping of God in thoſe Calves, even that God that brought them out of Ægypt; as appears from the very Title of their Pretenſions in both Places, Theſe are thy Gods that brought thee out of the Land of Ægypt. But the natural Meaning of the Words of Ahijah is this, That they doing Divine Worſhip to any thing beſides God, make thereby a God to themſelves, diſtinct from him whoſe Worſhip is uncapable of any Corrivalry or Copartnerſhip. But this worſhipping of the Golden Calves in Dan and Bethel being ſo like (if not worſe) to the Worſhip of the Golden Calf in Horeb, it had been enough to have proved the former abſolute Idolatry, it neceſſarily following thereupon that this muſt be ſo too.

We might add to theſe a fourth Inſtance, which is The burning of Incenſe to the braſen Serpent; 2 Kings 18. 4. which certainly was not in Honour to any ſtrange God, it being a Monument of thoſe miraculous Cures done by Jehovah the God of Moſes. But it is ſo clear already, that nothing can be clearer, That to worſhip an Image, though the Honour be intended to the true God, is notwithſtanding flat Idolatry.

CHAP.

CHAP. VII.

1. The Worshipping that which is not God by an Image, a third Mode of Idolatry. 2. Of the Worshipping of an Image as such. 3. How the vulgar Sort of the Heathen came to take the very Idols themselves for Gods. 4. What Arguments used for the begetting an Opinion of the Residence of the Dæmons near their Statues. 5. What Indications of their Presence there, and how awful the Images themselves became from thence. 6. The Conceit of the Dæmon and dedicated Image's Coalition into one Person. 7. And that the Worshipping of this Complicate was a fourth Mode of Idolatry.

1. THus we have demonstrated two Modes or Manners of Idolatry; namely, The Worshipping of that which is not God without an Image, and The Worshipping of the true God with one.

From whence the Evincement of a third Mode will follow, viz. That the Worshipping of that which is not God by an Image, is Idolatry; nay, I may say, a double charged Idolatry

For if to give Divine Worship to each apart be Idolatry; to worship both these unlawful Objects at once is double Idolatry. And if the Relation of the external Object of Worship to the true God makes not that Object lawful, no not when it pretends not to be the Shape or Image of the true God, (as certainly the Golden Calf did not pretend it, nor any one think it) then surely a false God cannot make an Image an Object of lawful Worship, no not though it were like it.

2. Nor can any Image of it self without Reference to some other thing be a due Object of Worship. For as the true God is rightly by the Psalmist styled אלהי האלהים the God of Gods; so certainly an Idol may well be esteemed אל׳ האלילים the merest nothing of all nothings, the vaineſt of all Vanities, that can be proposed to be worshipped religiously. From which Consideration arises another Sort of Idolatry, which is The Worshipping of an Image absolutely, without Reference to any thing else, (which would be Idolatry in the strictest Sense, according to the Notation of the Word) if it were practicable. For it seems very hard to worship an Image, we knowing it to be so, merely in Reference to it self; the very Nature of an Image referring to something else.

3. But Men may possibly worship that which is but an Image, without Reference to any other thing; the Garishness or Dreadfulness thereof strongly working upon the Minds of the more simple to conceit some strange Divinity in it, which is not. Which according to some Passages in Scripture seems to be the Condition of the vulgar Sort of the Heathen. As in Psalm 135. 15. and again in the 115. 4. עצבי הגוים Dolores or Terricula Gentium, The Fear and Awe of the Gentiles) that is, their Gods) are but Images of Silver and Gold, &c. which Images, though they were the next Way to bring all Religion into Contempt amongst the more crafty and Nasute, yet the Golden Splendour and Magnificency of them did, it seems, so perstringe the Eyes of the simple Sort, that they took them to be very Gods; as appears plainly out of these Places of the Psalms, and very copiously out of the Epistle of Jeremy. Which Censure both of Jeremy and of the Psalmist is notwithstanding so to be understood, as not to engage us to think that the Heathen had no other Objects of their Worship, but the very Idols themselves. For (as I have above intimated) in all Likelihood these עצבים, these awful Objects of their superstitious Worship, were first the Dæmons themselves; whether the Ghosts of the departed, or other Devils; who sometimes, though not so very frequently, have miraculously shown their Presence in these Images or Statues, as if they were in them, did actuate 'em, or were in some wonderful Manner assistant to 'em; the Fame whereof being continued, conciliated that superstitious Reverence to these Idols from the Vulgar, as if they had been living and powerful Deities.

Origen. contra Cels. lib. 7.

4. Origen speaks of the Religation of these Dæmons near their Statues, whether by Magical Incantation, or that, like so many smell-Feasts, they hankered near the Altars, to enjoy the nidorous Fumes of the Sacrifices, λίχνως μεταλαμβάνοντες τῆς ἀπὸ θυομένων ἀποφορᾶς, Liquorsomely partaking of the diffused Reek of the things sacrificed.

It is likely the imposing Priests would pretend either of these to the People (though not in that odious Scheme) as Perswasions of the Presence of the Dæmons themselves in these consecrated Places and Images. And truly the unctuous Vapours from from the burning of the Sacrifices ſeems a more ſuitable Entertainment for them than the groſs Blood: Which yet Maimonides ſaies the Zabii conceived to be their Repaſt, and therefore ate it themſelves to communicate with them. Doct. perplex. part. 3. c. 40.

5. But as appears by Origen, in his third Book againſt Celſus, there were yet more evident Demonſtrations of the Preſence of theſe Dæmons in their Temples and Statues, by rendring of Oracles, by healing of Diſeaſes, and tormenting the ſuperſtitious if they tranſgreſſed in any Punctilio of religious Service to them. Theſe he calls δαίμονας μαντικὰς καὶ ἰατρικὰς, whom he intimates to be ſmart Monitors to them that violated their Rites, πρὸς τὸ δεδίττεσθαι τὸν πολὺν καὶ ἀπαίδευτον, to terrify the rude Multitude. But whether theſe Terrors were occaſioned by the Frauds of the Prieſts, or were the Effects of the Malignity of the Dæmons themſelves; I will not here diſpute. But queſtionleſs it ſtruck a great Dread into the ſimple People of the Images themſelves, as if there were a Power and Divinity in them. Origen contra Celſ. lib. 3.

6. But yet I am not come to what I was aiming at, which is, A Conceit of ſo near an Union of the Dæmon and the Statue, as if they were one ſacred Animal or Perſon. For ſuch certainly the Tyrians thought the Statue of Apollo, who, by binding it with golden Chains, conceived they tied Apollo himſelf ſo faſt to them, that he could not go away. As the Athenians alſo ſeem to have preſumed concerning the Image of Victory, who, by clipping her Wings off, thought to keep the Goddeſs herſelf from flying from them.

Which Opinion certain prodigious Paſſages in theſe Kind of Images might very well foment. As that in the Image of the God Adranus, who, when the Adranites were engaged in a War, was ſeen to ſweat copiouſly, as alſo to ſhake the Top of his Spear; as Plutarch relates in the Life of Timoleon. And Valerius Maximus* alſo writes how the Statues of Juno Moneta and of Fortuna ſpoke; the one ſignifying her Willingneſs to go to Rome, the other approving the Manner of her Conſecration; Ritè me Matronæ vidiſtis, ritéq; dedicâſtis. * Lib. 1. c. 1.

The Teraphim alſo of the Gentiles (? which were made under a certain Figure or Conſtellation of the Heavens) were erected to receive Anſwers from as Oracles, and in all Likelihood are the Statuæ animatæ futurorum Conſciæ, which Triſmegiſt ſpeaks of in Aſclepius, and of which kind of ſpeaking Statues are ſundry Stories; but I have run out too far already.

7. The Caſe that emerges from the Conſideration of the Occaſions of the People's thinking theſe dedicated Statues or Images (whether it be from the fame of Truth, or mere Conceit) to be living and real Deities, is this, Whether they can be ſaid to be Idolatrous in giving Divine Worſhip to them, not as to the Images of any thing elſe, but (according to their Belief) as to true and living Gods. In which Point I conceive there is very little Difficulty. For if the Worſhip of that which is not God, under the Notion of a ſaving and living Deity, be not Idolatry, there will be none found Idolaters, but thoſe that think they wipe their Mouth cleaneſt of this Fornication, by pretending they worſhip not the Image it ſelf, but in Reference to the Deity whoſe Image it is; but in the mean time give Religious Worſhip to what is no Deity, but a dead Being.

But we have above proved, That the worſhipping the Sun and Moon or any Dæmon, though without an Image, is Idolatry, (and I think there is no Chriſtian that did ever ſtick to confeſs it;) wherefore the worſhipping of an Image, or the Complicate of an Image and a Dæmon actuating it, for a Deity, which is not the true and only Godhead Almighty and infinite, but finite Being, and ſuch as there may be many others beſides, is without all peradventure down-right Idolatry, which we may obſerve to be a Fourth Mode thereof.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

1. That the Heathen held one ſupreme God the Maker of all things. 2. Proclus his Conceit of ſo uniting the ſupreme Deity with a Magical Statue, as that the Complicate becomes one viſible and ſupream Godhead. 3. Whether the worſhipping of this Magical Complicate by him that is perſwaded it is the viſible Deity, were Idolatry. 4. Wherein the Sinfulneſs of Idolatry does conſiſt, and that the Worſhip of this Magical Statue was a fifth Mode thereof. 5. The Reduction of other Caſes to theſe Five Modes of Idolatry. 6. That the Worſhipping any thing but God, is Idolatry; and of Numa's caſting away Image-Worſhip, and of the Affinity of his Religion with Pythagoriſm. 7. The firſt Pollution of that Philoſophy, and that the Object of Divine Worſhip is as well One as Inviſible.

1. BUT there is yet another Caſe behind, with which we will conclude. That the better Sort of the Heathen were not ſo ignorant of the Deity, but that they acknowledged the Unity of his Eſſence, his Omnipotency alſo, and his Omniſcience, were an eaſie thing to prove, if it were not admitted at the firſt Offer. Falluntur in Nomine, ſed de una Proteſtate conſentiunt qui Jovem Principem volunt, ſaith Minutius Felix. And I think he ſpoke ſparingly in their Praiſe in that he ſaid they were miſtaken in the Name. For Jovis is ſo near to Jovah, that to deduce it from Juvo rather than from יהוה is like fetching the Notation of Fur from Furvus, rather than from the Greek Word φῶς· for which Gellius reprehends Varro.

Noct. Attic. lib. 1. c. 18.

That the Inhabitants of Thebais worſhipped the Maker of the World, the Statue wherein they worſhipped him witneſſes for them, it being the Image of a Man with an Egg coming out of his Mouth: As if the Meaning was ſo exactly Moſaical, or Chriſtian, as to intimate not only the Creatour of the World, but that he created it by his Word. And * Dion Chryſoſtomus and * Maximus Tyrius, both Heathens, do plainly profeſs that in their Images of Gold and Silver and Ivory they worſhipped the moſt high God, the Maker and Conſerver of all things. But I will not enter into any copious Proof of this, the bare Suppoſition ſerving my Turn.

Pier. Hieroglyph. lib. 59.

* Dion. Chryſoſt. Orat. 12. περὶ τῆς πρώτης τοῦ θεοῦ ἐννοίας.

* Max. Tyr. diſſert. 38.

2. Let us therefore ſuppoſe that ſome Heathen Philoſopher, who knew the true God of the Univerſe, but was not yet cleanſed from the Practice of Image-worſhip, ſhould either himſelf believe, or at leaſt for ſome Ends beſt known to himſelf ſhould fully perſwade another, that there is ſome ſuch myſterious Art as Proclus ſeems to glance at, in his ſhort Treatiſe De Sacrificio & Magia: where, upon this Ground, That there is ſuch a cloſe Concatenation of Terreſtrial with Celeſtial, and of Celeſtial with ſuperceleſtial Eſſences, as alſo ſuch a particular Reſpect or Harmony of ſeveral of the one with ſeveral of the other, he would inſinuate to us, That there is a ſecret Method of framing a Magical Statue out of certain choice Materials; which Divine Symbols rightly mingled, and adapted into an Image conſecrated by ſome myſterious Prieſt or Magus, will become Unum tale quale Divinum exiſtit ſecundum eſſentiam, and therefore by Power of Cognation and Similitude will not fail to fetch down Jupiter Olympius himſelf from his higheſt or inmoſt ſuperceleſtial Throne, and make him vitally actuate this Divine Statue in ſuch Sort that the Statue and Divinity it ſelf ſhall become one viſible Jupiter.

3. The Queſtion now emerging from hence is, Whether if a ſimple Soul, being ſtruck by the Confidence and Canting of this impoſturous Magician into a full Belief that this Statue is become the viſible, but the true and eternal God of Heaven and Earth, ſhould therefore worſhip that Divine Complicate as is pretended, (though it be really a mere Figment) for the true God, this Act of Worſhip be blameleſs and irreprehenſible, or whether it conſtitute a Fifth Mode of Idolatry. For it may be ſaid in his Excuſe, it was well meant, and that he intended his Worſhip for the true God; which was not in the foregoing Caſe. But, as I ſaid before, if Ignorance will excuſe from Idolatry, Philoſophers will be the only Men that will be found capable of that Crime. And in the former Caſe, though they had not ſo true a Notion of God as is competible but to one, yet they thought they had lighted on a due Object of religious Worſhip, if that might plead their Excuſe. And he that, in this laſt Caſe, had the right Notion of the true God, yet miſſes the Mark in Application, and adores a mere Idol. And though it be in Reference to the true God, I mean, really meant meant to him; yet to ſerve Him in an Idol, is Idolatry; but to take an Idol to be Him, far worſe.

4. In brief, the Sinfulneſs of any Idolatry, towards God, conſiſts chiefly, if not ſolely, in either a Kind of Injuſtice to him, or Reproach of Him, or both. Now I demand of any Man whether it be not a greater Reproach to the true God to take a mere Idol to be Him, than to apply that Worſhip which we uſe to Him (and which always falls infinitely ſhort of Him) unto that which is but an Idol: or whether it be not a leſſer Piece of Injuſtice to take that Mite of Honour (for all that we can do is no more) which is due to God, and give to an Idol, than to take God from himſelf, as it were, by taking that to be Him which is ſo infinitely debaſed below Him? As it would be a greater Piece of Injuſtice to ſteal a Prince out of his Cradle, and leave a Changeling in his Room, than to take away his Mantle to wrap a Changeling in; and a far leſs Reproach to fit a Scepter and Tiara to the Hand and Head of Cyrus his Ape, and then do the Perſian Reverence to him, than to take this Ape to be King Cyrus himſelf. For the former may be interpreted only a ridiculous Exceſs of Reſpect and Homage unskilfully intended to the King himſelf in thus royally adorning and reverentially courting his Ape: But this latter the groſſeſt and moſt ſottiſh Reproach imaginable; namely, for Want of a duly prefigured Idea of a Royal Prince, not to diſtinguiſh ſo Heroical a Perſonage as King Cyrus from an ordinary Ape or Monkey. And yet that myſterious Statue above mentioned, into which the preſtigious Magus or Pagan Prieſt would pretend to have vitally incorporated the true God of the Univerſe, any one will acknowledge to be more vile than theſe vileſt of Animals. So plain is it that this fifth Caſe will conſtitute a fifth Mode of Idolatry, and that a very Rank one too.

5. And theſe Five Inſtances of Idolatry ſhall ſerve our Turn to have recourſe to, as plain Patterns of that ſo hainous a Crime, there ſcarce being any Caſe which is not reducible to theſe either directly, or analogically. For the Religious Worſhip of Rivers, Plants, or Animals, ſuch as the Egyptians worſhipped, as they are natural Things, are to be referred to the firſt Claſſis; as Repreſentatives of a more hidden Numen, to the Second. Pictures alſo to the Second; and conſecrated Pillars and Stones, ſuppoſe they have no Image on them, are to be referred to Statues, if Divine Worſhip be done unto them: As that Stone which had only the Footſtep of Hercules on it, which the Thracians worſhipped; and another Four-ſquare one which Maximus Tyrius ſays was worſhipped by the Arabians. To which you may add the Lapis Manalis of the Romans, and their Terminus Lapideus in the Capitol. Pier. Hieroglo lib. 49.

6. And in brief, to hold you in no longer Suſpence, upon the View of all Particulars, the common Notion or Idea of Idolatry does undoubtedly conſiſt in this, namely, In the giving Religious or Divine Worſhip to any thing that is not truly God; as certainly no viſible Thing is, that either Nature or Art can exhibit. And therefore it is ſaid in Deuteronomy, You heard a Voice, but ſaw no Similitude. According to which is that Dogma of Pythagoras which Plutarch notes in the Life of Numa. Οὔτε γὰρ ἀιδιότον ἢ παθητὸν, ἀόρατον ἢ καὶ ἀπήρατον καὶ νοητὸν εἶναι τὸ πρῶτον. Which made Numa caſt away all Images in Divine Worſhip, but he erected a Temple that bore the Similitude of the World, that great and auguſt Temple of God, placing the τὸ ἄσβεστον πῦρ, the Veſtal Fire, in the midſt thereof. Wherein he did alſo Pythagorize, though he lived ſome Ages before Pythagoras flouriſhed. Which is a Witneſs of an happy Combination of the profoundeſt Skill in Nature and the pureſt Religion, in that Philoſophy which was afterwards called Pythagorical, of any that ever could be found, out of the acknowledged Church of God, and may well amuſe us from whence they had it, if not from thence. Chap. 4. v. 12

7. But then the Purity of this Philoſophy abated, when ever they admitted the Worſhip of Angels. For the due Object of our Worſhip is One, as well as Inviſible: Hear, O Iſrael, the Lord thy God is One, and there is no God beſides Him: of which the immediate Conſequence is, that he alone is to be worſhipped; according as our Saviour Chriſt has alſo ratifyed it, Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and Him alone ſhalt thou ſerve. And the Author to the Hebrews arguing the Divinity of Chriſt, produces that in the Pſalms, Let all the Angels of God worſhip Him. Which, if Religious Worſhip were not due to that alone which is God, would not infer Chriſt's Divinity. Deut. 6. 4. Luk. 4. 8. Chap. 1. 6.

And laſtly, even the very ſecond Council of Nice, who were over-favourable to Images, did yet condemn the Arians of Idolatry in holding Chriſt but a Creature, and not very God. And Neſtorius was ſtigmatized with the odious Style of ἀνθρωπολάτρης ἀνθρωπότης or Man-worshipper, in that he held Christ a mere Man. For both the Arians and Nestorians held that Christ was to be worshipped, though he was but a Creature; which that Synod concluded absolute Idolatry, whether the Worship be with an Image or without it. As also the Synod of Laodicea makes the praying to Angels Idolatry. And Epiphanius concerning the Persians, he says they abhor Images, and yet they worship Idols; meaning the Sun, Moon, and Fire. Gregory Nazianzen likewise (as I have above noted) places Idolatry simply in transferring that Worship which is due to the Creator, upon the Creature; according to which Notion Aquinas and Bellarmine define it. And, lastly, St. Jerome roundly affirms Idololatram factum esse, si quis tres Deos credit. See Dr. Rainolds, De Romanæ Ecclesiæ Idololatria.

Lib. 2. cap. 9.

So plain is it that Idolatry is not confined to the Worshipping of an Image, but to the admitting of more Objects of Divine Worship than that one true God. For the Worshipping any more is that עבודה זרה, as the Jews call it, and is most frequently and most significantly termed in Scripture Fornication, which looks more at the Plurality of the Objects of Worship than the Kinds of them. For this Spiritual Fornication is committed where we worship any thing besides Him that is the Creator and Conserver of all things.

CHAP. IX.

1. The Necessity of knowing what Religious Worship is, for the discovering of Idolatry. 2. The Faultiness of the Distribution of Worship into Latria, Dulia, and Cultus civilis. 3. That Christ only, who is ἀνθρωποθεός, has such a middle Excellency as may admit Religious Worship. 4. That the Excess of Excellency in God above that in Saints and Angels is so infinitely more than the Excess of Excellency in Saints and Angels above that in Men, that it is extremely forced and irrational to allot Worship of one Denomination to the First and Second, and not rather to the Second and last, which, they being Fellow-Citizens, might rightly be called Civil. 5. That no kind of Religious Worship is due to Saints and Angels, proved by the Angel's Refusing to be worshipped by S. John. 6. And also from the near Affinity of our Natures with theirs. 7. To whom Origen pronounces good Men equal, nor allows the glorious Stars, though they were intellectual, to be worshipped. 8. That the Religious Worship of Saints and Angels is no Duty of ours, as being reducible to the Precepts of neither Table. 9. That Religious Worship is but one, and due to God only, proved from our Saviour's Answer to the Devil. 10. As also from the Author to the Hebrews, arguing the Divinity of Christ from Religious Worship due to Him, with several other Testimonies. 11. An Answer to an Objection.

1. THus we have found out the adequate Latitude of the Object of Idolatry: that it is whatsoever is not truly God, πᾶν τὸ μὴ φύσει ὂν Θεὸς, as the Apostle speaks to the Galatians. But unless we have also the Knowledge of what is Religious or Divine Worship, and when or by what we give this Worship to that which is not truly God, we shall be still at a loss how to discern when our selves or any one else commits Idolatry, and when not.

Chap. 4. v. 8.

2. There are some who for the better palliating their unjustifiable Practices have framed a smooth Story; namely, That there are as many Kinds of Honour or Worship as there are of Excellency; and that therefore there being three kinds of Excellency, Divine, Humane, and a middle betwixt Humane and Divine, as that supernatural Grace and Glory of the Saints and Angels, there are also three kinds of Worship, Latria, Dulia, and Cultus civilis. But the Distribution had had less Fraud and better Logick in it, if it had been bipartite; for then would have appeared more plainly what kind of Worship they mean by Dulia. For they will not have it Civil Worship, in that it is a Distinct Member therefrom. It remains therefore that it must be Religious Worship, though they were afraid to speak out what they harbour in their Breast. For indeed Religion, which in its prime and proper Sense is nothing else but Cultus Numinis, belongs de jure only to the true God; and if it be transferred to any thing else, it is Idolatry and Superstition.

But if they would have dealt above-board, and like honest Men and exact Logicians, they should have distributed Honour or Worship, First into Religious and Civil, and then then according to the Senſe that they intended, ſubdivided Religious Worſhip into Latria and Dulia. But this being craftily aimed at and ſuppoſed, though not ſo plainly expreſſed, and indeed being the chief thing intended, That Religious Worſhip is due to Saints and Angels as well as to God Himſelf, I ſhall direct my Anſwer only againſt this Miſtake.

3. Firſt therefore I ſay, That that Ground of allotting Religious Worſhip to Saints and Angels is very weak, namely, becauſe they have a middle Excellency betwixt God and Man. For it is plain they have not in a due and ſtrict Senſe; that being a Privilege belonging to Chriſt alone, who is the acknowledged θεανθρωπος, God-Man, and therefore may juſtly be worſhipped with Religious Worſhip. Wherefore there being nothing that has truly a middle Excellency betwixt God and Man, (as a Zoophyton may be rightly ſaid to have a middle Excellency betwixt an Animal and a Plant) ſaving the Man Chriſt Jeſus; there is no Creature capable of Religious Worſhip beſides Him: nor is he indeed capable thereof but in Virtue of that myſterious Union with the true Godhead, and thereby becoming as well God as Man.

4. And then again, there is another Fraud, and indeed the more principal and original one, in the Diſtribution of theſe Excellencies immediately into Three, whenas it had been more faithfully and logically done to have diſtributed Excellency, firſt into Created and Increated; and then Created Excellency into that of Saints and Angels, and that of Men. But hereby the Boldneſs and Groſsneſs of their aſſigning Religious Worſhip to that which is but a Creature would have appeared at firſt Sight; the Creator ſtanding in Counterdiſtinction to it, who is infinitely more Excellent than any glorified Creature whatſoever; or rather, whoſe Degree of Excellency above the moſt glorious Creature that is, is infinitely greater than the Degree of Excellency of Saints and Angels above Men.

Whence it plainly appears what a raſh and forced thing it is to hold together two Excellencies betwixt which there is that infinite Diſtance, in one common Capacity of receiving Religious Worſhip; I mean the Divine Excellency, and that of Angels and Saints: whenas the Humane Excellency and that of Saints and Angels are infinitely nearer one another, and therefore infinitely more fit to receive Worſhip of one common Denomination to both. Which may very well be termed Civil, the glorified Saints and Angels and good Men being but Fellow-Servants and Fellow-Citizens of that new Jeruſalem which reaches from Heaven to Earth; according as it is written, But you are come to Mount Sion, and to the City of the living God, the Heavenly Jeruſalem, and to an innumerable Company of Angels, and the Spirits of juſt Men made perfect. Which ſhews plainly that Saints and Angels and good Men upon Earth are all of one Communialty, Citizens of the ſame City, the new Jeruſalem; and Fellow-Citizens you know do not give Religious Worſhip one to another, but only Civil. Heb. 12.

5. Nor yet Fellow-Servants; as the Angel argues to John in the Apocalyps; And I fell at his Feet to worſhip him. And he ſaid unto me, See thou do it not; I am thy fellow-Servant, and of thy Brethren that have the Teſtimony of Jeſus: Worſhip God. Now if the Angel here refuſed Civil Worſhip, how groundleſs a thing were it, nay how diſallowable, to have offered him Religious Worſhip? And if he refuſed Religious Worſhip though preſent, how unlawful is this Worſhip, ſuppoſe but Dulia, to a Saint or Angel being abſent? And if that Worſhip tendred was Latria, and not Dulia, why did not the Angel rather ſay, I am thy Fellow-Creature, than thy Fellow-Servant? And laſtly, if Dulia be a warrantable Worſhip, and rightly given to Angels, why was not that Angel ſo charitable as to interpret John's Worſhipping him, to be that Kind that was lawful and warrantable? Or why was he ſo uncharitable to the Church, or injurious to his fellow-Angels, as to vex the one with Scrupuloſities about this Duty of Worſhipping Angels and Saints, by his ſo nice declining the Homage, and to deprive the other of their due, by his ſo eminent Example, that in all Likelihood would be ſo prevalent with the Church, that it would hazard the Belief of the whole Duty of Angel-worſhip? But I believe the Diſtinction of Dulia and Latria is ſo ſubtil, that the Eye of an Angel could never ſpie out any ſuch Chink or leaſt Crack in Religious Worſhip, whereby it might be broke aſunder, or ſo divided that any the ſmalleſt Part thereof may fall to the Share of that which is not truly God; as Saints and Angels aſſuredly are not. So plainly doth it appear both from the Senſe of Scripture, and that infinite Diſproportion betwixt the Diſtances that are found betwixt God and the Creature, and betwixt the Creatures themſelves, that only Civil, not Religious Worſhip is competible to them. Chap. 19.

6. But thirdly, There is not only this infinitely-vaſt Diſtance betwixt God and a Creature, the beſt Saint or Angel that is; but there is (which I have already given an Hint of) a very cloſe Cognation and near Affinity of Nature betwixt Saints and Angels and Good-men. For as for the glorified Saints and Good-men upon Earth, beſides that they are of the ſame Species in their natural Reſpects, ſo their Graces are alike, though not in the like Meaſure; they both being Regenerate by one and the ſame Spirit, and therefore are both in a ſupernatural Condition. How then can that Honour due to the one and the other toto Genere differre, that one muſt be Religious Worſhip, the other Civil?

And there is ſo little Difference betwixt a glorified Saint and an Angel, that a good Man will be found to bear the ſame Proportion of Excellency to both; and therefore it is plain that Religious Worſhip is due to neither.

Contra Celſ. lib. 5.

7. Origen, though he can admit the Sun and Stars (out of his Want of better Skill in Philoſophy) to be ζῶα λογικὰ καὶ σπουδαῖα, to be rational and virtuous Creatures, nay ſo holy and ſo good as to put up their Prayers unceſſantly to God through his only-begotten Son; yet he does ſtrenuouſly dehort from adoring them or praying to them: which Creatures notwithſtanding were vaſtly more glorious than any glorified Saint, if they were ſuch as Origen ſurmiſes, οὐ μόνον διὰ τὸ θαυμαζόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν πολλῶν τὸ αἰσθητὸν φῶς, ἀλλὰ καὶ διὰ τὸ νοητὸν καὶ ἀληθινόν, not only in Regard of their ſenſible Light admired by the Vulgar, but for the True and Intellectual. How far think you then would this holy Father have been from allowing Religious Worſhip to either Angel or Saint? Nay he ſpeaks a bold Word in another Place; Ἀλλ' οὐδὲ τοὺς σπουδαίους καὶ μακαρίους, But neither are the good and bleſſed Genii or Angels, as we call them, ſaith he, above Men once accompliſhed in Reaſon and Virtue. How could he then ever have dreamed of giving Religious Worſhip to Saints, in whom there is ſomething a nearer Likeneſs or Cognation with us?

8. Fourthly, If there be any ſuch Religious Worſhip as Dulia, to the Duties of which of the two Tables does it belong? To the Firſt or to the Second Table? The Second concerns our Duty to our Neighbour. But if Saints or Angels be our Neighbours, how comes Religious Worſhip due to them? If they be not, how come the Dues of the Second Table to be challenged by them? If Dulia therefore have any Place at all in the Tables, it muſt, according to our Adverſary's Suppoſal, be referred to the Firſt. But to which of the Commandments therein? Does God his forbidding to have any Gods beſides himſelf infer Divine Worſhip due to Angels or Saints? Or his being a Jealous God, that his Pleaſure is to be worſhipped in an Idol? For ſuch is every thing that is not God, and yet is religiouſly worſhipped. Wherefore he that will aſſert that Dulia is a Duty owing to Saints and Angels, muſt forge a Third Table for it, and have the Impudence to add it to the Decalogue, and blame Moſes for a very great Omiſſion. For there were as worthy Angels, and as capable of Religious Worſhip, in his Time as ever there were ſince.

9. Fifthly and laſtly, Thoſe two Places which I produced to prove That God alone is to be worſhipped, will alſo prove That religious Worſhip is but one: as that in St. Luke, Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and Him alone ſhalt thou ſerve. The Force of which Anſwer made to the Devil by Chriſt, when he would have tempted Him to fall down and worſhip him, ſurely conſiſts in this, That no Religious Worſhip is to be given to any but God alone. For that the Devil did not require that which is called Latria, is evident in that he did diſcover himſelf not to be the Higheſt Numen, in acknowledging that the Diſpoſing of the Kingdoms of the Earth and the Glory of them was but committed to him from another, ὅτι παραδέδοταί μοι, and therefore he had them not from himſelf, and conſequently did not pretend to be the moſt high God from whom are all things. Wherefore the Devil could not be ſo unreaſonable as to expect, nor ſo fooliſh as to demand, that our Saviour ſhould do any Worſhip unto him as to the moſt High-God, whenas he had already confeſſed himſelf not to be ſo: but that which he drove at was to get Him to do Religious Worſhip to him, ſuch as is done to the many Gods of the Nations on this ſide of the Notion of the moſt High.

Chap. 4.

But the Senſe of our Saviour's Anſwer is, That there is not any Religious Worſhip at all belonging to any ſaving God alone: and being out of Patience (if I may ſo ſpeak) at the Motion to ſo impious an Act, he calls him Devil, for that ſo enormous a Suggeſtion; none but Devils either requiring or admitting the doing of any Religious Worſhip to them. He does not abſtain from worſhipping him becauſe he was a Devil, but concludes him a Devil, becauſe he not being the true God, would yet be religiouſly worſhipped. Nor did he anſwer, Thou ſhalt only worſhip God and the good Angels; but, Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and Him alone ſhalt thou ſerve. Wherefore there is but one only Religious Worſhip, namely that which is due to God alone.

10. The

10. The like also is manifestly inferred from that to the Hebrews, where the Author of that Epistle proving the Divinity of Christ, cites that of the Psalms, Let all the Angels of God worship Him: which questionless is understood of Religious Worship, or else it would be nothing to the Purpose; and yet if there be two kinds of Religious Worship, Latria and Dulia, it will be still as little. So plain is it that there is but one Religious Worship, which is appropriate to God alone. Nor could the Arians by the Council of Nice be justly deemed Idolaters, nor Nestorius an ἀνθρωπολάτρης, if there be more kinds of Religious Worship than one. For neither Nestorius nor the Arians could mean by that Worship they gave Christ, the Worship of Latria; for that had been expresly to acknowledge him to be what they so obstinately denied him to be, namely, the True and Eternal God.

Wherefore the Synod and St. Cyril, and as many else as judged the Arians Idolaters and Nestorius an Anthropolatra, do plainly give Witness that Religious Worship is but one.

11. Nor can that affectionate Respect we shew either to the Bible when we kiss it, upon the taking of an Oath, or that which we do to the holy Prophets of God, or his Priests and faithful Ministers, when we reverence them as such, disturb our Account, or in any Likelihood pretend to be an Example of another kind of Religious Worship. For I absolutely deny that it is any Religious either Respect or Affection at all to the Bible, or to a Man of God; but out of that Religious Respect and Affection we bear to God himself, another emerges toward those things that relate to Him, but quite of another kind; to Persons, Civil; but to inanimate things, if they be compared with Persons that are holy, it were scarce any Boldness to adventure to say it is a Species of Respect less than Civil: But Differences are where we have no Names to call them by.

And it seems to me as absurd to infer, Because I have a Respect for the Bible or any holy Man of God, from a religious Regard I bear to God himself, that this to the Bible or the holy Man is also a Religious Reverence or Respect; as to infer, because a Woman out of that conjugal Affection and Respect she bears to her Husband, has also from thence (which otherwise she would not have) a Respect and Affection for his Spaniel, that that Affection or Respect she bore to the Spaniel, should either be, or be called, a conjugal Affection: which is harsh and ridiculous at first Sight.

CHAP. X.

1. A right Distribution of Worship into its Kinds. 2. The Definition of Religious Worship. 3. That the exhibiting of Honour to any undue Object, though forcedly or feignedly, by Signs appropriate to the Acknowledgment of the Divine Excellencies, is palpable Idolatry. 4. And that therefore there are no Stints, or specifick Degrees of Religious Worship; no Dulia, nor Hyperdulia, but all Latria. 5. That Religious Worship is not applied to a thing by directing it towards it as a Circumstance, but as an Object; and therefore the Misapplication thereof as to an Object is requisite to Idolatry. 6. But not that this Application should be made as to God himself. 7. That the Heathens themselves never committed such a Piece of Idolatry, as to give Religious Worship to that which they knew not to be the supreme God, as to the Supreme. 8. That Religious Worship being but One, makes every Application thereof to what is not God, Idolatry. 9. That the Inculcation of the Divinity of Christ proves every Creature uncapable of Religious Worship.

1. WHerefore we being so well satisfied concerning the Oneness of Religious Worship, we shall be able to make a more true and logical Distribution of Honour or Worship than what was above produced; dividing it immediately, first into Religious and Civil; and then Civil into Political, Oeconomical, and Moral; and Political again into Secular and Ecclesiastical, or else into Temporal and Spiritual, either Terms being well enough known. By Moral Worship I understand such Honour or Respect as passes from private Men one to another, or at least as to private, upon Account of moral Worth; such as Liberality, Wisdom, Fidelity, and the like: the rest the very Words will interpret. Nor is it pertinent to my Scope to meddle with any but the First, namely, Religious Worship; for the understanding the Nature whereof I have taken all these Pains hitherto.

2 Which

2. Which I conceive is rightly defined thus: A devotional Acknowledgment of the incommunicable Name or Excellency of God, by the Performance of some outward Rite or Ceremony appropriated to that End or Purpose, namely, of externally signifying our inward Acknowledgment of the Divine Name or Excellency. This is a true and the most general Definition that can be made of Religious Worship. For that Religion that is placed in worshipping Saints, Angels, Demons, Images, and the like, is truly Irreligion, Idolatry, or Superstition: but is no more to be called Religious Worship, than Vice Virtue, Injustice Justice, or Cowardise Fortitude, whatever Abuses of the Word may have crept in by the Unskilful and Inconsiderate.

3. Now since the giving of Religious Worship to that which is not God, is Idolatry, and that Religious Worship in this true and proper Sense is nothing else but a devotional Acknowledgment of the Divine Eminency, by certain appropriate Signes significative of this our Agnition; it is demonstratively evident, that where there is such a devotional Acknowledgment by these Signes made to that which is not God, it is ipso facto Idolatry.

Nay though these appropriate Signes were used without Devotion by the Party toward the supposed Object, (which is worthy our Observation, and true; because a plenary Pravity or Defect is not requisite for a vicious Action) and were intended only by other Men to be directed thither, or only were interpretable by Custom to be so directed, it were Idolatry notwithstanding: Or else the Sin of Idolatry could not be forced upon any Man, nor needed any either Jew or Christian to have scrupled the flinging Incense on the Altar to any Pagan-Deity, no not to have sacrificed whole Hecatombs to them, if their Purses would have born it: And whoever died Martyrs upon this Account, it were to be imputed rather to their Madness or Folly than to any true and solid Piety.

Wherefore as it would be Blasphemy, though it were extorted by Fear, and that a Man's Heart gave not assent thereto, to say, That Jesus Christ was not the Son of God, but an Impostour: so the using of the appropriate Signs of the Acknowledgment of the Divine Excellency to that which is not God, though the Assent go not along, is notwithstanding the Acknowledging of that to be God which is not, (as that Blasphemy was the denying of him to be that was) and therefore cannot chuse but be flat Idolatry.

4. And if Idolatry be committed without the Parties Devotion toward the undue Object, then let a Man fancy this external Religious Worship accompanied with as small Degrees of Devotion or inward Intention as he pleases, it will not fail to be Idolatry still. Which Consectary is of singular Use for the convincing Men of the Folly of such Subterfuges as are sought in the new-coined Terms of Dulia and Hyperdulia and Latria, whereby they would signifie certain Differences or Degrees of religious Worship, indeed distinct Kinds thereof; whenas it can be but one, according to that true Definition we have given of it. For every Act or Effect of our Religious Affection to God, expressed toward things or Persons, is not straightway Religious Worship, as may plainly appear from the Definition thereof, and from what we have already intimated in the foregoing Chapter. But to return to the Matter in Hand.

5. By this general Notion therefore of Religious Worship, we have got now a considerable Step nearer the Discovery when Idolatry is committed; namely, when we perform some Rite or Ceremony, that is to say, some external religious Action, appropriate to the signifying our Acknowledgment of the Divine Eminency, before, or rather unto that which is not truly God. Where by before, or unto, I understand an intended Direction (by our selves, or by others, or at least by Interpretation of Custom) of this religious Action, as to an Object we should honour thereby. For that is the only thing whereby the Action becomes Idolatry. For there will be always a Necessity of performing our religious Rites before or towards something or other by Way of Circumstance of Place, which yet may be without the least Guilt or Suspicion of that Crime. Wherefore it is the intended and accustomary Application of the appropriate Signs of the Acknowledgment of the Divine Excellencies unto an Object where the Divine Excellencies are not, that is to say, to any thing that is not truly God, which is this hainous Sin of Idolatry. Thus much, I say, must be; and thus much alone, without the Superaddition of any thing else, does fully complete the Nature of that Sin.

6. For those that fancy themselves so marvellously slie and subtil in foisting in this Requisite more, viz. "That the Application of these Signs appropriated to the signifying of that Honour we owe to God must, in Idolatry, be made to the Creature

" ture, as to God himſelf, that is to ſay, with an Intent of conciliating to the ado-
" red Creature the Eſteem of being very God; do aſſuredly commit a groſs Piece of Folly in daring to make ſuch an Aſſertion.

For as a Woman that renders or gives up to one that is not her Husband what is appropriate to her Husband, to wit the Uſe of her Body, let her fancy what mental Reſtrictions or Directions of her Intention ſhe will in the Act, is queſtionleſs a downright Adultereſs: So whoſoever applies the Appropriate Acknowledgments of the Divine Excellency, which is Religious Worſhip, to that which is not God, let him mince it as well as he can with mental Limitations and Reſtrictions, if he once paſs this Religious Worſhip upon this undue Object, he is thereby without all Controverſy a groſs Idolater. And as her ſaying ſhe did not do it as to her Husband, will not excuſe her from Adultery; ſo the Other's ſaying he did not do it as to God, will not excuſe him from Idolatry, which is Spiritual Fornication.

7. Beſides, if Idolatry be not committed but when the Creature is religiouſly worſhipped for the moſt High God, or as if it were the moſt High God, intending the Worſhip as to ſuch; it will be hard to find an Example of Idolatry in all Heathenism. For amongſt the many Gods they worſhipped, there was but one worſhipped as the moſt High, whom the Latines ſtyled Jupiter, the Greeks Ζεὺς, who was accounted the Father of the Gods, and which gave Occaſion to Ariſtotle to uſe this Expreſſion concerning the Diſtribution of Duties and Reſpects, οὐδὲ τῷ πατρὶ πάντα, καθάπερ οὐδὲ τῷ Διὶ θύεται, That all Reſpects or Duties are not to be paid to the Father, as all Sacrifices are not made to Jupiter. But thoſe that were not made to him (which ſurely were the moſt) were no idolatrous Worſhip according to this Hypotheſis; nor thoſe that were made to his Statue by them that took it not for Jupiter, nor thoſe that were ſacrificed to Jupiter himſelf as to the Father and Original of all things; for this is a ſound Notion of the true God. Wherefore by this Compute very few or none in Compariſon, amongſt the Heathens will be found Idolaters. Which is ſo incredible a Paradox, that that which infers it muſt needs be concluded a Falſhood. Ethic. Nic. lib. 9. c. 2.

8. To this you may add, That, in that we have already proved That Religious Worſhip is but One, the Application of it to any Object upon any Terms, ſaving to the only true God, is ipſo facto Idolatry.

9. And laſtly, if the appropriate Signs of religious Worſhip might be uſed in the Veneration of a Creature, to what End is the Divinity of Chriſt ſo expreſly ſet down in the holy Writ, and ſo zealouſly contended for in all Ages of the Church? For the Divine Worſhip we give him, according to the fond Aſſertion above mentioned, might be done unto him though he were a mere Man. So exceeding manifeſt is it, that the Application of the appropriate Signs of Divine or Religious Worſhip (for they are all one) with the Intention of thereby honouring that which is not God, though they do not thereby intend to worſhip it as the moſt High God, or as the true God, is an Act of Idolatry.

CHAP.

CHAP. XI.

1. Sacrifices, Drink-offerings, and Burning of Incenſe appropriate Signs of Religious Worſhip, according to Grotius, as alſo whatever elſe Conſent of Nations has made ſo. 2. Alſo Vows, Oaths, Asking ſupernatural Gifts, Invocating Saints or Angels while they are Inviſible. 3. Or to ask of them, though viſible, any natural Boon at an Altar, or in a Temple conſecrated to them. 4. Images erected, and dedicated in Temples, or on Altars, a Mode of Divine Worſhip; with a Prevention of an Objection. 5. Songs alſo and Incurvations may be ſo framed and circumſtantiated as to become ſuch Signs. 6. That every Idolatry is Blaſphemy; as alſo to give the Name of God to any Creature, both. 7. A general Diſtribution of the appropriate Signs of Religious Worſhip. 8. A Prevention of a Subterfuge, from the Pretence of a larger Signification of Religious Worſhip than we have given, all our future Convictions depending only upon the Truth of our Definition of Religious Worſhip in that Senſe we have declared.

1. WHerefore we want nothing now for the clear diſcovering when Idolatry is committed, but a diſtinct and determinate Knowledge of the appropriate Signs of Divine Worſhip. Which truly I think are not hard to be known. Grotius, a Perſon not over-forward to fancy that Idolatry which is not, has expreſly named Three, Sacrificium, Libamen, Suffitus, which he calls Venerationis Signa, quæ conſenſus Gentium Divini cultûs eſſe propria voluit, and ſo has not only afforded us Examples, but a Rule how to find out proper Signs of Divine Worſhip; namely, that at leaſt thoſe are ſuch that Conſent of Nations has made ſo.

And I think it ſeaſonable here (becauſe ſome do raſhly appropriate Sacrifice to that which they call Latria, as if this Sign of Religious Worſhip were adequately proper to God, others communicable to other Objects) to take Notice, that if they mean by Sacrifice the Mactation of living Creatures, that Manner of Worſhip not being in Uſe amongſt Chriſtians, it muſt needs enhance the Nature of other Signs of Religious Worſhip, and make them the more apparently incommunicable to any created Object, which yet were really ſo, though this Caſe were not. But this only by the Bye.

2. Vows alſo and Oaths Grotius acknowledges to be Part of this Kind of Worſhip, as alſo The praying for the holy Spirit, for Remiſſion of Sins, and for Eternal Life. Theſe then, according to him, are not to be asked of an Angel, though he were viſibly preſent. To which I will make bold to add the religious Invocation of any Angel or Spirit abſent or inviſible. For as, becauſe God is the only Giver of Eternal Life, of Remiſſion of Sins and of the Holy Spirit, he that asks ſo high things from any Creature, acknowledges the incommunicable Excellencies of God in that Creature; ſo alſo he that invokes any inviſible Angel, Saint, or Spirit, does in like Manner acknowledge an Omniſciency and Omnipreſency In this Saint or Angel, which are the incommunicable Excellencies of God.

3. Nay I add further, That the Asking of ſuch things as are in the Power of a Creature to give, as ſuppoſe a fit Medicine for ſuch or ſuch a Malady, or Aſſiſtance in Danger upon the Way in a Journey; if the one be asked, ſuppoſe, of Æſculapius in a Temple and at an Altar conſecrated to his Ghoſt, and the other of Hercules at one dedicated to his; theſe Petitions of ſuch feaſible good Offices, yea and, if you will, begged of theſe Ghoſts or Dæmons preſent there and viſible, (and there is the ſame Reaſon in Saints and Angels) would not fail notwithſtanding to be Idolatry; the Conſent of Nations having made the erecting and dedicating Temples for Prayers, Vows and Sacrifices a Sign of Divine Worſhip; and it was, you know, the formal Worſhip of the moſt high God, the God of Iſrael, while the Temple ſtood, whoſe Reſidence was conceived more peculiarly to be between the Cherubims, which were concealed from the Eye of the People, that they might not commit Idolatry with them.

4. But the Gentiles very depravedly uſed this Circumſtance of Religious Worſhip, and made their Addreſſes towards the open Images, or Statues of Divine Reſidence, conſecrated to that Purpoſe, where the God was to receive their Offerings and Prayers. So that though all Nations at all Times did not uſe this Repreſentation of the Divine Reſidence by Images, yet where it was not in Uſe (which was exceeding general) it is manifeſt that it was Part of the Divineſt Worſhip, and ſuch as they uſed towards the higheſt Numen. And ſeeing that this Manner of Divine Preſence or viſible Reſidence by Images was not only uſed in the Worſhip of the inferior Dæmons, but of ſuch as were ſtyled Dii cæleſtes, (whom aſſuredly they could not think exiled from Heaven to aſſiſt at theſe earthly Statues) it is a Sign that the Image it ſelf was reckoned for the viſible Preſence of the Deity they did adore, and conſequently that this Repreſentation of the Deity, whether the Deity be perſonally there preſent or no, is that which by Conſent of Nations has paſſed into an ordinary Mode of Divine Worſhip.

Nor can the Erection of Temples, Altars, or other Symbols of Religious Worſhip, to them that are not Gods, make theſe ceaſe to be ſuch Signs or Symbols. For then, ſince they all have been after that manner abuſed, and imployed to other Purpoſes, there would be no Signs of Divine Worſhip left at all. But rather on the contrary we are to conclude, that whatever things were conſecrated to the Worſhip or Honour of the God of Iſrael, that to conſecrate the like to that which is not God is an invading his Right, and a manifeſt Act of Idolatry.

5. Hymns alſo, and Incurvations, as they may be framed, will be unavoidably Signs of Divine Worſhip: as namely, if this Incurvation be made to any particular inviſible Power, while he is inviſible; for it is an Acknowledgment of one of the incommunicable Excellencies of God, viz. his Ubiquity. For we may bow any where to the inviſible God, becauſe he is every where: but to bow to any particular Angel or Spirit, while he is inviſible, is manifeſtly incongruous, becauſe he is not every where. Therefore he that does this Worſhip to him as congruous, does therewith, interpretativè, acknowledge by that Act an Ubiquity in him; and thereby becomes an Idolater.

Incurvation alſo towards an Image erected to any Creature (eſpecially in a Temple, or on an Altar, yea though removed from both) were a Sign of Religious Worſhip or Service by infallible Definition, Thou ſhalt not bow down to them, nor ſerve them: that is to ſay, Thou ſhalt not doe the Service of Incurvation, nor any other Religious Service to them. For עבודה Service is Cultus religioſus, of which Incurvation in ſuch Circumſtances is aſſuredly one kind; I mean, exhibited either to an inviſible Power, or to its viſible Repreſentation in an Image. Concerning the latter whereof, Conſent of Nations has alſo made it an appropriate Sign of Religious Worſhip, eſpecially in a Temple, as I noted before.

And now for Hymns, I ſay, the framing of a Song to the Praiſe of any created Being, ſuppoſe Sun, Moon, or Dæmon, if there be ſuch Epithets therein as ſignifie the incommunicable Excellencies of God; as if one ſhould begin, O Sol Omnipotens, or O Luna Omniſcia; this would certainly not fail to be the giving of Divine Worſhip to the Sun and Moon: upon which Account Martial ſeems to me not a Flatterer only of Domitian, but an Idolater, in that Hendecaſyllabon, Edictum Domini Deíque noſtri.

Wherein he writes after Domitian's own Copy, who taught his Miniſters of State this Epiſtolar Form, Deus & Dominus noſter ſic fieri jubet. Which if it might be more tolerable in Pagan Kingdoms, where Dii uſually amounted to no more than Angeli amongſt us; yet in Chriſtian Nations, where God is an incommunicable Name, as the Author of the Book of Wiſdom intimates, the calling of any Man God cannot but be horrible Idolatry, or Blaſphemy.

6. But not the leſs Idolatry for being Blaſphemy, ſith every Idolatry is ſo. For Idolatry, by giving the appropriate Signs of the Acknowledgment of the Divine Excellency to a vile Creature, (and every Creature is ſo in reſpect of God) does equalize that Creature unto God, and conſequently makes God as vile as that Creature. Which is a manifeſt Reviling and Blaſpheming of him, worſe than the Calling of a Prince by the Name of the baſeſt Vermin. I ſay therefore, in ſuch Countries as the Name of God uſually ſignifies the true God, and not Angels, to apply that Appellation to any Man, is both Idolatry and Blaſphemy: as it would be to uſe any Geſture to him that were appropriate to Divine Adoration; which made the Greeks that they would not do Reverence to the King of Perſia in the Perſian Mode, becauſe that was the very Poſture which in Greece they uſed in worſhipping their Gods.

7. Theſe are the chief, if not all, the Signs of Divine Worſhip that eaſily occur to my Mind. And if I have let any eſcape my recital in particular, they will eaſily be recalled, if not kept ſafe in the general Notion I have given of the Appropriate Signs of Religious Worſhip, namely, That all they are ſuch that either Conſent of Na- tions, or the Use of particular Countries, or the natural Signification of the thing it self, or else Divine Definition has made so. Of the first Sort of which are Meat-Offerings, Burning of Incense, Erecting Altars, Dedicating Images, and the like. Of the second Sort is such or such a Posture of Religious Veneration proper to such a Country, as in that Example of the Greeks, which was obligatory to them of that Country. And of the third, The praying for the Holy Spirit, for Remission of Sins, Eternal Life, or for what else is out of the Power of the Creature to give; also The making of Vows and Oaths, they implying an absolute κυριότητα in them in whose Name they are made, and not only a Knowledge of the Fact, but a Power of punishing out of the Road of humane Laws; of which Power and Knowledge we have no Assurance in any particular Spirit, but in God only. To which you may add The invoking of any particular invisible Powers, while they are invisible, though in such things as they are naturally able to help us in. Hymns also, or any Compellations whatsoever made to a Creature, if the Words signifie the incommunicable Excellencies of God. All these of their own Nature and whatsoever are like these, are the Appropriate Signs of Religious Worship, though the Consent of Nations did not give their Suffrage; and are not due to any thing, nor lawful to be given to any thing, but to the true God. Whence the Misapplication of them to any other Object will certainly be the Sin of Idolatry. Lastly, an Example of the last Sort is Bowing to Images, it being declared in the Decalogue a kind of Service of them, according as I noted before.

8. And now, that no Man may fancy to have found any Creephole to evade the Power and Plainness of our Reason, by pretending that Religious Worship is of a larger Extent than what I have defined, I shall here timely advertise him, not only that I matter not what careless Abuses there may be put upon a Word, or what forced Pullings and Drawings to make proper Terms to stretch for the Covering and Palliating unproper Actions or unsound Opinions; but also (and of which I would have him take special Notice) that the Strength of our Demonstrations will not depend upon the Singleness of the Signification of Religious Worship, (which yet I have sufficiently proved to be but one) but upon the Truth of that Definition we have given thereof, in that Sense that is there professedly intended. For no Man can deny but the Religious Worship due to God alone (though he were so extravagant as to conceit some kind of Religious Worship due to some Creatures) is truly and exactly defined in the above-said Definition. And I promise here aforehand, that my Convictions of Idolatry shall be fetched, not from the Supposition that Religious Worship may have no other Sense than according to which I have defined it in this Definition, but only from the Truth of the Definition of that Religious Worship which is due to God alone; to the End that there may not be the least Room left for any imaginable Cavil or Evasion, or for any Shadow or Dream thereof.

CHAP. XII.

1. A brief Enumeration of the Parts of that full Instruction we have to discern what is Idolatry. 2. That the Adoration of the Cross is Idolatry. 3. As also the Worshiping any Person of the Holy Trinity by an Image or Picture. 4. That Religious Worship given to Saints or Angels, though without the Use of any Image or Picture, is Idolatry. 5. That the mere Invocation of any particular invisible Power is also Idolatrous. 6. Certain Evasions touching the Praying to Saints answered. 7. Another Subterfuge answered. 8. Worshipping Saints by Images a double Idolatry. 9. That it is Idolatry to worship an Image, taking it for the Saint himself. 10. As also the Adoration of any Man alive upon Earth. 11. That the Worshipping of the Eucharistick Bread, taken for the real Body of Christ, is Idolatry. 12. That all the aboveſaid Acts are Idolatrous, let Men pretend what they will to cover the Guilt. 13. And that εἰδωλολατρεῖαι ἀδέμιτοι in St. Peter does not imply a Lawfulness in any kind of Idolatry.

1. WE are now I think sufficiently instructed, partly by the acknowledged Examples of Idolatry committed by Heathens or Jews, and partly by the Knowledge of the adequate Object of Idolatry, as also of the right Definition of Religious Worship, and of the appropriate Signs thereof, and of the formal or essential Application of thoſe Signs, to diſcern and define infallibly what would be Idolatry, where-ever it was practiſed amongſt Chriſtians themſelves, and what not.

2. As for Example, To adore the Croſs, or to give any Religious Worſhip thereto, though there were no Image upon it, would be Idolatry, according to the firſt Inſtance thereof, and of ſuch as are referrable thereto, which ſhew that Idolatry may be committed without an Image. And that it is here committed, is plain, in that we ſuppoſe the appropriate Signs of Divine Worſhip uſed in the Adoration thereof. Which done to any Creature, is ipſo facto Idolatry.

3. Secondly, To do Religious Worſhip to the Picture or Image of any Perſon of the Holy Trinity, or of all Three, or particularly to the Image of Chriſt, though this Religious Worſhip is intended to paſs through the Repreſentation to God himſelf, Father, Son, or Holy Ghoſt, is notwithſtanding Idolatry according to the ſecond Inſtance, where Worſhipping the true God by an Image is proved to be ſuch.

4. Thirdly, The Worſhipping Angels, or Saints, yea the bleſſed Virgin her ſelf, with Religious Worſhip, though without an Image, is Idolatry; And ſuch may be a Religious Invocation of them, the asking of them ſuch things as are proper only for God to give, as Remiſſion of Sins, Aſſiſtance of Grace, and Eternal Life; or uſing any Epithets in Hymns, or Songs to them, that ſignifie the incommunicable Excellencies of God; or laſtly, making Vows, and Swearing in their Names. This plainly appears from the firſt Inſtance of Idolatry, and from thoſe kinds of appropriate Signs of Divine Worſhip that of their own Nature are diſcoverable to be ſuch.

5. And truly ſuch is the Invocation of the Help of this or that Saint, though it were not in thoſe more conſpicuous Circumſtances of putting up our Petitions in a Temple, or before the Image of the Saint we pray to. For the ſimple Invocation of a particular inviſible Power is of it ſelf Idolatry, without thoſe other Circumſtances; becauſe it conſequently attributes that to that Power which is only proper to the true God, I mean Omnipreſence or Ubiquity. For no Man can be aſſured that an inviſible Power is in ſuch a particular Place, but by Suppoſition that he is in all Places at once; which is the proper Prerogative of God.

Wherefore ſimple Invocation of any particular inviſible Power is no ſuch ſlight Buſineſs as ſome make it, but abſolute Idolatry, nay, I think the moſt fundamental part of all Idolatry committed by the Heathen, (if rationally and philoſophically examined) and the Mother of the reſt. Or at leaſt whatever great Exception there is, or convincingly rational, againſt thoſe uſual Signs of Religious Worſhip being given to theſe particular inviſible Powers, it is found here, and is allegeable againſt Invocation. For the main is, That it implys an Omnipreſence of that inviſible Power they worſhip.

And therefore the Conſecrating of a Temple and Altar, and a ſymbolical Reſidence or viſible Repreſentation, and offering of Sacrifices, and the like, cannot be competible to any but the All-preſent God, whom we are always ſure to find at home, if I may ſo ſpeak, when we make our Approaches to his Houſe. But for other particular inviſible Powers, who knows whether they be at home or no; or whether purſuing, or in a Journey, or aſleep ſomewhere, as Elias ſarcaſtically argues concerning Baal; nay, I will add, whether they be not carried away captive, and confined to ſome other Place? None can have any Certainty of them where they are, or whether ever there where their viſible and ſymbolical Reſidence is erected, unleſs they be Omnipreſent, and of neceſſity are there, becauſe every-where: If not, we have no Faith nor Aſſurance of their Preſence or Audience. But Prayer and Invocation ſuppoſes Faith and Aſſurance of being heard, at leaſt in that ordinary Senſe; of which there being no Aſſurance without the inviſible Power invoked be Omnipreſent, it is plain that he that invokes an inviſible Power interpretatively implys its Omnipreſence, and conſequently, if it be a particular Power and finite, commits Idolatry thereby.

6. Nor can the Demonſtrativeneſs of this Reaſon be eluded or evaded by thoſe uſual Subterfuges of the Saints ſeeing and knowing all things by particular Revelation from God, or by the exalted Peculiarity of their Condition in that ſeparate glorified State they are in. For thoſe that talk at this rate rant it, and ſpeak unintelligible Riddles, without all Ground or Probability of Reaſon or Warrant of Scripture; they being mere After-Figments and precarious Suppoſitions to excuſe the Madneſs and Extravagancy of their idolatrous Actions.

For as for the latter Surmiſe, it is plainly a Dream, to think the bleſſed Virgin, ſuppoſe, merely by virtue of her glorified and ſeparate Condition from this terreſtrial Body, can hear from Heaven at ſuch a vaſt diſtance the devout Whiſpers or Suſpirations of her affectionate Supplicants, or ſee through the Earth their humble Proſtrations. For ſhe is called upon by the Inhabitants of this Globe in all Poſtures or Diſtances of Habitation, even by thoſe that are Antipodes one to another: where if ſhe aſſiſt the one, ſhe muſt be at leaſt the Earth's Diameter diſtant from the other, through which Diſtance neither her Sight nor Hearing can ever penetrate.

And for the former Hypotheſis, How childiſh and ridiculous is it! they pretending that they ſupplicate the Saints to ſpeak to God in their Behalf, whenas the Saints cannot ſpeak to God till he tell them their Errand firſt, who has received the Meſſage from the Supplicant already, but muſt impart it to the Saints to ſay it over to him again; which ſhews the Incongruity of making any Addreſſes to them, and (conſidering how perfectly appeaſable and propitious, and how freely acceſſible God is through the only Name and Mediation of Jeſus Chriſt) is ſuch an uſeleſs Patch and Bungle in Divinity, that it cannot ſeem credible to any Man of common Senſe: and therefore there is no ſuch ſpecial Revelation to the Saints of our Compellation of them in our Prayers, and conſequently the Invocation of them (which is proper to God, by reaſon of his Omniſcious Ubiquity) being thus miſplaced upon theſe particular inviſible Powers, muſt be interpretatively an Act of Idolatry, there being done ſuch an Act of Worſhip to them as implys in the Object ſuch an Excellency as is found only in God.

7. Nor will their Profeſſion of thoſe diminiſhing Apprehenſions concerning Saints in other Reſpects (as, That they are not the true God, but only glorified Creatures, and that they are Interceſſors inferior to Chriſt, and the like) excuſe them from Idolatry: For the Acknowledgement of any one Divine Excellency or Peculiarity of the Godhead in that which is a mere Creature, is undoubtedly Idolatry; as the betraying any one Caſtle to the Enemy is Treaſon againſt a Prince. And the Pagans were eſteemed as Idolaters in worſhipping Mercury and the whole Order of the Mediоxumous or internuntial Deities or Dæmons, for all their acknowledging them inferior to the Supreme God. So that I cannot ſee but that the mere Invocation of Saints or Angels is a palpable, nay a fundamental, piece of Idolatry, and in reference to which all the Pomp and Furniture of Idolatry was ſuperſtructed; I mean the building of their Temples, erecting Altars and Images, incenſing, and ſacrificing, and the reſt. For all end in, or are Circumſtances of Invocation, upon Faith and Aſſurance to be heard, which cannot be rationally placed in any inviſible Power, unleſs it be Omnipreſent; which this Invocation does naturally and neceſſarily imply, elſe there will be no ſenſe of the Action, but it will be very incongruous and ridiculous. For all other Suppoſitions, touching the Condition of ſuch an inviſible Power, are arbitrarious, uncertain, nay incredible Surmiſes, and upon which there can be no Faith nor Aſſurance of being heard.

8. Fourthly, And as this Worſhip of Invocation to either Saint or Angel, without the Uſe of an Image, is thus plainly Idolatry; ſo the invoking them, or any other way of Worſhipping them with an Image, muſt be a double Piece of Idolatry, and is referrable to the third Mode thereof.

9. Fifthly, The worſhipping of an Image, ſuppoſe of the bleſſed Virgin or of any other Saint, upon a Miſtake that it is the very Virgin herſelf, or this or that Saint, is alſo Idolatry, and to be referred to the fourth Inſtance thereof.

10. Sixthly, To worſhip any Man yet living with Religious Worſhip, whether in Geſture, Compellation, Appellation, or any thing elſe that is an appropriate Sign of the incommunicable Excellencies of God, is alſo Idolatry, and is to be referred to the firſt Inſtance.

11. Seventhly and laſtly, To worſhip the Conſecrated Bread in the Euchariſt, though upon full Perſwaſion that it is tranſubſtantiated into the Body of Chriſt, and ſo Hypoſtatically united with the Divinity, is, notwithſtanding this Opinion conceited of it, a real Act of Idolatry, and is evidently referrable to the laſt Inſtance.

12. All theſe Acts, or what other ſoever of the ſame Nature that can be found, though amongſt Chriſtians, and upon the Pretence of worſhipping God and Chriſt, are aſſuredly Acts of Idolatry, according to the undeniable Notion and Definition thereof, which is, The Worſhipping that which is not God by the appropriate Signs of Religious Worſhip, ſuch as either Uſe, or the Nature of the thing it ſelf has made the proper Modes of our Acknowledgement of the Divine Excellencies.

13. And now that I have proved ſuch Acts as theſe Idolatrous, I need not beſtow any new Pains to prove them unlawful; becauſe all Idolatry is ſo, according to the Vote and Senſe of Scripture and of all Men. For to go about to infer that ſome kind kind of Idolatry is lawful, because * Peter mentions Εἰδωλολατρείαι ἀθέμιτοι, is as weak and foolish, as if from the mentioning of Impious Blasphemies against God, one should infer that the Party that spake so supposed that some Blasphemies against God, were not impious. Wherefore it is plain that ἀθέμιτοι, is added not by Way of Distinction, but of Aggravation or Description; as when we say Alba nix or Corvus niger, which are not intended in common Speech as Notes of Distinction of Crows or of the Snow into white and black, but as Epithets denoting their Nature. The Practice therefore of such Actions as we have enumerated, if they be introduced into the Christian Chuch, will prove one Branch of Antichristianism, and a chief one too, and their Doctrines that averre the Warrantableness of them must be false and irrational.

* 1 Ep. 4. 3.

CHAP. XIII.

1. That the Professing one only true God does not necessarily quit a People from the Guilt or Capacity of being Idolaters. 2. That to exhibit such Modes of Worship as are proper to the true God to a Creature, though we take it for a Creature, is Idolatry. 3. That the Jews were Idolaters, though they professed the only true God. 4. That the Belief of the Eucharistick Bread being the real Body of Christ does not excuse the Adorer thereof from Idolatry. 5. The Case of the Heathen that worshipped the Sun, and this of the Bread-Worshippers, compared. 6. A Solution of a Sophism the Author once put upon himself in Excuse of this Bread-Worship. 7. That their not thinking the Bread to be in the Eucharist does not excuse the Worshippers of the Host from Idolatry.

1. HAving thus evidenced the Falseness of the Mystery of Iniquity in this first Point; according to my professed Method, I shall proceed to the Fraud, which (as I have already intimated) includes the fallacious Pretences and Excuses, together with the Self-endedness of the Drivers on of this impious Mystery.

And truly the Pretences and Shelters under which they would shroud themselves are very slender and scant, but their Self-ends may be gross and palpable. As methinks that would be a very poor Plea for the Christians, namely, that they, forsooth, cannot possibly be Idolaters, because they apertly and declaredly profess that there is only one true God, of a Nature infinitely excellent above any Creature, and that therefore if they were Idolaters they would contradict themselves: Wherefore no Professors of Christianity, though they did Religious Worship to Saints, to Angels, to Images, to Crosses, to a Piece of consecrated Bread, could be Idolaters, especially if they shamelessly stand out with it, and out-face the World they are not so.

But the Insufficiency and Weakness of this Excuse is too-too apparent, if we consider how easie and ordinary a thing it is for Men to contradict the Profession of their own Faith. For how many are there, even of those who do truly believe there is a Life to come, that do not live as if there were any such thing, and so contradict their Belief by their Actions? How many are there that professing a particular Providence of God and Faith therein, yet in time of Streights do not depend thereon, but divert to some unlawful Practice, or do some wicked Action to relieve themselves in Distress, or secure themselves from Danger? How many that will zealously declaim against Cruelty and Injustice, as things abhorred of God and Man, and yet are themselves notoriously Unjust and Cruel in the Judgment of all the disinteressed, though they themselves will make a more favourable Construction of their own Actions, and will stand it out as stoutly for their Justification, as these Professors of Christianity that they are no Idolaters?

It may so fare therefore, that, as the Apostle speaks to Titus, Men may profess to know God, but in their Works deny Him. They may say there is one only true God, yet do that Homage which is due to Him alone unto this or that Creature, without saying or intending that this Creature should be taken for the true God, or that they do that Religious Worship to it as to the true God. Which is such a Piece of Idolatry as never was amongst the Heathens themselves, nor can explicitly fall into the Mind of a Man, no more than to believe Contradictions while he thinks them so or consciencously to go against the Dictates of his own Conscience while he thinks those Dictates to be true. So plain is it, that no People can conscienciously ly and devotionally give that Worſhip which they think due to God alone, unto that which they think is not the true God.

Tit. 1. 16.

ly

2. But out of Inadvertency, ill Education, or accuſtomary Superſtition, it is not impoſſible but that, not knowing or not taking Notice that ſuch or ſuch Ceremonies or Modes of Worſhip are properly due to the only true God, they may uſe them in Honour to that which is but a Creature, or the Image of a Creature, be it Saint or Angel; nor can the remembring they are God's Creatures in this Caſe ſecure a Man from Idolatry. For the Miſtake in the Nature of the Worſhip they perform to them does lapſe them into Idolatry, notwithſtanding they conceive of the Object as of a Creature. And Ignorance can be no Excuſe, where there is Opportunity of being better informed. Nay Inceſt and Adultery muſt be accounted and called by us Adultery and Inceſt, though practiſed in ſuch Countries as allow thereof, and we muſt ſay they are a more unclean People than our ſelves.

3. To which you may add, That the Church of the Jews were ſometimes Idolaters, and ſo declared by the Prophets of God, though they had not caſt away the Knowledge nor Acknowledgment of their Jehovah, the only true God. Why may not therefore Chriſtians be Idolaters, though they ſtill profeſs they worſhip the only true God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom he hath ſent, the very ſame God once incarnate of the Virgin Mary, and ſo living amongſt Men upon Earth?

4. And particularly concerning the Adoring of the Bread in the Euchariſt upon a Belief that it is the very Body of Chriſt, a Chriſtian could not defend himſelf from the Imputation of Idolatry, neither by the general Plea before, nor by the proper Plea to this Caſe, namely, That he that thus adores it, does verily believe it to be the Body of Chriſt or his corporeal Preſence; I ſay, he cannot clear himſelf from being guilty of real Idolatry, For his Ignorance is not his Excuſe, no more than before.

For the Senſe of his Excuſe is only this; That he gives this Divine Worſhip to the ſeeming Bread, becauſe he verily believes it to be God, and therefore a due Object of this Worſhip; and that he gives no more Worſhip than he thinks is due to the Object. If there be any Senſe in the Reaſon and Faculties of a Man, this is the Senſe of their Plea: which if it be ſound and juſt, we do very unjuſtly to accuſe any Nations or Perſons in the World of committing Idolatry, that were ſerious in the Action. For can they devoutly or ſeriouſly doing it, conceive at the ſame time they do their Divine Worſhip to an undue Object, and that that Object is not capable of as much Religious Worſhip as they do to it?

5. There was infinitely more Reaſon that the Pagans ſhould take the Sun to be that True and Eternal God that made and governs all things, as he is profeſſed to be in the Fragments of their Liturgies, than that any Chriſtian ſhould imagin a Piece of conſecrated Bread to be ſo. And I queſtion not but that the ancient Heathen did as firmly believe the Sun to be God, as any Chriſtian can believe the Euchariſtick Bread to be the Body of Chriſt: But yet notwithſtanding I think it never came into any Chriſtian Man's Mind to doubt but that the Worſhippers of the Sun were Idolaters. How then is it poſſible but that a Bread-worſhipping Chriſtian upon the ſame Terms muſt be an Idolater too, there being nothing intrinſecal that can excuſe the one but it will excuſe the other alſo?

And as for the Mitigation of the Fault of either Side from any exterior Circumſtances, I briefly add, That the glorious Luſter of the Sun, his comfortable Warmth, his notable Effects, and vaſt Influence upon the World, was a far ſtronger Inducement and more unavoidable to make the Pagans think him to be God, than Hoc eſt Corpus meum, or any Gloſs thereon by the Fathers of the Church, could juſtly be, to make any Chriſtian believe that the Euchariſtick Bread is the real Body of Jeſus Chriſt. Beſides that as Murther and Adultery may have ſeveral Degrees of Aggravation, the Fact being ſtill the ſame; ſo let the Circumſtances be more or leſs aggravable, as much as Men may imagin them, yet the Act we ſpeak of is certainly Idolatry.

6. I muſt confeſs time was when I marvellouſly pleaſed my ſelf in fancying I had found out ſo clear an Evidence, as I then thought, to prove that the adoring of the Hoſt, as it is called, was not Idolatry in them that believed that it was the very Body of Chriſt. For I thought it as pardonable a Miſtake as I my ſelf once committed, when I was a Boy, in asking a waggiſh Coſin of mine Bleſſing. For in the Dusk of the Evening, he having by Chance placed himſelf in the Chair where my Father uſed ordinarily to ſit, I paſſing by to go up to Bed, out of Miſtake begged, according to the Cuſtom of Children, his Benediction, thinking it was my Father; but but he rewarding my blind Devotion with a ludicrous Bleſſing and loud Laughter, I preſently found my Error. (I know not how far I have tranſgreſſed the Laws of Decorum in telling this trivial Story of my ſelf; but I hope the Reader will pardon this φειλαυτολογία, it being ſo ſerviceable for my preſent Purpoſe.)

Now the charitable Uſe I ſometime made of this Miſtake of mine was this; That as I had not the leaſt Intention of begging a Bleſſing or doing any Act of a filial Duty to that unfit Perſon that then ſate in the Chair, but to my Father ouly; and that therefore though a Stranger had occupied the Place, yet that Duty was directed, intended, and indeed done to him alone, though he was not there to receive it: So I charitably concluded (and the impoſing ſo upon my ſelf was a great Eaſe to my Mind, being exceeding loath to find any more Miſcarriages in the World, in the Chriſtian World eſpecially, than needs muſt) that if a Man did Divine Adoration to the Hoſt, he being fully perſwaded it was the Body of Chriſt, that Adoration did no more paſs to the Hoſt than my asking Bleſſing did to him I never intended it for; but that as this latter was entirely directed to my Father, ſo the former did entirely paſs to the Perſon of Chriſt.

This Impoſement upon my ſelf was a great Eaſe and Pleaſure to the charitableneſs of my Nature, ſo long as I thought more careleſly upon the Matter. But after making it my Buſineſs to enquire more accurately into theſe things, I found that Saying of Solomon over-true, That he that encreaſeth Wiſdom, encreaſeth Sorrow. Nor can I apologize for this Miſtake on this Sort, but I muſt alſo thereby excuſe all the Idolaters in the World that were ſerious in their Idolatry. For undoubtedly they always took themſelves to have a due Object of their Worſhip; and what is Idolatry but the not having a due Object thereof? Wherefore if thinking we have, will excuſe us from Idolatry, no devout and ſerious Idolater was ever guilty of the Sin; which is an enormous Contradiction.

Beſides, there is a great Difference betwixt a ſudden Surprizal inevitable for one ſingle Action, and a conſtant Repetition of the ſame Miſtakes; and ſtill greater, if we conſider what a loud Warning there has been given in theſe latter Ages againſt this ſo palpable Errour of Tranſubſtantiation; Men having ſtrained their Voices, and called to them not only ad ravim uſque, but till they have ſpit Blood, and ſpilt their own Lives by freely and faithfully teſtifying againſt that Idolatrous Falſhood. And therefore where Men either take up or perſiſt in this groſs Errour and in the ill Effect therof, it muſt be now unexcuſable Idolatry in the Judgment of all Men that believe the Euchariſtick Bread not to be the Body of Chriſt; of which Truth there is as great a Certainty as of any one thing in the World.

7. Nor, laſtly, would that Evaſion ſerve there Turn, if they ſhould contend that they cannot be ſaid to adore the Bread, becauſe they do not think it there. For the Caſe is much-what the ſame with the former, and needs no new Anſwer. But I demand, Whether is it leſs Idolatry to adore the Accidents of the Bread, which they acknowledge to be there, or the Bread it ſelf? And if the Body of Chriſt be not there under theſe Accidents, their Act of Adoration falls upon the viſible Accidents of Bread: which if they be of leſs Nobleneſs than the Bread it ſelf, their Idolatry is the greater. Beſides, the Heathen who adored the Sun, did not think that Being which is really the Sun to be there, (for the Sun is nothing elſe but an inanimate and unintelligent Maſs of flammeous Matter) but thought it the glorious Godhead it ſelf, which they worſhipped as an Intellectual Power that created and govern'd all things, as I have already intimated; and yet no Man will ſay that this excuſed them from Idolatry in worſhipping the Sun. Where then is their Excuſe that pretend they are guiltleſs of that Artolatria they are fallen into, becauſe, forſooth, they think the Bread is not there, that is to ſay, that that which they worſhip there is not Bread? For the Pagans did not take the Sun, in our Senſe and Notion of him, which is the true Senſe, to be there; though the external Species of the Sun ſeems alike to both us and them, as the external Species of the Bread ſeems alike to both the Artolatra and his Accuſer.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIV.

1. The Fondneſs of diſtinguiſhing betwixt an Idol and an Image, when they are both made Objects of Religious Worſhip, 2. That nothing but what is eſſentiall ynd infinitely Excellent is a due Object thereof. 3. That the Abſence of the Saints from their Images does not excuſe the Idolatry. 4. The Unlikelineſs that there is any true Image of Chriſt, if it were lawful to worſhip it. 5. But that it is unlawful to worſhip it, though there were. 6. That the whole Decalogue is moral. 7. That the Uſe of Images for Memory and Devotion was alſo the Plea of the Heathen. 8. That external Objects in divine Worſhip hinder the Perfection thereof. 9, 10. Other material Allegations againſt the pretended Uſe of Images in Churches. 11. That there are many other Ways of exciting Devotion in the People, infinitely ſurpaſſing this of Images.

